The Japanese were employed by a Tokio firm, and they fitted out in the schooner Yeiju Maru of Yokohama last December. Their destination was Lisiansky Island a wonderful centre of ocean bird life in mid-Pacific, not far from Midway Island. The island is the property of the United States. The Japanese met with a mishap on their way out, a huge wave "pooping" the schooner and carrying away part of her stern. They put into Midway Island to get some lumber, and thus the United States authorities learned of their object.

According to their story they arrived at Lisiansky Island on January 8, and commenced at once to kill birds. They had a staff, not only of hunters, but also of skilled taxidermists and skinners, for the birds' plumage was intended for the millinery markets of Paris. On January 18 a fierce gale struck the island, and the Yeiju Maru, dragging her anchor, struck a coral reef, and was totally lost, ten of the men who happened to be aboard being drowned.

Another ship was expected, and on February 27 the Tiyu Maru arrived, bringing 39 more hunters. She sailed away, however, leaving word that she would soon return, and so the hunting continued. Week succeeded week and the Tiyu Maru never appeared. The Japs on the lonely island found their supplies getting dangerously short, having only a couple of hundred pounds of rice left, so they started to kill for food. There is little on the tern and other sea birds of the island that can be eaten, but the Japs cut what little there was and dried it. So they lived for many weeks, until on the 16th of this month the Thetis arrived. It is presumed that their expected ship was either wrecked or fell a prey to some Russian ship.

Captain Hamlet of the Thetis states that the destruction wrought by the party to bird life was something appalling. He estimates that they killed at least 300,000 birds, to judge from the number of cases of plumage they had secured. All of their spoil had to be abandoned, but it is properly preserved and will keep for a long time. There are 335 of these cases, the plumage in them being of the highest quality. The Japanese will be returned to Yokohama.—New York Post.

QUAINT AND CURIOUS.

The Spider Plant of Cape Negro colony grows for a cenutry and never reaches more than a foot in height.

The body of a Tyrolese guide, who fell into a crevasse on the glacier of Grossvenediger, in the Austrian Alps, 30 years ago, has been found in a remarkable state of preservation at the foot of the glacier.

In Kansas City recently a three-story brick house was raised 160 feet up a steep bluff. The house was carried on a strong framework of timbers, and raised by the turning of 300 jacks, divided into 30 groups.

The smallest coin in the world having a genuine circulation is probably the Maltese "grain," a tiny fragment of bronze about as big around as the top of a slate pencil and having a value of only one-twelfth of a penny.

In the City of Mexico is a Thieves' Market, in which stolen goods are publicly offered for sale. It occupies an entire square. Here may be found everything that is portable, from a telescope to a ring, a silk dress, or a pair of stockings, and the articles are sold at about one-fifth of their actual value. The thieves do not sell the goods openly, for that would be dishonest, in the estimation of the Mexicans, but the sellers are they who purchase secretly from the thieves.

Dr. Forel, a well known American neurologist, who has devoted much time to the study of the nervous systems and the sensations of ants and bees, concludes that the vision of insects is in "mosiac," that is, as it were made up of bits separated by dark lines, the lines corresponding to the edges of the facets of the insect's eye The image is usually not sharp, though when the number of facets is considerable (twelve thousand to seventeen thousand), the definition is good. It is his conclusion that the insects have more than instinct—they have a soul, so to say; and at any rate, a mind capable of forming judgments, of choosing. Bees have, for example, an astonishing memory for localities. Instinct and automatism are far from constituting their mental life.

COULDN'T LIFT TEN POUNDS.

Doan's Kidney Pills Brought Strength and Health to the Sufferer, Making Him Feel Twenty-Five Years Younger

J. B. CORTON.

J. B. Corton, farmer and lumberman, of Deppe, N. C., says: "I suffered for years with my back. It was so bad that I could not walk any distance nor ride in an easy buggy. I do not believe I could have raised ten pounds of weight from the ground, the pain was so severe. This was my condition when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly relieved me, and now I am never troubled as I was. My back is strong and I can walk or ride a long distance and feel just as strong as I did twenty-five years ago. I think so much of Doan's Kidney Pills that I have given a supply of the remedy to some of my neighbors, and they have also found good results. If you can sift anything from this rambling note that will be of any service to you, or to any one suffering from kidney trouble you are liberty to do so."

A TRIAL FREE—Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts.

Mr. Astor's Joke.

In a speech that William Waldorf Astor delivered before the London Clubmen's Benevolent Society he told of a costermonger who lay dying. Nevertheless, he expressed a desire for something to eat, and his wife asked him what he would like. "Well," said the costermonger, "I seem to smell a ham a-cookin' somewheres. I think I could eat a bit of that." "Oh, no, John, dear," said his wife; "you can't have that. That's for the funeral."—Argonaut.

A Story of the Pope.

"My life has been strangely ruled by the number nine," Pius X. is quoted as saying previous to being chosen Pope. "Nine years I was a schoolboy at Riese; nine years a student at Padua; nine years a curate at Tombolo; nine years a priest at Salzano; nine years a canon at Treviso; nine years a bishop at Mantua; now for nine years I have been a cardinal-patriarch at Venice. As Pope—as long as God wills; perhaps another nine years."

The Japanese are considered to be among the very strongest people on earth. They are strong mentally and physically and practically they eat no meat at all. Their diet consists almost wholly of rice, steamed or boiled, while the better to do add fish, eggs, vegetables and fruit. For beverages they use weak tea without sugar or milk, and pure water, alcoholic stimulants being rarely indulged in.

Rueben Laycock, the atheist sage of Danville, Iowa, is dead. Just before his death he wrote his own funeral oration, setting forth his religious views at length, picked four girls of the village to sing at his funeral, and composed the music and wrote the words of two or three philosophical poems, setting forth his views of life, death and immortality.

The treasurer of the United States on May 6, 1903, redeemed two half-cent pieces. This is the first time in the history of the country that any such coins have been presented for redemption. It is more than a century since the first half-cent piece was coined, and it is nearly fifty years since the government discontinued minting them.

Until recently it was almost universally believed that petroleum was, like coal, derived from fossil vegetation or possibly from animals or fishes of some long past age. Now it is asserted by many scientific men that it may not be of organic origin, but may be due to subterranean chemical action.

Japanese postage stamps are rated as the most artistic in the world. There is a great demand for them in London at present. The stamps were issued in 1871. There are few rare ones, the highest price ever known to have been paid for one being $50.

Up to the present time practically no intelligent attention has been given to the cultivation of garden truck in Mexico, such as potatoes, sweet corn, peas, beans, tomatoes, asparagus, celery, cabbage, etc.

SPECIAL LOW RATES VIA SOUTHERN Railway Account National Baptist Convention, Colored, Austin, Tex., Sept. 4-19, Southern railway will sell round trip tickets for one fare plus $2.25 for the round trip. Tickets sold Sept. 11 and 12 with final limit Sept. 30, for return.

Account National Convention Fraternal Order of Eagles, Baltimore, Md., September 12-17, 1904. For this occasion a rate of one fare plus $1.25 for the round trip has been authorized via all rail or via rail to Norfolk and steamer. Tickets on sale Sept. 10-11-12, limited to Sept. 19 for return. By depositing tickets on or before Sept. 19 and paying a fee of $1 tickets may be extended to Sept. 25.

General Convention Protestant Episcopal Church, Boston, Mass., and return, Oct. 5-26, 1904. Account of above occasion a rate of one first class fare plus 50c has been authorized via all rail route. Via rail to Atlantic ports and steamship, one fare plus $8.50 for the round trip has been authorized. Tickets on sale October 2 and 3, limited to October 23, 1904. By depositing tickets in Boston immediately upon arrival at that point final limit of ticket may be extended until October 31. Stopovers within this final limit may be obtained at Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington upon notice to conductor and deposit of ticket with Depot Ticket Agent immediately upon arrival at the point where you wish to stop. For detail information call on J. N. Harrison, D. P. A., or R. B. Creagh, T. P. A., Birmingham, Ala. Both Phones 617.

It Walked In.

Early in the morning L. H. Haney, landlord of the City hotel at Barnsboro, Cambria county, was aroused from his slumbers by a crash in his room. Opening his eyes, he was startled to see a big bear. The noise had aroused Mrs. Haney, and she screamed for help. Her husband sprang out of bed and seized a chair to protect himself and wife.

Bruin came toward them, and Haney swung the chair. Mrs. Haney was still screaming and the guests of the hotel were coming from their rooms. About this time the bear concluded that things were getting too interesting and he decided to leave. As he emerged from the landlord's room into the hall there was a rush to get out of the way. Arms were quickly obtained, and the bear driven off.

Perhaps the most remarkable bridges in the world are kettle bridges, of which Cossack soldiers are expert builders. The materials of which they are constructed are soldiers' lances and cooking kettles. Seven or eight lances are passed under the handles of a number of kettles and fastened together by means of ropes to form a raft. A sufficient number of these rafts, each of which will bear a weight of half a ton, are fastened together, and in the space of an hour a bridge is formed on which an army may cross with confidence and safety.

In the royal mausoleum at Frogmore near Windsor castle, repose the remains of Queen Victoria and her consort Prince Albert, in one tomb. When the prince died the queen had a recumbent statue of him made and placed upon the tomb. At the same time a statue of the queen was made, by the same sculptor, and when she died this was placed alongside of that of her husband, in the space that had been reserved for it. The queen is depicted in regal robes, wearing a jeweled crown and holding a scepter in her clasped hands.

A grandson of General John Kilby Smith, aide to Lafayette, is living in Westbrooke, Me., and possesses many valuable relics of his distinguished ancestors. Among them are the Bible carried by General Smith during eight years of service in the army, his diploma as a charter member of the Society of the Cincinnati, the horsehair bridle which he used upon his horse and other relics.

From Russian sources it is learned that streams of colonists are still pouring into Siberia to develop its agricultural resources, and on the shores of fifty rivers homes are rapidly being made. Farms as large as those of Illinois, Iowa, the Dakotas and Minnesota are cultivated. Siberian farmers are still backward in the use of agricultural machinery, although there is steady progress in that regard.

In a mountain near Elko, Nev., there is an inexhaustible supply of pure soap. One may enter the mine with a knife and cut as large a piece as he wants. It is beautifully mottled, and on being exposed to the air hardens somewhat. The mountain of clay is of fine texture, and it contains boracic acid, soda and borate of lime.

In the Japanese army every soldier carries with him a kettle made of ordinary thin Japanese paper. It is filled with water and then water is poured over it. It is hung over the fire and in ten minutes the water is boiling. The kettle can be used eight or ten times, and the cost of it is about two cents.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer, $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

English cotton workers are rushing to Canada.

Piso's Cure cannot be too highly spoken of as a cough cure.—J. W. O'Brien, 322 Third Avenue, N., Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6, 1900.

The penguin's wings are useful only under water.

Sunnyside, Utah, is a town of 400 and not a woman lives there.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED AUTUMN Tours to the Sapphire Country via the Southern Railway.—On Sept. 10, 17 and 24 the Southern Railway will run personally conducted excursions from Birmingham to the Sapphire Country. Tickets will be limited 9 days from date of sale and will include 7 days' board at the hotels of the Toxaway Co. (Fairfield Inn, Toxaway Inn, Sapphire Inn and Franklin Inn), back ride from Lake Toxaway to Sapphire Inn or Fairfield Inn and return to Lake Toxaway. Rate from Birmingham $36.20. Leaving Birmingham at 5:15 p. m. you reach Brevard 10:10 a. m., Lake Toxaway 11:25 a. m. the following morning, with sleeping car accommodations the entire route. For full information and sleeping car reservations apply at D. P. A's. office, Morris Hotel Bldg., Birmingham, Ala. Both phones 617.

UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA
ESTABLISHED 1831.
John W. Abercrombie, LL. D., Pres.

Forty officers of government and instruction. Regular enrollment for last session, 432. Summer School enrollment, 351. Total, 783.
Excellent laboratory facilities. Good library. Well equipped gymnasium. Steam laundry. Electric lights. Spring water. Good board.
Graduate and undergraduate courses in thirteen academic schools. Professional courses in Engineering, Law, Medicine and Pharmacy.
So many superior advantages can not be had elsewhere at smaller cost.
Tuition in academic department free to Alabamians.
Next session opens Wednesday, September 7. For catalogue address,
G. H. JONES, Secretary.
University, Ala.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

Mrs. Rosa Adams, niece of the late General Roger Hanson, C.S.A., wants every woman to know of the wonders accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I cannot tell you with pen and ink what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me, suffering from the ills peculiar to the sex extreme lassitude and that all gone feeling. I would rise from my bed in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed, but before I used two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to feel the buoyancy of my younger days returning, became regular, could do more work and not feel tired than I had ever been able to do before, so I continued to use it until I was restored to perfect health. It is indeed a boon to sick women and I heartily recommend it. Yours very truly, Mrs. Rosa Adams, 819 12th St., Louisville, Ky.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham. She will understand your case perfectly, and will treat you with kindness. Her advice is free, and the address is Lynn, Mass. No woman ever regretted having written her, and she has helped thousands.

An Austrian's invention for stopping a runaway horse is a check rein which shouts off the animal's air supply.

B.B.B. BOTANIC BLOOD BALM

A Household Remedy Cures SCROFULA, ULCERS, SALT RHEUM, ECZEMA, every form of malignant SKIN ERUPTION, besides being effectious in toning up the system and restoring the constitution, when impaired from any cause. It is a fine Tonic, and its almost supernatural healing properties justify us in guaranteeing a cure of all blood diseases, if directions are followed. Price, $1 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $5. FOR SALE BY DRUGGISTS.

SENT FREE BOOK OF WONDERFUL CURES, together with valuable information. BLOOD BALM CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Positions GUARANTEED BY A $5,000 BANK DEPOSIT
Railroad Fare Paid. 500 FREE Courses Offered. Board at Cost. Write Quick GEORGIA-ALABAMA BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

No More Blind Horses For Specific Ophthalmia Moon Blindness & other Sore Eyes. Harry Co., Iowa City, Ia., have a sure cure

Am. 36, 1904.

FREE SAMPLE
Of "THE STORY OF MY LIFE AND WORK," By Booker T. Washington.

Send us your name and address. We want you to have a copy of this autobiography of the greatest living Negro for the purpose of introducing it in your community. It is a remarkable seller, big profit; agents are making from $4 to $10 per day. Will you introduce it by selling or getting us an agent? If so, send at once for a sample.
J. L. NICHOLS & CO., Atlanta, Ga.
Selling Price $1.00. 915 Austell Building.

Avery & Company
SUCCESSORS TO
AVERY & McMILLAN,
51-53 South Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.
—ALL KINDS OF—
MACHINERY
Reliable Frick Engines, Boilers, all Sizes. Wheat Separators.

BEST IMPROVED SAW MILL ON EARTH.
Large Engines and Boilers supplied promptly. Shingle Mills, Corn Mills, Circular Saws, Saw Teeth, Patent Dogs, Steam Gauges, Full line Engines & Mill Supplies. Send for free Catalogue.

The Great OHIO Well Drill

Will drill faster and deeper with one horse power than any other machine in the world! Just the machine for the South. Thousands of them needed to obtain pure water. Write for Southern references and particulars.
LOOMIS MACHINE CO., TIFFIN, Ohio.

TULANE UNIVERSITY of LA.
NEW ORLEANS.
Full courses in Languages, Sciences, Engineering, Law, Medicine. Splendid department for women in Newcomb College. Tulane makes leaders in all vocations. Its facilities for instruction in Engineering are unsurpassed. Unexcelled opportunities for the study of Sugar Chemistry. Many scholarships in the academic department. Expenses low. Board and accommodations in dormitories at low rates. Opportunities afforded academic students for self-help. Next session begins October 1st. Send for catalogue and illustrated circular. Address THE REGISTRAR, Gibson Hall.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta College of Pharmacy.
Greater demand for our graduates than we can supply. Address, DR. GEO. F. PAYNE, Dean, 48 Whitehall Street, Atlanta, Ga.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC

GUARANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, pains after eating, liver trouble, sallow skin and dizziness. When your bowels don't move regularly you are sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It starts chronic ailments and long years of suffering. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS today, for you will never get well and stay well until you get your bowels right. Take our advice, start with Cascarets today under absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Never sold in bulk. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York. 502

W. L. DOUGLAS UNION MADE $3.50 & $3 SHOES FOR MEN
$5.00 AND $4.00 CUSTOM BENCH WORK IN ALL THE HIGH GRADE LEATHERS.
$2.50 POLICE, THREE SOLES. $2.50 AND $2.00 WORKINGMEN'S, BEST IN THE WORLD.
$2.50, $2.00 AND $1.75 BOYS, FOR DRESS AND SCHOOL WEAR.
W. L. Douglas makes and sells more men's $3.50 and $3.00 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world. The reason they are the greatest sellers is, they are made of the best leathers, hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and have more value than any other shoes.
W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom. Look for it—take no substitute. Sold by shoe dealers everywhere. Fast Color Eyelets used exclusively.
"AS GOOD AS $7.00 SHOES."
"Heretofore I have been wearing $7.00 shoes. I purchased a pair of W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes, which I have worn every day for four months. They are so satisfactory I do not intend to return to the more expensive shoes."
WM. GRAY KNOWLES, Asst. City Solicitor, Phila.
Brockton Leads the Men's Shoe Fashions of the World.
W. L. Douglas uses Corona Colt skin in his $3.50 shoes. Corona Colt is conceded to be the finest Patent Leather made. Send for Catalog giving full instructions how to order by mail.
W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

$20.00 TO $40.00 PER WEEK

Being Made selling "500 Lessons in Business." It is a complete handbook of legal and business forms. A complete Legal Adviser—a complete Compendium of plain and ornamental Penmanship; a complete Lightning Calculator and Farmer's Reckoner.
A complete set of Interests, Grain, Lumber and Cotton Tables; measurements of CISTERNS, Timber, Lumber, Logs and Bins of Grain, etc., in one volume. Over 472 pages, 250 Illustrations.
It is a complete business educator; brought home to every purchaser.
SIMPLE, PRACTICAL and PLAIN; 500 agents wanted at once. Boys and girls can sell as well as men and women.
One agent in the country sold 43 copies in one day. Another 210 in one week. Agents have canvassed all day and sold a copy at every home. Selling price $1.50. Liberal discounts to agents. Send 25c for outfit; satisfaction guaranteed (or money refunded).
Circulars free. HERTEL, JENKINS & CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Plantation Chill Cure is Guaranteed
To cure, or money refunded by your merchant, so why not try it? Price 50c.

A Great Combination Offer

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival as a

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth, you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, both for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

Adab, the Oldest City, Unearthed

By Henri Pene Dubois.

ADAB, the oldest city in the world, has just been discovered. It was under the ruins of Udnunki, in Babylonia, and it had to be unearthed. Babylonia's climate was good, and the soil gave the material of brick, so that civilization rose there naturally. Adab, where it made its first effort, was unknown until recently to students.

Professor Robert F. Harper, of the University of Chicago, read of it in his researches among documents of Babylonia's history. He found the name of the city and indications of its cite in a record of Lammurabi, one of the first kings of Babylonia. Then the university sent learned men to dig into the ruins and recover Adab. Its date is lost in the years before Christ.

Berosus, a wise man of Babylonia, whom one need not believe, says that there were ten kings of Babylonia who reigned before the deluge for 432,000 years. This is fabulous, of course. It is enought to think that Nabonassar, who reigned 747 years before the Christian era, knew Adab, as well as Alorus of Babylon, who was the first king.

Professor E. J. Banks, who directed the diggers at Adab, writes to Professor Harper, who directs them from his study at Chicago, that he is sure of having unearthed the ancient city, because bricks inscribed with the name of Udnunki are in the relics unearthed, and Udnunki was built over Adab.

His force of 120 men will find, as they found at Bismaya, temples, marble statues, onyx lamps and jewels invaluable to art lovers. Then the students of manners will learn from the houses of the buried city the manner of life of the most ancient civilized men. All the history that has been studied painfully for ages has to be rewritten.

The history of Babylonia may not escape that fate. Berosus, Diodorus and Herodotus, whom we had to believe when we were children, are known now to have been great gatherers of fables. Archaeology disproves most of the things that they say, even as astronomy disproves the astronomers and chemistry the old alchemists.

The unearthing of Adab should reveal to us the true history of Nebuchadnezzar, whose reign of forty-three years made Babylon mistress of the world. There are inscriptions of his time, but one does not know if they be not exaggerations. One says that he built the wall of Babylon in fifteen days.

Babylonia was essentially religious, but its engraved gems and metal work are full of humor which was unknown to Assyria. The Babylonians were excellent in the manufacture of textile fabrics, in pottery and in painting. More peaceful than the Asyrians, they had more leisure than they for the cultivation of the arts that charm. And these are to be revealed by the diggers of Adab.

The importance of their work may not be exaggerated. Assyria was in art, as in other things, only the pupil and imitator of Babylonia. The Assyrians had stone in abundance, and the Babylonians were obliged to take it from a great distance, but the Assyrians had forms of architecture which the use of brick had made necessary to Babylonia. We have not the right to deride for this the Assyrians too much, since we build houses of iron as if they were made of stone. —New York American.

King Leopold as a Captain of Industry

By Samuel Phillips Verner.

THE means of Leopold and his coadjutors were limited, and the work before them was apparently boundless. It looks now as if, but for the rubber and ivory, they must have been forced to relinquish their undertaking. Europe prophesied failure from the very beginning. The comic papers made the Congo scheme a favorite topic for ridicule. Eminent scientists said that the country could never be exploited by white men. Commercial bodies looked askance at Congo investments. Leopold was called alternately a hair-brained philanthropist, and an enthusiastic hobby-rider. The Congo State was regarded as a royal plaything. Even Belgium would scarcely send to the field any but hardy priests and the bad boys of the noble families. The utmost difficulty was found at first in securing able and good men for pioneers. There were a few of these among the highest officials; but it must be admitted that for a number of years most of the white men who went to the Congo were the scum of Europe.

From this dark background two facts emerge into prominent relief: the genius of Leopold, and the capability for development possessed by the Congo country. The King never wavered. He spent his millions like water. He had a faith which looks sublime in the light of the past and of the present. I am no special apologist for the political career of King Leopold; but his dogged tenacity of purpose in the Congo venture must appear to any impartial beholder little short of marvellous. We Americans boast of our kings of finance and captains of industry; but here is a real king, who, as a monarch of finance and captain of industry, puts Rockefeller and Morgan into the shade. Leopold's act of taking over the public domain of the Congo territory makes him absolute master over nearly a million square miles. No parliament controls him, no constitution restricts him. At the lowest value he places on his possessions he is worth $300,000,000 in land alone; and when the value of the land in metals and minerals and for trading and other purposes is considered, it is evident that the King of Belgium is the wealthiest individual on the globe. He believed that, for executive purposes, one head was better than many. So he undertook the work with a few expert advisers, with many skilled laborers, but with himself as sole executive manager. He has himself been the board of directors, general manager, president and financial agent. There has been nothing like it in history. John Smith, Robert Winthrop, Warren Hastings, Cecil Rhodes, each founded an empire, but did it in person on the spot. King Leopold has done his work without putting a foot on African soil.—The Forum.

IT IS A FACT

That nothing but the mint can make money without Advertising.

ITS FALL ADMITTED

Port Arthur's Commander Telegraphs Czar Garrison Will Die Fighting

FOUR MORE NEW REGIMENTS.

Will Go Forward to Reinforce Kuropatkin. Troops Arrive at Mukden.

It is reported from a reliable source that Lieutenant-General Stoessel, commander of the Russian military forces at Port Arthur, has telegraphed to the emperor thanking him for the recent message of encouragement sent to the garrison of Port Arthur saying that the defenders of the fortress are ready and willing to lay down their lives, but adding that the garrison has already suffered severely and intimating that it is hardly possible to hold out for more than a month or six weeks.

Four more regiments will be raised in the Caucasus. The first contingent of the first army corps has arrived at Harbin. This corps was destined for Vladivostok, but upon urgent request of General Kuropatkin it will be diverted to Mukden.

From an excellent source it is stated that the ill fated battleship Orel which already has suffered two accidents will not be able to join the Baltic squadron. According to reports when her engine trials began it was discovered her engines had been practically wrecked by workmen introducing iron fillings into the valves and cylinders. It will probably require many months to repair the damage. This is the secret of the Orel's failure to go out on the trial trip with other ships last week.

An official dispatch from Liao Yang to the general staff reporting the continued—Japanese advance on Sunday, confirms the report that General Routkovsky was killed during the rear guard engagements and adds Col. Von Reaben was also killed.

The total of the Russian losses on Sunday is not known, but 400 have passed through the first aid stations. The losses of the Japanese were considerable.

The Russian army has effected its retirement with transport and artillery on Liao Yang, and is now in position awaiting the advancing Japanese. In the attack on the Siaolindy position one Japanese battalion lost all of its officers.

The retirement of the Russian transport of four corps across the plain while the artillery and troops in the rear held off the Japanese afforded a magnificent spectacle. All along the extended lines there was a roar of batteries, the Russians working their guns with great coolness, and not retiring until the transport was in safety.

On the Japanese advancing to attack Anping the Russians evacuated the place, abandoning large quantities of stores.

It is roughly computed that the Russian force around Liao Yang consists of thirteen divisions.

In the fighting of August 26, the One Hundred and Thirty-ninth Sraisk regiment with a battery, executed a particularly successful flanking movement on the Japanese extreme right.

The Russians, unperceived, got in the rear of the Japanese, whole columns of whom were mowed down before they were able to extricate themselves.

Eye-witnesses agree in admiring the fanatical bravery of the Japanese. Many of the wounded committed suicide rather than fall into the hands of the Russians.

Russian losses in the fighting of August 25th and 26th, east and south of Liao Yang, were 3,000 killed or wounded. The great majority of the casualties were sustained in Anping. The withdrawal of the Russians from their front at Anshanshan and from their eastern position was made simultaneous for strategic reasons.

German military men are discussing the situation of General Kuropatkin with intense interest. They have information that the defences of Liao Yang are of extraordinary strength. The fortifying of the town was entrusted to General Melishtko, who enjoys the reputation of being a master of military engineering.

During the past two months he has fortified all the strategic positions around Liao Yang in a manner well-nigh impregnable. Triple lines of trenches crown every height where artillery could be effective. The entire line of fortifications is connected through passages for facilitating the re-inforcements of endangered points, while bomb-proof retreats covered with steel rails protect reserves.

All important points have telegraphic communications with headquarters.

Drowned by Hornets.

Alexander Dickson, a 12-year old lad, has been driven into the Bronx river and drowned by a swarm of hornets.

The boy, with several companions, had stoned a hornet nest until the little insects came out in swarms and chased the boys towards the river. Dickson stumbled and fell into the water. The hornets hovered about, stinging him viciously when he came to the surface. The other boys fled in terror and did not return until Dickson had been drowned.

TENNESSEE TOWN BURNED.

Total Loss Will Reach $60,000. Court House Gone.

For three hours a fierce fire raged in the little town of Hartsville, Tenn., Sunday- causing the greatest loss of any conflagration in its history. The total loss is estimated at about $60,000.

The handsome new court house, ten business houses, the principal hotel, two livery stables and five residences were destroyed, the fire making ruins of an area of four or five acres in the central part of the town. The insurance is very light on account of the high rates charged.

The town had a disastrous blaze several years ago, when a large loss was incurred by insurance companies. The court house was then destroyed, and other buildings in the same section devastated Sunday. The rates of insurance are from 3 to 6 per cent and the town has no facilities for fighting fires.

SOUTHERN BANKS.

Alabama Reports Six New Ones as Her Record for July.

There were fifty-seven new bank companies reported in the south during July, and later information shows that many other financial institutions are also proposed and will soon apply for incorporation or charter. For July, Texas reports nine, North Carolina 8, Alabama and Tennessee six each, Mississippi five, Georgia, Indian Territory, Kentucky and Virginia three each, Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and South Carolina two each, and Florida, Louisiana and West Virginia one each. The total capital represented by these institutions is nearly $2,000,000. A list of those in Alabama is as follows:

Bank of Andalusia, Andalusia; incorporated, capital $50,000; Interstate bank, Florala, organized, $50,000; Oneonta Trust and Banking Company, Oneonta, incorporated, $25,000, First National bank, Headland approved, $25,000; Central Trust Company, Birmingham, incorporated, $50,000; Citizens' National Bank, Thomasville, organized, $25,000. Total capital, $225,000.

HOUSE DYNAMITED.

Negro Miner's Home at Adamsville Blown up. No one Injured.

Dynamite was exploded under a house at Adamsville, late Sunday night. The house was occupied by a negro working in the Murray mines at Blossburg, a short distance away, but neither he nor any member of his family was hurt. No statement is made as to the perpetrators of the deed.

It is understood that the dynamite was exploded so that the full force would not be felt. Further developments will follow.

THROUGH A MISTAKE.

Father and Son Seriously Wound Each-Other in Shooting Scrape.

Dr. R. B. Austin and son, Will, of Zion, Miss., are suffering from wounds received by the unintentional shooting of each other. The doctor had some trouble with a negro workman on the place, and while he was in the house looking for a gun with which to run the man away, Will took a stand behind the negro's cabin without telling his father. Dr. Austin then approached the house from the front, and both father and son, taking each other for the negro, fired several times, with the result that they were painfully but not dangerously hurt.

FIRE AT DECATUR

Destroyes Several Stores and Injures Hotel. Were Weel Insured.

On Sunday night, fire at Decatur caused a loss of fully five thousand dollars to Bank street property. The fire originated in the colored saloon of Smith & Thompson. Losses: Three buildings owned by L. M. Falk, loss $1,500, insurance, $600; R. M. Purcell, restaurant, loss $1,000, partly covered by insurance; G. F. Barnesfield, grocery, loss $700, insurance $275; Dr. W. E. Sterrs, colored, drug store, loss by water $200, covered by insurance. Just before the fire occurred the Brooklyn hotel caught fire and the fire company responded. When they reached the scene this fire was out, but immediately the Bank street fire occurred and they responded promptly. Damage to Brooklyn hotel, $200. Origin of fires unknown.

Wood Alcohol Plant.

In a few weeks Mississippi will have in successful operation the only wood alcohol factory in the world using yellow pine in the distillery. The factory is being built by the Lignum Product Company, and when completed will employ about one hundred and fifty hands. Experiments have shown that the yellow pine makes an excellent article of alcohol, and the chances are that in a short while there will be more than one such factory in the piney woods section of Mississippi.

The following are the officers elected by the Jefferson Volunteers. Robert L. Gregory, captain: J. Hugh Miller, first lieutenant; John H. Worrel, second lieutenant.

G. N. Howson, who recently succeeded J. J. Bailey as master mechanic of the Southern railway's shops at Tuscumbia, has been transferred to the Birmingham division, to succeed G. W. Seidel, resigned, C. B. Cramer, master mechanic of the Charleston division, succeeds Mr. Howson, whose transfer becomes effective at once.

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

Louisville & Nashville R.

Read Down — CENTRAL TIME.

AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25	9 55
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58	....
7 19	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42	....
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17	....
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 11	....
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
For rates and further information address

A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, A

Gelder's Restaurant

Good Meals at Reasonable Pr

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.

SHOES that are Reliable.

SHOES made to Wear.

NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, A

Pure Water Prevents Fev

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE W

We guarantee water or no charge
Estimates given. Address

I. E. SARBER

Thorsby, Alabama.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Br

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Al

We Have Perfected Arrangements Whe
That Practical and Instructive Newsp

THE WEEKLY ADVERTISER

Known throughout the State of bama for the full line of State contained in each issue, will be nished in connection with Our lication at a Remarkably Low Best County News. Best Sporting News. Best Market and Financial Page. Best State News.

For Village, Suburban Residents, and in fact for all ly engaged in agricultural pursuits, or family Weekly Advertiser will be found well nigh indisp It is pure, bright and practical all the way thro meets the requirements of the entire family. It is throughout the South, and no one should be wi

Our Great Special Offer:

The Weekly Union one year -
Weekly Advertiser one year -

Both for $1.25.

T

VOL II.

OWARDS MUKDEN

Japaneso are Pursning the Russians. Kuropatkin is Almost Surrounded

ERAL STAKELBERG ESCAPES

ese Had Cut Him off from Kuro kin, but a Junction of Their Troops Has Been Effected.

eneral Stakelberg's First Corps, y corps, which was reported as having been driven al Kuropatkin as having succeeded in the westward of Liao Yang has safely extricated.

eneral Kuropatkin telegraphed at ock Saturday evening that the ing portion of his army was of Yental, about ten miles north of Liao Yang, and that the other ion of it was crossing the Taitse and taking up a position on the bank.

orrespondents say that several of bayonet attacks made by the Jap- e during the battle forced by the tion of ammunition, of which ern arms entail such extravagant nditure.

e Japanese came on with empty and with hopes of finishing the k with cold steel, but it was prov- their own cost that such attacks not be driven home in the face of fire of breech-loading guns.

e Russian artillerymen suffered bly in the prolonged fighting south e Taitse river. One battery lost men killed, and the remainder of ere wounded, and when a fresh ery was brought up into position survivors of the original battery ected with the others at being re- ed, begging to be allowed to die de their own guns.

his message, which was received e emperor early Sunday morning r a more hopeful light on the po- n of the Russian army.

here is no attempt to conceal the ity of the situation in view of the nce of news regarding what has pened.

eneral Kuropatkin sent word that serious losses were confined to eral Ortoff's detachment.

his department consisted of mix- European detachments and was sud- y attacked by Japanese infantry artillery concealed in the tall Chi- e corn and grass. The Russians n to have lost their heads and to e retreated precipitately.

he Japanese inflicted great slaugh- one of General Ortoff's regiments g 1,000 men.

o details are given of the escape eneral Stakelberg's corps from the ches of the enemy, but it is be- ed that it owes its safety to the ect or the inability of the Japanese follow up their advantage. General kelberg was allowed to cross the r and came up with the main army time to enable the shattered rem- ts of Major General Ortoff's detach- t to retreat. This exploit is like- o condone General Stakelberg's dis- dience, but unless the emperor for- s him he will have to appear be- a courtmartial and probably will his command.

lthough full details are lacking, the tion of the fighting, the numbers aged and the losses so far report- indicate that Liao Yang will prove be one of the greatest battles of tory.

Coinage Statement.

he coinage statement shows that total coinage executed at the ts of the United States during Au- t, 1904, exclusive of $2,255,000 s for the Philippine government $3,182,020.

Circulation Statement.

he monthly circulation statement ed by the comptroller of the cur- cy at the close of business on Au- t 31, 1904, shows the total circula- n of national bank notes was $4,- 516,773, an increase for the year $33,928,794, and for the month of 209,885.

Cullen Succeeds Parker.

udge Edgar Cullen, of Brooklyn, appointed chief judge of the court appeals by Governor Odell, suc- ding Judge Alton B. Parker, re- ed. He is a democrat and serving additional judge of the court of eals to which he was nominated by osevelt when governor.

has been settled by the republican ders that Judge Cullen will be inated by the republican party for position to which he was ap- nted.

Russia Loses Steamer.

Russian steamer engaged in clear- the channel at Port Arthur struck mine and was destroyed last Wed- sday.

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

ville & Nashville R.

CENTRAL TIME.

PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2
10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45
18	Calera	9 25	10 33
...	Jemison	8 58	....
...	Thorsby	8 51	....
...	Lomax	8 42	....
03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48
...	Cooper	8 17	....
...	Verbena	8 11	....
...	Mt. Creek	8 00	....
25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25

...eeping Cars. Dining cars.
...r information address

...INSON, Agent, Clanton, ...

...er's Restaurar...

...eals at Reasonable P...

110 North 20th Street,
...RMINGHAM, ALABAMA

...ily Specialty..

...of Leather.
...that are Reliable.
...HOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

..., Groceries, Flour and ...
...ffs, Tobacco and Snuff.
Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

...ice Building. Clanton, A...

...ater Prevents Fev...

...VELLS FURNISH PURE W...
...rantee water or no charge ...iven. Address
I. E. SARBER
..., Alabama.

...L MERCHANDISE
FERTILIZERS
FOR SALE.
...pecial & Mule Br...
...e the Best on Earth'
...C. JONES
... - - - Al...

Perfected Arrangements Whe...
...ctical and Instructive Newsp...

...HE WEEKLY ...DVERTISER

...hroughout the State of ...
... the full line of State ...
... in each issue, will be ...
...n connection with Our ...
...t a RemarKably Low P...

...County News. Best Sporting ...
...s. Best Market and Finan...
... Page. Best State News.

...burban Residents, and in fact for all ... agricultural pursuits, or family ... tiser will be found well nigh indispe... ght and practical all the way throu... irements of the entire family. It is ... e South, and no one should be wit...

Great Special Offer:

...ly Union one year -
...dvertiser one year -
...oth for $1.25.

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL II. CLANTON, ALA., SEPTEMBER 8, 1904. NO. 24

...WARDS MUKDEN

...apanese are Pursning the ...ssians. Kuropatkin is Almost Surrounded

...AL STAKELBERG ESCAPES

...e Had Cut Him off from Kuro... ...t a Junction of Their ...roops Has Been Effected.

...eral ...kelberg's First Siberian ...corps which was reported by ...n. Kuropatkin as having been cut ...ff to the ...ward of Liao Yang, has ...safely extricated.

...eral Kuropatkin telegraphed at ...k Saturday evening that the re... ...ition of his army was then ...of Yentai, about ten miles north... of Liao Yang, and that the other ...n of it was crossing the Taitse ...and taking up a position on the ...bank.

...ese ...ments say that several of ...roner's attacks made by the Jap... during the battle forced by the ...ion of ammunition, of which ...ern armies entail such extravagant ...ditures.

...e Japanese came on with empty ...and with hopes of finishing the ...with cold steel, but it was prov... ...their own cost that such attacks ...t be driven home in the face of ...re of breech-loading guns.

...e Russian artillerymen suffered ...y in the prolonged fighting south ...e Taitse river. One battery lost ...men killed, and the remainder of ...ere wounded, and when a fresh ...y was brought up into position ...urvivors of the original battery ...ted with the others at being re... ...d, begging to be allowed to die ...by their own guns.

...is message, which was received ...e emperor early Sunday morning ...s a more hopeful light on the po... ...of the Russian army.

...ere is no attempt to conceal the ...y of the situation in view of the ...ce of news regarding what has ...ened.

...eral Kuropatkin sent word that ...erious losses were confined to ...al Ortoff's detachment.

...t department consisted of mix... ...ropean detachments and was sud... attacked by Japanese infantry ...rtillery concealed in the tall Chi... corn and grass. The Russians ...to have lost their heads and to ...retreated precipitately.

...e Japanese inflicted great slaugh... ...ne of General Ortoff's regiments ...1,000 men.

...details are given of the escape ...eral Stakelberg's corps from the ...es of the enemy, but it is be... ...that it owes its safety to the ...et or the inability of the Japanese ...ow up their advantage. General ...elberg was allowed to cross the ...and came up with the main army ...e to enable the shattered rem... ...of Major General Ortoff's detach... ...to retreat. This exploit is like... ...and one General Stakelberg's dis... ...ence, but unless the emperor for... ...him he will have to appear be... ...a courtmartial and probably will ...his command.

...though full details are lacking, the ...ion of the fighting, the numbers ...ved and the losses so far report... ...indicate that Liao Yang will prove ...e of the greatest battles of ...ry.

Coinage Statement.

...e coinage statement shows that ...total coinage executed at the ...of the United States during Au... 1904, exclusive of $2,255,000 ...for the Philippine government ...$3,182,020.

Circulation Statement.

...e monthly circulation statement ...ed by the comptroller of the cur... ...at the close of business on Au... 31, 1904, shows the total circula... ...of national bank notes was $4,... ...,..., an increase for the year ...$998,795, and for the month of ...,...

Cullen Succeeds Parker.

...dge Edgar Cullen, of Brooklyn, ...appointed chief judge of the court ...appeals by Governor Odell, suc... ...Alton B. Parker, re... ...He is a democrat and serving ...additional judge of the court of ...to which he was nominated by ...Democratic governor.

...has been settled by the republican ...ers that Judge Cullen will be ...ated by the republican party for ...position to which he was ap...ted.

Russia Loses Steamer.

...Russian steamer engaged in clear... ...channel at Port Arthur struck ...e and was destroyed last Wed...y.

NITROGLYCERINE

Kills Five and Injures a Number in Ohio.

Five are dead and an equal number seriously injured as the result of a premature explosion of a quantity of nitroglycerine near Upper Sandusky.

The accident occurred while McKay, an oil well shooter, was engaged in lowering nitroglycerine. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

MURDERER ESCAPES.

Bogus Order Presented by His Friends and He is Released to Them.

A special dispatch from St. Petersburg says that by a daringly conceived coup on the part of his friends, Sassoneff, the murderer of M. von Plehve, succeeded in escaping from prison.

Early Saturday morning two men, apparently officers of high rank, accompanied by an army surgeon and two gendarmes, presented themselves at the prison with a note alleged to be from Minister of Justice Muravieff.

The forged note sanctioned the removal of Sassoneff, who assassinated Minister of the Interior von Plehve with an infernal machine a few weeks ago.

The prison officials were completely taken in and handed over the assassin, who was driven away in the most deliberate manner. Nothing has been heard since either of the assassin or the bogus officers. The letter presented to the prison was a clever forgery, written on official paper of the ministry of justice.

KILLED BY A GUEST.

Manager of Shelby Springs Shot by Calera Salesman.

Manager McMahon, of Shelby Springs, was shot and killed at that place by George Porter, a well-known salesman of Calera.

It seems the men were disputing over a settlement at which time they became engaged in a difficulty in which McMahon was shot, dying in a very few minutes.

Mr. McMahon has for some time been connected with this famous summer resort, while Mr. Porter is also well known in the county and has many friends. Soon after the shooting Mr. Porter went to Calera and wired Sheriff Cox, of this county, what he had done and for him to come at once to Calera, where he would find him in waiting.

Venezuela's Debts.

Venezuela is doing better than was expected in the settlement of the judgments rendered against her by the mixed commissions and instead of taking ten years to dispose of the claims, the allied powers—Great Britain and Italy—it appears that these will now be settled in full in about two years, and if the same amount of revenues continue to be received at Lagulasa and Puerto Cabello as at present, even the claims of the nonallied powers will be discharged within four and one-half years after the allies are paid.

Under the Wheels.

John Davidson, a switchman for the Atlantic Coast Line, fell under a train at Montgomery and was so badly mangled that he will die. His right leg was cut off and his right side and shoulder badly mashed. His foot caught in a frog and he was unable to get it out before the car was upon him. His wife and two children are visiting at Beatrice, in Wilcox county.

Electric Hoist.

Selma has granted the privilege to Messrs. Charles DeBardeleben and Robert Sturdivant to erect an electric hoist at the city wharf.

Quarry Purchased.

C. A. Ware and W. E. Jukes, of Florence, have purchased a valuable marble quarry at Friendsville, Tenn., fully equipped for operation. Mr. Jukes will operate the quarry.

Cotton Pest.

M. V. Culpepper, who lives near Phoenix City, shows a stalk of cotton which had been ruined by a pest which is playing havoc in a good many cotton fields in this vicinity. Nearly all the bolls were stung by a black fly, and a black spot followed the sting.

Exhibit Gone to Indiana.

A large collection of products from the farms and gardens of Madison county was shipped to Indiana for exhibition at a number of county fairs. The exhibit was accompanied by F. C. Thompson and C. C. Green, and it will be well advertised among the farmers of the state. It consists of fine cotton and corn on the stalk, wheat, pears, apples, peas, beans, alfalfa and grasses, and is regarded as a better advertisement than descriptive literature.

Second Mule Market.

Montgomery is the second horse and mule market in the south, with sales for the year just closed of 8,000 mules, and third in the south as a wholesale center.

CROP PROGRESS.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau, Alabama Section, for Week Ending September 6, 1904.

GENERAL CONDITIONS.

Cotton is still suffering from rust and shedding and some reports of boll worms are heard, while corn and minor crops are doing well. In his weekly summary for the seven days ending September 6 Director Chaffee, of the Alabama section, United States weather bureau, says:

"The week, as a whole, was favorable for gathering and maturing cotton and minor crops, except in some northern and northwestern counties, where rain is much needed, and in southwestern counties, where the rainfall was excessive. Temperatures averaged very nearly normal, with several warm days. Cotton continues to deteriorate slowly from rust and shedding, which is still prevalent in southern and middle counties and is increasing in the northern district; boll worms are damaging in some middle counties, but there are few additional reports of 'black root.' Late cotton is a failure in some fields and is generally fruiting very slowly. Very little top crop is forming. Early cotton is opening rapidly in southern and middle counties, where picking is general, with a light yield. Bolls are opening slowly in the northern district. Much of the early corn has been gathered, with an excellent yield. Both early and late corn have been damaged by drouth in some northern and western counties. Elsewhere late corn is doing well. Fodder pulling is nearing completion, a good yield having been secured, though considerable of this forage was ruined by previous wet weather. Much hay has been saved, though this work has been retarded by wet weather in southwestern counties, where sweet potatoes are rotting. Elsewhere all minor crops are maturing satisfactorily, except where rain is needed."

NORTHERN DISTRICT.

Calhoun, Piedmont: Coton beginning to open, no top crop, none picked, and shedding increasing; fodder being saved in good condition.—W. J. Gilmer.

Cherokee, Farrill: Corn matured with excellent yield; cotton rusting and shedding badly; peas excellent; sweet potatoes promising.—L. B. Stone.

DeKalb, Whiton: Corn doing well, some fodder being pulled; cotton shedding considerably, with promise of short crop; minor crops promising.—A. J. Ray.

Jefferson, Covington: Vegetables almost ruined by dry weather; sweet potatoes, apples and pears ripening.—R. A. McBride.

Lawrence, Sewickley: Cotton has shedded all, except grown bolls, though opening rapidly, none picked; minor crops need rain.—W. O. Watson.

Madison, Gurley: Too much rain, followed by dry, hot winds, damaging both cotton and corn.—George W. Jones.

Walker, Sarragossa: Very dry; upland corn a failure; cotton blighted and shedding, being seriously damaged; sorghum yielding well.—J. W. Ferguson.

MIDDLE DISTRICT.

Autauga, Wadsworth: Corn above the average; nearly all fodder pulled; cotton picking well under way; minor crops doing well.—W. W. Wadsworth.

Chilton, Stanton: Favorable week for farm work; cotton seriously injured from shedding, though picking progressing rapidly; minor crops promising.—W. O. Perry.

Coosa, Batson: A great deal of rust and blight in cotton, shedding still increasing, the late plant not fruiting well.—Ira Bailey.

Lee, Auburn: Cotton seriously injured by rust and blight, very little picked; hay crop short; peas and potatoes doing well.—T. J. Little.

Pickens, Talmetto: Drouth continues, greatly injuring all crops; cotton opening rapidly and picking progressing.—R O. Richardson.

Sumter, Hamner: Cotton considerably cut off by boll worms and shedding, some being picked; little fodder saved; potatoes and peas good.—T. R. Richardson.

Tallapoosa, Alexander City: Dry weather and rust lowering cotton prospect; shedding in cotton general, though it is beginning to open.—G. F. Park.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Baldwin, Magnolia Springs: Rainy week, retarding farm work; a great deal of hay damaged; sweet potatoes rotting in the ground.—H. P. Kmagen.

Clarke, Whatley: No rain in three weeks; cotton opening very rapidly and picking progressing, though this crop is badly damaged by rust.—J. A. Hill.

Coffee, Enterprise: Cotton picking progressing; there will be no late cotton made in this vicinity; corn good; cane doing well.—B. W. Fleming.

Dale, Verona: Rain needed; cotton opening rapidly; minor crops doing fairly well.—J. F. Sammons.

Mobile, Grand Bay: Rain every day causing some corn to rot; cane excellent; hay cutting retarded by hot weather.—Julius Schnadelbach.

All Eyes on the South.

With an enormous cotton crop ripening, the largest fruit crop in its history and prospects for a great yield of corn, the south is reasonably sure of a prosperous fall and winter. Twelve million bales of cotton is a conservative estimate at this writing. The price for fall months is really better than we could expect.

Peaches brought into Georgia alone nearly three million dollars, and the south's melons and vegetables have netted two or three times as much. The south's cotton will give us half a billion dollars and there will be very little corn to buy next winter.

In the west corn prospects are fine, but wheat will be 20 per cent short. So the west will barely hold its own.

In the east the presidential campaign and a slow iron and steel market are depressing general business.

Last winter the south's cotton money went a long way to avert a general panic. Now it looks as if the south will again furnish the money and the prosperity for the nation.—The Railroad Record and Common Carrier, August, 1904.

Southern's First Decade.

On June 30th last the Southern railway completed its tenth year.

One decade is a short period in the history of a corporation or a country, but many important things may occur in that brief span.

In the case of the Southern, the system has grown remarkably. It has jumped from 4,140 miles to 7,164 miles.

Its gross earnings have increased from $17,000,000 to $45,000,000.

Its common stock has risen from below 10 to above 45, although at present it is about 27.

Its preferred has advanced from below 20 to 92 and has been to 98.

For four or five years it did not pay a dividend on preferred. Then it began by paying one per cent and for the last two years has paid five per cent annually on the preferred.

Millions of dollars have been spent on roadbed, bridges, rails, shops, terminals and equipment. The road has been practically rebuilt, and it is now a high-class property in every respect.

The Southern has advertised the south all over the globe and it has brought in millions for investment in farms and manufacturing industries.

The company's service has been wonderfully improved, and is now equal to any in the land. The Southern has reached down into Florida and west to St. Louis. It has been progressive and liberal, and the public has shown its appreciation by giving it abundant patronage.—The Railroad Record and Common Carrier, August, 1904.

AT MANASSAS

The Two American Armies Are in Battle Array.

The blue and brown armies are facing each other in hostile array. It is the work of the blue army under General Fred Grant operating from Manassas to strike and drive the brown under J. Franklin Bell, operating from Thoroughfare back through the gap of that name on the Bull Run mountains. The zone of hostilities is a strip of Virginia farms five miles wide and fifteen miles long, comprising the territory over which was fought the two battles of Bull Run. Manassas is the southeast point in the zone and Thoroughfare gap is in the center of the western limit.

At daylight Tuesday General Grant had established a front across the zone and pushed his lines two-fifths of the way to Thoroughfare. The northern half of this line, Grant's right, is a solid mass of infantry. The southern half of his left wing is a patrol of cavalry. It is with the strong right that the blow is to be struck.

To meet the attack General Bell has established a line of battle which sweeps in a semi-circle from Buckland on the southwestern limit of the zone to Woolsey on the north.

The Alabama boys form part of Grant's Third brigade, which is commanded by Colonel Price, of the Sixteenth United States infantry.

New Gin.

Dr. W. J. Warren has purchased the old Uneeda mill property in Anniston and will install a new ginning outfit there.

IN A TENEMENT FIRE

Fourteen Persons Lose Their Lives. Were Imprisoned on Upper Floor.

A LAMP EXPLOSION CAUSED IT

Twenty More Were Injured, Some of Whom May Die—Some Were Sleeping on the Roof.

Fourteen persons were killed and nearly a score injured in a fire in a New York tenement Sunday morning. It was one of the worst fires in the loss of human lives that has occurred on the east side in several years, although the property loss was slight.

The dead include four women, one man and nine children, ranging in age from three months to twelve years.

Many of the injured were taken to hospitals, and it is thought several of these will die.

Among the injured were five firemen who were on a fourth floor balcony when it fell with them.

The small number of men among the killed and injured was due to the fact that most of the men who lived in the building were asleep on the roof, while but few of the women and children were there. Those on the roof were unable to escape by descending through the burning building and made their way to safety over the neighboring roofs.

Meanwhile the members and their families who had remained in their rooms found escape cut off and panic reigned.

The fire is supposed to have been caused by the explosion of a lamp that had been left to light the hall on the second floor, and the sleeping tenants were not aroused until the hallway was ablaze and escape through the building was cut off.

Big Building for Montgomery.

There is talk that several capitalists are anxious to erect a modern steel frame office building in Montgomery, costing about $400,000, but can not secure a site. The people are holding on to their property; $100,000 was offered for the old Winter building, corner Dexter avenue and Court street, but this was refused. The people are getting interested now and may soon find a site that will be acceptable to the capitalists. The capitalists, it is undersood, want to build a 14-story office building.

Norfolk, Va., capitalists have formed a $200,000 company for the purpose of cultivating a 15,000 acre tract of land in eastern Virginia and Carolina to grow grapes for wine manufacturing.

Was Stealing a Ride.

A corporal of the first provisional company of South Carolina while stealing a ride on the first section of General Brandon's Alabama regiment, fell from the train near Gaffney, S. C., while it was running at fast speed and received painful injuries, but they are thought to be not serious.

The Babington Bill.

The Babington bill enlarging the powers of the Louisiana railroad commission has been approved by Governor Blanchard. Under the new laws the commission is given power over telegraph and telephone companies operating in the state.

New Cars.

The Southern railway is soon to let the contract for fifteen new passenger coaches. The Seaboard Air Line is said to be asking prices on four or five express cars and on combination cars.

Whiteside Nominated.

After a stormy session lasting many hours W. W. Whiteside, of Calhoun, was nominated for chancellor of the northeastern chancery division to succeed the late Harry J. Gillam by the executive committee of the chancery division.

Fatal Freight Wreck.

A special from Middlesboro, Ky., says: A freight train on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, due at Middlesboro near last midnight, ran into a washout, not far from Hubbard Springs, Va. The entire train was wrecked. Fireman Jones was killed and Engineer Upton and Flagman Owens were dangerously hurt.

Chicago & Alton Purchased.

The Chicago and Alton railway has passed into ownership of the Union Pacific. By the purchase of the Alton line by the Harriman interests, Chicago now has another line of railway in direct connection with San Francisco.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St., Opposite Court House.
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins,
Physician and Surgeon,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Office with Hopkins Drug Co.
CLANTON.

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

Dentists.

Dr. A. B. Horn,
Dentist.
Office over Strock's Store.
CLANTON.
Office Days in the Following Towns.
Jemison—Wednesday and Thursday before the 2nd Sunday.
Thorsby—Wednesday and Thursday before the 3d Sunday Dr. Stabler's Office

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 12 a. m. 1 to 5 p. m. CLANTON

IMPORTANT!
GIN SAWS FILED --- I have one of the best machines made for that business. Put in your order now if you have any work in this line.
J. M. MADDOX.
Clanton, Ala.

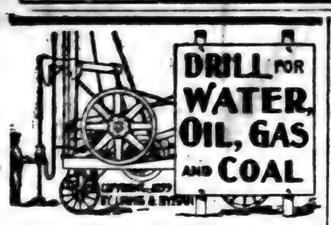
PURE GOODS
The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

The tocsin was the signal for war in old times. The antitoxin is the best defence against tetanus in present conditions.



We own machinery! It is the strongest. It takes the least power. Carries the heaviest tools. Drills much faster. Lasts longer and makes the owner more money than any other Drilling Machine on earth. Machines made for drilling any depth or diameter, and for Horse, Steam or Gasoline Power.
LOOMIS & NYMAN, TIFFIN, OHIO.

TULANE UNIVERSITY of LA.

NEW ORLEANS.

Full courses in Languages, Sciences, Engineering, Law, Medicine. Splendid department for women in Newcomb College. Tulane makes leaders in all vocations. Its facilities for instructon in Engineering are unsurpassed. Unexcelled opportunities for the study of Sugar Chemistry. Many scholarships in the academic department. Expenses low. Board and accommodations in dormitories at low rates. Opportunities afforded academic students for self-help. Next session begins October 1st. Send for catalogue and illustrated circular. Address THE REGISTRAR, Gibson Hall.

Biliousness

"I have used your valuable Cascare and find them perfect. Could'n't do without th I have used them for some time for indiges d bilousness and am now completely c comend them to everyone. Once t ill never be without them in the famil Edward A. Marx Albany, N. Y.

Best For The Bowels
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC
THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Pleasant, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good, Do Good, Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped CCC. Guaranteed to cure or your money back.
Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y. 608
ANNUAL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA
ESTABLISHED 1831.
John W. Abercrombie, LL. D., Pres.

Forty officers of government and instruction. Regular enrollment for last session, 421. Summer School enrollment, 351. Total, 783.
Excellent laboratory facilities. Good library. Well equipped gymnasium. Steam laundry. Electric lights. Spring water. Good board.
Graduate and undergraduate courses in thirteen academic schools. Professional courses in Engineering, Law, Medicine and Pharmacy.
So many superior advantages can not be had elsewhere at smaller cost.
Tuition in academic department free to Alabamians.
Next session opens Wednesday, September 7. For catalogue address,
G. H. JONES, Secretary.
University, Ala.

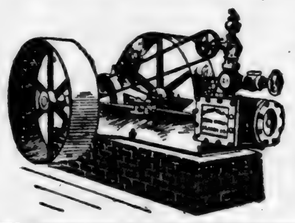
Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 5 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

Bryant & Stratton
Business, Shorthand and Typewriting College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

Atlanta College of Pharmacy.
Greater demand for our graduates than we can supply. Address, DR. GEO. F. PAYNE, Dean, 43 Whitehall Street, Atlanta, Ga.
Am. 37, 1904.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.
If afflicted with Thompson's Eye Water

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS COMPANY
MANUFACTURERS



High Pressure Return Tubular Boilers
Morison Internally Fired Boilers
High Grade Slide Valve Engines
Transmission Machinery
Heavy Castings
Wrought Iron and Steel Work
Tanks, Stacks and Stand Pipes
Heavy Pipe Work a Specialty
Address Machinery Department
MACON, GEORGIA.

50-CENT CATALOGUE FREE
IT WILL COST YOU NOTHING TO RECEIVE BY RETURN MAIL, POSTPAID, the largest, handsomest, most complete and by far the lowest priced general merchandise catalogue ever published. NEVER BEFORE SOLD for LESS THAN 50 CENTS. Worth easily $5.00. Now FREE to any one for the asking. Cut this ad. out and send to us or on a postal card, say: "Send me your Big No. 114 Catalogue free," and it will go to you by return mail free, postpaid.

ENORMOUS SIZE. BIGGER THAN EVER. 1,200 large 9x12 pages, over 100,000 quotations, over 10,000 illustrations. Our new and marvelously low price making policy fully explained; 56 vast merchandise departments fully represented, much larger than ever before; prices much lower than ever before. New and lower prices on everything carried and sold in the largest store in the world. Makes all other catalogues look very small. MAKES ALL OTHER PRICES LOOK VERY HIGH.
WHAT BELONGS TO YOU is shown in one section of the Big Book. If you have ever bought anything from us, or if you ever do buy anything from us, then something in this big business belongs to you, and it is all explained in a 16-page section OF THE BIG BOOK. THIS PART OF THE BOOK IS YOURS, not OURS. The most liberal offer ever heard of.

OURS IS THE LARGEST MAIL ORDER HOUSE IN THE WORLD.
We sell and ship more goods than all other mail order houses in the United States combined. Other mail order houses are mere side shows compared with ours. If everyone only knew how much greater values we give on all kinds of merchandise than any other house, no other mail order house would ever again get even a single order.
THE ONLY MAIL ORDER HOUSE that owns or controls a vast number of factories located north, south, east and west, situated so that we can ship many goods from our factory or warehouse nearest you, making quick delivery and very low freight charges. Southern factories and warehouses for southern people. Northern factories and warehouses for northern people etc.

16 PAGES—YOUR PAGES devoted to explaining how you can make money by sending to us for goods. How you can make money by getting others to send to us. A big chance for dealers. Money making made easy for everyone. The grandest offer of the age. An opportunity that is yours—something that belongs to you.
QUICKER SHIPMENT than any other house. As we carry in stock constantly all kinds of merchandise in amounts far greater than all other mail order houses combined and we have factories and warehouses for immediate shipment South, North, East and West, we can ship you goods much quicker than any other house. If you send your order to us, no matter where you live, you will get your goods in just a few days, usually less than one-half the time it takes to get goods from other houses, and on a great many goods you order from us you will have less than one-half the freight charges you would have to pay if you ordered from any one else, for if your order contains goods we can ship from one of our factories or warehouses near you, we will ship from the warehouse nearest you, bringing the goods to you in a day or two at a very low freight rate, explains why, as compared with any other house, we can make prices so much lower, ship so much quicker, freight charges so much lower, quality so much higher, why we can give every customer a big money making opportunity.
OUR FREE BIG No. 114 CATALOGUE
SEND FOR OUR FREE No. 114 CATALOGUE. Cut this ad. out and send to us, or on a postal card say, "Send me your No. 114 Catalogue" and the big book will go to you by return mail postpaid, free; all our new offers, our new money making proposition; an opportunity never before known, all will go to you free by return mail, postpaid. Don't buy anything anywhere until you get our new No. 114 Catalogue. Tell your neighbors not to buy anything at home or elsewhere until they write for our No. 114 Catalogue.
DON'T BUY A CATALOGUE. Don't send anyone 5, 10 or 15 cents for a catalogue, when you can get our Big No. 114 BOOK for nothing. FREE FOR THE ASKING. WORTH 100 TIMES AS MUCH TO YOU as all other general merchandise catalogues printed. WRITE FOR IT TODAY. Do it now. If you send for this FREE Big No. 114 Catalogue, hand our old catalogue (if you have one) To Some Friend and in your letter or on the postal card give us the name of the party to whom you handed our old catalogue. Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago, Ill.

Makaroff's Culture.

Admiral Makaroff was something more than the typical cultured Russian, says the Westminster Gazette. One might talk with him almost without suspecting that he was a foreigner, so easy was his command of English. His longest stay of late years in England was during the building of the ice-breaker Yermak, which he designed and which he saw constructed at Newcastle-on-Tyne, giving personal superintendence to every detail. Admiral Makaroff was an enthusiast in regard to that vessel. He believed that she was the forerunner of a type by means of which the secrets of the Frozen North will ultimately be given to the world, and he talked with light dancing in his eyes of what the ice-breaker might ultimately be expected to achieve.

The Spice of Life.

A white Russian priest must be married, but he cannot marry a second time. If his wife died he must enter a monastery. Hence, says a writer in the World's Work, the Russians tell many stories of the extraordinary means to which the priests resort in guarding the health of their wives. If the priest's consodt sneezes, a mild panic ensues in the household.

Irrigation in Idaho.

The valleys of the Payette and Bois rivers, in southern Idaho, are soon to be the scene of a stupendous irrigation work by the government. The project is to reclaim 372,000 acres of land.

A bureau which Miles Standish brought from England in the Mayflower is owned by Mrs. Charlotte Hobart Vawter of Hobart place, Indianapolis.

Literal.

Mistress—Dear me, Mary! Have you broken another dish?

Maid—T'want no fault of mine, mum; it was accordin' to orders.

Mistress—According to orders! What do you mean?

Maid—T'other day you told me when the butcher came to drop everything and attend to him. It happened when he came yesterday. I had one of them big chiny dishes in my hand.

Drove Away Hungry Lynx.

As Roland Scribner of Stafford, Vt., was out fishing the other day in a stream within sight of the house, he happened to glance behind him and saw a lynx coming toward him from the woods, growling and snarling, his mouth open. The boy waited until the animal got within a few feet of him, and as it crouched to spring, dealt it several blows with his fishing rod, whereupon the lynx turned and ran back into the woods.

There are standing orders for over 100,000 servants in the city of New York. The authorities of Ellis island are beseiged by people wish to procure immigrants for domestic service.

BOTANIC
B.B.B. BLOOD BALM
The Great Tested Remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Scrofula, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Ulcers, Eczema, Sores, Eruptions, Weakness, Nervousness, and all BLOOD AND SKIN DISEASES.
It is by far the best building up Tonic and Blood Purifier ever offered to the world. It makes new, rich blood, imparts renewed vitality, and possesses almost miraculous healing properties. Write for Book of Wonderful Cures, sent free on application.
If not kept by your local druggist, send $1.00 for a large bottle, or $5.00 for six bottles, and medicine will be sent, freight paid, by BLOOD BALM CO., Atlanta, Ga.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

The train goes roaring up the track,
The sun is in the west;
The smoke rolls eastward, dense and black,
And I complacently lean back—
To-day I've done my best.

I think of one who waits out there
To greet me with a shout,
And I will kiss him and we'll fare
Across the open fields to where
The lights are peeping out.

Contentment fills my heart to-night,
The fates and God are kind;
I've worked to-day with all my might,
And I can feel, with strong delight,
The miles recede behind.

Ah, but the years will pass away,
And I am doomed to see
A change that parents only may—
The child will be a man some day,
Who waits to-night for me.

—S. E. Kiser.

THE TRIBULATIONS OF DOOLITTLE WRIGHT

BY MARY GRACE HALPINE

"WHAT'S in a name?" That is what Shakespeare says; but it is my belief, if he had had the one that was hung like an incubus around my neck ever since I was old enough to have any name at all, he would have sung quite another tune. I ascribe to mine all the misfortunes that have followed me from that time to this, and which have been neither few nor light.

My paternal cognomen is Wright. Not remarkable for elegance, it is true, but if it had been prefixed by John, James or Henry, it would have been in no way distinguishable from those borne by the rest of my neighbors. But, unfortunately for me, I had a maternal uncle by the name of Doolittle Tickellum.

He was rich and a bachelor, with no nearer relatives than nephews and nieces, and, when I came into this world of toil and trouble, my father, having a fatherly eye to my future needs, proposed that I should be named for him.

To do my mother justice, at first she strenuously opposed it. Thoroughly imbued with the idea under which most mothers labor that her baby was considerably brighter and prettier than other women's babies; in fact, something altogether extraordinary, she was proportionately indignant at the suggestion.

I was lying, kicking and screeching, upon her knee, if my photograph taken at that interesting age can be relied upon, as ordinary a specimen of the countless throng of infant humanity as it is possible to imagine. But catching me rapturously to her bosom, she nearly smothered me with kisses, declaring "that I was an itty, precious darling; the pittiest, thweetest baby that ever was! And that papa ought to be ashamed of himself to think of giving it such a horrid name."

But when my father set strongly before her the substantial benefits that might accrue to me from this stroke of policy, alluding to the artful ways with which Cousin Sophronia, another of the nieces, tried to interest our rich relative in her spoiled, disagreeable Tommy, she yielded a reluctant consent.

"But just think, Henry, how horridly it sounds! Doolittle Tickellum Wright! It's perfectly dreadful!"

"He can change it in a few years—before he is old enough to have it do him any harm, I dare say. Your uncle is an old man, my dear, and can't live forever."

But he seemed likely to do so. From the day that there was thrust upon me that luckless name he appeared to take a new lease of life, and to grow younger, instead of older, every succeeding year.

Uncle Doolittle was duly informed of the honor that was done him, to which he responded very graciously by sending me a silver mug, together with the assurance that "if I did honor to the name it bore he would do something handsome for me."

He lived in an adjoining State. When I was ten years old my father took me to see him. He was a lively, well preserved old gentleman, whose full, florid face was rendered still more full and florid by the snowy hair and beard that surrounded it.

He patted me on the head, hoped that I would live to be an honor to my name, repeating the above assurance—"if I did he would do something handsome for me."

I had already experienced some of the disadvantages of the name to which he had alluded, and, in spite of the tutoring I had received from my father, a feeling of sullen resentment swelled by heart, which must have found expression in my countenance, for the old man shook his head as he looked at me, saying, in quite another tone:

"I hope you'll try to be a credit to it."

"Father," said I, as we walked down the steps into the street, "I hate my name; all the boys laugh and make fun of it."

"Never you mind that, my boy; when you get this fine house into your hands, as perhaps you will some day, it will be your turn to laugh."

Boy as I was, the idea was a very consoling one. True, my Uncle Doolittle had many relatives as well as great wealth, but who so likely to inherit the bulk of it as his namesake? Still, granting this, there were times when I felt, in the bitterness of my soul, that I was likely to earn dearly all I should receive.

I shall never forget my first day at school. Mr. Bumbleby, the head master, had fiery red hair and the fiery temper that usually accompanies it. He was in an unusually irritable mood that morning.

"Hold up your head and speak so I can hear you?" he roared, as I faltered out my name.

A titter ran through the long line of boys as I obeyed.

Turning very red, Mr. Bumbleby brought the rattan down over my shoulders with a force and energy that made me dance about very lively.

"I'll teach you!" he cried, as soon as he could speak, "not to come here with any of your low jokes."

It was some time before I could convince him that my name was no joke—which, indeed, it was very far from being to me—and then, instead of manifesting any regret, he bid me take my seat, muttering "that a boy with such a name as that wouldn't be likely to get any more of that sort of thing than he deserved."

Mr. Bumbleby carried this theory into practice; and the consequence was that I got considerably more of "that sort of thing" than any other boy in school.

Once he said, with sarcastic emphasis that cannot be put upon paper:

"Doolittle Wright, I suppose you have got your lesson just about the same you always get it?"

Though I knew it perfectly before coming into my class, every vestige of it vanished from my mind.

Then, as I stood hesitating and stammering:

"Ha! I thought so! Take your seat. I'll attend to you presently."

The attentions, thus grimly alluded to, became very frequent, far more so than were agreeable.

In this way my schoolboy days passed. Nor did my troubles end here. When I left school, my uncle was duly notified of the fact, with the expectation that he would now give some earnest of the hopes, so often held out, but never realized.

But as he made no response to this, save to repeat the often expressed hope, that I would do credit to a name I hated, and as it was necessary that I should do something for my own support, I began to cast about what that something should be.

Like most young men of my calibre and expectations, I wanted some nice, easy berth, with little to do and a large salary. Having heard of a vacancy of this kind in an insurance office, with whose President my father's family had been long and favorably known, I applied for it.

The President looked at me, then at my credentials, and then at me.

"Sorry, very sorry, young man. Known your father a good many years, also his father before him. No doubt whatever of your competency. But—but, it couldn't be thought of."

"Why not?" I said, in astonishment. "What possible objection have you to me?"

"No objection at all to you! It's your name I object to. Doolittle Wright! It would cast discredit on the company, as you can see for yourself. Take my advice and change it."

But I did not yield the matter thus. Hearing of a well-established and lucrative business that wanted a working partner, I offered my services, and with very fair prospects of success, until forced to mention my first name.

"Doolittle Wright!" exclaimed the senior partner, with whom I was conversing. "That sounds badly! You might drop your first name, I suppose, and take the other. You'll have to, if you come into the firm."

"Then, glancing at my letter to him, which was signed D. T. Wright, he added:

"What does T. stand for?"

"I was in for it now, and there was nothing to do but to go forward.

"Tickellum."

"Tickellum, did you say? Why, that is worse if anything, than the other—more ridiculous, at all events. A man who will give an inoffending child such names as those ought to be indicted by the Grand Jury. All I can say to you is, get rid of them as speedily as possible. Good morning, sir!"

I never felt more strongly inclined to do this in my life, and that is saying a great deal. But I knew my uncle would take mortal offense at it, who was now prostrated by one of the attacks to which he was subject, and which threatened to be his last. It would be a pity, after enduring so much, to fail when the goal was near.

So, after various other attempts, ending just as disastrously, I accept a second rate clerkship in a small retail store, with a correspondingly small salary. This was something of a come down to my ambitious hopes, but I consoled myself with the thought that my uncle's declining health made it only a temporary arrangement.

At this juncture I completed the sum of my tribulations by falling in love. The object of this, Miss Clara Montague, was certainly fair and lovely enough to excuse the folly, if folly it was. She had also some property in her own right, by no means a small consideration to me.

So far as could be judged, the attraction was mutual; the fair Clara, if not so demonstrative, seemingly to be equally as well pleased.

The reader will readily infer that I did not bring into any marked prominence my luckless name. In fact, she was in entire ignorance of it, until one of my rivals maliciously alluded to it, and in a way to cover me with ridicule.

The next time I visited her she received me with marked coolness. When I pressed her for a reason, she opened fire on me by declaring "that she never could marry any one with such a ridiculous name!

"But you can easily change it," she added, in a more gracious tone, "and if you have the regard for me you have professed, you will not hesitate to do so."

I assured the fair speaker "that my name was as distasteful to me as to her; that I was named for a rich and aged uncle, who would be greatly displeased——"

Here Miss Montague arose.

"Very well, Mr. Doolittle Wright—very appropriate name, I should say—you will do as you like, of course. But if you would rather displease me than your uncle, you needn't take the trouble to call again; for I never will marry a man with such a ridiculous name."

Exit Miss Montague, leaving me to my not very pleasing reflections.

While I was debating which of the horns of this perplexing dilemma to take, I received a telegram that my uncle was at the point of death.

He had frequently been at the point of death before; but, in accordance with my invariable practice when receiving such notice, I went to see him.

I found the old gentleman very low; in fact, scarcely able to more than gasp forth his intention of "doing something handsome for me."

"You will—find it in—in my will, when—I am gone," he whispered, as I bent over him.

But, true to the program that he had apparently laid down for himself, to delay that desirable event as long as possible, he lingered nearly six weeks.

The same paper that contained the news of his demise recorded the marriage of Miss Clara Montague.

As bitter a pill as this was to swallow, I was consoled by the thought that I was now about to be rewarded for all my trials and mortifications.

When my uncle's will was opened, it was found that he had left sums, varying from one to ten thousand dollars to all his numerous kith and kin, leaving a double portion to the very few "who hadn't bothered him," as he expressed it.

To me, "his beloved namesake," he bequeathed the full-length portrait of himself that hangs in the library, knowing that his tender affection for the original would make him prize it beyond anything else he could bestow.

If there are any curious to see said legacy, they will find it in the attic of my present abode, with its face to the wall.

I have taken my father's name, though no one seems to be aware of the fact, all my acquaintances insisting on calling me by the one I have borne so long, and which I seem likely to bear to the end of the chapter—Doolittle Wright.—New York Weekly.

Best Selling Book in the World.

The Bible is the best selling book in the world. It leads, and by a long interval, all other publications in copies purchased in the ordinary channels of trade, without regard to what may be called the official distribution.

Every book store which undertakes to carry a full line of stock sells the Bible. Several important corporations confine themselves to the manufacture and sale of Bibles, and others find in the Bible their leading feature. Of no other book can this be said. Speaking some time ago of the insatiable demand for the Bible as an article of merchandise, an officer of the Methodist Book Concern, which till recently issued cheap editions of the Bible, said: "Like all publishers, we have to keep watch of the sale of books in general, even the most popular, so as not to get overstocked. But this never occurs in printing the Bible. We just keep the presses steadily at work, and if we happen to find that we have 40,000 or 50,000 copies on hand it gives us no uneasiness. We are sure to sell them, and we go straight ahead printing."—The Century.

Duck in a Deadly Form.

A short time ago the death was announced of Comte Leon de Laubespin from the effects of eating a dish of duck a la Rouennaise. Duck a la Rouennaise is considered very deadly during the hot season for the following reasons: In order to prepare the dish according to the recognized rules, the duck must be killed by suffocation. It happens, therefore, that the blood coagulates in the body of the bird in such a manner that no amount of cooking suffices to sterilize it. In hot, stormy weather, such as we have had lately, this congulated blood would decompose and contain sufficient poison to kill any one eating of the flesh. The moral of the story would appear to be: Don't have your ducks cooked a la Rouennaise.—Paris Messenger.

The Cat Came Back.

A Melbourne (Australia) man inserted this advertisement in a local journal: "Missing since Monday, large black cat. Reward, dead or alive." Within a week 181 live black cats and 463 dead ones were brought to his house.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR SEPTEMBER 11.

Subject: Elijah Taken Up Into Heaven. II Kings, ii., 1-11—Golden Text, v., 24—Memory Verses, 9-11—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

I. Elijah and Elisha (vs. 1-8). [illegible] take up Elijah. [illegible] disclosed. Our lack of knowledge of God's disposal. It [illegible] or twelve years since [illegible] that he might die, and [illegible] he had been watching [illegible] for God. But now [illegible] Although no mention [illegible] jah's companion is [illegible] between the [illegible] time of the events [illegible] from I Kings [illegible] we conclude [illegible] of it's coming was [illegible] tering to [illegible] gel. This was [illegible] necessary, as [illegible] Jericho. A [illegible] located here as [illegible] ches 2. To Bethel [illegible] southeast of [illegible] About thirteen miles [illegible]

5. "Sons of the [illegible] young men attending [illegible] naries, first organized [illegible] preparation of religious people. These are under the supervision [illegible] prophet, who [illegible] whose the students [illegible] dren or sons. Lucy [illegible] ment, adapted for [illegible] The students were poor. The subject to study was the law of Moses. [illegible] on to music and sacred [illegible] est thou," etc. Not only [illegible] self conscious of some gift [illegible] but Elisha and the boys [illegible] Bethel and Jericho had [illegible] the departure of Elijah. "From thy head." That is, thy head; thy spiritual [illegible] leader and director. [illegible] which is literally "Taking [illegible] head," might also mean [illegible] of Elijah's removal. [illegible] Elisha replies with solemn [illegible] Literally, the Hebrew [illegible] I know; hush. Elisha [illegible] questioning. He thinks [illegible] ness and of the great [illegible] which will be upon him when [illegible] His soul is burdened.

6. "Tarry here." Elijah's same request at Gilgal. Whether this was to try [illegible] Elisha's affection, or to [illegible] weight of these hours [illegible] ment, or because he was [illegible] which Elisha might not share, [illegible] he thought God would have [illegible] ness his translation, we [illegible] "To Jordan." About five miles [illegible] echo is a bend in the river [illegible] the ascension of Elijah is supposed [illegible] taken place. "As the Lord [illegible] This double oath, expressive [illegible] intense earnestness, is repeated [illegible] times (vs. 2, 4). The two [illegible] separately used with [illegible] (Judg. 8: 19; Ruth 3: 13; I Sam. [illegible] but seldom united. "Without [illegible] refused with gentle, respectful [illegible] He will not be dissuaded [illegible] pose to remain with Elijah [illegible]

7. "Fifty men." We see in [illegible] the prophetical schools of [illegible] surprising to come upon [illegible] of men devoting themselves [illegible] while Ahab's children were [illegible] throne. "Stood to view." [illegible] the gratification of personal [illegible] ing their master, they would [illegible] watch his movements as long as [illegible] What they saw we are not told [illegible] mantle." The shaggy garment [illegible] been so long his prophetical [illegible] was probably a sheepskin. The [illegible] beasts dressed with the hair on [illegible] by prophets as an insignia of [illegible] "Wrapped it." Tightly rolled [illegible] as the word means, in the [illegible] "Smote the waters." As [illegible] enemy in his way. Elijah's [illegible] him at Jordan what the [illegible] to Moses at the Red Sea [illegible] 21); and many things in the [illegible] two prophets who should meet [illegible] the mount were parallel. [illegible] ed." "On the one side rising [illegible] on the other, towering up [illegible] crystal."

II. Elisha's request (vs. 9, 10). What is your last request? Elisha [illegible] not of himself, but of the [illegible] he was so soon to leave behind. [illegible] test will show whether Elisha's [illegible] spiritual or material. How could [illegible] swer such a question? "If thou [illegible] en." What Elijah does for Elisha [illegible] done before his departure, [illegible] be no communication between [illegible] wards. There is no warrant in [illegible] tures for the doctrine of the [illegible] of the saints after they had left [illegible] Christ is our advocate before [illegible] we need no other. "A double [illegible] There is nothing here of [illegible] ambition.

10. "A hard thing." It was [illegible] cause God and not Elijah [illegible] such a gift, and (2) because [illegible] upon Elisha's fitness to receive [illegible] thou see me." If he was [illegible] to the end the same devoted [illegible] and keep his eye set and [illegible] departing prophet, the gift would [illegible]

III. Elijah's translation (vs. 11-14). "Talked." We can understand [illegible] Elijah would find [illegible] couragement to hasten [illegible] on his successor. [illegible] those! It was a [illegible] the verge of heaven [illegible] etc. We cannot agree [illegible] mentators who think [illegible] "display of flame and [illegible] nomenon," which appeared [illegible] of fire," etc. There were [illegible] spiritual world. This is [illegible] no hallucination, but [illegible] horses of fire were a part [illegible] the sound of whose [illegible] once heard over the [illegible] Sam. 5: 24), and who at a [illegible] the mountains round about [illegible] Kings 6: 17). "Parted them." [illegible] fiery chariot separated the two [illegible] "A whirlwind." The text does [illegible] that Elijah went up in the chariot, [illegible] but he "went up by a whirlwind." [illegible] been usually and very naturally [illegible] however, that the translated [illegible] cended in the chariot, and that [illegible] rot was borne aloft on the [illegible] wind. Compare Psa. 104: 3. "Walketh on the wings of the wind." Compare Psa. 104: 3. "Walketh on the wings of the wind." The abode of God's saints [illegible] from their earthly labors. [illegible] lation is a proof of the existence [illegible] er world beyond us. [illegible] this lives after it leaves the [illegible] centuries later we see Elijah on the mount of Transfiguration. [illegible] all! it is the beginning of a new life which will never end.

Building Permits.

There were issued in Birmingham during August permits calling for building improvements aggregating $86,010.

At Large Since 1876.

James Lewis, alias Bill McCarty, was arrested in Moss Point, Miss., for the killing of Dick Miller on Christmas day, 1876, at Paynes [illegible] Clarke county, Alabama. He claims [illegible] defense of his wife.

The Wildfire

The HORNET MARCUS B

BY HOWARD

Copyright, 1904, by The S[illegible]

[illegible] picking his way [illegible] crowds [illegible] [illegible] noticed a stran[illegible] man of remarkably [illegible] and [illegible] cent face—but having the appear[illegible] of premature age and [illegible] look peculiar to those [illegible] important faculty. What he lack[illegible] I could not conjecture. At first I thought the shrewd eyes must [illegible] ttless, but the man never [illegible] in taking a step among the [illegible] vehicles. Then deafness suggested itself as the old man's infirmity, [illegible] was in turn dismissed. The [illegible] horn slung to a strap across his [illegible] older did not resemble a speaking [illegible] pet—it looked more like an [illegible] ase megaphone, except for its [illegible] efully curved outlines and hand[illegible] e enamel and nickel finish. The [illegible] ularity that attracted most atten[illegible] —one at which almost every [illegible] estrian stopped to stare—was the [illegible] -looking old man's inveterate habit [illegible] hitching up on shoulder and coarse[illegible] ently bringing the smaller end of his [illegible] er horn on a line with his hat [illegible] im. The only remaining alterna[illegible] e, therefore, seemed to suggest that [illegible] s strange looking individual must [illegible] dumb, but had contrived some ex[illegible] ordinary kind of instrument for [illegible] king himself intelligible to others; [illegible] here theory was opposed by the [illegible] t that, so far as my observation [illegible] nt, he never tried to communicate [illegible] th others.

It was, therefore, with surprise, not [illegible] mixed with gratification, that I [illegible] w him one day stop suddenly, with [illegible] e of his peculiar hitches, and extend [illegible] cordial hand to my friend Hudson, [illegible] o is in the electrical supply busi[illegible] ss. They carried on a brief, but [illegible] parently animated conversation, and [illegible] en they separated I hastened after [illegible] dson and inquired the name of [illegible] a queer acquaintance.

"That!" cried Hudson. "Why, that's [illegible] rcus Brundier and his horn. I [illegible] ught everybody knew about Mar[illegible] Come, step in and lunch with me, [illegible] d I'll tell you all about him."

As we lunched Hudson talked, and [illegible] d me the following strange story, [illegible] d as I give it pretty nearly in his [illegible] ct words, I shall use no marks of [illegible] otation:

"For years, you know, I have had a [illegible] re fronting on Devonshire street. [illegible] is on the ground floor, its large [illegible] ate-glass windows afford a broad [illegible] ew of the busy thoroughfare, and [illegible] ove all, it is particularly central and [illegible] nvenient.

"But it is frightfully, maddeningly [illegible] sy. Ordinary conversation is ren[illegible] red practically impossible during [illegible] siness hours.

"Formerly I used to take prospective [illegible] yers into the big fireproof vault at [illegible] e extreme rear of the office, until [illegible] e day there was trouble with the [illegible] k. I happened to be inside at the [illegible] me. So was the president of one [illegible] the largest concerns in New Eng[illegible] nd.

"It was a cheerful moment when, [illegible] er two hours of semi-suffocation [illegible] th our noses against a cold steel [illegible] or-sill, the professional safe-openers [illegible] the outside announced that they [illegible] uld be obliged to use dynamite.

In walked Brunder.

"When we crawled out the prospective [illegible] stomer had lost both eyebrows, most [illegible] his hair, and one whisker. And he [illegible] didn't buy the goods, after all!

"But, notwithstanding all the draw[illegible] ks, I have somehow stuck to the

The Wildflower

Between the roadside and the wood,
Between the dawning and the dew,
A tiny flower before the sun,
Ephermeral in time I grew.

And there upon the trail of spring,
Nor death nor love nor any name
Known among men in all their lands
Could blur the wild desire with shame.

But down my dayspan of the year
The feet of straying winds came by;
And all my trembling soul was thrilled
To follow one lost mountain cry.

And then my heart beat once and broke
To hear the sweeping rain forebode
Some ruin in the April world,
Between the woodside and the road.

To-night can bring no healing now;
The calm of yesternight is gone;
Surely the wind is but the wind,
And I a broken waif thereon.

—Bliss Carman.

The HORN of MARCUS BRUNDER

BY HOWARD REYNOLDS

Copyright, 1899, by The Shortstory Pub. Co. (All rights reserved.)

...ging his way carefully through ...wn down town streets I had ...ed a strange, bent figure—...markably shrewd and in...ent face—but having the appear...ance of premature age and wearing ...peculiar to those deprived of ...important faculty. What he lack...could not conjecture. At first I ...the shrewd eyes might be ...ess, but the man never hesitat...taking a step among the whirl...enicles. Then deafness suggest...self as the old man's infirmity, ...was in turn dismissed. The enor...horn slung to a strap across his ...der did not resemble a speaking ...pet—it looked more like an im...se megaphone, except for its ...fully curved outlines and hand...enamel and nickel finish. The ...arity that attracted most atten...—one at which almost every idle ...strian stopped to stare—was the ...oking old man's inveterate habit ...tching up on shoulder and fre...ly bringing the smaller end of his ...horn on a line with his hat ...The only remaining alterna...therefore, seemed to suggest that ...strange, looking individual must ...umb, but had contrived some ex...ordinary kind of instrument for ...ing himself intelligible to others; ...ere theory was opposed by the ...that, so far as my observation ...he never tried to communicate ...others.

...was, therefore, with surprise, not ...ted with gratification, that I ...im one day stop suddenly, with ...of his peculiar hitches, and extend ...dial hand to my friend Hudson, ...is in the electrical supply busi...They carried on a brief, but ...ently animated conversation, and ...they separated I hastened after ...on and inquired the name of ...ger acquaintance.

...at!" cried Hudson. "Why, that's ...us Brunder and his horn. I ...ght everybody knew about Mar... Come, step in and lunch with me, ...'ll tell you all about him."

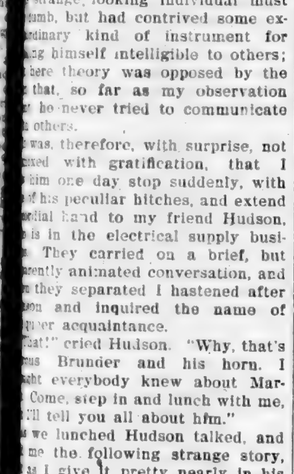
...we lunched Hudson talked, and ...me the following strange story, ...as I give it pretty nearly in his ...words, I shall use no marks of ...tation:

...or years, you know, I have had a ...e fronting on Devonshire street, ...s on the ground floor, its large ...-glass windows afford a broad ...of the busy thoroughfare, and ...e all, it is particularly central and ...venient.

...t it is frightfully, maddeningly ... Ordinary conversation is ren...l practically impossible during ...ness hours.

...rmerly I used to take prospective ...ers into the big fireproof vault at ...extreme rear of the office, until ...day there was trouble with the ... I happened to be inside at the ... So was the president of one ...the largest concerns in New Eng...

...was a cheerful moment when, ...r two hours of semi-suffocation ...our noses against a cold steel ...ell, the professional safe-openers ...the outside announced that they ...d be obliged to use dynamite.



In walked Brunder.

...en we crawled out the prospective ...omer had lost both eyebrows, most ...his hair, and one whisker. And he ...'t buy the goods, after all!

...but, notwithstanding all the draw...ks, I have somehow stuck to the same old store; why, I can't exactly say; it's just my disposition. I hate a change.

One morning I had just arrived in my office, when in walked Brunder. Now, I'm not saying a word against Brunder. He's an inventor, and—unlike most of them—some of the things he gets up actually work.

Well, anyway, Brunder came in and sat down. I yanked open a couple of ventilators to let in the fresh morning air and conversation immediately became an athletic feat. We communicated partly in pantomime, for some time, when Brunder suddenly yelled:

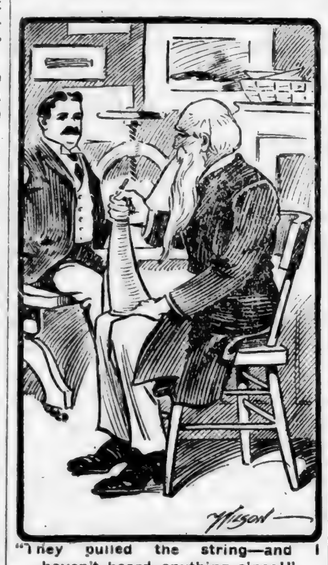
"This noise is something terrible."

I nodded. Some years ago I learned to save my strength.

"But I have a plan for doing away with it entirely!"

I looked surprised.

"It just came to me as I was sitting here," he explained. "You know that it has been proven that both light and sound travel in waves! Also that it's an old law of physics that 'action and reaction are equal.' Now, I read the other day that somebody has discovered that by throwing beams of light



"They pulled the string—and I haven't heard anything since!"

of the same intensity directly at each other the light waves nullified each other and produced a distinct zone of darkness. That being the case, what's the matter with generating a sound of equal intensity and projecting it against the other sound—and letting the sounds, as it were, swallow each other up—like the Kilkenny cats!"

"And sitting in the resulting sound vacuum?" I asked.

"Precisely."

"Well, but how are you ever going to work to do that?" I asked, incredulously.

"Easy enough. There is such a thing as a microphone—an instrument that so magnifies sound that you can hear a fly walk."

"So I believe," said I. "If I remember, it consists of a tiny double-pointed carbon suspended between two standards and connected with a receiver."

"Exactly so. Now take a Wheatstone bridge, such as is used in the naval range finders, and rig it up so that varying impulses will work, by means of electro-magnets, a sliding plug in, say, an organ pipe, adjusting it automatically to any pitch. Connect the pipe up with a motor-driven compressed air blower, and there you are!

"But it will take just a little money," he continued with an appealing glance. "Simply for a few preliminary experiments; and, if there's anything at all in it—there's a fortune!"

Thereupon I did an unwise but very human thing. I think the amount was twenty-five dollars.

Days came and went and with them the radiant and sanguine Brunder. First it was drawings and then it was patterns, and last it was twelve-gauge copper and insulating tape, and slowly, with the aid of sundry and numerous five and ten-dollar bills the marvelous mechanism went together.

Brunder, from time to time, reported good progress and finally came in one afternoon with the startling, and to me most unexpected announcement, that the thing actually would work.

We shut the ventilators so he could talk and he imparted to me in a hoarse and joyous whisper that it was a "sure winner." "Just one more test," said he, "and then I'll show it to you. I've just this minute got the permission of the government to try it down to the Sandy Hook Proving Grounds. If it stands that it will stand anything. And the non-auditory radius is three feet four," said he with pride.

After the date when Brunder was due back from New York I missed him for three days. At the end of that time I ran around to the little eighth story back room which he uses as a sort of office and laboratory.

As I shut the door he did not look around, but continued his writing, undisturbed. Then I noticed, suspended from the ceiling, and within reach of Brunder's hand, the immense horn that has puzzled you and others so much.

"By Jove," said I, with a gasp of astonishment, "I believe the thing does work, after all!" Then I walked toward him. I found I could plainly hear my own footsteps as well as other sounds, but, apparently, he was in the charmed zone and oblivious to any noise. I touched him on the shoulder, and with a jump of startled surprise he brought the small end of the horn to his ear, with that peculiar jerk of his, and said: "Hello!"

"Well, tell us all about it?" I asked.

He leaned further toward me and hitched the big horn closer.

"What luck did you have, old man?" I rejoined, louder.

He shook his head mournfully and handed out a pad and pencil.

"This is great," I scrawled. "You're a wonder. I always knew you'd do it."

"Well—I don't know," said he. I took my position six feet to one side of a 12-inch coast defense mortar. The charge was 500 pounds. I can't tell whether my machine worked or not. They pulled the string—and I haven't heard anything since!"

But he has learned since then, by constant practice at the little end of the horn, to hear much of what is going on around him!

Simple Cure for Lockjaw.

My father (who has now passed away) was a physician, practicing for over fifty years, and cured many, many cases of lockjaw. Even after the jaws were set they became relaxed, and the patients recovered.

He often told me that it was a great outrage to let the patients die of lockjaw, as they have done time after time in the hospitals of this city. Then he told me what to do—and which I have always done whenever I have accidentally cut my hand or foot with rusty iron, and have never had any serious results. He told me that this knowledge he received from an old French physician, years ago. He said to take a raw red beet, cut it in half and scrape or mash it into a pulp and apply it to the wound, and also to the palms of the hands, binding it on like a poultice. The juice of the red beet will cure lockjaw. It draws the poison out and prevents it from spreading.—Philadelphia Record.

Apparent Death.

The Lancet recalls a number of remarkable cases of resuscitation from apparent death. One of these was recorded by the late Sir Benjamin Ward Richardson. A medical man had taken 120 grains of chloral. When seen life seemed to all common observation to be extinct. No pulse or evidence of breathing was perceptible, and it was very difficult to detect the sounds of the heart, while the temperature had sunk to 97 degrees Fahr. The man had been in that condition some hours. The patient was revived, however, by raising the temperature of the room to 84 degrees and injecting warm milk and water into the stomach; and he made a complete recovery. Slaves of alcohol and narcotics run great risks of this kind.—Baltimore Sun.

Parisian Information Bureau.

An information bureau has recently been inaugurated in connection with the University of Paris, and is considered an excellent innovation. The bureau will afford information on all matters connected with higher education in Paris, whether in government or private institutions. Those who, in this country or elsewhere, are contemplating entering the university, and who have spent hours in trying to derive some tangible idea from calendars and class syllabuses will appreciate the useful purpose which would be served by a bureau of this character.

Never Despair.

Fight your way on through each storm and privation:
Make of each barrier a power to uplift;
E'en as the vine in its dark desolation
Throws out its arms to each bright sunny rift,
Making a ladder of weed and of bush,
Up which to heaven it may struggle and push.

Fight your way on through each grief and each burden;
Sweet are blossoms which patience unfolds;
Time in its archives guards safely thy guerdon:
Tighten thy tendrils which faith sweetly holds,
Dark though the day be and darker the night.
Never a darkness but yielded to light!
—Katharine H. Terry in Chattanooga Times.

Consoling a Friend.

A man was lying in bed, very ill with pneumonia. To him entered a friend.

"Ah," said the friend, "the doctor says you're going to die to-night. Got pneumonia, eh? Do you remember Deedes?"

"Yes."

"He died of pneumonia yesterday. Do you remember Ranter?"

"Yes."

"He died of pneumonia too. Well, I must go now, but I'll come and cheer you up again to-morrow."—London Tit-Bits.

LUCKY SHOT SAVED HUNTER

At Mercy of Infuriated Buffalo When Gun Was Fired.

A hunter in South Africa tells the following story of an adventure with a buffalo: "I was in the act of descending the bank when Prinsloo, a Dutch hunter, who was lower down the slope, saw the dark outline of the buffalo standing at bay behind the screen of reeds. Next instant, seeing it about to charge, he shouted, 'Daar kom hij' ('There he comes'), and fired, rather at random, I am afraid. Then, rushing down the path by which he had advanced, he threw himself headlong into the reeds on the left. This all happened in a few moments, but I had sufficient time to raise my rifle to my shoulder and fire as the enraged bull rushed straight at me through the reeds with nose thrown forward and horns back. As I fired I endeavored to jump aside to escape the charge, but my feet got entangled in the matted grass and I fell on my back, luckily, however, retaining my hold on the stock of my rifle. My first shot seemed to check him for a moment, but the next he was rushing up the slope at me. I shall never forget the look in his fierce eyes. It was but a moment's work to draw back the bolt of my Mauser and to close it again, thus pushing another cartridge into the breech. I had no time to raise the rifle to my shoulder. There was barely time, just before he was within striking distance, to pull the trigger, with the stock under my armpit, while I lay on my back on the top of the sloping ground. Without so much as a groan he fell in his tracks and rolled over into the muddy water two yards below with a great splash, shot through the brain."—Montreal Herald.

HIS MEANING ALL RIGHT.

Colored Preacher at Least Knew What He Was Praying For.

Caroline Abbot Stanley, in her new book, "Order No. 11," treating of the deplorable state of affairs in Missouri during the rebellion, when old friends became enemies and homes were burned and the country desolated, introduces "Uncle Reuben," an old darky preacher, who was coachman and general "Man Friday" for "Mahster Trevilian" and the family. The bishop tells about being down at one of their meetings in Virginia once, and the old preacher, anxious to do his best by them, prayed that God would send down His "sanctum sanctorum" upon them.

Next morning the bishop thought he would get Uncle Reuben's idea of what he meant, and said: "Uncle, I was very much obliged to you for all the good things called down upon me last night, but I want to ask you just what you meant by His 'sanctum sanctorum?'"

The old darky scratched his head a moment, and then said: "Well, master, I don' jes exac'ly know what dat word do mean, but I know what I meant by it."

"Well, what's that?" asked the bishop.

"I meant give 'em de bes' you got!"

Good News for Anglers.

A new type of fishhook, the invention of E. Hindon Hyde of New York, shows how even the simplest thing of common life can be readily improved. The improvement consists in transferring the barb of the hook from the inside of the point, that is, between the point and the shank, to the opposite side of the point, so that it lies on the outside of the hook. The advantage of the new hook is that it renders it much more difficult for a hooked fish to release himself upon a slack line. This is due to the fact that the new location of the barb creates a bar to the extraction of the hook after it has penetrated, and also to the fact that the barb, instead of playing against the soft mucus membrane of the mouth to prevent release as in the old style of hook, presses against the hard epidermis.—Scientific American.

Shows Importance of Food.

Dr. Yorke-Davies tells this story: "Many years ago when a great English contractor had to lay down a long line of railway in France he employed a number of English and of French navvies. He found that the Frenchmen could do only half the work of the Englishmen and being a shrewd man he concluded it must be due to the difference in their food, so he put the Frenchmen on the same diet as the Englishmen, with the result that they were able to do as much work as the Englishmen. It showed how important a factor food was in the production of muscular power."

Those Who Love the Best.

The choicest garb and sweetest grace
Are oft to strangers shown,
The careless mien, the frowning face,
Are given to our own.
We flatter those we scarcely know,
We please the fleeting guest,
And deal full many a thoughtless blow
To those who love us best.

Love does not grow on every tree,
Nor true hearts yearly bloom.
Alas! for those who only see
This truth across the tomb.
But soon or late the fact grows plain
To all through sorrow's test;
The only ones who give us pain
Are those who love us best.

Child's Rebuke.

Little Boy—Mamma, why are you so cross at me all the time?

Tired Mamma—Because you keep doing wrong, and I want to make an impression on your mind.

Little Boy—Well, Mamma, I guess if you'd be good-natured just once it would make a bigger impression.

Turtle Has Town Scared.

Brewer, Me., people are staying in at night for fear of a 3½-foot turtle which has escaped from captivity and is said to be more dangerous to meet than a bull dog.

A Post Office Poem

Scattering sunshine, sorrow, pleasure,
Letters drift like timorous birds.
Bringing suicide, death or treasure,
Comfort, healing, girlish words.
Like snowflakes fluttering to bleak places
True lovers vows that never fail.
Fond boyish hopes, shy beauties' faces—
The burden of the U. S. Mail.

The Mail is the pulse of the nation,
And gauges the state of the times,
And measures Trade's fierce exultation,
When Commerce grows big or declines.
And Christmas comes on and its snowing
With Santa Claus' sleigh in the air,
Coyne's clerks all their "schemes" are throwing,
It would drive all the "subs" to despair

Hurry up, New York is waiting,
The Denver Overland is due,
Here's the bill o'lading stating,
That the night set shoves them through.
Lock the Windsor pouch and station,
Chuck the "San Fran" o'er the rail,
While big, sprawling Yankee nation,
Waits expectant for the mail.

"Loosen up there, Rough and Ready,
Jerk those pouches through the door,
Cluster round there strong and steady,
Twist those chunks along the floor.
Jiggers, Ed. McGrew is calling,
Clear the decks and start anew,
While ten tons of mail are falling;
Rondy, we will shove her through.

Then the pouch room's all commotion,
Fraught with keen and lusty life,
Tons of mail surge like the ocean,
Swamping all in stubborn strife.

Look alive there, quit your dreaming,
Rouse up from your studious trance,
Keep your eye on Rondy teaming,
Jiggers, quit your song and dance!"

REFRAIN BY THE NIGHTWATCH.

You are young and your life's work beginning,
You are keen for the joy of the fight,
You are eager for striving and winning,
You exult in the pride of your might.
A word in your ear ere you wander,
To plunge in the thick of the fray,
Have a care ere your treasure you squander,
And waste all your gifts by the way.

Don't you hear the teamsters bawling—
"Jiggers, Rufus, where's that mail?
Look alive, the night is falling,
The engines puffing on the rail.
We must get the mail connected,
We must shove her through on time,
Girls' love letters are expected
Sweet as rippling, roguish rhyme.

VOICE FROM THE POUCH ROOM.

"We are rollying the game along all the strenuous day.
Pull yourselves together, boys, you've the right of way.
Hustling heavy mail sacks across the pouch room floor.
Wrestling with the "Overland" dumped inside the door.
Grappling with big bulging sacks from Frankfort on the Spree Smelling of salt ocean brine—the salvage of the sea.
Roasting all the fresh young cubs when they sojer along.
Tuning up the old night bunch with some rousing song.
Yes, Old Santa Claus on deck, and he has swimped us right.
Throwing mail from dewy morn, tons of mail at night.
Each one gets his Christmas gift couched in rippling rhyme.
The postal clerk gets his in work, hustling all the time.
We are rollying the game along thro' the stars-strewn night.
Connecting every scrap of mail that dawns upon our sight.
Sweet and low across the snow the reindeers swiftly glide.
Will the crooks hold up poor Santa Claus this joyous Christmas tide.
We hear the sleigh bells aerial song, their mellow tinkling chimes.
The Christmas tree, the boyish glee that rings like silvery rhyme.
Shy, piquant girls with wind swept curls beneath the mistletoe.
With fawn-like grace and rose leaf face and lustrous eyes aglow.
But the boys behind the pouches are connecting all the mail.
They have no time for pleasure, throwing stations on the rail.

JAMES E. KINSELLA.
Registry Division, Chicago P. O.

Caused Death of Friend

The returned Philippine soldier shuddered as the companion to whom he was talking took out a cigarette paper and prepared to roll some tobacco in it.

"What's the matter?" the other asked of the soldier; "are you an anti-cigarette crank? I had always supposed that cigarettes were plentifully used out in Manila."

"No," replied the soldier. "I am not opposed to the use of the little weeds and, in fact, was a confirmed smoker of them myself. But, somehow, the sight of a cigarette paper now makes me feel sort of creepy.

"We were lying in a trench at one time when the little brown devils were more than usually troublesome. They would creep up on us when we least expected it and pour in a few shots and then light out to the hills again before we could get a crack at them. We were preparing for a big sortie which, it was expected, would end with the extermination of a lot of natives and the probable capture of Aguinaldo, and, as I said before, we were lying in the trenches awaiting the word to advance.

"Just a few feet from me was Jack Tracy, a Montana boy, and a picture of health, life and courage. We had been talking of the coming fight, and the desire seized me to smoke. I had plenty of loose, tobacco, but no paper. 'Give me a cigarette paper, Jack,' I said.

"'Sure,' said he, at the some time rising to his knees and reaching inside his coat where he kept them. This action exposed his head above the trench and just as he reached forward to hand me the paper he gave a faint groan and fell forward on his face. I thought he was fooling at first, but he lay so still that I crawled over to see what was the matter. He was stone dead, a Filipino bullet having struck him in the back of the neck, severing the spinal cord. Since then I don't seem to relish the sight of a cigarette paper."

Women Saved Corean King

The dress of the Korean women is very quaint. Long, voluminous white cotton dresses reaching to the anle show baggy trousers underneath, which, ending in slippers with upturned toes, give them somewhat the appearance of Turkish women. Over the head is thrown a long cloak generally green, fastened under the neck, the sleeves, through which the arms are never passed, hanging down over the shoulders. By this cloak hangs a tale, historical and interesting.

Once upon a time a king of Korea invited the officers of his army to a banquet in the palace at Seoul, in complete ignorance that a military conspiracy, aimed at his throne and life, was afoot. The conspirators, who were among the guests, resolved to seize their opportunity to murder the king during the progress of the banquet. On entering the palace the officers deposited their large military cloaks in an ante-chamber and took their places in the hall where the feast was spread, waiting only a signal to fall on and slay their hosts.

But a number of the women of Seoul had become acquainted with the conspiracy. Loyal to their monarch and unable to warn him in time they went in a body to the palace and gained admittance into the ante-chamber. Seizing the officers' cloaks, they entered the banqueting hall unobserved; some, stealing noiselessly up behind the officers as they sat at the feast, flung the cloaks over their heads and pinioned them in the folds, while others ran to the bewildered king, hurriedly warned him of the plot, and spirited him safely away before the baffled conspirators could release themselves from the grasp of their brave captors. In token of his gratitude to his loyal female subjects, the king decreed that in future the Korean women should wear the military cloak thrown over their heads as a mark of honor.—Capt. Casserly in Macmillan's Magazine.

Snow Amid the Roses

Although California is the land of flowers, to which snowballing, except in the mountains, generally is forbidden, exceptions to the rule may be compelled. Such an exception, during the past winter or rainy season, was witnessed in San Jose. One of the stage drivers to and from Mount Hamilton brought from there a barrel carefully packed with snow, and presented it to the pupils of the Grant school in the garden city. Then the fun began. Most of the children had not seen snow before except on the distant mountain summits. They wanted to snowball, but they didn't know how, and they approached the problem tentatively. And—here is the crowning absurdity of the situation—some of the teachers didn't know how to teach them. Although they were adults, never before had they come in contact with snow.

Some of the little chaps, after cautious investigation, declared that the strange white stuff burned their fingers, and others, who had read or been told about it, feared that their hands would be frozen by the first contact with it. The experimental stage was soon past, however, and then the fun was fast and furious. It was such ecstasy as Eastern children know, with the zest of novelty added to it. For a brief time the school traditions and the proprieties maintained between teachers and pupils were thrown to the winds, as there was none so high or so low that a snowball might not batter him when least expected. The white missiles whizzed through bushes laden with roses or clipped the stately calla lilies from their stems as a knife might have done.

It was a touch of winter introduced into a garden of bloom and beauty, and, ah, but the boys, big and little, enjoyed it. For all of which some reverence might be done to the Mount Hamilton stage driver—he has not forgotten that he was once a boy.—Sunset Magazine.

Slept Fifty-two Years in One Bed.

A farm servant who holds a remarkable record has just died. He was named Peter Houghton and for fifty-two years, without a break, had been in the employ and lived on the farm of Mr. William Robinson, Lovelady's Farm, Altcar, England. During all that period he had slept in one room and on the one bed. On several occasions he had won prizes for longest living in farm service.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh s reet, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

OUR CLUBBING LIST.

The Union and Yellow Jacket, both for one year $1.00
The Union and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser 1.25
The Union and Weekly Atlanta Constitution 1.50
tf

Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it.
tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

PEOPLE'S PARTY NOMINEES.

County Ticket.

For Judge of Probate,
L. H. REYNOLDS.
For County Treasurer,
J. BICE.
For Tax Collector,
T. J. HUBBARD,
For Tax Assessor,
L. B. POUNDS.
For Clerk of Circuit Court,
SAM W. COLLINS.
For County Supt. of Education.
J. W. MOORE.
For Coroner,
FRANK MASSEY.
For County Commissioner, 1st District,
W. H. CONWAY.
For County Commissioner, 2d District,
ALEX GLASSCOCK.
For County Commissioner, 3d District,
R. P. KENDRICK.
For County Commissioner, 4th District
MOSES ROBINSON.
tf

ROBERTS NOMINATED BY REPUBLICANS IN EIGHTH.

Special to the Birmingham News.

Decatur, Ala., Sept. 5.—The republican executive committee of the eighth congressional district met here today and nominated J. W. Roberts, editor of the Republican and Odd Fellows' Journal, of Huntsville, as a candidate for congress to oppose Judge William Richardson. Strong resolutions endorsing Roosevelt and the national administration were adopted. Roberts stands high in the district.

We wish Brother Roberts success in his undertaking; he would make a good congressman.

PROBATE JUDGES.

Attorney General Wilson has decided that judges of probate elected this coming November can take charge of their offices as soon after election as they can qualify. The present judges will have to make a new bond to cover the time between November 3 and when our new judges take charge. This disproves of the claim that the present probate judge could hold to November 3, 1905, and L. H. Reynolds will take charge of his office in November, 1904.

SAME FIX HERE.

An editor in north Georgia is responsible for the following soul stirring appeal: "There is a little matter of bu$ine$$ that we would like to mention to $ome of our ubcriber$ before we forget it, but we are a bit timid and don't ju$t know how to go about it. However, we hope $ome of them will con$ider that we have been $ilent all the $ummer and bring up the $ubject in our pre$ence. Great men are mindful of little thing$, but to $ome we will be forced to $peak the word."

CANDIDATES' EXPENSES.

Following are the expenses of our candidates in the primary of July 26: L. H. Reynolds, $43.53; A. G. Dake, $90; S. J. Jennings, $45; S. W. Collins, $17.93; E. A. Calloway, $8; T. W. Littlejohn, $4.60; R. M. Smith, $11.86; W. C. Robinson, $10.21; H. A. J. Harris, $9.83; E. H. Adams, $11.90; J. Bice, $20.67; D. C. Gandy $11.29; G. W. Edwards, $8.30; L. B. Pounds, $9.40; T. G. Milling, $11.10; A. C. Mims, $15.50; S. E. Waldrop, $7.08; J. H. Thomas, $7.50; M. F. Lett, $8.45; J. W. G. Kicker, $12.65; B. H. Wells, $9.90; W. F. Deshazo, $8.50; M. A. Killgore, $8.00; T. J. Hubbard, $12; J. W. Moore, $7.50; Moses Robinson, $6.83; R. P. Kendrick, $6.10; W. F. Mahan, $5.45; W. A. Green, $4.

Clanton, Sept. 5. 1904.

Editor Union:

I see that the nominees have written and thanked the people for their support on July 26th, so I feel obliged to do the same. Before the primary I had no idea of becoming a candidate, but on that day some of my friends asked me to let my name go on the ticket for the office of coroner, and after some hesitation I consented, but hardly expected to be the nominee, but while my vote was small I was the only one in the county and got the nomination. There were only a few of the voters that knew of my candidacy, and I thank them very much for their support and assure them they will never have cause to regret it. Many people in the county know me and many don't, and to those that know me it is useless to state my politics, as you all know by my name being on the ticket what that means. I will say to you all that I never voted a democratic ticket in my life and that's not all—I never will. And why do I say this? Because that party has done things that I can't agree with them on, and their record is too dark; they can show nothing in the future for a young man. The fact of the matter is we don't agree on hardly anything, and I can't see where any laboring man can get any good in the future from the democratic party. In conclusion I wish to say to the people in regard to their voting for me in November that I am situated so I can't canvass the county, but will certainly appreciate anything you all do for me. At present I have no opponent, but if one does turn up I've no idea but what I'll be elected in November, anyway. The democrats say that they are going to win, but how in the name of common sense can they when our primary showed 1,000 votes to a little over 600 in theirs? I believe there will be more populist and republican votes than ever before, so let's all come to the polls and give the dems such a licking that they won't have any more hope left.

Yours for honesty,
FRANK MASSEY.

FARMERS' INSURANCE.

The Chilton county branch of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama held their annual meeting Saturday, September 3d, at the court house in Clanton. A large number of members were present and letters were read from F. A. Gulledge and others who were unable to attend by reason of sickness. The association elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, W. M. Wilson; secretary-treasurer, Wallace C. Edler; directors, H. C. Young, G. P. Wilson, F. J. Fitts, A. C. Mims, J. T. Bland, C. J. Cobern, W. J. Ruddick, W. J. Bean. A committee composed of W. M. Wilson, Scott Caverno and A. C. Mims, to which W. C. Edler was added as chairman, was appointed to investigate and audit the accounts, etc., of former President Dake and Secretary Strock, with full authority to act for the association in these matters and to submit a written report of their work when concluded.

Thorsby, Ala., September 5, 1904.

Editor Union—By the persuasion of some friends I am constrained to write this one more letter in reply to "Young Dem," but I will say that I feel that it is utterly useless to argue or attempt to reason with one so utterly abandoned to all truth and honor as he proves himself to be, and you had as well try to moralize with a hog in a mud hole or a hound in a hen's nest, or a wolf in a sheep fold, as to try to bring such characters up to a level of decency or honor. He says he is a young man and wrote those vile lies and insults on his own account and unaided by any one. Now we would be glad could we believe that there was not to be found another character so low and filthy and foolish as that poor creature has proved himself to be. He seems to have no sense of the irreparable injury which he is doing unto himself and the democratic party in the foolish, lying charges and insinuations that he makes against the nominees on the people's ticket, for every man who voted in our primary knows that he voted just as he pleased and thought best, as he considered them most competent and suitable. So while this fellow's venom is directed against the nominees, he does not seem to have sense enough to understand that he is casting an unpardonable insult into the very faces of those who nominated that ticket, and if he could but know the estimate which populists and republicans are placing on him and his sort he surely would hereafter devote himself to quiet pursuits and forever withhold his real name from the public as in any way connected with that most unfortunate attempt to get himself before the gaze of the public, and again, there are quite a number of sensible, conservative democrats who realize that such tactics are most destructive to their interest in this county and have so expressed themselves to me and say that as long as such political nin-com-poops rush to the front and embroil and outrage the feelings and sentiments of an honorable, intelligent people that the hopes of their party are forever doomed in this county, that the people are not to be won over to their way of thinking by such blatherskite methods.

Now we will say that we have not made a single personal attack on the democratic nominees, although there is equally as much or more room for so doing, as they have to make charges against ours, for it is for the voters to decide who it is that is most competent and worthy, and who most fully represent their political views. No, we have not attacked nominees, but we have and do attack methods and manipulations of unfair election management and the course that men pursue politically and I am perfectly willing to join issues with any man on my political beliefs or affiliations, for I recognize these things as my right and privilege, granting to others the same; but when any man tries to cast low insinuations on my private character then I resent it with defiance and recognize him a worse enemy than he who would steal my purse.

But after all the real purpose sought by the fellow who wrote those letters was really to create a disruption in our party by creating a belief in the minds of the people, especially some of our defeated candidates, that they have been foully dealt with, but the confidence that I have in these men, in their sense and intelligence, that his efforts will only engender their contempt, and will say right here if there was a candidate who believes in this tale about a trade ticket and can give any sensible proof of such a thing, let him come to the front with such proof, and I will be one to stand by him in seeing that he gets justice. But now again to the public I want to say that I will not worry you more by giving notice to those sand-hatched vipers. I feel that the people know me sufficiently well, and also understand their purpose to judge rightly (in one way I consider it a credit to have their enmity) and I shall be satisfied with the people's verdict on November 8th. L. B. POUNDS.

Coming Events

REGISTRARS' DATES.

Clanton, beat 4, August 19-20.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Sept. 12.
Jemison, beat 2 Sept. 13.
Thorsby, beat 9, Sept. 14.
Coopers, beat 10, Sept. 15.
Verbena, beat 5, Sept. 16.
Clanton, fourth Monday in September, and all that week to register all applicants who may be entitled to registration. Also on Friday and Saturday, November 4th and 5th. A resident of any beat in the county can register at Clanton on the above dates. tf

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton County for the year 1904 and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Clanton, beat 4, Oct. 1, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Oct. 3, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Oct. 4, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Oct. 5, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Oct. 6, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Oct. 7, 1904.
Benson, beat 3, Oct. 8, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Oct. 10, 1904.
Providence, beat 2, Oct. 11, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Oct. 12, 1904.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Oct. 13, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Oct. 14, 1904.
Cane Creek, beat 4, Oct. 15, 1904. till 12 m
Mountain Creek, beat 5, Oct. 17, 1904
Verbena, beat 5, Oct. 18, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Oct. 19, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Oct. 20, 1904.
James Maddox's gin, beat 4, Oct. 21, 1904

A. C. MIMS.
Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector. tf

SUNDAY SCHOOLS BEAT 2.

The Sunday schools of beat 2 (with the exception of three) met at Providence church on August 28th and organized a beat association, electing W. H. Shaw, president; J. A. Skaggs, vice president; John Lowery, secretary-treasurer. The next meeting will be at Jemison on the fourth Sunday in September, when it is hoped that the missing schools will be represented.

tf J. A. SKAGGS

Going to Plant

Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a postal for my new manual "How to Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.

P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

ALABAMA GIRLS' INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL,
Montevallo, Ala.

Literary, Scientific, Commercial, Industrial, Domestic, Pedagogical, Musical, Artistic.

Session opens September 15th. Expenses, $90.

Healthful location. Faculty of 27 teachers.

For catalogue, address
FRANCIS M. PETERSON,
tf Montevallo, Ala.

TO LET FEET GROW.

Edict Causes Chinese Women to Release Pedal Extremities.

China's Dowager Empress has ceased to admire small feet. In her eyes these painfully acquired and long admired distortions of the Chinese "lady of rank" are no longer beautiful, and an imperial edict to this effect has been issued. In San Francisco, where so many of her subjects live, parents of the little Chinese girls have released the tiny feet from bondage upon hearing of the new command.

The edict will have little effect in New York, however, for although there are about 65 Chinese woman in Chinatown only two of them belong to the class with which foot binding is a custom and tradition.

Dr. Esther M. Bok, the woman physician who personally knows every Chinese woman in New York, said: "The two small footed women who live in Chinatown went through terrible torture to acquire small feet in their childhood. When they had been in America for some time they began to weary of the bandages and longed to have feet like American women, so they could walk about. The feeling of caste no longer constrained them and they caught something of the spirit of the freedom of this country even in the retirement in which they lived. It was impossible to take off all the bandages at once, the pain would have been too great, but it was done gradually.

"Unfortunately, the women are little better off, however, as far as walking is concerned than when their feet were bound up, for these members are permanently disfigured and disqualified for walking. The four toes are all bent under the great toe and never can be straightened out to their normal shape again.

"One of these women has a little daughter, but she could not be persuaded to subject the child to the suffering which she underwent. The girl, who is quite pretty, wears comfortable shoes and has well shaped feet. Her mother is so glad that she can walk about like American girls."

"It is a good thing for China," said a progressive Chinese in regard to the edict yesterday. "For this country it does not matter much. We have got beyond it. Even in China the ideas have been changing, so that many families, even those of rank and importance, have abandoned the practice of foot binding. The feeling against it has grown just like the desire for education."

The children of Mott and Pell streets, boys and girls alike, wear the most comfortable looking shoes imaginable, light in weight and permitting free circulation of air. They are decorated more or less elaborately, according to the circumstances and taste of the parents, but they are not tight, and there is not the sign of a bandage on the youthful Chinese foot throughout the winding thoroughfares of Chinatown.—New York Herald.

He is Still Active.

Sir William Turner, who was long an expert adviser to Darwin on anatomical points, is still wonderfully active at his more than seventy years. He presided recently over the annual meeting of the general medical council in London.

The Mono-Railway.

Stimulated by the laying down of a mono-rail electric line between Berlin and Hamburg, the French will have a similar line between Paris and Marseilles. The German trains are to make 120 miles an hour; the French 180 miles an hour.

Notice! Notice!

If you want good Bargains and good articles in Dry Goods, Groceries & Hamilton-Brown, Shoes, we have them for you

Jackson & Robinson
Lomax, Ala.

In Addition to our complete stock of Drugs, Etc You will find a full line of School Books, Stationary, Etc. Seeds, Paints, Oils and Glass.

We have purchased the Judson Strock stock ask and for your trade.

Clanton Drug Co.

FOR SALE

A good family horse in good condition every way. Price $60. Apply to T. P. Crowson, two miles northwest of Jemison, Ala. tf

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

Louisville & Nashville R. R.

Read Down — CENTRAL TIME.

AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58	....
7 19	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42	....
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17	....
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 11	....
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
For rates and further information address

A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

A Great Combination Offe

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democra

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.5

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival as a

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.
SHOES that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Fe

Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Ala

Now is The Time to Plac an Ad in This Paper

Gelder's Restaurant,

Good Meals at Reasonable Price

110 North 20th Street,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

Pure Water Prevents Fevers.

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATE

We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address

I. E. SARBER CO.
Thorsby, Alabama.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Brand

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alabama

CITY OFFICIALS

Judson Strock.
—W. M. Wilson, E. G. Robinson, J. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
J. Watts Moore.
—Ed Smitherman.

COURTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.
1st Term—1st Monday in April.
2nd Term—3rd Monday in July.
3rd Term—1st Monday in November.
—T. Scott Sayre.
Solicitor—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
—E. B. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.
1st Term—2nd Monday in March
2nd Term—2nd Monday in September.
Chancellor—Hon. R. B. Kelley, Anniston.
Register—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clanton.

COUNTY COURT.
First Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.
First Monday February, 1st Monday May, 1st Monday June, 2nd Monday August, 1st Monday November.

COUNTY OFFICERS.
Judge of Probate—S. M. Adams.
Treasurer—Alex G. Dake.
Sheriff—J. M. Morgan.
Solicitor—J. O. Middleton.
Tax Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.
First District—W. H. Conway.
Second District—Alex Glasscock.
Third District—W. A. Green.
Fourth District—R. C. Riggins.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.
Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.
Hon. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.
Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

COUNTY CHURCHES

Pastors and clerks are cordially asked to send the editor any news regarding their churches which they would like published. Also if there are any errors in these notices please send corrections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Alpine—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
T. Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
Beth-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; C. C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
Brookson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; W. Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
Bethany—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday. B. Huett, clerk, Verbena.
Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.
Cane Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th Sunday. V. J. Gragg, clerk.
Center Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, pastor; J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
Concord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd Sunday. T. N. Parrish, clerk.
Collins Chapel—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.
Chestnut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
Corinth—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday. W. B. Jones, clerk.
Cross Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 1st Sunday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
Corinth—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st Sunday. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
Canaan—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pastor; W. J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
Ebenezer—Rev. P. G. Maness, pastor; R. H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
Jemison—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; N. Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
Liberty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd Sunday; W. M. Wood, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
Mars Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pastor; H. Z. Barnes, clerk, British.
Mulberry—Rev. I. Windsor pastor; C. Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
Mount Carmel—Rev. W. J. Ruddick, pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk, Jemison.
Mount Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, pastor; D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
Maple Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; W. H. Wilson, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday; George Trawick, clerk.
New Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; J. W. Billingsley, clerk.
New Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 1st Sunday; G. W. Hill, clerk.
New Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. Henry Smith, clerk.
Pilgrims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, pastor; I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thompson, 1st Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
Pleasant Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, pastor; W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. G. W. Freeman, pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk, Mulls.
Poplar Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, 1st Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.
Providence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt, 1st Sunday. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemison.
Providence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, pastor; Riley Robinson, clerk, Clanton.
Salem—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor; O. Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
Shiloh—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd Sunday; W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
Union—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun-

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

lle & Nashville R. R

CENTRAL TIME.

DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2	N
BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7
Calera	9 25	10 33	6
Jemison	8 58	....	5
Thorsby	8 51	....	5
Lomax	8 42	....	5
CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5
Cooper	8 17	....	5
Verbena	8 11	....	5
Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5
MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4

ng Cars Dining Cars.
information address

SON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

Combination Offe

l furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the Globe-Democra

WITH

The Union

FOR

pers One Year Only $1.

lobe-Democrat is issued Semi-We nore, every Tuesday and Friday. I htics and has no equal or rival a Modern Newspaper.

news of the World's Fair, all the ne ign, and all the news of all the ear obe-Democrat during the coming ye

IS THE TIME.

Day and get your best home paper aper of the World's Fair City, t ess n, Clanton, Ala.

Specialty..

ther.
re Reliable.
made to Wear.
OT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

oceries, Flour and Fe

Tobacco and Snuff.

tment Full and Complete.

W. SMITH.

ding Clanton, Alab

e Time to Plac

in This Paper

s Restaurant,

t Reasonable Price

North 20th Street,
HAM, ALABAMA.

Prevents Fevers

S FURNISH PURE WATE

water or no charge mad
Address
I. E. SARBER CO.
ama.

ERCHANDISE AN

RTILIZERS

OR SALE.

al & Mule Bran

Best on Earth'

JONES,

Alabam

Y OFFICIALS

Judson Strock.
W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rob
I. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
J. Watts Moore.
Ed Smitherman.

RTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.

Term—1st Monday in April.
Term—3rd Monday in July.
Term—1st Monday in Novem

T. Scott Sayre.
F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
E. B. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.

Term—2nd Monday in March.
Term—2nd Monday in Septem

cellor—Hon. R. B. Kelley, An

ster—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan

COUNTY COURT.

Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Monday February, 1st Monday
1st Monday June, 2nd Monday
nd Monday August, 1st Monday
mber.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

ge of Probate—S. M. Adams. easurer—Alex G. Dake.
eriff—J. M. Morgan.
ditor—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

st District—W. H. Conway.
nd District—Alex Glasscock.
rd District—W. A. Green.
rth District—R. C. Riggins.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.

J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.

W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.

L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

UNTY CHURCHES

tors and clerks are cordially ask send the editor any news regard their churches which they would published. Also if there are any in these notices please send cor tions.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

pine—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
th-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas
C. C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
okson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor;
W. Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
thany—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday.
Huett, clerk, Verbena.
nton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st
3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins,

e Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th
y. V. J. Gragg, clerk.
er Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard,
J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
cord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd
y. T. N. Parrish, clerk.
lins Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm
, 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, stnut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand,

r; J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
rith—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd
y. W. B. Jones, clerk.
ss Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, unday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
rith—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st
y. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
naan—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas
W. J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
enezer—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas
R. H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
lson—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor;
N. Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
berty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd
y; W. M. Wood, clerk.
cedonia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd
y. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
s Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas
H. Z. Barnes, clerk, British.
lberry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor;
Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
nt Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk,

nt Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong,
; D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
ple Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand,
. W. H. Wilson, clerk.
cedonia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd
y; George Trawick, clerk.
Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas
J. W. Billingsley, clerk.
Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong,
unday; G. W. Hill, clerk.
Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd
y. Henry Smith, clerk.
rims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason,
r; I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
nt Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom
st Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
sant Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard,
r; W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
nt Grove—Rev. G. W. Free
pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk, ts.
lar Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone,
Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.
vidence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt.
unday. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi vidence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong.

r; Riley Robinson, clerk, Clan on—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor;

Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
ah—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd
y; W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
p—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun

say. J. Deason, clerk, Adams.
Thorsby—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Robert Jones, clerk, Thorsby.
Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, pastor; R. S. Chandler, clerk, Jemison.
Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2d Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.
Verbena—Rev. J. W. Partridge, 1st Sunday. T. J. Bland, clerk.
Valley Creek—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. W. Mitchell, clerk, Plantersville.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

Clanton Circuit, Rev. T. F. Davis, Pastor.
Thorsby—1st Sunday.
Walnut Grove—2nd Sunday, morning.
Unity—2nd Sunday, evening.
Shady Grove—3rd Sunday.
Mount Pisgah—4th Sunday, morning.
Enterprise—4th Sunday, evening.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Highland School House—Rev. M. F. Lett, 3rd Sunday and Saturday before. T. L. Adams, clerk.
Enterprise—Rev. M. F. Lett, 4th Sunday. T. F. Patterson, clerk.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN.

St. Olafs, Thorsby—Rev. H. Engh, pastor. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

Concordia, Thorsby—Rev. J. E. Hedberg. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2d Sunday. Song service every 2d and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

MASONIC.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday. Clanton.
Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 250—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.
Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 423—First Saturday, Clanton.
Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 567—First Saturday Billingsley.
Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.
Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 411—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.
Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 473—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.
Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

of the

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE CO.

Of Toronto, Canada.

1st January, 1904.

UNITED STATES BRANCH.

Assets.

Government bonds	$223,650.00
State and municipal bonds	511,473.19
Cash on hand and deposit	169,720.71
Stocks and bonds	305,793.00
Premiums in course of col.	204,834.79
Interest due and accrued.	11,833.20
	$1,427,304.89

Liabilities.

Reserve premium fund (N. Y. Standard). $849,771.77 Reserve for unpaid losses 100,786.14
	$950,557.91
Surplus in United States..	$476,746.98
Total income in United States for 1903.....	$1,547,736.84
Total losses paid in U. S. from 1874 to 1903, inclusive	$14,674,843.26

WALLACE C. EDLER, Agent, Clanton, Alabama.

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 acres within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is timbered, 1 set mill-rocks, 48 inch, 1 Horse, weight 1100 lbs. Alfred Popwell,
" Clanton, Ala.

LOST.

One red and white pied cow, with heifer calf, both unmarked; last seen about April 20th. Liberal reward will be paid to any one who returns these animals or puts them up and informs me.

J. H. Driver, Clanton, Ala.

LOCAL WEATHER REPORT.

U. S. Department of Agriculture. — Weather Bureau.

CLANTON, ALA.

Week ending Sept. 7.

Date	Temperature High	Low	Rain fall
1	90	61
2	90	60
3	92	64
4	90	66
5	89	63
6	90	60
7	88	62

A. STEWART, Obs.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

T. K. Littleton and wife visited W. H. Goodgame's family Thursday.

J. N. Williams was a pleasant visitor Friday.

W. M. Roebuck has been appointed postmaster at Adams P. O.

T. W. Robbins was in Clanton Saturday.

T. M. Pyron and S. J. Dawson were in town Saturday.

L. A. McGraw was in Clanton Saturday.

Tom Littlejohn is back at work, but a little weak.

Scott Caverno, treasurer of Thorsby, was in town Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Collins are the proud possessors of a fine girl, born August 30th.

Rev. A. C. Swindall preached at the Baptist church Sunday morning and evening to fair congregations.

The board of county commissioners held a session here Monday and Tuesday to consider the raise in values made by Back Tax Commissioner W. M. Adams, and sustained enough of his work to make an increase of about $10,000 in our taxable values. Commissioners Conway, Glasscock, Riggins and Green were present.

R. J. Williams was in Clanton Tuesday.

I. N. Gentry was in town Tuesday.

W. H. Robinson was a pleasant visitor Tuesday.

J. H. Burkhalter was a welcome caller Tuesday.

There are a total of 6681 children in Chilton county of school age, according to the county superintendent's report, eleven less than last year.

Miss Clara Small is at P. D. Wilson's store in charge of the millinery department. She spent the summer at St. Louis and has all "the latest fashions" in millinery.

Miss Alpha Smitherman left Wednesday for Maplesville on a visit to relatives, but may take in the St. Louis fair before she returns to Clanton.

W. M. Wilson went to Maplesville Wednesday.

W. I. Mullins has just received the biggest car load of "Studebaker" wagons and buggies ever shipped south.

Jesse Ray, station agent at Thorsby, was in Clanton Wednesday.

Miss Hooper, a trained nurse from Birmingham, arrived here Tuesday Evening. She is to take care of Squire Higgins' little boy, Burton, who is very ill with typhoid fever.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

J. W. G. White, Miss Josie Driver.

Colored.

Will Franklin, Sarah Mitchell; Frank Owen, Lula Latham; Munroe Campbell, Florence Gentry; Warren Hawkins and Josephine Williams.

DEATH OF MRS. DR. N. S. JOHNSON.

Mrs. Johnson, wife of Dr. N. S. Johnson, formerly Miss Lillian Estella Goldthorp, of Mobile, died at her residence in Clanton Sunday morning, September 4th, of Bright's disease, age twenty years. The remains were taken to Mobile Sunday evening accompanied by the bereaved husband and his aunt, Miss Alice Strock, and were laid to rest in Magnolia cemetery Monday in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, the floral remembrances being many and very beautiful. The deceased lady's parents and two sisters reside in Mobile, where Dr. Johnson married her about two years ago, a young and happy girl, who looked the picture of health and many years of life in store for her. Death is no respecter of persons, the young as well as the old are his victims

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Price today, 10 1-8@10 1-4
Same time last year, 11 1-4@11 3-8.
Bales received to date, 96.
Same period last year, 13.

MAPLE SPRING.

The singing school closed Friday, September 2d. It has been quite a success under the skilful leadership of our efficient teacher, Professor W. H. Roberson. The day was spent by the class in singing, accompanied by organ in the afternoon. Professor Roberson seems imbued with a love for sacred music that makes his singing more effective. He made a few touching remarks to the class and the exercises closed with prayer by N. J. Calloway.

A SPECTATOR.

NOTICE.

I am ready to lecture to or organize any alliance on short notice, and hold myself ready to attend all calls.

W. H. COX,
County Lecturer and Organizer.

PROGRAM OF TEACHERS' INSTITUTE,

To be Held at Stanton September 23-24, 1904.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Devotional exercises, Rev. W. J. Ruddick.

12:20 a. m.—Welcome address, Professor W. B. Speer.

10:40 a. m.—Enrollment of teachers, etc.

10:50 a. m.—"Fundamental Factors in School Room Education," Professor P. G. Maness, Miss Annie Jones (paper).

11:30 a. m.—"How to Make Alabama History Interesting"—Professor John T. Martin, Miss Mary Garrison.

1:30 p. m.—"Should Chilton County Have Local Taxation?" Professor Robert E. Sessions

2:15 p. m.—"How to Teach Agriculture and the Importance of this Subject," Prof. R. A. Rasco

3 p. m.—"Manual Training, or Folks and Things," Prof. Robert Jones.

3:45 p. m.—"What Should be Done by the County Board of Education Created Under the Redistricting Act," Prof. G. L. Speer, W. O. Perry, H. L. Davis.

7:30 p. m.—Oration on "Greater Alabama," Master Ira Dunsmore.

SATURDAY.

9 a. m.—Devotional exercises.

9:20 a. m.—"Shall We Let Pupils Elect Courses or Topics?" Prof. J. L. Ruffin.

10 a. m.—"High School Methods for Our Country Schools," Prof. H. A. Harris, Miss Carry Walker.

10:30 a. m.—"Need of Better School Houses and Places for procuring Them," Prof. E. Y. McMorries, Prof. R. E. R. Hicks.

11 a. m.—Educational address, Prof. Robert Jones.

I earnestly ask that all the teachers on program be present, as well as all the teaching force of the county.

J. W. MOORE,
County Supterintendent.

SOUTH PLETCHER.

Editor Union:

Please allow me space to tell of a man that is running all through this country, pretending to be fox-hunting, but he never barks at nothing but the populists and republicans. He'll soon die, for he is like the little dog that barked himself to death at the moon and it still went on, just like they will do and will come to the full moon in November. Hoping that he'll quit barking up the wrong tree,

SLUGGS.

PRATTVILLE.

Mr. Editor:

Please allow me space for a few lines in the blessed UNION. I just want to ask the good people to leave prejudice out and think a moment and look back, see what has been the past, and if we have had better times with a democratic administration. Then, let's vote with them, but if we had better times with the republicans let's vote for them. When did we see the most tramps, when Grover was president or when McKinley was president? When do we get more for our cotton? When was cotton 4 cents and meat 12 1-2 cents? Now, good people, leave out prejudice and think for yourselves, and act for your own interests. We have a few democrats down here singing around, but I don't think they get more than 75 out of "old hundred," and it is a bad discord. I don't think the people will believe the stuff that is being forced on them. I don't believe a word some people say when it comes to politics. We all know some democrats will say anything to get you to vote their way, and I for one won't risk them.

J. S. JONES, JR.

PLEASANT GROVE.

Editor Union:

Please allow me space to say to the voters and people of Chilton that I am the same politically and religiously that I've always been. It has been told that I had quit my church and that I'd said I was no longer a preacher. This is not so. I have more calls than I can fill. Like other preachers, I've changed some pastorates, but it was from honest conclusions, outside of politics. I'm just as strong for our ticket as I ever was, though I can't spend as much time for the ticket as if I were the nominee. If any one hearing that I have quit the party or faith and work of religion will ask the people of Pleasant Grove or Union Grove or Providence they can tell you where I stand. I very much regret that I can't serve all the churches that want me. At this time of the year I always devote my whole time to my church work. This year even more than usual. Hoping this will satisfy the minds of the public, I am yours as ever,

JOS. H. THOMAS.

BETHEL.

Health is reasonably good in this community and all are in hopes that cotton will be a good price again. Our people held a school meeting Saturday in order to get money to re-cover their school house. Every one seemed to be interested, and went down into their jeans and paid their part. J. B. White is employed to do the work, and we expect to have our house all right in time for the opening of school which is Oct. 1st, and hope for a successful term. Messrs. George Driver and H. M. Shaver were welcome guests at J. W. Headley's Sunday. J. W. Sharbutt went home with his best girl Saturday night. Success to THE UNION and its readers.

COON-JINE.

The Sak's Store

Birmingham, Alabama.

READY-MADE Apparel for Men, Women and Children.

Our Mail Order Department is quick, efficient and serviceable.

Write for Catalogue

DRINK

CREAM of KENTUCKY Whisky.

Sold only by

COLLINS BROS., Calera, Alabama.

Mail orders promptly filled.

The Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE

WALLACE C. EDLER, General Agent, Clanton Alabama.

CHILTON COUNTY BRANCH

PRESIDENT: ALEX G. DAKE, Clanton — SEC.-TREAS: JUDSON STROCK, Clanton

Insure, Farmers Dwellings, outbuildings and contents, and Live stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning;—the cheapest, safest and most sensible method of Insurance known to man.

AGENTS MUST HAVE A COMMISSION SIGNED BY GENERAL AGENT

Full particulars furnished on application to

WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,

COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,

Clanton. — Alabama

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.

Catalogue for the asking.

1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.

County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

PAUL CALAME,

205 21st Street

Birmingham, Ala.

Practical Watchmaker and Optician

Eyes Correctly Fitted

Mail orders promptly filled

A most complete

Stock of General Merchandise, Dress Goods, Etc.

The Millinery Department

is complete in every detail and is in charge of a first-class milliner, Miss Clara Small, of St. Louis

P. D. WILSON.

CLANTON, ALABAMA.

The Labor of the Child

I.

Shut them from the light of day,
Dividends, dividends;
Rob them of their youth and play,
Dividends, dividends;
Stunt and dwarf the coming race,
Flabby limb and bloodless face—
A prison mill, the infant's place—
Dividends! Dividends!

II.

Steal their freedom and their joy,
Dividends, dividends;
Sacrifice the girl and boy,
Dividends, dividends;
Foolish, blind, impotent state,
Sowing dragon teeth of hate—
Save thy nurslings from this fate—
Dividends! Dividends!

—Robert Loveman.

The Cross on the Plain

BY GEORGE DYER ELDRIDGE

Copyright, 1901, by The Shortstory Pub. Co. (All rights reserved.)

A land so desolate that imagination might not picture it; the surface alternating in gray and red, where the disintegrated line and sandstone lay side by side without mingling; a soil too coarse for vegetation, hard with the baking of a burning sun, and worn into ridges, where the spring torrents from the melting snow of the mountains had eaten away the softer earth. In scattered clumps, gray sage—seeming in its lifeless dryness rather a part of the dead soil than a living growth from it. Here and there gleamed white in the sunshine masses of bleached bones of cattle—perhaps of men—who had wandered there and died. The vast plain that stretched, a dead waste, to the mountains which hung like banks of mists on the edge of the horizon, was broken by hideous masses of red sandstone, gigantic, water-worn into curious shapes by the floods of aged untold. Here, one stood isolated, in the form of a crouching animal ready to spring; there, they lay along the plain, as if huge lizards had been suddenly turned to stone. Again, one towered like a pillar, carved with strange devices of a forgotten people, and yonder, in masses and groups and rows, they seemed the ruins of some vast city, whose streets and squares must have echoed to busy feet hundreds—thousands of years ago. Not a tree in the vast plain, but over all a sky without a cloud, and a sun, not yet at the meridian, that burned with more than tropic heat.

Suddenly, in the very center of this horror of desolation, appeared a man. He was crouching in the water-worn hollow of one of the biggest rocks, cowering in its blackest shadow and gazing off across the wide plain to the dim mist that told where the mountains lay. There was a haggard, hunted look in his face, and when in the deep stillness, unbroken by the hum of a locust or the buzz of a beetle, a bit of sandstone dropped from the great boulders, he shivered as with fear and drew deeper into the shadow of the hollowed rock.

After some minutes, he seemed to gather courage and suddenly dropped from his rock-shelter, flat upon the ground, still, however, within the shadows of the great boulder. Then he raised his head and again gazed away toward the mountain. It was as if he felt that the mountain had eyes and was watching the great plain, on which anything that moved would be seen through the clear air and known by its power of life to be strange to that dead world.

After a time he was crawling like a lizard, out of the shadows, across a stretch of hot sunlight, in among the scant sage bushes—crawling as if he would be a part of the gray and red earth, if only he could burrow into it and escape sight. Even when he reached the sage bushes he did not rise, but instead, crept on and on, until he came to one of those hideous water-worn gullies, into which he rolled without raising his body from the ground.

There he lay for a time, as if expecting that the dead plain would give some token that his caution had been in vain. Streams of perspiration rolled down his face and mixed with the white dust that was rising constantly from the dead soil, working into the pores of his skin and parching his mouth and throat as he lay and listened to his own heart beats and the awful silence.

Cowering in its blackest shadow.

Evidently the gully had been selected as leading in the direction he wished to take, for finally he rose to a crouching posture and began to move up its course, walking almost swiftly, though with still bended back, where it was deep and the sage bush hung over it, and crawling again where it grew shallow and lay open to the sun. In this way, after an hour of toil, he reached a mass of boulders, around which the gully bent, and here he raised himself in the deep shadows on the side farthest from the mountains he had watched so intently before he began his journey and darted suddenly under the overhanging ledge, where the water had worn away the softer rock, and hid again in a hollow as before.

Lay dead.

Then followed hours of strange toil. At times the man lay flat on the hot plain and dragged himself along, taking minutes to move his own length, so that any one watching would have needed a keen and steady eye to be certain that he moved at all. Then, in a friendly gully, he moved faster, with the crouching posture of the morning, and even once, where the great boulders stood like the ruins of an ancient city, he almost ran through the black shadows of what seemed once to have been a street, only throwing himself down to crawl where an open place, like a cross street, let in the unwelcome sunlight.

The perspiration had ceased to flow, for every drop of moisture was burned from his body. The grime stood on his face in dry patches; his eyes were red and bloodshot; his tongue hung from his mouth, and even the hot stones had ceased to burn his flesh, so hot had it become in his fierce struggle under that untempered sun.

In the early afternoon, he stopped to rest in the shaded hollow of a boulder, and suddenly, as he looked to the ground, his face blanched under its coating of grime. A broken sage bush told where a foot had passed! This man had reached a point where signs of humanity were more terrible than the death that surrounded him on every hand! He looked again, and the pallor became more terrible, with the set terror of despair. He recognized the spot where he had rested in the morning and from which he had crawled to the first gully! It was his foot that had broken the sage bush, and all these hours of superhuman toil had availed only to bring him back to his starting point! Then he rose erect, no longer creeping, no longer skulking, but upright, as God meant man to walk, and took the direction in which lay the mist that was a mountain.

Hours passed again! The sun had almost touched the top of the mountains, which now rose huge and dark before the man who dragged on and on, over the dead plain, with purple face and swollen hands and feet, filled with but one thought, conscious of but one wish, to reach the shelter of the mountains, and there to find water, and, drinking, perchance to die.

Long shadows ran out to meet him; a cooler air from the mountain heights touched his brow. In a gully, high up among the ragged pines, he caught a sheen of light, where the last sun rays struck a falling stream. Suddenly, from behind a great boulder, a horseman barred the way, the bridle-rein hanging loose, a short rifle at his shoulder, aimed at the hunted man's heart. The fugitive stopped, his weary head dropped, and with his swollen hand he made the sign of the Cross on brow and breast. Then came the sharp, quick ring of the rifle, and the man fell, with arms outspread, and with a single groan lay dead, himself making the sign of the Cross on the dead plain. The horseman adjusted his rifle across his saddle, gave one glance at the dead body, to make sure that his aim had been true, and rode away into the depths of the mountains.

CORN A VERSATILE PRODUCT.

Innumerable Uses to Which It Can Be Put.

Probably few things that grow are capable of so many uses or are as completely used as corn. The grain is used for food both for human beings and cattle, while the stalks are used as cattle feed. The pith of the cornstalk is used in the manufacture of smokeless powder, in the manufacture of high-grade varnish, and in the manufacture of paper. The woody portions are used in the manufacture of a cheap quality of paper.

As a food corn is supplied in many forms. The most familiar are as meal, hominy and grits. Practically all the starch that is used in the United States is made from corn. Immense quantities are also used in the manufacture of glucose, which, among other things, enters largely into the manufacture of beer, as a substitute for malt.

A large quantity of corn is used annually in the manufacture of whisky, and nearly 15,000,000 bushels are used every year in the manufacture of cologne spirits and alcohol. Even in the manufacture of these products nothing is lost. The glutinous and other residues in the manufacture of starch, glucose, whisky and alcohol are used as cattle feed.

"Access on Pronoun."

Two negro women boarded a Pennsylvania avenue car at Seventh street. One was a large, dark-skinned woman, flashily dressed; the other was a small, yellow woman, wearing a modest gown.

The women were discussing a mutual friend, Mr. Jenks. The large woman spoke in loud tones and pronounced the name of the man as though it were spelled J-i-n-k-s. It was evident from the expression on the face of the smaller woman that she was annoyed by the loud talking and mispronunciation of her friend. Finally she protested:

"You speak of Mr. Jenks as though his name were spelled with an 'i' instead of an 'e'."

"Oh, yes," the large woman exclaimed, "I perceives you puts the access on the pronoun."—Washington Times.

The Boy Speculated.

Baron Moncheur, the Belgian minister, visited Baltimore last month. At a dinner in Baltimore he said:

"The spirit of business enterprise and speculation is what impresses me most profoundly in America. For instance, I was riding one day on the outskirts of Washington, and at a certain place I dismounted and got a little boy to hold my horse. I was gone about ten minutes, and on my return I found the first boy gone, and another, a smaller one, standing at the horse's head.

"'How is this?' I said. 'You are not the boy I left my horse with.'

"'No, sir,' said the tiny urchin, 'I speckilated and bought the job off the other fellow for a dime.'

"Of course, after that," the minister ended, "it was impossible for me to 'bear' the market."—Kansas City Journal.

Mayor McClellan's Simile.

Mr. McClellan was accompanied by a friend. He was smoking the last quarter of an immense cigar and talked earnestly. In front of the entrance to the Potter building a half-dozen newsboys were sorting papers. The mayor was caught there in the crowd, and delayed a few seconds. One of the gamins "spotted" him.

"Hey, fellers," he said, in a low tone, "dat's de mayor."

"Golly," said another. "Look at de size of de smoke. Folly him and see where he tro's de butt."

As the mayor, smiling at what he had overheard, pushed on, he remarked to his companion:

"Such is fame—mostly a big smoke."—New York Mail.

The Land of Long Ago.

The Land of Long Ago,
Where happy hours sleep,
Where languid rivers glide,
With stately flow and deep;
Where fadeless roses blow,
And Love sits azure-eyed.

There comes no frost, nor snow,
But balmy breezes sweep
O'er gardens fair and wide;
And slow the waters creep
Through blossoms bending low
Above the charmed tide.

How sweet to rise and go
From ways where mortals weep,
From love so long denied,
To dreams that roses heap,
Where crystal waters flow,
And golden days abide.

—R. G. Coventry in English Country Life.

Has Learned Much of Africa.

A recent statement in the Scientific American says that M. Chevalier, the noted French explorer, has just returned from a prolonged trip through Central Africa, where he secured a valuable collection of interesting documents and photographs of the country and its people. A phonograph, which he took with him was the medium for obtaining records of the languages of the various natives in the regions which he explored. In a course of lectures which M. Chevalier is to deliver he intends to reproduce these records.

WAS HAPPIER IN HADES.

John Had No Desire to Return to Loving Spouse.

"Spiritualism," said Gov. Aycock of North Carolina, "is a marvelous thing. I used to know a widow who thought she would look into it a little. She visited a medium, and the man greed for $5 to give her some conversation with her dead husband.

"He put the lights out and fell into a trance, and suddenly a dim, pale shape appeared in the furthest, blackest corner of the room.

"'Are you my husband? Are you John?' the widow whispered, tremulously.

"'I am, John,' a bass voice answered.

"For a moment, awe-stricken, the widow was silent. Then she said:

"'Do you forgive me for my ill treatment of you in life?'

"'I forgive all,' replied the voice.

"'Are you happier than you were when you were living?'

"'Much happier.'

"'Have you no desire to return to earth?'

"'None whatever.'

"'Where are you, John?'

"'In Hades,' said the spirit."

First Briton in India.

The first Englishman who is known for certain to have gone out to India was, according to a recent correspondent in an Indian paper, a certain Thomas Stephens, a member of a well-to-do Wiltshire family and an Oxonian, who landed somewhere near Goa about the year 1579, and spent forty years in Jesuit missionary work in Goa and the neighborhood. Stephens not only succeeded in mastering Marathi and Konkani, which were the languages spoken by the majority of the people on the west coast, but left behind him among other works in Marathi of literary merit the "Purana," an epic; and it is in his capacity as the author of this that Stephens' name is best known among the West Coast inhabitants.

The poem contains over 11,000 strophes of four lines each. It narrates in a lofty style the events that led up to the establishment of the Christian religion, and from the creation to the ascension of our Lord, who figures as the hero of the epic. A new edition of the "Purana" is to be published in Mangalore, no printed copy of the work being now available. —The Athenaeum.

Consider Himself Dead.

Mr. L., a good-natured German, was the proprietor of a clothing business in a country town. He had in his employ one John S., whom he had advanced from cash boy to head clerk. Since his promotion John had several times asked for an increase of salary, and each time his request had been granted. One morning he again appeared at the old merchant's desk with another request for an increase of $10 a month.

"Vy, Shon," said Mr. L., "I dink I bays you pooty vell alretty; vat for I bays you any more?"

"Well," replied John, confidently, "I am your principal help here. I know every detail of the business, and, indeed, I think that you could not get along without me."

"Is dot so? Vy, Shon, vot would I do suppose you vas to die?"

"Well, suppose that you would have to get along without me then."

The old Teuton took several whiffs from his big pipe and finally said:

"Vell, Shon, I guess you petter gonsider yourself dead."—Youth's Companion.

The Czar a Book Lover.

Here is quite a delightful confession from the Czar of all the Russias, whose heart must now be sorely troubled by the disasters of the present war:

"I love traveling, but only when I can do it in my own way. I never travel otherwise than at night, and spend my day visiting museums and quaint old streets, bazars when I am in the East, antiquarian shops when I am in the North. I am more of an Asiatic than a European in my tastes, and I have not only a vast collection of Indian curios and quite an army of Buddhas large and small, but also a library composed of books treating of Indiana subjects alone, and another of books dealing with Egyptian lore. Were I not—well, what I am—I should be the greatest bookworm in the world."

The Outdoor Christian.

God, forgive me for an upstart
That I do not plead for grace,
Nor bask within purring praises
In the radiance of thy face.
I am so busy living, Lord,
And loving, night and day,
I cannot always find the time
To kneel me down and pray.

God, forgive me for a bungler,
That I cannot tune by chime
To the anthem and the chantry
Of the dressy Sabbath time.
I know the word of sea and sky,
The note of dell and nook,
But cannot seem to catch the air
Of olden altar book.

God, forgive me that I love thee
As the flowers love the light,
With a seething, silent rapture,
With a dear but dumb delight.
You bred my faith so stanch and strong,
My creed so brave and gay,
I dare to love and praise thee in Mine own untrammeled way!
—Eleanor Abbott in Lippincott's.

Spain to Grow Cotton.

There is now a bill before the Spanish Cortes, proposed by the minister of finance, to encourage the cultivation of cotton. All land devoted to the raising of cotton will be exempt for three years from all tax, both on land and on all improvements made, and all live stock used on the land; and for the next ten years the tax will only be the same as before the improvements were made. This exemption only applies while the land is planted in cotton. Money prizes will be paid to those who obtain the best results.

A Kiss at Parting

A true story that could be easily done into fiction is this one of a happening at the Grand Central depot last week.

It might be called "The Man Who Dared," or "Trunks and Trifling," or "Baggage and Badinage," or perhaps "Checks and Cheek" wouldn't be an inappropriate alliteration, if you insist upon alliteration, but, anyway, and whatever its title when done into fiction, this is a true tale, though it shall be nameless and though its hero and heroine must for very obvious reasons remain unnamed.

Just by way of explanation, it may be said that the hero is a man prominent in society and professionally, and is noted for his wit and daring, which latter quality is invariably forgiven on account of the former.

The heroine is a very pretty woman, whose name you would know, too, should it be told to you. She was leaving Cincinnati by the evening train for the east, and she happened, for good and sufficient reasons to be alone. He had run down to the station to check the baggage of his wife and family, who were leaving on the early train next morning. They didn't know each other, but he had admired her from afar, and she knew him by sight and through mutual friends.

She was alone in the baggage room identifying trunks when he came in, and, looking up, she caught his eyes and in her preoccupation it wasn't an unnatural thing at all that she forgot she had not been through the formality of a previous [illegible] smiled frankly [illegible] you knew the ma[illegible] it unnatural for [illegible] in going straight [illegible] grasping her hand [illegible] one-sided conversa[illegible] the most dignified [illegible] couldn't help [illegible] had any appreci[illegible] good things in [illegible] short, but he [illegible] Her confusion [illegible] took her ticket [illegible] and led her [illegible] preserving the [illegible] tude, and all the while [illegible] running fire of w[illegible] daring badinage [illegible] guages, which [illegible] denial it was well [illegible] ally on the stairs [illegible] the signal [illegible] when he said [illegible] of words charac[illegible] "Now, don't [illegible] rash, but I'm [illegible] by."

He did [illegible] and as the train [illegible] breath [illegible] platform he [illegible] his hand. "[illegible] folks," the [illegible] example in [illegible] as not good [illegible] although in [illegible] he has been [illegible] all that a man [illegible]

Times-Star.

Seek for Strange Beast

New Zealand is such a wonderland of animals and reptiles and birds today, and has been such a wonderland of them in the past, that the scientific world is ready to believe that the waitoreke really exists there and explorers are hunting for it now.

What is the waitoreke?

Is there a waitoreke at all?

Zoologists all over the world are willing to pay a big price for the answer to either or both of these questions. If there is such a thing, it is the most wonderful beast yet known—more wonderful even than the duck-bill, the four-footed, egg-laying furred mammal with a duck's beak.

Like the duck-bill, the waitoreke is—that is, if it "is" at all—a native of the Australian continent. The stories about it come from the folk of interior New Zealand.

The New Zealand natives declare that it is a mammal that dwells in the water. Its home is said to be in the deep mountain lakes and, unlike such water-loving mammals as the otter or the seal, it swims in the water like a fish and goes ashore only for short periods.

But, say these natives, it is in no way like a seal. It has no webbed feet, but claws; and, furthermore, it crawls ashore and lays [illegible] turtle or a lizard.

They add a further [illegible] ment: it is that this wo[illegible] has mighty jaws, lo[illegible] armed with saw-like [illegible]

Only a few years ag[illegible] have dismissed the [illegible] as a fable. But to-day [illegible] stories have been pro[illegible] zoologists are [illegible] credit this one.

"With Sir Harry Joh[illegible] ing the okapi, which [illegible] a creature that was [illegible] died out before the dawn [illegible] with men searching [illegible] for the giant bird [illegible] missed years ago as [illegible] monster with the [illegible] a form of prehistoric [illegible] alive in South Ame[illegible] are almost ready [illegible] the waitoreke may [illegible] living survivor of [illegible] historic [illegible] own beasts and [illegible]

The description [illegible] terrible snout with [illegible] makes them think [illegible] der snouts of the ichth[illegible]

The fact that this [illegible] story lays eggs adds [illegible] blance.

Good in Slang Phrases

Many purists bewail the prevalence of slang in the spoken language of the period. Has it never occurred to them that in the vast majority of instances slang is relatively soft and harmless, that it is seldom profane, and that what common speech has suffered from interjections of slang and cant phrases has been more than counteracted by the disuse of hard old Anglo-Saxon swear words? Thus the language is really the gainer, and usage is making much of the slang good English. Take any good dictionary lately from the press, and it will be found to contain literally hundreds of words that were considered slang and not to be spoken in polite conversation, a dozen or twenty-five or fifty years ago. Likewise, take any standard novel of three, four or five generations ago, which reflects the customs and people of its period, and it will be found that some of the leading characters in it were given to politely damning various parts of themselves and about everything else on the slightest provocation, in any company whatsoever.

In the days of Sheridan it was considered good form for the gallant gentleman to consign himself to perdition, piecemeal or as a whole, paying tribute to the charms of ladies with whom he was [illegible] Thackeray, in person and [illegible] els, let drop swear words [illegible] ally that would not now be [illegible] in a gentleman's parlor. [illegible] a famous and brilliant lawyer [illegible] Charleston, who flourished [illegible] before the outbreak of the civil [illegible] who swore plausibly, assisted [illegible] essily in polite company, and [illegible] risque stories in the most [illegible] cles; and he was accounted [illegible] the most delightful company [illegible] found within the broad [illegible] the country. In the "good old [illegible] of long ago it was regarded as a [illegible] tleman's privilege to [illegible] his oaths were nicely chosen [illegible] fence was felt. It is not so now [illegible] that profanity is obsolete, but [illegible] pretty nearly so in polite society [illegible] is principally indulged in by [illegible] tured persons, or by the [illegible] sionally the gentleman may [illegible] an oath, under provocation [illegible] such instances he is careful [illegible] that there is no woman within [illegible] shot. Men have a higher and [illegible] respect for women, for themselves [illegible] and for the language than in former times.

Echo of a Song

To my fancy idly roaming, comes a picture of the gloaming,
Comes a fragrance from the blossoms of the lilac and the rose;
With the yellow lamplight streaming I am sitting here and dreaming
Of a half-forgotten twilight whence a mellow memory flows;
To my listening ears come winging vagrant notes of woman's singing,
I've a sense of sweet contentment as the sounds are borne along;
'Tis a mother who is tuning her fond heart to love and crooning
To her laddie such a sleepy little,
creepy little
song.

Ah how well do I remember when by crackling spark and ember
The old-fashioned oaken rocker moved with rhythmic sweep and slow;
With her feet upon the fender, in a cadence low and tender,
Floated forth that slumber anthem of a childhood long ago.
There were goblins in the gloaming and the half-closed eyes went roaming
Through the twilight for the [illegible] shapes of bugaboos [illegible]
Now the sandman's [illegible] a tired lad half [illegible]
When she sings to him [illegible]
sleepy little,
creepy little
song.

So I'm sitting here and dreaming the mellow [illegible]
Through the vine-[illegible]-covered [illegible]
a yellow filigree,
On the fragrant air [illegible] winging grant notes of woman's singing
'Tis the slumber song of childhood is murmuring to me
And some subtle fancy creeping [illegible]
senses half to sleeping
As the misty shapes of bygones dreamily along.
All my sorrows disappearing, as a lad I'm hearing
Once again my mother's sleepy little,
creepy little
song.

—New York [illegible]

Kiss at Parting

ity of a previous acquaintanc smiled frankly into his eyes.
it unnatural for him to lose in going straight across those grasping her hand and begin one-sided conversation so clev
the most dignified woman in th couldn't help being fascinated had any appreciation at all of t good things in life. The tim short, but he made the most Her confusion made her helpless took her tickets, checked her and led her to her car, all the preserving the most devotiona mode and all the while indulgin reining fire of wit, compliments daring badinage in two or thre guages, which, by the way, equal to us well as he. She w ay on the steps of her Pullma signal to start had been when he said in the irresistible of words characteristic of the Now, don't cry out or do an sob, but I'm going to kiss you
He did exactly as he said he and as the train drew out wit woman standing o forehead, he called out as he his hand: "Give my love to a folks. Good-bye to the last example in this particular, of is often cited for young men to f smooth in more than one fa don't live up to them as he forget what a man should be.—Cinc
Times-Star.

for Strange Beast

crawls ashore and lays eggs turtle or a lizard.
They add a further strange fact—it is that this wonderful has mighty jaws, long and sl armed with saw-like teeth.
Only a few years ago science have dismissed the story as a fable. But to-day so many st stories have been proven true scientists are not in a hurry t doubt this one.
When Sir Harry Johnston di of the okapi, which turns out creature that was thought to died out before the dawn of hi with keen searching in Madag found the giant bird aepyornis, als for years ago as being an e ancestor with the growing belief a form of prehistoric giant al in South America, men are almost ready to believe dragons may turn out to survivors of some form o rhinoceros—some lin horns and ridges.
The description of the long, sl
snout with sawlike makes them think of the long-creatures of the ichthyocaurus.
The fact that this waitboreke every days eggs adds to the

in Slang Phrases

tion, piecemeal or as a whole, paying tribute to the charms
ladies with whom he was conve
Thackeray, in person and in hi cies, let drop swear words occ ally that would not now be tole in a gentleman's parlor. There a famous and brilliant lawye generation, who flourished not before the outbreak of the civil who swore plausibly, artificiall mostly in polite company, and grotesque stories in the most selec ears, and he was accounted a the most delightful company friend within the broad expan
the country. In the "good old long ago it was regarded as a gentleman's privilege to swear, a his oaths were nicely chosen force was felt. It is not so now but profanity is obsolete, but pretty nearly so in polite society is improperly indulged in by bred persons, or by the tipsy.
usually the gentleman may le an oath, under provocation, b such instances he is careful to that there is no woman within shot. Men have a higher and respect for women, for thems and for the language than in f times.

of a Song

Through the twilight for the
Now I can see you softly creeping
While I am sleeping
Creep to him that Creepy little
song.
So I'm sitting here and dreaming
Dreaming of the days gone by,
When my mother softly stole unto my side
And kissed me as I lay asleep and dreamed
And I am subtle fancy creeping
Comes stealing o'er my senses half to sleeping
As the misty shapes of bygone days
Come creeping slowly by me
All my sorrows disappearing, as I did I'm hearing
Once again my mother's sleepy little,
creepy little song.
—New York

SERMON FOR SUNDAY

ELOQUENT DISCOURSE BY THE REV. JOHN BALCOM SHAW, D. D.

Subject: The Ash-Can Bible—History of Volume of Holy Writ That is Unique in Church Annals—Warning Against a Modern Type of Family Deterioration

NEW YORK CITY.—The following spiritual discourse was preached Sunday morning by the Rev. John Balcom Shaw. It is entitled "The Ash-Can Bible." His text was: The word of God which liveth and abideth forever. I Peter 1:23.

This book, rather than the words I have chosen as it, is my text. Not the Bible in general as a theme to be discussed, but this particular Bible consisting of paper, printer's ink and binding, as an object lesson to be considered.

This Bible has a history. It was a gift presented, under the quaintest conditions. Indeed I doubt if there is another Bible in the whole world that came by quite in the same or in anything like the same way.

Let us hear its history. One morning last week a woman, a pewholder, but not a member of this church, came into the minister's office, where I was keeping the pastor's books, and handing me a package carefully wrapped and tied, asked me if I would make use of its contents in any way. I opened the package and finding this beautifully bound Bible inside, I, of course, answered affirmatively, and suggested that I might pass it on to some mission church or struggling congregation, for use as a Sunday-school Bible.

But she then told me its story. That morning, upon coming out of the apartment house where she lived she spied an elegantly bound book on the top of the ash-can that awaited the coming of the garbage wagon. Seeing it was a shame to allow so good a book to be disposed of in that way, she went to the ash-can and turned its title page toward her. What was her amazement and horror, her sense of desecration, when she saw it was a copy of the Holy Bible! She opened it and found that several leaves from the Old Testament and the New Testament were torn out, and the explanation was at once, an explanation which her subsequent observation fully confirmed.

It seems that a family, apparently respectable and well disposed, had moved from the apartment house the day before, and desiring to throw away everything which they had no use and which would add to the bulk of their effects, had thrown the family Bible which had been in their home for years, as a thing which could as easily get along without as any other, had cut out the family record which might not be lost, and sent it down to the janitor as rubbish to be burned. He, either because he failed to recognize it or because he had no estimate of the Bible's value, had consigned it in the ash-can, and was waiting for the city's cart to come at any moment and take it away.

I did not rest immediately attached itself to the Bible. I put it into the minister's hands to await some providential opportunity to dispose of it. That opportunity was not long in coming. When this story was first put in place upon my return home, found, that not one of the pulpit Bibles that had been previously presented to the church would fit its pulpit. I then went to the minister's study and bought out this ash-can Bible. Besides the thing. Besides being of good size, its gold edges and richly embossed cover made it peculiarly suitable for the pulpit, and here it will stand as a memorial—the pulpit a memorial of a lady who loved the Bible, guided her fifty years in this community, counsels, and sent forth into it of Christian influence that will endure; the Bible which rests upon speaking to us of a family who neighborhood, and after a term of a few months, more or not more than a few weeks, began without having done anything it, and who thought so little and goodness, desired so faintly, ought the road heavenward for to have it lighted for themthey threw away their family moved on to drag down the temperature of some other

Browning, in his great poem, and the Book," tells the story a rare book at a stall in the Florence, and, after reporting its gives rein to his poetic musthe life, character and history figuring within its narrative, with marks of exquisite and beauty the lessons of their strangely discovered book starts no within me—I have no such date—but it does set my soul those musings seem to me both of likeliest fact and truth. me back over the earlier hisbook. It may have been, it a wedding present, given by a pious father and mother among the sainted dead. It the home through all the years history, and had become as an object as the silver on their pictures upon their walls. again they had gone to it passing years to inscribe with pages the records of their the dainties touch they had their own names while the honeyon. Later when that litthem, their first born, and parenthood flushed their souls baptism from heaven, they as if into some love fluid with pride the dear little name.

passed and the angel came sweet soul away. The funfather one evening when and the house was silent, into the parlor, unknown to put in the record, leaning book till the tears began to and then turning over a few book that adjoined the recover and over again those words, "Suffer little chilunto Me, and forbid them is the kingdom of heaven," words so inseparably assoem, "Their angels do the face of My Father." It out of which the ministhe little one's funeral, a hundred other ways it hallowedness and built itwhole life of the home.

ago the family moved into the decay of their home tinent, association, mamed and tender, could not the evanescent, migratory polis. They had moved time they moved they ng of their home life beze ceased to give anything the ease with which it cted which determined ears life had declined. ed the Bible of late to record the last place in the family. med from the church removals, and religious had become strangers had been dulled, and med impossible to them nature. They used to never allow the Sunday but now they read it lowed their children to the least qualm of conaway from church once years ago an act of backsliding, had not long been in New York whole months passed without their sacred threshold, and yet it gave them no compunction whatever. Time was, and not long since, when they were most punctilious about sending their children to Sunday-school. The wildest wind and the foulest weather would not pass with them as an excuse for allowing the boys and girls to stay at home. There was no such strictness these last years, but weeks of Sabbaths went by and failed to record a single present mark for any of the children on the rolls of the Sunday-school.

Therefore, sentiment gone, association and memory having loosened their grasp, their religious life having become a thing of the past, and their consciences having grown sluggish, they had no more use for the Old Book. It was too bulky to move; they would keep the family record, but the sacred pages and covers which had given it its inclosure and setting, they would throw away.

Were there ever a sadder story? It makes one weep to think of it. And yet it is the story of a thousand homes in this community, of a hundred thousand homes in this city. It is what some of you are coming to, dear friends, unless you take warning. Let this Bible give you such a warning to-night. May it ever be a warning to every family of this church.

As often as the eyes of those worshiping here shall rest upon it, may it speak to them its solemn message with a voice that cannot be drowned—let not the fire burn low on your hearthstone, but keep up the fireside glow. See that your home is in touch with the church. Suffer not your family altar to become a ruin. Have a family Bible and use it. Take care that mildew spots, like those which I find here that are always signs of disuse, are not allowed to mar it. Read the Old Book to your children. Read it to your own soul. Without it your home life will grow hollow and unholy, your children will deteriorate, your own soul shrivel up and die.

Thus this Bible shall stand as a memorial to a typically deteriorated New York home, and as a warning to the families that have not likewise deteriorated, but shall it not also be at the same time a memorial to something higher and more inspiring—to the glorious character and ministry of the word of God as an abiding and ever expanding power among men? Here is a fountain that was long sealed, but it has begun to flow, and its streams shall water not one home but a thousand. This book so seldom used before shall be opened with every recurring service within this house of prayer, to be read, expounded and applied to the multiplying hundreds that shall worship here. This Bible was disowned, desecrated, cast out as rubbish into the street, only to be recovered, honored, set in a high place, elevated to a public throne from which it will issue a verdict of condemnation upon this home and every home in this city that has turned God from its door, but will speak comfort, hope and strength to those within which the word of God dwells and exercises its heavenly dominion. While this book shall utter its admonition, then, let it also speak forth its word of encouragement and triumph, telling all who shall henceforth behold it that the word of God liveth and abideth forever; that however much men may attack it and seek to destroy it, it shall come out of every battle a thousand fold stronger than before, and light a circle that extends far beyond its former perimeter of influence.

"A glory gilds the sacred page,
Majestic as the sun:
It gives a light to every age;
It giveth, but borrows none."

Alone With God.

This is the quiet hour in which I sit alone with God, writes Charles Edward Martin, in the New York Observer. He hears my whispered plaints and listens to my love. He maketh me happy in my love, which ever goeth out to Him as quietly and constantly as the river flows or the star shines.

This is the hour that I talk with the loving Father about myself, of victories won in the open field, when He was my deliverer and my strength, and of the sorry failures and defeats which were mine when I sought safety within unstrengthened ramparts of my own construction. I acknowledge His marvelous strength and own my own wavering weakness.

I was too impetuous, too impatient. I would rush headlong and heedless, following my own plans to my own shame and dishonor. It would seem that I could not wait. But I will now learn the value of time—the wisdom of taking time to do all things in obedience to His plans, and to do them well.

In this quiet hour I will tell Him all. But I will not speak of my plans. Alas for me! I have too many plans! I will simply and humbly ask for His love and guidance just for to-day. To-morrow I may be with Him in paradise. I will say: "All-wise One, all-loving One, Thou who makest and warmest the affections of the human heart, I submit myself to Thee. By Thy grace I live, and by Thy mysterious quickening will I ply my task with loving faithfulness and care. Let Thy love, and if so be, Thy approval, be my reward. O, teach me to understand Thy love! Make me to love Thee more and more. Make me as Thou wouldst have me, dear Father, and I shall be satisfied. Thy ways shall be my ways. Widen my narrow thought. Unchain the self-made fetters that cramp and fret my heart. Teach me that true and lasting happiness cometh only with those things which are pleasing unto Thee. Lead me in those holy footsteps that bear the print of the nail!"

What the Bible Is.

Some writer gives the following analysis of the "Book of books," the Bible:

It is a book of laws, to show the right from the wrong.
It is a book of wisdom, that makes the foolish wise.
It is a book of truth, which detects all human errors.
It is a book of life, and shows how to avoid everlasting death.
It is the most authentic and entertaining history ever published.
It contains the most remote antiquities, the most remarkable events and wonderful occurrences.
It is a complete code of laws.
It is a perfect body of divinity.
It is an unequaled narrative.
It is a book of biography.
It is a book of travels.
It is the best covenant ever made, the best deed ever written.
It is the best will ever excuted, the best testament ever signed.
It is the learned man's masterpiece.
It is the young man's best companion.
It is the schoolboy's best instructor.
It is the ignorant man's dictionary and every man's directory.
It promises an eternal reward to the faithful and believing.
But that which crowns all is the Author. He is without partiality and without hypocrisy, with whom there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning.—Religious Intelligencer.

The Way of Peace.

In proportion as the perfect obedience of the life of Christ comes, through humility and prayer and thought, to be the constant aim of all our efforts; in proportion as we try, God helping us, to think and speak and act as He did, and through all the means of grace to sanctify Him in our hearts, we shall, with growing hope and with a wonder that is ever lost in gratitude, know that even our lives are not without the earnest of their rest in an eternal harmony; that through them there is sounding more and more the echo of a faultless music, and that He who loves that concord, He who alone can ever make us what He bids us be, will silence in us every harsh and jarring note; that our service, too, may blend with the consenting praise of all His saints and angels.—Francis Paget.

FROM MISERY TO HEALTH.

A Prominent Club Woman of Kansas City Writes to Thank Doan's Kidney Pills For a Quick Cure.

Miss Nellie Davis, of 1216 Michigan avenue, Kansas City, Mo., society leader and club woman, writes: "I cannot say too much in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, for they effected a complete cure in a very short time when I was suffering from kidney troubles brought on by a cold. I had severe pains in the back and sick headaches, and felt miserable all over. A few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills made me a well woman, without an ache or pain, and I feel compelled to recommend this reliable remedy."

(Signed) NELLIE DAVIS.

A TRIAL FREE—Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents.

It cost 30 cents a gallon to produce California wines; the French make the same quality of goods in Algiers for 12 cents. All of California produces but 23,000,000 gallons of wine per year; Bordeaux alone produces nearly a billion gallons.

New York, that is Manhattan and Bronx, consumes 270,000,000 gallons of Croton water a day and it needs and is planning to get 160,000,000 gallons more.

Storks fly many hundreds of miles at the rate of 100 per hour; bees fly short distances at the rate of 150 miles an hour.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

To insure accuracy naval chronometers are kept on ice.

I do not believe Piso's Cure for Consumption has anequal for coughs and colds.—JOHN F. BOYER, Trinity Springs, Ind., Feb. 15, 1900.

Poisonous mollusks purify the water in which they live.

Russia's grain crop this year is larger than it has been for many seasons; her wheat and many other grains in the eastern part of European possessions alone will aggregate nearly a billion bushels.

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION FIRE Engineers, Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 13-16, 1904. Account Meeting International Association of Fire Engineers at Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 13-16, the Southern Railway will sell tickets from all points on its line at the very low rate of one fare plus twenty-five cents for the round trip, minimum rate fifty cents. Tickets will be sold Sept. 11-12 with final limit Sept. 20, 1904. Original purchasers of tickets may secure an extension of limit until Sept. 30, 1904, upon the payment of fifty cents deposit fee provided deposit is made not later than Sept. 20 and not earlier than Sept. 11. Write any agent of the Southern Railway for full particulars. C. A. BENSCOTER, A. G. P. A.

A specie of natural soap tree is found in Japan, China and India. By using water of alcohol the saponaceous ingredient of the fruit is extracted. The soap possessing no alkaline qualities is claimed to be superior to the ordinary soap of commerce.

The ancient schooner Polly, said to be the oldest American-built vessel now afloat and in commission, was towed up the Merrimac river on Sunday to Amesbury, where she was constructed 99 years ago, and will be one of the attractions for the Old Home week celebration.

Emperior William recently had conducted before him, and in secrecy, a series of experiments with a new war kite equipped with a newly perfected system of wireless telegraphy. The inventor is a German-American professor living for the present in Havre.

In one square mile of London city there are forty-seven churches with a seating capacity for 20,000 people. The forty-seven ministers draw $217,000 a year and the cost of maintaining the churches is $313,000; there are fewer than seventy-five people attending each church.

The captain of a steamer which arrived in Philadelphia the other day declares that while he was several hundred miles off the Jersey coast a pigeon flew down out of the sky and lighted on the topmast. The bird remained on its perch 24 hours and then flew away again.

There are few fences in Japan, ground is too valuable; they plant mulberry trees as dividing lines; there are 190,000 acres of these productive fences, besides 570,000 acres of mulberry farms. The Jap uses every inch of land.

The Berlin Cremation Society has sent a petition containing 9,500 signatures to the Pope, praying that the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church shall no longer be denied to persons wishing their remains to be cremated.

In the possession of Prince Borghese some time ago were six slabs of marble which could be bent at will. The peculiarity is believed to be due to the effect of fire. They were excavated at Mondragon, near Naples, and have a grain like Carrara marble.

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

He that is down need fear no fall.—Bunyan.

Strong reasons make strong actions.—Shakespeare.

Pity is best taught by fellowship in woe.—Coleridge.

A beautiful face is a silent commendation.—Bacon.

Jest not with the two-edged sword of God's Word.—Fuller.

A man's best friends are his 10 fingers.—Robert Collyer.

The men who make history have not time to write it.—Metternich.

When the heart is won, the understanding is easily convinced.—C. Simmons.

Let us learn upon earth those things which can prepare us for heaven.—Jerome.

He who can conceal his joys is greater than he who can hide his griefs.—Lavater.

The highest manhood resides in disposition, not in mere intellect.—H. W. Beecher.

The motto of chivalry is also the motto of wisdom; to serve all, but love only one.—Balzac.

No man can be provident of his time who is not prudent in the choice of his company.—Jeremy Taylor.

If we had no failings ourselves we should not take so much pleasure in finding out those of others.—Rochefoucauld.

A solemn and religious regard to spiritual and eternal things is an indispensable element of all true greatness.—Daniel Webster.

IN THE PRESS BOX.

Where Professional Scorers and Reporters Keep Track of Our National Game.

At the grounds where the professional clubs play baseball, you may have noticed a small boxlike structure perched on the roof of the grand stand. Its position directly back of home plate and on a line with the pitcher is the best possible for a view of the game, and if you are lucky enough to be invited up by some of those who have a right there, you will be surprised to find how much better you can watch what is going on than from a seat nearer the ground.

This little house with the wire netting over the front to guard against foul flies is called the press or scorers' box. The young men who sit there have need of every facility for observing the game, because afterward they must present an absolutely accurate record of it. If the contesting nines belong to an important league and play in a large city there will be an official scorer for each club, besides reporters from each of the daily newspapers. The scorers have to record every move of the game and, when it is over, present to the managers of their clubs a complete set of figures, from which everybody who understands the sport can tell exactly what each player has done—how well or how poorly he has played.

Watch a scorer at work. Before him is an open book with the names of one club written down the left-hand side of one page and those of the opposing team inscribed on the page opposite. After each name is a line of checker board squares, curiously marked off, and at the end of these on the right of each page are several perpendicular columns headed A B, R, 1 B, S B, S H, P O, A and E for the summary. These stand for, respectively times at bat, runs, the times a player has reached first base, stolen bases, sacrifice hits, put-out, assists and errors. The symbols used by professional scorers are comparatively few and easy to remember, and any one familiar with the game ought to be able to use them after half an hour's study followed by a little practice.—From Allan P. Ames's "How to Keep a Baseball Score" in St. Nicholas.

Black Snakes Guard Southern Homes.

It is true that the rattle snake and the black snake are mortal enemies, and the black snake is the victor in their battles, breaking the neck of his adversary before the rattler has time to strike. The black snakes of this country are as harmless as frogs. On many of the large plantations in the south they are tamed and kept as a protection from their enemy, as the warm climate prevents keeping the houses closed so as to keep them out.

Disproved Old Superstition.

The performance of a Canaan, N. H., hen which hatched thirteen chickens from a setting of thirteen eggs recently may be considered remarkable considering the fact that she was set upon this unlucky number of eggs on Friday, May 13; with one or two other unfavorable conditions prevailing.

Immense Stalk of Rhubarb.

Asa G. Bunker of Ashville, Me., has gathered a rhubarb stalk from his garden that measures 60 inches in length, 39 inches across the leaf, 7 inches around the butt and weighed 3¾ pounds.

Bamboo sprouts shoot upward at the rate of three feet a day under favorable circumstances.

Miss M. Cartledge gives some helpful advice to young girls. Her letter is but one of thousands which prove that nothing is so helpful to young girls who are just arriving at the period of womanhood as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkam's Vegetable Compound too highly, for it is the only medicine I ever tried which cured me. I suffered much from my first menstrual period, I felt so weak and dizzy at times I could not pursue my studies with the usual interest. My thoughts became sluggish, I had headaches, backaches and sinking spells, also pains in the back and lower limbs. In fact, I was sick all over.

"Finally, after many other remedies had been tried, we were advised to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am pleased to say that after taking it only two weeks, a wonderful change for the better took place, and in a short time I was in perfect health. I felt buoyant, full of life, and found all work a pastime. I am indeed glad to tell my experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for it made a different girl of me. Yours very truly, MISS M. CARTLEDGE, 533 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga."

At such a time, the grandest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the necessary changes, and is the surest and most reliable cure for woman's ills of every nature. Mrs. Pinkham invites all young women who are ill to write her for free advice. Address, Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Mrs. Estes, of New York City, says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write to you because I believe all young girls ought to know how much good your medicine will do them. I did dressmaking for years before I was married, and if it had not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I do not believe I could have stood the strain. There is no other work that is such a strain on the system. Oh, how my back used to ache from the bending over! I would feel as though I would have to scream out from the pain, and the sitting still made me so terribly tired and weak, and my head throbbed like an engine. I never could eat after work, I was so worn out. Then I was irregular, and had such frightful cramps every month they would simply double me up with pain, and I would have to give up working and lie down. But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound changed me into a strong, well woman. Yours very truly, MRS. MARTHA ESTES, 513 West 125th St., N. Y. City."

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of female troubles cured. Sold by druggists everywhere. Refuse all substitutions. Remember every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.
Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

WINCHESTER
"LEADER" AND "REPEATER" SHOTGUN SHELLS
The proof of the shell is its shooting. Because they shoot so well, Winchester Factory Loaded "Leader" and "Repeater" Smokeless Powder Shotgun Shells have won almost every important prize shot for in years. Good shots shoot them because they give better results, shoot stronger and more uniformly and are more reliable than any other make ALWAYS SPECIFY WINCHESTER MAKE OF SHELLS

Plantation Chill Cure is Guaranteed
To cure, or money refunded by your merchant, so why not try it? Price 50c.

REINFORCEMENTS

Will be Sent Forward from St. Petersburg. Baltic Fleet Delayed.

CONFIDENCE IN KUROPATKIN

Still Expressed by His Countrymen. Troops are in Good Spirits. Telegraph Interrupted.

It is stated that by the end of October the Fourth, Eighth and Thirteenth army corps, totaling 192,000 men, will reach the front. Before the end of September 1100 guns will have been dispatched to General Kuropatkin.

A Russian correspondent telegraphs the following:

Our retreat is being carried out under heavy pressure and with the Japanese at our heels. The task is additionally difficult owing to the terrible condition of the roads and the rivers, which are flooded.

The fighting has now been almost continuous since August 24, and how much longer it will last it is impossible to say, as the initiative is in the hands of the Japanese.

The number of lives sacrificed and the loss of supplies by burning, bridges blown up, etc., can only be explained when we once more have concentrated, and this will occupy some days.

The emperor has received the following dispatch from General Kuropatkin, dated September 5:

The army is advancing northward. It has extricated itself from the dangerous position in which it was placed, being threatened by the enemy and having a narrow front.

The enemy throughout the day cannonaded our rear guard, especially its left flank, but without much effect.

We lost about one hundred men.

There has been no news from General Kuropatkin since Monday afternoon. This is attributed to the interruption of direct communications with the commander in chief owing to the transfer of the telegraph office to Mukden, where messages have to be sent by courier.

The utmost confidence prevails at the war office that the Russian army is slowly but surely affecting the retreat without serious risk of being cut off. Nevertheless, anxiety is felt throughout the nation and the feeling is shared by the emperor.

According to an unconfirmed report, the Baltic fleet will not be able to sail before November owing to the discovery of considerable defects in some of the vessels which recently underwent their trial trips.

ARMY PRISONER

Makes His Escape While Sentries Laugh at His Costume.

Private Frank Reese, an army prisoner serving one year on Governor's island for desertion, escaped in an unusual manner. Reese was a model prisoner, and had acquired the confidence of the quartermaster of the island, who left for Manassas, Va., to take part in the meneuvers. A company of coast artillery not familiar with the prisoners was detailed to the post in place of the troops sent south so that Reese's flight was greatly facilitated. When the captain went away he gave the prisoner a key to his house and ordered him to take care of things.

After Keese disappeared a search of the captain's quarters showed that the prisoner had gone away in a peculiar disguise. He had donned a dress coat and shirt, a big red necktie and riding breeches. This novel outfit he topped off with a silk hat and boldly walked to the landing place and took the next boat to New York. His odd costume caused much amusement.

BUSINESS MEN'S LEAGUE.

Decatur Merchants Have Formed an Organization Wwhich mahm mofoln Business Men's League.

Decatur merchants have formed an organization which has been given the name of the "Business Men's League." The charter membership included about thirty of the leading business men of the city. The officers elected were: President, James Edwards; secretary, Walter J. Nesbit.

The league will meet again next Tuesday night, at which time the organization will be perfected and then the league will get down to business in earnest.

Strike May End.

It is reported from Chicago that in anticipation of an agreement about 1,000 strikers in the packers' strike have returned to work.

No Negroes Registered.

Tuscaloosa's board of registration has concluded its tour of the county except for the trip to Cowden's. Since the registration began on July 1, 473 names have been registered, not one of these being a negro.

Schools Open.

Attalla's public schools opened Monday with an attendance of 239.

VERMONT'S ELECTION

Shows Republican Gains Over the Figures of 1900.

Returns indicate that the republicans in Vermont's state election elected the head of their ticket by a plurality equal if not greater than that returned for William W. Stickney when he was elected governor in 1900. Stickney, however, received the support of many gold democrats and the republicans generally did not look for more than 28,000 plurality this year. Stickney had 31,282 plurality. This year Bell, the republican candidate, has 33,128 over Porter at last count. Compared with the figures of the election of 1900, the vote shows a republican gain of 1 per cent and a democratic loss of 5 per cent.

COTTON CROP.

Conditions are Worse—Too Much Moisture Causes Rust.

The weather bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions says:

Heavy rains proved detrimental during the week in portions of the Carolinas, Florida and Alabama, while the northern portion of the central gulf states, Tennessee, the Ohio valley, need moisture.

As a whole the corn crop has advanced satisfactorily, especially over the southwestern portion of the corn belt. In Arkansas, Tennessee and portions of the Ohio valley and middle Atlantic states late corn needs rain.

A quite general deterioration in the condition of cotton is indicated, although improvement is reported from limited areas, principally in the central districts. Rust and shedding is very generally prevalent. Drought proved detrimental in Tennessee and drought and heat in Oklahoma and Texas, although rains too late to be beneficial have fallen recently over a large part of the last named state, where boll weevils are destroying practically new fruit except in the north central counties. Damages by boll weevil in Louisiana are restricted to a few small areas. Cotton is opening rapidly throughout the cotton belt and picking is general, except in the northern portions.

The weather has been very favorable for cutting and housing tobacco, a good crop of which is being secured in Ohio and the middle Atlantic states.

GOV. JEFF DAVIS

Re-elected to the Highest Office in Gift of Arkansas.

Sufficient returns from the state election in Arkansas have been received to indicate the election of Governor Davis to a third term by a plurality of 20,000. Several other states officers were voted for, but all the other democratic candidates had an open field, Davis alone having opposition.

GRANDSON OF JEFFERSON

Foully Murdered in Florida—Shot from Behind.

Hon. N. W. Eppes, of Bradfordville, Fla., was assassinated in the public road two miles from home and eight miles from Tallahassee.

He was riding alone in a buggy and was shot from behind, the charge entering the spinal column, tearing away the base of the brain and killing him instantly. Mr. Eppes was aged about sixty years.

He was a great-grandson of Thomas Jefferson and served in the confederate army. A wife, four daughters and one son survive him.

Our Mineral Resources.

The annual report of mineral resources of the United States for 1902, recently issued, shows an increase and activity in mineral industries. During the year 1902, for the third time, the total value of the commercial, mineral products of the United States reached the enormous sum of $1,260,639,415, which, as compared with $1,086,584,851 in 1901, shows a gain of 16.02 per cent.

As heretofore, iron and coal are the most important of our mineral products. Nearly all the important metals increased in both output and value.

Stole Cash Register.

Some one stole the cash register belonging to Pappageorge, who runs a restaurant in Bessemer, and carried it across the street and robbed it of its contents, leaving it in the gutter. The place was open at the time of the robbery, but the proprietor was asleep. The thief had nothing to do but to pick the register up and walk off. Fortunately the register had just been checked up, and all of the cash taken out but some change amounting to about $5.

Cruiser Will Disarm.

The French minister formally notified the Japanese government that the cruiser Diana will disarm at Saigon, French Indo-China, where she sought refuge August 20th after taking part in the battle of August 10th off Port Arthur.

North Pole Expedition.

The Norwegian steamer Viniocola, arrived at Hammerport, Norway, reports that she met the Zeigler relief expedition steamer Frithjof August 17th in latitude 79 north and longitude 52 east. The Frithjof up to that time had been unable to reach Franz Josefland.

The Frithjof sailed August 5th for Franz Josefland with coal for the America.

IN WORLD'S FAIR CITY

Grade Crossing Accident Deals Out Death and Injuries to Street Car Occupants

SEVEN KILLED; 19 INJURED

Electric Car Stopped Across the Wabash Track and Was Cut in Two.

Seven persons were killed and nineteen were injured, two probably fatally, by the collision of a Wabash world's fair shuttle train with a suburban electric car at St. Louis Saturday. There were twenty-five passengers in the car and none escaped injury.

The shuttle train was returning from the world's fair grounds at twenty miles an hour, it is said. The street car, which was on its way to the suburbs with a load of people returning home, stopped directly in front of the locomotive and was cut in two. The trucks of the car were knocked 100 feet away, while part of its roof was carried 200 feet further by the train. Bodies of the dead and injured with wreckage of the dismantled car were scattered along the track for one hundred yards.

A. W. Burbank, engineer of the shuttle train, who blames the motorman of the electric car for the accident, said:

"I was within 100 yards of the suburban crossing when I saw the suburban car start across the track. It looked to me as if it had ample time to get across."

The watchman and the flagman at the crossing and some of the passengers confirm the statement that the car stopped, started across the track, and then stopped on the track.

No saisfactory explanation has been given why the car stopped in the middle of the track after it started across.

JAPAN TO ADVISE KOREA.

Agreement Between the Nations is Made Public.

The Japanese government has published the text of an agreement signed at Seoul on August 22 between representatives of Japan and Korea.

The Korean government shall engage as financial adviser to the Korean government a Japanese subject recommended by the Japanese government, and all matters concerning finance shall be dealt with after his counsel has been taken.

The Korean government shall engage as diplomatic adviser to the department of foreign affairs a foreigner recommended by the Japanese government, and all important matters concerning foreign relations shall be dealt with after his counsel has been taken.

The Korean government shall previously consult the Japanese government in conducting treaties and conventions with foreign powers, and in dealing with other important diplomatic affairs, such as the granting of concessions or the making of contracts with foreigners.

Jefferson's Books.

The full force of the board of state examiners of public accounts were engaged in an examination of the books of the officials of Jefferson county last week and have reported their findings to the governor. All are reported in good shape

Attendance at World's Fair.

The division of admissions of the world's fair announced that the attendance for the last seven days amounted to 759,307. The total attendance since the fair opened is given at 9,117,556.

Railroad Commission.

The Alabama railroad commission at its last meeting ordered the Southern railway to rebuild its depot at Coleanor by January 1, 1905, in compliance with a general order issued August 1 last, and allowed a general raise in the cotton seed hull tariffs on the Western of Alabama railroad.

Sunday School Convention.

The Calhoun county Sunday school convention will meet at Piedmont Thursday the 8th and be in session for two days. From all indications it will be one of the largest attended and most profitable conventions yet held in the county. A fine program has been arranged.

Joseph Carthel, state organizer, who recently attended the International Sunday school convention in Jerusalem, and other workers of note, are expected to be in attendance.

One-Sixth of the Whole.

The assessment of Jefferson county shows valuations of $51,000,000, nearly one-sixth of the entire state.

May Use Electricity.

The Mexican railway, known as "the Queen's Own," the oldest railroad of the republic, proposes if consent can be given by the London officials to electricise the line from Mexico to Vera Cruz. It's estimated the company would save $500,000 annually in coal. The railway was commenced in 1857 and completed in 1872, and has never resulted in the loss of life among passengers.

WITH A HATCHET

Boy's Skull is Fractured by Negro. Assailant Captured.

Jim Gilbert, colored, struck 13-year-old Eugene Milam, the son of a respectable Decatur white family, in the forehead with a hatchet, cutting out a portion of his skull. The boy may die.

The boy's parents moved from a house at Austinville, a suburb, but left their chickens there. The boys went after the chickens, but found Gilbert there, who had nailed up the gate by request of the owner, and he stood and forbid the boys to enter. They attempted to enter and were thereupon attacked.

USED AN AXE.

Priest Wanted to Preach; Congregation Nailed Him Out.

After hewing his way into the church with an axe the Rev. Father Bekavac, of Allegheny City, held early mass, while a large number of his former congregation awaited him outside and made frantic efforts to assault him at the conclusion of the ceremony. He was saved from violence only by the protection of fifty policemen.

When Father Bekavac reached the church he found the doors locked and nailed fast. He secured an axe an applied it to one of the doors, while the police aided him to force it down.

St. Nicholas church has been the scene of factional disturbances for several months and the dissenters demanded the removal of Father Bekavac, charging misappropriation of funds. Bishop Phelan upheld the priest and ordered him to hold services in spite of the protests.

WON'T GIVE UP.

Sir Thomas Lipton Wants Watson to Design a Challenger.

In an interview Sir Thomas Lipton appeared still to entertain some hope of inducing George T. Watson to change his mind and begin a new challenger for the America's cup, which the designer had decided not to do, giving ill health as the reason.

Sir Thomas said that difficulty had arisen owing to the fact that Mr. Watson was unable to take the journey to the United States. He said he told the designer he would be satisfied with any deputy he would nominate to accompany the boat, but Mr. Watson said he could design no boat unless he was able to accompany it himself.

A HANGING IN EFFIGY

Results in a Fight With Possibly Fatal Results.

W. A. Whitner, a white miner, 35 years old, was probably fatally shot at Coalburg by a white man whose name is unknown. He was carried to the hospital, where he is in a critical condition and not expected to recover from the operations which were performed on him to remove the bullet from his abdomen.

According to the best information obtainable a figure of one of the mine bosses at Coalburg was hung in effigy to aid in celebrating Labor day, and a fight grew out of this in which Whitner was shot.

ELEVATED TRAINS MEET

And Several Persons are Injured—The Switch was Turned.

Eight persons were injured and six cars of the Chicago and Oak Park Elevated railroad were derailed in a head-on collision The turning of a switch is said to have been the cause of the wreck, and the police are searching for the switchman to explain the accident.

Machine Shop Burned.

At Columbia the machine shop of the A. A. Jones manufacturing plant sustained damage by fire which will amount to $5,000. The fire was caused by the careless throwing down of a match near the gasoline tank.

BURGLAR TRAPS

Set in the Decaturs Shoot the Wrong Men.

In New Decatur a burglar trap shot Lonnie Sherman and probably fatally injured him. At Decatur a negro who was assisting in the setting of a trap was killed by the accidental discharge.

Warships Coaled.

A telegram from Las Palmas, Canary islands, announces that the military governor has received news of the arrival at Lansarote (the most northeasterly of the Canary islands) of several warships flying the Russian flag. The telegrams say that the vessels have coaled from steamers which were waiting there.

New Industries in Georgia.

Talluiah Falls—Silk mill.
Thomson—Electric light plant.
Hartwell—Rope mill (projected).
Cuthbert—Water works.
Augusta—Cotton mill.
Cordele—Telephone company.

New Industries in Mississippi.

Canton—$10,000 gin and milling company.

Kosciusko—$30,000 gin and manufacturing company.

Vicksburg—$193,000 cotton compress.

Natchez—Oil mill.

Booneville—$10,000 telephone system.

Tutvis—Light and power company.

ABOUT REGISTERING.

Extracts from the general election law of Alabama:

Section 2. The following persons shall be disqualified both from registering and voting: All idiots and insane persons; those who were by reason of conviction of crime disqualified from voting at the time of the ratification of the constitution on November 28, 1901; those who have been since November 28, 1901, or who shall be convicted of treason, murder, arson, embezzlement, malfeasance in office, larceny, receiving stolen property, obtaining money under false pretenses, perjury, subornation of perjury, robbery, assault with intent to rob, burglary, forgery, bribery, assault and battery on wife, bigamy, living in adultery, sodomy, incest, rape, miscegenation, crime against nature, or any crime punishable by imprisonment in penitentiary, or for any infamous crimes or crime involving moral turpitude; also, any person who has been since November 28, 1901, or who shall be convicted as a vagrant or tramp, or of selling or offering to sell his vote or the vote of another, or of making or offering to make false returns in any election by the people or in any primary election to procure the nomination or election of any person to any office, or of suborning any witness or registrar to secure the registration of any person as an elector, provided that any person who is disqualified from voting by reason of conviction of any of the offenses mentioned in this section, except treason, whether the conviction was had in a state or federal court, has been pardoned, may be restored to his citizenship with right to vote by the governor, approved by the board of pardons and specially expressed in the pardon.

Sec. 7 1-2. The following persons and no others, who, if their place of residence shall remain unchanged, will have, at the date of the next general election, the qualifications as to residence prescribed by section 1 of this act, shall be qualified to register as electors, provided they shall not be disqualified under section 2 of this act:

1st. Those who can read and write any article of the constitution of the United States in the English language, and who are physically unable to work; and those who can read and write any article of the constitution of the United States in the English language, and who have worked or been regularly engaged in some lawful employment, business or occupation, trade or calling for the greater part of the twelve months next preceding the time they offer to register, and those who are unable to read and write, if such inability is due solely to physical disability; or,

2d. The owner in good faith in his own right, or the husband of a woman who is the owner in good faith in her own right, of forty acres of land situate in this state, upon which they reside; or the owner in good faith in his own right, or the husband of any woman who is the owner in good faith in her own right, of real estate situate in this state, assessed for taxation at the value of three hundred dollars or more or the owner in good faith, in his own right, or the husband of a woman who is the owner in good faith, in her own right, of personal property in this state assessed for taxation for three hundred dollars or more; provided, that the taxes due upon such real or personal property for the year next preceding the year in which he offers to register shall have been paid, unless the assessment shall have been legally contested and is undetermined.

Sec. 15. Any elector who registered prior to January 1, 1903, who has changed the county of his residence shall be registered on application on production of his certificate, unless he has since become disqualified.

Sec. 16. When the certificate of any elector who was duly registered has been lost, mutilated or destroyed, on application stating that the certificate has been lost, mutilated or destroyed, and verified by affidavit, and it appears of record that such applicant has been registered, the judge of probate of the county of registration or the secretary of state shall issue to the applicant a certificate that he was duly registered as an elector Such certificate shall be issued free of charge to the elector. The secretary of state shall at the expense of the state furnish the judge of probate blank certificates for use as provided in this section.

The certificate of the registrars or the judge of probate or of the secretary of state shall be sufficient to establish the fact of such registration.

Be sure and register when the registrars are in your beat, as the only excuse for not doing so is by reason of sickness of yourself or in your family, or by absence from the county. Everybody can register this summer who will be qualified by residence or age by the 8th day of November. Poll tax paying has nothing to do with registration; you can register now and pay your poll tax afterwards, but you can not vote unless you are both registered and have paid your poll tax (if any is due). The period of residence necessary to register is two years in the state, one year in the county, and three months in the beat. If you have moved from one beat to another in the county less than three months before election day, you can vote in your old beat, so you don't lose your vote by [illegible] Any one who desires to register [illegible] property qualification should [illegible] with him his last assessment and tax collector's receipt to the registrars as proof that he possessed of such property and taxes on it. You can register ANY of the following reasons

1. If you own 40 acres of land in this state, and reside

2. If your wife owns 40 acres or more land in this state upon which you reside.

3. If you own real estate in this state that is assessed at $300 or more

4. If your wife owns real estate in this state assessed at $300 or more

5. If you own personal property in this state assessed at $300 or more

6. If your wife owns personal property in this state assessed for $300 or more

7. If you can read any section of the Constitution of the United States

Don't give any excuse that you will only have to show your certificate in case you have to challenge from some other source.

THE UNION will furnish any information on registering that they may be in a position to be ready to help any one to secure the rights he is entitled to under the laws of Alabama. If you are entitled to register and the registrars should refuse you, get the names of good men with you as witnesses as to such refusal and the reasons given by the registrars, and thereby be enabled to make your case up to higher authority

APPLE PIE.

Let others praise the red, red rose
Whose haunting scent none may forget,
But almost anybody knows
The apple pie is sweeter yet.
Let others sing the damsel fair
Who thralls them with her every art—
But apple pie drives off my care
And trips the highway to my heart.
And if it's cold—
Say one day old
I want all of it I can hold.

When apple pie has held the sun
Until it's cool and crisp and brown,
I'll eat a whole big one myself
And never murmur—not a groan.
Why, when it's sliced it fairly sings
And chuckles when its honey flows
In tantalizing drips beguiles
The craving that it has set loose.
O, if it's cold—
Say one day old
I want all of it I can hold.

I think I'd give away my right
Were I a man of royal birth
To eat, while holding upon my knee
The last piece of it on earth.
Why, every summer smile and tear
Is held within an apple pie
And that's the place where those we love
All peace and quietness lie.
When it is cold
Say one day old
I want all of it I can hold.

-W. D. Nesbit, in [illegible]

JUST FOR F

"How do you like my portrait?" "Oh, the colors are exquisite! It's a pity we can't have such tints in nature."—Life.

"Brown lives on the royalties on books, doesn't he?" "Yes; sometimes a week and a toothpick a day."—Atlanta Constitution.

Mac—Fancy meeting you out in this rain. Ducksie—Oh, I like it—Then you must be a raindrop sie—If I am you must be a rainy New Yorker.

"Can you lend me a twenty, old chap? I'm going on my vacation and need it badly." "Wait till you get back, old fel—you'll need it more then!"—Puck.

"Don't worry over it. If there is any bad news coming you'll receive it soon enough. Bad news travels fast, you know." "Yes, if it isn't held up in St. Petersburg."—Kansas City Times.

Rector—I am so glad to see you at such a constant attendant at church, Patrick. Patrick—Oh, I can't help it, sorr. I sits me down and lays me back up and thinks o' nothing—I'm a lazy lord.

Slimly—What a feeble looking man! How do you keep such a cripple around? Manygals—Young feller, that's the best hoss I use for chasin' my daughters when they elope with fellers.—Chicago News.

"Mrs. Teaser would make a good baseball catcher." "What makes you think so?" "Why, the other night she caught her husband stealing home and put him out."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"I suppose in order to be a poet one must have a great deal of imagination." "He must if he thinks he is ever going to achieve distinction in writing poetry."—Chicago Tribune-Herald.

"Doctor," queried the lady of the person, "do you believe that the cigarette habit causes weak minds?" "Not necessarily," replied the M. D., "but as a rule it merely indicates them."—Chicago News.

Teacher—What is it that our Christian people should spread throughout the world? Tommie—I don't know, ma'am." "What is it we send to China on through our missionaries?" "Pennies, ma'am."—Yonkers Statesman.

T

VOL. II.

CROP PROGRESS.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau—Alabama Section—For Week Ending Sept. 1, 1904.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

The drouth continues [illegible] broken and all crops [illegible] in over the [illegible] the northern counties [illegible] showers fell [illegible] days have been [illegible] rights were [illegible] ing reported [illegible] the most [illegible] to ruin [illegible] terms after [illegible] counties, where [illegible] pillars in middle and [illegible] ons of the state. [illegible] crop forming, and [illegible] dropped fruiting throughout [illegible] ure. It is opening rapidly and picking is being pushed, but labor is scarce. About one-half of the crop has been picked in southern counties, making a light yield. While the present prospect is that the cotton crop in this state will be below the average, but quite as good as that of last year. The gathering of early corn continues with a very good yield, while late corn needs rain. Considerable fodder and hay have been saved in excellent condition. Pastures, gardens and all minor crops need rain.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORTS OF CROP CORRESPONDENTS.

(County—Place.)

NORTHERN DISTRICT.

Calhoun, Weaver: Favorable weather for saving cotton and hay; cotton opening rapidly; no top crop; potatoes good.—D. F. Weaver

Cherokee, Weeda: Week favorable; cotton opening rapidly, picking progressing slowly, promising an average yield, though rust still spreading.—I. N. Estes.

DeKalb, Collinsville: Very dry; cotton still rusting and shedding, very little picked, no top crop; promising yield below the average.—F. P. Newman.

Etowah, Walnut Grove: Cotton rusting, shedding and opening slowly; fodder and hay being saved in good condition; corn fairly good.—A. P. Thompson.

Franklin, Burleson: All crops damaged by continued drouth; cotton promises yield far below the average.—A. L. Osborn.

Lamar, Moscow: Weather more favorable for cotton, no top crop, promising yield below the average; potatoes doing well.—J. A. Armstrong.

Lauderdale, Rogersville: No rust and shedding decreasing in cotton, picking progressing rapidly, no top crop, late cotton poor.—J. A. Pate.

Madison, Deposit: Still dry; cotton picking general, much shedding, little top crop, light yield promised; corn less promising than previously reported.—T. M. Bayless.

Marion, Winfield: Cotton about ceased fruiting, no top crop, picking general, some being marketed; all vegetation damaged by continued drouth.—W. J. Tull.

Morgan, Stringer: Drouth continues; cotton opening rapidly, picking commenced, no top crop, promising yield below last year's; minor crops poor.—J. C. Tanner.

St. Claire, Steele: Rust and shedding in cotton increasing, promising yield below last year's; all will be open in about twenty days.—Fred Smith.

Walker, Loss Creek: Rain needed; cotton ceased fruiting, opening rapidly, none picked, promising yield far below average; fodder pulling progressing.—R. A. Romine.

MIDDLE DISTRICT.

Autauga, Haynes: Cotton rusting and shedding badly, considerable open picking progressing rapidly, no top crop, prospective yield below the average.—W. N. Gaines.

Bibb, Brierfield: Rust and shedding in cotton increasing, considerable open, prospective yield below last year's, late not opening.—Frank Fitch.

Bullock, Suspension: Week dry; rust in cotton increasing, picking progressing rapidly, little top crop, average yield of early planted promised.—H. B. Walker.

Chambers, Oak Bowery: Cotton deteriorating rapidly, no top crop on early, prospective yield of late far below average; turnips a failure.—J. D. Harris.

Chilton, Maplesville: Late crops need rain; favorable weather for saving fodder, hay and cotton; no corn gathered.—W. Y. Nix.

Choctaw, Yantley: Very dry; considerable cotton open and picking progressing, promising yield below last year's.—J. A. Davison.

Clay, Goodwater: Favorable weath-

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. II. CLANTON, ALA., SEPTEMBER 22, 1904. NO. 26.

TERING.

general election

lowing persons both from regis-ll idiots and in-ho were by rea-time disqualified me of the ratifi-tion on Novem-who have been 01, or who shall on, murder, ardulcesance in of-stolen property,
der false presation of per-with intent to bribery, assault
gamy, living in
, rape, miscegenation, or any nature, or any nprisonment in any infamous ng moral turpiwho has been
, or who shall rant or tramp.
ng to sell his ber, or of make false returns people or in o procure the of any person
ruing any wit-ure the regis-
as an elector.
on who is dis-reason of con-offenses men-except treason, was had in a
has been pard to his citivote by the
the board of pressed in the wing persons their place of unchanged, the next genications as to section 1 of ed to register ney shall not tion 2 of this

nd and write itution of the lish language, unable to an read and e constitution
the English
e worked or some lawful r occupation, reater part of preceding the er, and those and write, if ly to physical

l faith in his l of a woman ood faith in ferers of land
n which they good faith in shand of any in good faith al estate sit-sed for taxaree hundred wner in good
the husband wner in good of personal ssessed for d dollars or taxes due nal property ng the year
egister sha:. assessment ontested and registered who has is residence plication on e, unless he ified.

dicate of any istered has stroyed, on e certificate
r destroyed, and it ap-h applicant dge of proistration or ll issue to e that he an elector issued free
The secre-
expense of of probate as provided egistrars of the secrefficient to h registra-

n the regis-s the only by reason r, in your the coun-r this sumy residence
November.
ing to do
register
afterwards, ss you are paid your
The period register is he year in ths in the from one ounty less ection day, eat, so you don't lose your vote by C

Any one who desires to re property qualification shou with him his last assess and tax collector's receipt to the registrars as proof that possessed of such property, taxes on it. You can regis
ANY of the following heads:

1. If you own 40 acres or m in this state, and reside u

2. If your wife owns 40 a more land in this state, up
you reside.

3. If you own real estate state that is assessed for tax
$300 or more.

4. If your wife owns real e this state assessed for tax
$300 or more.

5. If you own personal pro
this state assessed for taxa
$300 or more.

6. If your wife owns perso
erty in this state assessed for
for $300 or more.

7. If you can read and wr section of the constitution
United States.

Don't give up your life
cate that you got in 19
only have to show it to the re in case you have moved to thi
from some other county.

THE UNION will furnish information on any special poi they may be in doubt upon, and ready to help any one to get rights he is entitled to under t of Alabama. If you think you titled to register and the re should refuse you, take a c good men with you so you c witnesses as to such refusal reasons given by the registra thereby be enabled to take yo up to higher authority.

APPLE PIE.

Let others praise the red, red ro Whose haunting scent none get.
But almost anybody knows
The apple pie is sweeter yet.
Let others sing the damsel fair
Who thralls them with bew art—
But apple pie drives off my c
And trips the highway to my
And if it's cold—
Say one day old—
I want all of it I can hold

When apple pie has held the s
Until it's cool and crisp and
I'll eat a whole big one myself
And never murmur—not a mu
Why, when it's sliced it fairly s
And chuckles when its honey
In tantalizing drips beguiles
The craving that it has set loo
O, if it's cold—
Say one day old—
I want all of it I can hold

I think I'd give away my crow
Were I a man of royal birt
To eat, while holding upside
The last piece of it on this Why, every summer smile an
Is held within an apple pie
And that's the place where they
All peace and dulcetness!
When it is cold—
Say one day old—
I want all of it, I can hol
—W. D. Nesbit, in Ai

JUST FOR F

"How do you like my pa
"Oh, the colors are exquisite!
pity we can't have such tints ture."—Life.

"Brown lives on the royalt books, doesn't he?" "Yes; so times a week and a toothpick day."—Atlanta Constitution.

Mac—Fancy meeting you on this rain. Ducksie—Oh, I like Then you must be a raindeer sie—If I am you must be a rain
New Yorker.

"Can you lend me a twent chap? I'm going on my vaca need it badly." "Wait till y back, old fel—you'll need it then!"—Puck.

"Don't worry over it. If any bad news coming you'll r soon enough. Bad news trav you know." "Yes, if it isn't he
St. Petersburg.—Kansas City

Rector—I am so glad to see such a constant attendant at Patrick. Patrick—Oh, I enj sorr. I sits me down and lays up and thinks o' nothing.—
ord.

Slimly—What a feeble hors do you keep such a cripple Manygals—Young feller, that hoss I use for chasin' my dart they elope with fellers.—
News.

"Mrs. Teaser would make baseball catcher." "What ma think so?" "Why, the other n caught her husband stealin and put him out."—Cleveland Dealer.

"I suppose in order to be a must have a great deal of tion." "He must if he thinks ever going to achieve distin writing poetry."—Chicago Herald.

"Doctor," queried the in person, "do you believe that c ette habit causes weak mind necessarily," replied the M. D.
rule it merely indicates the cago News.

Teacher—What is it that c tian people should spread thro world? Tommie—I don't kn am." "What is it we send mi en through our missionaries nies, ma'am."—Yonkers Stat

CROP PROGRESS.

TED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

ate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau—Alabama Section—For Week Ending Sept. 1, 1904.

GENERAL CONDITIONS.

e drouth continues practically unbroken and all crops are suffering for ...ture over the entire state, except in a few northern counties, where local showers fell during the week. The days have been quite warm, but the nights were rather cool, light frosts being reported from Walker county on the morning of the 16th. Cotton continues to open and shed badly, and boll worms are still damaging in middle counties, with some few reports of cater... in middle and southern portions of the state. There is very little corn coming, and late cotton has stopped fruiting through lack of moisture. It is opening rapidly and picking is being pushed, but labor is scarce. About one-half of the crop has been picked in southern counties, making a light yield. While the present prospect is that the cotton crop in this state will be below the average, but ...ter as good as that of last year. The gathering of early corn continues with very good yield, while late corn needs rain. Considerable fodder and hay have been saved in excellent condition. Pastures, gardens and all minor crops need rain.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORTS OF CROP CORRESPONDENTS.

(County—Place.)

NORTHERN DISTRICT.

Calhoun, Weaver: Favorable weather for saving cotton and hay; cotton opening rapidly; no top crop; potatoes good.—D. F. Weaver

Cherokee, Weeda: Week favorable; cotton opening rapidly, picking progressing slowly, promising an average yield, though rust still spreading.—I. ...Estes.

DeKalb, Collinsville: Very dry; cotton still rusting and shedding, very little picked, no top crop, promising yield below the average.—F. P. Newman.

Etowah, Walnut Grove: Cotton rusting, shedding and opening slowly; fodder and hay being saved in good condition; corn fairly good.—A. P. Thompson.

Franklin, Burleson: All crops damaged by continued drouth; cotton promises yield far below the average. —A. L. Osborn.

Lamar, Moscow: Weather more favorable for cotton, no top crop, promising yield below the average; potatoes doing well.—J. A. Armstrong.

Lauderdale, Rogersville: No rust and shedding decreasing in cotton, picking progressing rapidly, no top crop, late cotton poor.—J. A. Pate.

Madison, Deposit: Still dry; cotton picking general, much shedding, little top crop, light yield promised; corn looks promising than previously reported.—T. M. Bayless.

Marion, Winfield: Cotton about ceased fruiting, no top crop, picking general, some being marketed; all vegetation damaged by continued drouth.—W. J. Tull.

Morgan, Stringer: Drouth continues; cotton opening rapidly, picking commenced, no top crop, promising yield below last year's; minor crops poor.—J. C. Tanner.

St. Claire, Steele: Rust and shedding in cotton increasing, promising yield below last year's; all will be open in about twenty days.—Fred Smith.

Walker, Loss Creek: Rain needed; cotton ceased fruiting, opening rapidly, some picked, promising yield far below average; fodder pulling progressing.—R. A. Romine.

MIDDLE DISTRICT.

Autauga, Haynes: Cotton rusting and shedding badly, considerable open, picking progressing rapidly, no top crop, prospective yield below the average.—W. N. Gaines.

Bibb, Brierfield: Rust and shedding in cotton increasing, considerable open, prospective yield below last year's, late not opening.—Frank Fitch.

Bullock, Suspension: Week dry; rust in cotton increasing, picking progressing rapidly, little top crop, average yield of early planted promised. —H. B. Walker.

Chambers, Oak Bowery: Cotton deteriorating rapidly, no top crop on early, prospective yield of late far below average; turnips a failure.—J. D. Harris.

Chilton, Maplesville: Late crops need rain; favorable weather for saving fodder, hay and cotton; no corn gathered.—W. Y. Nix.

Choctaw, Yantley: Very dry; considerable cotton open and picking progressing, promising yield below last year's.—J. A. Davison.

Clay, Goodwater: Favorable weather for saving hay and fodder, though too dry for cotton, which promises yield below the average.—R. C. Meacam.

Dallas, Plantersville: Rust and blight damaging all cotton, the early nearly all picked, yield light, late not promising; minor crops need rain.—J. A. Fulford.

Elmore, Spigners: Cotton opening rapidly, promising yield slightly below the average; potatoes and minor crops need rain.—W. P. Clark.

Green, Tishabee: Rust and shedding in cotton continues, picking progressing slowly, prospective yield far below last year's. —G. H. David.

Marengo, Moss: Rust in cotton and shedding of small bolls prevalent, no top crop; very little corn being gathered.—J. B. Lewis.

Perry, Walthalls: Considerable shedding in cotton, picking progressing slowly; no top crop; prospective yield below the average.—R. A. Hardie.

Pickens, Ethelsville: Cotton damaged by drouth, picking progressing slowly; no top crop; prospective yield below the average; corn promises yield below the average.—H. C. Moorhead.

Randolph, Wildwood: Cotton not so promising as previously reported, no top crop; nearly all fodder pulled; sorghum being ground.—H. D. Landers.

Russell, Hyram: Rust and shedding in cotton increasing, very little top crop, late poor; prospective yield about the same as last year's.—John E. Bush.

Sumter, Sumterville: Cotton has shed most of its squares, opening rapidly, picking progressing fairly well. prospective yield far below the average.—Godfrey Bros.

Talladega, Talladega: Rust and shedding in cotton increasing, promising yield far below the average, too dry for late cotton.—H. M. Burt.

Tuscaloosa, Olmstead Station: Considerable cotton open, prospective yield about the same as last year's.—C. B. Olmstead.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Baldwin, Magnolia Springs: Favorable week for haying; late sweet potatoes doing well; corn about gathered; rice yielding well.—H. P. Krueger.

Barbour, Mt. Andrew: Rust and shedding in cotton general, some top crop, late doing fairly well, picking progressing, promising yield about same as last year's.—S. J. Lambard.

Conecuh, Belleville: Favorable week for gathering cotton, opening rapidly, promising yield about the same as last year's.—W. M. Newton.

Houston, Lucy: Cotton continues to shed, nearly all open, picking well under way, late not fruiting, promising yield below the average.—A. L. Crosby.

Mobile, Spring Hill: Week favorable; crops doing well.—G. P. Bryan, S. J.

Monroe, Turnbull: Cotton nearly all open, though leaves badly damaged by caterpillars; peas, potatoes and turnips need rain.—J. H. McCray.

Pike, Milo: No rain; considerable cotton picked, no top crop, promising yield below last year's; corn light, too dry for potatoes.—J. M. Warren.

Wilcox, Alberta: Nearly all cotton open, picking progressing, promising yield below last year's, late unpromising; potatoes poor.—W. A. Menafee.

THOMAS CRAWFORD,
Observer, Temporarily in Charge.

COTTON PICKING.

Is Now General—Shedding is Reported—Dry Weather Hurtful.

The weather bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions says:

While the weather conditions of the week ending September 19th were generally favorable for gathering crops in nearly all districts, low night temperatures in the more northerly portions have delayed the maturity of late crops. Frosts occurred as far south as Oklahoma and Tennessee, but little or no damage resulted.

Late corn is maturing rapidly in the western portion of the belt, but the crop is ripening slowly in the eastern and central sections.

Complaints of shedding are still received from the eastern section and the northern portion of the western section of the cotton belt, but reports of rust are not so general. Except in North Carolina the staple is opening rapidly in all districts, in some localities prematurely, and picking is general, although delayed by rain in portions of Texas, from which state as well as from Georgia scarcity of pickers is reported.

Dry weatner is causing injury to late cotton generally in the central and eastern sections, and a light or no top crop is indicated in the central and caterpillars are causing injury in Oklahoma, Louisiana, Alabama and South Carolina. In Texas the boll weevils continue as damaging in southwestern, coast, central, eastern and a number of northern counties as the advancement of the season permits.

Decatur Library.

The new Carnegie library is almost completed and work is well under way on the new brick Presbyterian church which will cost upward of $10,000.

A CEMENT PRODUCER

Alabama Ranks High. Field Covers Much of the State and is Rich in Its Deposits.

GEOLOGIST SMITH'S REPORT

He Says That Raw Material All Over the State Will be Utilized.

Although until 1902 Alabama did not figure among the cement producing states of the union, it boasts an extensive series of limestones capable of furnishing excellent raw material for the manufacture of Portland cement, while the shales and clays necessary to complete the mixture are found in every county in the state. The cement resources of this state are discussed by Dr. Eugene A. Smith, state geologist, in a paper that is included in Bulletin 225 of the United States geological survey, entitled "Contributions to Economic Geology, 1903." The bulletin is published for gratuitious distribution.

Between northern Alabama and central and southern Alabama there is a marked geologic as well as geographic distinction, and Dr. Smith accordingly discusses the two portions of the state separately.

The raw materials for the manufacture of Portland cement are found in northern Alabama. These materials have not yet been utilized for this purpose in Alabama, but similar ones have been so employed in other states, and there is no reason to doubt that the future will witness their utilization in Alabama.

Dr. Smith gives a detailed account of outcrops of limestone of suitable quality for cement manufacture that occur at various points in the northern part of the state. A similar minute description is given of suitable clay beds found in the coal measures in the same parts.

In central and southern Alabama the raw materials suitable for the manufacture of Portland cement are purer limestones and clays. The limestones that are suitable for use as cement materials occur mainly at two horizons—the Selma chalk, or rotten limestone, and the St. Stephens formation. The clays available are residual clays derived from the decomposition of these two limestone formations, the stratified clays of the grand gulf formation and the alluvial clays that are found in the river and creek bottoms. It is further possible that later investigation may show that some of the other stratified clays are suitable for cement making.

Inasmuch as material that is well adapted to the manufacture of cement can be had in practically unlimited quantity all along the outcrop of the purer limestones, the location of plants for the manufacture of this product will be determined by other considerations than the quality of the rock. Chief among these will be facilities for transportation, cheapness of fuel and the price of labor. Examinations have heretofore been confined to those localities which appear to be most favorable in these respects, and especially to such as are on navigable streams or on north-south railroad lines or on both. Mr. Smith enumerates available sites and discusses their respective merits.

IT WAS NOT ROBBERY.

Some Other Motive Must be Found for Murder of Miss Roberts.

The death of Miss Bessie Roberts, of Anniston, is involved in deeper mystery than ever.

All along it has been thought that the young woman was murdered for robbery, but with the finding of her purse and rings it seems that robbery was not the intent of the murderer. The purse was found in the alley in the rear of the dwelling under which the wounded young lady was found, and this came in possession of the police along with the rings she wore.

The rings had been in the possession of a negress who assisted in bathing Miss Roberts when she was taken to the city hall.

It has developed that a negress saw the young woman and an apparently drunken man three blocks from the place of the finding of the body. This was on Monday evening and the police followed the course over which she was thought to have passed and found many who saw the couple about the same time.

It is thought that the young lady quarreled with some former sweetheart from her home in Texas and he beat her while in a drunken condition.

The strikes in the mines of Colorado have been the means of dropping nearly $30,000,000 of that state's and other people's money.

UNITED STATES FORTS

Should be Nearer Railroads, Says Gen. Sumner.

Major General S. S. Sumner, commanding the southwestern division, comprising the departments of Texas and Colorado, in his annual report, makes some radical recommendations looking to the abandonment of military posts in that division, regarded as of the greatest importance in the old days of Indian warfare.

Some posts he wishes to be brought up to date in the matter of water supply, and other conveniences. He suggests the abandonment of Fort Grant, which is too far from the railroad. General Sumner says for strategic reasons it would be reasonable to abandon the site of Fort Clarke, and transfer it to Eagle Pass.

If his suggestions are adopted, there will be a line of posts on the Mexican border covering all rail communication between the United States and Mexico.

ACTIONS MAY BE VOID.

Judge Hubbard Dead and Successor's Qualification Expired.

Anything that may have been done by the Pike county circuit court Saturday is, lawyers say, null and void. Special Judge H. A. Pearce, who has been holding the court, was appointed to the work of Judge John P. Hubbard. The special judge held court by reason of the fact that Judge Hubbard was ill. He has held two weeks, including Saturday. What he did that day, however, is regarded as void, because the man for whom he was serving died Friday night. The governor did not make an appointment out of respect to Judge Hubbard's memory.

Bismarck Dead.

Prince Herbert Bismarck died Sunday morning at 10:15 o'clock. Since he ceased to be foreign minister on the retirement of his father, in 1890 Prince Herbert Bismarck had taken part in public affairs only as a member of the reichstag.

Prince Bismarck's father trained him for his successor as chancellor of the German empire, and advanced him rapidly in the diplomatic service until at the age of forty he was minister of foreign affairs. The estate, valued at $4,000,000, goes to Prince Otto.

Saved by the Wind.

A shift of wind saved Halifax, N. S., from destruction by fire. Nevertheless the city suffered a loss of $500,000 in the business part of the water front, and the progress of the flames was only stayed by the dynamiting of a dozen buildings.

When the fire was at its height and a southerly gale was pushing it straight toward the heart of the business center, the wind shifted suddenly and turned the flames along the wharves and warehouse district.

The fire consumed several wharves, two coal piers, two hotels, a dozen warehouses and a number of retail shops. During the fire a large tree fell, killing one and wounding two others.

Woodlawn Schools.

The total enrollment of the Woodlawn public schools during the first week was 591 students—481 in the white school and 110 in the colored school. This is the highest number ever recorded in the history of the schools.

The two new, handsome school buildings, costing $6,000 each, one in East Woodlawn and one in West Woodlawn, just completed, are now being used.

Bank Changes Hands.

Dr. C. B. Forman, of Attalla, and L. M. Dyke, of Columbiana, have purchased the Bank of Attalla, and will in future conduct that institution under the official direction of Dr. Forman as president and Mr. Dyke as cashier.

C. H. Moody, of the Dwight cotton mills, will also be interested in the bank. The bank will operate with a capital stock of $50,000, of which $25,000 is paid in.

Wolf Will Teach.

The Rev. W. W. Wolf, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of this city, has been offered the principalship of the Pratt City high school in place of Professor L. P. Liles, who recently tendered his resignation. Mr. Wolf has agreed to accept the place temporarily.

Died of a Headache.

Earl Anderson, the 10-year-old son of J. H. Anderson, who lives at Mars Hill, died under most peculiar circumstances. The boy, who has been in perfect health, complained a little of headache. He told his parents his head ached so badly that he would have to see a physician, but before the latter arrived he died.

NO QUARTER SHOWN.

Neither Army Has Any Respect for Either the Red Cross or White Flag.

MESSAGES FROM PORT ARTHUR

Tell Something of Conditions There. Items from the Northern Campaign.

According to Lieutenant Prince Radzivil, of the Russian army from Port Arthur bearing dispatches from General Stoessel, commander of the fort, to General Kuropatkin, the temper of the belligerents at Port Arthur has reached an absolutely merciless attack.

It was set forth in these dispatches some weeks ago that serious suspicions were entertained by both belligerents that the other was misusing the Red Cross flag. These suspicions have been increased by the commissions of various acts by the soldiers of both armies, until now even flags of truce or surrender are not respected by either side.

General Stoessel is making no objection to civilians leaving Port Arthur. When the 300 women who are in Port Arthur engaged in hospital work were advised to leave they replied they would rather face the possibility of massacre than desert their posts.

The prince said:

"Stories in circulation concerning the shortage of ammunition and provisions at Port Arthur are not true. There is an abundance of ammunition for both large and small arms, and plenty of preserved food. The use of Chinese shells was merely a saving measure.

"The Japanese shells have done great damage to the hospital and other buildings in Port Arthur, but the losses of life from these bombardments has been very slight.

"Madame Stoessel, wife of the general, is at the head of the Red Cross work in Port Arthur."

Probably electricity has never played so great a part in warfare before as it does with the Japanese. Every general of brigade in the field is like a modern ambassador "at the end of a wire," which has divisional commander controls, and the generals of divisions are in touch by telegraph or telephone with the corps commander. The engineers run wires after the column ahead with marvelous rapidity.

General Sakharoff has reported to the general staff under date of September 17th:

"The Manchurian army was nowhere engaged on September 16 or 17. The arrival of considerable reinforcements is noticeable at the advanced posts along the whole of the enemy's front."

It is announced from Mukden that both the Russian and the Japanese generals have promised to respect the tombs and palace there.

A Russian paper, commenting on the Lena case, criticises the authorities for dissipating the energies of the volunteer fleet and scattering vessels aimlessly over the face of the globe, and says:

"The volunteer fleet would be effective were it concentrated near Japan, where it would have a chance of picking up contraband and taking it to Russian ports."

The paper also calls attention to the alleged presence of many Japanese spies in Denmark and Sweden, who are said to keep their government advised of every move of Russian ships and warns the admiralty that the Baltic fleet may meet with some surprises in the shape of whitehead torpedoes before it gets well away from Limau.

ONE DOZEN INJURED

In a Wreck on an Elevated Railroad in Chicago.

A through passenger train on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad from Toledo to Chicago was wrecked at Chicago.

Some of the railroad people claim the train ran into an open switch and others say the locomotive jumped the track because of a broken flange. Twelve persons were injured.

The train was a little behind time on entering the city and was going at a high rate of speed. The tracks are elevated and the accident happened just before the train reached the viaduct crossing over Root street.

An overturned stove in the rear coach set fire to the wreckage, but it was extinguished before it had gained much headway. The engineer and fireman stayed at their posts until the last and both men were pulled from the debris unconscious.

Notice.

Any person who is indebted to the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association is hereby notified that if immediate settlement is not made, the accounts will be placed in an attorney's hands for collection without further notice.

W. M. Wilson, President
Clanton, Ala.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St., Opposite Court House.
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins,
Physician and Surgeon,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Office with Hopkins Drug Co.
CLANTON.

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

Dentists.

Dr. A. B. Horn,
Dentist.
Office over Strock's Store.
CLANTON.
Office Days in the Following Towns.
Jemison—Wednesday and Thursday before the 2nd Sunday.
Thorsby—Wednesday and Thursday before the 3d Sunday Dr. Stabler's Office

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 12 a. m.
1 to 5 p. m. CLANTON

PURE GOODS

The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.

Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

THE SORROWING MOTHER.

Last night I dreamed he came to me;
  I held him close and wept and said,
"My little child, where have you been?
  I was afraid that you were dead."
Then I awoke; it almost seemed
  As though my arms could feel him yet,
I had been sobbing in my sleep;
  My tears had made the pillows wet.

I can not think of him at all
  As the bright angel he must be,
But only as my little child
  Who may be needing me.

Do not make him grow too wise,
  Angels—ye who know;
I am dull and slow to learn,
  Toiling here below.
Do not fill his heart too full
  With your heavenly joy,
Lest the mother's place be lost
  With her little boy.

Last night the air was mild;
  The moon rose clear though late,
And somehow then it did not seem
  So very hard to wait.
There seemed so much to learn,
  So much for me to do,
Before my lessons here were done
  And I was ready, too.

Those may dare to doubt who have
  Their loved ones here below;
For me, I do not now believe,
  I do not hope—I know.
—Katharine Pyle in Harper's Bazar.

Detective Dawker's Scheme

By H. Carpenter.

It is not often that I find myself within the precincts of a police court, but a short time ago, happening to be seized with a sudden and unaccountable curiosity, I wended my way toward one of those interesting institutions, and effected an entrance.

The policeman on duty that day was an old acquaintance of mine, and upon noticing me, he immediately beckoned to me.

"There's a peculiar case just decided," he said; "one you might like to know about. The fellow is discharged, and will be coming out in a minute. Here he comes!" ejaculated the officer, "that man in the shaggy suit."

The "man in the shaggy suit" had only just got into the street when I overtook him.

He was standing still, looking up and down the thoroughfare, apparently undecided what to do, all the time feeling in his trousers pockets as though he had lost something. I divined his thoughts, and accosting him quietly, said:

"After the unpleasant proceedings just concluded perhaps a little light refreshment might be acceptable."

"'Just what I was a-thinking, sir," he replied, smiling. "An' I was just a-feelin' to see if I'd got the price of a glass of beer; but I find I'm quite broke."

"Never mind," I observed, and in less than a couple of minutes I had him comfortably seated at a table in a neighboring public house.

I was anxious to know what crime he had been charged with, and I mildly inquired if it had been a matter of "assault and battery."

"No, sir," he said, "but it will be next time—that is, if I lay hold of the chap that made a fool of me."

"Is it a long story?" I queried

"Not very long. Would you like to hear it, sir?"

I assented eagerly.

"Well, then," he began, after he had drained his glass, "ye see I've been out o' work now for nigh two months, scarcely knowing which way to turn for a meal, and glad to pick up a shilling when and where I can.

"Well, one mornin' I went out as usual—that would be just nine days ago—and found myself with only sixpence in my pocket in the neighborhood of Leicester square.

"No job was to be had that mornin' so, feeling rather down at heart, and a little thirsty and hungry, I turned into a coffee house where I knew I could get a cheap meal.

"I hadn't been sitting there long before a short, stumpy gent, with no end o' watch chain in front of him, comes sauntering in and seats himself plump alongside of me.

"I ought to have felt flattered no doubt, and perhaps I did a little bit, when he said, presently, in a very pleasant way, 'Nice mornin'.'

"'Yes,' I said; 'It is for those in work, but the mornin' doesn't seem partikler nice to me.'

"'You're out o' work, eh?' he asked. 'Well, I might have guessed as much by your crestfallen expression. What would you say if I put a little job in your way?'

"'I should say Heaven bless ye, and mean it,' I answered, picking up my ears and looking full in the little gent's face.

"'Can I trus you?' he asked.

"'Perfectly,' I said.

"'Now, look here,' he says, speaking quite confidential like, and in a very low voice. 'I'm a detective. To-night I'm going to have a good try to nab a fellow who has been fooling the police of London for the last three months. I've got reliable information, and with your assistance I believe I shall have him.'

"He told me that the man he intended to catch was going to commit a burglary at a house at Highgate—who informed him he didn't say, but he said he knew it—and that he meant to nab him in the very act. The house stood in a piece of ground inclosed by a low rail fence, and my part of the performance was to watch for the burglar, and should he by any means give the detective the slip, to chase and collar him if I could.

"'But s'pose,' I said, as soon as I could get a word in, 's'pose a regular policeman comes along and catches sight o' me in those grounds at midnight?'

"'Well,' the little gent replied, laughing, 'you've only to give the police signal, three loud whistles, and tell them Detective Dawker has engaged you.'

"We left the place together and parted just outside, promising to meet at the house he had described to me, at Highgate, at twelve o'clock the same night.

"Twelve o'clock came. I reached the meeting place in time, and found the detective waiting for me.

"He was dressed in clothes something like my own, and looked the flash gentleman no longer.

"He seemed rather impatient, and hastily pulled me into the garden and into a part of it where thick shrubs grew.

"'Now mind,' he said, quickly, 'if you see the burglar run, chase him; if a policeman comes, give three loud whistles. I must be off, or I shall lose my chance. I shall be back in an hour. If I want assistance I will give you the three whistles.'

"With these parting words the man disappeared.

"I stood waiting there for quite half an hour I should think, when I heard on the still night air the heavy tramp of a policeman.

"He was coming my way, I fancied. Slowly he drew nearer and nearer, until he stopped right abreast o' the place where I was hiding close to the garden gate.

"He put out his hand and tried the gate fastening. It opened; he came inside, and flashed his lantern full on the very bush behind which I was standing.

"Quick as possible I gave three very loud, shrill whistles; but instead of the policeman being awed by the sound, he dashed at me, and caught me by the throat, in about half a minute nearly choking me, and stopping me from explaining why I was there.

"Finding I didn't resist he loosened his hold and questioned me.

"I told him plump and plain that Detective Dawker had engaged me—that I was doing my duty, and that he had not better spoil our game.

"He only gripped my arm the tighter and laughed, telling me not to 'try it on with him,' and blew his whistle

"In a few minutes another officer arrived, and between the two of 'em what with their laughing and their questions, I had a lively time of it.

"I was taken to the nearest police station and locked up on suspicion.

"The next morning, when brought before the magistrate, I learned to my great surprise that the man I thought was a detective was none other than the burglar he pretended to be after, and that, instead of trying to catch a criminal, he was robbing the house while I kept watch outside, and warned him by my loud whistles of the arrival of the police.

"I was remanded for inquiries to be made, and they being found satisfactory I was brought up again this morning and discharged."

Having ordered a fresh glass of the foaming beverage for my innocent acquaintance, I left him apparently quite comfortable.

But I heard him mutter as I turned away.

"Wait till I meet him. I'll break every bone in his body!"

THE BUILDING OF BIG SHIPS.

Indication That We Have About Reached Limit for Present Time.

It is a much discussed question where the building of bigger ships is to end. Various authorities in engineering have attempted to predict the future rate of progress in marine construction, and the fact that at a single stroke 3,000 tons have been added to the size of the record vessel will doubtless be made much of. Nevertheless, there is much reason to believe that we are near the limit in size of ships, for the present at least, and there may even be a reaction. The size of ships is governed by the depth of the channel entrances to seaports, and these latest huge vessels draw so much water that they can only enter a few ports and at only a very few can cargo or passengers sufficient to fill them be secured.

Besides this, it will readily be conceded that the reason why bigger and bigger ships have been built is purely a commercial one. The question: "Will it pay?" is the question to be answered in determining whether the size of ships is to go on increasing, and if so to what extent. It will be readily granted that a ship of 10,000 tons can be operated more cheaply per ton of freight carried than one of 5,000 tons, provided the volume of traffic is sufficient to keep her employed, and provided, also, that cargo-handling appliances are such as to keep down delays in port. But granting this, it will readily be seen that there is not a like saving to be made in again doubling the size and going from 10,000 to 20,000 tons. Perhaps under certain circumstances the 200,000-ton vessel may be worth while, but even if this is the case it does not follow that a still bigger vessel would be still more profitabe. It must be remembered that these very large vessels cost considerably more to build per ton of freight capacity than vessels of modern size.—The Engineering News.

HARVEST IN OCEAN MEADOWS

GATHERING SEA-WEED CROPS IN THE CHANNEL ISLANDS.

Many of the Laws and Customs Connected With This Unique Calling Are Very Curious—Deep Sea Reaping—The Harvest Home.

Seaweed farming sounds a curious calling, but in the Channel islands, and also in the more remote corners of the Cornish coast, where the terrific Atlantic gales sweep up the weed in great banks all ready for the harvesters, it gives partial employment to some hundreds of men and women. The bulk of the seaweed trade, however, is carried on in Guernsey, and until a few years ago large quantities were exported to the mainland for fertilizing purposes, but of late the Channel islands have found a use for all seaweed gathered there. This amounts to between a thousand and fifteen hundred tons per annum. The greatest amount ever taken in one season was thirty thousand cartloads. Besides being retailed in the markets to agriculturists as manure, both before and after it has been kilned, it is largely bought by the chemical manufacturers on the western side of the island of Guernsey, who distil iodine from it.

The seaweed industry of Guernsey has been in existence for some hundreds of years, and in consequence many of the customs and laws connected with it—still rigidly enforced—are very curious. Generally speaking, each district has its local council, made up of all the most successful farmers in the neighborhood, and this council determines the extent of each man's "farm," as the stretch of beach from which he is allowed to gather weed is called; lays down laws by which the "farmers" must abide or be fined, and settles any disputes which may arise from time to time. When a man contemplates becoming a seaweed farmer he has to apply to his district council. The first question asked of him is whether or no he is a resident of the district, and if not he must speedily become one, for Guernsey does not believe in the alien in any shape or form. After this a plot of shingle will be allotted to him. He has no rent to pay, and only the expenses of kilning and harvesting to cover. The "farms" are marked out with large boulders, and consist of from two hundred to six hundred yards of shore. All weed cast up by the sea within this area becomes the farmer's absolute property.

Should a man break any of the rules laid down by the council he is fined according to his offense. For instance, it is illegal for a man to gather "varech"—as the weed is technically called—on Sunday, even if a vast quantity has been thrown up by a storm on Saturday night, and will all be carried away by the high tide before Monday morning. The worst offence at all, however, is for a farmer to tamper with the landmarks which define the boundaries of his "farm," and should he attempt to add to his allotment by moving the stones, and so taking away some of his neighbor's land, he is not only fined, but has to forfeit his "farm" as well.

The seaweed harvest is at its height during the months of July and August. In some districts it is only permissible to gather the weed during these months, but in others the farmers are permitted to take advantage of the large quantities of "varech" cast up by the winter gales. The implements necessary consist of a few long-handled picks and rakes, a long-handled knife or two, a cart or more if need be, and a pony. It is a strange sight to see the men collecting the "varech" as they walk along the shore with their picks, and put the weed into heaps ready for the carts when they come along. Then, as each cart is loaded, the weed is taken away out of reach of the high tide and stacked. Before it can be considered ready for the kilns it must be somewhat dry. The majority of farmers kiln their "varech" before offering it for sale, but those who do not possess the luxury of a kiln of their own sell the weed as it stands in stacks at from five to six shillings a ton. This is very cheap indeed, considering that "varech" is one of the best manures known to the agriculturist. Its low price, however, is perhaps one of the reasons why none is now exported from the island.

Some agriculturists place the weed on the soil and let it rot, to the accompaniment of an absolutely awe-inspiring odor; while others use only the ashes which are left in the kiln after the weed has been burnt. If a farmer wishes to kiln his weed, and does not possess a kiln he can either build one—which will cost him five pounds to twenty-five pounds, according to dimensions—or the council will kiln it for him at a small fee. When the weed is ready for the kiln it is thrown in and packed tightly until the kiln is full and then set on fire. The draught which rises from under the kiln will keep the weed smouldering away until it is all consumed and a heap of very fine white ash is left in the receptacle below.

So far I have dealt only with the seaweed gathered on the shore which has been naturally dislodged from the seabed, and cast up during a storm. But there exist around the Jersey and Guernsey coasts vast submerged banks of weed which lie at no great depth from the surface, and sometimes when torn free by the elements Some of these banks lie in such shallow water that at low tide they can be reached from boats with the aid of reap-hooks attached to long poles. The weed is cut off at the roots, thus causing it to float to the surface. When the weather is calm and the "varech" is not washed up on the shingle "farm" the occupier will make up for his small harvest by cutting and gathering the weed on the seabed in the manner described, bringing it ashore in boats which somewhat resembles coal barges.

The most picturesque custom in connection with this curious harvest of the sea has only been abolished quite recently, after enduring for centuries. This was the "harvest home," held usually in May, at the conclusion of the winter season. All the "varech" carts in the neighborhood were then called into requisition and loaded to overflowing with the last crop of the season, so that the sturdy little ponies, bedecked with colored stuffs of endless variety, could scarcely draw them. All the men, women and children formed in procession, carrying the picks, reap-hooks, and rakes which had done duty throughout the season, and followed in the wake of the carts, while at the summit of each load were perched the prettiest maidens the hamlet could produce, clad in gala dresses of many colors. The men chanted in deep, sepulchral tones old sea-ballads which had done duty at the same ceremony for ages, while the women rapped out the chorus on tambourines. And so the procession passed from village to village on the coast till nightfall, when a final bonfire on the seashore, with the usual accompaniment of singing and dancing, proclaimed the "varech" season at an end.—W. Newman Flower in the Wide Awake Magazine.

Cut His Comb.

H. W. Fortine, of Chicago, is a guest at the Republican House. He is representing the manufacturers of drugs and medicines and calls upon the leading physicians and drug stores. "There is something new every trip," he said, "some new preparation for the ailments which beset mankind. I don't sell to the doctors, but call on them to show and demonstrate to them how the medicine acts and what effects it has on different diseases and so forth. I find that the best men in the profession, the most able and the busiest, those who have the largest practices are the easiest to approach and interest, while the little two-by-four doctors who have one or two cases a week, are cranky and chesty and important and claim that they have no time to give to detail men. One such man was properly treated by a traveling man in Minnesota a few days ago. The doctor noticed the man's case when he entered his office, and said, 'You are a detail man? Well, I have just one minute for you, as I am very busy.' The man looked at him a second, and then said, 'Doctor, you have more time for me than I have for you,' and turned around and walked out."—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

The Horseless Dog.

Dr. Weston Chester has a remarkably fine specimen of a bulldog that has always been averse to riding in the doctor's carriage, preferring to run alongside and occasionally nip at the wheels. In sleighing time he has been known to seize one of the standards that support the sleigh body on the runners, and hold on even after he had lost his footing and was being dragged. The standards show many evidences of contact with the dog's teeth. Recently the doctor purchased an automobile, and, strangely enough, the dog has taken a violent fancy for riding in that vehicle, quite as pronounced as was his dislike for the other conveyance. The other day he made such a fuss on Exchange corner, attracting the attention of passers-by and loiterers on the street that the doctor was obliged to stop and take him on board.—Hartford Courant.

Goats and a Nation's Fate.

The frontier between British India and Thibet traverses districts where there are mountain pastures, and our main grievance was that certain Thibetan goats which were ignorant of the line of demarcation were in the habit of straying into British territory. What particular harm the goats did by browsing occasionally on British grass is not very clear. In any case, the damage could not have been considerable. In 1739 we went to war with Spain on account of the ear of a certain Jenkins, which, we asserted, had been cut off by some Spanish official, although it was contended that the ear was still attached to Jenkins' head. It has, however, been reserved to this century for this country to engage in a war that promises to be extensive, on account, professedly, of a few wandering goats.—London Truth.

Street Lamps in Sahara.

The Sahara Desert lighted by acetriene street lamps is a novel conception at which, says the New York Globe, the mind hesitates. Yet that is what the traveler would see, thanks to the ingenuity of Commandant Pujat, of the French Army, should he visit the Oasis of Tougourt in the far south of Algeria. Tougourt was remarkably unhealthful, but the commandant, by diligent sanitary work, has overcome that trouble. To make the place more attractive and pleasant for his garrison, he has mounted large acetylene lamps high on the stems of the gigantic palm trees that shade the market place, and thus has given this mid Sahara camping place quite the appearance by night of an American village.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE BY THE REV. G. CAMPBELL MORGAN, D. D.

Subject: The Attractiveness and Exclusiveness of Jesus—Listen to the Call of Christ—He Will Brook No Division of Your Loyalty.

LONDON, ENGLAND. — The following sermon, entitled "The Attractiveness and Exclusiveness of Jesus," was preached here on a recent Sunday by the Rev. T. Campbell Morgan, D. D. He took for his text: Then said Jesus unto His disciples, if any man will come after Me let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me.—St. Matthew 16:24.

There were two facts about Jesus Christ which no one can read the Gospel records without recognizing; facts which appear to be contradictory, but which, as a matter of fact, are complementary, and the understanding of which reveals for all time the method of the Master in dealing with men. I refer to facts of the attractiveness and exclusiveness of Jesus...

There can be no question about the former; there can equally be no question about the latter to those who have carefully read the records and have seen the methods of Jesus while He was here among men. He was constantly drawing people to Him, and He was perpetually holding them aloof. By the very winsomeness of His person, He was drawing men and women of all sorts and conditions, at all times and in all places to Himself, and yet by the uttering of words so severe, so searching, so drastic, making us tremble even to-day, He held men back from Him.

I venture to say that the words I read to you this morning from the Gospel of Luke come to those who are most familiar with them bringing a sense of surprise. We never read them without feeling more or less startled by them — "Unless you hate father and mother, husband and wife, parent and child, you cannot be My disciple." We have attempted to account for these words, but I do not hesitate to say that in some senses they have staggered the faith of many, and yet there they stand.

And not there only, but through all His teaching there is evident the same method of Christ, that of holding men back just as they were approaching Him; drawing them to Himself by multitudes and then holding the crowd as they pressed upon Him, and sifting them with such surprising words as these. Now there must be a reason for this, and it is for that reason that I want to look, with you, a little this morning.

But first allow me to say a few words on this fact of the attractiveness of Jesus, because the more clearly we recognize and understand that, the more clearly shall we understand, as I think, the other truth of His perpetual method of holding men back and excluding certain persons from close companionship with Himself.

Take first, then, this great fact of His attractiveness, the most fascinating subject on which to speak. Remember, I pray you, that if the Gospel records reveal one thing more clearly than another they reveal that Jesus was, somehow or other, a Person that drew men to Him irresistibly.

I go back to those silent years at Nazareth concerning which we know so very little. You will remember that on those days Luke opens for us just a little window through which we look when he says, "He was subject to His parents, and grew in favor with God and with man." I do not stop one moment to dwell on the statement that He grew in favor with God, although it is a very interesting statement, but just for a moment, for the sake of our argument, listen to the other part of it: "He grew in favor with man." Take that as it is simply stated, and you at once see a picture of the boy growing up to be a youth, and passing from youth into young manhood until He became the Carpenter of Nazareth, known to all the little town that nestled among the hills, just removed from the highways of life. This is all the truth that is revealed. If I may reverently put it, Jesus was a favorite in Nazareth. I am not sure that that doesn't almost startle you, because somehow or other we have come to think that holiness is almost always accompanied by angularity, and there is a popular idea that if a man is good he never can be a favorite. It is a great mistake. It is by the measure in which a man lacks holiness that a man is not in favor.

Here is a man living in Nazereth, and He is a favorite. I do not want to lift that into a super-spiritual realm, but if you have no imagination you can just go to sleep for two minutes while I imagine I look into that window and I see the Carpenter at His work, and I tell you what I see. He is a favorite. I see children taking their toys to Him to be mended, and I am quite sure He mended them. I see young men going at eventide to take their problems with them because they know He is sane, honest and pure. I think I see old men, upon whose brow already "sat light that never was on land or sea," talking to Him because He has seen a wonderful way of talking about "My Father's house" and "the many mansions;" a favorite, sane and strong, and pure, and attractive as to personality.

I know full well that a little later on these same men took Him to a hill and tried to murder Him, but that was the result of something else to be discovered later. The pure, human, simple life of Jesus was, in itself, attractive, and Luke says, "He grew in favor."

Leave those hidden years and look at Him just for one rapid moment as He treads the pathway upon which a fiercer light falls than ever fell upon a throne—the pathway of the public teacher, and if you read these Gospel stories the one thing that strikes you is the fact of the multitudes around about Jesus Christ. Wherever He went they followed Him. If He went out into the city the country people crowded the streets to be near Him; if He went out into the country place the city men and women flocked after Him, following Him so far that at times there was no chance for them to provide themselves with food, and He had to feed them; for in their eagerness to follow they had forgotten food and had forgotten distance. And wherever He went they came after Him.

I am not saying that these multitudes crowned Him; that is not my point, but He drew the people after Him. The one thing they could not do with Jesus was to let Him alone; they came, whether to criticise Him or crown Him is not now the question; the point is, that He drew men and women after Him in all those days of His earthly life. They came after Him, all sorts and conditions of men, the scholars and the illiterate, the learned and the ignorant, the debased, the depraved, they all came. Of course, there were more poor people came than rich because there always were more poor people than there are rich, and, of course, there were more of the illiterate than of the learned for the self-same reason, but I protest against this idea that Christ only attracted a class. There is something about Him that attracts all kinds of men, and it is true in those old days.

Come, if you will, outside the Bible, and from the day that this Man walked among men in Judea until now there has never been so attractive a personality in human history as Jesus. And I want to say this superlative thing about Christ. No century, whatever its peculiarity, or quality, or quantity, has produced any person who was so popular as Jesus Christ. He has always towered above His fellows, above those historical personages that the centuries look back to, or to those imaginative personages that the centuries give to us in literature. Jesus has been the most attractive personage always.

I come to this very hour. Who is the most attractive personality in the world this hour? Let me take a narrower circle. Who is the most attractive personality in England at this hour? I answer without fear of contradiction—Jesus Christ.

I am not saying that the majority of people have yet crowned Him. Let me take my illustration to the contrary. Can you think of any person in history, dead or alive, or any person in imaginative literature, that will be talked of, and thought of, and sung of, and discussed and criticised, and abused and crowned as Jesus Christ? There is not a single theatre in Manchester or London to-night where Shakespeare's plays continue to attract, and I am glad you look ignorant, and confess you don't speak from any personal knowledge, but every one knows it to be true. There is not a single theatre that can exist without variety. There must be some other genius than Shakespeare's must be forthcoming. And yet, with all our talk about the decadence of the church and the failure of Christianity, every Sunday in Manchester more people are gathered together to sing the old hymns and hear the old sermons—I beg your pardon, not to hear sermons on the old lines, but to hear the old, old story of the cross and nothing other purpose.

Let us begin with the first. When Carlyle was as fond of a phrase as He was of that phrase "Follow Me," there must be some deep significance. We have been going through a New Testament during the last few months, and that phrase. It has been a fascinating study to see how constantly He used it. It was the almost constant formula of His call to individuals, "Follow Me!"

Now what is it to follow? Two things are involved. Neither of them can be taken the ground, taken alone. Both are required.

First, to follow, I must trust. I shall never follow any one I have confidence in. I may trust and yet not follow.

Secondly, not only is trust necessary, but obedience is necessary. Christ speaks to the individual soul, bringing that soul apart from the crowd, as He is calling some one out here this morning. He says, "Will you trust Me? Then obey Me."

How am I going to do it? What does it mean, this trusting and obeying? Deny yourself, take up the cross. It seems to me that is the point which must be first observed first, that to deny self is the only way in which you can follow Christ. How shall I follow Him? Deny myself. Those two things are intimately related, and it seems to me that everything is said when "Follow Me" is said, and yet it is necessary to say the other in order to understand what He means by following Him.

What is it Christ calls me to? To myself! Not to practice self-denial, which is a very cheap business, but to deny self a very costly matter. He says, "Deny yourself. Listen no longer to the call of your self, but listen to My call. Don't consider any more whether this thing will minister to your pleasure or to your grandizement, or answer the cry of your ambition. But Me first." Christ says, "Deny yourself and follow Me. Put Me on the throne and dethrone yourself. Don't let the question of the morning be, What shall I like to do, but What will Christ have me do; not Will this pay me, but will it hasten the coming of the kingdom of God. Don't let the underlying passion of your life be your own self-desire; crown Me, follow Me."

It is a superlative call, and yet it is all Jesus is always imperial. He will have no division of your loyalty, and that is what He means. "You must hate father and mother, wife, child. That means that when the soul comes into contact with Me I must be absolutely first." Let me stop here to say that whenever a soul does that he gets back a hundredfold lands and children and mother and father and wife. When Christ said He must be first, and He never lowered that standard, and no religion that is simply an addition to life has nothing to Him.

Jesus Christ comes and says, "Deny yourself," but there is the other word, "Take up the cross." Well, what is Christ's cross? No. No man can make Christ's cross. What then? Your own.

What is this cross? I don't think that it is ever the same in two persons. The cross is that in your life which most completely costs you something if you obey Christ. There is a business man this morning who is saying in his heart, "Well, if that is Christianity, I will have to go home and change my method of business." That is your cross. There is a young man here says that, "If that is Christianity it means putting Christ first, then I shall have to go home and give up that companionship." That is your cross. Some one here says, "If that is what Christ means that I am not to listen to the call of my own life, I shall have to go home and say I was wrong and confess my wrong to those to whom it is so hard to confess it." That is your cross. And somebody else says, "If that is Christianity I shall have to go back on my history, throw up everything I am doing and go into the ministry." That is your cross.

You know what your cross is. Don't let any one come and ask me. You know the thing which right in front of you this morning challenges your allegiance to Jesus Christ. You cannot play tricks with God. You cannot deceive your own conscience when you stand in the clear light of the call of Christ. He says, "Deny yourself, take up that cross (and you know what it is) and follow Me."

But why are Christ's terms so drastic? For two reasons. First, no man ever gets to Christ but by the way of the entire surrender of Jesus Christ. It is possible to admire and cheer Him, possible to patronize Him and never to know Him. It is possible for the crowd that gets to Him, but the cross-bearing soul. And if you read on you will see, "Whosoever would save his life shall lose it; whosoever will lose his life for My sake shall find it."

Christ confronts the soul and says virtually this: "You don't understand your own life, dear heart. You cannot realize your own kingdom. You cannot build your own character and carve out your own destiny, but I can do it, though I can only do it when you have put Me absolutely on the throne for your own life's life. For real founding and ennobling and developing you must come to Me, and by the way of a whole-hearted surrender."

But there is another reason why Christ makes His terms drastic. He wants men and women upon whom He can depend in the day of battle. I am quite sure there is nothing Jesus Christ wants at this moment so much as men and women who will go through darkness and death for Him. You remember that picture of Jairus beseeching Jesus to save his child who was dying, and how, with the people thronging about Him, the Master suddenly exclaimed, "Who touched Me?"

Now don't let us be angry with the disciples. We should have said the same thing. "A hundred people have touched you in the last five minutes. The multitude throng Thee and press Thee, and sayest Thou, who touched Me?"

But Jesus Christ always knows the difference between the crush of a careless mob and the touch of a needy soul that has come near Him. And this morning in this service closes I hear His voice speaking once again—the attractive Christ that has drawn this crowd — this exclusive Christ—and He says: "Who touched Me?" We have all jostled Him this morning. We have all looked into His face again. We have all had a new consciousness of the infinite music of His voice. Have you got anything out of Him? Has any virtue healed you this morning? If not, even now stretch out your hand and touch Him. And to do that you must deny yourself, crucify your pride. Having done that, listen to the cry of your own life, and listen to His imperial call and crown Him Lord of all.

JOB'S PA

A STORY OF BRAVERY A

By JOSEPH KEATING.

I wonder if anything
hobed?
Job put his light to keeping the lamp like a to the ground, slowly inch of the ing, sending and like a lower side of ing quietly.

"Well, dash that boy, whatever calmly said Job.

He did not exactly use the
"dash," but it will
He slowly
a bit of
"Dash that without "An' after erything'.
to when the elled into
I might lose best wedge I Then as if he had chocolates thing could easy, wonderi ger of losing me the ing for it as brand of
"I can he said to wedge that go an' leave it
But that was verse. He whistled
the old Welsh and sweetly and Nothing made him lose his mind. Not even such a glaring stance of misplaced confidence that boy could upset him. It would take an earthquake to do that.

Bent double, he put the lamp front of him and gave a final around before laying the still; then he threw up his the lids of one or two of the to see if he had forgotten or not loosen them slightly for knocking out.
By this time he had come to the
of the last verse, and he stopped whistling.

He carefully stuck the wedge a cog, and hung his lamp upon
Then he went into the roadway, the full tram of coal which glittered in the light, and picked up a slender six-foot post. But before going back to the cog, he looked up the road to make sure that the boy was where to be seen. The darkness endless night filled the place—black night that knows no day;
Job looked upon a spot hidden the earth a thousand feet from light of the sun. Nearer the coal, little lamp glimmered on the timber and rough sides that held the dangerous roof.

"If I didn't send the young rascal to clean his lamp," said Job, "he'll be potchin' about in here an' get a clout with a stone on his head most likely."

It was merely the kindly nature him which made him so careful.
boy was no son of his only his
He slowly put a plug of strong bacco into his mouth; for a chew a very excellent dust sponge, and Job had in hand just then would make it necessary. Then satisfied the lad was far enough from the gerous operation, he began to whistle once more, and with the six-foot under his arm returned to his lamp
the cog.

Holding his slender battering-ram as near the end as possible, he went down a step or two, and with profes sional skill, knocked out the further posts firsts. A little creaking and grumbling by the fall of the upper vein of coal, mingled with rubbish.

"More rubbish than anything else," said Job, spitting out the dust which enwrapped him like a fog.

Of course, no one wants rubbish;
Job spoke of it disrespectfully. The mineral called mine makes iron, which in turn makes Birmingham jewelry, coal makes smoke, and smoke makes limited companies and happy shareholders.

He listened for a moment to the voice of the top. All around him creaked, groaned, and strained like a vessel in rough water. The collier took as much notice of these terrific as an old salt of a puff of wind.
those who went down to the sea
the pits, shipwreck or destruction always too near to be terrible. Like an old sailor taking a squint
the weather, the collier just tapped the shining black surface above him gently with his knuckles over his head. It sounded hollow.

"M'm!" said Job.

He stepped nearer to the cog which with its squarely arranged sticks looked a firm pillar under the roof.
Then Job knocked out the remaining posts.

A most unexpected roar followed:
sudden terrific downfall of earth; and poor Job of the good temper and sweet melody found himself engulfed in the deluge of stone.

This was the unexpected rock which wrecks the old salt at last.

The falling earth hissed and roared as it broke away and came down, making a hill where there had been a hollow. Dust choked the place—while where a faint gleam from the lamp on the cog shone through the gloom. At the time little downfalls, like sudden showers of hail, added to the mountain of the fall.

JOB'S PATIENCE.

A STORY OF BRAVERY AMONG THE WELSH MINES.

By JOSEPH KEATING, Author of "Son of Judith."

I wonder if anythin' shall be touched?"

Job put his light to the bottom coal, and keeping the lamp like a dog's eye to the ground, slowly searched every inch of the stall, in between the props, sending their shadows swiftly before and like a wheel of light; all down the lower side of the stall he searched, muttering quietly.

"Well, dash that boy, whatever," grimly said Job.

He did not exactly use the explosive "dash," but it will serve.

He slowly bent lower and picked up a bit of shining steel.

"Dash that boy," said he again, without the slightest sign of temper. "An' after sayin' he did put back everythin'. The best wedge I got. An' go an' leave it there to be buried when the top comes down an' shovelled into the gob with the rubbish! Might lost that wedge forever. The best wedge I got, too. Dash that boy."

Then he whistled softly as before, as if he had been giving the boys peppermints instead of beans. If anything could have disturbed the calm, easy, wonderful temper of Job the danger of losing his favorite wedge would be the thing. He had the same feeling for it as an editor for a favorite brand of blue pencil.

"I can knock out a stiff bit o' coal," he said to himself "easier with that wedge than anythin'. An' for him to go an' leave it there! Dash that boy."

But that was only at the end of the verse. He whistled the next verse of the old Welsh melody just as softly and sweetly and as beautifully in tune. Nothing made him lose his presence of mind. Not even such a glaring instance of misplaced confidence in that boy could upset him. It would take an earthquake to do that.

Bent double, he put the lamp in front of him and gave a final look around before laying the low top lower still; then he threw up his light to the lids of one or two of the posts to see if he had forgotten or not to loosen them slightly for knocking out. By this time he had come to the end of the last verse, and he stopped whistling.

He carefully stuck the wedge into a cog, and hung his lamp upon it. Then he went into the roadway, past the full tram of coal which glittered in the light, and picked up a slender six-foot post. But before going back to the cog, he looked up the road way to make sure that the boy was nowhere to be seen. The darkness of endless night filled the place—the black night that knows no day; for Job looked upon a spot hidden under the earth a thousand feet from the light of the sun. Nearer the coal, his little lamp glimmered on the cross timber and rough sides that held up the dangerous roof.

"If I didn't send the young rascal to clean his lamp," said Job, "he'd be potchin' about in here an' get a clout with a stone on his head mos' likely."

It was merely the kindly nature of him which made him so careful. The boy was no son of his only his butty.

He slowly put a plug of strong tobacco into his mouth; for a chew is a very excellent dust sponge, and the job Job had in hand just then would make it necessary. Then satisfied that the lad was far enough from the dangerous operation, he began to whistle once more, and with the six-foot post under his arm returned to his lamp on the cog.

Holding his slender battering-ram as near the end as possible, he went down a step or two, and with professional skill, knocked out the furthest posts firsts. A little creaking and grumbling by the fall of the upper vein of coal, mingled with rubbish.

"More rubbish than anything else," said Job, spitting out the dust which enwrapped him like a fog.

Of course, no one wants rubbish; so Job spoke of it disrespectfully. The mineral called mine makes iron, which in turn makes Birmingham jewelry; coal makes smoke, and smoke makes limited companies and happy shareholders.

He listened for a moment to the voice of the top. All around him it creaked, groaned, and strained like a vessel in rough water. The collier took as much notice of these terrifics as an old salt of a puff of wind. To those who went down to the sea and the pits, shipwreck or destruction was always too near to be terrible. Like an old sailor taking a squint at the weather, the collier just tapped the shining black surface above him gently with his knuckles over his head. It sounded hollow.

"M'm!" said Job.

He stepped nearer to the cog which, with its squarely arranged sticks, looked a firm pillar under the roof. Then Job knocked out the remaining posts.

A most unexpected roar followed; a sudden terrific downfall of earth; and poor Job of the good temper and sweet melody found himself engulfed in this deluge of stone.

This was the unexpected rock which wrecks the old salt at last.

The falling earth hissed and roared, as it broke away and came down, making a hill where there had been a hollow. Dust choked the place—white. where a faint gleam from the lamp on the cog shone through the gloom. All the time little downfalls, like sudden showers of hail, added to the mountain of the fall

Through it all the light hung from the steel wedge on the cog. Sometimes a falling stone hit the lamp and made it swing to and fro. But soon it steadied itself, and shone on calmly till it got another rock. The wedge held firm.

After a time the loosening earth came no more than the mere pattering of raindrops from a tree after a storm. Small flat pebbles fell inoffensively upon the heap with sounds as if they were dropped into water. The dust slowly rolled up on the air-current from the upper to the lower side. It passed through the cut down there and gradually disappeared from Job's stall, so that the lamp brightened up and shed a clear circle of light upon the situation.

Job opened his eyes when instinct told him to do so. He immediately closed them again, when a bunch of rubbish unexpectedly fell over his head. He felt blood trickling from his forehead. He would have wiped it away; but he could not move his arms.

"Broke, I s'pose," thought Job.

Once more he opened his eyes; and he smiled as he saw the lamp shining serenely where he had hung it.

"The best steel wedge I ever had," said he.

Then by the hopeful light he looked upward; he rolled his eyes from side to side. He did everything slowly. At last he tried to rise; failed; tried again; found the effort had lodged him into a tighter fit than ever. He tried again and found he could not move an inch.

So Job quietly submitted. He saw that he was laying on his back. Mountainous stones lay across the lower part of his body; his legs were buried under the big part of his fall; and around his head were grouped the stones that had rolled down the side of the heap. They squeezed upon his cheeks. He bore the pain of it calmly.

He looked straight up into the hole over his head.

"Looks very raggid," thought Job. "More is comin' down. Done for, I s'pose I am now, whatever."

He raised his voice, trying to attract the nearest neighbor, who worked in the upper stall.

"Davith, hay!" shouted Job.

No answer came.

"Hoy—y—y!" Job shouted again.

But he got no response.

"This old fall is dead'nin' my voice," said Job.

But the truth was that poor Job's voice had lost its lustiness, owing to the weakening of his suffering body.

Drip—drip—drip, came the little stones out of the black hollow above.

"Wonder if that boy'll soon come back?" thought Job. "Hoy—y—y!"

He waited for an answer, but none came.

"Well, I mus' do somethin' for myself, I s'pose," said he.

Again he tried to move his body out of its prison. He felt the stones shifting; in the light from the cog he saw a great stone sliding down.

"Ah!" said he, satisfied. "P'raps I can manage by myself, after all."

But he stopped suddenly. As the big stone slid away from against the cog, it set free the loose top which it had held up. With a clatter more stones fell down around the man's head, cutting him again, and completely covering him.

When the sliding and rattling of the stones ceased, and the dust cleared away, Job could only open one eye; the other was held fast by the angle of a stone upon his face. And with the one eye he could barely get a glimpse of the light.

The rubbish was piled up over him, and but a faint gleam came to him through the crevices.

But it was because of the crevices that Job was still breathing. The stones crushed one another, and therefore could not properly get at their victim.

His agony increased; the danger was even more terrible than before; but the moral force of the man left him as calm as ever.

"Better not try that game, I can see," he said. "If I move one stone, down comes 20 more."

He lay quite quiet. Another man, frantic with the pain and terror of it, would struggle. His struggle for life would be his death.

Job merely took his bearings. He locked at the cog, and saw around its top ragged and soft rubbish. This part, he knew, must then have been only held by contact with the remainder of the roof down towards the lower side. But, in order to get at the top seam of coal, the roof down the lower side had to be exposed temporarily. But it was vicious. It resented the exposure of breaking loose and bringing down with it all the top up to the edge of Job's firm cog. This good pillar cut off the breakage, and prevented more of the roof coming down. But it had not been able to prevent Job from going down. He had been a step below it, and a sudden stone had disabled him. With this in his brain, Job quietly planned how to get out. For he saw that even the services of the cog might not hold good for long.

"If on'y it'll hold up till somebody shall come," said he. "Wonder how long that boy'll be again?"

Resigned, he lay still, listening to the ceaseless patter of the dripping pebbles.

"If on'y it'll hold," said he. "Just a move of a bit o' dust might bring it all down worse than ever."

Job's interest then became centred in the build of the cog, wondering whether he had built it with true art—the putting up of one of those square pillars to hold up the earth took as much skill as the decoration of a pillar in the Coliseum. Job rarely flattered himself. Only now, when he saw that the firmness of the cog kept it from slanting, did he feel satisfied with himself. The slightest disturbance to the stones as they now lay would bring them solidly on the face of the man; their displacement would bring down tons of locse earth upon them; and the human head underneath would be crushed into pulp.

"Wonder how long that boy'll be?" thought Job. "No use tryin' to shout, I s'pose. Might shake the stones."

The ghost of a smile grinned grimly in his brain; it could not get as far as his lips.

He lay quite quiet. Drip—drip, fell the little stones upon the great heap. Job's eye looked through the crevices to the lamp. Hope never looked brighter.

"Gives a splendid light," thought Job. "An' that steel wedge is the best I ever had. Holds well. Good old cog, too. Wonder if it'll hold till I'm took out. If is slants any, down everything'll come on me; an' then—so long, whatever."

That very fact—that the turn of a hair meant death—that fact would be the one to set a weak nature roaring for safety. In the crisis a man's real nature shows itself. If the folly is there it will come out. It is only when you strain a man to the breaking point that you see his weakness. But Job's strong nature allowed him to act with the simple quietude that suited the fix he was in. He lay still, with his plan for safety in his brain, waiting coolly for death or rescue.

His eyes were fixed upon his lamp; his brain working out the problem of how it might be possible for anybody to get him out safely. To touch a single stone would be the worst thing that could happen. But if he didn't get the stones away, how was he to be freed? Not only himself, but the one who tried to rescue him might be buried, too.

"Where's that boy?" wondered Job. "Thinks I'm all right, I s'pose. Playin' in the lockin' place, mos' likely. Thinks I'm all right, I s'pose—young monkey."

He heard a dull report.

"Somebody comin' through the door," said Job.

Soon came shuffling footsteps through the dust, and a most unmelodious whistling. The minstrel boy was returning. Evidently his good humor was high. The whistling was sometimes broken off to allow the performer to sing and dance along the roadway.

"Good lad," commented Job. "Wonderful boy that."

The concert came nearer. It stopped at the spot where the boy usually took off his coat.

"Hoy, there, wassy!" called Job.

"Hoy!" returned the wassy.

"Come here a bit. I'm fast." Job said quietly.

The lad ran up to the sound of the voice. He saw only the mountainous fall, with the lamp hanging from the cog.

"Hoy!" he shouted, "where be you?"

"I'm fast," answered Jab. "Run'n tell a couple of 'um to come down here."

The boy looked for the voice. Then, with terror, he understood. The boy lost hold of himself in the horror of it. He began running to and fro senselessly, roaring out:

"Oh! mam, mam. He's under the—he's under the fall. Oh, mam, mam! He's killed; he's killed!"

He could do nothing useful in his fright. But Job's voice steadied him.

"Stop that crying, butty. Do what I tell you. Run up to the next place an' tell a couple of 'um to come here, quick. Don't cry, wassy. Off with you. There, that's a good boy. Off you go."

The cool tone controlled the terrified youngster. He ran to the upper side, climbed over the slope of the fall, his long lamp getting awkwardly mixed up with his short legs, and cut past the face of the coal into the next fall. It was empty. He remembered that the collier had not been to work there that day. Out along the roadway he ran to other places, all the time crying:

"Hoy! Hoy!"

In five minutes, down came the men. Job's stall was filled with streaming lights and excited colliers.

Three of them leaped to the edge of the fall, and in frenzied anxiety started to full away the big stones looking for the stricken man.

Job saw they would bring down the place and bury everybody.

"Whoa, there!" said he. "Steady, boys."

"All right, all right," they cried. "Have you out now in a jiffy."

And again they laid trembling hands on the stones. Down upon the foremost came a stone that laid him out. But he nor the others feared anything of this kind when any one else was in worse danger. Two of them carried the man back, and a half dozen advanced to the rescue. But their eagerness and excitement were dangerous.

"Whoa, there, I tell you," said Job patiently. "Stand back a bit. We'll all be buried if you go on like that. That's you, is it, Shenkin?"

"Ay, Job, that's me. We'll 'ave you out now. But we don't know how."

"Stand by the cog," ordered Job. "Only one—you Shenkin. I got it marked out. See that stone on the corner? Put a post under him first."

"Post—get a post!"

It was in Shenkin's hands in a second. He was a good workman; and in two minutes the post, held up the stone. But even this was not done for nothing. Shenkin's head got a mark that never left it. With the blood streaming down his face, he waited the next order.

"If you stock a bit of a post with a big flat lid slanting against this here stone over my body," said Job, "that'll hold up a lot."

It was done.

Then following out his plan in detail, Job gave order after order. They put a support here, another there; one leaning downwards, one leaning up; some more crossing these. In this way Job calmly worked out his scheme. Under his orders the men occasionally had to run back to avoid an inevitable downfall, like soldiers taking cover.

But they came back to the firing line, and the position was soon conquered. Instead of letting every rescuer get buried under new falls and himself crushed to death altogther, Job coolly insisted upon taking command. His patience and endurance held good; and when at last the willing arms gently drew him from under the crisscross supports of the great stones, he said, with unruffled gravity, as he looked at his lamp hanging from the cog:

"That's the best steel wedge I ever had."

They found a leg and an arm and a few ribs broken.

"Wonder I wasn't killed," calmly remarked Job as they carried him home.

I wonder did it ever occur to him that he had saved his own life by his patience and the rescuers by his simple, cool, solid presence of mind.—New York Post.

QUAINT AND CURIOUS.

Cancer was among the diseases diagnosed in the Talmud 20 centuries ago.

More steel is used in the manufacture of pens than in all the sword and gun factories in the world.

A clever woman traveler mended a rent in her gown by using a hair from her head as thread for the needle she always carries in her purse.

The oldest love letter in the world is in the British museum. It is a proposal of marriage for the hand of an Egyptian princess, and it was made 3500 years ago. It is in the form of an inscribed brick.

Commendatore Boni, the archaeologist of the Roman Forum, says that locality was a cemetery long before it was a forum, and the tombs were packed so close together that no trace of a pathway could be found.

According to the Chemist and Druggist the native drug stores in Japan are still largely stocked with dried snakes, toads, lizards, crabs, etc., infusions of which are the popular household remedies throughout the country.

In London we find there are 65 libraries, which contain reading rooms, and on the bookshelves are 600,000 volumes, which have four million readers. Fiction forms 80 percent of the reading matter. The parks under the control of the council cover 3833 acres, and cost over £100,000 a year to maintain.

The simple ordering of a joint of beef for dinner involves pulling the strings of an almost incalculable number of different trades, which, if every one gave up beef as an article of diet, would to cease to exist. The butcher of 1903 could make no profit out of the beasts he kills were he not to use up every atom of the ox's body besides that fit for food.

Jacky's Mistake.

Two deap sea jackies of Celtic race and Uncle Samuel's service were cruising for a berth one day along a country road. The joyful festivities of the city water front hed delayed their return aboard the white battle craft whose honored name in letters of gold adorned the front of their blue caps, and now adrift they were rolling ahead with the gentle sidewise swing of a ship when she courtesies buoyently to the underhurl of the foam flecked waters. They were a-hungered and a-thirst and had parted with the paymaster's last donation long before the wharves were hull down far astern.

Presently they saw a fine fat bird of emerald hue in a well furnished cage hanging on the veranda of a residence. That parrot a little further up the road, placed on the market, would buy dinner, or at least a drink, and this brace of lawless men of the sea bent themselves to its capture. One slipped into the yard while the other moneyless mariner stood at anchor watch at the gate against a possible surprise. Polly held her peace, but noted the trick out of the tail of her big round eye, till Jack was well within hail. Then she found her black tongue.

"Shove off, you bloody, brine soaked pirate!"

Startled at the stillness broken by rebuke so aptly spoken, or overcome by the natural superstition of the seafaring, Jack lost his nerve and stumbling astern toward the gate he muttered. "Beg pardon, sur. I thought you was a bur-rd."—San Francisco Call.

A "Nervy" Proposition.

On being sentenced to seven days' hard labor at the workhouse for being drunk, a Lowestoft (England) man took a coin from his pocket and offered to toss the mayor whether it should be fourteen days or nothing.

HUNTING BURIED TREASURE

EXPEDITION TO DISCOVER MILLIONS OF PIRATES' PLUNDER.

Hid in Canyon of the Galapagos Islands in 1820-21—A State Department Officer—Talks of the Treasure and the Various Searches for It. This dispatch caught the eye of a State Department official in Washington not long ago:

Valparaiso, Chili, August 8—The British yacht Cavalier, owned by Major Maude, a member of the Royal Army Reserve, has left Coquimbo for Galapagos Islands, where a search will be made for the treasure which is said to have been hidden there a long time ago. The Cavalier met very rough weather near Mocha Island, where the crew temporarily abandoned the vessel and suffered great hardships. The yacht carries two guns and 100 rifles.

"Still after the Galapagos treasure, eh?" he remarked to your correspondent on reading this. "Well, I hope they get it this time. They are taking two guns and 100 rifles along to kill tortoise, I presume. You know the Galapagos Islands swarm with huge tortoises, some of them 600 pounds in weight. No doubt, too any of these monsters would hinder the work of treasure digging.

"But why make fun of these treasure hunters? They are on a quest that to my mind is the most fascinating in the world. What's more, I believe the treasure is there. I have kept track of it a little myself, and if I had a few thousand to spare and six months' leave of absence, might be there myself.

"I'll tell you about this treasure, how it came there, and who buried it there, if you will guarantee not to go down and get it before I do. It was the rich spoils of years of piracy in the West Indies, and was taken round the Horn in 1820 and 1821, when the English war vessels stamped out piracy in the Spanish Main. The Galapagos group lies right out under the equator. The treasure was taken there, and buried on Commander Island, one of the group. The spot was well chosen, in a canon which cleaves the hills running down to the beach. The pirates, who were pretty hotly chased, scattered as soon as they had disposed of their loot. Two of them, Englishmen of the names of Thompson and Chapel, landed at Valparaiso and worked their way back to England. They informed the British Admiralty of the treasure, and on promise of immunity from punishment they furnished maps and even accompanied a man-of-war that was sent out to recover the stuff and apprehend the pirates. That part of the treasure deposited in 1820 was dug up and taken back to England, and the expedition captured eighty of the pirates in small boats along the west coast, took them to Jamaica and hanged them.

"Thompson and Chapel were misty as to the location of the treasure hidden in 1821. This was the bigger lot, as it contained all the loot left in the West Indies. That is the treasure which still lies under the sands of Commander Island. A syndicate of Liverpool merchants sent out an expedition to get the treasure, but it was not found. Since that time many parties have searched for it. In 1846 a man named Keaton, who was said to be descended from one of the pirates, went to Galapagos and recovered $75,000 of the treasure. He was accompanied by a sailor named Bogue. They had two Chilians with them, who afterwards disappeared. Keaton himself also disappeared, but Bogue turned up in St. Johns, New Brunswick, where he was charged with the murder of Keaton, and narrowly escaped the gallows. Several expeditions were fitted out after that, at San Francisco and Victoria, B. C., by persons who had been associated with Keaton. The brig Blakely was fitted out a couple of years ago, and she went down to look for the treasure, but she might as well have looked for pots of gold at the end of rainbows, for she went to Cocos Island, off Costa Rica, instead of going to Galapagos.

"The latest expedition that went in search of the West Indian treasure was in charge of Capt. Brown of Boston, who took a party down from San Francisco in the schooner Herman. He had no definite knowledge of the treasure, but thought it was on Cocos Island. He became involved in a controversy with his crew, and the schooner put in at Honolulu. Later the crowd dribbled back to San Francisco, disgusted with Brown and hidden treasure. They buried about $600 each of their treasure in the venture, I understand.

"The only reference I ever saw of the amount and character of the possessions was an interview with one of the Keaton parties in a San Francisco paper. This said that the treasure was variously estimated at from $33,600,000 to $60,000,000 in money, bullion and utensils. In one excavation was buried 300,000 pounds of silver bullion and money, and in another hole 733 bars of gold, each four by three inches, and two inches thick, as well as jewelled swords, precious stones, and several kettles full of miscellaneous gold.

"And now Capt. Maude of the Royal Army Reserve is after this treasure in the stout yacht Cavalier. Good luck to him! So long as I cannot afford to take a six months' leave of absence from the department, I am willing that Capt. Maude should have his trial. I hope he strikes that canon and diverts without superhuman difficulty the little river that now flows over the spot where the treasure was buried. It is a good six months' task. It might pay—quien sabe? And think of the fun! Think of the international complications to be avoided in smuggling this loot away from the jurisdiction of Ecuador!"—New York Post.

Largest Flower in the World.

The raffesia is a strange plant. It grows in Sumatra and derives its name from Sir Stamford Raffles, governor of Sumatra at one time, and his friend Dr. Arnold, a naturalist. They were the first white men to discover the wonderful plant. It is said to be the largest and most magnificent flower in the world. It is composed of five roundish petals, each a foot across and of brick red color, covered with numerous irregular yellowish white swellings. The petals surround a cup nearly a foot wide, the margin of which bears the stamens.

This cup is filled with a fleshy disk, the upper surface of which is everywhere covered with projections like miniature cow's horns. The cup when free from its contents would hold about twelve pints of water. The flower weighs fifteen pounds. It is very thick, the petals being three-quarters of an inch in thickness. With its beauty one is led to expect sweetness, but its odor is that of tainted beef, and Dr. Arnold supposed that even the flies were deceived by the smell and were depositing their eggs in the thick disk, taking it for a piece of carrion.

AN INDUSTRY FOR PORTO RICO.

The Island a Natural Home of Sisal Fibre Plants.

Backed by the necessary capital from the United States, the island of Porto Rico might become one of the greatest producers of sisal fibre under the protection of the stars and stripes. The henequen plant grows almost everywhere throughout the island, and the natives have produced surprising results with the fibre, despite the fact that they have given it little or no attention. They have known the value of the plant for generations, but with true tropical apathy have taken hardly any steps to make the most of their knowledge.

There are four kinds of the fibre plant growing in Porto Rico. They are: Henequen, maguey, San Loveria, and emajagua. All belong to the one family of plant, although varying a trifle as to the size of the leaf and quality of fibre. The plant is thickest in the Maysaguez district, on the eastern shore of the island. Of the four varieties, San Loveria is the favorite with the natives. They plait ropes from this fibre that for strength and lightness cannot be surpassed. These ropes are used on the harbor sailing vessels, and have often been purchased by skippers of foreign vessels putting in here. The rope is made of every size, from the donkey-engine hawser to the much used deck twine.

A few enterprising men have tried within the last few years to have the natives stand by them in an attempt to boom the growth of the plant here. The natives were energetic until their curiosity was satisfied, and then came the inevitable slump, and the boomer found himself alone and practically helpless when it came to ascertaining the exact location of the best supplies of the plant and the best methods of promoting the growth. With the supplies obtained, however, a considerable quantity was shipped to England from time to time, and the report from that country was very encouraging. The fibre was woven into many fabrics, and caused admiration among the larger weavers. It was said that the best results were obtained in Belfast, Ireland, where a linen manufacturer in that city evolved a fabric that closely resembled the finest silk. This fabric, which was named Borlinquen, after the ancient name of Porto Rico, was made into gowns for court receptions, and was much praised. The Belfast manufacturer, after making every preparation to continue the weaving of the fibre, had to give the project up in despair, because of the uncertainty of the supply. Ships from the distant island arrived seldom, and then with very little of the plant product aboard.

While in many sections of the United States a determined effort is making to grow the sisal fibre, and with varying degrees of success, here in Porto Rico, with hardly any trouble whatever, the plant attains a hardy growth and is in evidence almost everywhere. The natives plait the fibre in a deft manner. They have a six-strand plait which they then over-plait into another six-strand, until at last they fabricate a piece of "cloth," as they call it, of about the consistency of finely woven carpet. Some of the fibre is used for harness instead of leather, and gives excellent service. At the present time there is no systematic manufacture of henequen into marketable goods, but a number of men who have experimented in the past hope to interest manufacturers of the North.—San Juan (P. R.) correspondent of the New York Evening Post.

First Lady Motorist.

The first lady motorist, it is said, was Mrs. John Biddulph Martin, of Morton Park, Worcestershire, the widow of Mr. Martin, of Martin's Bank. Mrs. Martin was not only the first lady to appear on a motor car in Hyde Park, but also the first woman to take a motor tour on the English country roads, and to visit scores of lovely villages almost entirely unknown to travelers.

JOB'S PATIENCE.

A STORY OF BRAVERY AMONG THE WELSH MINES.

By JOSEPH KEATING, Author of "Son of Judith."

I wonder if anythin' shall be [illegible]?"

Job put his light to the bottom coal, keeping the lamp like a dog's to the ground, slowly searched every inch of the stall, in between the props, sending their shadows swiftly round like a wheel of light; all down the lower side of the stall he searched, whistling quietly

"Well, dash that boy, whatever," grimly said Job.

He did not exactly use the explete "dash," but it will serve.

He slowly bent lower and picked up a bit of shining steel.

"Dash that boy," said he again, without the slightest sign of temper. "An' after sayin' he did put back every one. The best wedge I got. An' to go an' leave it there to be buried when the top comes down an' shovelled into the gob with the rubbish! I might lost that wedge forever. The best wedge I got, too. Dash that boy."

Then he whistled softly as before, as if he had been giving the boy sixpences instead of beans. If anything could have disturbed the calm, the wonderful temper of Job the dandler of losing his favorite wedge would be the thing. He had the same feeling for it as an editor for a favorite brand of blue pencil.

"I can knock out a stiff bit o' coal," he said to himself "easier with that wedge than anythin'. An' for him to go an' leave it there! Dash that boy."

But that was only at the end of the verse. He whistled the next verse of the old Welsh melody just as softly and sweetly and as beautifully in tune. Nothing made him lose his presence of mind. Not even such a glaring instance of misplaced confidence in that boy could upset him. It would take an earthquake to do that.

Bent double, he put the lamp in front of him and gave a final lock around before laying the low top lower still; then he threw up his light to the lids of one or two of the posts to see if he had forgotten or not to loosen them slightly for knocking out. By this time he had come to the end of the last verse, and he stopped whistling.

He carefully stuck the wedge into a prop, and hung his lamp upon it. Then he went into the roadway, past the full tram of coal which glittered in the light, and picked up a slender six-foot post. But before going back to the cog, he looked up the road way to make sure that the boy was nowhere to be seen. The darkness of endless night filled the place—the black night that knows no day; for Job looked upon a spot hidden under the earth a thousand feet from the light of the sun. Nearer the coal, his little lamp glimmered on the cross timber and rough sides that held up the dangerous roof.

"If I didn't send the young rascal to clean his lamp," said Job, "he'd be potchin' about in here an' get a clout with a stone on his head mos' likely."

It was merely the kindly nature of him which made him so careful. The boy was no son of his only his butty.

He slowly put a plug of strong tobacco into his mouth; for a chew is a very excellent dust sponge, and the job Job had in hand just then would make it necessary. Then satisfied that the lad was far enough from the dangerous operation, he began to whistle once more, and with the six-foot post under his arm returned to his lamp on the cog.

Holding his slender battering-ram as near the end as possible, he went down a step or two, and with professional skill, knocked out the furthest posts firsts. A little creaking and grumbling by the fall of the upper vein of coal, mingled with rubbish.

"More rubbish than anything else," said Job, spitting out the dust which enwrapped him like a fog.

Of course, no one wants rubbish; so Job spoke of it disrespectfully. The mineral called mine makes iron, which in turn makes Birmingham jewelry; coal makes smoke, and smoke makes limited companies and happy shareholders.

He listened for a moment to the voice of the top. All around him it creaked, groaned, and strained like a vessel in rough water. The collier took as much notice of these terrifics as an old salt of a puff of wind. To those who went down to the sea and the pits, shipwreck or destruction was always too near to be terrible. Like an old sailor taking a squint at the weather, the collier just tapped the shining black surface above him gently with his knuckles over his head. It sounded hollow.

"M'm!" said Job.

He stepped nearer to the cog which, with its squarely arranged sticks, looked a firm pillar under the roof. Then Job knocked out the remaining posts.

Almost unexpected roar followed; a sudden terrific downfall of earth; and poor Job of the good temper and sweet melody found himself engulfed in this deluge of stone.

This was the unexpected rock which wrecks the old salt at last.

The falling earth hissed and roared, as it broke away and came down, making a hill where there had been a hollow. Dust choked the place—white, where a faint gleam from the lamp on the cog shone through the gloom. All the same little downfalls, like sudden showers of hail, added to the mountain of the fall

Through it all the light hung from the steel wedge on the cog. Sometimes a falling stone hit the lamp and made it swing to and fro. But soon it steadied itself, and shone on calmly till it got another rock. The wedge held firm.

After a time the loosening earth came no more than the mere pattering of raindrops from a tree after a storm. Small flat pebbles fell inoffensively upon the heap with sounds as if they were dropped into water. The dust slowly rolled up on the air-current from the upper to the lower side. It passed through the cut down there and gradually disappeared from Job's stall, so that the lamp brightened up and shed a clear circle of light upon the situation.

Job opened his eyes when instinct told him to do so. He immediately closed them again, when a bunch of rubbish unexpectedly fell over his head. He felt blood trickling from his forehead. He would have wiped it away; but he could not move his arms.

"Broke, I s'pose," thought Job.

Once more he opened his eyes; and he smiled as he saw the lamp shining serenely where he had hung it.

"The best steel wedge I ever had," said he.

Then by the hopeful light he looked upward; he rolled his eyes from side to side. He did everything slowly. At last he tried to rise; failed; tried again; found the effort had lodged him into a tighter fit than ever. He tried again and found he could not move an inch.

So Job quietly submitted. He saw that he was laying on his back. Mountainous stones lay across the lower part of his body; his legs were buried under the big part of his fall; and around his head were grouped the stones that had rolled down the side of the heap. They squeezed upon his cheeks. He bore the pain of it calmly.

He looked straight up into the hole over his head.

"Looks very raggid," thought Job. "More is comin' down. Done for, I s'pose I am now, whatever."

He raised his voice, trying to attract the nearest neighbor, who worked in the upper stall.

"Davith, hoy!" shouted Job.

No answer came.

"Hoy—y—y!" Job shouted again.

But he got no response.

"This old fall is dead'nin' my voice," said Job.

But the truth was that poor Job's voice had lost its lustiness, owing to the weakening of his suffering body.

Drip—drip—drip, came the little stones out of the black hollow above.

"Wonder if that boy'll soon come back?" thought Job. "Hoy—y—y!"

He waited for an answer, but none came.

"Well, I mus' do somethin' for myself, I s'pose," said he.

Again he tried to move his body out of its prison. He felt the stones shifting; in the light from the cog he saw a great stone sliding down.

"Ah!" said he, satisfied. "P'raps I can manage by myself, after all."

But he stopped suddenly. As the big stone slid away from against the cog, it set free the loose top which it had held up. With a clatter more stones fell down around the man's head, cutting him again, and completely covering him.

When the sliding and rattling of the stones ceased, and the dust cleared away, Job could only open one eye; the other was held fast by the angle of a stone upon his face. And with the one eye he could barely get a glimpse of the light.

The rubbish was piled up over him, and but a faint gleam came to him through the crevices.

But it was because of the crevices that Job was still breathing. The stones crushed one another, and therefore could not properly get at their victim.

His agony increased; the danger was even more terrible than before; but the moral force of the man left him as calm as ever.

"Better not try that game, I can see," he said. "If I move one stone, down comes 20 more."

He lay quite quiet. Another man, frantic with the pain and terror of it, would struggle. His struggle for life would be his death.

Job merely took his bearings. He looked at the cog, and saw around its top ragged and soft rubbish. This part, he knew, must then have been only held by contact with the remainder of the roof down towards the lower side. But, in order to get at the top seam of coal, the roof down the lower side had to be exposed temporarily. But it was vicious. It resented the exposure of breaking loose and bringing down with it all the top up to the edge of Job's firm cog. This good pillar cut off the breakage, and prevented more of the roof coming down. But it had not been able to prevent Job from going down. He had been a step below it, and a sudden stone had disabled him. With this in his brain, Job quietly planned how to get out. For he saw that even the services of the cog might not hold good for long.

"If on'y it'll hold up till somebody shall come," said he. "Wonder how long that boy'll be again?"

Resigned, he lay still, listening to the ceaseless patter of the dripping pebbles.

"If on'y it'll hold," said he. "Just a move of a bit o' dust might bring it all down worse than ever."

Job's interest then became centred in the build of the cog, wondering whether he had built it with true art—the putting up of one of those square pillars to hold up the earth took as much skill as the decoration of a pillar in the Coliseum. Job rarely flattered himself. Only now, when he saw that the firmness of the cog kept it from slanting, did he feel satisfied with himself. The slightest disturbance to the stones as they now lay would bring them solidly on the face of the man; their displacement would bring down tons of loose earth upon them; and the human head underneath would be crushed into pulp.

"Wonder how long that boy'll be?" thought Job. "No use tryin' to shout, I s'pose. Might shake the stones."

The ghost of a smile grinned grimly in his brain; it could not get as far as his lips.

He lay quite quiet. Drip—drip, fell the little stones upon the great heap. Job's eye looked through the crevices to the lamp. Hope never looked brighter.

"Gives a splendid light," thought Job. "An' that steel wedge is the best I ever had. Holds well. Good old cog, too. Wonder if it'll hold till I'm took out. If is slants any, down everything'll come on me; an' then—so long, whatever."

That very fact—that the turn of a hair meant death—that fact would be the one to set a weak nature roaring for safety. In the crisis a man's real nature shows itself. If the folly is there it will come out. It is only when you strain a man to the breaking point that you see his weakness. But Job's strong nature allowed him to act with the simple quietude that suited the fix he was in. He lay still, with his plan for safety in his brain, waiting coolly for death or rescue.

His eyes were fixed upon his lamp; his brain working out the problem of how it might be possible for anybody to get him out safely. To touch a single stone would be the worst thing that could happen. But if he didn't get the stones away, how was he to be freed? Not only himself, but the one who tried to rescue him might be buried, too.

"Where's that boy?" wondered Job. "Thinks I'm all right, I s'pose. Playin' in the lockin' place, mos' likely. Thinks I'm all right, I s'pose—young monkey."

He heard a dull report.

"Somebody comin' through the door," said Job.

Soon came shuffling footsteps through the dust, and a most unmelodious whistling. The minstrel boy was returning. Evidently his good humor was high. The whistling was sometimes broken off to allow the performer to sing and dance along the roadway.

"Good lad," commented Job. "Wonderful boy that."

The concert came nearer. It stopped at the spot where the boy usually took off his coat.

"Hoy, there, wassy!" called Job.

"Hoy!" returned the wassy.

"Come here a bit. I'm fast." Job said quietly.

The lad ran up to the sound of the voice. He saw only the mountainous fall, with the lamp hanging from the cog.

"Hoy!" he shouted, "where be you?"

"I'm fast," answered Jab. "Run'n tell a couple of 'um to come down here."

The boy looked for the voice. Then, with terror, he understood. The boy lost hold of himself in the horror of it. He began running to and fro senselessly, roaring out:

"Oh! mam, mam. He's under the—he's under the fall. Oh, mam, mam! He's killed; he's killed!"

He could do nothing useful in his fright. But Job's voice steadied him.

"Stop that crying, butty. Do what I tell you. Run up to the next place an' tell a couple of 'um to come here, quick. Don't cry, wassy. Off with you. There, that's a good boy. Off you go."

The cool tone controlled the terrified youngster. He ran to the upper side, climbed over the slope of the fall, his long lamp getting awkwardly mixed up with his short legs, and cut past the face of the coal into the next fall. It was empty. He remembered that the collier had not been to work there that day. Out along the roadway he ran to other places, all the time crying:

"Hoy! Hoy!"

In five minutes, down came the men. Job's stall was filled with streaming lights and excited colliers.

Three of them leaped to the edge of the fall, and in frenzied anxiety started to full away the big stones locking for the stricken man.

Job saw they would bring down the place and bury everybody.

"Whoa, there!" said he. "Steady, boys."

"All right, all right," they cried. "Have you out now in a jiffy."

And again they laid trembling hands on the stones. Down upon the foremost came a stone that laid him out. But he nor the others feared anything of this kind when any one else was in worse danger. Two of them carried the man back, and a half dozen advanced to the rescue. But their eagerness and excitement were dangerous.

"Whoa, there, I tell you," said Job patiently. "Stand back a bit. We'll all be buried if you go on like that. That's you, is it, Shenkin?"

"Ay, Job, that's me. We'll 'ave you out now. But we don't know how."

"Stand by the cog," ordered Job. "Only one—you Shenkin. I got it marked out. See that stone on the corner? Put a post under him first."

"Post—get a post!"

It was in Shenkin's hands in a second. He was a good workman; and in two minutes the post, held up the stone. But even this was not done for nothing. Shenkin's head got a mark that never left it. With the blood streaming down his face, he waited the next order.

"If you stock a bit of a post with a big flat lid slanting against this here stone over my body," said Job, "that'll hold up a lot."

It was done.

Then following out his plan in detail, Job gave order after order. They put a support here, another there; one leaning downwards, one leaning up; some more crossing these. In this way Job calmly worked out his scheme. Under his orders the men occasionally had to run back to avoid an inevitable downfall, like soldiers taking cover.

But they came back to the firing line, and the position was soon conquered. Instead of letting every rescuer get buried under new falls and himself crushed to death altogther, Job coolly insisted upon taking command. His patience and endurance held good; and when at last the willing arms gently drew him from under the crisscross supports of the great stones, he said, with unruffled gravity, as he looked at his lamp hanging from the cog:

"That's the best steel wedge I ever had."

They found a leg and an arm and a few ribs broken.

"Wonder I wasn't killed," calmly remarked Job as they carried him home.

I wonder did it ever occur to him that he had saved his own life by his patience and the rescuers by his simple, cool, solid presence of mind.—New York Post.

QUAINT AND CURIOUS.

Cancer was among the diseases diagnosed in the Talmud 20 centuries ago.

More steel is used in the manufacture of pens than in all the sword and gun factories in the world.

A clever woman traveler mended a rent in her gown by using a hair from her head as thread for the needle she always carries in her purse.

The oldest love letter in the world is in the British museum. It is a proposal of marriage for the hand of an Egyptian princess, and it was made 3500 years ago. It is in the form of an inscribed brick.

Commendatore Boni, the archaeologist of the Roman Forum, says that locality was a cemetery long before it was a forum, and the tombs were packed so close together that no trace of a pathway could be found.

According to the Chemist and Druggist the native drug stores in Japan are still largely stocked with dried snakes, toads, lizards, crabs, etc., infusions of which are the popular household remedies throughout the country.

In London we find there are 65 libraries, which contain reading rooms, and on the bookshelves are 600,000 volumes, which have four million readers. Fiction forms 80 percent of the reading matter. The parks under the control of the council cover 3833 acres, and cost over £100,000 a year to maintain.

The simple ordering of a joint of beef for dinner involves pulling the strings of an almost incalculable number of different trades, which, if every one gave up beef as an article of diet, would to cease to exist. The butcher of 1903 could make no profit out of the beasts he kills were he not to use up every atom of the ox's body besides that fit for food.

Jacky's Mistake.

Two deap sea jackies of Celtic race and Uncle Samuel's service were cruising for a berth one day along a country road. The joyful festivities of the city water front hed delayed their return aboard the white battle craft whose honored name in letters of gold adorned the front of their blue caps, and now adrift they were rolling ahead with the gentle sidewise swing of a ship when she courtesies buoyently to the underhurl of the foam flecked waters. They were a-hungered and a-thirst and had parted with the paymaster's last donation long before the wharves were hull down far astern.

Presently they saw a fine fat bird of emerald hue in a well furnished cage hanging on the veranda of a residence. That parrot a little further up the road, placed on the market, would buy dinner, or at least a drink, and this brace of lawless men of the sea bent themselves to its capture. One slipped into the yard while the other moneyless mariner stood at anchor watch at the gate against a possible surprise. Polly held her peace, but noted the trick out of the tail of her big round eye, till Jack was well within hail. Then she found her black tongue.

"Shove off, you bloody, brine soaked pirate!"

Startled at the stillness broken by rebuke so aptly spoken, or overcome by the natural superstition of the seafaring, Jack lost his nerve and stumbling astern toward the gate he muttered, "Beg pardon, sur. I thought you was a bur-rd."—San Francisco Call.

A "Nervy" Proposition.

On being sentenced to seven days' hard labor at the workhouse for being drunk, a Lowestoft (England) man took a coin from his pocket and offered to toss the mayor whether it should be fourteen days or nothing.

HUNTING BURIED TREASURE

EXPEDITION TO DISCOVER MILLIONS OF PIRATES' PLUNDER.

Hid in Canyon of the Galapagos Islands in 1820-21—A State Department Officer—Talks of the Treasure and the Various Searches for It. This dispatch caught the eye of a State Department official in Washington not long ago:

Valparaiso, Chili, August 8—The British yacht Cavalier, owned by Major Maude, a member of the Royal Army Reserve, has left Ocquimbo for Galapagos Islands, where a search will be made for the treasure which is said to have been hidden there a long time ago. The Cavalier met very rough weather near Mocha Island, where the crew temporarily abandoned the vessel and suffered great hardships. The yacht carries two guns and 100 rifles.

"Still after the Galapagos treasure, eh?" he remarked to your correspondent on reading this. "Well, I hope they get it this time. They are taking two guns and 100 rifles along to kill tortoise, I presume. You know the Galapagos Islands swarm with huge tortoises, some of them 600 pounds in weight. No doubt, too any of these monsters would hinder the work of treasure digging.

"But why make fun of these treasure hunters? They are on a quest that to my mind is the most fascinating in the world. What's more, I believe the treasure is there. I have kept track of it a little myself, and if I had a few thousand to spare and six months' leave of absence, might be there myself.

"I'll tell you about this treasure, how it came there, and who buried it there, if you will guarantee not to go down and get it before I do. It was the rich spoils of years of piracy in the West Indies, and was taken round the Horn in 1820 and 1821, when the English war vessels stamped out piracy in the Spanish Main. The Galapagos group lies right out under the equator. The treasure was taken there, and buried on Commander Island, one of the group. The spot was well chosen, in a canon which cleaves the hills running down to the beach. The pirates, who were pretty hotly chased, scattered as soon as they had disposed of their loot. Two of them, Englishmen of the names of Thompson and Chapel, landed at Valparaiso and worked their way back to England. They informed the British Admiralty of the treasure, and on promise of immunity from punishment they furnished maps and even accompanied a man-of-war that was sent out to recover the stuff and apprehend the pirates. That part of the treasure deposited in 1820 was dug up and taken back to England, and the expedition captured eighty of the pirates in small boats along the west coast, took them to Jamaica and hanged them.

"Thompson and Chapel were misty as to the location of the treasure hidden in 1821. This was the bigger lot, as it contained all the loot left in the West Indies. That is the treasure which still lies under the sands of Commander Island. A syndicate of Liverpool merchants sent out an expedition to get the treasure, but it was not found. Since that time many parties have searched for it. In 1846 a man named Keaton, who was said to be descended from one of the pirates, went to Galapagos and recovered $75,000 of the treasure. He was accompanied by a sailor named Bogue. They had two Chilians with them, who afterwards disappeared. Keaton himself also disappeared, but Bogue turned up in St. Johns, New Brunswick, where he was charged with the murder of Keaton, and narrowly escaped the gallows. Several expeditions were fitted out after that, at San Francisco and Victoria, B. C., by persons who had been associated with Keaton. The brig Blakely was fitted out a couple of years ago, and she went down to look for the treasure, but she might as well have looked for pots of gold at the end of rainbows, for she went to Cocos Island, off Costa Rica, instead of going to Galapagos.

"The latest expedition that went in search of the West Indian treasure was in charge of Capt. Brown of Boston, who took a party down from San Francisco in the schooner Herman. He had no definite knowledge of the treasure, but thought it was on Cocos Island. He became involved in a controversy with his crew, and the schooner put in at Honolulu. Later the crowd dribbled back to San Francisco, disgusted with Brown and hidden treasure. They buried about $600 each of their treasure in the venture, I understand.

"The only reference I ever saw of the amount and character of the possessions was an interview with one of the Keaton parties in a San Francisco paper. This said that the treasure was variously estimated at from $33,600,000 to $60,000,000 in money, bullion and utensils. In one excavation was buried 300,000 pounds of silver bullion and money, and in another hole 733 bars of gold, each four by three inches, and two inches thick, as well as jewelled swords, precious stones, and several kettles full of miscellaneous gold.

"And now Capt. Maude of the Royal Army Reserve is after this treasure in the stout yacht Cavalier. Good luck to him! So long as I cannot afford to take a six months' leave of absence from the department, I am willing that Capt. Maude should have his trial. I hope he strikes that canon and diverts without superhuman difficulty the little river that now flows over the spot where the treasure was buried. It is a good six months' task. It might pay—quien sabe? And think of the fun! Think of the international complications to be avoided in smuggling this loot away from the jurisdiction of Ecuador!"—New York Post.

Largest Flower in the World.

The raffesia is a strange plant. It grows in Sumatra and derives its name from Sir Stamford Raffles, governor of Sumatra at one time, and his friend Dr. Arnold, a naturalist. They were the first white men to discover the wonderful plant. It is said to be the largest and most magnificent flower in the world. It is composed of five roundish petals, each a foot across and of brick red color, covered with numerous irregular yellowish white swellings. The petals surround a cup nearly a foot wide, the margin of which bears the stamens.

This cup is filled with a fleshy disk, the upper surface of which is everywhere covered with projections like miniature cow's horns. The cup when free from its contents would hold about twelve pints of water. The flower weighs fifteen pounds. It is very thick, the petals being three-quarters of an inch in thickness. With its beauty one is led to expect sweetness, but its oder is that of tainted beef, and Dr. Arnold supposed that even the flies were deceived by the smell and were depositing their eggs in the thick disk, taking it for a piece of carrion.

AN INDUSTRY FOR PORTO RICO.

The Island a Natural Home of Sisal Fibre Plants.

Backed by the necessary capital from the United States, the island of Porto Rico might become one of the greatest producers of sisal fibre under the protection of the stars and stripes. The henequen plant grows almost everywhere throughout the island, and the natives have produced surprising results with the fibre, despite the fact that they have given it little or no attention. They have known the value of the plant for generations, but with true tropical apathy have taken hardly any steps to make the most of their knowledge.

There are four kinds of the fibre plant growing in Porto Rico. They are: Henequen, maguey, San Loveria, and emajagua. All belong to the one family of plant, although varying a trifle as to the size of the leaf and quality of fibre. The plant is thickest in the Maysaguez district, on the eastern shore of the island. Of the four varieties, San Loveria is the favorite with the natives. They plait ropes from this fibre that for strength and lightness cannot be surpassed. These ropes are used on the harbor sailing vessels, and have often been purchased by skippers of foreign vessels putting in here. The rope is made of every size, from the donkey-engine hawser to the much used deck twine.

A few enterprising men have tried within the last few years to have the natives stand by them in an attempt to boom the growth of the plant here. The natives were energetic until their curiosity was satisfied, and then came the inevitable slump, and the boomer found himself alone and practically helpless when it came to ascertaining the exact location of the best supplies of the plant and the best methods of promoting the growth. With the supplies obtained, however, a considerable quantity was shipped to England from time to time, and the report from that country was very encouraging. The fibre was woven into many fabrics, and caused admiration among the larger weavers. It was said that the best results were obtained in Belfast, Ireland, where a linen manufacturer in that city evolved a fabric that closely resembled the finest silk. This fabric, which was named Borlinquen, after the ancient name of Porto Rico, was made into gowns for court receptions, and was much praised. The Belfast manufacturer, after making every preparation to continue the weaving of the fibre, had to give the project up in despair, because of the uncertainty of the supply. Ships from the distant island arrived seldom, and then with very little of the plant product aboard.

While in many sections of the United States a determined effort is making to grow the sisal fibre, and with varying degrees of success, here in Porto Rico, with hardly any trouble whatever, the plant attains a hardy growth and is in evidence almost everywhere. The natives plait the fibre in a deft manner. They have a six-strand plait which they then over-plait into another six-strand, until at last they fabricate a piece of "cloth," as they call it, of about the consistency of finely woven carpet. Some of the fibre is used for harness instead of leather, and gives excellent service. At the present time there is no systematic manufacture of henequen into marketable goods, but a number of men who have experimented in the past hope to interest manufacturers of the North.—San Juan (P. R.) correspondent of the New York Evening Post.

First Lady Motorist.

The first lady motorist, it is said, was Mrs. John Biddulph Martin, of Morton Park, Worcestershire, the widow of Mr. Martin, of Martin's Bank. Mrs. Martin was not only the first lady to appear on a motor car in Hyde Park, but also the first woman to take a motor tour on the English country roads, and to visit scores of lovely villages almost entirely unknown to travelers.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

OUR CLUBBING LIST.

The Union and Yellow Jacket, both for one year $1.00
The Union and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser 1.25
The Union and Weekly Atlanta Constitution 1.50
tf

Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it.
tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

PEOPLE'S PARTY NOMINEES.

County Ticket.

For Judge of Probate,
L. H. REYNOLDS.
For County Treasurer,
J. BICE.
For Tax Collector,
T. J. HUBBARD,
For Tax Assessor,
L. B. POUNDS.
For Clerk of Circuit Court,
SAM W. COLLINS.
For County Supt. of Education.
J. W. MOORE.
For Coroner,
FRANK MASSEY,
For County Commissioner, 1st District,
W. H. CONWAY,
For County Commissioner, 2d District,
ALEX GLASSCOCK.
For County Commissioner, 3d District,
R. P. KENDRICK.
For County Commissioner, 4th District
MOSES ROBINSON.
tf

SUBSCRIBE NOW.

The offer of The Union with the St. Louis Globe-Democrat which comes TWICE-A-WEEK, is great value. Just think of it, 156 papers a year for a hundred and fifty cents, less than 3c per week. Come in now. THE UNION is reaching for the 800 mark this month; in October we'll set our stakes farther on. Stand by your own paper, the one that represents the people.

WHO'S AFRAID?

What has happened to the democratic proposition that Congressman Bowie should meet Judge L. H. Reynolds in a joint debate? Reynolds is ready and anxious for the fray, so it is up to the democratic promoters.

THE CLANTON POSTOFFICE.

In view of the fact that our postoffice will soon be raised to the third grade, and that the department pays the rent, then we should have a brick building to house it in, put up especially for that purpose. The government will make a contract for a term of years, thus insuring the owner good return on his investment. It would make a welcome addition to the many brick buildings now lining our business streets, and is needed by the rapidly growing interests of our city. Let's get out and hustle for a real republican for postmaster and a new postoffice.

REPUBLICAN GATHERING.

On the 15th there was quite a gathering of republicans in Birmingham, the occasion being the meeting of the state committee and a speaking in the evening at the Jefferson theater. The house was filled with an appreciative audience from all parts of the state, and they had a treat, for Captain Scott had "done himself proud" and brought two exceptionally good speakers, the Hon. E. P. Browne, of New York, and the Hon. E. B. Gumby, of Fla. Mr. Browne has a positive genius for figures and made even statistics interesting, and his talk on how the tariff helped the farmer ought to be heard by every farmer in our land. Mr. Gumby was both eloquent and witty and pleased his hearers. Judge J. H. Montgomery, of Birmingham, presided and introduced the speakers in his usual happy manner. Altogether it was good to be there.

JUDGE TERRY RICHARDSON.

In last week's Banner Judge Richardson has a card stating that "I made no such statements as are imputed to me in the different issues of The Union with which I am familiar." Why don't the judge state what he seems now to think he said then? The statements in The Union of July 14th, in regards to Judge Richardson's saying that "the children of your county will never get their share of the public school money until you elect a democrat to represent you," and "that if we are ever in danger from an opposition party in this state we will register all the negroes and vote them, and the dead ones too," are correct. We stood not over a dozen feet from the judge and took note of what he said, and also the Hon. L. H. Reynolds (his opponent in the debate) took notes, and in his reply routed the judge "horse, foot and dragoons," scarifying him so badly that the judge, smarting under the verbal castigation, asked for an extra five minutes (which was accorded him), but the judge did not deny using these words then. As to what he said about the federal judge at Montgomery, that he was "A man, formerly a democrat, who was bought by Roosevelt with a place and indorsed by Booker Washington," Judge Richardson used these very words, and as Judge Jones claims to be a democrat yet, the two can settle it between themselves. There isn't any need to misquote Judge Richardson, the plain truth is damning enough.

THE BANNER MAN.

The banner man is harping lately about "carpetbaggers" and uses the word in a connection which shows his ignorance of things in general and this in particular. The editor of The Union is an American citizen by birth and inheritance; he was born and reared in the city of New York, the metropolis of this great nation, a city which has more citizens of southern birth than any single city in the southern states has inhabitants, a city which has the largest camp of confederate veterans in our common country, a city that if the democratic party does not vote enough of the foreign-born naturalized element (that forms part of its population) to overpower the native born Americans in the rural communities of New York state, it will see its already very slim chance for the presidency "go a glimmering." The banner man says he came to Chilton about twelve years ago: that agrees with what a Jemison man said last Saturday (he was telling when he first saw the immigrant) he also said that the banner man came down the track of the L. and N. (he had a tie-pass) and vanished in the direction of Clanton in a cloud of dust, through which the patches on his rear car showed like danger signals. On his arrival in Clanton the populists took care of him, fed him and gave him work, contributed money to buy him a printing plant and keep him going, and in eight years had the viper so warmed up that he turned on the hand that fed him and sold out to their political enemies, and now uncorks the vials of his puny wrath upon his benefactors and calls them "—ers." But what can you expect of a man that had the gall to try for the nomination of representative for Chilton, and he not even naturalized yet? This was in 1896 and he was naturalized at the spring term of our circuit court in 1902. But our people had too much American common sense and they buried him at the primary. Look even at his record in the press association. He was put on the witness stand in Birmingham last year and admitted having written a lie to Captain Faulkner of the L. and N. when he wrote to him for passes for his two sisters! Let our people avoid him and his pest house banner and not have anything to do with either of the "twin relics."

Marie Corelli, the gifted lady whose contributions to fiction have furnished keen delight to satirical reviewers, is leaving the relatively safe field of novel writing for that of social criticism. In the current "Bystander," an English publication, she remarks upon the modern "At Homes," which are, she says, "a curious sort of social poultry yards where the hens have it all their own way, and do most distinctly crow." Who, after this, will have the courage to give to others that mild social pleasure, an "At Home?" asks the Argonaut.

Although corn is a practically universal crop, it is maintained that the yield can be materially increased through improvement of varieties and particularly in determining the kind best adapted to each section, says Guy E. Mitchell. The Department of Agriculture is studying the development and acclimatization of at least one superior strain of corn for each of the various geographic sections of the United States. It is stated that in several sections where this work has been in progress two or more years growers have before them an object lesson proving that well bred and selected seed will produce as much as sixteen bushels per acre more than the seed usually planted.

KILLED IN FLORIDA FEUD

Bloody Battle in Front of a House at Night

First Engagement Was on a Train—Both Parties Are Followers in Private War—Troops Called Out.

Baxter, Fla. — The Duncan-Altman feud, which began in a fight on a train the other day, led to a battle in which two more men were killed and over half a dozen were wounded.

The State authorities sent Wilson's Battery, of Jacksonville, to the scene of hostilities. It arrived at 5 o'clock, and has gone into camp.

The battle resulted from an attack on the house of William Duncan, which has been garrisoned nightly by a posse since the outbreak of the disorder. In the number was Deputy Sheriff Thrift.

Suddenly and without warning there were as many as twenty-five shots from rifles and pistols fired at the house. The deputy called on his posse to assist him, and as they came from the house there was another volley of shots.

Thrift was standing in front of the house. He was shot and lived but a few moments.

The others returned the fire and killed Ellis Dowling, a member of the Altman faction. The mob withdrew to the home of the Altmans, where they are ready to resist any attempt at arrest.

More than a half dozen were wounded, but their names cannot be obtained.

It was in response to an appeal by law abiding citizens that Wilson's Battery was sent here, arriving on a special train about 5 o'clock. The troops have cordoned their camp with sentries.

The Altman faction is hostile to the troops, saying the soldiers have been sent here to uphold the Duncans. Governor Jennings is not in the State, and the troops were sent here by the Speaker of the House, Cromwell Gibson, who is Acting Governor in the absence of Jennings.

Shortly before dark Sheriff Herndon and his posse brought in seven prisoners of the Altman faction. These men are stretched out on the floor of a shanty under guard of the Live Oak Rifles, the Wilson Battery of Artillery and the Sheriff's posse.

There are eleven others of the Altman feudists. The men who were sent to see them have just returned and report that they have agreed to surrender themselves, and will come in voluntarily and give themselves up.

The Duncans, who are large turpentine operators, and the Altmans, who maintain a general store at Baxter, have been in a quarrel for months. The majority of the people in this section of Baxter County took sides with the Altmans, as the Duncans had made enemies in their turpentine operations.

Although the quarrel was a bitter one no overt act occurred until the Duncans with a number of their negro employes boarded an excursion train on the Georgia Southern and Florida. The Altmans and several of their friends were on board and a quarrel soon arose.

The Altmans stabbed a Duncan negro to death, and when the Duncans interfered the Altmans killed James Duncan. The fight became general, and the train was turned into a shambles.

This riot occurred just over the Georgia line, and for that reason Sheriff Herndon, of Baker County, refused to arrest the alleged slayers of Duncan and the negro. Since then Baxter and the surrounding county have been divided into two hostile camps.

CONSUL REMOVED FROM OFFICE.

Roosevelt Acts on Charges and Recalls Consul McWade.

Oyster Bay, N. Y.—President Roosevelt ordered the indictment of McWade, United States Consul at Canton, China, on general charges of extortion and of issuing fraudulent certificates to Chinese immigrants.

Complaints and charges against McWade have been reaching the State Department for about a year. Several months ago Secretary Hay sent Assistant Secretary Pierce to the Orient to investigate. On his return Mr. Pierce made a report unfavorable to McWade.

A temporary successor will be appointed immediately.

WILL PAY OUT $31,000,000.

Royal Bank of Canada Cuba's Agent in Paying Soldiers.

New York City.—It was announced in Wall Street that the Royal Bank of Canada in Havana has been selected by the Cuban Government to disburse $31,000,000, recently raised by a bond issue, to the soldiers of the revolution. It is said that about $10,000,000 of the claims have passed into the hands of speculators in the United States.

The disbursement will be made in Havana, Santiago and other Cuban cities.

The recent heavy shipments of gold from the United States to Cuba were to provide the bank with funds to meet the warrants.

To Pay Cuban Claims.

President Palma has set October 1 for the beginning of the payment of one-half of the claims of the Cuban revolutionary forces.

To Increase German Army.

The German Government will ask the Reichstag to increase the army, probably by 30,000 or 40,000 men.

Ends Rush Case.

The last of the case of the state of Mississippi vs. Phil A. Rush has been heard. When the circuit court was called to order the above styled case was brought up, and District Attorney Greaves asked that a cossat processus be entered, which disposes of the case for all time to come. This is the case wherein Rush and others were charged with the embezzlement of $100,000 of the state funds.

Coming Events

NOTICE.

I am ready to lecture to or organize any alliance on short notice, and hold myself ready to attend all calls.
W. H. CONWAY.
County Lecturer and Organizer.

REGISTRARS' DATES.

Clanton, beat 4, August 19-20.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Sept. 12.
Jemison, beat 2 Sept. 13.
Thorsby, beat 9, Sept. 14.
Coopers, beat 10, Sept. 15.
Verbena, beat 5, Sept. 16.
Clanton, fourth Monday in September, and all that week to register all applicants who may be entitled to registration. Also on Friday and Saturday, November 4th and 5th. A resident of any beat in the county can register at Clanton on the above dates. tf

ALABAMA GIRLS' INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL,
Montevallo, Ala.

Literary, Scientific, Commercial, Industrial, Domestic, Pedagogical, Musical, Artistic.

Session opens September 15th. Expenses, $99.

Healthful location. Faculty of 27 teachers.

For catalogue, address
FRANCIS M. PETERSON,
tf Montevallo, Ala.

PROGRAM OF TEACHERS' INSTITUTE,

To be Held at Stanton September 23-24, 1904.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Devotional exercises, Rev. W. J. Ruddick.

12:20 a. m.—Welcome address, Professor W. B. Speer.

10:40 a. m.—Enrollment of teachers, etc.

10:50 a. m.—"Fundamental Factors in School Room Education," Professor P. G. Maness. Miss Annie Jones (paper).

11:30 a. m.—"How to Make Alabama History Interesting"—Professor John T. Martin, Miss Mary Garrison.

1:30 p. m.—"Should Chilton County Have Local Taxation?" Professor Robert E. Sessions

2:15 p. m.—"How to Teach Agriculture and the Importance of this Subject," Prof. R. A. Rasco

3 p. m.—"Manual Training, or Folks and Things," Prof. Robert Jones.

3:45 p. m.—"What Should be Done by the County Board of Education Created Under the Redistricting Act," Prof. G. L. Speer, W. O. Perry, H. L. Davis.

7:30 p. m.—Oration on "Greater Alabama," Master Ira Dunsmore.

SATURDAY.

9 a. m.—Devotional exercises.

9:20 a. m.—"Shall We Let Pupils Elect Courses or Topics?" Prof. J. L. Ruffin.

10 a. m.—"High School Methods for Our Country Schools," Prof. H. A. Harris, Miss Carry Walker.

10:30 a. m.—"Need of Better School Houses and Places for procuring Them," Prof. E. Y. McMorries, Prof. R. E. R. Hicks.

11 a. m.—Educational address, Prof. Robert Jones.

I earnestly ask that all the teachers on program be present, as well as all the teaching force of the county.
J. W. MOORE,
County Superintendent.

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton County for the year 1904 and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Clanton, beat 4, Oct. 1, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Oct. 3, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Oct. 4, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Oct. 5, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Oct. 6, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Oct. 7, 1904.
Benson, beat 3, Oct. 8, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Oct. 10, 1904.
Providence, beat 2, Oct. 11, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Oct. 12, 1904.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Oct. 13, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Oct. 14, 1904.
Cane Creek, beat 4, Oct. 15, 1904, till 12 m.
Mountain Creek, beat 5, Oct. 17, 1904
Verbena, beat 5, Oct. 18, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Oct. 19, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Oct. 20, 1904.
James Maddox's gin, beat 4, Oct. 21, 1904

A. C. MIMS,
Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector. tf

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Notice No. 25613.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., September 12th, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of the Circuit Court at Clanton, Ala., on October 21st, 1904, viz: Hiram P. Collum, Homestead entry No. 35417, for the Ne 1-4 of Section 20, Tp 24 n of R 14 east.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Sam Caton, John N. Northcutt, Henry Gentry, Alexander Gentry, all of Jemison, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
tf Register.

ABOUT REGISTERING.

Extracts from the general election law of Alabama:

Section 2. The following persons shall be disqualified both from registering and voting: All idiots and insane persons; those who were by reason of conviction of crime disqualified from voting at the time of the ratification of the constitution on November 28, 1901; those who have been since November 28, 1901, or who shall be convicted of treason, murder, arson, embezzlement, malfeasance in office, larceny, receiving stolen property, obtaining money under false pretenses, perjury, subornation of perjury, robbery, assault with intent to rob, burglary, forgery, bribery, assault and battery on wife, bigamy, living in adultery, sodomy, incest, rape, miscegenation, crime against nature, or any crime punishable by imprisonment in penitentiary, or for any infamous crimes or crime involving moral turpitude; also, any person who has been since November 28, 1901, or who shall be convicted as a vagrant or tramp, or of selling or offering to sell his vote or the vote of another, or of making or offering to make false returns in any election by the people or in any primary election to procure the nomination or election of any person to any office, or of suborning any witness or registrar to secure the registration of any person as an elector, provided that any person who is disqualified from voting by reason of conviction of any of the offenses mentioned in this section, except treason, whether the conviction was had in a state or federal court, has been pardoned, may be restored to his citizenship with right to vote by the governor, approved by the board of pardons and specially expressed in the pardon.

Sec. 7 1-2. The following persons and no others, who, if their place of residence shall remain unchanged, will have, at the date of the next general election, the qualifications as to residence prescribed by section 1 of this act, shall be qualified to register as electors, provided they shall not be disqualified under section 2 of this act:

1st. Those who can read and write any article of the constitution of the United States in the English language, and who are physically unable to work; and those who can read and write any article of the constitution of the United States in the English language, and who have worked or been regularly engaged in some lawful employment, business or occupation, trade or calling for the greater part of the twelve months next preceding the time they offer to register, and those who are unable to read and write, if such inability is due solely to physical disability; or,

2d. The owner in good faith in his own right, or the husband of a woman who is the owner in good faith in her own right, of forty acres of land situate in this state, upon which they reside; or the owner in good faith in his own right, or the husband of any woman who is the owner in good faith in her own right, of real estate situate in this state, assessed for taxation at the value of three hundred dollars or more or the owner in good faith, in his own right, or the husband of a woman who is the owner in good faith, in her own right, of personal property in this state assessed for taxation for three hundred dollars or more; provided, that the taxes due upon such real or personal property for the year next preceding the year in which he offers to register shall have been paid, unless the assessment shall have been legally contested and is undetermined.

Sec. 15. Any elector who registered prior to January 1, 1903, who has changed the county of his residence shall be registered on application on production of his certificate, unless he has since become disqualified.

Sec. 16. When the certificate of any elector who was duly registered has been lost, mutilated or destroyed, on application stating that the certificate has been lost, mutilated or destroyed, and verified by affidavit, and it appears of record that such applicant has been registered, the judge of probate of the county of registration or the secretary of state shall issue to the applicant a certificate that he was duly registered as an elector. Such certificate shall be issued free of charge to the elector. The secretary of state shall at the expense of the state furnish the judge of probate blank certificates for use as provided in this section.

The certificate of the registrars or the judge of probate or of the secretary of state shall be sufficient to establish the fact of such registration.

Be sure and register when the registrars are in your beat, as the only excuse for not doing so is by reason of sickness of yourself or in your family, or by absence from the county. Everybody can register this summer who will be qualified by residence or age by the 8th day of November. Poll tax paying has nothing to do with registration; you can register now and pay your poll tax afterwards, but you can not vote unless you are both registered and have paid your poll tax (if any is due). The period of residence necessary to register is two years in the state, one year in the county, and three months in the beat. If you have moved from one beat to another in the county less than three months before election day, you can vote in your old beat, so you don't lose your vote by changing. Any one who desires to register property qualification should with him his last assessment and tax collector's receipt to show the registrars as proof that you possessed of such property, and taxes on it. You can register ANY of the following heads:

1. If you own 40 acres or more in this state, and reside upon it.

2. If your wife owns 40 acres more land in this state, upon you reside.

3. If you own real estate in state that is assessed for taxation $300 or more.

4. If your wife owns real estate this state assessed for taxation $300 or more.

5. If you own personal property this state assessed for taxation $300 or more.

6. If your wife owns personal property in this state assessed for taxation for $300 or more.

7. If you can read and write section of the constitution United States.

Don't give up your certificate that you got in ... only have to show it to the registrars in case you have moved from some other county.

THE UNION will furnish any information on any ... they may be in doubt upon ... ready to help any one to get all rights he is entitled to under the ... of Alabama. If you think you are titled to register and the registrar should refuse you, take a couple good men with you so you can have witnesses as to such refusal and reasons given by the registrars, thereby be enabled to take your case up to higher authority. tf

SUNDAY SCHOOLS BEAT 2.

The Sunday schools of beat 2 (with the exception of three) met at Providence church on August 28th and ganized a beat association, elected W. H. Shaw, president; J. A. Skaggs, vice president; John Lowery, secretary-treasurer. The next meeting will be at Jemison on the fourth Sunday in September, when it is hoped that the missing schools will be represented.

tf J. A. SKAGGS.

FOR SALE

A good family horse ... good condition every way. Price $60. Apply to T. ... Crowson, two miles north west of Jemison, Ala. t...

Notice! Notice!

If you want good Bargains and good articles in Dry Goods, Groceries & Hamilton Brown, Shoes, we have them for you. Jackson & Robinson Lomax, Ala.

IMPORTANT!

GIN SAWS FILED—have one of the best machines made for that business. Put in your order now if you have any work in this line.

J. M. MADDOX
Clanton, Ala.

Going to Plant

Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a postal for my new manual "How to Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.

P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of

SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS. PAINTS OILS and GLASS.

We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.

CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

OFFICIALS

...Strock.
...W. M. Wilson, E. G. Robbins, J. M. Potts.
...Watts Moore.
...Smitherman.

...TS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

...CUIT COURT.
...Term—1st Monday in April.
...Term—3rd Monday in July.
...—1st Monday in November.
...T. Scott Sayre.
...F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
...B. Deason, Clanton.

...CHANCERY COURT.
...Term—2nd Monday in March.
...—2nd Monday in September.
...ior—Hon. R. B. Kelley, Anniston.
...—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clanton.

...COUNTY COURT.
...Monday in each month.

...MISSIONERS' COURT.
...onday February, 1st Monday
...Monday June, 2nd Monday
...Monday August, 1st Monday
...

...COUNTY OFFICERS.
...of Probate—S. M. Adams.
...ror—Alex G. Dake.
...—J. M. Morgan.
...ior—J. O. Middleton.
...Assessor—A. C. Mims.
...Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

...UNTY COMMISSIONERS.
...District—W. H. Conway.
...d District—Alex Glasscock.
...District—W. A. Green.
...h District—R. C. Riggins.

...UPT. OF EDUCATION.
...J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.
W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.
L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

...UNTY CHURCHES

...rs and clerks are cordially asked ...nd the editor any news regarding ...ir churches which they would ...blished. Also if there are any ...in these notices please send cor...

...MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.
...o—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
...ones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
...Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; ...C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
...son—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; ... Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
...ay—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday. ...Huett, clerk, Verbena.
...ton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st ...ed Sundays. W. I. Mullins, ...
...Creek—Rev. A. L. Poshee, 4th ... V. J. Gragg, clerk.
...r Hill—Rev J. M. Gothard, ... J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
...ord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd ... T. N. Parrish, clerk.
...s Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm... 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, ...
...unt Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, ... J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
...th—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd ... W. B. Jones, clerk.
...s Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, ...nday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
...th—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st ...y. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
...am—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas... J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
...eezer—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas... H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
...son—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ... Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
...y Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd ...; W. M. Wood, clerk.
...donia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd ...y. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
...Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas... Z. Barnes, clerk, British.
...berry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ...Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
...t Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud...pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk, ...
...t Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, ...; D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
...e Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, ...; W. H. Wilson, clerk.
...donia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd ...; George Trawick, clerk.
...Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas... W. Billingsley, clerk.
...Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, ...day; G. W. Hill, clerk.
...Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd ...y. Henry Smith, clerk.
...ims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, ...; I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
...nut Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom... Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
...nut Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, ...; W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
...nut Grove—Rev. G. W. Free... pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk, ...
...ter Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, ...nday; J. J. McDowell, clerk.
...idence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt, ...day. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi...
...idence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, ...; Riley Robinson, clerk, Clan...
...—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor; ...Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
...—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd ...; W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
...—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun...

RING.

eral election

ng persons from regis-iots and in-were by rea-disqualified
of the ration Novemhave been r who shall murder, ar-sance in ofen property,
false pren of per-intent to ery, assault
y, living in pe, miscegire, or any onment in infamous moral turpihas been who shall or tramp,
o sell his or of mak-se returns
ple or in ocure the ny person
g any wit-
the regis-
n elector,
ho is dis-
on of con-ses ment treason,
had in a
been par-his citi-by the board of sed in the persons place of changed,

next gen-ons as to tion 1 of register
shall not 2 of this

nd write n of the anguage, rible to ral and stitution
English erked or e lawful cation, r part of ring the d those write, if physical h in his woman faith in of land ch they tain in of any od faith ate sit-r taxa-hundred in good husband in good personal el for lists or es due roperty

he year
r shall ssment
ed and istered

o has sidence tion on less he

of any d has ed, on tificate troyed,
it applicant of pro-lor or sue to nt he elector
d free secre-ase of robate ovided irs or recrent to gistraregis-only reason your coun-sum-dence

mber.
to do gister wards.
u are your erfod te is ar in n the one loss
day.
o you

don't lose your vote by changing Any one who desires to register property qualification should with him his last assessment
and tax collector's receipt to
the registrars as proof that possessed of such property, and taxes on it. You can register
ANY of the following heads:

1. If you own 40 acres or more in this state, and reside upon it.

2. If your wife owns 40 acres more land in this state, upon
you reside.

3. If you own real estate in state that is assessed for taxation
$300 or more.

4. If your wife owns real estate this state assessed for taxation
$300 or more.

5. If you own personal property
this state assessed for taxation
$300 or more.

6. If your wife owns personal erty in this state assessed for taxa
for $300 or more.

7. If you can read and write section of the constitution of
United States.

Don't give up your life
cate that you got in 1902;
only have to show it to the regist in case you have moved to this co
from some other county.

THE UNION will furnish any information on any special points they may be in doubt upon, and sta ready to help any one to get all rights he is entitled to under the l of Alabama. If you think you are titled to register and the registr should refuse you, take a couple good men with you so you can h witnesses as to such refusal and reasons given by the registrars, thereby be enabled to take your c
up to higher authority.

tf

SUNDAY SCHOOLS BEAT 2.

The Sunday schools of beat 2 (w the exception of three) met at Pr dence church on August 28th and ganized a beat association, elect
W. H. Shaw president; J. A. Skag vice president; John Lowery, sec tary-treasurer. The next meeting be at Jemison on the fourth Sund in September, when it is hoped t the missing schools will be repres ed.

tf J. A. SKAGGS.

FOR SALE

A good family horse
good condition every wa
Price $60. Apply to T.
Crowson, two miles nort
west of Jemison, Ala.

Notice! Notice

If you want goo
Bargains an good articles i
Dry Goods, Groc
ries & Hamilton
Brown, Shoes, w have them for yo
Jackson & Robinso
Lomax, Ala.

IMPORTANT!

GIN SAWS FILED—have one of the best m chines made for that bu ness. Put in your ord
now if you have any wo
in this line.

J. M. MADDOX.
Clanton, Ala.

Going to Plan

Fruit Trees of any ki
this season? write me a po al for my new manual "Ho to Plant and Cultivate Orchard" and price list, n ready and free to all.
P. C. Smith, Thorsby, A

In addition to our Comple
Stock of DRUGS Et
You will find a full line o

SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS. PAINTS OILS and GLASS

We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK sto
and ask for your trade.
CLANTON DRUG COMPA

OFFICIALS

dson Strock.
W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rob
Mullins, J. M. Potts.
Watts Moore.
Ed Smitherman.

S AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.

erm—1st Monday in April.
Term—3rd Monday in July.
—1st Monday in Novem-

. Scott Sayre.
F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
B. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.

Term—2nd Monday in March.
—2nd Monday in Septem-

—Hon. R. B. Kelley, An-

—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan-

COUNTY COURT.

onday in each month.

MMISSIONERS' COURT.

nday February, 1st Monday
Monday June, 2nd Monday
Monday August, 1st Monday
.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

of Probate—S. M. Adams.
rer—Alex G. Dake.
—J. M. Morgan.
—J. O. Middleton.
ssessor—A. C. Mims. llector—T. J. Hubbard.

NTY COMMISSIONERS.

District—W. H. Conway.
District—Alex Glasscock.
District—W. A. Green.
District—R. C. Riggins.

PT. OF EDUCATION.

J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.

W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.

L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

NTY CHURCHES

rs and clerks are cordially ask-nd the editor any news regardr churches which they would lished. Also if there are any these notices please send cor-

ISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
es, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas-
C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
on—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor;
Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
y—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday.
nett, clerk, Verbena.
n—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st
Sundays. W. I. Mullins,

Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th
V. J. Gragg, clerk.
Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard,
J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd
T. N. Parrish, clerk.
Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm-
1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton,

nt Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand,
W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd
W. B. Jones, clerk.
Reads—Rev. M. J. Parrish,
ay. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st
M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas-
J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
er—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas-
H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
n—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor;
Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
y Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd
W. M. Wood, clerk.
onia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd
H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas-
. Barnes, clerk, British.
ry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor;
ney, clerk, Randolph.
Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud-
stor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk,

Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong,
D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand,
W. H. Wilson, clerk.
onia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd
George Trawick, clerk.
Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas-
W. Billingsley, clerk.
Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong,
day: G. W. Hill, clerk.
Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd
Henry Smith, clerk.
n' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason,
I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
nt Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom-
Sunday: D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
nt Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard,
W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
nt Grove—Rev. G. W. Free-
stor: H. C. Latham, clerk,

Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone,
day. J. J. McDowell, clerk.
ence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt.
day. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi-

ence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong,
Riley Robinson, clerk, Clan-

—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor;
binson, clerk, Rushton.
—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd
W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun-
day. J. Deason, clerk, Adams.

Thorsby—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Robert Jones, clerk, Thorsby.

Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, pastor; R. S. Chandler, clerk, Jemison.

Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2d Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

Verbena—Rev. J. W. Partridge, 1st Sunday. T. J. Bland, clerk.

Valley Creek—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. W. Mitchell, clerk, Plantersville.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

Clanton Circuit, Rev. T. F. Davis, Pastor.

Thorsby—1st Sunday.

Walnut Grove—2nd Sunday, morning.

Unity—2nd Sunday, evening.

Shady Grove—3rd Sunday.

Mount Pisgah—4th Sunday, morning.

Enterprise—4th Sunday, evening.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Highland School House—Rev. M. F. Lett, 3rd Sunday and Saturday before. T. L. Adams, clerk.

Enterprise—Rev. M. F. Lett, 4th Sunday. T. F. Patterson, clerk.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN.

St. Olafs, Thorsby—Rev. H. Engh, pastor. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

Concordia, Thorsby—Rev. J. E. Hedberg. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2d Sunday. Song service every 2d and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

MASONIC.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday, Clanton.

Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 250—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 423—First Saturday, Clanton.

Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 567—First Saturday Billingsley.

Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.

Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 411—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.

Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 473—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.

Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

of the

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE CO.

Of Toronto, Canada.

1st January, 1904.

UNITED STATES BRANCH.

Assets.

Government bonds	$223,650.00
State and municipal bonds	511,473.19
Cash on hand and deposit	169,720.71
Stocks and bonds	305,793.00
Premiums in course of col.	204,834.79
Interest due and accrued.	11,833.20
	$1,427,304.89

Liabilities.

Reserve premium fund (N. Y. Standard)	$849,771.77
Reserve for unpaid losses	100,786.14
	$950,557.91
Surplus in United States	$476,746.98
Total income in United States for 1903	$1,547,736.84
Total losses paid in U. S. from 1874 to 1903, inclusive	$14,674,843.26

WALLACE C. EDLER, Agent, Clanton, Alabama.

A court case in Wilkesbarre, Pa., was decided by the cackling of a hen. Isn't this enough to make the lawyers jealous? asks the Indianapolis News.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Notice No. 25612.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., September 12, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of the Circuit Court at Clanton, Ala., on October 21st, 1904, viz, Burton E. Collum, Homestead entry, No. 35416, for the Se 1-4 of Section 20, Tp 24 n of R 14 east.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Sam Caton, John N. Northcutt, Henry Gentry, Alexander Gentry, all of Jemison, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER, Register.

tf

LOCAL WEATHER REPORT.

U. S. Department of Agriculture. — Weather Bureau.

CLANTON, ALA.

Week ending Sept. 21.

Date	Temperature High	Low	Rain fall
15	90	55
16	85	45
17	90	49
18	97	62
19	95	53
20	95	57
21	95	63

A. STEWART, Obs.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to September 21, 1904, 984.

Price on same date, 10 1-8.

Total receipts same week 1903, 472.

Price same date 1903, 10 1-4c@ 10 3-8.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

S. Howard, of Thorsby, was a pleasant visitor Friday.

J. W. Hayes was in Clanton Friday.

Miss Alpha Smitherman has returned home from Maplesville, where she has been visiting relatives and friends for a couple of weeks.

J. M. Robinson was in town Friday.

J. N. Littlejohn was a welcome visitor Saturday.

W. A. Littlejohn was in Clanton Saturday.

D. A. Martin, of Lomax, was a welcome caller Saturday.

Squire J. S. Dennis was in Clanton Saturday, hustling for subscriptions to help fix up Union Point church.

J. W. Sears was a pleasant visitor last week.

Lee Vickers was in town Saturday.

J. L. Hurst was a welcome visitor Saturday.

Frank Massey, our next coroner, was in Clanton Saturday.

Albert Headley is out, after a severe illness.

Gilbert Foshee is visiting home folks. He has been living in Newport News, Va., for quite a while.

J. Bice and A. L. Wambem, of Thorsby, were in Clanton Monday.

W. H. Merritt, of Birmingham, spent Sunday in Clanton.

Archie Bentley, former judge of probate for Coosa county, has been nominated by the populists and republicans of that county for judge of probate. Mr. Bentley has been a democrat up till now, but has become disgusted with the clique-ring and has joined the people.

R. D. Childress has fixed up his house up mighty well (new windows, etc.) and has a fine fat hog in the pen, all pointing to festivities of some kind; it may be a wedding.

P. D. Wilson will not have any regular millinery opening this season, but Miss Clara Small, the very capable lady in charge of that department, is busy selling the ladies their headgear right now; such a wealth of patterns to choose from, enough to bewilder a mere man.

J. H. Driver was in Clanton Monday. He advertised a lost cow and calf some time ago in THE UNION and they were returned to him the next week. THE UNION brings quick returns from its almost 800 subscribers and 3,000 readers.

A. J. Duncan returned Saturday from a week's trip in Butler and Lowndes counties.

J. M. and J. G. Bailey, of Coosa county, were guests of R. M. Smith last week.

E. B. Owen was in Clanton Tuesday.

Rev. A. C. Swindall filled his appointment at the Clanton Baptist church Sunday, morning and evening.

The new livery stable is progressing and will be ready for business shortly.

W. I. Mullins is re-roofing his store building. He is likewise doing a "land office business" with that 2 1-2 pound bagging and ties.

The "republican headquarters" in Clanton has moved to a larger store, so as to accommodate the increased business that comes to a liberal minded man.

President Wilson, of the Farmers' Insurance Association, means business with the delinquent members. Witness his notice in this week's UNION.

Henry Mahan, of Waddy, was in Clanton Tuesday. Brother Mahan has one of the best flouring mills in the country, so go to work and raise your own wheat and save your flour bills.

Mr. Philipson, of Birmingham, was in town Tuesday looking over the prospect with a view to locating a clothing store here.

Sheriff Morgan took F. M. Spradlin, an old confederate soldier, from Mt. Creek to Tuscaloosa insane asylum Wednesday.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

J. H. Johnson and Miss Bertie Baker. W. N. Reynolds and Miss Maggie Samples.

Attending National Meetings.

Secretary of State E. R. McDavid has gone to Indianapolis to attend the meeting of insurance commissioners of the United States. He will go to St Louis and attend on the 28th a meeting of secretaries of states, at which an organization is to be formed.

CHILTON COUNTY FARMERS' ALLIANCE.

Recommendation to Planters.

Chilton County Farmers' Alliance, in called session assembled, recommend to the farmers of this and other counties of the state, the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions, "being the full report of the special committee on warehouse, and

Whereas, from all reports from the planters and public press, we believe the cotton crop will be short in comparison with the estimate of sixty days ago, caused by excessive rains and rust, and

Whereas, arrangements have been perfected with the Planters' warehouse of Clanton for storage of cotton, including storage, weighing, sampling and shipping at 25 cents for first month or part thereof, and 5 cents per week for each succeeding week, and

Whereas, arrangements have been perfected with the Peoples' Savings Bank of Clanton to advance cash to three-fourths market value of each bale so stored, at rate of interest at 8 per cent per annum, and

Whereas, arrangements have been made for the insurance of cotton at three-fourths to full value at 15 to 20 cents per bale per month, and

Whereas, we believe it to be to the interest of all who grow cotton to avail themselves of these opportunities and withhold sale of their cotton until 1st of February or March, 1905, and

Whereas, the merchant has promised to aid in the above arrangements; therefore be it

Resolved, That we request the farmers and cotton growers to store their cotton until after Christmas, and if needed, draw three-fourths value in cash on same, and not sell until satisfactory prices are reached, and not rush their cotton on the market and depress the price, as is now being done, marketing a crop in ninety days that requires twelve months to produce.

We earnestly solicit the co-operation of all cotton growers and newspapers friendly to the view that cotton will bring a higher price later on.

Unanimously adopted and secretary ordered to have 1000 copies printed for distribution among alliancemen and farmers. MOSES ROBINSON, President Chilton County Farmers' Alliance.

ALEX C. DAKE, Secretary and Co. Business Agent C. C. F. A.

W. H. CONWAY, Chm. Warehouse Com., and Lect. C. C. F. A.

Clanton, Ala., September 14, 1904.

tf

BEAT NINE ITEMS.

Weather is still dry and hot, farmers are picking cotton, is about the news in these diggings at present. R. D. Childress made a business trip to Clanton Saturday. James P. Barrett and his two elder sons, Charles and James, visited his brother, Peter Barrett, near Stanton Saturday, and found Mrs. Eveline and Miss Jessie quite sick, but reports leaving Mrs. Barrett some better. Several of our people went to Liberty Hill Sunday to hear Rev. A. L. Foshee deliver his farewell sermon, as Rev. Smitherman will take charge of that church in the future. A number of our good people went to the all day singing at Pleasant Grove Sunday and reported an enjoyable time, with a good sermon at 11 o'clock. There will be a Sunday school convention at Cedar Grove church next Saturday and Sunday; it is said dinner will be served on the grounds both days. A large attendance is expected. Mr. Lawley, representing the Cable Piano and Organ Co., of Chicago was around here Monday. We hear that he met with good success.

NIM ROD.

ROCKY MOUNT.

Editor Union.

Please allow me space in your paper to ask the good readers of this paper to please send us a school teacher for our district, as we are unable to get one so far. We ask teachers to meet us at Rocky Mount church, two and one-half miles east of Jemison, on September 26th, at 7:30 p. m. With best wishes to the public.

B. E. COLLUM.

CROSS ROADS.

The Rev. M. J. Parrish filled his regular appointment here on Saturday and received seven members by letter. At early candle light the church communed and washed feet. A presbytery composed of Revs. M. J. Parrish, A. Baker and W. W. Robinson laid hands on Brother L. A. Thomas. On Sunday Rev. A. Baker delivered an excellent sermon on "The Resurrection."

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 acres within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is timbered, 1 set mill-rocks, 48 inch, 1 Horse, weight 1100 lbs. Alfred Popwell,
Clanton, Ala.

NOTICE.

The populist executive committee is hereby called to meet in Clanton on Tuesday, the 4th day of October, 1904, to attend to such matters of business as may be brought before it.

W. H. SHAW, Chairman.
J. D. COLLINS, Secretary.

The Sak's Store

Birmingham, Alabama

READY-MADE Apparel for Men, Women and Children.

Our Mail Order Department is quick, efficient and serviceable.

Write for Catalogue

DRINK

CREAM of KENTUCKY Whisky.

Sold only by

COLLINS BROS., Calera, Alabama.

Mail orders promptly filled.

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association

of Alabama.

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

By the People and for the People.

Chilton County Branch

Organized February 3rd, 1900.

W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.

Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

Full particulars furnished upon application to WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St, THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St,

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,

COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,

Clanton. Alabama

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.

Catalogue for the asking.

1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.

County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA

PAUL CALAME,

205 21st Street
Birmingham, Ala.

Practical Watchmaker and Optician

Eyes Correctly Fitted

Mail orders promptly filled

A most complete

Stock of General Merchandise, Dress Goods, Etc.

The Millinery Department

is complete in every detail and is in charge of a first-class milliner, Miss Clara Small, of St. Louis

P. D. WILSON,

CLANTON, ALABAMA.

On a Faded Violet.

The odor from the flower is gone.
Which, like thy kisses, breathed on me;
The color from the flower is flown,
Which glowed of thee, and only thee!

A shriveled, lifeless, vacant form,
It lies on my abandoned breast,
And mocks the heart, which yet is warm,
With cold and silent rest.

I weep—my tears revive it not!
I sigh—it breathes no more on me;
Its mute and uncomplaining lot
Is such as mine should be.

—Shelley.

A DUEL IN THE DARK

BY KATHARINE TYNAN

The duel was forced on Crosby French, for, although none ever doubted his courage, he was a non-fighting man. His father had killed his own brother in a duel and was an unhappy man till the day he died.

The man with whom he fought, Claudius Gregg, was a fire-eater—by profession, at least, for, although he swaggered a good deal, there was not a duel to his account in which his adversary had been able to shoot straight. He was a good shot himself, but many people said that he had forced his quarrels only on those who were likely to be killed by him and not to kill him. There were other things against him as well as the dueling which made him unfit for decent company. Yet he had the presumption to lift his eyes to Mary L'Estrange,—and the wickedness to win her consent to marry him by a trick and a slander against the dead.

Any man of sense could have sifted the story, and found it false; but Harvey L'Estrange's widow was a gentle, easily terrified woman. Claudius Gregg's promises to bestow much money on her if she forwarded his marriage with her daughter were received with scornful amazement. It was another matter when he produced the document which made Harvey L'Estrange, in his grave, a liar, a cheat and a deceiver of women.

So, in terror of his publishing the story to the world, the widow urged the marriage on the girl yet in her teens, guileless as a lamb, lovely as an angel, gentle and innocently gay, and charming in her whole disposition. And the girl consented to save her dead father's honor and her mother's heart from breaking.

But, indeed, she looked like an Andromeda when Crosby French first beheld her. And, when his eyes met her eyes, it seemed to him that the soul behind them cried out dumbly to him for deliverance.

There was nothing sophisticated in him, as there was in the town gallants, since he was newly come to town, and it must be confessed that, seeing Mary L'Estrange sitting opposite him, with her purple-faced, elderly lover by her side, at the supper table on the occasion of a Rotunda ball, he stared more than good manners warranted.

Nor was he aware at all of Claudius Gregg in his mulberry velvet suit, his cheeks darker than usual because of anger. Then Claudius Gregg stood up and flung the glass from which he was drinking, wine and all, in the young fellow's face.

There was a commotion and in the midst of it Claudius Gregg and the lady disappeared.

A doctor was sent for to see to Crosby French's injuries, which seemed serious enough. The glass had smashed on his face, cutting and almost blinding him.

Some benevolent person fetched a coach, and, after his eyes had been dressed and bandaged, he was driven to his lodgings. There was some one in the coach with him whom at first he took to be the doctor. When they had reached the lodgings this person assisted him to alight, and led him up the stairs.

Crosby French, like a man in a dream, stared.

"You don't know me," he said, "but some one told me who you were. I am Tom D'Arcy of Grange, from your own county, and I would not have left you without a friend to see you through the affair with Claudius Gregg."

"You are very kind," said the other. "But, for the matter of that, I shall not fight. I have reasons against it."

"Then I shall fight in your place," said Tom D'Arcy.

"It would be impossible that I should let you fight in my place," said Crosby French.

"Then you will fight?" D'Arcy's eyes were eager. "I swear that if you do not I will. It is time the world were quit of him. I think the man who would deliver Harvey L'Estrange's daughter from him might ask anything he would of her."

The blood pulsed in the cheeks below the bandages, and Crosby French said something under his breath of his promise to his father.

The next morning, while the two were at breakfast, there came a messenger from Claudius Gregg, an elderly, dishonored buck like himself, to say that Mr. Gregg claimed immediate satisfaction for the public affront that had been put upon him.

Claudius Gregg Fired.

"My principal is ready to convenience the gentleman in every way," returned the other. "But, seeing that his wounded honor cries out for assuagement, he is impatient of waiting for what must be a slow recovery. Therefore, he proposes a duel in the dark."

"The time?"

"Supposing we say to-night at the stroke of twelve?"

"My principal will be agreeable."

The messenger bowed himself out, and Tom D'Arcy returned to his breakfast as though nothing had happened.

"He means to kill you for certain," he said. The only question is if he will fight fair. I do not know what he means the dark to cover, but in fair fight you should have the advantage. He is gross—wide as a haystack, and he breathes like a porpoise. You are not provided with pistols, I take it?"

"I never thought to have use for them unless it might be to protect myself against Freney the highwayman."

"Mine are at your service."

"I thank you, sir. And now, since we are to be friends—indeed, I am grateful for the kindness that will not let me stand alone—I may tell you that, unless Mr. Gregg kills me, I mean to marry the lady."

"You do?"

"I certainly mean it. And a condition of my fighting is that if I fall you are to save her from Claudius Gregg."

Tom D'Arcy stared; then suddenly he wrung the other's hand.

"I accept," he said. If you fall, I will marry Mary L'Estrange, although I have to kill Claudius Gregg to do it. If you survive, I will do all in my power to help you win the lady."

Again their hands met and held together for an instant.

At a quarter before midnight the coach was at the door, with the physician whom D'Arcy had bidden to be in attendance. They passed through the lit hall of the club house, unobserved. In the Oak Room they found Claudius Gregg and his friend awaiting them. Having divested themselves of their cloaks, the seconds spun a coin for the right of first fire. It fell to Claudius Gregg.

The two men were then set facing each other, with a long table between and the pistols in their hands.

"He has the first shot," whispered Tom D'Arcy in French's ear, "and, my poor fellow, I'm afraid you're done for."

The word of command was given and Claudius Gregg fired. The slightest sound from the other end of the table followed the shot, but there was no sound of a body falling.

Then Crosby French fired. There was a groan, and a sound of something beating itself against the floor. Tom D'Arcy opened the door and a waiter entered with candles. Crosby French was staring in stupefaction at the smoking pistol in his hand, and very pale, because Claudius Gregg's shot had hit him in the right shoulder.

"I fired below the table," said he.

"Ah, and our friend, Mr. Gregg, was under the table," said Tom D'Arcy, calmly. "That was what he meant by the duel in the dark. Let us be going. His friend and the doctor will see to him. I take it that even if he can ever fire another shot Mr. Claudius Gregg's honor is satisfied."

The other second was pouring out assurances, with a redder face than usual, that he was not privy to his principal's design, while the waiter and the physician were somewhere under the table trying to ascertain the nature of Claudius Gregg's injuries. Nor until the physician had declared that after all it was but a flesh wound did the color come back to Crosby French's face. Then he consented at last to return to his lodgings with D'Arcy.

There was not a handsomer couple in all Ireland than Crosby French and Mary L'Estrange made on their wedding day. The viceroy himself came to their wedding; but all that you shall read in the memoirs of the day.
—The Sketch.

CLASS OF NOTED PUPILS.

Famous Americans Who Were at School Together.

Among the faded, yellow pages of an old book, which no amount of money could buy from its owner are a number of the schoolboy compositions of three men who later became famous senators of the United States, of one boy who became the greatest money king the modern world has known, and of a little girl who became the wife of the great money king, writes Frank T. Searight in the National Magazine.

The boys were Marcus Alonzo Hanna, Edward O. Wolcott, James K. Jones and John D. Rockefeller; the girl was Celestia Spelman, now Mrs. John D. Rockefeller. A further strange fact is that two of these boys in later years became the chairmen of the national committees of the two great political parties—Jones of the Democratic and Hanna of the Republican—as well as the leaders of their respective parties in the United States Senate, while "Eddie" Wolcott won hardly less distinction as a senator of the United States from Colorado.

The owner of the little age-yellowed book is Andrew Freese, a schoolmaster of Cleveland.

Landseer's Luggage.

Sir Edwin Landseer had a man servant who evidently looked upon his master as the greatest man in the world, and even when Prince Albert called, which he did occasionally when riding up to St. Johns woods, he would be told that "Sir Hedwin was hout," because the faithful "Cerberus," as he was called, thought his master did not want to be disturbed. There were other amusing stories about the same valet. On one occasion, when traveling to the north with Sir Edwin, he was very anxious about the luggage, and kept getting out whenever the train stopped to see if it was all right.

"What do you want?" said the guard.

"How about the luggage?" said Cerberus.

"What luggage?"

"Why, two trunks as black as hink and marked with hell."

"Marked with what?"

"Why, hell for Landseer, of course."—From S. A. Storey's "Sketches from Memory."

In the Tennis Court.

When Nora seeks the tennis court,
How meek young Morris follows!
He knows his fate, for Nora's balls
Are swift and sure as swallows.

His balls go tangled in the net;
His heart, escaped his keeping,
Is floundering in the saucy charm
From Nora's brown eyes peeping.

What wonder that he serves so ill,
This knight of rackets doughty,
For when he swears he loves but one,
She jeers him: "No, love, forty!"

But I know Nora; I have seen
Her eyes grow soft and tender,
Her cheeks flush rose o'er certain flowers
Of which I knew the sender.

And though she flouts and bullies him,
No grain of mercy showing,
'Tis not the wine-sweet air alone
That sends her home so glowing.

Then what though tennis brings the lad
Such mingled bliss and trouble?
I've little fear but some fair day
He'll make a different "double."
—Hattie Preston Rider.

Protected the Judge.

After the jury in a Texas case had listened to the charge of the court and gone to their room to deliberate upon the verdict, one of the twelve went right to the point by saying: "That thar Pike Muldrow orter to be convicted on gen'ral principles. He's bad as they make 'em."

As the hum of approval went around a weezened little juror said: "I heerd that Pike guv' it out that he'd go gunnin' fur us if we sent him up, jes' soon's he got out, an' fer the jedge, too."

"We must pertect the jedge," they agreed, and the verdict was "Not guilty."—Detroit Free Press.

Typical American Mother.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt is famous for her devotion to her three lovely children. She walks and drives with them, superintends the making of their clothes, plays and romps with them and has a good-night chat with them before they go to sleep each evening.

HIS END WAS QUIET.

Youthful Diplomatist Got Neatly Out of Tight Place.

Ned was 7, Budge was 4. They had the small boy's propensity for adopting every stray cat that came in their direction, without drawing any line of color or antecedents. The grown-ups had protested without avail and nearly every day found an additional half-starved kitten running about the place. At last the boys' father had an inspiration.

"See here, boys," he said. "I am altogether too poor to feed any more kittens. I simply cannot afford it. Now, if you really want to keep this last little yellow kitten you have brought in you will have to buy milk for her with your own pennies. But, remember, she must be well fed and the first time I find her crying for something to eat she will have to go."

The boys talked the matter over and readily agreed to this arrangement. The following day, however, the yellow kitten was crying piteously for food when the father came home. Only one of the culprits being present the vials of wrath broke on his head.

"Budge," he said sternly, "didn't I tell you boys that the first time I heard that cat yelling around here she would have to go?"

"Yes, papa," Budge replied hastily. "But you see, I only own half the cat and it isn't my end of the cat that eats."

ENGINES TESTED IN SHOP.

Ingenious Arrangement for Giving Locomotive Its Trial Trips.

One of the greatest triumphs of engineering skill is to be found at the Great Western railway works at Swindon, England, where an ingenious contrivance for giving a locomotive its trial trip without leaving the scene of its construction is in operation. The feature of the testing plant is that the engine, after being placed on the machine, runs on wheels fitted with tires which correspond to the trend and section of the permanent way. A clever braking arrangement secures a representation of the difficulties encountered in running on the metals and all the tests usually made on a trial trip can be conducted inside the works with all the appliances at hand. The dangers of a breakdown and subsequent blocking of the main line are thus obviated and the work of experimentiag is simplified. This machine is the invention of the locomotive superintendent, J. G. Churchward, and is said to be the only one in Europe.

His Thirst for Knowledge.

Abe Gruber was entertaining a young friend from up the state one day last week. After having pointed out various sights of the city Mr. Gruber conducted his youthful acquaintance to a restaurant.

Mr. Gruber ordered dinner and then began perusing the wine list. He decided on some Burgundy, but just as he was about to order it paused and gazed at the callow youth before him. Then he shook his head.

"What's the use?" he said, half aloud. "He wouldn't know the difference between it and the rankest California claret."

The youth raised his head.

"Perhaps not, Mr. Gruber," he said, "but then, I have such a thirst for knowledge."—New York Times.

Admiring the Mower.

I love the swish of the gleaming blade,
The thump of the lusty tread,
Where the timothy stalk is lowly laid
And the daisy bends its head.

There's freedom here in the mighty sweep
Distilling the bay's perfume;
There's freedom here in the hands that reap
And conquer the clover bloom.

Here toil is king, and the beaded brow
Seems never a-wrink with care;
Here work is play—or it seems somehow
To me it is—but there,

But there where the lusty mower goes
With a strenuous stride along—
Perhaps he'd sing, if he could, who knows,
A different sort of song?

For here I loll in the shade immense,
With my old muse on the run;
I loll this side of the zigzag fence—
He broils there in the sun.
—New York Sun.

To Revive Glories of Long Branch.

Leading citizens of Long Branch are endeavoring to revive the faded glories of that erstwhile fashionable summer resort. Gamblers and the usual swarm of shoddyites crowded in after the real society leaders years ago and turned the place into a fifth-rate summer attraction. Now a meeting has been held and the city authorities have been asked to purchase ocean front, build a casino and construct a board walk. The citizens are determined that there shall be an early return of conditions which prevailed formerly.

Timely and Appropriate.

S. S. Brown, owner of Broomstick, the horse that wrested the laurels from Irish Lad in the Brighton Handicap, was congratulated after the race by a friend.

"If I'm not inquisitive," said his friend, "why did you give your horse such a name?"

"Named it after my cook," answered Mr. Brown.

"Why?" was the query.

"Because," replied Mr. Browne, "it isn't the first time a broomstick beat an Irish Lad."—New York Times.

Gabriele D'Annunzio.

The real name of Gabriele D'Annunzio, whose "Citta Morta" has been prohibited by the censor, in London, is Gaetano Rapagnetto. The dramatist is the son of Duchesa Maria Gallese de Roma. He is a musician as well as a playwright, and has a son who has a certain celebrity as a mandolinist.

Romance in a "Graft"

The best grafts in the world are built up on copy-book maxims and psalms and proverbs and Esau's fables. They sem to kind of hit off human nature. Our peaceful little swindle was constructed on the old saying: "The whole push loves a lover."

One evening Buck and Miss Malloy drives up like blazes in a buggy to a farmer's door. She is pale but affectionate, clinging to his arm—always clinging to his arm. Any one can see she is a peach and of the cling variety. They claim they are eloping for to be married on account of cruel parents. They ask where they can find a preacher. Farmer says: "B'gum, there ain't any nigher than Rev. Abels, four mile mile over on Caney Creek." Farmeress wipes her hand on her apron and rubbers through her specs.

Then lo, and look ye! Up the road from the other way jogs Parleyvoo Pickens in a gig, dressed in black, white necktie, long face, sniffling his nose, omitting a spurious kind of noise resembling the long meter doxology.

"B'jinks!" says farmer, "if that ain't a preacher now!"

It transpires that I am Rev. Abijah Green, traveling over to Little [illegible] schoolhouse for to preach next day.

The young folks will have to must be married, f[illegible] them with the plow [illegible] buckboard. So Rev. Green [illegible] tations, marries [illegible] lov. And farmer [illegible] cider, and says "B'gum [illegible] ess sniffles a bit [illegible] on the shoulder. And Parleyvoo [illegible]ns, the wrong rev[illegible] a marriage certificate [illegible] farmeress sign it a[illegible] the parties of the [illegible] third part gets in [illegible] rides away. Oh, [illegible] graft! True love [illegible] and the sun shining [illegible] —it certainly had [illegible] I know about beat [illegible]

I suppose I happen[illegible] to marry Buck and [illegible] about twenty farmh[illegible] thini, how the romance [illegible] fade later on when [illegible] certificates turn [illegible] we'd discounted [illegible] had to pay them [illegible] signed running [illegible] McClure's Magazine.

Damage by Forest Fires

One of the great forest fires was the Miramichi fire of 1825. It began its greatest destruction about 1 o'clock in the afternoon of Oct. 7 at a place about sixty miles above the town of Newcastle, on the Miramichi river, in New Brunswick. Before 10 o'clock at night it was twenty miles below Newcastle. In nine hours it had destroyed a belt of forest eighty miles long and twenty-five miles wide. Over more than 2,500,000 acres almost every living thing was killed. Even the fish were afterward found dead in heaps along the river banks. Five hundred and ninety buildings were burned and a number of towns, including Newcastle, Chatham and Douglastown, were destroyed. One hundred and sixty persons perished and nearly 1,000 head of stock.

Peshtigo's fire of October, 1871, was still more severe than the Miramichi. It covered an area of over 2,000 square miles in Wisconsin and involved a loss in timber and other property of many millions of dollars. Between 1,200 and 1,500 persons perished, including nearly half the [illegible] Peshtigo, at that [illegible] inhabitants. Other [illegible] same time were [illegible] Michigan. A strip [illegible] miles wide and 180 [illegible] ing across the [illegible] state from Lake Michigan to Huron, was devastated. [illegible] mated loss in timber was [illegible] 000,000,000 feet board [illegible] money over $10,000,000. Several hundred persons perished.

A destructive fire of more [illegible] years was that which started [illegible] Hinckley, Minn., Sept. 1, 1894 [illegible] the area burned over was [illegible] in some other great fires, the [illegible] life and property was very [illegible] Hinckley and six other towns [illegible] destroyed, about 500 lives were [illegible] more than 2,000 persons were [illegible] destitute and the estimated [illegible] property of various kinds was [illegible] 000,000. Except for the heroic [illegible] duct of locomotive engineers [illegible] other railroad men the loss [illegible] would have been far greater.

Just a Wild Flower

It lay in the streets of the city—a wild flower from the fields,
Trampled by hurrying human feet, beaten and crushed and alone,
Till a ragged child—the kind of a child the slum of the city yields,
Seized it with eager fingers and carried it swiftly home.

Home? Can a wretched basement be worthy of such a name?
Home—where a drunken father but adds to poverty's shame?
But 'twas home to the ragged little girl, for wasn't her mother there?
Toiling all day at the steaming tubs, weary and full of care?

She held up the wilted blossom: "See, mammy, it's mine to keep!
I found it up on the corner—O mammy, ain't it sweet?
An' did you have this very kind when you was little like me?
And lived 'way off in the country? How beautiful that must be?

"Darlin',"—the mother dried her hands and took the faded flower;
"It's a daisy from some far meadow—O, many and many an hour
Did I wander the sweet fields over and gather the pretty things;
Ah, me! Ah, me! It was long [illegible] how their memory clings!

It was only a wilted daisy dropped [illegible] city street,
But it lay, that night, in the [illegible] while dreams surpassing sweet
Flitted, like gay-winged [illegible] through the little sleeper's head Dreams of the dear, green [illegible] had always longed to find.

O, children who dwell [illegible] Fields where the wild [illegible] so sweet,
Think of the child whose only [illegible] stifling city street!
Gather and send the daisies [illegible] dreary tenement by
Where little hearts are hungering [illegible] wild flowers dainty, grace.

It is little to do, but the bleeding [illegible] goes with the gift you send
Will brighten and gladden a [illegible] and a precious joy will lend
To the cheerless home, to the [illegible] child, to the mother's life of [illegible]
For it carries a breath from the [illegible] ful fields where the daisies grow.
—Los Angeles [illegible]

Actor's Youth Well Kept

The mysterious faculty of keeping a youthful appearance well into the meridian of life which so many actresses and actors possess received a fresh illustration the other day. Frank Deshon, who a generation or more ago used to play the part of the old miser in "The Chimes of Normandy," has come in from a season on the road with a musical comedy company, and he told on the Rialto the incident which showed how lightly his years sit on him.

"I was playing in 'The Princess Chic,'" he said, "and during a semi-dark scene I had a sort of wrestling bout with another character. We were supposed to receive what light there was, and it was rather essential that we did receive it, for the business was pretty strenuous, and in the dark one of us might have been injured. [illegible] one night, just as the scene got under way, the light man [illegible] the glim upon the leading [illegible] kept it on her till the scene was [illegible] I was good and angry, and [illegible] bones of saying so; in fact, I [illegible] the light man a blooming [illegible] What was my astonishment [illegible] him muttering to one of his [illegible] panions later:

"'Ump, calls me a bloomin' [illegible] petent, does he? I'll have him [illegible] worked the lights for his father [illegible] played old Gaspard in 'The [illegible] of Normandy,' and he never [illegible] kick. His father was a real [illegible] too.'

"I had to find what compliment [illegible] could in his tremendous emotion [illegible] 'father.'"—New York Times.

Speed of the Salmon

Just how fast salmon can travel has never been proved. Owners of weirs say that a healthy salmon can swim faster than a torpedo boat. Here is some evidence on the subject:

Frank Arey of Winterport, Me., went fishing the other day at the pool below Bangor Dam. He landed two small salmon on the flood tide. About 11:30 a. m. he struck a big one, which caused his rod to bend until it was perilously near the breaking point. Then the salmon darted under the boat, and catching the line against the keel, severed the fly and leader from the silk string and escaped.

Disgusted with his luck, the young man landed and went to Bangor at 11:40, remaining in the city until the afternoon train took him home. His father met him at the station [illegible]

"I have got your fly and [illegible] right, Frank. I found them in [illegible] of a twenty-six pound salmon [illegible] I took from the weir at high [illegible] day. It was just 12:10 when I [illegible] the fish from the weir into my [illegible] What time did you lose your [illegible]

On comparing watches, [illegible] son learned that the fish had [illegible] from a mile above Bangor to [illegible] port Center, a distance of [illegible] miles, inside of half an hour. [illegible] tide was flowing up river at the [illegible] at the rate of three or four [illegible] hour. After making due allowance for every condition, it was [illegible] that the salmon had covered [illegible] tance at the rate of about twenty [illegible] miles an hour.—New York [illegible]

A QUICK RECOVERY.

[illegible] Gurney of the Rebecca[illegible] to Thank Doan's Kidney Pills [illegible]

C. E. Bumgardner, a local officer [illegible] Rebeccas, of [illegible] Kans., Room [illegible] Kansas ave[illegible] writes: "I used [illegible] Kidney Pills [illegible] the past year, [illegible] trouble and [illegible] ailments. I [illegible] suffering from [illegible] in the back and [illegible], but found [illegible] the use of one [illegible] of the remedy [illegible] the troubles [illegible] ly disappeared, [illegible] before I had [illegible] a second [illegible] I was well [illegible] before, heartily [illegible] your remedy."

MRS. C. E. BUMGARDNER

FREE TRIAL. Address Foster [illegible] Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale [illegible] dealers. Price, 50 cents.

The Czar's Daily Life.

[illegible] interesting details of the [illegible] daily life are furnished by [illegible] Petersburg correspondent of the [illegible] Anzeiger. Rising at 6 a. m., his [illegible] ty partakes of an English break[illegible] consisting of tea, bacon and eggs, [illegible] and butter and marmalade pre[illegible] by an English cook. His Ma[illegible] and the Czarina favor everything [illegible]ish, including the British style of [illegible] and bringing up children. After [illegible]fast the Czar smokes a very [illegible] Havana cigar and indulges in [illegible] incessantly for the rest of the [illegible] although his doctors have warned [illegible] that it is most injurious to his [illegible]. At 7 o'clock he commences [illegible]dies for the day and examines [illegible]erage of 500 documents. An Engl[illegible] lunch it served at midday, and [illegible] only is spoken at this meal, so [illegible] the conversation is not understood [illegible] servants. Dinner follows and [illegible] ceeded by cards, the Czar's fa[illegible] game being the Russian wint, at [illegible] His Majesty is said to stake [illegible] sums. Bedtime comes about 11 [illegible]ck. The Czarina frequently reads [illegible]nglish novel or the Times aloud [illegible] husband.—London Mail.

[illegible]per Gomers, while waiting for a [illegible] midnight, sat down on a barrel [illegible] and fell asleep. When he [illegible]e he found the tar had softened [illegible]e had slowly sunk down into [illegible]icky stuff until his feet, arms [illegible]ead only were outside. He was [illegible]ed out with an ax.

[illegible] to 1829 the bells of the parish [illegible]h of Chesterfield, England, were [illegible]each year in celebration of the [illegible]. Then an unsportsmanlike [illegible] put an end to the practice [illegible]e of the Hamburg liners was used [illegible]hotel ship in the harbor of Kiel [illegible]g the recent races. The rates [illegible]eals and lodging were from $5 [illegible]0 a day.

[illegible] Tennessee there are 16,000 men [illegible]ed in mining they received just [illegible]6,200,000 in wages, in round num[illegible]

[illegible]ng, Blistering Itching, Tired Feet CURED IN ONE NIGHT BY YAL FOOT WASH.
[illegible]ress odors of feet, arm pits, etc. Stops [illegible]. 25c at druggists or postpaid from [illegible] DRUG CO., Atlanta, Ga. Money [illegible] not satisfied. Write for Pamphlet. A 25c [illegible] will be sent for 10c to any one sending [illegible] five persons afflicted as above.

ONSTIPATION
[illegible]ver nine years I suffered with chronic con[illegible]pation and during this time I had to take an [illegible] of warm water once every 24 hours before [illegible] have an action on my bowels. Happily I [illegible] Cascarets, and today I am a well man. [illegible] the nine years before I used Cascarets I [illegible] a untold misery with internal piles. Thanks to [illegible] I am free from all that this morning. You [illegible] this in behalf of suffering humanity."
B. F. Fisher, Roanoke, Ill.
Best for The Bowels
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC
THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP
[illegible], Palatable, Potent, Taste Good, Do Good, [illegible], Weaken or Gripe, 10c, 25c, 50c. Never [illegible]. The genuine tablet stamped CCC. [illegible] to cure or your money back.
[illegible]ring Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y. 613
[illegible]AL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

SLOAN'S LINIMENT
KILLS PAIN
FOR FARM FACTORY AND FAMILY USE
AN ENTIRE MEDICINE CHEST
DR. EARL S. SLOAN
ALBANY ST BOSTON MASS

ance in a "Graft"

...he world are ... maxims and ... and Esau's ... bit off ... social affec... ...always ... can see ... their varia... ...clouring for ... of cruel par... they can find ... "B'gum, ... Rev. Abels, ... Piney Creek." ... on her ... her specs. ... Up the road ... Parleyvoo ... Quick work, ... sniffles like ... thar ain't ... Rev. Abijah ...

Green, traveling over to Little ... schoolhouse for to preach ... day.

The young folks will have ... must be married, for pa is p... them with the plow mules ... buckboard. So Rev. Green, ar... tations, marries 'em in farmer... lo. And farmer grins, and ... cider, and says "B'gum!" and ... ess sniffles a bit and pats th... on the shoulder. And Parleyvo... 'ns, the wrong reverend, writ... a marriage certificate, and farm... farmeress sign it as witnesses... the parties of the first, secon... third part gets in their vehicl... rides away. Oh, that was 'an... graft! True love and the lowli... and the sun shining on the re... — it certainly had all other imp... I know about beat to a batter.

I suppose I happened along ... to marry Buck and Miss Mai... about twenty farmhouses. I h... think, how the romance was ... fade later on when all them m... certificates turned up in banks ... and discounted 'em, and the f... had to pay them notes of hand ... a-comin' running from $500 to ... —McClure's Magazine.

ge by Forest Fires

...Was ... Covering nearly half the popula... ...Peshtigo, at that time a town o... ...inhabitants. Other fires of abo... ...same time were most destruc... ...Michigan. A strip of about ... ...miles wide and 180 miles long, ...ing across the central part ... ...state from Lake Michigan to ... Huron, was devastated. The ... ...mated loss in timber was ab... ...,000,000 feet board measure ... ...mony over $10,000,000. Severa... ...dred persons perished.

A destructive fire of more ... years was that which started ... Hinckley, Minn., Sept. 1, 1894. ... the area burned over was les... in some other great fires, the ... life and property was very ... Hinckley and six other towns ... destroyed, about 500 lives were ... more than 2,000 persons were ... destitute and the estimated l... property of various kinds was ... ,000,000. Except for the heroi... duct of locomotive engineers ... other railroad men the loss ... would have been far greater.

t a Wild Flower

...y a wild ... ...flower, test, ...d adorns ... ...d a child ... ...seized carried ... ...ly but adds ... ...d little girl, ...aining tubs, ...eam: "See, ...O mammy, ...kind when ... ...country? How ... ...her hands ... ...window-O, ...ds over and ...

Ah, me! Ah, me! It was long ... how their memory clings!"

It was only a wilted daisy dropp... city street,
But it lay, that night, in the litt... while dreams surpassing sw...
Fitted, like gay-winged but... through the little sleeper's m...
Dreams of the dear, green coun... had always longed to find.

O, children who dwell in the m... fields where the wild flower... so sweet,
Think of the child whose only fiel... stifling city street!
Gather and send the daisies fair... dreary tenement place,
Where little hearts are hungering ... wild flowers dainty grace.

It is little to do, but the blessi... goes with the gift you send ...
Will brighten and gladden a li... and a precious joy will lend ...
To the cheerless home, to the ... child, to the mother's life o...
For it carries a breath from the ... ful fields where the daisies ... grow.

—Los Angeles ...

s Youth Well Kept

...of keeping a ... into the ... many ac... ...s received a ... day. Frank ... or more ago ... the old miser ... nandy," has ... on the road ... mpany, and ... the incident ... y his years ... he Princess ... ring a semi... of wrestling ... r. We were ... light there ... ssential that ... usiness was ... he dark one ...of us might have been injure... one night, just as the scene ... under way, the light man ... the glim upon the leading wo... kept it on her till the scene ... I was good and angry, and ... bones of saying so; in fact, ... the light man a blooming inc... What was my astonishment ... him muttering to one of h... panions later:

"'Ump, calls me a bloomin' ... petent, does he? I'll have him ... worked the lights for his fathe... h' played old Gaspard in 'The ... of Normandy,' and he never ... kick. His father was a re... too.'

"I had to find what compl... could in his tremendous emp... 'father.'"—New York Times.

d of the Salmon

...n travel has ... ...rs of weirs ... can swim ... t. Here is ... ect: ... ...eport, Me., ... at the pool ... landed two ... tide. About ... one, which ... until it was ... king point. ... under the ... ine against ... and leader ... escaped. ... the young ... Bangor at ... ty until the ... home. His ...father met him at the station ...

"I have got your fly and lea... right, Frank. I found them in ... of a twenty-six pound salmon ... I took from the weir at high ... day. It was just 12:10 when I ... the fish from the weir into m... What time did you lose your...

On comparing watches, Fra... son learned that the fish ha... from a mile above Bangor to ... port Center, a distance of ... miles. Inside of half an hou... tide was flowing up river at t... at the rate of three or four ... hour. After making due al... for every condition, it was ... that the salmon had covered ... tance at the rate of about two ... miles an hour.—New York ...

...g, Blistering Itching, Tired Feet
...URED IN ONE NIGHT BY
...AL FOOT WASH.
...ens odors of feet, arm pits, etc. Stops ... 25c at druggists or postpaid from ... DRUG CO., Atlanta, Ga. Money ...k if not satisfied. Write for sample. A 25c ... can be sent for 10c to any one sending ... of five persons afflicted as above.

...NSTIPATION
...For nine years I suffered with chronic con... and during this time I had to take an ... of warm water once every 24 hours before ... have an action on my bowels. Happily I ... Cascarets, and today I am a well man, ... the nine years before I used Cascarets I ... untold misery with internal piles. Thanks ... am free from all that this morning. You ... this in behalf of suffering humanity."
B. F. Fisher, Roanoke, Ill.
Best for The Bowels
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC
...THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP
...Palatable, Potent, Taste Good, Do Good, ... Weaken or Gripe, 10c, 25c, 50c. Never ... The genuine tablet stamped CCC. ... to cure or your money back.
...ing Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y. 619
...AL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

SLOAN'S LINIMENT
KILLS PAIN
FOR FARM FACTORY AND FAMILY USE
AN ENTIRE MEDICINE CHEST
DR EARL S. SLOAN
ALBANY ST BOSTON MASS

A QUICK RECOVERY.

...Officer of the Rebeccas ... to Thank Doan's Kidney Pills ...

...E. Bumgardner, a local officer ... Rebeccas, of ... Kans., Room ... Kansas ave... ...tes: "I used ... Kidney Pills ... the past year, ...y trouble and ... ailments. I ...ffering from ... the back and ...es, but found ...e use of one ... the remedy ... the troubles ...y disappeared, ... before I had ... a second ... I was well. ...efore, heartily ... your remedy."

...MRS. C. E. BUMGARDNER.

...EE TRIAL—Address Foster-... Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale ...dealers. Price, 50 cents.

The Czar's Daily Life.

...interesting details of the ...daily life are furnished by the ...ersburg correspondent of the ...engelger. Rising at 6 a. m., His ...y partakes of an English break... ...consisting of tea, bacon and eggs, ...and butter and marmalade pre... ...by an English cook. His Ma... ...and the Czarina favor everything ...e, including the British style of ...and bringing up children. After ...fast the Czar smokes a very ... Havana cigar and indulges in ...e incessantly for the rest of the ...though his doctors have warned ...that it is most injurious to his ... At 7 o'clock he commences ...ties for the day and examines ...rage of 500 documents. An Eng... ...nch it served at midday, and ...h only is spoken at this meal, so ...e conversation is not understood ...e servants. Dinner follows and ...ceeded by cards, the Czar's fa... ...game being the Russian wint, at ...His Majesty is said to stake ...rubs. Bedtime comes about 11 ... The Czarina frequently reads ...glish novel or the Times aloud ...husband.—London Mail.

...er Gomers, while waiting for a ...midnight, sat down on a barrel ...and fell asleep. When he ...he found the tar had softened ...e had slowly sunk down into ...icky stuff until his feet, arms ...and only were outside. He was ...ed out with an ax.

...In 1829 the bells of the parish ...of Chesterfield, England, were ...each year in celebration of the ... Then an unsportsmanlike ...put an end to the practice ...of the Hamburg liners was used ...hotel ship in the harbor of Kiel ...the recent races. The rates ...eals and lodging were from $5 ...a day.

...Tennessee there are 16,000 men ...in mining they received last ...$20,000,000 in wages, in round num...

THE OUT-OF-DOOR INSTINCT.

Habits of the Animals as Exemplified in the Wild.

A cat turns around before it lies down because its jungle ancestors had to crush the grass to make a bed, and the instinct still persists. Perhaps mankind takes to the woods in summer for the same reason. The groves were man's original abode as well as God's first temples. But while the longing to get back to nature at this season is nearly universal, the instinct for enjoying the wilderness is much less widely distributed.

While some persons are exuberantly happy at getting away from civilization, others who fancy that they want to leave the town behind are made perfectly miserable by the lack of their accustomed conveniences. The splash of the water on the boat's sides or the hum of the reel to such persons is no compensation for the lack of ice, of comfortable beds and of rocking chairs. At the first sign of a mosquito they are overcome with annoyance, and sunburn to them is an evil quite without recompense.

Your true sons of the woods, city bred though he may be, counts all the suffering that belongs to life out of doors as not grievous, but joyous. The discomforts are not to be compared, in his opinion, to the delights of camping and fishing and hunting. His enthusiasm is, indeed, inexplicable to the man who has not fallen under the same spell.

There is no t...ing the lover of the woods from the town devotee by his appearance. The bookish-looking fellow may be a mighty fisherman, while the athlete may be miserable out of reach of a car line. Perhaps the difference in temperament may be traced back to childhood. A person may be made almost anything if he is caught young enough. The physchologists have a theory that all kinds of instinct manifest themselves for a time in the growing child and then disappear unless special attention is given to their development.

This may account in part for the diversity of feeling toward nature that exists so unaccountably among men and women of otherwise congenial tastes. Unless a person fished with a bent pin as a child he isn't likely to become enthusiastic over the sport as a man. The woods may lure, but they aren't likely to captivate unless the devotee early learned their ways. The taste for out of door life may be cultivated to some degree, but unless it was developed in youth it is not apt to prove robust.—Kansas City Star.

The Rarest Plant in the World.

In speaking of remarkable shrubs, we must not forget gordonia, which at one time was probably the rarest wild plant in the world, there being but one specimen in existence. Last autumn, while visiting the Bartram Gardens, near Philadelphia, I inquired about this shrub, which had been planted there after its discovery in Georgia in 1790. I learned that this original gordonia had died not long ago, but it is pleasing to know that it now has hundreds of descendants scattered over the country. Unless this specimen was a hybrid it must have been the last of its race, and in either case it was discovered only just in time to prevent its total extinction. The foliage of this plant is bright shining green, turning crimson in the fall, and the large blossoms are pure white and very fragrant. The fact that it blooms during September and October, after most of the other shrubs have flowered, gives it a special value.—Woman's Home Companion.

Economy of Hearing.

The venerable John H. Ketcham, of Dover Plains, N. Y., for many years a member of Congress, is noted for his generosity and kindheartedness. The General is quite deaf, and many a yarn is related anent that defect. One morning he was standing in the lobby of the House looking over his mail, when an impecunious employe of Congress, one of that sort who is always borrowing but never repays, stepped up and accosted him:

"General, can you let me have $5 till pay day?"

"Eh, how's that?" said the General.

The employe, remembering the General's reputation for being easy, concluded to take advantage of it.

"I say can you let me have $10 till pay day?"

"No," said the General; "I'll let you have $5; that's what you asked me for at first."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Horse Sense.

Circus horses are not the only members of the equine family which do smart things. For proof of this one has only to watch the antics of some of the local laundry horses when they are backed up against the curb, the horse being half way across the track. With all the wisdom of a human being the horse moved his head and side stepped out of the car's way as the motor whizzed by without loss of time.

"That is the wisest thing I ever saw a horse do," said a man as he watched the horse's action. "I have seen lots of clever things done by circus horses, but the turning of that horse is the smartest act of all. No man could have a sharper sense of danger than that animal. I doubt if a better exhibition of horses sense was ever given."—Albany Journal.

Russian Holidays.

A movement is on foot in Russia to diminish the excessive number of holidays for students. During a four years' course at a Russian university the work done covers only one year and 295 days. In France the time covered is two years, seventy-four days; in England, two years, 158 days; in the United States, two years, 210 days; in Germany, two years, 230 days. Denmark stands at the head of the list, with two years, 364 days.

WISE WORDS.

Whoever blushes seems to be good.—Menander.

How blessings brighten as they take their flight.—Young.

God is over all and heaven above thee.—Gerald Massey.

Stand up bravely to afflictions, and aquit thyself like a man.—T. a Kempis.

A sharp tongue is the only edged tool that grows keener with constant use.—Irving.

You cannot retrace the path of life, but you can start anew from the place where you stand.

Our birth is nothing but our death begun, as tapers waste the moment they take fire.—Young.

The selfish, loving only themselves, are loved by no one, so selfishness is moral suicide.—De Gaston.

A man must be both stupid and uncharitable who believes there is no virtue or truth but on his own side.—Addison.

Your life is the only one; if misdirected and lost, you have no other in which to remedy the error.—Henry Drummond.

Set yourself earnestly to see what you were made to do, and then set yourself earnestly to do it.—Phillips Brooks.

My advice is to consult the lives of other men as one would a looking glass and from thence fetch examples for our own imitation.—Terence.

Get holy principles, and thou shalt get the pinions of an angel, which shall bear thee above all clouds and storms of earth into the sunshine and calm of eternity.—Dr. Thomas.

Japanese Man Power.

The present war in the East is probably the only instance of a great campaign between civilized nations in which one of the combatants has relied almost entirely on man power, instead of horse power, for transport, the whole of the supplies of each Japanese division of infantry being carried by as many coolies, or porters, as there are fighting men. The Japanese porters are mainly men whose physique is not judged to be good enough to entitle them to fight in the line of battle, though according to modern European notions theirs would be considered rather the more arduous task of the two. But the Japanese have shown up till now that their choice of means has generally been correct, and it is not likely that they have made a mistake in this case.

They know their own people, and for centuries human transport has been the occupation of a large class of their unskilled labor. The litter, or rickshaw, has been adopted, in imitation of their method, even in Simla, the governing city of India. By a simple mechanical contrivance they have also greatly facilitated the work of bearing burdens. A bamboo is carried on a kind of pad over the shoulder, and the load, carefully balanced, is suspended to each end. The carrier thus avoids one of the greatest sources of fatigue, namely, the effect of picking up the burden when it has been laid down to rest, for by merely raising the bamboo and putting his whole body under it, he lifts it with the least possible effort.—London Spectator.

Street Railway Waiting Rooms.

The Montreal (Canada) Street Railway Company has recently erected a number of pretentious waiting rooms in different parts of the city. One of them is a two-story brick structure, where there are a ticket office and conveniences for passengers.

New York spends about twice as much for its amusements as for its education and fifteen times as much for its drink as for its education.

The most destructive epidemic that history tells of was the "Black Death, that in the 14th century destroyed 70,000,000 of people.

There were 591 homicides the past year in Japan. The total population is 54,000,000 and the average number of homicides for the past ten years has been but 600. During one year's time in the city of Chicago alone 567 assaults were made with intent to kill, 50 people were arrested for murder and 7 for manslaughter.

King Edward hts recently caused his various embassies and legations to gather all information possible concerning the extent to which theatres receive financial assistance from the crown or government in foreign lands.

Italy spends very little upon education, the total sum provided by the government and the communes being only a little over 3,000,000 pounds a year, or 2s. per head of the population. Switzerland spends 6s. 9d., and France 8s. 3d. per head.

The treasurer of the United States on May 6, 1903, redeemed two half cent pieces. This is the first time in the history of the country that any such coins have been presented for redemption. It is more than a century since the first half cent piece was coined, and it is nearly fifty years since the government discontinued minting them.

Tibetans use salt, soda and butter in their tea.

TONS OF BRIGHT GEMS

The Total of Diamonds in the World Approximates 85,000,000 Carats.

It is estimated that the total world production of diamonds up to date approximates 85,000,000 carats. As we are not in the habit of weighing our diamonds by the ton, we are in some doubt concerning the proper system of computation, whether troy of avoirdupois, long ton or short ton. According to the system used by those who do weigh their diamonds in ton quantities, the result would be in the neighborhood of twenty or twenty-five tons of sparklers now appearing as factors in the joys and the miseries of a world which has substituted diamonds for the beads and the wampum of its ancestors.

The regions contributing to this supply and the percentage of their contribution appear as follows: South Africa, 81.5 per cent; Brazil, 18 per cent., and the remaining five per cent. divided among Borneo, India, New South Wales and British Guiana, with North America and Russia supplying specimens. The last two of these countries have furnished just enough to equip an opera box for a single evening. The deep obligation of society to South Africa is apparent. The price of diamonds have been heavily advanced during the last year or two, but it is simply appalling to think what the price would have been without the South African supply. Society, American, English and Continental, should daily thank heaven for Kimberley and Jagersfontein.

We are unable to give the cubic measurement of the total collection, but so far as weight is concerned it would make a load for a medium sized freight car.—Baltimore American.

Walter Schumann, consul at Mainz, Germany, writes: Osmon, a new fuel, is made from peat. The peat contains 90 per cent of water, of which 20 to 25 per cent is removed by an electric current. The peat is then further dried and passed through a machine which breaks it up and forms it into nut-shaped pieces. Osmon is free from sulphur and burns without slag or smoke.

An endurance swimming match from the Brooklyn bridge to Coney Island, under the supervision of the United States volunteer life-saving corps, has resulted in victory for a man with one leg. The winner was Charles Seigfried, of Bayridge, who negotiated the distance in five hours and forty-eight minutes. Two young women were close behind him at the finish.

Pipe dealers say that the meerschaum is a "dead one." No smoker nowdays appears to covet the once-prized article requiring patience and care and skill in the coloring. Women seem to be the principal purchasers, when they get the idea that they are doing the fine thing by a husband or a sweetheart.

A Seattle firm has received an order from Rampart, Alaska, for a mowing machine and a horse hayrake. This is said to be the first order of the kind that has ever come from western Alaska and appears to offer proof that the Land of the Midnight Sun has other resources than gold and fish.

A harp belonging to the guillotined Queen Marie Antoinette has been placed on exhibition in the museum of the Paris conservatory. It is a superb instrument, inlaid with gold and encrusted with diamonds, made in 1780 by the famous Naderman.

The increase of population during the past twenty-five years has averaged at the rate of 11.9 per thousand per year in the United Kingdom, 9.3 in Austria, 10.4 in Hungary, 12.8 in the German empire, 1.6 in France and 10 in Italy.

The average speed of a good walker is a trifle over three miles an hour than can be accelerated to a quick step that will average five miles an hour for short distances. Long marches over excellent roads rarely ever average over 18 miles a day.

In 1903 the average of persons killed to every thousand employed in the mining industries of the country was 2.53; in 1902 the fatalities had increased to 3.52 per cent.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer, $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

The most widely known English writer in Japan is Carlyle.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. SAMUEL, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

License is paid in London on 7000 automobiles.

The Chinese name for Port Arthur was Lushunkow. The town had, twenty years ago, only a few thousand inhabitants and was used as a place for the deportation of criminals.

The unfortunate queen is known to have possessed two harps, but where the other is no one knows for sure

A prominent club woman, Mrs. Danforth, of St. Joseph, Mich., tells how she was cured of falling of the womb and its accompanying pains and misery by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Life looks dark indeed when a woman feels that her strength is fading away and she has no hopes of ever being restored. Such was my feeling a few months ago when I was advised that my poor health was caused by prolapsus or falling of the womb. The words sounded like a knell to me, I felt that my sun had set; but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to me as an elixir of life; it restored the lost forces and built me up until my good health returned to me. For four months I took the medicine daily and each dose added health and strength. I am so thankful for the help I obtained through its use."—MRS. FLORENCE DANFORTH, 1007 Miles Ave., St. Joseph, Mich.

A medicine that has restored so many women to health and can produce proof of the fact must be regarded with respect. This is the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which cannot be equalled by any other medicine the world has ever produced. Here is another case:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For years I was troubled with falling of the womb, irregular and painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, bearing-down pains, backache, headache, dizzy and fainting spells, and stomach trouble.

"I doctored for about five years but did not seem to improve. I began the use of your medicine, and have taken seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, three of Blood Purifier, and also used the Sanative Wash and Liver Pills, and am now enjoying good health, and have gained in flesh.

I thank you very much for what you have done for me, and heartily recommend your medicine to all suffering women."—MISS EMMA SNYDER, 218 East Center St., Marion, Ohio.

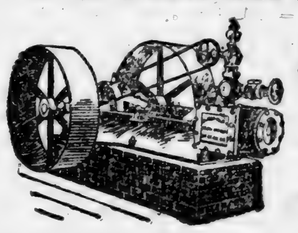
"FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN."

Women would save time and much sickness if they would write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice as soon as any distressing symptoms appear. It is free, and has put thousands of women on the right road to recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence thus entrusted to her, and although she publishes thousands of testimonials from women who have been benefited by her advice and medicine, never in all her experience has she published such a letter without the full consent, and often by special request of the writer.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS COMPANY
MANUFACTURERS



High Pressure Return Tubular Boilers
Morison Internally Fired Boilers
High Grade Slide Valve Engines
Transmission Machinery
Heavy Castings
Wrought Iron and Steel Work
Tanks, Stacks and Stand Pipes
Heavy Pipe Work a Specialty
Address Machinery Department
MACON, GEORGIA.

As an original stockholder of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Col. William Davis, of Huntingdon, N. Y., uses a pass issued without limit, in 1850.

POLLOCK-STEPHENS
INSTITUTE AND COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Select Boarding School for Young Ladies. School opens September 21st. Catalogue sent on application.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

Bryant & Stratton
Business, Shorthand and Typewriting College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

Am. 39, 1904.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION
25 CTS. 25 CTS.

Use our machinery! It is the strongest. It takes the least power. Carries the heaviest tools. Drills much faster. Lasts longer and makes the owner more money than any other Drilling Machine on earth. Machines made for drilling any depth or diameter, and for Horse, Steam or Gasoline Power
LOOMIS & NYMAN, TIFFIN, OHIO.

TULANE UNIVERSITY of LA.
NEW ORLEANS.
Full courses in Languages, Sciences, Engineering, Law, Medicine. Splendid department for women in Newcomb College. Tulane makes leaders in all vocations. Its facilities for instructon in Engineering are unsurpassed. Unexcelled opportunities for the study of Sugar Chemistry. Many scholarships in the academic department. Expenses low. Board and accommodations in dormitories at low rates. Opportunities afforded academic students for self-help. Next session begins October 1st. Send for catalogue and illustrated circular. Address THE REGISTRAR, Gibson Hall.

If afflicted with weak eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

Plantation Chill Cure is Guaranteed
To cure, or money refunded by your merchant, so why not try it? Price 50c.

THREE HIGH OFFICERS

Should be impeached, Says the Grand Jury in the Huntsville Case.

SHERIFF, MAYOR AND CHIEF

Should be Made to Answer for Their Conduct and the Police Force be Reorganized.

The grand jury found its final report, recommending that Sheriff Rodgers, Mayor Smith and Chief of Police Overton be impeached in connection with the lynching of Horace Maples and the burning of Madison county jail on the night of September 7. Seven additional indictments were returned. The report of the grand jury is caustic and is a severe arraignment of the three officials.

An apparently well founded report is in circulation to the effect that six secret service men in the employ of the United States government have been directed to make an extensive investigation of the lynching of Horace Maples and the attack on the jail in which government prisoners are confined and report at length to the grand jury at the October term of United States court. There is more genuine terror inspired by this report than anything that has been done by the grand jury of the circuit court, even though its indictments charged murder in the first degree and arson.

Six well known citizens of Huntsville and Madison county are known to have disappeared since investigation of the lynching began. Three have not been heard from, two are in Mexico by this time and one was last heard from in Salt Lake City.

Chief Wilkie, of the secret service, states that there are no secret service men investigating the recent lynching affair at Huntsville, as rumored there.

SOLDIERS WILL STAY

At Huntsville Till Court Orders Them Home.

Governor Cunningham is quoted as saying:

"Just as long as the court wants the military, the Birmingham company under Captain Lucien Brown will remain in Huntsville. The government has not advised me of any desire to send troops to Huntsville nor have I asked for any troops to be sent by the government and I do not propose to ask for any."

Captain Loses Arm.

Captain Pat J. Quill, chief engineer for the Alabama steamer Nettie Quill, one of the best known steamboatmen in the state, had his left arm torn off by the machinery of his boat while running between Mount Pleasant and Dixie landing. At the time he was standing on the wheel guard giving some orders when he fell and his arm was caught between the crank pin and the pitman. The bone was crushed and the flesh was ground to a pulp.

Dr. May Acquitted.

A verdict of not guilty was returned in the case of Dr. John May, charged with embezzlement. The verdict was returned Saturday night, the jury being out less than five minutes.

The arrest of Dr. May took place December 27, 1903, and he has been confined in the Jefferson county jail since that date. He was charged with embezzlement of $500 from General C. M. Shelley, the charge growing out of the organization of the Thermol Medicine company. The company was formed by Dr. May, General Shelley being a stockholder.

Feud in Limestone.

Seven miles north of Athens, in the public road, Saturday night, Odis Laxson shot and fatally wounded John and seriously shot Conyon Young. An old feud was the cause of the trouble. All parties are white.

CREW ON PAROLE.

Lena's Men Have Freedom of Frisco, but Must Stay There.

Admiral Goodrich, commanding the Pacific station, had telegraphed the navy department that he has forwarded by mail a full report of the agreement he entered into with Captain Berlinsky, of the Russian ship Lena, and the officers and crew of that ship. This provides for their freedom in the city of San Francisco, but they are not to go beyond the city during the war, and under no conditions can they be permitted to go to Russia except on the conclusion of an agreement on that point between the governments of Russia and Japan which would relieve the United States of any responsibility.

Teacher Resigns.

Something of a sensation followed the announcement that Professor L. P. Liles, principal of the Pratt City high school, had resigned, and that, too, on the very eve of the opening of the schools. Superintendent McNeill, who is authority for the announcement, had little to say with reference to this unexpected action of the high school principal, other than that the school board would meet at once, formally accept the resignation and take steps to secure a successor.

MISSISSIPPI COTTON

Has Suffered Greatly—Expected to Fall Short of 1,000,000 Bales.

There is no question that the Mississippi cotton crop has suffered heavy damage since the latter part of August, and much speculation is being indulged in as to the percentage of shortage that will be shown when the crop is harvested.

The damage to the crop is in spots, but these spots cover wide areas. For instance, in Claiborne county the reports state that the crop is almost a total failure, and similar reports come from portions of Holmes and several points in the delta, especially Bolivar, Washington, Sunflower and Tallahatchie counties.

The farmers in Leake county are firmly convinced that the insect which has wrought such havoc in that section is the much-dreaded Mexican boll weevil, notwithstanding the fact that they have received no confirmation to this effect from the state entomologist. The insect, regardless of its species, has almost totally destroyed the crop.

CHARTER ASKED

For New Railroad from Florence, Ala., to Clifton, Tenn.

An application has been filed for a charter for the Florence and Clifton Railroad company.

The road is to be built from Florence, Ala., to Clifton, Wayne county, Tenn., a distance of seventy-six miles. It is expected that the actual work of construction will be commenced within the next thirty days and the work will be pushed rapidly to completion.

The line is to start at Florence, Ala., and go northward through Wayne county, Tennessee, to the northwestern edge, on which is situated the town of Clifton. This town had in 1900 a population of 639 people, but it is stated that there are many more than that living there now.

BAXTER TROUBLES

Said to be Ended—Prisoners to be Tried in Georgia.

All the prisoners who were taken to Jacksonville by the military last week from Baker county are still in jail, but attorneys will institute habeas corpus proceedings. The authorities of Charlton county, Georgia, where the killing of Duncan and the negro Riley occurred a week ago, the authorities of Baker county, Florida, and the sheriff of this county are in consultation with the state attorney regarding the disposition of the prisoners. There is direct testimony against Charles and Hillary Altman for killing Jackson Duncan and the negro and wounding Marshal Duncan and throwing him off the train. As this occurred in Georgia, the sheriff of Charlton county demands these prisoners, and it is said the Florida authorities will not object.

A Chameleon Snake.

While gathering flowers from a bed of mixed nasturtiums, Mrs. James Armstrong, of Scottsboro, discovered a peculiar snake. It was something on the order of a chameleon. The bed of flowers in which the snake was found has a variety of colors. As the snake glided among the flowers its body would undergo a transformation, changing instantly to the same color as the flower that came in contact with it. When finally killed it measured over three feet in length. After death and while lying on the ground the body was of a dark gray color. Several who saw the snake pronounced it different from anything ever seen in this section before.

Body Cut; House Burning.

A special from Montgomery says the body of Willie Boyd, a prominent young white man of Shorters, was found under a bed in the burning house of a negress at that place. The body was mutilated by knife and gunshot wounds.

A Call to Chicago.

Rev. Charles A. Stakely, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist church of Montgomery has under consideration the call from the congregation of one of the most prominent churches of that denomination in Chicago.

Another Russian Army.

Acting upon the advice of his military advisers, Emperor Nicholas has decided to form a second Manchurian army. It will be formed of the corps which is being sent to the far east and Lieutenant General Linevitch probably will be given the command of the second army. General Kuropatkin will become chief of both armies, but probably without the title of commander in chief.

Resignation Received.

Governor Vardaman has received the resignation of Captain J. H. Stoltzfus, of Battery L, Second regiment, located at Meridian, and a special election will be ordered to fill the vacancy, the resignation having been accepted.

Fatally Hurt.

E. H. Hosey, night watchman for the Bessemer Foundry and Machine company, was found in the foundry near some scaffolding with his skull fractured and unconscious. He was carried to his home, where he was given medical attention, but died in a short while. It is not known just how he was hurt, as no one saw him when it happened, but it is thought he fell on the scaffold and struck his head. Mr. Hosey was 65 years old and leaves a widow and children.

ATTACK ON MUKDEN

Battle Imminent at Manchurian City Where 300,000 Soldiers are Ready to Fight.

PORT ARTHUR'S WATER SUPPLY

Is Receiving Japanese Attention—They Try to Cut It Off, but are Repulsed—More War Ships.

Eight and possibly nine Japanese divisions are reported to be advancing on Mukden, and another battle between the armies under Generals Kuropatkin and Kuroki is imminent.

St. Petersburg has heard that the Russian Baltic squadron has been reinforced by four warships purchased from Argentina.

Interest is again concentrated upon Port Arthur owing to the receipt from foreign sources of news that a general storming of the fortifications there has begun. A few belated telegrams from General Stoessel, the commander of Port Arthur, published Tuesday afternoon recording the repulse of the Japanese and continued attacks strengthen confidence in the ability of the defenders to hold out despite the furious onslaughts being made on them.

The last attack mentioned by General Stoessel took place the night of September 14th and was directed against Redoubt No. 8, which protected the water supply of the city. The redoubt is about two miles beyond the line of permanent forts and the attack upon this shows that the Japanese were not within striking distance of the main fortress.

Two hundred car loads of steel rails from Pennsylvania are ready for shipment to the orient and two or three hundred more car loads are due to arrive in a few days. Two tramp steamers will take the rails to Yokohama. It is understood that the ultimate destination of the steel is Korea.

TRAIN WRECK ATTEMPTED.

An Extra Freight Clears the Track. An Investigation.

Had not an extra freight train struck a pile of crossties and cleared the track a passenger train from Savannah to Birmingham might have been wrecked near Columbus, Ga.

Train wreckers made a desperate attempt to wreck the passenger by piling crossties to a height of three or four feet, the arrangement suggesting a section of a rail fence and making a formidable obstruction.

It so happened, however, that the extra freight pulled out of Columbus and when the heavy engine struck the pile of crossties they were scattered in all directions. The steel pilot to these big engines is very low and this acted as a kind of scoop and sent the crossties flying on both sides of the track. Neither the engine or any of the cars were derailed. Engineer Bozeman was in charge of the train.

The Central railway officials will sift the matter to the botton.

MADE CONVERTS,

But Has Skipped with their Jewelry and Left His Wife.

A strange preacher giving the name of Stafford appeared in West Decatur, saying that he was a minister of the gospel, and at once started a revival meeting.

After preaching several sermons he told the good people of the neighborhood that the Christian ladies should not wear ruffles on their dresses, neither should they wear jewelry of any kind. He thus induced several of the ladies of his flock to turn their jewelry over to him. He received several finger rings, watches, etc. These, it is said, he pawned or sold to different parties in the Decaturs, and then left for parts unknown, leaving his wife behind.

Where he came from or whether or not he was a preacher is unknown to the people. However, he was a good talker and seemed to win the good confidence of many of the people.

At Birmingham Next.

The next annual convention of the National Brick Manufacturers' association of the United States will be held in Birmingham during the first week of February. This will be the second time that the organization has held its meeting in the south, the first having been held in Atlanta a few years ago.

Captured Two Forts.

A general attack on Port Arthur began Monday in which the Japanese fleet co-operated.

The Japanese captured two important forts on either side of Sueiszeying, north of Port Arthur.

Mill in Operation.

The large saw mill of the Kyle Lumber company, Gadsden, which has a daily capacity of 50,000 feet of lumber and which has been idle for several weeks on account of the scarcity of logs, has resumed operations. Coosa river has been lower this year than ever known and no logs could be secured, but rains above have caused the river to rise sufficiently to allow logs to be rafted and the big mill is once more busy.

INSURANCE OF GINS

In Mississippi is a Difficult Thing to Accomplish.

The owners of cotton gins in Mississippi are experiencing considerable difficulty in securing fire insurance, owing to the exceedingly small number of companies operating in the state that are willing to take this class of risks.

According to statements of underwriters, there are only four or five fire insurance companies that will write this class of risks, and these are willing to give insurance only when exceptional precautions are taken to prevent loss by fire.

The official reports at the insurance department show four cotton gin losses since the 1st of September in this state, the aggregate losses in which amounted to about $25,000.

ONE ARREST

In Connection with the Roberts Case at Anniston.

Anniston police have arrested a negress charged with being implicated in the murder of Miss Bessie Roberts.

The woman is in the city jail and refuses to talk. Before her arrest she told several conflicting tales of the crime and seemed to know more than she would tell.

It is believed that the murderer stayed at her house the night after the deed was committed and while in a drunken condition told her of the crime he had committed. The negress' reputation is very unsavory and little confidence can be placed in what she says.

The state has offered a $250 reward while a similar amount has been raised by citizens for the arrest of the guilty party.

Reba Williams, the negro woman who has been held by the police in connection with the murder of Miss Roberts, was released under a hundred dollar bond.

RUSSIAN OFFICERS

Suffered Great Mortality in the Manchurian Campaign.

An indication of the mortality among Russian officers at the front is shown by the report from St. Petersburg that about one-seventh of the officers in the regiments of guards stationed at the capital are to be drafted for service with regiments at the scene of war.

The Japanese are reported to be advancing slowly upon the positions held by the Russians in a line extending about twenty-seven miles. There have been no developments at Port Arthur beyond a reported futile sortie by the garrison against a height which recently fell into the hands of the Japanese.

There is an unconfirmed rumor there that General Mistchenko, commander of the Russian eastern Cossack brigade, has been killed.

A Little Fighting.

A dispatch has been received from General Kuropatkin announcing that Generals Rennenkampf and Samsonoff are conducting important reconnaissances which have resulted in rather heavy fighting with many casualties.

From General Kuropatkin's telegram it appears that Rennenkampf had recovered from his wound and had resumed command of his troops. The reconnaissances disclosed a further increase in the Japanese forces at Yental and Rensiaputz. The Russians have occupied several villages near the Japanese lines.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says the reconnaissances were toward the Japanese front and right flank, resulting in the Japanese being driven back.

To Save Indians.

One of the most drastic orders ever issued by the government for the protection of several Indian tribes against fraud and robbery was promulgated by Acting Secretary of the Interior Ryan. The order in question amends the rules for the sale of inherited Indian lands so as to require that the proceeds to be derived from their sale shall be placed with the most convenient United States depository to the credit of the heirs in proper proportion, subject to the check of such heirs or their recognized guardians for amounts not exceeding $10 to each in any one month.

Before being paid, however, it is necessary for these to be approved by the agent or other officer in charge.

Free Thinkers.

The congress of Free Thinkers assembled at Rome Tuesday at the Roman college erected by Pope Gregory XIII. The event assumed special importance, this being the anniversary of the fall of the temporal power of the pope and also on account of the recent Franco-vatican conflict. There were more than five thousand delegates present, the Frenchmen alone numbering about 1,000. Spain had three hundred representatives. Ten delegates came from America.

Dutch Parliament Opens.

Queen Wilhelmina opened the states general Tuesday. In the speech from the throne the queen said the home industries of the Netherlands were not competing satisfactorily with foreign enterprise, and that the finances of the Dutch Indies and the Netherlands needed strengthening. The queen announced also the forthcoming introduction of bills providing for old age pensions and higher education.

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

Louisville & Nashville R.

Read Down — CENTRAL TIME.

AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58
7 19	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 11
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
For rates and further information address

A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, A

A Great Combination O

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democ

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-ly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. Republican in Politics and has no equal or ri

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all th of the national campaign, and all the news of all the you must have the Globe-Democrat during the com

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home pa the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair Ci for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Al

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.

SHOES that are Reliable.

SHOES made to Wear.

NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and

Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, A

Now is The Time to P

an Ad in This Paper

Gelder's Restaura

Good Meals at Reasonable P

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

Pure Water Prevents Fev

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE W

We guarantee water or no charge Estimates given. Address

I. E. SARBER

Thorsby, Alabama.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Br

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES

Clanton, - - - - Al

TH

VOL II.

EW RESPONSIBLE

Slocomb Disaster Says Board of Inspectors. Their Report.

APPARATUS INSUFFICIENT.

cers' Licenses Revoked—Greatest Blame Laid to Deck Hands' Incompetency.

A lengthy report has just been made blic of an investigation by the local rd of steamboat inspectors into General Slocum steamer disaster, ich occurred in the East river last ne and cost nearly 1,000 lives. The ort concludes by announcing the ocation of the licenses of officers ard the Slocum, as follows: Wil-m H. Van Schaick, master and pi-; Edward Vanwart, pilot, and Ben-min F. Conklin, chief engineer. Briefly summarized, the principal nts of the board's report are:

"That the fire was discovered at e upper end of the Sunken Meadows and that North Brother Island was e nearest available point to beach e steamer.

"That the life preserving appliances the vessel were inadequate, but d the Slocum been supplied with ssible the number, not another life ould have been saved because of e ignorance and incompetence of e crew.

"That there was an absolute lack discipline of the crew because of e negligence of the master and of e pilot.

"That fire drills had been neglected, nd that had the crew been trained, s the law requires, such a disaster ould have been almost inconceiva-ble.

"That one of the crew, in his ignorance, added to the incipient flames by throwing thereon an empty bag which had contained charcoal.

"That the chief engineer was grossly negligent when notified of the fire, in that he did not see that the hose had been connected and the water turned on."

Other Reports Coming.

The investigation began July 6th and was delayed by the injuries of Captain Van Schaick, which confined him to the hospital. Under the law the board only took up the conduct of the vessel's licensed officers. The other phases of the disaster were investigated by a special commission appointed on request of President Roosevelt.

This commission has not yet made public its report.

"A few minutes after the master was made aware that the Slocum was on fire he gave orders to the pilot to beach the vessel on the North Brother island. That order was obeyed and the steamer was beached probably within three minutes.

"In the face of the evidence we can not in justice arrive at any conclusion on this point other than the unfavorable criticism passed upon Captain Van Schaick for not having beached his steamer at some other point than where he did was wholly unmerited."

The great mortality, according to their view, was due to the impossibility of equipping 1,500 persons, mostly children, in a few minutes and not to the age of the preservers.

Blames Crew.

"The evidence before us indicates an absolute lack of discipline on the part of the crew," the report continues. "Because of the negligence of the master of the steamer and of the pilot, who under the law is next to the master in charge, to observe the provisions which require them in the discipline and use of the fire pumps and all other apparatus for the safety of life on board such vessel and to see that all the equipments required by law are in complete working order for immediate use."

The money in actual circulation has been increased $112,000,000 since January 1.

Riggins Acquitted.

The first of the Huntsville alleged lynchers indicted by the grand jury last week was acquitted in the circuit court.

Thomas M. Riggins, the hotel man who has lain in jail a week, is now free, the state having failed to make out a case against him. The jury returned the verdict from the box.

There was a rumor to the effect that two of the jurors on this case had expressed themselves in sympathy with the mob on the night of the lynching and had perjured themselves to get on the jury. Solicitor Pettus had his attention called to the rumor and intended to make a full investigation, but the matter may be dropped since the trial passed as it did.

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

sville & Nashville R.

CENTRAL. TIME.

PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2
4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45
5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33
....	Jemison	8 58	....
....	Thorsby	8 51	....
....	Lomax	8 42	....
6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48
....	Cooper	8 17	....
....	Verbena	8 11	....
....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....
7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25

. Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
further information address

STINSON, Agent, Clanton, A

eat Combination O

Ve will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

ouis Globe-Democ

WITH

The Union

FOR

h Papers One Year Only

ouis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-s or more, every Tuesday and Friday in Politics and has no equal or riv
t Modern Newspaper
all the news of the World's Fair, all th l campaign, and all the news of all the the Globe-Democrat during the comi
NOW IS THE TIME.
go To-Day and get your best home pa
Newspaper of the World's Fair Ci
Address
Union, Clanton, Ala

My Specialty..

e of Leather.
S that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

s, Groceries, Flour and
tuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.
y Department Full and Complete.
J. W. SMITH.
ffice Building. Clanton,

The Time to P
Ad in This Paper

ler's Restaura
leals at Reasonable P
110 North 20th Street,
RMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Water Prevents Fev
WELLS FURNISH PURE W
rantee water or no charge given. Address
I. E. SARBER
y, Alabama.

AL MERCHANDISE
FERTILIZERS
FOR SALE.
Special & Mule B
re the Best on Earth'
C. JONES
Al

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. II. CLANTON, ALA., SEPTEMBER 29, 1904. NO. 27.

EW RESPONSIBLE

Slocomb Disaster Says Board of Inspectors. Their Report.

APPARATUS INSUFFICIENT.

rs' Licenses Revoked—Greatest Blame Laid to Deck Hands' Incompetency.

lengthy report has just been made e of an investigation by the local d of steamboat inspectors into General Slocum steamer disaster, h occurred in the East river last and cost nearly 1,000 lives. The rt concludes by announcing the cation of the licenses of officers rd the Slocum, as follows: Wil- H. Van Schaick, master and pi- Edward Vanwart, pilot, and Ben- n F. Conklin, chief engineer.

Briefly summarized, the principal nts of the board's report are:

That the fire was discovered at upper end of the Sunken Mead- and that North Brother island was nearest available point to beach steamer.

That the life preserving appliances the vessel were inadequate, but the Slocum been supplied with ble the number, not another life uld have been saved, because of e ignorance and incompetence of e crew.

That there was an absolute lack discipline of the crew because of e negligence of the master and of e pilot.

That fire drills had been neglected, d that had the crew been trained, the law requires, such a disaster uld have been almost inconceiva- e.

That one of the crew, in his ig- rance, added to the incipient flames by throwing thereon an empty bag hich had contained charcoal.

That the chief engineer was gross- negligent when notified of the fire, that he did not see that the hose d been connected and the water rned on."

Other Reports Coming.

The investigation began July 6th and was delayed by the injuries of aptain Van Schaick, which confined im to the hospital. Under the law e board only took up the conduct f the vessel's licensed officers. The ther phases of the disaster were in- estigated by a special commission ppointed on request of President oosevelt.

This commission has not yet made public its report.

"A few minutes after the master as made aware that the Slocum was on fire he gave orders to the pilot o beach the vessel on the North Brother island. That order was obey- d and the steamer was beached prob- bly within three minutes.

"In the face of the evidence we an not in justice arrive at any con- clusion on this point other than the unfavorable criticism passed upon Cap- tain Van Schaick for not having beached his steamer at some other point than where he did was wholly unmerited."

The great mortality, according to their view, was due to the impossibil- ity of equipping 1,500 persons, mostly children, in a few minutes and not to the age of the preservers.

Blames Crew.

"The evidence before us indicates an absolute lack of discipline on the part of the crew," the report con- tinues. "Because of the negligence of the master of the steamer and of the pilot, who under the law is next to the master in charge, to observe the provisions which require them in the discipline and use of the fire pumps and all other apparatus for the safety of life on board such vessel, and to see that all the equipments required by law are in complete work- ing order for immediate use."

The money in actual circulation has been increased $112,000,000 since Jan- uary 1.

Riggins Acquitted.

The first of the Huntsville alleged lynchers indicted by the grand jury last week was acquitted in the circuit court.

Thomas M. Riggins, the hotel man who has lain in jail a week, is now free, the state having failed to make out a case against him. The jury re- turned the verdict from the box.

There was a rumor to the effect that two of the jurors on this case had expressed themselves in sympathy with the mob on the night of the lynching and had perjured themselves to get on the jury. Solicitor Pettus had his attention called to the rumor and intended to make a full investiga- tion, but the matter may be dropped since the trial passed as it did.

JEWELS RETURNED.

Had Been Stolen About a Month Ago.

About one month ago the jewelry store of C. B. Sargent, of Cullman, was broken into and robbed of about $200 worth of watches and other jew- elry. Officers have been unable to find the guilty parties and the matter was about forgotten, when Mr. Sargent received his jewelry in a cigar box expressed from St. Louis.

It was a great surprise to Mr. Sar gent, who, of course, did not expect ever to recover the goods. In the box was an unsigned note stating that two men or boys were in Cullman on the night of the burglary and entered the store, taking the goods. They claimed to have repented of the act, and as they were at work, did not need to steal, had decided to return the stolen property. All the goods stolen were returned except five rings.

One or two arrests have been made on suspicion, but the parties have been released on satisfactory show- ing.

INFERNAL MACHINE

Laid to Destroy Home of President of Sloss Company.

An improvised infernal machine with a lighted fuse attached was found on the porch of the residence of J. C. Maben, president of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company, by a passer- by who succeeded in cutting the fuse and preventing an explosion.

The machine consisted of a pint milk bottle containing powdered dyna- mite, and the fuse which led to the can was lighted and was burning rap- idly when discovered.

The man who discovered the ma- chine waked Mr. Maben and notified him of his narrow escape. He told Mr. Maben a white man, about six feet tall and wearing a heavy mous- tache, ran past him and disappeared.

There was sufficient dynamite in the jar to have wrecked the entire house, and probably killed every occupant.

TWENTY MULES BURNED.

Standard Oil Company Has Heavy Loss by Fire.

Fire destroyed the Standard Oil company's barn and twenty-odd mules Thursday night at Birmingham. But for the work of the fire department the large oil storage building would have been burned.

The origin of the fire is unknown. A negro discovered the flames in the front part of the barn. He gave the alarm and the firemen responded promptly.

An effort was made to save the mules, but the flames were fierce, and the doors of the barn could not be opened in time to get the poor crea- tures out.

The local management stated that the loss by the fire would amount to about $10,000.

NEW KNITTING MILL

Has Sold Its Entire Output for a Year.

R. L. Adams is making preparations for the establishment of a $10,000 knitting mill at Gadsden. Mr. Adams has purchased the old ice plant and has had it remodeled, and is now in- stalling the machinery.

He expects to have the plant run- ning in a few months, and for the first year the mill will turn out only one kind of knit undershirt. Mr. Ad- ams says the mill will have a capacity of 200 dozen shirts per day, and the entire output for a year has been sold

BABY BOY DESERTED.

Twenty-One Dresses Left with Him. Investigation.

A baby boy was left at the door of T. P. Henderson, a farmer, at Brushy Pond. The waif is a male child and apparently of tolerably well-to-do pa- rents, as it was provided with plenty of nice clothing. There were twenty- one nice dresses with the little fel- low.

Coal Deposits.

Valuable coal deposits have been dis- covered near Walter, in the southeast corner of Cullman county, which will be developed at an early date.

POWDER EXPLOSION

Kills One Workman and Fatally In- jures Another.

A special from Jellico, Tenn., says: A terrible explosion occurred at the Jellico Powder company's works. Lee Hill was killed and Sam Harvey is thought to be fatally wounded.

The accident occurred in the build- ing known as the "corning depart- ment" and the structure with its con- tents was completely demolished. The clothing was burned from Hill's body and his form was burned almost to a crisp. Harvey was also very severely burned.

The cause of the disaster is un- known.

300,000 SOLDIERS

Will be Sent to the Theatre of War to Reinforce the Russian Army.

GEN. GRIPPENBERG TO COMMAND.

Czar Believes Russia's Military and Political Prestige at Stake—Will Fight It Out.

The division and reorganization of the Manchurian army, regarding which there have been rumors ever since the battle of Liao Yang, is officially announced in an imperial rescript ap- pointing General Grippenberg com- mander of the Third army corps, in the province of Vilna, as commander of the second army now being mobil- ized for immediate dispatch to the far east, leaving General Kuropatkin in command of the first army.

The emperor is personally convinced that the political, as well as the mili- tary prestige of the empire, is at stake, and that every other considera- tion must give way before the exi- gencies of war. The resources of the empire in men and money must be drained if necessary in order to turn the scale and vindicate the power of Russia.

The reorganization amounts to for- mal notice to the world, as the em- peror frankly explains in his rescript that he intends to vastly increase the number of troops at the theater of war in order to force the struggle to a successful issue in the shortest possi- ble time.

Probably 300,000 additional men will be placed in the field. Eventually the creation of this second army involves the selection of a commander in chief. Not only is there no intimation in the rescript that General Kuropatkin will have command of both armies, but he is distinctly placed upon the same footing as General Grippenberg. In the best informed circles there is little idea that Viceroy Alexieff, the present nominal commander in chief, will ex- ercise the actual functions of com- mander of the 600,000 men that Rus- sia has resolved to put in the field.

It is the best opinion that Grand Duke Nicholas Michaelovitch, inspec- tor general of cavalry, will attain the high command, occupying in the war with Japan the position held by his father in the war with Turkey. There was various reports regarding Vice- roy Alexieff's ultimate destiny. It is declared in some quarters that he will be recalled and Grand Duke Nicholas become viceroy, as well as commander in chief. It is also said upon appa- rently equal authority that Alexieff will return as chancellor of the em- pire, suceeding Count Lamsdorff. None of these reports are definitely con- firmable.

General Grippenberg, commander of the second army, was born January 1, 1838. He is ten years older than General Kuropatkin, but ranks three numbers lower on the list of generals. He is a Lutheran in religion. He is married and has three children. One son, a captain of artillery, was wound- ed in the battle of Liao Yang.

POLITICIANS QUARREL.

One of Georgia's Representatives Is Stabbed

A special from Waycross, Ga., says that Dr. J. M. Spence, representative from Ware county, was probably fatal- ly stabbed near Waresboro by J. R. McDonald, who is opposing him as an independent.

It is said that Spence went to Mc- Donald's home for the purpose of forc- ing him to sign affidavits withdraw- ing certain charges and the cutting af- fray followed. Owing to the promi- nence of the parties concerned, there is considerable excitement over the affair.

New City Hall.

Florence's new city hall has just been completed at a cost of $7,000, and the city officials will move in at once. It is in the heart of the city, opposite the court house, and it is one of the prettiest and most substantial build- ings in Florence.

The basement is fitted up with cells for the prisoners, the first floor con- tains the city court room and the offices of the city officials, and the second floor will be devoted to the Wheeler Rifles, with armory, lockers and office for the captain. On the same lot is the new fire house.

Vesuvius Busy.

Vesuvius is gradually growing more active and is continuously throwing up ashes and sparks of fire, which rise occasionally in immense volumes to a height of 700 feet, accompanied by loud detonations and slight earth- quakes.

WATER SUPPLY

At Port Arthur Cut Off by the Japanese Soldiers.

As a result of the battle before Port Arthur, which began on September 19th, the Japanese succeeded in cap- turing several important positions, and today the Russian tenure of the big forts guarding the north, northeast and northwest sides of the town is se- riously threatened.

Chinese information places the Jap- nese losses under 3,000 for the three days' fighting, and this comparatively small casualty list is due to the exces- sive care used by the Japanese in making their preparations for the ad- vance. Russian sources, however, claim to have information that the Japanese losses were unusually se- vere, amounting to fully three times the number mentioned above.

Possibly the most important capture during the three days' fighting was that of Fort Kuropatkin, which, while of minor value with regard to pre- venting the entrance into the town of the Japanese, had been constructed for the purpose of protecting the source of the garrison's water supply. The control of this water supply is now in the hands of the Japanese.

At noon on September 20th the Jap- anese right and center, the former be- ing to the west and the latter to the east of the railroad, commenced the advance.

The troops made use of the trenches and infrequent natural cover that lay in their way. The small forts to the south of the Shushiyen resisted this advance, but briefly, their garrisons not being strong numerically. Since the beginning of the bombardment the artillery from Port Kuropatkin had been growing steadily weaker, and it having become apparent that it had been practically silenced, the Japanese assaulted the fort. Fort Kuropatkin is situated to the south of Palichuang, and to the northeast of the parade ground on a low hill.

It derives its name from the time when General Kuropatkin inspected it, pointed out the weakness of the posi- tion, and ordered that it be strength- ened as far as possible because of the necessity of protecting the water sup- ply.

Military experts are of the opinion that if the Japanese capture either Rihlung or Kikwan forts, or the Its and Anshu forts, the doom of Port Arthur is sealed, and for this reason the importance of the results obtained by the Japanese in their latest as- saults upon the Russian position is obvious.

TRAIN EXPLODES DYNAMITE.

Two Killed and Nine Injured—Engine Wrecked.

A fast freight on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad struck a wagon loaded with 750 pounds of dynamite at the crossing at North Branch, West Vir- ginia. Two persons were killed and nine were injured, three of them seri- ously.

James Laing, who drove the wagon, escaped with only trivial injury, as did the two horses, although the lat- ter were blown fifty yards into a field.

According to eye witnesses Laing, hearing the train, became terrified and stopped on the track. The engine was overturned and stripped and seven cars following, loaded with high-grade merchandise, were broken open, sev- eral being demolished, the tracks were thrown out of bed, while rails were snapped like pipestems. The wires were torn down.

Engineer Pike was held under iron scraps on top of the boiler while be- ing slowly cooked to death. It re- quired four men to extricate him. The explosion knocked nearly every per son in the neighborhood down, hurled Hunter Bowen through a roof, but did not hurt him, and threw parts of the engine 200 yards.

BOILER EXPLOSION.

New Engineer Didn't Understand It. Four Killed.

The boiler in the gin department of the Mammoth cotton mill at Dukes, N. C., exploded, partially wrecking the engine room, instantly killing three workmen, one of whom was the super- intendent of the mill, and one negro. Another negro was scalded so badly that he will die.

From the best information obtain- able it seems that the old fireman of the mill having just been discharged, the new man not thoroughly under- standing the engine, had gotten up too much steam. The engine refused to work and the fireman went after the superintendent. As they entered the engine room together, there was a rending roar, and the men were blown to pieces.

Electric Light Explodes.

Engineer W. L. Rea, of a Seaboard Air Line work train, was fatally in- jured.

The electric headlight on the engine exploded and a piece of flying iron struck the engineer on the head.

ON PORT ARTHUR

A Combined Attack from Land and Sea Now Engages Japanese Attention.

ALL JAPAN'S ARMADA AIDING.

Items from Mukden, Where Next Big Battle Is Expected to Occur.

The Japanese are now engaged in an assault which is more furious than its predecessors, attacking the town on three sides simultaneously and em- ploying their whole forces, being de- termined to finish the business. Rus- sian mines blew up whole battalions.

General Fock has distinguished him- self directing the fire from the wall, which the Japanese reached after in- describable massacre.

The whole of Admiral Togo and Vice Admiral Kamamura's squadrons are aiding the struggle. The beseiged forces are fighting desperately. A per- fect storm of shells is falling on the town, port and fortress from the hill and roadstead. General Stoessel is going from fort to fort encouraging the defenders in their desperate ef- forts.

Secrecy veils the movements of the Japanese armies in Manchuria and lit- tle that is indicative of developments in the situation is permitted to reach the correspondents. Apparently four Japanese armies are converging upon Mukden, but although the distance to be covered is not great, several days are expected to elapse before there ensues a battle with the forces under General Kuropatkin.

The Russians are using war balloons south of Mukden for the purpose of observing the operations of the Japan- ese in that direction.

While the Japanese are reported to be slowly advancing on Mukden, there has been no fighting worthy of note between the opposing armies under General Kuropatkin and Marquis Oya- ma.

Definite information from Port Ar- thur is very meager and inconclusive. Russian spies allege that a considera- ble force has been detached from the Japanese army which captured Liao Yang, and sent back to aid in the operations against Port Arthur. The formation of seven Russian rifle brig- ades for service in the far east has been ordered.

The report has gained credence here that it is the intention of the Japan- ese to winter at Mukden if they can take the town, and then hold on until accumulation of Russian forces on their front compells them to retire to the Liao Tung peninsula and Korea, the retreat in this direction drawing General Kuropatkin after them.

Orders have been issued to prepare seven rifle brigades for service in the far east.

Captain R. Colledani, of the Aus- trian steamer Austria, says he was offered $25,000 to transport the crew and twenty-six officers of the Russian cruiser Askold from Shanghai to Rus- sia.

The Japanese consul at Shanghai notified the captain that if he did this service he would run the danger of being held up, or even sunk by the Japanese warships, and the offer con- sequently was declined.

General Kuropatkin telegraphs that the Japanese have assumed the offen- sive from Bentsiaputze on Fu Pass, which is on the railroad between Muk- den and Fushin about twelve miles from Mukden.

Repairing Plants.

The Tennessee company is doing some extensive repairing and improv- ing on its furnaces in the Bessemer division, getting them in shape for resumption of work. Although the plants are being placed in good condi- tion, just when they will be relighted has not yet been given out.

The Little Belle furnace at Roberts- town is being relined. A large force of men are working on the relining and pushing it rapidly to completion.

All the coke ovens at Robertstown are now lighted and the coke is be- ing turned out in large quantities.

Orloff Dismissed.

Major General Orloff, who has been held responsible for the retreat of the Russian forces from Liao Yang, has been dismissed from the army. The action was taken in accordance with a decision of General Kuropatkin.

The Japanese continue their advance northward with extreme slowness. General Kuroki's headquarters is close to Pensihu, about forty-five miles east of Liao Yang.

Junks are coming up the Liao river regularly with supplies for the Jap- anese.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St., Opposite Court House
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins,
Physician and Surgeon,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Office with Hopkins Drug Co.
CLANTON.

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Over Bank CLANTON

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

Notice! Notice!

If you want good Bargains and good articles in Dry Goods, Groce- ries & Hamilton-Brown, Shoes, we have them for you

Jackson & Robinson
Lomax, Ala.

Dr. A. Conan Doyle, the author, is a stalwart cricketer, and, they say, can provide as exciting a time with

Going to Plant

Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a post- al for my new manual "How to Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.
P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

PURE GOODS

The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

PARKER'S LETTER

Accepting Formally the Democratic Nomination for the Presidency.

REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION REVIEWED

The Candidate Points Out His Party's Ideas of Improvement Along Various Lines and Pledges Himself to an Economical Administration of Public Affairs if Elected.

Esopus, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Judge Alton B. Parker has addressed the following formal letter of acceptance of the democratic nomination to the notification committee, of which Hon. Champ Clark is chairman: To the Hon. Champ Clark and others, Committee, etc.:

Gentlemen—In my response to your committee, at the formal notification proceedings, I referred to some matters not mentioned in this letter. I desire that these be considered as incorporated herein and regret that lack of space prevents specific reference to them all. I wish here, however, again to refer to my views there expressed as to the gold standard, to declare again my unqualified belief in said standard, and to express my appreciation of the action of the convention in reply to my communication upon that subject.

IMPERIALISM.

If we would retain our liberties and constitutional rights unimpaired, we cannot permit or tolerate, at any time or for any purpose, the arrogation of unconstitutional powers by the executive branch of our government. We should be ever mindful of the words of Webster, "Liberty is only to be preserved by maintaining constitutional restraints and a just division of political powers."

The issue if imperialism which has been thrust upon the country involves a decision whether the law of the land or the rule of individual caprice shall govern. The principle of imperialism may give rise to brilliant, startling, dashing results, but the principle of democracy holds in check the brilliant executive and subjects him to the sober, conservative control of the people.

The people of the United States stand at the parting of the ways. Shall we follow the footsteps of our fathers along the paths of peace, prosperity and contentment, guided by the ever-living spirit of the constitution which they framed for us, or shall we go along other and untried paths, hitherto shunned by all, following blindly new ideals, which, though appealing with brilliancy to the imagination and ambition, may prove a will o' the wisp, leading us into difficulties from which it may be impossible to extricate ourselves without lasting injury to our national character and institutions?

ALTON B. PARKER.

THE TARIFF AND TRUSTS.

Tariff reform is one of the cardinal principles of the democratic faith, and the necessity for it was never greater than at the present time. It should be undertaken at once in the interest of all our people.

The Dingley tariff is excessive in many of its rates, and, as to them at least, unjustly and oppressively burdens the people. It secures to domestic manufactures, singly or in combination, the privilege of exacting excessive prices at home and prices far above the level of sales made regularly by them abroad with profit, thus giving a bounty to foreigners at the expense of our own people. It levies oppressive and unjust taxes upon many articles forming, in whole or part, the so-called raw material of many of our manufactured products, not only burdening the consumer, but also closing to the manufacturer the markets he needs and seeks abroad. Its unjust taxation burdens the people generally, forcing them to pay excessive prices for food, fuel, clothing and other necessaries of life. It levies duties on many articles not normally imported in any considerable amount, which are made extensively at home, for which the most extreme protectionist would hardly justify protective taxes, and which in large amounts are exported. Such duties have been and will continue to be a direct incentive to the formation of huge industrial combinations, which, secure from foreign competition, are enabled to stifle domestic competition and practically to monopolize the home market.

Even now the argument most frequently urged in behalf of the Dingley tariff, and against tariff reform generally, is the necessity of caring for our infant industries. Many of these industries, after a hundred years of lusty growth, are looming up as industrial giants. In their case, at least, the Dingley tariff invites combination and monopoly, and gives justification to the expression that the tariff is the mother of trusts.

For the above mentioned reasons, among others, the people demand reform of these abuses, and such reform demands and should receive immediate attention.

In the words of our platform we demand "a revision and a gradual reduction of the tariff by the friends of the masses, and for the common weal, and not by the friends of its abuses, its extortions and discriminations."

The people demand reform of existing conditions. Since the last democratic administration the cost of living has grievously increased. Those having fixed incomes have suffered keenly; those living on wages, if there has been any increase, know that such increase has not kept pace with the advance in the cost of living, including rent and the necessaries of life. Many today are out of work, unable to secure any wages at all. To alleviate these conditions, in so far as is in our power, should be our earnest endeavor.

TRUST REMEDIES.

I pointed out in my earlier response the remedy, which, in my judgment, can effectually be applied against monopolies, and the assurance was then given that if existing laws, including both statute and common law, proved inadequate, contrary to my expectations, I favor such further legislation, within constitutional limitations, as will best promote and safeguard the interests of all the people.

RECIPROCITY.

In my address to the notification committee I said that tariff reform "is demanded by the best interests of both manufacturer and consumer." With equal truth it can be said that the benefits of reciprocal trade treaties would enure to both. That the consumer would be helped is unquestionable. That the manufacturer would receive great benefit by extending his markets abroad hardly needs demonstration. His productive capacity has outgrown the home market. The very term "home market" has changed in its significance. Once, from the manufacturers' point of view, it meant expansion; today the marvellous growth of our manufacturing industries has far exceeded the consumptive capacity of our domestic markets, and the term "home market" implies contraction, rather than expansion.

Our martyred President, William McKinley, appreciated this situation. He pointed out in his last address to the people that we must make sensible trade arrangements if "we shall extend the outlets for our increasing surplus." He said: "A system which provides a mutual exchange of commodities is manifestly essential to the continued and healthful growth of our export trade. . . . The period of exclusiveness is past. The expansion of our trade and commerce is the pressing problem. Commercial wars are unprofitable. A policy of good will and friendly relations will prevent reprisals. Reciprocity treaties are in harmony with the spirit of the times; measures of retaliation are not."

The persistent refusal of the republican majority in the federal senate to ratify the reciprocity treaties negotiated in pursuance of the policy advocated alike by Mr. Blaine and Mr. McKinley, and expressly sanctioned in the Dingley act itself, is a discouraging exhibition of bad faith. In view of the attitude of the present executive, no new agreement need be expected from him. Nor does the republican platform contain a favorable reference to one of the suspended treaties. The reciprocity clauses of the Dingley act seem destined to remain a monument of legislative cozenage and political bad faith, unless the people take the matter in their own hands at the ballot box and command a reduction of duties in return for reciprocal concessions.

INDEPENDENCE FOR FILIPINOS.

In some quarters it has been assumed that in the discussion of the Philippine question in my response, the phrase "self-government" was intended to mean something less than independence. It was not intended that it should be understood to mean, nor do I think as used it does mean less than independence. However, to eliminate all possibility for conjecture, I now state that I am in hearty accord with that plank in our platform that favors doing for the Filipinos what we have already done for the Cubans. If independence, such as the Cubans enjoy, cannot be prudently granted to the Filipinos at this time, the promise that it shall come the moment they are capable of receiving it will tend to stimulate rather than hinder their development. And this should be done not only in justice to the Filipinos, but to preserve our own rights; for a free people cannot withhold freedom from another people and themselves remain free.

AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP.

It is essential that a passport issued by the government of the United States to an American citizen shall be accepted the world over as proof of citizenship.

CIVIL SERVICE.

The statute relating to civil service is the outcome of the efforts of thoughtful, unselfish and public-spirited citizens. Operation under it has frequently been of such a character as to offend against the spirit of the statute, but the results achieved, even under a partial enforcement of the law, have been such as to both deserve and command the utterance of the democratic party that it stands committed to the principle of civil service reform and demands its just and impartial enforcement.

RECLAMATION OF ARID LANDS.

A vast expanse of country in the West, portions of which are to be found in each of the sixteen states and territories mentioned in the law, is directly affected by the national statute—the outcome of intelligent and persistent efforts of leading citizens, providing for the reclamation of the arid lands for the benefit of home-seekers.

In 1902 the main canals and ditches in the region affected aggregated more than fifty-nine thousand miles and the work of reclamation is but in its infancy. The total cost of construction of the necessary head-gates, dams, main canals, ditches, reservoirs and pumping stations was at that time a little over ninety-three millions of dollars, which of itself suggests the hundreds of millions that may eventually be invested in the territory covered by the statute. The magnitude of the conception, and the enormous expense its carrying out involves, make us realize the overwhelming importance of a broad, capable and honest administration of the work authorized by the statute, if effect is to be given to that part of the plan that relieves the country at large from ultimate liability.

PANAMA CANAL.

An isthmian canal has long been the hope of our statesmen, and the avowed aim of the two great parties, as their platforms in the past show. The Panama route having been selected, the building of the canal should be pressed to completion with all reasonable expedition.

The methods by which the executive acquired the Panama canal route and rights are a source of regret to many. To them, the statement that thereby a great public work was assured to the profit of our people is not a sufficient answer to the charge of violation of national good faith.

Under the laws of the United States the duty is imposed on the executive to proceed with due diligence in the work of constructing the canal. That duty should be promptly performed.

AMERICAN SHIPPING.

Our commerce in American bottoms amounts to but eight per cent of our total exports and imports. For seventy years prior to 1860, when the republican party came into power, our merchant marine carried an average of seventy-five per cent of our foreign commerce. By 1877 it had dwindled to twenty-seven per cent. Now we carry but a contemptibly small fraction of our exports and imports.

It is an arduous task to undo the effect of forty years of decadence, and requires the study and investigation of those best fitted by experience to find the remedy—which surely does not lie in the granting of subsidies, wrung from the pockets of all the taxpayers.

INVESTIGATION OF DEPARTMENTS.

Recent disclosures, coupled with the rapid augmentation of government expenditures, show a need of an investigation of every department of the government. The democrats in congress demanded it. The republican majority refused the demand. The people can determine by their vote in November whether they wish an honest and thorough investigation. A democratic congress and executive will assure it.

ARMY AND NAVY.

We are justly proud of the officers and men of our army and navy. Both, however, have suffered from the persistent injection of personal and political influence. Promotions and appointments have been frequently based on favoritism instead of merit. Trials and courtmartials have been set aside under circumstances indicating political interference. These and other abuses should be corrected.

PENSIONS.

The national democracy favors liberal pensions to the surviving soldiers and sailors and their dependents, on the ground that they deserve liberal treatment. It pledges by its platform adequate legislation to that end. But it denies the right of the executive to usurp the power of congress to legislate on that subject. Such usurpation was attempted by pension order No. 78, and effect has been given to it by a congress that dared not resent the usurpation. It is said that "this order was made in the performance of a duty imposed upon the President by act of congress," but the provision making the imposition is not pointed out. The act to which the order refers, which is the one relating to pensions to civil war veterans, does not authorize pensions on the ground of age. It does grant pensions to those "suffering from any mental or physical disability, or disabilities, of a permanent character, not the result of their own vicious habits, which so incapacitates them from the performance of manual labor as to render them unable to earn a support." This specified requirement of incapacity is in effect set aside by order No. 78 as to all persons over sixty-two.

It is said by the administration, in reply to the public criticism of this order, that "It is easy to test our opponents' sincerity in this matter. The order in question is revocable at the pleasure of the executive. If our opponents come into power they can revoke this order and announce that they will treat the veterans of sixty-two and seventy as presumably in full bodily vigor and not entitled to pension. Will they authoritatively state that they intend to do this? If so, we accept the issue."

This suggests the suspicion, at least, that the order was made to create an issue—that it was supposed to present a strong strategic position in the battle of the ballots. But as the making of that order was, in my judgment, an attempted, though perhaps unwitting encroachment upon the legislative power, and, therefore, unwarranted by the constitution, the challenge is accepted. If elected, I will revoke that order. But I go further and say that that being done, I will contribute my effort toward the enactment of a law to be passed by both houses of congress and approved by the executive that will give an age pension without reference to disability to the surviving heroes of the civil war; and under the provisions of which a pension may be accepted with dignity because of the consciousness that it comes as a just due from the people through their chosen representatives, and not as largess distributed by the chief executive.

FOREIGN RELATIONS.

The foreign relations of the government have in late years assumed special importance. Prior to the acquisition of the Philippines, we were practically invulnerable against attacks by foreign states. Those tropical possessions, however, seven thousand miles from our shores, have changed all this and have in effect put us under bonds to keep the peace. The new conditions call for a management of foreign affairs the more circumspect in that the recent American invasion of foreign markets in all parts of the world has excited the serious apprehension of all the great industrial peoples. It is essential, therefore, more than ever, to adhere strictly to the traditional policy of the country as formulated by its President and never, in my judgment, wisely departed from—to infuse friendly relations with all nations while avoiding entangling alliances with any. It means that we repudiate the role of the American continental policeman; that we refuse to act as debt collector for foreign states or their citizens; that we respect the independent sovereignty of each American state and its right to preserve order and otherwise regulate its own internal affairs in its own way; and that any intervention in its affairs by us is limited to the single office of enabling its people to work out their own political and national destiny for themselves free from the coercion of any European state.

REFORM IN EXPENDITURES.

Twenty-eight years have passed since the democracy of the state of New York, in convention assembled, recommended to the national democracy the nomination of Samuel J. Tilden as its candidate for the Presidency, and declared it to be "their settled conviction that a return to the constitutional principles, frugal expenses and administrative purity of the founders of the republic is the first and most imperious duty of the times—the commanding issue now before the people of the Union." This strong expression was called forth by the national expenditures for the year 1875, which amounted to $274,000,000—a situation which, in the opinion of a majority of our people, justified an imperative demand for reform in the administration of public affairs. As the expenditures of the last fiscal year amounted to the enormous total of $582,000,000, it is evident that a thorough investigation of the public service and the immediate abandonment of useless and extravagant expenditures are more necessary now than they were then. This astounding increase is out of all proportion to the increase of our population, and finds no excuse from whatever aspect we view the situation. The national democratic platform declares that "large reductions can easily be made in the annual expenditures of the government without impairing the efficiency of any branch of the public service." Can there be any doubt of the accuracy of this statement? Between the expenditures of the year 1856, amounting to $242,000,000, and those of the last fiscal year—the seventh after Grover Cleveland ceased to be President—aggregating $582,000,000, there is a difference so great as to excite alarm in the breasts of all thoughtful men. Even excluding the sum of $50,000,000 paid for the Panama canal rights and to the state of Panama, the expenditures of the last fiscal year exceeded the sum of $532,000,000, being more than double the expenditures of the government for all purposes during the first year of Mr. Cleveland's administration.

There is not a sentence in the republican platform recommending a reduction in the expenditures of the government; not a line suggesting that the increase in the cost of the war department from $3,000,000 in 1896 to $115,000,000 in 1901, should be inquired into; and not a paragraph calling for a thorough investigation of those departments of the government in which dishonesty has been recently disclosed.

The people, however, can by their votes, if they desire it, order such an investigation and inaugurate a policy of economy and retrenchment. It is safe to say that this will not be accomplished by indorsing at the polls the republican majority of the house of representatives which refused the investigation and made the appropriations which made the disbursements.

Reform in expenditures must be had in both the civil, military and naval establishments in order that the national expenditures may be brought to a basis of peace and the government maintained without recourse to the taxes of war.

CONCLUSION.

I have put aside a congenial work, to which I had expected to devote my life, in order to assume, as best I can, the responsibilities your convention put upon me.

I solicit the cordial co-operation and generous assistance of every man who believes that a change of measures and of men at this time would be wise, and urge harmony of endeavor as well as vigorous action on the part of all so minded.

The issues are joined and the people must render the verdict.

Shall economy of administration be demanded or shall extravagance be encouraged?

Shall the wrong-doer be brought to bay by the people, or must justice wait upon political oligarchy?

Shall our government stand for equal opportunity or for special privilege?

Shall it remain a government of law or become one of individual caprice?

Shall we cling to the rule of the people, or shall we embrace beneficent despotism?

With calmness and confidence, we await the people's verdict.

If called to the office of President, I shall consider myself the chief magistrate of all the people and not of any faction, and shall ever be mindful of the fact that on many questions of national policy there are honest differences of opinion. I believe in the patriotism, good sense and absolute sincerity of all the people. I shall strive to remember that he may serve his party best who serves his country best.

If it be the wish of the people that I undertake the duties of the Presidency, I pledge myself, with God's help, to devote all my powers and energy to the duties of this exalted office.

NEWSY GLEANINGS.

France has only gained 444,612 in population in the decade from 1890 to 1900.

The designs for a big new Cotton Exchange for Liverpool have been accepted.

Rev. L. Lochner, of Chicago, has just returned home after establishing a Lutheran synod in Brazil.

The Germans have at last succeeded in breaking the back of the Hereros rebellion in Southwest Africa.

Hereafter all the letters of Russian soldiers will be inspected. No letter in Yiddish is to be delivered.

While temporarily insane Mike Michszak, at South Dayton, N. Y., shot his wife, two children and himself.

A memorial of Sir Edwin Arnold in the shape of one or more scholarships at Oxford has been started in England.

A Kansas man has sold his drug store in that State on the ground that no Christian can run a drug store in Kansas.

The plans for the armored cruisers North Carolina and Montana and the battleship New Hampshire have been approved.

The Shah of Persia is having a $5000 cigar case made in Birmingham, Ala. There are to be no jewels in it, but it will have some magnificent enameling.

Dr. Frances C. Williams has obtained control of all the coal lands in the Coaldale district in Nevada. She has organized a trust capital of $5,000,000.

Adelaide Thurston, the actress, has started a movement in Memphis, Tenn., to erect a monument to Dan Emmett, author of "Dixie," who died recently at Mount Vernon, Ohio.

Heorews in Salem Fields Cemetery, Cypress Hills, L. I., laid the cornerstone of the first monument in the Nation to be erected in honor of Hebrew Union soldiers.

SPORTING BREVITIES.

Five thousand persons attended the society horse show at Lenox.

Africander at 20 to 1 won the Brighton Cup Preliminary Stake.

The Whippany Club opened new grass tennis courts at Morristown, N. J.

Seawanhaka's oldest members steered and manned boats in the club's reunion races.

John Bedell won the five mile professional cycle race at the Vailsburg track in 11m. 3 2-5s.

C. F. Watson, Sr., won four cups at the invitation golf tournament of the Essex County Country Club.

Thomas W. Lawson's string of bulldogs won the prize for the best team of ten at the Newport (R. I.) Dog Show.

Richard Stevens successfully defended his title to the New Jersey State tennis championship by defeating H. F. Allen.

THE DEPARTED.

The departed! the departed!
They visit us in dreams,
And they glide above our memories,
Like shadows over streams;
But where the cheerful lights of home
In constant luster burn,
The departed, the departed,
Can never more return!

The good, the brave, the beautiful,
How dreamless is their sleep,
Where rolls the dirgelike music
Of the ever-tossing deep!
Or where the surging night winds
Pale winter's robes have spread
Above the narrow palaces,
In the cities of the dead!

I look around and feel the awe
Of one who walks alone,
Among the wrecks of former days,
In mournful ruin strown;
I start to hear the stirring sounds
Among the cypress trees,
For the voice of the departed
Is borne upon the breeze.

That solemn voice! It mingles with
Each free and careless strain;
I scarce can think earth's minstrelsy
Will cheer my heart again.
The melody of summer waves,
The thrilling notes of birds,
Can never be so dear to me
As their remember'd words.

I sometimes dream their pleasant smiles
Still on me sweetly fall,
Their tones of love I faintly hear
My name in sadness call.
I know that they are happy,
With their angel plumage on,
But my heart is very desolate
To think that they are gone.

—Park Benjamin.

A FIELD DAY

IM not worthy of her" cried Mr. Jackson, with dismal emphasis. "I never have been worthy of her, and I never shall be."

"Take care not to mention it," said young John Walmer, sagely, "and she won't guess. What is she like—to look at, I mean?"

"Charming."

"Then what have you to grumble about?"

"Everything," declared Mr. Jackson. "I helped her father out of some trouble, and I believe she's only going to marry me out of gratitude."

"You can tell," said John, "by the way a girl kisses you whether she's fond of you or not."

"She has never kissed me," said Mr. Jackson, "and I've never tried to kiss her. Is it usual?"

"An astonishing couple!" cried John, stopping to look at the decorations in Chancery lane. "Never heard anything like it."

"I wish I hadn't," cried the other. He took the best man's arm. "John Walmer," he went on, "get me out of this somehow. I've been a bachelor such a long time. Do help me. You're a clever man; you're getting on wonderfully. Remember that I gave you a start in London ten years ago."

"You're giving me one now. You don't mean to tell me seriously that you want to back out of it? Why, she'll bring action against you, and your letters will be read in court."

"She's not that kind of a girl," wailed Mr. Jackson, "and there aren't any letters. John Walmer, at whatever cost she and I must not meet this morning at St. Pancras' Church in the Easton road."

"But I've bought a new frock coat."

"It'll come in for something else."

Opportunities for transit were that day something less than perfect, but John Walmer, once persuaded, made his way up to Highgate with all convenient dispatch, almost carried away now and again by the strong tide of traffic that was making its way down to the line of route. He arrived rather warm from the walk up the hill, warm also from blaming himself for accepting a delicate and a difficult mission. There was not much time to spare, for as he entered the road two carriages drove up with drivers wearing white flowers in their buttonholes; these he intercepted, telling them that their services would not be required that day. The drivers said to each other that there would be a chance after all for them to go and give our good old Queen a cheer. John gave his features an appropriate twist to denote sympathy and knocked.

"We are in the greatest possible trouble," said the weeping lady superintendent, as she opened the door. "Could you possibly call again some other time?" He gave his name. "Oh, come in then," she said, "I thought you were the rates and taxes. I'm so upset, and where my handkerchief's gone goodness only knows."

John entered into competition with goodness by pointing out to the lady that she held her handkerchief in her hand, and she thanked him for his timely sagacity.

"Ro-wena!" she called, and disappeared. A slow swish of skirts came down the staircase.

"My name is Walmer," he said, speaking loudly in order to pretend that he was completely at his ease. "John Walmer, and I have a somewhat urgent message from Mr. Jackson."

"My name is Rowena," she said, "and I have a somewhat urgent message for Mr. Jackson."

Rather a pretty girl, John considered; short, perhaps, but he liked them short—the circumstance compelled them to look up to one. She offered her hand, moved a chair for him, and sat in a corner of the room.

"I wonder which is the more important," he said.

"Mine," answered Miss Rowena; "I was going to telegraph it. Here's the form I've just written out."

John read it and slapped h
"He's such a good man," on with earnestness "and have discovered before this that I didn't care for him sister is cross with me. S comes of putting off last moment."

"The harm comes in part later than the last moment
"I know that everybody me, and I know how good son was to father. But I d she said sturdily, "I won't
I find some one I can like
"And that enc
"Please give me M. Jack sage," she said.

The elder sister led to down and invited
congratulations and wise and ingenious
dence, and this somewhat frostily
he said her day completely spoiled
ing that this was a
of events, remarked over his day was to be informed who der the altered cond would care to see th sister replied that going into the crowd thousand million that being a man
he had the right to able seats just on London Bridge, and watch—if they could minutes he would
the responsibility of
to the point, looking there, and eventually again. Elder sister had an hour since determined home and have a good answering for both Walmer was quite mind——

London Bridge was knew his way about baffled by this. How it was ladies never knew; what they ize was that they crossed somehow, and crossed it by of some sort, and there they a temporary wooden the division marked I. and
ently their numbers.
warm, but they had
parasols, and a friend brought to the lady cool beverage with ing a-top. The elder sister hope that it would not head, but the day
the occasion rare decided to risk.

And after what the elder nounced as two hours of solid but appeared to John as two moments, the barrier at the the bridge opened, the band stopped playing, and John's called from his seat below procession had left St. Paul's across the bridge came diers, mounted representatives eign countries, marching every land that owned Victoria Queen, and presently through a long boom of cheers, in an riage, a little old person, in tears of thankfulness.

"The dear soul!" cried Rowena, lifted her up by the elbows might see well over the heads people in the stand. "This than any wedding."

Bells clanging out from St. Sa engines on the railway shrieking gratulations, folk from Horsham and Rotherhithe at the top of street cheering everybody, from ular British general on a white the black police from the West

It did seem to the ladies that had no secrets from John. At Street Hotel he warned them that might have to wait their lunch; he would do what he
As a matter of fact, there was of room at the tables, and when asked the head waiter whether could have a cold fowl the head replied that the supply was so excess of the demand that he John have forty cold fowls. They it quietly after lunch. Had a rest and then strolled out into the see the decorations. John showed wena the office where he had once a junior clerk; she said it was a interesting place. He told her remarkably well he had been on the last two years.

"It's been a much happier said at Highgate that evening, thought it was going to be. I think of anything being other"

"I can," said John.

"Excuse me, Mr. Walmer," posed the elder sister, "but—I a rude question—are you by any engaged? Engaged to a lady, I

"Dear me, no!"

"Then," announced the elder impressively, "we're always at on Sunday afternoons."

John Walmer looked down at wena with a question in his eyes.

"Please!" said the girl.—London

Our Golf Father.

The man who was largely ble for the introduction of golf in country, Robert Lockhart, died a days ago in Edinburg, Scotland.
was for years a linen importer in York, and organized the first golf in the United States in Yonkers, N.
in 1888. It was known as the " Tree Gang." Subsequently he ed the St. Andrew's Golf Club.

Old-Age Pension.

As young men are now filling places of the old and middle aged, should be asked to contribute to an age pension fund. The horror of overtaken by poverty after one longer of any use in the world is severest of punishments. There old age pensions in New Zealand well as other things which we do well to study.

Black Adventure.

LUCKY ESCAPE.

TWELVE-BORE shot-gun was the weapon carried by F. X. King and a .303 repeating rifle was the armed equipment of his partner, N. P. Peterson, went prospecting in Homes, at the base of the Sawtains, in Alaska. The men tsters of the Nugget road- the Nome divide. walk of several miles they r tracks and a little later a grizzly. Peterson dropped , took steady aim and first struck, but not in a vital with a growl of rage and wounded bear gave a spring cliffs, and rolled almost to some 300 feet below, where ed her footing and vanished rocks. Charmed at the terson turned and was ho seeing another grizzly, about large as the other, spring partner, Mr King, and was rified when he remembered was the only available gun he magazine was out of re d only be reloaded by removempty shell by hand. When sprang at King the latter, itual presence of mind in the backwoods hunter, s shotgun into the face of liant, which was advancing mouth and extended claws. twinkling of an eye the bear ed the muzzle of the gun in and was crunching the gun Towering two feet higher than latter realized that the only him was to pull the trigger the stop the beast until his could reload the old rifle, or could procure safety by loud report, a sullen roar bear gave a spring in the air to the ground. en beat a quick retreat, and vering considerable ground, lack Adventure.

LUCKY ESCAPE.

TWELVE-BORE shotgun was the weapon carried by F. X. King and a .303 repeating rifle was the armed equipment of his partner, N. P. Peterson, went prospecting in Homeat the base of the Sawains, in Alaska. The men ors of the Nugget roadthe Nome divide walk of several miles they r tracks and a little later a grizzly. Peterson dropped took steady aim and fired, struck, but not in a vital with a growl of rage and unded bear gave a spring liffs and rolled almost to some 300 feet below, where her footing and vanished rocks. Chagrined at the terson turned and was horbeing another grizzly, about large as the other, spring partner, Mr. King, and was ded when he remembered was the only available gun e magazine was out of reonly be reloaded by removpty shell by hand. When prang at King the latter, sal presence of mind in the backwoods hunter, shotgun into the face of nt, which was advancing mouth and extended claws. inkling of an eye the bear d the muzzle of the gun in and was crunching the gun wering two feet higher than latter realized that the only im was to pull the trigger e stop the beast until his uld reload the old rifle, or could procure safety by loud report, a sullen roar ear gave a spring in the ground. n beat a quick retreat, and ering considerable ground, d were surprised to see the lying on the spot where it . They waited a few minthe meantime reloading the hotgun being broken at the the muzzle left in the mouth ar.

rowing several rocks from tance they ventured nearer d the bear stone dead. e went back for a sled, and al hours managed to get the the Nugget roadhouse, and r Nome with nine strong aw the heavy load. It took e days to reach the Sour adhouse, where the bear's were put in cold storage. rute was taken to Nome and exhibition at the Golden d. It is a perfect specimen ly, and the skin is a beau- The bear, disemboweled, arly 600 pounds. The skin for $125, and the meat was by local restaurants at a pound.

rkable thing was the enorer of the jaws shown by indentations made in the the gun by the bear's teeth, the barrel being bent, but e made in the steel connectabout one-fourth of an inch

AZING HOME TO SAVE

into the hallway of his No. 92 Fifth avenue, which flames as he was approachcival Marshall called to the that his aunt, Miss E. A. Herup stairs. So dense was the so intense the heat, though, young man had to abandon se of rescue. It took him ood to make up his mind on tive. Dashing up the steps e next door, Marshall ran ghts of stairs, and bounded gh the skylight.

dropped a story on the roof se in which he and his aunt shed in the skylight and ped through the aperture. ms, to his consternation, he race of her. Attracted to ws by the shouting in the put his head out in time to an, Robert Corbett carrying hrough the door. Then only it possible to look to his . He had clambered back when the smoke overcame e reeled into the arms of admen who had followed him ilous enterprise.

Patrolman Debes was walkFifth avenue when he disa fire underneath his feet. e skylight for the basement flames and he sent in an The basement and ground occupied by Jacob Doll, a nufacturer, and the top floor Arthur Lowndes, editor of Eclectic.

Chief Binns sent in a secbecause of the contents of and the business buildings Debes and several other tried to get in, but the ve them back. Then they r ways of getting up stairs. Robert Corbett arrived by and rushed through the e to the second floor, where Miss Herbert. She had been airs by the smoke and was venture down. Corbett found overcome and carried her to where the people next door, took care of her.

ed some of the pianos on floor, but the blaze was confined to that place and the basement.—New York Press.

GIRL GETS MEDAL.

In the presence of twenty of the rescued from the wreck of the General Slocum Pauline Puetz, eighteen years old, a former employe on North Brother Island, received a gold medal in token of her bravery in saving six children. The presentation took place in the headquarters of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, Fourth avenue and Twenty-third street. The medal was inscribed:

"To Pauline Puetz, in recognition of her signal heroism in rescuing from death, at the peril of her own life, six little children, passengers on the General Slocum, in the terrible disaster on June 15, 1904." On the reverse side was the arms of the society.

One of the most interested spectators of the presentation was Louis Weis, four years old, who owes his life to Miss Puetz. The boy is the only one of the six whose identity is known to the young woman, the other children having been lost to sight in the confusion following the wreck.

The girl, who is a good swimmer, was at work in the kitchen on North Brother Island when the Slocum went aground, and, taking off her shoes and her outer skirt, she swam out six times, returning with a child in each instance. Young Weis was thrown toward Miss Peutz by his mother. He fell against the paddle wheel and his jaw was broken. The girl, however, succeeded in dragging him ashore.

When swimming out to attempt a seventh rescue Miss Puetz was overpowered by a frenzied woman, and when both were almost drowning they were dragged to land by two men from the hospital. The brave girl was unconscious, but when she recovered she assisted in drawing several persons ashore by means of ropes. The young woman was born in Germany and lives with her parents in No. 336 East Fortieth street.—New York Press.

DOG TACKLES BULL; SAVES GIRL

To the bravery of Nero, a big Newfoundland dog, Elvie Kotto, ten years old, of Maynard, Mass., owes her life. Attacked by a bull in a berry pasture, the little girl would have been gored to death had not the dog come to her rescue, saving her, but losing his own life.

Elvie is the daughter of Henry Kotto, a prosperous farmer, and her hobby is to go berrying. When she went out in Colonel Hapgood's huckleberry pasture she wore a skirt of bright red. She was accompanied by her faithful companion and pet, Nero. All went well until the berry pail was filled, when the child playfully ran through the pasture, with the dog at her heels. The wind blew her skirts and the color attracted the vicious bull, who lowered his head and with a roar started after her.

Escape seemed impossible, but a kindly fate caused the girl to stumble over a rock and fall. The bull passed over without hurting her in the least. He turned short and started back, only to be met by Nero, who with a warning bark, sprang at him and fixed his teeth in his nose. A battle began and the girl made her escape. With a quick toss the bull threw Nero high in the air, goring him savagely when he came down. But the dog went for the bull again and again. The bull's nose, mouth and throat were torn open every time he drove the dog off and Nero was dripping with blood. Finally men armed with pitchforks and cartstakes put an end to the encounter. Two of the dog's legs were broken. All possible was done to save him, but without avail. The bull will recover. The girl's parents say no gravestone is too good for Nero.

LUCKY SHOT SAVED HUNTER.

A hunter in South Africa tells the following story of an adventure with a buffalo: "I was in the act of descending the bank when Prinsloo, a Dutch hunter, who was lower down the slope, saw the dark outline of the buffalo standing at bay behind the screen of reeds. Next instant, seeing it about to charge, he shouted 'Daar kom hij' ('There he comes'), and fired, rather at random, I am afraid. Then rushing down the path by which he had advanced, he threw himself headlong into the reeds on the left. This all happened in a few moments, but I had sufficient time to raise my rifle to my shoulder and fire as the enraged bull rushed straight at me through the reeds with nose thrown forward and horns back. As I fired, I endeavored to jump aside to escape the charge, but my feet got entangled in the matted grass and I fell on my back, luckily, however, retaining my hold on the stock of my rifle. My first shot seemed to check him for a moment, but the next he was rushing up the slope at me. I shall never forget the look in his fierce eyes. It was but a moment's work to draw back the bolt of my Mauser and to close it again, thus pushing another cartridge into the breech. I had no time to raise the rifle to my shoulder. There was barely time, just before he was within striking distance, to pull the trigger, with th stock under my armpit, while I lay on my back on the top of the sloping ground. Without so much as a groan he fell in his tracks and rolled over into the muddy water two yards below with a great splash, shot through the brain."—Montreal Herald.

As to Summer Boarders.

Preachers in Stroudsburg, Pa., are taking the summer boarder question seriously. One of them preached on "Are Summer Boarders and Visitors a Help or a Hindrance to This County?" He took occasion to say that these guests were welcome, of course, but they were expected to behave themselves while taking their outings.

Children's Corner

THE HOLLY TREE WIGHT.

There was a little goblin gay
Whose home was in a holly-tree;
He laughed and caroled night and day,
And made that tree a jolly tree.

The urchin never went to bed,
But when he wished to doze a bit
He set his heels above his head
And let his eyelids close a bit.

His food was berries, nuts, and seeds;
His table-cloth was made o' grass;
And for his drink he sipped the beads
Of night-dew from a blade of grass.

This merry wight began to thrive
Ere clocks began to go at all;
But whether he is yet alive
I really do not know at all.
—Harry Johnstone in St. Nicholas.

NATURE'S MASTER FORESTER.

The Douglas squirrel, of California, has been termed by John Muir, the master forester of nature. About 90 per cent. of the cones of the big trees are eaten and stored away by him.

Seeing a man for the first time he approaches until within a few feet, then with an angry outburst he makes a sudden rush, all teeth and eyes, as if about to eat you up. Finding that the man is not afraid, he beats a retreat to a tree, from which he reconnoiters. Gathering courage, he ventures down, churring and chirping. Now down, now up, he goes, in jerky curious loops, as if showing off and demanding your admiration. Then he settles in a branch, and, beating time with his tail, he says, "cheeup! cheeup!"

WRITING YOUR COMPOSITIONS.

When you take notes, write them on separate slips of paper or such cards as are used in card indexing. This plan has two advantages; it enables you to group your information together by putting similar notes on the same card; and then, when you come to the writing, you may change about your notes until you have placed them in the right order for your composition. This plan was recommended by Edward Eggleston after he had learned that it was easy to be "lost in one's notes. You need not buy the cards, as a small pad will serve every purpose by tearing off the leaves as you fill them or finishes one part of your subject. Let the leaves be small or you will put two much on each.—From "Books and Authors," in St. Nicholas.

LIKE TO PLAY HIDE AND SEEK.

Did you know that many animals like to play and romp just as little boys and girls do? You have all seen the monkeys at the Zoo and how they torment and chase one another, but did you know, also, that even the birds and animals like the badger and weasel like to frolic.

A well-known German named Beckman had a pet badger and a dog who used to have great sport together. "They used to have a series of gymnastic performances," he writes, "on every pleasant afternoon, and their four-footed friends came from far and near to witness the performance. The game was that the badger, roaring and shaking his head like a wild boar, should charge upon the dog and strike him in the side with its head; the dog, leaping dexterously entirely over the badger, awaited a second and third attack, and then made the badger chase him all around the garden.

"If the badger managed to snap the dog's hind quarters they would have an angry tussle, but never a real fight."

GAMES THE WORLD OVER.

Do you know that in Japan there are no helpless people? The professions of massage and music are left to the blind. If the blind person has no ear for music, massage is adopted, with the result that the blind people become not only very skilful, but self-supporting.

Do you know that red is worn only by children under sixteen years of age in Japan? Aren't you glad that this is not so here in America?

Do you know that dolls are made so well and handled with so great care in Japan, that they often last one hundred years or longer?

Do you know that the games you boys and girls play in America, are played over the whole world in much the same fashion, although the words as pronounced by the children of other countries would not be familiar to your ears? London bridge, I spy, tag and blind man's buff are played by the children everywhere, even the counting of who is "it"—"Inty, ninty, cuty, corn, apple seeds and brier thorn,' are used by little German French, and Spanish children, and even the children in Arabia and Persia.

London bridge has a religious meaning in France that it does not have here. The two keepers of the bridge are called "The Angel" and "The Bad Man." The object is for the players to decide which one they will choose. The ones who have made good choice make the sign of horns with their fingers extending over their foreheads, and pursue those who have made a bad choice, looking upon them as fiends.—Indianapolis News.

THE STORY OF A PET CANARY.

Little Fairy was the gift of a dear friend and soon became the pet of the whole family. He had a delicate frame, and his yellow plumage was varied by a dark green cape, or pelerine, and a tuft on his head.

Naturally tame, and being constantly with us, he developed many human traits of character. He was allowed to fly freely about, care, of course, being taken that the windows were closed, and he was particularly fond of lighting on my shoulder or that of my sister, and liked to feed from our lips. Once even he tried to feed me as the parent bird feeds its young. At breakfast time he often hopped about on the table and helped himself to anything that he liked the looks of if not prevented.

Once I placed a small, shallow paper box near his cage and opening it, showed its contents to him—hempseed, of which he was very fond—and then replaced the cover. I then opened the cage door and invited him to help himself. In a second he was out of the cage, and, going to the box, he lifted up the cover which, however, immediately fell back in its place. Fairy seemed to consider what would be the best thing to do, turned his head about on one side and then the other, and lifting the cover once more, gave it a little twist on one side which left the seeds uncovered and proceeded to help himself.

At another time I tied a piece of apple to a string, showed it to him, fastened one end of the string to the wires of his cage, and then dropped the piece of apple down so that he could not see it. He immediately began to pull up the string with his bill, holding it fast with his claw until he brought the apple within reach.

If a piece of sponge cake, left in Fairy's cage, became hard and stale, he used to dip it into his drinking glass or his bathtub until it was soft enough to suit him. Our father used to bring him home plantain or grass seed or chickweed, and, as soon as he entered the room and Fairy caught sight of him, he would fly about his cage in the most excited manner and seemed so impatient to get it that he would open his wings and scold and pretend to be very angry, flying at and picking at my father's fingers apparently fiercely, but really gently, if he thought too much time was taken in arranging it between the bars.

One day, when I was practicing at the piano, he flew up to the parlor and stood on the top of the music leaves, refusing to let them be turned over, and at another time he took possession of the upper keys of the instrument and tried to keep us from making use of them. In a like spirit he lighted one day on a piece of work I had in my hand and, seizing hold of the thread in my needle, interefered with my sewing.

On one occasion he was not feeling quite well, and, as he was standing on my hand, he quietly put his dear little head under his wing and went to sleep, while I held my hand pressed firmly against my breast until he woke up. Equally touching, too, it was to have him fly on my shoulder or that of my sister, and, looking up at us, pour forth an ecstatic love song, flapping his wings at the same time.

There was so much music going on in the house, both instrumental and vocal, that we thought his singing became somewhat modified and changed, as if he were trying to imitate the sounds that he heard. When I practiced my vocal exercises and trilled, he tried to see if he could not outsing me, and his breath was often longer than mine.

After a while a mate was given to Fairy, but there was never much affection between them. She turned out to be rather ill-tempered, and he cared more for his human associates than he did for her. At last there came three little baby birds in the nest, and then later four more. Their named were Antonio, Angelo, Bellini, Verdi, and Otto, and the two little sisters were called Jessie and Bessie. All were given away from time to time to different friends except Otto, the youngest, who looked more like Fairy than the others did; but the mother bird had got tired of her children, and one day we found that she had pecked little Otto and hurt him, so she was taken out of the cage and soon sent away. We thought we would see if Fairy would take care of his baby and placed Otto in another cage close by, so that Fairy could feed him if he would. To our delight he began at once to take care of him and was so tender that we put them into the same cage.

One summer we took the birds out into the country with us, where we had a lovely place on the slope of Blue Hill; but in the fall Fairy grew ill. Whether he had been too much exposed to the air during the time of moulting, or whether, as he was as much as ten years old, he had lived out his appointed time, he became worse and worse and finally died. During his illness he used to sit on his perch with his head beneath his wing, and, if my sister or I came into the room, he would look up and give a little chirp of welcome. Then, as he grew too weak to take out his head, we heard a faint little chirp. This he only did when we came in; he took no notice of any other step. His death was real grief to us, and we buried him under the beautiful pine trees. On the following day a bird flew to a tree close by and poured forth an enchanting song. I thought, "Is this Fairy's greeting to us from the spirit land?"—Ellen M. Ward, in Christian Register.

TRIVIAL CAUSES OF WAR.

SHAVE RESULTED IN A THREE CENTURY WAR BETWEEN FRANCE AND ENGLAND.

Removal of His Beard by Louis VII. of France Primary Cause of an International Struggle—Stolen Well Bucket and a Broken Teapot Led to Suffering and Bloodshed.

Nothing is more amazing in the history of nations than the absurdly trivial causes which have been sufficient to let loose the dogs of war and deluge continents in blood, says the Chicago Tribune.

Many an American has started an incipient riot in his household by appearing unannounced with a clean shave after having worn a hirsute adornment for a number of years, but it is almost incredible at first glance that two great nations should be plunged into an intermittent warfare lasting 300 years from the same cause. Yet nothing more than this was the primary source of three centuries of war between England and France. In order to please the Archbishop of Rouen, Louis VII. of France, consented to remove his beard, in common with his subjects and present a clean shaven face to the world. It was a disastrous shave, for it led to so much friction with his wife, who resented her husband's changed appearance that at last the king divorced her, to become a few months later the wife of Henry II. of England. From this marriage of Henry to the angry, discarded wife of Louis centuries of bloodshed may be said to have followed.

Inclosed in an iron case in the tower of Modent cathedral may be seen today a bucket which 900 years ago, was the innocent cause of a terrible war. Some soldiers of Modena (in a mood mischief) had stolen the bucket from a public well in Bologna and refused to give it up on demand. Fights between the soldiers of the rival and jealous states ensued, and from this spark was kindled a fire of war which devastated a large part of Europe and led to the lifelong imprisonment of the king of Sardinia, son of the German Emperor.

A war in China two centuries and a half ago which involved the loss of 500,000 lives sprang directly from a broken teapot. The teapot was the treasured possession of a dignitary high in favor and the councils of the emperor, and when he was traveling through the lawless provinces in the northwest of China some of his retinue who had fallen behind the main body were intercepted by a band of robbers, and among the spoils the teapot was found and contemptuously flung to the ground and broken. The matter was reported to the emperor by the indignant mandarin, a punitive force was sent out, and a long and terrible war ensued.

Lord Palmerston used to say that only three men had ever known the nature of the troubles in Schleswig-Holstein which led to two great wars—two of them had died before the war broke out, and he, the third of the trinity, had completely forgotten what it was all about. It is now well known, however, that a slight manipulation by Bismarck of a telegram set France and Germany flying at each other's throats a generation ago, with the results too appalling to contemplate.

The war of the Spanish succession, in which the great Duke of Marlborough played so conspicuous and brilliant a part, was, it is said, the outcome of a spilled glass of water at a Tulleries ball. One of the court ladies had expressed a wish for a glass of water in the hearing of the British and Spanish ambassadors, who forthwith hastened to fetch it.

On returning, each holding a tumbler, they found that the fair bird had flown and was dancing with a French statesman; and to crown their discomfiture the English diplomat cannoned against the Spaniard and upset the water he was carrying—an accident which led to an apology and an exchange of courtesies. A trivial, ridiculous incident enough, but it served to inflame jealousies and cement sympathies and thus to turn the balance in the direction of war.

The seven years' war was largely due, according to his own confession, to the vanity of Frederick the Great, in wanting to see his name figure largely in the gazettes; the Indian mutiny was precipitated by the cartridges served out to the Sepoys, which they believed were greased with the fat of animals unclean alike to Hindu and Mohammedan; and the Turko-Russian war, in the opinion of thousands, was started by the blacksmith's hammer with which a Herzegovinian blacksmith killed a tax collector who had insulted his daughter.

Among other ludicrous causes from which wars have sprung are the stealing of a laced petticoat of a Castile lady by a Moor, which, with the vendetta that followed the theft, led to many years of fierce warfare between the Spaniards and the Moors; and the emptying of a bucket by a Florentine citizen on the head of a man of Milan who was passing underneath the window had a similar effect.

Borrowing a tobacco pipe and failing to return it kindled civil war for years among the rival races in the Pamirs and Afghanistan; a dispute as to the relative attractions of snails and vipers as food gave rise to fifty years of fighting between Milan and Pisa; and it is said two German states fought for years out of rivalry as to their respective powers of beer drinking.

COINS AND COINAGE.

Curious Facts About American Money—Much Completely Vanishes.

A reprint article in The News a few days ago gave some interesting facts concerning the half-cent pieces coined by the Government during the first fifty years of its existence. All of these little coins are still reported by Treasury officials as outstanding, though very few of them can be located. The last report of the United States Treasurer contains the following statement of copper and nickel coins outstanding: Copper cents, $1,183,529.47; copper half-cents, $39,926.11; bronze cents, $10,590,982.88; bronze two-cent pieces, $574,641.28; nickel three-cent pieces, $629,165.66; nickel five-cent pieces, $18,706,238. Most of the old copper cents, as well as the half-cents, have disappeared. The sum of $39,926.11 in half-cents has been carried in the Treasury statements as outstanding for nearly fifty years, though comparatively few persons now living ever saw one of the coins. Some of them are in the hands of collectors, but no doubt by far the greater number are lost.

When the first coinage act was passed by Congress, April 2, 1792, the metallic currency of the country consisted chiefly of foreign coins, amongst which were English pennies, half-pennies and farthings. The half-cent was intended to take the place of the farthing. It is worth remarking, by the way, that the word penny, so commonly used by Americans nowadays, is purely English. The American coin is a cent. The word penny does not occur in any coinage law of the United States.

The fact that the first coinage law provided for issuing cents and half-cents showed that small change was much needed. A month later Congress authorized the director of the mint to purchase "not exceeding 150 tons of copper and coin it into cents and half cents." The law further provided that after $50,000 in cents and half-cents had been coined, no other copper coins should be current in the United States or paid or offered by any person under penalty of forfeiture of the coins and a fine of $10. This was done to drive the English copper coins out of circulation.

In 1857 the coinage of the big copper cent and of the half-cent pieces was discontinued and provision was made for coining bronze cents and bronze two-cent pieces. An act of 1851 had already authorized the coinage of three-cent pieces, to consist of three-fourths silver and one-fourth copper. This was a pretty little coin but inconvenient to handle. Besides, with the cent and two-cent pieces, it was not needed. It was discontinued in 1873, but not before $1,282,087 of them had been issued. Of the two-cent pieces $912,000 were issued between 1864 and 1873. Both of these coins have practically become obsolete.

Other coins that have ceased to be issued are the one-dollar and three-dollar gold pieces, the first because it was too small and the other because it was not needed. Of the three-dollar pieces $1,619,376 were coined between 1853 and 1869, and of the one-dollar pieces there were $19,499,331. The act of 1849, which authorized the coinage of gold dollars also for the first time, authorized the coinage of the gold double eagle, or twenty-dollar piece. Up to that time the eagle, or ten-dollar piece, was our largest gold coin. The double eagle is a beautiful coin and has proven useful. From 1850 to 1900 there were issued $1,572,057,060 of them. At present there are nearly three times as many twenty-dollar gold pieces, in value, outstanding as there are ten-dollar pieces. The coinage of the one-dollar and the three-dollar gold pieces was discontinued by an act of September 26, 1890.

Quite as curious as the disappearance of any of the coins is that of the so-called fractional paper currency issued during and immediately after the Civil War. The total amount of this issue was $368,724,079, in denominations of 3, 5, 10, 15, 25 and 50 cents. In the absence of silver money it was a convenient currency. It passed so rapidly from hand to hand that it soon became mutilated and the Government redeemed it in great quantities, issuing new notes for the old. More than $15,000,000 of this currency is still outstanding, though one scarcely ever sees a piece of it. The last report of the United States Treasurer showed outstanding $90,219 of the three-cent notes, $1,858,668 of the five cents, $5,058,789 of the ten cents, $240,169 of the 15 cents, $4,274,464 of the 25 cents, and $3,762,040 of the 50 cents. For several years past they have been redeemed at the rate of $3,000 to $4,000 a year. It is probable that most of the $15,284,000 now reported as outstanding has been lost, burned or destroyed.—Indianapolis News.

Writes Without Hands.

One of the most remarkable personages in Pennsylvania is Abraham B. Myers. With only stumps of arms he writes a very legible hand, holding the pen between the stumps of his arms, without artificial assistance. He is a marksman of no mean ability and pulls the trigger by means of a twine, the end of which he grips in his teeth. He plays pool and billiards and even rides horseback.

Curtain Frills.

In making curtains at home it is well to remember that only in the cheaper grades are the frills put on with a heading. In thin curtains of the best quality the frills are always inserted in the hem.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

SUBSCRIBE NOW.

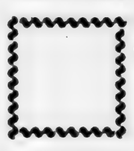
The offer of The Union with the St. Louis Globe-Democrat which comes TWICE-A-WEEK, is great value. Just think of it, 156 papers a year for a hundred and fifty cents, less than 3c per week. Come in now. THE UNION is reaching for the 800 mark this month; in October we'll set our stakes farther on. Stand by your own paper, the one that represents the people.

OUR CLUBBING LIST.

The Union and Yellow Jacket, both for one year $1.00
The Union and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser 1.25
The Union and Weekly Atlanta Constitution 1.50
tf

Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it. tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?



PEOPLE'S PARTY NOMINEES.

County Ticket.

For Judge of Probate,
L. H. REYNOLDS.
For County Treasurer,
J. BICE.
For Tax Collector,
T. J. HUBBARD,
For Tax Assessor,
L. B. POUNDS.
For Clerk of Circuit Court,
SAM W. COLLINS.
For County Supt. of Education.
J. W. MOORE.
For Coroner,
FRANK MASSEY,
For County Commissioner, 1st District,
W. H. CONWAY,
For County Commissioner, 2d District,
ALEX GLASSCOCK.
For County Commissioner, 3d District,
R. P. KENDRICK.
For County Commissioner, 4th District
MOSES ROBINSON.
tf

WHERE'S THE DIFFERENCE?

The following from the Montgomery Journal has an odd sound in view of the banner's claim about the difference in the democratic methods as compared to a few years ago. The ringsters are still in control and the old methods are in vogue, much to the disgust of all decent democrats.
From The Montgomery Journal.

State Committee's Action.

Referring to the action of the state committee at its last meeting, and indorsing the position of the committee that it had supreme jurisdiction in party affairs, the Birmingham Ledger made bold to say:

"One sad fact was forced upon the attention of the party, and that is that in some counties there were attempts to gain advantage in party contests that come pretty close to plain rascality and fraud. The committee must deal rigidly with such cases. We want no opposition party in Alabama."

Yes, there were evidences that fraud had been practiced in certain counties, but the state press has been strangely silent on these points. The press has been silent because it did not desire to appear as partisan of either of the contestants or contestees, and if a newspaper had sought to ventilate these frauds, or alleged frauds, this accusation would have been made against it by the beneficiaries of the frauds, however unjust such accusation.

The state press has simply been overawed, simply been browbeaten into submission to wrongs—to the perpetration of fraud, to violation of the primary election laws, and to violation of those principles of right and honesty that should control in the conduct of the primaries—primaries in which only white men participated and in which only democrats sought office.

With the statement of the Ledger that "we want no opposition in Alabama," and that for this reason the state committee should deal rigidly with such cases where fraud is charged, we have no sympathy. We would like to see a respectable opposition party built up in Alabama, but there are those who have so little hope that the state committee will never rectify the wrongs within the party; have so little hope that the committee will require those coming before it seeking an indorsement of the methods they have adopted to secure nominations to come with clean hands, they expect to see opposition grow up—not republican opposition, because republicanism has become a stench in the nostrils of self-respecting white men in Alabama under the leadership of Roosevelt—but a party declaring for a reform of election methods, a ballot pure and undefiled, an honest and rigid enforcement of election laws.

THORSBY.

We spent a few hours at Thorsby Monday very pleasantly looking over the big improvements made in the town, getting a very good dinner at the Thorsby inn, where mine host, G. C. Nichelson, puts up excellent fare and accommodations for many travelers. Thorsby is losing one of her best citizens in the person of J. W. Franzen, who is closing out his business preparatory to removing to New Mexico on account of ill health. Mr. Franzen has built up a large business in Thorsby and it is an ideal opening for some one who wishes to go into mercantile business there—good store, good stock, good trade. Druggist Horn, Jeweler Malingren, Butcher Foss, Delicatessen Johnson, and in fact all the business men seem to be doing well. The Denison Lumber and Manufacturing company is turning out everything needed in building, using all the up-to-date machinery.

WILL HOLD THEIR COTTON.

"We Chilton county farmers are going to protect ourselves against cotton speculators as far as possible this season," remarked Moses Robinson, president of the Chilton County Farmers' Alliance.

"We believe the cotton crop will be short in comparison with the estimate of 60 days ago caused by excessive rain and rust, and have arranged to carry our crop ourselves, withholding sale until February or March next. Alabama banks and merchants are now in position to aid us in this effort for self-preservation and they will do it. We are bound to get full value for our cotton, if we will only exercise economy and be patient."—Age-Herald of September 24th.

LOMAX.

Cotton picking is the order of the day. Ten cents cotton and plenty of "hog and hominy" will knock a big spell of blues off an ordinary Lomax farmer. Turnip crop is cut short on account of drought. G. W. Hill and wife visited friends and relatives here last week. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eiland have a new boarder; it is a boy. Mrs. E. A. Knight is visiting her son, James Knight, at Birmingham, this week. Mrs. Nettie Aldridge, of Clanton, visited Mrs. Bussey Monday. Jackson & Robinson do the grocery business of Lomax with their low prices.

OBSERVER.

BEAT 9 ITEMS.

Messrs. John and A. F. Mims made a business trip to Clanton Friday. Bennie Williams, of Prattville Junction, spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Williams. Mrs. John Burnett is visiting her daughter, near Randolph, this week. Charles Eiland is the happy possessor of a fine boy, born September 20th. All doing well. Mr. Lee Foshee died Friday morning and was buried at the "Aunt Polly Childress" cemetery Saturday. Mrs. S. A. Crosby, of Baldwin county, was buried at the New Salem cemetery Friday. We had quite a nice time at our Sunday school convention at Cedar Grove last Friday and Saturday.

NIM ROD.

Clanton, Ala., Sept. 26, '04.
Editor Union:

Please allow me a little space in THE UNION, the paper of the people's rights, to refer to the letter by Mr. Goss in last week's banner. Mr. Goss, I can't doubt your sincerity, but I don't think your statement that "it will be a shame on the county not to elect Deason" is true. We respect Mr. Deason as a man, having known him since our school boy days. We are not making any fight against him, but against the democratic party. Granting that Mr. Deason is a good man does not mean that we have no other as good. In advising the people of Chilton county to vote for Parker and Deason why don't you call their attention to the good old times of Cleveland's administration? Why not remind the people of our county how easy it was for us to pay our taxes and other debts? Why not call their attention to the many beautiful residences built by the farmers during his administration and how few have been built since? Why not "point with pride" to the good wages paid teachers then? How many teachers of our country schools received as much as $40 per month? What did we receive on an average for cotton during his reign? Why not ask the people of our county if they are willing to follow the "dear old party" which gave us all of the good old times referred to in order to elect any man? The people will answer these questions in November. The banner of the 15th inst. says "that some good men refuse to see anything different in the democratic party of today and that of ten or twelve years ago," not willing to be judged by their past record of so recent a date. The truth is the democratic party changes as often as possible, always reforming and making pledges, and seldom if ever fulfilling them. Judging by the statements made by Judge Richardson to an audience in this county, it does not appear to me that there has been any reforming done. Yours truly,

J. N. DENNIS.

Jemison, Ala., Sept. 26, 1904.
Editor Union:

It seems as though the democrats with the use of that obnoxious and detestable sheet called "the banner" will never find a place to end their would-be vile berating of our candidates. They have no merit in their own men and consequently have no grounds on which to make any campaign against our men. The democrats can not possibly be so devoid of understanding that they don't know that we have a ticket of men that can not be successfully questioned in any particular. There is no comparison whatever between the two tickets as a whole, and our democratic friends are aware of that fact, and hence seek to divert the mind of our people from the real issues at hand and leave their side in dead silence while they make false and slanderous tirades upon our men, the most of whom have been tried and found worthy of the trust reposed in them by the people. Never yet have the democratic writers or press that have been dealing out such vile, contemptible and blasphemous statements of falsehoods on our worthy men taken to themselves to argue the merits of a single one of their men. Now we advise them if they wish to make any impression, to argue their own side and let ours alone. We are able to take care of our part of the situation and we'll do it in November. The course of our opponents proves conclusively that they have no issue to contend for in this campaign and hence the low groveling business of mud slingers and political connivers. Yes, what will it amount to if Judge Adams did resign his seat to Deason for help to him? It seems that Adams' fever to go west cooled off before he got a physician to treat it. Deason will hardly get used to the name of judge before Mr. Reynolds will assume his place. Of course we know that every possible scheme and device that can be worked by the democrats will be tried, but our boys have their eyes open (keep them open, too, boys) and we'll meet them at every crook and turn, and in November elect our ticket by an overwhelming majority. Success to our party and THE UNION.

YOUNG REPUBLICAN.

CHILTON COUNTY FARMERS' ALLIANCE.

Recommendation to Planters.

Chilton County Farmers' Alliance, in called session assembled, recommend to the farmers of this and other counties of the state, the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions, "being the full report of the special committee on warehouse, and

Whereas, from all reports from the planters and public press, we believe the cotton crop will be short in comparison with the estimate of sixty days ago, caused by excessive rains and rust, and

Whereas, arrangements have been perfected with the Planters' warehouse of Clanton for storage of cotton, including storage, weighing, sampling and shipping at 25 cents for first month or part thereof, and 5 cents per week for each succeeding week, and

Whereas, arrangements have been perfected with the Peoples' Savings Bank of Clanton to advance cash to three-fourths market value of each bale so stored, at rate of interest at 8 per cent per annum, and

Whereas, arrangements have been made for the insurance of cotton at three-fourths to full value at 15 to 20 cents per bale per month, and

Whereas, we believe it to be to the interest of all who grow cotton to avail themselves of these opportunities and withhold sale of their cotton until 1st of February or March, 1905, and

Whereas, the merchant has promised to aid in the above arrangements: therefore be it

Resolved, That we request the farmers and cotton growers to store their cotton until after Christmas, and if needed, draw three-fourths value in cash on same, and not sell until satisfactory prices are reached, and not rush their cotton on the market and depress the price, as is now being done, marketing a crop in ninety days that requires twelve months to produce.

We earnestly solicit the co-operation of all cotton growers and newspapers friendly to the view that cotton will bring a higher price later on.

Unanimously adopted and secretary ordered to have 1000 copies printed for distribution among alliancemen and farmers. MOSES ROBINSON,
President Chilton County Farmers' Alliance.

W. H. CONWAY, Chm. Warehouse Com., and Lect. C. C. F. A.
Clanton, Ala., September 14, 1904.
tf

Coming Events

NOTICE.

I am ready to lecture to or organize any alliance on short notice, and hold myself ready to attend all calls.

W. H. CONWAY,
County Lecturer and Organizer.

ALABAMA GIRLS' INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL,
Montevallo, Ala.

Literary, Scientific, Commercial, Industrial, Domestic, Pedagogical, Musical, Artistic.

Session opens September 15th. Expenses, $90.

Healthful location. Faculty of 27 teachers.

For catalogue, address
FRANCIS M. PETERSON,
tf Montevallo, Ala.

REGISTRARS' DATES.

Clanton, fourth Monday in September, and all that week to register all applicants who may be entitled to registration. Also on Friday and Saturday, November 4th and 5th. A resident of any beat in the county can register at Clanton on the above dates. tf

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton County for the year 1904 and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Clanton, beat 4, Oct. 1, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Oct. 3, 1904.
Fletcher, beat 8, Oct. 4, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Oct. 5, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Oct. 6, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Oct. 7, 1904.
Benson, beat 3, Oct. 8, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Oct. 10, 1904.
Providence, beat 2, Oct. 11, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Oct. 12, 1904.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Oct. 13, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Oct. 14, 1904.
Cane Creek, beat 4, Oct. 15, 1904, till 12 m
Mountain Creek, beat 5, Oct. 17, 1904
Verbena, beat 5, Oct. 18, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Oct. 19, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Oct. 20, 1904.
James Maddox's gin, beat 4, Oct. 21, 1904

A. C. MIMS,
Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector. tf

THE NATIONAL GAME.

Montreal has signed Pitcher Leon Viau, late of Providence.

The Memphis Club has signed Pitcher Schulz, late of Montgomery.

The Pittsburg Club has given pitcher Roscoe Miller his unconditional release.

The Toledo Club has released Catcher Reading and Pitchers Deeming and Weinig.

Harry Bay has promised to run Geo. Browne a 100-yard race after the season ends.

Evers has made more errors than anybody in the business so far this season.

An Atlanta Club battery, J. J. Clarke and Charles Smith, has been purchased by Cleveland.

This is Charlie Nichols' seventeenth year as a pitcher and he is still as good as any of them.

The Cleveland Club has purchased outfielder Ernest Vinson from Providence for $2500.

Tommy Leach's legs have given out, and his physician has ordered him to take a long rest.

The Chicago National Club has signed outfielder William Carney, of the Spokane Club.

The Detroits have been vastly strengthened by the acquisition of Hickman and Coughlin.

The Cincinnati Club has traded Orville Woodruff for third baseman Harry Arndt, of Louisville.

The St. Louis National Club has bought the release of catcher Charles Swindell, of the Butte Club.

Lajoie has hit safely in all but nineteen games this season. He still keeps up his record as champion slugger.

Joe Kelley is quoted as saying that Pittsburg is still the best team in this league except in the pitching department.

British Ship Strikes Mine.

A British sailing vessel, supposed to be the Lucia, struck a mine at Port Arthur, and only one person was rescued. It is thought probable that she was engaged in trying to run the blockade.

Five Children Burned to Death.

Five children were burned to death and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Sapp, mortally injured in Rolly, Adair County, Kentucky. The fire destroyed the Sapp home.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Notice No. 25613.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., September 12th, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of the Circuit Court at Clanton, Ala., on October 21st, 1904, viz: Hiram P. Collum, Homestead entry No. 35417, for the Ne 1-4 of Section 20, Tp 24 n of R 14 east.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Sam Caton, John N. Northcutt, Henry Gentry, Alexander Gentry, all of Jemison, Ala. ROBERT BARBER,
tf Register.

ABOUT REGISTERING.

Extracts from the general election law of Alabama:

Section 2. The following persons shall be disqualified both from registering and voting: All idiots and insane persons; those who were by reason of conviction of crime disqualified from voting at the time of the ratification of the constitution on November 28, 1901; those who have been since November 28, 1901, or who shall be convicted of treason, murder, arson, embezzlement, malfeasance in office, larceny, receiving stolen property, obtaining money under false pretenses, perjury, subornation of perjury, robbery, assault with intent to rob, burglary, forgery, bribery, assault and battery on wife, bigamy, living in adultery, sodomy, incest, rape, miscegenation, crime against nature, or any crime punishable by imprisonment in penitentiary, or for any infamous crimes or crime involving moral turpitude; also, any person who has been since November 28, 1901, or who shall be convicted as a vagrant or tramp, or of selling or offering to sell his vote or the vote of another, or of making or offering to make false returns in any election by the people or in any primary election to procure the nomination or election of any person to any office, or of suborning any witness or registrar to secure the registration of any person as an elector, provided that any person who is disqualified from voting by reason of conviction of any of the offenses mentioned in this section, except treason, whether the conviction was had in a state or federal court, has been pardoned, may be restored to his citizenship with right to vote by the governor, approved by the board of pardons and specially expressed in the pardon.

Sec. 7 1-2. The following persons and no others, who, if their place of residence shall remain unchanged, will have, at the date of the next general election, the qualifications as to residence prescribed by section 1 of this act, shall be qualified to register as electors, provided they shall not be disqualified under section 2 of this act:

1st. Those who can read and write any article of the constitution of the United States in the English language, and who are physically unable to work; and those who can read and write any article of the constitution of the United States in the English language, and who have worked or been regularly engaged in some lawful employment, business or occupation, trade or calling for the greater part of the twelve months next preceding the time they offer to register, and those who are unable to read and write, if such inability is due solely to physical disability; or,

2d. The owner in good faith in his own right, or the husband of a woman who is the owner in good faith in her own right, of forty acres of land situate in this state, upon which they reside; or the owner in good faith in his own right, or the husband of any woman who is the owner in good faith in her own right, of real estate situate in this state, assessed for taxation at the value of three hundred dollars or more or the owner in good faith, in his own right, or the husband of a woman who is the owner in good faith, in her own right, of personal property in this state assessed for taxation for three hundred dollars or more; provided, that the taxes due upon such real or personal property for the year next preceding the year in which he offers to register shall have been paid, unless the assessment shall have been legally contested and is undetermined.

Sec. 15. Any elector who registered prior to January 1, 1903, who has changed the county of his residence shall be registered on application on production of his certificate, unless he has since become disqualified.

Sec. 16. When the certificate of any elector who was duly registered has been lost, mutilated or destroyed, on application stating that the certificate has been lost, mutilated or destroyed, and verified by affidavit, and it appears of record that such applicant has been registered, the judge of probate of the county of registration or the secretary of state shall issue to the applicant a certificate that he was duly registered as an elector. Such certificate shall be issued free of charge to the elector. The secretary of state shall at the expense of the state furnish the judge of probate blank certificates for use as provided in this section.

The certificate of the registrars or the judge of probate or of the secretary of state shall be sufficient to establish the fact of such registration.

Be sure and register when the registrars are in your beat, as the only excuse for not doing so is by reason of sickness of yourself or in your family, or by absence from the county. Everybody can register this summer who will be qualified by residence or age by the 8th day of November. Poll tax paying has nothing to do with registration; you can register now and pay your poll tax afterwards, but you can not vote unless you are both registered and have paid your poll tax (if any is due). The period of residence necessary to register is two years in the state, one year in the county, and three months in the beat. If you have moved from one beat to another in the county less than three months before election day, you can vote in your old beat, so you don't lose your vote by changing. Any one who desires to register property qualification should with him his last assessment and tax collector's receipt to the registrars as proof that possessed of such property, taxes on it. You can register ANY of the following heads:

1. If you own 40 acres or more in this state, and reside upon
2. If your wife owns 40 acres more land in this state, upon you reside.
3. If you own real estate in state that is assessed for taxation $300 or more.
4. If your wife owns real estate this state assessed for taxation $300 or more.
5. If you own personal property this state assessed for taxation $300 or more.
6. If your wife owns personal erty in this state assessed for taxation for $300 or more.
7. If you can read and write section of the constitution of United States.

Don't give up your life cate that you got in 1902, only have to show it to the in case you have moved to this from some other county.

THE UNION will furnish information on any special point they may be in doubt upon, and ready to help any one to get rights he is entitled to under of Alabama. If you think you titled to register and the should refuse you, take a good men with you so you witnesses as to such refusal reasons given by the registrar thereby be enabled to take you up to higher authority.

NOTICE.

The populist executive committee hereby called to meet in Clanton Tuesday, the 4th day of October to attend to such matters of as may be brought before

W. H. SHAW, Chm.
J. D. COLLINS, Secretary

Closing Out Sale

J. W. Franzen, of Thorsby, Ala., will sell his large stock of General Merchandise, as he is compelled to quit business on account of his health. Everything to be sold greatly reduced prices, quantities to suit purchasers. Also Farming Lands and Orchard Tracts for sale.

Notice.

All persons who are indebted to me will please call and settle such accounts at once, as I am closing out my business. Respectfully,

J. W. Franzen,
Thorsby, Ala.

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is cultivated, 1 set mill-rock, 1 inch, 1 Horse, weight 1000 lbs. Alfred Popwell,
Clanton, Ala.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS You will find a full line of

SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS.

We have purchased the stock of JUDSON STROCK and ask for your trade.

CLANTON DRUG CO.

IMPORTANT

GIN SAWS FILED. We have one of the best machines made for this business. Put in your saws now if you have any work in this line.

J. M. MADDOX,
Clanton, Ala.

FOR SALE

A good family horse, in good condition every way. Price $60. Apply to Crowson, two miles west of Jemison, Ala.

TY OFFICIALS

—Judson Strock.
—W. M. Wilson, E. G. Robell, I. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
—J. Watts Moore.
—Ed Smitherman.

RTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.

g Term—1st Monday in April.
mer Term—3rd Monday in July.
Term—1st Monday in November.

—T. Scott Sayre.
licitor—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
k—E. B. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.

ing Term—2nd Monday in March.
ll Term—2nd Monday in September.

Chancellor—Hon. R. B. Kelley, Ashland.
Register—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clanton.

COUNTY COURT.

First Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

2nd Monday February, 1st Monday April, 1st Monday June, 2nd Monday July, 2nd Monday August, 1st Monday November.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Judge of Probate—S. M. Adams.
Treasurer—Alex G. Dake.
Sheriff—J. M. Morgan.
Solicitor—J. O. Middleton.
Tax Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

First District—W. H. Conway.
Second District—Alex Glasscock.
Third District—W. A. Green.
Fourth District—R. C. Riggins.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.

Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.

Hon. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.

Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

COUNTY CHURCHES

Pastors and clerks are cordially asked to send the editor any news regarding their churches which they would wish published. Also if there are any errors in these notices please send corrections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Alpine—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor. J. T. Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
Beth-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; C. C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
Brookson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; W. W. Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
Bethany—Rev. I. Bice 1st Sunday. C. B. Huett, clerk, Verbena.
Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.
Cane Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th Sunday. V. J. Gragg, clerk.
Center Hill—Rev J. M. Gothard, pastor; J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
Concord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd Sunday. T. N. Parrish, clerk.
Collins Chapel—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.
Chestnut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
Corinth—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday. W. B. Jones, clerk.
Cross Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 3d Sunday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
Corinth—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st Sunday. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
Canaan—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pastor; W. J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
Ebenezer—Rev. P. G. Maness, pastor; R. H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
Jemison—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; W. N. Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
Liberty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd Sunday; W. M. Wood, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
Mars Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pastor; H. Z. Barnes, clerk, British.
Mulberry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. C. Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
Mount Carmel—Rev. W. J. Ruddick, pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk, Adams.
Mount Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, pastor; D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo
Maple Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; W. H. Wilson, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday; George Trawick, clerk.
New Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; J. W. Billingsley, clerk.
New Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 4th Sunday; G. W. Hill, clerk.
New Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. Henry Smith, clerk.
Pilgrims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, pastor; I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
Pleasant Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, pastor; W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. G. W. Freeman, pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk, Shoults.
Poplar Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, 2nd Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.
Providence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt, 1st Sunday. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemison.
Providence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, pastor; Riley Robinson, clerk, Clanton.
Salem—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor; D. S. Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
Shiloh—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd Sunday; W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
Saida—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun-

...ISTERING.

...e general election

...following persons
...d both from regis-
...All idiots and in-
...who were by rea-
...crime disqualified
...time of the ratl-
...titution on Novem-
...e who have been
...1901, or who shall
...eason, murder, ar-
...malfeasance in of-
...ng stolen property,
...under false pre-
...pornation of per-
...uit with intent to
...ry, bribery, assault
..., bigamy, living in
...cest, rape, misceg
...nat nature, or any
...y imprisonment in
...r any infamous
...olving moral turpi-
...son who has been
...1901, or who shall
...vagrant or tramp.
...fering to sell his
...another, or of mak-
...make false returns
...the people or in
...on to procure the
...lon of any person
...suborning any wit-
...o secure the regis-
...son as an elector,
...person who is dis-
...x by reason of con-
...the offenses men-
...on, except treason,
...tion was had in a
...urt, has been par-
...tored to his citi-
... to vote by the
... by the board of
...ly expressed in the

...following persons
..., if their place of
...main unchanged,
...te of the next gen-
...qualifications as to
...d by section 1 of
...ualified to register
...ed they shall not
...r section 2 of this

...an read and write
...constitution of the
... English language,
...ically unable to
...who can read and
...f the constitution
...es in the English
... have worked or
...ged in some lawful
...ess or occupation,
...the greater part of
...next preceding the
...register, and those
...read and write, if
...e solely to physical

...n good faith in his
...sband of a woman
... in good faith in
...orty acres of land
..., upon which they
...er in good faith in
...he husband of any
...owner in good faith
...of real estate sit-
...assessed for taxa-
... of three hundred
...the owner in good
...ght, or the husband
... the owner in good
...right, of personal
...state assessed for
...hundred dollars or
...at the taxes due
... personal property
...preceding the year
... to register sha:.
...ess the assessment
...ally contested and

...tor who registered
..., 1903, who has
...y of his residence
... on application on
...rtificate, unless he
... disqualified.
...e certificate of any
...ly registered has
...; or destroyed, on
...that the certificate
...lated or destroyed,
...davit, and it ap-
...at such applicant
..., the judge of pro-
... of registration or
...ate shall issue to
...ertificate that he
...d as an elector
...all be issued free
...lector. The secre-
... at the expense of
...e judge of probate
...r use as provided

...the registrars or
...e or of the secre-
...l be sufficient to
... of such registra-

...ter when the regis-
... beat, as the only
...g so is by reason
...urself or in your
...ice from the coun-
... register this sum-
...alified by residence
...day of November.
...as nothing to do
...you can register
...poll tax afterwards.
...ote unless you are
...d have paid your
... due). The period
...sary to register is
...state, one year in
...ree months in the
... moved from one
...n the county less
...before election day,
...r old beat, so you don't lose your vote by ...

Any one who desires to ...
property qualification ...
with him his last ...
and tax collector's receipt to ...
the registrars as proof that ...
possessed of such property, ...
taxes on it. You can register
ANY of the following heads:

1. If you own 40 acres or ... in this state, and reside upon

2. If your wife owns 40 ...
more land in this state, upon
you reside.

3. If you own real estate ...
state that is assessed for taxa...
$300 or more.

4. If your wife owns real ...
this state assessed for taxa...
$300 or more.

5. If you own personal prop...
this state assessed for taxa...
$300 or more.

6. If your wife owns person...
erty in this state assessed for ...
for $300 or more.

7. If you can read and wri...
section of the constitution ...
United States.

Don't give up your life ...
cate that you got in 190...
only have to show it to the re...
in case you have moved to this ...
from some other county.

THE UNION will furnish a... information on any special point...
they may be in doubt upon, and ...
ready to help any one to get ...
rights he is entitled to under th...
of Alabama. If you think you ...
titled to register and the re...
should refuse you, take a co...
good men with you so you ca...
witnesses as to such refusal a...
reasons given by the registrar...
thereby be enabled to take you...
up to higher authority.

NOTICE.

The populist executive comm...
hereby called to meet in Clan...
Tuesday, the 4th day of Octobe... to attend to such matters of b...
as may be brought before it.

W. H. SHAW, Chair...
J. D. COLLINS, Secretary.

Closing Out Sa...

J. W. Franzen, of Tho...
Ala., will sell his large ...
of General Merchandis...
he is compelled to qui...
iness on account of his h...
Everything to be so...
greatly reduced price...
quantities to suit purch...
Also Farming Lands...
Orchard Tracts for sal...

Notice.

All persons who ar...
debted to me will pleas...
and settle such accou...
once, as I am closing ou... business. Respectfull...
J. W. Franzen,
Thorsby, ...

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 ... within 2½ miles of Cl...
75 per cent of which i...
bered, 1 set mill-roc...
inch, 1 Horse, weight ...
lbs. Alfred Popwell...
Clanton ...

In addition to our Co...
Stock of DRUGS
You will find a full li...

SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC.
SEEDS.

We have purchased t...
JUDSON STROCK
and ask for your t...
CLANTON DRUG CO...

IMPORTAN...

GIN SAWS FILE... have one of the be...
chines made for that...
ness. Put in your ...
now if you have any...
in this line.
J. M. MADD...
Clanton, Ala.

FOR SALE

A good family ho...
good condition every...
Price $60. Apply to ...
Crowson, two miles ...
west of Jemison, Ala...

...TY OFFICIALS

...—Judson Strock.
...—W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rob...
...I. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
...J. Watts Moore.
...al—Ed Smitherman.

...RTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.

...g Term—1st Monday in April.
...er Term—3rd Monday in July.
... Term—1st Monday in Novem...

...ge—T. Scott Sayre.
...ctor—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
...k—E. B. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.

...ng Term—2nd Monday in March.
... Term—2nd Monday in Septem...

...ncellor—Hon. R. B. Kelley, An...
...gister—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan...

COUNTY COURT.

...st Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

... Monday February, 1st Monday
...l, 1st Monday June, 2nd Monday
..., 2nd Monday August, 1st Monday
...ember.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Judge of Probate—S. M. Adams.
Treasurer—Alex G. Dake.
Sheriff—J. M. Morgan.
Solicitor—J. O. Middleton.
Tax Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

First District—W. H. Conway.
Second District—Alex Glasscock.
Third District—W. A. Green.
Fourth District—R. C. Riggins.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.

Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.

Hon. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.

Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

COUNTY CHURCHES

Pastors and clerks are cordially ask...d to send the editor any news regard...ing their churches which they would ...ish published. Also if there are any ...rors in these notices please send cor...rections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Alpine—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
J. T. Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
Beth-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas...tor; C. C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
Brookson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; W. W. Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
Bethany—Rev. I. Hice, 1st Sunday. C. B. Huett, clerk, Verbena.
Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.
Cane Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th Sunday. V. J. Gragg, clerk.
Center Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, pastor; J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
Concord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd Sunday. T. N. Parrish, clerk.
Collins Chapel—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.
Chestnut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
Corinth—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday. W. B. Jones, clerk.
Cross Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 3d Sunday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
Corinth—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st Sunday. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
Canaan—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pastor; W. J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
Ebenezer—Rev. P. G. Maness, pastor; R. H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
Jemison—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; W. N. Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
Liberty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd Sunday; W. M. Wood, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
Mars Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pastor; H. Z. Barnes, clerk, British.
Mulberry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. C. Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
Mount Carmel—Rev. W. J. Ruddick, pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk, Adams.
Mount Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, pastor; D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
Maple Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; W. H. Wilson, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday; George Trawick, clerk.
New Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; J. W. Billingsley, clerk.
New Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 4th Sunday; G. W. Hill, clerk.
New Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. Henry Smith, clerk.
Pilgrims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, pastor; I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
Pleasant Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, pastor; W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. G. W. Freeman, pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk, Shoults.
Poplar Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, 2nd Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.
Providence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt. 1st Sunday. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemison.
Providence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, pastor; Riley Robinson, clerk, Clanton.
Salem—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor; D. S. Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
Shiloh—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd Sunday; W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
Sardis—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sunday. J. Deason, clerk, Adams.
Thorsby—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Robert Jones, clerk, Thorsby.
Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, pastor; R. S. Chandler, clerk, Jemison.
Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2d Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.
Verbena—Rev. J. W. Partridge, 1st Sunday. T. J. Bland, clerk.
Valley Creek—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. W. Mitchell, clerk, Plantersville.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

Clanton Circuit, Rev. T. F. Davis, Pastor.

Thorsby—1st Sunday.
Walnut Grove—2nd Sunday, morning.
Unity—2nd Sunday, evening.
Shady Grove—3rd Sunday.
Mount Pisgah—4th Sunday, morning.
Enterprise—4th Sunday, evening.

It is believed that the sign of the three golden balls was adopted by Lombard merchants from the armorial bearings of the Medici family, some representatives of whom were money-lenders.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Highland School House—Rev. M. F. Lett, 3rd Sunday and Saturday before. T. L. Adams, clerk.
Enterprise—Rev. M. F. Lett, 4th Sunday. T. F. Patterson, clerk.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN.

St. Olafs, Thorsby—Rev. H. Engh, pastor. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

Concordia, Thorsby—Rev. J. E. Hedberg. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2d Sunday. Song service every 2d and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

MASONIC.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday, Clanton.
Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 250—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.
Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 423—First Saturday, Clanton.
Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 567—First Saturday Billingsley.
Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.
Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 411—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.
Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 473—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.
Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

of the

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE CO.

Of Toronto, Canada.

1st January, 1904.

UNITED STATES BRANCH.

Assets.

Government bonds	$223,650.00
State and municipal bonds	511,473.19
Cash on hand and deposit	169,720.71
Stocks and bonds	305,793.00
Premiums in course of col.	204,834.79
Interest due and accrued.	11,833.20
	$1,427,304.89

Liabilities.

Reserve premium fund (N. Y. Standard)	$849,771.77
Reserve for unpaid losses	100,786.14
	$950,557.91
Surplus in United States	$476,746.98
Total income in United States for 1903	$1,547,736.84
Total losses paid in U. S. from 1874 to 1903, inclusive	$14,674,843.26

WALLACE C. EDLER, Agent,
Clanton. Alabama.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Notice No. 25612.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., September 12, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of the Circuit Court at Clanton, Ala., on October 21st, 1904, viz, Burton E. Collum, Homestead entry, No. 35416, for the Se 1-4 of Section 20, Tp 24 n of R 14 east.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Sam Caton, John N. Northcutt, Henry Gentry, Alexander Gentry, all of Jemison, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER, Register.

tf

LOCAL WEATHER REPORT.

U. S. Department of Agriculture. — Weather Bureau.

CLANTON, ALA.

Week ending Sept. 28.

Date	Temperature High	Temperature Low	Rain fall
22	94	60
23	80	59
24	82	57
25	92	55
26	90	55
27	93	61
28	96	62

A. STEWART, Obs.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to Sept. 28, '04, 1,669.
Price on same date, 10c.
Total receipts same week, '03, 988.
Price same date, 1903, 9 1-2.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

A. A. Jackson and sons, of Lomax, were in Clanton Thursday.

A. D. Henley was in town Thursday.

J. W. Sharbutt was a pleasant visitor Thursday.

C. W. Hubbard was in Clanton on Thursday.

E. A. Knight paid us a visit Thursday and fixed himself up with THE UNION and other papers for the year.

M. H. Headley was a welcome caller Thursday.

A. F. Childress was in Clanton Friday.

J. W. FRANZEN, OF THORSBY, IS SELLING OUT. tf

H. A. Harris and C. J. Eiland were in Clanton Friday.

J. H. Jones was a pleasant visitor Friday. He is taking advantage of the good mail service put up by Carrier Armstrong on rural route No. 4 and takes THE UNION, Globe-Democrat, etc.

CALL ON J. W. FRANZEN FOR EXTRA BARGAINS. tf

George Gore was in Clanton Friday.

Henry Culver was a pleasant visitor Friday.

W. M. Geter was a welcome caller Saturday.

J. J. Chandler, living near Union, was burnt out Friday morning about 9 o'clock and lost everything but the clothes they stood in. No insurance. The fire is supposed to have been set by some mysterious person who has bothered the little children (left at home while their parents were at work in the field) several times lately. If the miscreant is caught he should get the full limit of the law.

State Superintendent Hill made a talk to the people of Clanton last Thursday night and told them some home truths; of a fact the school situation in Clanton is a blot on the community.

J. Q. Wade's gin is doing a great business these days. About 50 bales of cotton turned out in a day means some work.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Chandler, of Atlanta, are visiting the Wades.

Deputy Sheriff Lee Hayes was in and around Stump Hills last week for three days and made nine arrests in spite of the dry spell.

M. A. Killgore was in town Wednesday. He has a petition out for appointment as Clanton postmaster. Just started it and got about 90 signers already.

P. J. Massey, son of our old friend, A. D. Massey, has gone to Newnan, Ga., to take a course of telegraphy in the college at that place.

FRANZEN IS SELLING OUT CHEAP.

Mayor Strock returned from his trip Tuesday evening.

DON'T FORGET FRANZEN'S BARGAINS. tf

Uncle Tom Gullahorn is at St. Louis taking in the fair, especially the "Pike."

J. R. Owens was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

L. Moore of Cooper, was in Clanton Saturday.

L. B. Pounds was in town Saturday.

W. H. Peeples was in Clanton Saturday.

A. A. Ayers was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

CUT PRICES RULE AT FRANZEN'S. tf

J. A. Skaggs, of Jemison, was in Clanton Tuesday doing some "landscape gardening" for Dr. Hyman.

Rev. R. R. Ellison, who has been serving the Methodist church here for some time, has gone to Vanderbilt university to finish his theological course. Rev. Mr. Montgomery is pastor in charge now and conducted the regular services on Sunday, preaching two good sermons. Success to his work.

The new livery stable is fast nearing completion. J. L. Dupree, carpenter in charge is pushing the work.

The board of county school trustees will hold their first meeting at Clanton on Saturday, October 1st.

J. W. MOORE,
County Superintendent.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

G. F. Harris and Mrs. Nancy E. Thomas.

COLORED.

Quilla Cheney and Mattie Luster.

EDITORIA...

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's Second Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton county for the year 1904, and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Benson, beat 3, Nov. 1, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Nov. 2, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Nov. 3, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Nov. 4, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Nov. 7, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Nov. 8, 1904.
Gentry & Cofer's Mill, beat 2, Nov. 9, 1904.
Hayes' Mill, beat 2, Nov. 10, 1904.
Providence, beat 2, Nov. 11, 1904.
Elijah Buzbee's, beat 2, Nov. 12 1904, till 12 m.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Nov. 14, 1904.
Smith's Schoolhouse, beat 1, Nov. 15, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Nov. 16, 1904.
Providence, beat 10, Nov. 17, 1904.
Burwell, beat 10, Nov. 18, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Nov. 21, 1904.
Davis & Rollins' gin, beat 6, Nov. 22, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Nov. 23, 1904.
Stanton, beat 8, Nov. 24, 1904.
Valley Creek, beat 8, Nov. 25, 1904.
Clanton Ford, beat 8, Nov. 26, 1904. till 12 m.
Verbena, beat 5, Nov. 28, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Nov. 29, 1904.
Clanton, beat 4, Nov. 30, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Dec. 1-2, 1904.
Clanton, last 10 days in the year commencing December 20, 1904.

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.
tf

A CARD.

Thorsby, Ala., Sept. 26, '04.

Editor Union:

It has been reported around Clanton (by democrats, I suppose) that before the democratic primary I came to Clanton to announce myself as a candidate for circuit clerk on the democratic ticket. Now, I wish to say that this report is a LIE, and not one word of truth in it. I was asked by one of the democratic leaders (or at least he was a candidate for the head of the ticket) to make the race on that ticket, and I told him that if I did decide to make the race it would be on an entirely different ticket to the democratic. He, being a candidate on that ticket, thought I would pull some populists into that primary, but his scheme did not work. I am a populist straight, but, if the party should die, and I have to resort to some other party, IT WILL BE THE REPUBLICAN, but NEVER the democratic party.

Yours very truly,
SAM W. COLLINS.

MARS HILL.

Plenty of hot dry weather and a fine time to pick cotton. It is also 'possum time and we see the boys coming in with big fat 'possums. Sam Gentry and Arthur Bledsoe started to the school for deaf mutes on the 20th inst. We had a good singing last Sunday evening at Mars Hill. Our singing class is building up under the able management of Bro. G. W. Gothard. We had a good game of ball on Scotland grounds Saturday with Providence team. They said the Scotland boys wouldn't score, but when the game ended it stood 23 to 14 in favor of Scotland. Ed Martin done some long batting. Come again, Providence, and we will make it still more interesting for you. Success to THE UNION and its many readers.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER.

THORSBY.

Judge Carthel and Miss Kennedy, both of Montgomery, addressed an appreciative audience on "The Holy Land" and "Primary Work in the S. S." respectively Sunday evening. They are always welcome visitors to our city.

Mr. Tornblom, traveling representative for the "Concordia Land Co.," arrived here Saturday from Chicago.

Mrs. James Snyder, who has been spending the past month among friends and relatives in Indiana, is expected home this week.

A number of our citizens attended the county S. S. convention at Cedar Grove last Sunday and report an enjoyable as well as profitable time.

Grandpa Winslow has returned from Marion, where he visited his daughter. Mrs. J. D. Dennis. Miss Amy Winslow has entered the "Judson Female institute" at Marion. Wallace C. Edler, editor of THE UNION, was in our city Monday in the interests of his paper. Mrs. Ed Snyder spent a few days last week with her husband at Prattville. They expect to move there soon. Mr. Amiston, who has been sojourning in Chicago for the past four months, has returned to us. Miss Rosalie Moore, daughter of Professor J. W. Moore, of Clanton, entered the Normal school here Monday. Prof. J. L. Ruffin attended the teachers' institute at Stanton last week. John Davis, of Jemison, entered the Normal school Monday. Newt Ogletree, who has been visiting his mother, returned to his work in Ensley Monday. J. W. Franzen has returned home after an absence of several weeks, which he spent in the southeastern part of New Mexico. Arnold Franzen will spend the winter in Hagerman, New Mexico, where he has gone for his health.

"OTHELLO."

important event and often a fortune teller is consulted, that a lucky day may be chosen.

The Sak's Store

Birmingham, Alabama

READY-MADE Apparel for Men, Women and Children.
Our Mail Order Department is quick, efficient and serviceable.

Write for Catalogue

DRINK
CREAM of KENTUCKY Whisky.
Sold only by
COLLINS BROS., Calera, Alabama.
Mail orders promptly filled.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.
—Is at The Head of The Procession.—
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,
COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.
W. I. MULLINS,
Clanton. Alabama.

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,
Furniture and Rugs.
—SOLE AGENTS—
Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.
Catalogue for the asking.
1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,
Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.
County and Office Supplies a Specialty.
Ask for Estimates.
2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association
of Alabama.
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
By the People and for the People.
Chilton County Branch
Organized February 3rd, 1900.
W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.
INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.
Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.
Full particulars furnished upon application to
WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

PAUL CALAME,
205 21st Street
Birmingham, Ala.
Practical Watchmaker and Optician
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly filled

A most complete
Stock of General Merchandise, Dress Goods, Etc.
The Millinery Department
is complete in every detail and is in charge of a first-class milliner, Miss Clara Small, of St. Louis
P. D. WILSON,
CLANTON, ALABAMA.

Remember.

The time may come in that far fabled land
Which we are taught Death opens to our view,
When I, with tearful eyes, shall vainly sue
For the dear touch of a familiar hand,
The look of eyes that ever understand,
The kiss from lips whose kiss and word are true.
Oh, grant me this—when I shall call to you,
In loneliness, from that so distant strand;
If you should hear me in the hush of eve,
Breathe something tender for me to the night,
E'en if your heart has now forgotten me quite;
For I, so far away, must needs believe,
Then, in my darkness, I shall see a light
Your love for me—and I shall cease to grieve.
—E. H. Sothern in Harper's Weekly.

The Plotters and the Devil Wagon

Young Johan could see his future spread before him like a smooth white fabric. He did not need to worry over a choice of calling, as so many other young men have to do, or the best way of earning his living. There were no long years of study before him. His comfortable living was growing and ripening in the fields of Holjeryd and mooing from sheer well-being in his father's barn. There would be nothing for him to do but sow and reap at the right times, according to the calendar. Everything he might need was ready and waiting for him, even a wife, whom his father had picked out for him.

Adjoining Holjeryd was another large property, Runeryd. The owner of it had an only child, a daughter. Now, if Johan and Clara were to be united in marriage, nothing more desirable could be imagined, for then both properties would be in the same hands and the owner would be a man of power. The two old men had agreed that this was to be the future of their children, and Johan and Clara themselves thought the arrangement fit and proper.

At the outskirts of Runeryd lived an old soldier by the name of Klang, on a small and stony farm. The old man was a fine looking fellow at the church on Sundays, when he wore his two medals. One of them he had received for skill in marksmanship, and the other for industry in cultivating his farm.

One day Johan's mother was taken seriously ill, and it was necessary to hire help. Thus it happened that old man Klang's eldest daughter came to Holjeryd. Minna was a fine girl, but with all her loveliness she was nothing but a poor soldier's daughter. No one felt any anxiety on account of Minna.

But Minna had not been in Holjeryd many days before Johan began to follow her with his eyes where er she went. He thought she was different from Clara—soft and graceful, clear eyed and slender. Wherever Minna stood or sat, Johan thought she fitted her place excellently. He soon began to wish Clara, her property and his own, at the ends of the earth. No freehold in Christendom was worth a small farm with Minna on it.

When she had been in Holjeryd a fortnight Johan was over his ears in love with her and she with him. It could no longer be concealed. Even Johan's father understood the state of affairs, but he only laughed.

"There is good stuff in the boy," he said, as if proud of his son's success. "I was a woman's man myself in my young days, before I married."

Soon, however, there was no more laughing. One day, Johan said to his father: "You will have to break with Johan was in love with her.

the Runeryd people, for I will never marry Clara."

The father opened his eyes in amazement. "What is this nonsense? What I have promised I shall do, and no beggar's daughter will have a chance to come between me and my plans. You understand?"

But things went from bad to worse. One day Johan declared that he had decided to go to America, and leave parents and home forever, if he could not marry Minna any other way. Then the old man became serious, and understood that something must be done to save the alliance scheme and cure Johan of his lovesickness.

Minna would have to go; but the old man realized that the dismissal of the girl would not be sufficient in Johan's case. The evening before she went he took the opportunity to carry out a scheme. While Minna and Johan were out in the garden somewhere, the old man ripped up a piece of the facing of her Sunday skirt, pushed a fifty crown bill between the lining and the woolen stuff, and carefully sewed the opening together.

* * *

Minna had been gone several days. The owners of Holjeryd and Runeryd were sitting at the crossroads, the meeting place agreed upon, deep in conversation.

Rushing toward them with the speed of lightning.

"Now we'll soon cure the boy. We'll get the constable to go with us to the Klangs, and make a search among the girl's things. Then, of course, we'll find the fifty crown bill sewed in her dress. The constable will arrest her, and, after that, it would be queer if Johan would have anything to do with her," the owner of Holjeryd declared.

"But it seems a shame to blight the girl's future," the other objected.

"Stuff and nonsense! Don't you think it will hurt us worse not to be able to unite our children in marriage and leave our properties in one pair of hands? It strikes me that our plan is more important than a whole platoon of beggar girls."

"I'm afraid the devil will have us for it. It is a cunning plot, but, after all, it is an act after the heart of Satan himself."

The words had hardly been spoken when a strange puffing and rattling was heard further up the road. The old man started up and looked around. An enormous red monster on wheels was rushing toward them with the speed of lightning. In the front seat was a man with big goggles, and when the infernal machine passed the old peasants the man turned to look at them. They thought they saw a pair of glowing eyes behind the glasses. Their nerve collapsed at the sight and they fell on their knees.

"It is the devil!" they groaned simultaneously.

The monster was already disappearing in the distance in a cloud of dust. How long the plotters remained on their knees at the cross roads no one knows, but there was no more talk of going to the Klangs'.

Late in the evening Johan's father came tottering home, pale and grave, and asked for a hymn book, in which he read diligently. When he could no longer see to read he sat silent for a while. Then he called Johan.

"Hitch up, and drive to the Klangs', and fetch Minna as fast as you can," he said.

"What is the matter, father? You aren't going to do her any harm?"

"No, I am going to give her to you. It is no use to strive against Providence," muttered the old man, trembling.

* * *

Since then many an automobile has passed through the village, but, nevertheless, the banns of Johan and Minna were read the next Sunday. The owners of Holjeryd and Runeryd pretend that they have not been fooled. They are probably too proud to let it be known that it was an automobile which frustrated their plans.—New York Sun.

IN A GOAT'S STOMACH.

Animal Had Taken Various Snacks to Appease Hunger.

Buchanan's goat is getting to be a terror in that end of town. Besides drinking beer and doing the tight rope act, he has an appetite worse than that of an ostrich. He invaded a neighbor's back yard yesterday and was in the act of crawling outside a sack of potatoes when the landlady discovered the situation and sent the hired girl after him. A little later he became suddenly indisposed. A local veterinarian was called and applied the X-ray to the goat's stomach which happened to contain among other matters one apple pie, two pairs of parlor slippers, four copies of the Prospector, one War Cry, nine subpoenas, three bench warrants for John Doe, one package smoking tobacco, one yard linoleum, one box of tacks, one bisque doll and other articles too numerous to admit of inventory. He may recover. It was the pie that knocked him out.—Tombstone Prospector.

Rainbow Chasing.

From the sacred city of Asgard crossed
The old Norse gods by the bridge Bifrost.

While its topmost arch was at Asgard found,
The bridge abutments were on the ground.

So the gods stepping forth on that golden arch
To earth descended in stately march.

In a blaze of glory were seen afar,
Baldur and Woden, Loki and Thor.

But the old Norse gods in the past were lost;
They travel no more the bridge Bifrost.

Yet the bridge remains: As in days of yore,
The rainbow shows when the storm is o'er.

And a bit of the legend still survives
In a story told by ancient wives.

Of the chasers of rainbows, wise and bold,
Who go in quest of the pots of gold.

Which are where the ends of the rainbow rest,
(Be that north or south, or east or west).

And many who scoff at the legend old
Go forth on as senseless quests for gold.

And are chasing the rainbow far and nigh,
Till its multi hues fade from their sky.
—Thomas E. Smiley, Indianapolis News.

Good Fishing.

At the amateur journalists' convention in Baltimore, a Philadelphian said of James M. Black, who is one of the association's most distinguished members:

"When we had our convention in Philadelphia, Mr. Beck was the life of it. He kept the table in a roar. In repartee it was impossible to get the better of him.

"At one time he was talking about fishing.

"'The best day's sport I ever had,' he said, 'was off the Florida coast. There were three of us, we each had three rods, and all day long we pulled in fish as fast as we could throw out our lines. I forget,' he added, thoughtfully, 'what kind of fish they were.'

"'Perhaps they were whales,' some one suggested.

"'Whales!' said Mr. Beck. 'Why, man, we were baiting with whales.'"

One Man's Opinion.

Once upon a time there was a man who freely expressed his opinion of a neighbor whom he felt had greatly wronged him.

He told his friends that this neighbor was not only a liar but was a thief, because he had stolen on several occasions and had been guilty of embezzling funds that had been intrusted to his care.

When the accused neighbor heard of these charges he was wroth. Then he went into court with an action for damages against the man whom he averred had slandered him. The result was that the man who had made the accusations against him had to pay damages in the sum of $700 and $42 costs.

Moral—Talk is not always cheap.

A Gallant Author.

The Authors' club of Boston devoted a day last month to a visit to the home of Whittier at Amesbury.

As the club members were passing down Amesbury's main street, a little girl ran forth from a garden where she had been playing, and accosted gaily her friend, Hezekiah Butterworth, the author and editor.

"Mr. Butterworth," she said, as she was taking leave again, "I saw your photograph in a newspaper the other day, and it was so like you that I kissed it."

"And did it kiss you back?" Mr. Butterworth asked.

"Oh, no," laughed the girl.

"Then," said the author, smiling, "it was not like me."

Free Press in Fact.

The Prince of Montenegro has no use for libel laws to restrain the newspapers, and editors are not punished for contempt of court. This does not arise so much from the liberality of the ruler's principle as from the fact that he is himself the owner and editor of the only newspaper published in his dominions. The paper is called Glas Cznogorca, which is interpreted to mean "The Voice of the Montenegrin."

Young Artist Wins Honors.

A young English artist who has taken Paris by storm through his exhibits there is Gerald Kelly. The French government has just ordered one of his works for the national collection in the Luxembourg gallery. Kelly is only 25 years of age.

Do Not Point.

King Edward VII. once wrote in a confession book that the person he disliked most was "the man who points at you with his umbrella and shouts out, 'There he is!'"

IS A TREACHEROUS ANIMAL.

Black Panther of Africa More Ferocious than the Bengal Tiger.

Of all the big, dangerous cats, none is more unapproachable and more treacherous than the black panther. Hailing from the heart of the deepest African jungle, lithe and supple of body, alert and nervous, this stealthy marauder exceeds in ferocity even a Bengal tiger. He is the only big feline that the lion trainer does not venture to train; and he is the only cat so absolutely distrustful that he shuns even the light of day.

Often he will lie all day long in a dusky corner of his cage, his yellow slit eyes shifting and gleaming restlessly. Even the feeding hour, when pandemonium breaks loose among the big cages, when hungry roars and squeals mingle with impatient snarls and impacts of heavy bodies against steel bars, is apt to have no effect on him. He may lie eyeing his chunk of raw beef suspiciously, and not venture forth until day has waned and the last visitor has left; to tear meat from bones with his long, white fangs.

In fact, so ugly and vicious is this beast, that, frequently he turns on his own kind, and in many instances it is impossible to cage him, even with a mate.—McClure's Magazine.

The Departed.

The departed! the departed!
They visit us in dreams,
And they glide above our memories,
Like shadows over streams;
But where the cheerful lights of home
In constant luster burn,
The departed, the departed,
Can never more return!

The good, the brave, the beautiful,
How dreamless is their sleep,
Where rolls the dirgelike music
Of the ever-tossing deep!
Or where the surging night winds
Pale winter's robes have spread
Above the narrow palaces,
In the cities of the dead!

I look around, and feel the awe
Of one who walks alone,
Among the wrecks of former days,
In mournful ruin strown;
I start to hear the stirring sounds
Among the cypress trees,
For the voice of the departed
Is borne upon the breeze.

That solemn voice! It mingles with
Each free and careless strain;
I scarce can think earth's minstrelsy
Will cheer my heart again.
The melody of summer waves,
The thrilling notes of birds,
Can never be so dear to me
As their remember'd words.

I sometimes dream their pleasant smiles
Still on me sweetly fall,
Their tones of love I faintly hear
My name in sadness call.
I know that they are happy,
With their angel plumage on,
But my heart is very desolate
To think that they are gone.
—Park Benjamin.

A Fund of Humor.

William Winter, the dramatic critic, is thought by some to write the worst hand of any man living. There may have been giants in the past, men like Horace Greeley, who surpassed him, but no one his equal remains.

Some years ago Mr. Winter was traveling in Scotland, and having had many amusing experiences, wrote an account of them to R. H. Stoddard, in New York. Mr. Stoddard received the letter at breakfast and, combining familiarity with the intuitions of the poet, managed to make it out, and enjoyed several good laughs. He glanced up at Mrs. Stoddard and said:

"It's from William Winter. Very funny. Want to read it?"

"You know I can never read a word of his writing," answered Mrs. Stoddard.

"Oh, that doesn't matter," replied Mr. Stoddard, tossing the letter over; "it's just as funny to look at!"

Immense Coil of Rope.

The largest coil of rope ever seen in this city has been made for a towline for the big raft of piling collected by the Oregon Rafting company, which is to be towed to San Francisco by the steamer Francis Leggett, now taking in her cargo of lumber at Inman & Poulson's mills. The huge coil contains 150 fathoms of cable four and three-quarter inches in diameter, weighs a little over three tons and costs in the neighborhood of $1,000. It needs to be stout and strong and perfect in every fiber, for the raft to be towed contains 650,000 linear feet of piling, equal to 6,500,000 feet, lumber measure.—Portland Oregonian.

Shoes for a Giant.

A Calumet shoemaker has just finished a pair of shoes for Louis Mollenen, known as the "Quincy Hill giant." Mollenen is 19 years old, stands seven feet eight inches in height and tips the scales at 300 pounds. The shoes are sixteen and a quarter inches in length, six inches in width and weigh five pounds each. Mollenen will use them while at work in the Quincy mine, where he is employed. A number of offers to exhibit the young giant have been made by showmen, but all have been refused.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Crusade Against Wearing Hats.

In England a crusade against the wearing of hats is being waged on the ground that this custom will cause the hair to grow and serve as an aid against premature grayness. This physical culture fad excites considerable derision in London circles, where it seems to be looked upon as a direct blow aimed at the Englishman's dearest privilege. From the members of the house of commons down the Britisher deems it his right to wear his hat on every possible occasion and to sleep in it if so disposed.

Has Commercial Instinct.

D'Annunzio, who is pestered by autograph hunters, refuses to comply unless it is written on a copy of one of his books. The fiends do not always take the hint and supply the book, but the author's commercial idea is to benefit his publisher and incidentally himself.

Happy People of Japan

The native Japanese, particularly those who have not come into close contact with modern civilization, is distinguished as much by his natural courtesy and politeness as by his aversion to clothing. The peasants in the interior are especially noted for their punctiliousness in saluting one another; even rickisha men hurrying along the road with a passenger will sometimes stop to greet a friend, while a pretty woman receives a reverence indeed. This salutation is not merely a word or a nod, but a low bow and a flourish of that little mushroom hat, and the greater friends they are the lower they bow. In saying good-by two Japs never see each other's faces, both being so busily engaged in bending their backs. As soon as one straightens himself the other bows, going backward all the while, until they consider it polite to refrain.

When a foreigner passes through a village every person he meets, from the little child to the old man, will bow most profoundly, so that the passage partakes of the nature of a triumphal procession. Your waiter at the hotel, too, would never think of turning his back until he had bowed himself to a respectful distance, while the number of salaams he makes while taking your order would wear out an ordinary back.

Another pleasant trait of these people is their unvarying hospitality and gayety. You may enter any house and sit down and the host and his family gather about you, offering cakes and tea, all the while chattering pleasantries. Any little incident that Europeans would pass unnoticed is quite sufficient to send these folk into fits of laughter.

The rural Japanese affects as few clothes as the law allows, and since in some districts this is not much, on this subject the rest of the world is silent. In fact, the children wear nothing at all in summer, while the men and women have but a scant—a very scant—apology for raiment. The usual garb is, of course, the kimono, but this is often cast aside in favor of short jacket and trousers, as with the fishermen and the farmers, or even a handkerchief or other trifle. This scantiness of clothing seems so natural that it excites no remark.

All the villages are remarkable for their cleanliness and neatness, and except for some of their sanitary arrangements, are models of comfort and simplicity. Agriculture is carried on with the crudest implements, yet with a skill and care which have made a garden out of a land of barren mountains, while some of the workmen in regard to the arts of joinery and weaving might give valuable hints to our own people.

A short excursion through this country will give one a most pleasant impression of the land and its inhabitants, while their quaint courtesy and persevering industry render them worthy of considerable respect.

Chinese First to Print

Centuries before "the art preservative" was known in Europe the Chinese had practiced printing and had produced illustrations by engraved blocks. From the Chinese the Japanese learned to print, and engravings dating from the thirteenth century have been found.

Xylography was first employed in the service of religion for reproducing texts and images of the Buddha. This was followed by the production of publications such as romances and novels, in which the illustrations were about on a par with those in old-time chat books. There were followed by single-sheet prints and by that large class of productions which emanated from the theater as advertisements.

Chroma-xylography originated in Japan at the commencement of the eighteenth century with single sheets printed from three blocks, black, pale green or blue, and pale pink. A fourth block was added in 1720, and two others were added about forty years later.

The art was brought to perfection between 1765 and 1785 in the single sheet pictures, "Tori Kyonaga," "Suzuki Haruhobu" and "Katsugawa Shunsho."

The technique of Japanese engraving and printing is thus described: The picture, drawn for the engraver on thin, transparent paper of a particular kind, is pasted face downward upon a block of wood, usually cherry, and the superfluous thickness of paper is removed by a process of scraping until the design is clearly visible.

The borders of the outline are then incised—very lightly in the more delicate parts—with a kind of knife and the interspaces between the lines of the drawing are finally excavated by means of tools of various shapes.

The ink is then applied with a brush and the printing is effected by hand pressure, assisted by a kind of pad, to which procedure may be attributed much of the beauty of the result. Certain graduations of tone and even polychromatic effects may be produced from a single block by suitable application of ink or color upon the wood, and on carefully examining these prints it is often apparent that a great deal of artistic feeling has been exercised in the execution of the picture after the designer and engraver had finished their portion of the work.

Jimmy at Sunday School

Some one induced Jimmy to go to Sunday school. It was the first time he had been there. He was ill at ease at first and cast anxious glances at the door. Once he suggested to his nearest neighbor that they "make a sneak."

The teacher observed that Jimmy needed attention, and she did the best she could to win his good will. In the simplest of language she told the story of the creation of the world. Her narration was so plain and her manner so earnest that the street Arab could not help but be impressed, although he tried to appear indifferent.

Had she stopped there all might have been well, but she thought she would make sure of her conquest by addressing herself to Jimmy direct.

"Do you understand, James?" she inquired.

"She's talking to you," said Jimmy's companion, nudging him when he noticed that Jimmy didn't recognize the strange name of James.

"Huh?" said Jimmy inquiringly of the teacher.

"Do you understand the lesson?" the teacher asked in her sweetest manner.

"Yeh," replied Jimmy.

"That is good," said the teacher approvingly. "Now, remember God made the people of the world. He made all the animals, all the trees, all the flowers, everything!"

Somewhere near Jimmy's hair roots an idea began to work. This took form soon in a look in Jimmy's eyes that the teacher, who was a student of children, was quick to interpret.

"What is it, James?" she asked.

Jimmy shied once more at "James," but managed to give utterance to the question that was bothering him.

"Did he make der river?" he asked.

"Yes," said the teacher, "God made the river."

Jimmy looked puzzled. Then he said: "Did God make Jeffries?"

The teacher was inclined to be shocked, but she answered "yes."

Then Jimmy looked up into the teacher's face with a smile that was radiant with pleasure.

"Gee! He must have been busy," said the boy.—New York Press.

A Tenth-Story Reverie

A breeze blows in at the window here, with the music of wind-swept leaves;
The patter of rain on a farmhouse roof and a flash of the trickling eaves;
The glimpse of a long, long lane that turns and winds among the trees;
The scent of clover and mint and thyme
and the buzz of humblebees;
A breeze blows in at the window here,
with the sickles' harvest tune,
The ripple and splash of a rock-bound stream and the light of a harvest moon
That filters away through the leaves and boughs in a yellow filigree;
A breeze blows in at the window here
that is fraught with memory.

Here is the tower of a granite pile and here is an endless wall
Of brick and stone, with the misty light of the city over all,
Up from the street comes a ceaseless din, and the rattle of wheels on stone,
But the breeze blows in at the window here, with the scent of a rose, half-blown;
With the tinkle far of a schoolhouse bell and the cry of lads at play,
The murmuring chant of the forest deep and the fields that stretch away
To the rising hills, where the moon is hid, till the yellow flames arise
As the rays of a night-lamp swung for us through the arch of star-gemmed skies.

Here are the streets where the toilers are, and the din of busy wheels,
But a breeze blows in at the window here like a welcome thief, and steals
The glow of the city streets away, and the pulsing roar grows dim
In the melody of a church bell's chime and the chant of an evening hymn
The stony streets are turfy paths and the city's din and roar
Is the far-off note of the woodland wild or the break of waves on shore,
When the free-winged winds from the far hills blow, and the tears that dim
the eye
Are dewdrops on wood violets in the cloistered dells that lie.

A breeze comes in at the window here, like a soothing message blown From the world of birds and trees and flowers to the world of brick and stone;
Cries out to the heart that is caged and barred and bids it spread its wings
For a little while and wander back where the sweet-voiced wild-bird sings;
The tinseled glow of the city pales in the light of the yellow moon
That filters down through the boughs and leaves, and the joy of the wild-bird's tune
Rings out in a song of welcome home, while the city's roar grows dim
In the rhyme and chime of the old church-bell and the note of an evening hymn!
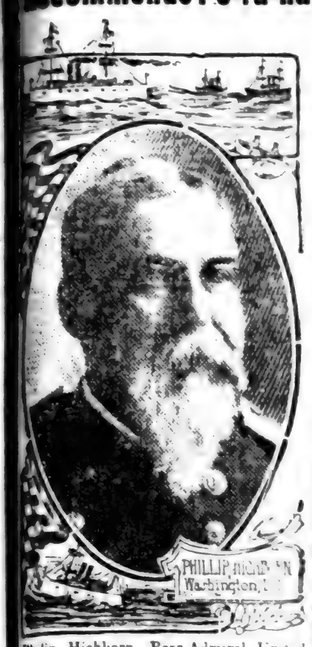
—J. W. Foley, in New York Times.

Rear Admiral Hichborn Recommends Pe-ru-na



Philip Hichborn, Rear Admiral United States Navy, writes from Washington, D. C., as follows:

"After the use of Peruna for a short period, I can now cheerfully recommend your valuable remedy to any one who is in need of an invigorating tonic."—Philip Hichborn.

No remedy ever yet devised has received such unstinted eulogy from so many renowned statesmen and military men as Peruna.

Our army and navy are the natural protection of our country. Peruna is the natural protection of the army and navy in its vicissitudes of climate and exposure.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis. Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Particulars were given in several London papers recently of sheep, when killed, being found with gold coated teeth owing to their having cropped short grass in gold bearing districts in Australia.

One of the most poisonous substances known—prussic acid—is an extract from peach stones.

TS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

Missionaries are at work in 247 of the walled cities of China.

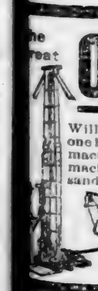
"Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of throat and lungs.—WM. ARNOLD, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 15, 1900.

Among the Japanese one divorce takes place for every four marriages.

$1.00 TO OKLAHOMA AND INDIAN TERRITORY; $13.65 to Texas, via Queen & Crescent Route (Alabama Great Southern). Tickets sale Sept. 20., Oct. 4th and 18th. For pamphlets address A. B. FREEMAN, T. P. A., 1926 2d Ave., Birmingham, Ala.

Positions GUARANTEED BY 6 5,000 BANK DEPOSIT Railroad Fare Paid. 500 FREE Courses Offered. Board at Cost. Write Quick. SOUTH-ALABAMA BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief. Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.



OHIO Well Drill. Will drill faster and deeper with one horsepower than any other machine in the world. Just the machine for the South. Thousands of them needed to obtain pure water. Write for Southern references and particulars. LOOMIS MACHINE CO., TIFFIN, Ohio.

AN ENTIRE MEDICINE CHEST
SLOAN'S LINIMENT
QUICKLY RELIEVES PAINS AND ACHES
Kills Germs
FOR MAN OR BEAST

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

...y People of Japan

...particularly ...ather about you, offering cakes ...ion, is ...ect, all the while chattering like ma... natural ...ples. Any little incident that amo... behavior. ...Europeans would pass unnoticed ... quite sufficient to send these merry ... into fits of laughter.

The rural Japanese as a rule wea... as few clothes as the law allows, and ... In some districts there is no law ... this subject the result is obvious. In fact, the children wear nothing at all in summer, while the men and women have but a scant—a very scant—apology for raiment. The national garb is, of course, the kimono; but this is often cast aside in favor of a short jacket and trousers, or among the fishermen and the farm laborers a handkerchief or other small rag. This scantiness of clothing, however, seems so natural that it rarely excites remark.

All the villages are remarkable for their cleanliness and neatness, and except for some of their sanitary arrangements, are models of comfort and simplicity. Agriculture is carried on with the crudest implements, yet with a skill and care which have made a garden out of a land of barren mountains, while some of the workmen in regard to the arts of joinery and weaving might give valuable hints to our own people.

A short excursion through this country will give one a most pleasant impression of the land and its inhabitants, while their quaint courtesy and persevering industry render them worthy of considerable respect.

...e First to Print

...preserva... ...the Chi... ...and had ...engraved ...the Jap... ...engrav... ...oth cen...

...ployed in ...producing ...ha. This ...e of pub... ...hocolate, ...about ...me that ...d by sin... ...ral large ...emanated ...rements. ...nted in ...t of the ...d' sheets ...ack, pale ...A fourth ...two oth... ...ars later. ...erfection ...e single ...cation ...Su... ...wa Shun

The technique of Japanese engraving and printing is thus described: The picture, drawn for the engraver on thin, transparent paper of a particular kind, is pasted face downward upon a block of wood, usually cherry, and the superfluous thickness of paper is removed by a process of scraping until the design is clearly visible.

The borders of the outline are then incised—very lightly in the more delicate parts—with a kind of knife and the interspaces between the lines of the drawing are finally excavated by means of tools of various shapes.

The ink is then applied with a brush and the printing is effected by hand pressure, assisted by a kind of pad, to which procedure may be attributed much of the beauty of the result. Certain graduations of tone and even polychromatic effects may be produced from a single block by suitable application of ink or color upon the wood, and on carefully examining these prints it is often apparent that a great deal of artistic feeling has been exercised in the execution of the picture after the designer and engraver had finished their portion of the work.

...t Sunday School

...to go to ...rst time ...l at ease ...ances af ...d to his ...make a ... Jimmy ... the best ...will. In ...she told ...world. ...and her ...street ...pressed, ...indiffer... ...l night ...ght she ...best by ...rect. ...s?" she ... Jimmy's ...en he ...ecognize ...ngly of ...esson?"

the teacher asked in her sweetest manner.

"Yeh," replied Jimmy.

"That is good, said the teacher approvingly. "Now, remember God made the people of the world. He made all the animals, all the trees, all the flowers, everything!"

Somewhere near Jimmy's hair roots an idea began to work. This took form soon in a look in Jimmy's eyes that the teacher, who was a student of children, was quick to interpret.

"What is it, James?" she asked.

Jimmy shied once more at "James," but managed to give utterance to the question that was bothering him.

"Did he make der river?" he asked.

"Yes," said the teacher, "God made the river."

Jimmy looked puzzled. Then he said: "Did God make Jeffries?"

The teacher was inclined to be shocked, but she answered "yes."

Then Jimmy looked up into the teacher's face with a smile that was radiant with pleasure.

said the boy.—New York Press.

"Gee! He must have been busy,"

...n-Story Reverie

...w here, ...leaves; ...se roof ...ives; ...ne that ...ees; ...t thyme ...w here, ...k-bound ...harvest ...ves and ...w here ...ille and ...y light ...easeless ...els on ...window ...half- ...ase bell ...st deep ...ay ...noon is ...ng for ...emmed

Here are the streets where the toilers are, and the din of busy wheels,
But a breeze blows in at the window here like a welcome thief, and steals
The glow of the city streets away, and the pulsing roar grows dim
In the melody of a church bell's chime and the chant of an evening hymn.
The stony streets are turfy paths and the city's din and roar
Is the far-off note of the woodland wild or the break of waves on shore.
When the free-winged winds from the far hills blow, and the tears that dim the eye
Are dewdrops on wood violets in the cloistered dells that lie.

A breeze comes in at the window here, like a soothing message blown
From the world of birds and trees and flowers to the world of brick and stone;
Cries out to the heart that is caged and barred and bids it spread its wings
For a little while and wander back where the sweet-voiced wild-bird sings;
The tinseled glow of the city pales in the light of the yellow moon
That filters down through the boughs and leaves, and the joy of the wild-bird's tune Rings out in a song of welcome home! while the city's roar grows dim
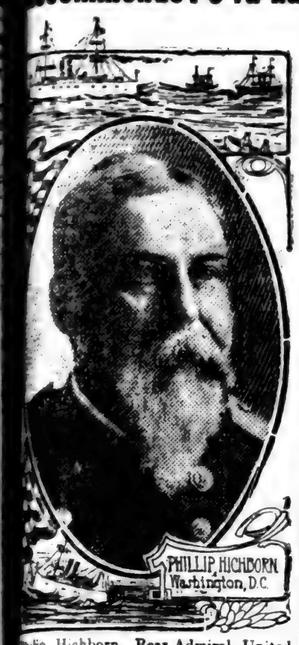
In the rhyme and chime of the old church-bell and the note of an evening hymn!

—J. W. Foley, in New York Times.

...ar Admiral Hichborn ...ecommends Pe-ru-na



Philip Hichborn, Rear Admiral United ...tes Navy, writes from Washington, D. ... as follows:

After the use of Peruna for a short period, I can now cheerfully recommend your valuable remedy to any one who is in need of an invigorating tonic."—Philip Hichborn.

No remedy ever yet devised has received ... unstinted eulogy from so many ...ed statesmen and military men as ...runa.

...ur army and navy are the natural pro...tion of our country. Peruna is the nat... protection of the army and navy in ... vicissitudes of climate and exposure.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfac... results from the use of Peruna, write ...ce to Dr. Hartman, giving a full state...nt of your case, and he will be pleased ...ve you his valuable advice gratis. ...Address Dr. Hartman, President of The ...rtman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

...Particulars were given in several ...ralian papers recently of sheep, when ...ed, being found with gold coated ...th owing to their having cropped ...rt grass in gold bearing districts ... Australia.

...One of the most poisonous sub...nces known—prussic acid—is an ex...t from peach stones.

...Permanently cured. No fits or nervous...ss after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great ...ve Restorer. ...2 trial bottle and treatise free ...Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

...Leprosaria are at work in 247 of the ...ded cities of China.

...Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used ...for affections of throat and lungs.—WM. ...OBERLY, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900.

...Among the Japanese one divorce takes ...place for every four marriages.

...$30.00 TO OKLAHOMA AND INDIAN ...TERRITORY, $12.50 to Texas, via Queen & Crescent Route. Alabama Great Southern. Tickets on sale Sept. 20., Oct. 4th and 18th. For particulars address A. B. FREEMAN, T. P. A., 1925 ...Lyric, Birmingham, Ala.

Positions GUARANTEED BY A $5,000 BANK DEPOSIT
Railroad Fare Paid. 500 FREE Courses Offered. Board at Cost. Write Quick
...ALABAMA BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

OHIO Well Drill
Will drill faster and deeper with one horse power than any other machine in the world! Just the machine for the South. Thousands of them needed to obtain pure water. Write for Southern references and particulars.
LOOMIS MACHINE CO., TIFFIN, Ohio.

AN ENTIRE MEDICINE CHEST
SLOAN'S LINIMENT
QUICKLY RELIEVES PAINS AND ACHES
Kills Germs
...R MAN OR BEAST
...S. SLOAN, 615 ALBANY ST., BOSTON, MASS.

...SO'S CURE FOR ...CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. ...Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use ...in time. Sold by druggists. ...CONSUMPTION

A DINNER WITH TOLSTOI.

The Countess Does Not Agree in All the Great Russian's Theories.

Edward A. Steiner describes a visit to Tolstoi in the Woman's Home Companion. He says:

"Countess Tolstoi, as every one knows, does not agree with her husband in all his theories; but she agrees with the world which worships him, and I believe that she is very proud of him, and very devoted, although her devotion has been severely taxed in various ways. She has copied yards of unreadable manuscript while babies of various sizes were pulling at her skirts; she has translated books into three or four languages, and has transformed all sorts of garments to meet the needs of the changing sixteen, her children. For many, many years she has had no new bonnet or gown, and has nevertheless been cheerful and happy; and is it possible that there can be a greater test of a wife's goodness or a woman's greatness?

"As I have said, the countess received me cordially, although I may have been the straw which threatened to break the camel's back, inasmuch as the house already contained a dozen strangers, and it looked as if Mrs. Toistoi was keeping a boarding-house. At nine o'clock dinner was served, and I was led into the family dining-room, which is a large apartment where signs of luxury are not wanting. There are ancestral portraits upon the walls; a piano stands open and looks well used; there is a table covered by books and magazines, and then in the center the large dining table, around which gathers a host of people of strange faces and forms, with unpronounceable names, and some with undiscovered histories. The countess sat at the head of the table. To the left sat the count, and before him a kettle containing his favorite kasha—the coarsest kind of peasant's food. He helped himself from this freely, and somewhat carelessly, as a man might who eats kasha 365 times in the year. I sat next to the count.

"Two servants waited on the table. The meat was of the Hamburg-steak variety. The count never eats meat; kasha and two eggs constituted his dinner. It must be over 20 years since he has eaten meat, and probably longer than that since he has tasted liquor or smoked tobacco.

"There was much animated conversation, jolly laughter and good-natured joking, and the serious seemed to be banished, for we ate, drank and were merry, and I forgot that I was sitting close to a man with whom I had tried to settle the affairs of the universe just a short hour ago."

QUAINT AND CURIOUS.

An order from South Africa for 18,000 8-horse power plows has been received by a plow manufacturer in the United States.

The owners of the canalboats in Holland practically spend their whole lives on them. The father of the family is usually the captain, the sons and daughters the sailors.

"Skipping teas," to which guests of both sexes and all ages must bring their own skipping ropes, are mentioned in the columns of the Lady, a London fashion paper. Skipping is to be the fashionable "cure."

The Earle railroad has adopted a novel car for accident emergencies. It is equipped to render medical aid whenever needed along the road at a moment's notice. A doctor and attendants are constantly in charge.

According to the most authoritative estimates, there are now about 700,000 Jews in New York, the total population of which in 1903, as estimated by the census bureau, was 3,716,139. Perhaps the Jews may be about one-fifth of the present population.

Officers of the Pueblo and Beulah Valley railway, an electric line 17 miles long, which has just been completed, have adopted a new system whereby passengers over the road will pay according to the weight instead of by the mile, as usual. Passengers will step upon scales at the ticket office, and will be charged so much a pound.

In Japan the well-to-do have almost always in their houses one room called the "chamber of the inspiring view." Its essential is a beautiful view, but taste is catholic in Japan, and the delightful view may be a blossoming cherry tree, a glimpse of a river, a miniature garden or only the newly fallen snow. In this delightful country they get up parties to visit the maple trees in the glory of autumn color, or the fresh, untrodden snow, as in this country one gives theatre parties and dinners.

A Test of Quick Memory.

Competitors for positions in the German civil service will, according to a Berlin newspaper, have soon to go through a rather novel examination conducted somewhat on the lines of a medical examination for physical fitness. This is a test of quick memory. The examiner will recite to the competitor a speech or poem and ask him to repeat as much of it as the competitor can from memory. If the examiner happens to be gifted with powers of rapid speech it may be difficult for any candidate to qualify for to do this he must be able to repeat a quarter of what has been recited.

The Rev. David R. Kerr, D.D. has accepted the presidency of Westminster college at Fulton, Mo.

BOY FIEND POMEROY.

He Has Read Steadily For Twenty-five Years in His Prison Cell.

If Jesse Pomeroy, the boy murderer in Charlestown prison, the juvenile fiend incarnate of 1876 be released from custody to-day he would come forth one of the most thoroughly read men of his age in Boston or in the world, so far as English literature is concerned. Since September 17, 1876, the date he entered prison, until now, he has spent almost the whole of his time, when not sleeping or eating, in reading. He has had access to the prison library, and has perused everything from the lightest novel up to the choicest classic.

When condemned to life imprisonment he was extremely illiterate. Although a pervert, he possessed a brain which was otherwise above the average.

His thinking faculties were sharp, shrewd and quick. Over twenty-four years spent in a prison cell has not dimmed them. To-day, at the age of forty-one, he is just as active mentally as he was when as a youth he concocted the crimes which startled the country.

"He does no work whatever except that which is necessary to keep his cell clean," said Warden Bridges. "Most prisoners doing solitary want employment. They make unique canes and curios to keep their minds employed, but Pomeroy is different. All he wants is books, and he devours them with the greatest avidity.

"Life-time prisoners who are not condemned to solitary confinement usually die before they have spent a quarter of a century in prison, and the average convict becomes mentally queer after eight or ten years behind the bars.

"Pomeroy is a phenomenon. He is to-day hale, hearty and of sound mind, barring his homicidal mania. He is quiet and tractable, but we always keep a sharp eye on him, for he is deep and crafty.

"He eats and sleeps well. The majority of people imagine that he is confined in a little four by eight cell, but that is a mistake. His quarters are commodious, well furnished and supplied with two windows."

Pomeroy confidently expects to receive a pardon, and frequently talks to his guards about it when his food is passed in to him.—Boston Post.

One of the street decorations in San Francisco during the Masonic meeting was a bell formed of 7,000 electric lights, strung from a crown of steel to a great ring, the crown and ring also being studded with incandescent bulbs. It was suspended fifty feet in the air over the street. The top was 175 feet from the ground and the ring was 150 feet in circumference. Shining down from the inside of the crown was a plate on which were a crown and cross and the motto, "In Hoc Signo Vinces," done in multicolored lights. The bell, which is said to have been the greatest piece of electrical illuminative work ever constructed, weighed six and one-half tons.

The eight largest diamonds in the world are what are known as crown jewels. Some of them are in an uncut state, and others are carefully cut and finished, so that there is a wide difference in their value. The Kohinoor, the smallest in weight, has been thus reduced by cutting, and is much the most valuable of the lot and has been estimated at less than $500,000. The list is as follows: The Braganza, part of the Portugal jewels, weighs 1880 carats; Kohinoor, belonging to the English crown, 103 carats; Star of Brazil, 125 carats; Austrian Kaiser, 139 carats; Russian Czar, 193 carats; Rajah of Borneo, 367 carats.

The Manu group of islands has been ceded to the United States by the king of Manu and his chiefs. This is the result of the fair rule of Tutuila by the Manu chiefs refused to cede the islands when the group was divided among the three powers. The Manu group are small islands, about seventy-five miles east of Tutuila. The population is less than 1,500.

In Armenia children are not allowed to play with dolls. It is feared that if this were permitted the little ones would learn to worship them as idols.

Many old houses in Holland have a special door, which is never opened save on two occasions—when there is a marriage or a death in the family.

The custom of marrying girls when they are mere children of 9 or 10 years is increasing rather than decreasing in Bengal and other parts of India. The resulting racial degradation is becoming so obvious that laws have been passed in several regions forbidding the marriage of girls under fourteen.

It is said that whenever Andrew Carnegie has in mind the gift of another library he first asks his wife's advice. If she approves, the donation is made. Mrs. Carnegie was Miss Louise Whitfield, of New York, and she married the iron king in 1887. They have one child, Margaret.

Since the use of wire fences has become so extensive the number of cattle killed each year by lightning has greatly increased.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

Example is more efficacious than precept.—Johnson.

Nothing is more disgraceful than insincerity.—Cicero.

To those whose god is honor, disgrace alone is sin.—A. W. Hare.

Courtesy is a duty public servants owe to the humblest member of society.—Lord Lyttelton.

The highest order that was ever instituted on earth is the order of faith.—Henry Ward Beecher.

There is no great achievement that is not the result of patient working and waiting.—J. G. Holland.

The silence of a friend commonly amounts to treachery. His not daring to say anything in our behalf implies but a tacit censure.—Hazlitt.

The flower of civilization is the finished man, the man of sense, of grace, of accomplishment, of social power—the gentleman.—Emerson.

There is a healthful hardiness about real dignity that never dreads contact and communion with others, however humble.—Washington Irving.

An All-British Pacific Cable.

The new all-British Pacific cable has been definitely decided upon, and a tender of $8,985,000 for furnishing and laying the same accepted. The cable will be 7000 miles in all. The longest link, approximately 3500 miles, will be the longest single section in the world. The route taken by this new cable from Canada to Queensland, will be via Fanning Island, Fiji and Norfolk Islands, but the exact route will be kept secret in order to enhance the difficulty of cable-cutters in war time. As a matter of fact the cable is being laid with the idea of affording greater security to Great Britain and her colonies in times of war by ensuring uninterrupted cable communication by means of a cable touching only at British ports. It will be laid largely in deep water, and is to be completed before the end of 1902.

Mississippi appropriates $200,000 annually to her veterans, and South Carolina gives a like sum each year. The appropriation in Louisiana is but $75,000 a year, in Arkansas it is $55,000. Texas votes to the veterans $250,000 a year. Florida sets aside a tax of one mill to the pension fund. Tennessee pensions her old soldiers and maintains a soldiers' home.

The gambling propensities of the Russians are indicated by the fact that more than $1,500,000 is spent in Russia for playing cards. The Tsaritsa Maria charitable institutions have a monopoly of the manufacture and they make a large profit, as the production costs only about $250,000.

M. Dubois, of Paris, shows that it is possible by means of Roentgen rays to examine the living oyster without in any way injuring it and to ascertain whether or not it contains a pearl. If it contains only a tiny pearl the oyster is returned and is allowed to live until the disease has developed a large pearl.

Near Manantoddy, India, a man while sitting in his compound with a striped blanket wrapped around his body, was mistaken for a tiger by another man, an inmate of his own house, and shot dead on the spot.

Mexican scientists have proved that a huge cypress tree, standing in Chepultepec, with a trunk 118 feet and 10 inches in circumference, is about 6,200 years old.

In 1903 Georgia paid to her pensioners $857,415. Since 1865 she has paid them over eight million dollars. There are over fifteen thousand enrolled pensioners.

The most frequented lake in Europe is the Lake of Lucerne; last year 20 steamboats plied on it and carried 1,529,000 passengers and over one thousand tons of baggage and freight.

A diamond ring valued at $150, which was lost in Great Barrington, Mass., fourteen years ago, was unearthed by chickens vigorously scratching in the soil recently.

Until lately the automobile made slow progress in Australia, but this season a decided increase in the number in use has taken place.

The home of the Oraibi branch of the Moqui Indians is a mesa 500 feet high, upon which the old Indians practice the snake dance and other favorite ceremonies of the tribe.

The canine population of Ireland is not far short of half a million, according to a return just issued.

Kissing of sacred pictures has been stopped in Mexico to avoid spreading of contagious diseases.

In the past thirty years Italy has sent more than 2,000,000 persons to the United States.

There is a shortage reported in the cranberry crop this year.

Senator M. A. Hanna left an estate valued at $2,914,500.

To Prevent Tuberculosis in Germany.

The German Department of the Interior has issued a set of instructions conveying compulsory precautions to be taken against the spread of tuberculosis in the empire. The instructions consist of seven articles, providing that doctors, under all circumstances where their patients have lung or larynx tuberculosis, must give written notice to the police as soon as the case in question has been diagnosed; that immediately after the death of a person from this form of the disease the room he used and his effects must be thoroughly disinfected; professional women who lay out the dead must report at once in writing to the police authorities whether the disease was of the lungs or larynx; and that keepers of hotels, lodging houses, asylums or other public institutions shall report immediately the appearance of the disease in the establishment under their control. Non-compliance with these regulations is subject to a fine of $35.70 or six weeks' imprisonment.—Medical News.

Miss Rose Peterson, Secretary Parkdale Tennis Club, Chicago, from experience advises all young girls who have pains and sickness peculiar to their sex, to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many beautiful young girls develop into worn, listless and hopeless women, simply because sufficient attention has not been paid to their physical development. No woman is exempt from physical weakness and periodic pain, and young girls just budding into womanhood should be carefully guided physically as well as morally. Another woman,

Miss Hannah E. Mershon, Collingswood, N.J., says:

"I thought I would write and tell you that, by following your kind advice, I feel like a new person. I was always thin and delicate, and so weak that I could hardly do anything. Menstruation was irregular.

"I tried a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and began to feel better right away. I continued its use, and am now well and strong, and menstruate regularly. I cannot say enough for what your medicine did for me."
—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure any woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, and kidney troubles.

Am. 40, 1904.

THE STRAIN OF WORK.

Best of Backs Give Out Under the Burden of Daily Toil.

Lieutenant George G. Warren, of No. 3 Chemical, Washington, D. C., says: "It's an honest fact that Doan's Kidney Pills did me a great lot of good, and if it were not true I would not recommend them. It was the strain of lifting that brought on kidney trouble and weakened my back, but since using Doan's Kidney Pills I have lifted 600 pounds and felt no bad effects. I have not felt the trouble come back since, although I had suffered for five or six years, and other remedies had not helped me at all."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Thirty or forty years ago what one may call the public supply of toothpicks was unknown. Every gentleman carried one in his pocket, of gold or silver if he could afford it, one made of a goose quill if he could not afford the other, but it was not the practice to use it until after one had left the table.

Boston university has issued a circular inviting opinions on a proposal to hold an international conference for the purpose of adopting a "universal alphabet" by which to indicate the pronunciation of words in the leading European languages.

Avery & Company

SUCCESSORS TO AVERY & McMILLAN,
51-53 South Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.
—ALL KINDS OF—
MACHINERY
Reliable Frick Engines, Boilers, all Sizes. Wheat Separators.

BEST IMPROVED SAW MILL ON EARTH.
Large Engines and Boilers supplied promptly. Shingle Mills, Corn Mills, Circular Saws, Saw Teeth, Patent Dogs, Steam Governors, Full line Engines & Mill Supplies. Send for free Catalogue.

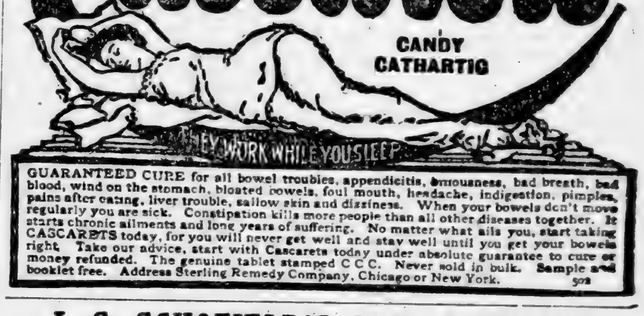
THE HESSLER

RURAL MAIL BOX

Best and cheapest Rural Mail Box on the Market. Fully approved by Postmaster General. Big profits for agents. We want an agent in every town. Send your Postmaster's address free for application. Agents wanted large, strong, low and a man's price. H. E. Hessler Co., P.O. Box B443, Syracuse, N.Y.

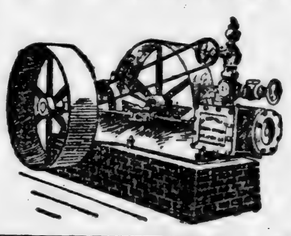
HoMoreBlindHorses For Specific Ophthalmia Moon Blindness & other Sore Eyes. Barry Co., Iowa City, Ia., have a sure cure.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC



GUARANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, appendicitis, drowsiness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, pains after eating, liver trouble, sallow skin and dizziness. When your bowels don't move regularly you are sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It starts chronic ailments and long years of suffering. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS today, for you will never get well and stay well until you get your bowels right. Take our advice, start with Cascarets today under absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Never sold in bulk. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York. 502

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS COMPANY



MANUFACTURERS
High Pressure Return Tubular Boilers
Morison Internally Fired Boilers
High Grade Slide Valve Engines
Transmission Machinery
Heavy Castings
Wrought Iron and Steel Work
Tanks, Stacks and Stand Pipes
Heavy Pipe Work a Specialty
Address Machinery Department
MACON, GEORGIA.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3.50 SHOES
UNION MADE.

W. L. Douglas makes and sells more $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world. The reason W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the world is because of their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. If I could show you the difference between the shoes made in my factory and those of other makes and the high-grade leathers used, you would understand why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater intrinsic value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day, and why the sales for the year ending July 1, 1904, were $6,263,040.00.

W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom. Look for it—take no substitute. Sold by shoe dealers everywhere. Fast Color Eyelets used Exclusively.

Superior in Fit, Comfort and Wear.

"I have worn W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes for the last twelve years with absolute satisfaction. I find them superior in fit, comfort and wear to others costing from $5.00 to $6.00."
R. S. McCUE, Dept. Coll., U.S. Int. Revenue, Richmond, Va.

W. L. Douglas uses Corona Coltskin in his $3.50 shoes. Corona Colt is conceded to be the finest Patent Leather made.

SEND FOR CATALOGUE GIVING FULL INSTRUCTIONS HOW TO ORDER BY MAIL.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

Plantation Chill Cure is Guaranteed
To Cure, or money refunded by your merchant, so why not try it? Price $.50

SCHOOL CHILDREN

Killed in a Horrible Disaster. Weak Floor Precipitates Them into a Vault.

THE SCHOOL HOUSE A MORGUE.

Buildings Pronounced Secure Only Two Weeks Ago—Distressing Scenes.

During recess of the public school at Pleasant Ridge, Ohio, a number of children lost their lives. When school recessed there was a playful rush into the outhouse, which gave way, precipitating about twenty children into the vault.

At 11:30 a. m. nine bodies had been recovered. At that hour an estimate of those missing placed the number of those who had fallen into the vault at twenty-five. It was said the joists under the flooring gave way and precipitated all who were inside at the time.

The population of the village soon surrounded the school grounds, and people were flocking into the town from the surrounding country. The excitement was intensified by complaints of parents against the school officers, who said the building and grounds were inspected before the opening of school two weeks ago. Doctors attended such children as were rescued alive.

A distressing scene was witnessed as the search for the bodies was continued.

BLOOMING MILL ACCIDENT.

Results in Death of Two Men Scalded by Steam.

An accident in the blooming mill department of the Ensley steel works resulted in the loss of two lives. Cyrus Leck, Jr., a young man about 19 years old, was burned so badly by escaping steam that he died. The other man who lost his life was a negro named John Thomas, who has been an employe of the steel works for a number of years.

Thomas was not employed in the immediate vicinity of the place where the accident occurred, but was passing through the building, and it is claimed by several who were present at the time that the negro lost his life in a futile attempt to rescue Cyrus Leck. The men were terribly burned and scalded all over their bodies, and both of them were internally burned from having to inhale the terrific blast of steam before they were rescued. The accident happened without a moment's warning, and after the excitement was over it was discovered that a connection near the bottom of an upright boiler had blown out, which allowed an immense amount of steam to escape.

Told Tales Out of School.

At Florence, Judge E. B Almon, of the circuit court, sprung a great sensation when he called the grand jury into court and charged them with divulging the secrets of the jury room. He said he had intended receiving the report of the foreman Saturday last and discharging the jury, but when he reached Florence, he had found the streets full of rumors to the effect that two members of the grand jury had held a meeting with outsiders who had prepared a typewritten report on matters before the jury. He called their attention to the oath they had taken and said if the rumors were true they should be indicted. He said he had at first intended investigating the matter himself, but on mature consideration had decided to refer it to the grand jurors themselves.

Free Thinkers.

The congress of Free Thinkers decided to meet in Paris in 1905 and in 1906 at Beunos Ayres for North and South Americans and Barcelona for Europeans, although the Spaniards in attendance at the present congress expressed the fear that the Madrid government will forbid the meeting.

Saw His Father Killed.

William Cummins, Sr., an old man 70 years of age, was struck by a switch engine on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway at Guntsville. He was knocked down the embankment and so badly injured that he died a few hours later.

William Cummins, Jr., the old gentleman's son, is a brakeman and was on the engine. He saw his father and realized that he could not hear the engine approaching from behind, as he was very deaf, but the son could not stop the engine before it struck Mr. Cummins. The old man sustained internal injuries. He is survived by a widow.

Miners Refuse Terms.

The miners of district No. 19, United Mine Workers, have voted against the acceptance of the operators' proposal to reduce the wage scale about 2 per cent. The official count of the vote is 1,649 votes against acceptance and 549 1-2 votes in favor of acceptance. Of the subordinate unions in the district thirty voted against acceptance and twelve in favor.

Mississippi has had 569 killings in the last eight months.

ARCHBISHOP'S TRAIN

Collided with Engine—Bad Wreck, but No Fatalities.

A special train conveying the archbishop of Canterbury from Bar Harbor, Me., to Washington, was wrecked on the Boston and Albany division of the New York Central road. The archbishop was not injured, although considerably shaken up.

J. P. Morgan, of New York, who was also on the train, accompanying the archbishop, was shaken up, but not hurt.

The special was running sixty miles per hour, and was just passing the station at East Brookfield, Mass., when a detached locomotive which had been drawing a train on the North Brookfield branch ran upon the main line for some reason unexplained. The engineer of the special sighted a danger signal, but on account of the high speed of the train and the slippery condition of the rails due to the mist of the early morning, he found it impossible to do more than slightly reduce the speed of the locomotive. The engineer of the branch engine heard the onrush of the special, but he had no time to move out of the way.

The archbishop's train struck the North Brookfield engine with a terrific crash and demolished it. The other locomotive was thrown from the rails and landed across the east-bound track near the wreck of the North Brookfield engine. The cars did not leave the track.

PRESIDENT'S TRAIN

Meets with Accident—Was Running Slowly at the Time.

The president's train was delayed Thursday by an accident to the driving wheel of the locomotive as it entered the tunnel at Baltimore.

The train was proceeding at a very slow rate of speed when the accident occurred or the result might have been more serious. In some unaccountable manner the tire of a driving wheel broke and curled off. One end of it protruded upward and jammed through the boiler of the engine, causing an almost immediate snutting off of the steam.

The cause of the tire breaking, according to the railway officials, was quite inexplicable. The engine had been attached to the train just before leaving Philadelphia, and had been thoroughly tested and found to be in first-class condition. The accident, the railway officials say, is one of those which happen in spite of every precaution.

The accident is said to be the first which has happened to a train on which President Roosevelt has traveled during his administration.

LANE IS PRESIDENT.

Alabama Commercial and Industrial Association Meets.

With the election of officers the Alabama Commercial and Industrial association adjourned to meet next year at Decatur. Decatur was opposed by Selma for the next place of meeting, but on a vote Decatur secured the meeting by a large majority.

The officers elected were as follows: President, Charles P. Lane, Huntsville; vice presidents, first district, John Crafts, Mobile; second district, E. Burnett, Montgomery; third district, Charles Henderson, Troy; fourth district, blank; sixth district, R. P. Hobson, Greensboro; seventh district, C. P. Smith, Gadsden; eighth district, J. H. Edwards, Decatur; ninth district, E. J. Hudnall, Pratt City.

Before adjournment resolutions were adopted by the association indorsing good roads, compulsory education, deepening the channel of Mobile bay to 35 feet, the making of the Alabama river navigable from Mobile to the head waters and asking aid of congressmen in securing appropriations and for law and order occasioned by the recent outbreaks of mob violence.

Every commercial body in the state was represented at the association.

Signal Corps.

A new military company is being organized in Birmingham. It is to be a signal corps. A signal corps is practically the only branch of the service not represented in the Alabama national guard.

Chief Joseph Dead.

The death of Chief Joseph, of the Nez Perces, closes the career of one of the greatest figures in the early days of Indian campaigning in Montana.

Chief Joseph sprang into prominence as a result of a raid made by the Nez Perces under him in 1877 when, with about 200 of his followers, he went upon the warpath, massacreing the settlers in Willowa valley.

Chief Joseph's last battle was in the Bear Paw mountain, where he was trapped by General Nelson A. Miles. It was this battle that brought General Miles prominently before the public.

New Banks.

The comptroller of the currency has approved the application to organize the First National bank of Alexander City, with $35,000 capital; also, the application to organize the First National bank of Sylacauga, with $25,000 capital.

Residence Burns.

The residence of A. M. McGehee, one mile from Seale, burned Thursday. Practically all the furniture was lost.

FAIRBANKS' LETTER

Accepting Formally the Republican Nomination for the Vice-Presidency.

DEFENDS ROOSEVELT'S RECORD.

Reviews Party History and Administration—His Words on Tariff and Trade.

The letter of United States Senator Charles W. Fairbanks accepting the republican nomination for the vice presidency is in part as follows:

The convention did well in its hearty commendation of the administration of President Roosevelt. This is sharply challenged by the opposition. We accept the issue with confidence. The president assumed the responsibilities of chief executive with a pledge to carry out the policy of his beloved and lamented predecessor. He kept the cabinet of President McKinley, composed of statesmen of eminent ability, in whom the country placed entire confidence. He carried forward the uncompleted work faithfully and successfully. The pledge has been kept scrupulously; the promise has been fulfilled. Peace and good order have been maintained. Domestic and foreign trade have increased and relations of amity have been preserved with foreign powers.

The foreign policy of the administration has been conservative, just and firm, and has made for the advancement of peace. Time and events have given us a larger place in international affairs.

Thirty treaties have been concluded and proclaimed and stand to the credit of the administration. Among the number are the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, superseding the Clayton-Bulwer convention, which stood in the way of the construction of an isthmian canal; the Panama canal treaty, the Alaskan boundary treaty and commercial treaties with China and with Cuba.

Events in the far east suggest the wisdom and necessity of a continuance of the present foreign policy. We have maintained exact neutrality between Russia and Japan.

The convention wisely declared in favor of "protection which guards and develops our industries," and that "the measure of protection should at least equal the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad."

This principle was embodied in the platform of the convention which first nominated Abraham Lincoln, and it has continued to be one of the cardinal doctrines of the republican party during the forty-four years which have elapsed since then. It has become incorporated into the public law, and has become the foundation of our industrial system. It has been regarded by the republican party as a reasonable and appropriate exercise of the legislative power when imposing duties upon imports to discriminate in favor of American industries.

The democratic convention denounced "protection as a robbery of the many to enrich the few," and favored a "revision and gradual reduction of the tariff."

The issue is thus distinctly made. It is by no means a new one, for while the republican party has uniformly adhered to the policy of protection, the democratic party has been consistent in its opposition. It has held to the doctrine of a revenue tariff and during all the years of the contest has maintained that the protective system was opposed to good morals, in contravention of the constitution and in violation of sound economics. The objections which are now urged against it are only a repetition of those which have found utterance for many years.

History abundantly shows that the greatest industrial development of the country has occurred during the period when the protective tariff has been maintained and that during this time labor has received its largest rewards and capital has been most profitably engaged.

The development of the country during the last forty-four years is a complete vindication of the virtue and efficiency of a protective system.

The convention very properly declared it "to be the duty of the republican party to uphold the gold standard." There is no more important duty than to maintain the stability and the character of the money of the people. The republican party has been essentially the guardian of the financial credit of the country, and the steadfast supporter of sound currency.

When the insurrection occurred upon the isthmus, the president safeguarded American interests. He acted promptly, but deliberately; prudently, not rashly; firmly, not unlawfully. He usurped no authority. He only exercised that executive power which is clearly vested in him by the constitution.

The development of trade with the orient promises to absorb the increased production of cereals in the far west, so as to leave the market conditions on the Atlantic seaboard undisturbed. The settlement of the present unproductive regions will open a new market for the manufacturers of the east.

EXTRA SESSION.

Considerable Talk Indulged at Montgomery About It.

The prospects of the legislature being called to the capitol for an unexpected meeting lie with the supreme court, which will come together in special session Thursday to pass upon the decision of the Hon. J. C. Carmichael, chancellor of the northwestern division, that the Lusk judiciary act did not, in a legal sense, pass at all; that there is no such law because the bills purporting to establish it were never regularly accepted and adopted by the two houses.

The lawyers of the state in large measure expect to see Chancellor Carmichael sustained. Attorney General Massey Wilson, however, takes the position that the bill has a show. He thinks there is enough of legality to make it hold.

COMMISSARY BURNED.

Lacey-Buck Co. Suffers Loss Supposed to be Incendiary.

The large commissary store of the Lacey-Buck Iron company at Cruduo, where this company operates the largest and best ore mines in the Gadsden district, was burned Sunday morning.

The building was a frame structure 40 by 80 feet and was filled with a large stock of goods. All effort to save the property was useless, as there was no means of extinguishing the flames. The stock was valued at $15,000 with $8,000 insurance. So far there is no clue to the origin, but it is supposed to be incendiary.

GROOM IS DEAD.

Was Fatally Hurt Three Days Before Wedding.

D. M. Pierson, a wealthy lumber man of Walterboro, S. C., while about to assist his prospective bride from a street car, lost his balance and fell, his head striking the pavement with such force that he became unconscious, dying later. He was to have been married Wednesday.

In what was to have been his wedding suit he was buried.

Eucharistic Congress.

One of the most notable gatherings of the Roman Catholic episcopacy and clergy ever held in this country, the third Eucharistic congress of the United States, which began its sessions Tuesday in St. Patrick's cathedral, New York.

Bishop Maes, of Covington, Ky., will preside over the approaching congress, which will be attended by a large majority of the 4,200 members of the Priests' Eucharistic League throughout the United States. The congress will close with great pomp, which will include a pontifical high mass, sermon and a procession of clergymen and laymen about the grounds of the cathedral in Fifth avenue. The pope will be represented at the congress by the apostolic delegate, Monsignor Falconio.

Coke.

Alabama produced last year 2,693,497 tons of coke, while West Virginia turned out 2,707,818 tons. The figures might be transposed this year were it not for our coal strike. Pennsylvania leads in this product.

Alabama had at the end of 1903 ovens to the number of 8,674, in which 4,483,942 tons of coal were turned into coke. The average value of coke last year in this state was $2.83. There are in round numbers 80,000 coke ovens in the country, one half of which are located in Pennsylvania.

Pay Coming.

Colonel Walter Weaver, paymaster general of the Mississippi national guard, has sent official notice to the commanding officers of the three regiments composing the organizations that the pay vouchers for the troops who participated in the encampment at Biloxi during the month of August will be sent out in a few days.

More Equipment.

It is reported that the Central of Georgia railroad is soon to let the contract for furnishing eight passenger and two combination coaches. Considerable new rolling stock is being purchased by the Central.

New Railroad.

It is reported from Greenville, Miss., that a short line known as the Delta Southern is to be constructed in that state.

New Cars.

Specifications are being asked for by the Louisville and Nashville railroad for one thousand coal cars, which will be built in the shops of the company.

Killed by Lightning.

During a severe rain and thunder storm in Tuscumbia and Sheffield, George Witherspoon, a well-known young man of the latter place, was struck and instantly killed by a bolt of lightning.

New Hotel.

The contract for the new Exchange hotel, Montgomery, was let to Nicholas Ittner, of Atlanta, at a price approximating $250,000. Work is to begin at once and the building is to be finished by October 1, 1905.

University Burned Out.

The main building of the University of Minnesota burned Saturday, entailing a loss of $125,000; fully insured.

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

Louisville & Nashville R. R.

Read Down — CENTRAL TIME.

AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2	N
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58	....	5
7 15	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....	5
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42	....	5
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17	....	5
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 11	....	5
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
For rates and further information address

A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala.

A Great Combination Offer

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival.

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the world you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming months.

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper, the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.

SHOES that are Reliable.

SHOES made to Wear.

NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Ala.

Now is The Time to Place an Ad in This Paper

Gelder's Restaurant

Good Meals at Reasonable Prices

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Pure Water Prevents Fever

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER

We guarantee water or no charge. Estimates given. Address

I. E. SARBER

Thorsby, Alabama.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE FERTILIZERS FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Brand "Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES

Clanton, - - - Ala.

THE

VOL. II.

COMMUNICATION Can Now Be Had With Port Arthur. It is Completely Blockaded.

CRUISER BAYAN NOT ESCAPED

Japanese Have Tunnelled Into Port Arthur and Are Increasing Their War Strength.

Small outpost fights constitute the sum of the activities reported from the vicinity of Mukden. The Japanese blockade of Port Arthur is so effective that General Stoessel has been unable to inform the war office at St. Petersburg of the situation there.

The report of the arrival of the Russian armored cruiser Bayan, of the Port Arthur squadron at Han Chau bay, near Shanghai, has no official confirmation.

Artillery conflicts are adding to the horrors of the situation at Port Arthur. On September 22 and 23 the Russians made sorties against positions held by the Kanagawa regiment, and desperate fighting ensued. The Japanese force was practically annihilated, only one non-commissioned officer and eleven men remaining alive out of the 4,000 who went into the engagement.

The Japanese tunnel into Port Arthur was completed on September 24 and was immediately used. The result is unknown.

A dispatch from Mukden states merely that all is quiet there. There is intense interest in developments at Mukden, but the public and apparently the authorities also are utterly in the dark as to what is transpiring.

The Japanese are active west of Mukden. The Russian cavalry forces are strong in that direction: their horses are in splendid condition and the roads are good. The Japanese are also active eastward, and have been reinforced.

PARK COMMISSION.

Makes a Report—Monument to be Erected.

The war department made public the report of the Vicksburg National Military Park commission, consisting of William T. Rigby, Stephen D. Lee and James Everett. The report says that foundations have been constructed for the Thirty-ninth Ohio regimental and battery monuments, which will be placed in position within a few months.

The Iowa commission has signed a contract for the construction of its memorial in the park at a cost of $100,000. The Illinois commission has arranged for the construction of a state memorial to cost $200,000.

The commission has approved the request of the Pennsylvania commission to place its monument on a tract of land adjoining the General Grant reservation on the north, the land embracing 2.59 acres, to be purchased by the Pennsylvania commission and deeded to the United States. An estimate of $150,000 is made for the necessary expenses by the commission for the next fiscal year, and it is suggested that the appropriation be made immediately available to meet existing conditions.

Statesman Dead.

Sir William Carmon Harcourt, former chancellor of the exchequer and secretary of the home office, died Saturday. His death means to England the loss of another old school statesman. Sir William, in the time of Gladstone's power, was one of the best known figures in British political life, and was often mentioned as the probable successor of Gladstone.

Cotton Crop Percentage.

The monthly report of the chief of the bureau of statistics of the department of agriculture will show the average condition of cotton on September 25th to have been 75.8 as compared with 84.1 last month, 65.1 on September 25, 1902, and a ten year average of 66.8.

At Thomas.

Two of the furnaces at Thomas are in full blast, the coke ovens are also in operation and it is understood that preparations will soon be commenced to put No. 1 in condition to have the torch applied. No. 2 furnace has been in operation for several weeks. Two weeks ago preparations were begun to start up No. 3, and now that plant is turning out daily output.

All five of the batteries of coke ovens, comprising over one hundred, are in operation. It is understood that shortly a force of workmen will be put on No. 1 to do considerable repairing and improving on that plant.

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

ville & Nashville R.

CENTRAL TIME.

PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2	N
10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7
18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6
..	Jemison	8 58	....	5
..	Thorsby	8 51	....	5
..	Lomax	8 42	....	5
03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5
..	Cooper	8 17	....	5
..	Verbena	8 11	....	5
..	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5
25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4

leeping Cars Dining Cars.
her information address

INSON, Agent, Clanton, Al

t Combination Of

will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

uis Globe-Democ

WITH

The Union

FOR

Papers One Year Only

uis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-W or more, every Tuesday and Friday. n Politics and has no equal or rival t Modern Newspaper. all the news of the World's Fair, all the campaign, and all the news of all the he Globe-Democrat during the comin

OW IS THE TIME.

To-Day and get your best home pap Newspaper of the World's Fair City

Address

Union, Clanton, Ala

My Specialty..

of Leather.

S that are Reliable.

SHOES made to Wear.

NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

s, Groceries, Flour and

uffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

y Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

ffice Building. Clanton, A s The Time to P

Ad in This Pa

ler's Restaura

Meals at Reasonable P

110 North 20th Street,

IRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Water Prevents Fev

WELLS FURNISH PURE W

arantee water or no charge given. Address

I. E. SARBER

oy, Alabama.

L MERCHANDISE

FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Special & Mule B

Are the Best on Earth'

. C. JONES

A

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL II. CLANTON, ALA., OCTOBER 6, 1904. NO. 28.

D COMMUNICATION

n Now Be Had With Port Arthur. It is Completely Blockaded.

RUISER BAYAN NOT ESCAPED

panese Have Tunnelled Into Port Arthur and Are Increasing Their War Strength.

Small outpost fights constitute the m of the activities reported from the inity of Mukden. The Japanese ckade of Port Arthur is so effective t General Stoessel has been unable inform the war office at St. Peters- rg of the situation there.

The report of the arrival of the Rus- n armored cruiser Bayan, of the rt Arthur squadron at Han Chau r, near Shanghai, has no official con- mation.

Artillery conflicts are adding to the rrors of the situation at Port Ar- ur. On September 22 and 23 the ssians made sorties against posi- ns held by the Kanagawa regiment, d desperate fighting ensued. The panese force was practically anni- ated, only one non-commissioned of- er and eleven men remaining alive t of the 4,000 who went into the en- agement.

The Japanese tunnel into Port Ar- ur was completed on September 24 d was immediately used. The result unknown.

A dispatch from Mukden states merc- y that all is quiet there. There is tense interest in developments at ukden, but the public and apparent- the authorities also are utterly in e dark as to what is transpiring.

The Japanese are active west of ukden. The Russian cavalry forces e strong in that direction; their orses are in splendid condition and e roads are good. The Japanese are lso active eastward, and have been re- nforced.

PARK COMMISSION.

kes a Report—Monument to be Erected.

The war department made public the port of the Vicksburg National Mili- ry Park commission, consisting of illiam T. Rigby, Stephen D. Lee and mes Everett. The report says that undations have been constructed for e Thirty-ninth Ohio regimental and ttery monuments, which will be aced in position within a few months. The Iowa commission has signed a ntract for the construction of its morial in the park at a cost of $100,- 00. The Illinois commission has ar- nged for the construction of a state morial to cost $200,000.

The commission has approved the quest of the Pennsylvania commis- n to place its monument on a tract land adjoining the General Grant servation on the north, the land em- acing 2.59 acres, to be purchased by e Pennsylvania commission and ded to the United States. An esti- te of $150,000 is made for the neces- y expenses by the commission for e next fiscal year, and it is suggested at the appropriation be made imme- ately available to meet existing con- ctions.

Statesman Dead.

Sir William Carmon Harcourt, for- er chancellor of the exchequer and cretary of the home office, died Sat- day. His death means to England e loss of another old school states- an. Sir William, in the time of ladstone's power, was one of the best own figures in British political life, d was often mentioned as the prob- le successor of Gladstone.

Cotton Crop Percentage.

The monthly report of the chief of e bureau of statistics of the depart- nt of agriculture will show the av- ge condition of cotton on September to have been 75.8 as compared th 84.1 last month, 65.1 on Septem- r 25, 1902, and a ten year average 66.9.

At Thomas.

Two of the furnaces at Thomas are full blast, the coke ovens are also operation and it is understood that eparations will soon be commenced put No. 1 in condition to have the rnish applied. No. 2 furnace has been operation for several weeks. Two eeks ago preparations were begun to art up No. 3, and now that plant is oming out daily output.

All five of the batteries of coke vens, comprising over one hundred, e in operation. It is understood that tly a force of workmen will be on No. 1 to do considerable re- ring and improving on that plant.

SHOT BROTHER-IN-LAW.

Tragedy at Greenville—Family Trouble the Cause.

Radford Buckhaults, one of the best known citizens of Butler county, and a wealthy farmer, was instantly killed Saturday afternoon by Dan T. Stallings. The tragedy occurred just about dusk in front of the Elk hotel in Greenville. Family trouble is thought to have been the cause.

Statements as to how the quarrel began differ. It is certain, however, that there had been previous bad blood between the two. Buckhaults is said to have drawn a pistol and aimed it at Stallings, the cartridge snapping. Mr. Stallings then drew his gun and fired, the bullets striking their mark.

Buckhaults returned the fire, sending one shot through the abdomen of Mr. Stallings. He fell dead almost immediately after firing.

The killing occurred in the most public portion of the town and created intense excitement.

Both the parties are among the best known citizens of the county. Buckhaults had married Stallings' sister about a year ago. He owned a large plantation near here and his estate is valued at about $30,000. Mr. Stallings was also well to do. He is also married. His condition is critical.

Stallings was hit with only one ball. It probably passed through both lungs and is considered very serious.

Both are comparatively young men, both physically powerful athletes. No better specimens of physical manhood are in the county. Both were married.

Each of them were farmers and doing excellently well. Buckhaults had just sold some cotton and had about $1,500 in his pocket when killed.

HUNTSVILLE EXPENSES.

Small Fortune Spent in the Lynching Matter.

The term of circuit court just ended at Huntsville was the most historic and at the same time the longest ever held in Madison county. The court had three grand juries, the one that sat for three wektas shrdlu shrdluhm sat for three weeks at the beginning of the term, the one that sat for two days and indicted Horace Maples and Dennis Smith for murder and the famous grand jury that returned twenty-six indictments against alleged lynchers. Three regular murder cases were tried and one murderer, a negro, was sentenced to hang. This was the first sentence of death passed in Madison county in nineteen years. Three alleged lynchers were tried on the charge of murder and three on charges of arson in the first degree.

The first special grand jury cost $68, the trials of alleged lynchers cost $2,200, the jail damaged to the extent of $500 by the riot, so the county is out $3,056. The state spent $3,000 in round figures in rushing a company of militia here in the hope of preventing the lynching and later in maintaining a military guard around the jail for ten days. This does not include the cost of the military court of inquiry, so it may be safely estimated that the state and county will have to spend at least $6,500 before all expenses have been paid.

LITTLE GIRL CAUSES WRECK.

Placed a Bolt on Track to see the Train Mash It.

Detectives arrested Gussie Loving, 10-year-old white girl, at her home near Dunlow, W. Va., charged with wrecking a Norfolk and Western passenger train. The train was wrecked by striking a bolt nut placed on the rail.

The engine, baggage and mail car were derailed and went down an embankment. The engineer, fireman and mail clerk were all more or less injured, but none of the passengers were hurt. When arrested the girl admitted her guilt, and said she put the nut on the track "just for fun to see the train mash it."

After Oil.

The people of Clarke county, Mississippi, are rejoicing over the fact that efforts are going to be made in the neighborhood of Enterprise for the purpose of discovering oil. Several experts have made visits there and after making investigations have expressed the belief that oil can be obtained.

Guarding the Connecticut.

To guard against any further attempt from the outside to injure the battleship Connecticut, which has just been launcned at the navy yards in Brooklyn, after attempts to damage her had been frustrated, two marines with rifles patrol the land side of the boat, while on the boat itself are stationed guards with instructions to shoot if necessary. Electric lights at night are on the outside and the interior of the boat and there is no relaxation of vigilance.

A navy tug loaded with marines, with instructions to shoot straight at any unauthorized person attempting to approach the new battleship, patrols the river.

SENATOR HOAR DEAD.

The End Came Early Friday Morning. Funeral Will Be Held Monday.

UNCONSCIOUS SINCE TUESDAY.

Served in the Senate Many Years. Known as "America's Grand Old Man."

George Frisbie Hoar, senior United States senator from Massachusetts, died at his home in Worcester, Mass., at 1:35 o'clock Friday morning. The end followed a period of unconsciousness that had continued since early Tuesday, and came so gently that only the attending physicians were aware of the exact moment of dissolution.

The physicians despaired of the senator's life six weeks ago, but such was the vitality exhibited by their distinguished patient that even they were surprised and the public was at times led to cherish a faith in an ultimate recovery.

There were present at the bedside when death came the senator's son, General Rockwood Hoar; his daughter, Mary, and Dr. Warren R. Gilman, who for weeks had been in almost constant attendance upon the senator.

The senator had been in ill health since last winter, and even when attending the sessions of the senate he was obliged to take extreme care lest his exertions should overcome him. At that time he was troubled with lumbago, and the death of his wife in Washington proved such a blow that he never recovered entirely from its effects.

Toward the close of the last session of congress he was frequently absent from the sessions, and remained at his hotel.

He came to his home soon after the adjournment and apparently recovered. Late in May he attended the bi-centennial celebration in the town of Sutton and made a speech of more than a half hour's duration in the open air at the dedication of a memorial tablet to General Rufus Putnam on the site of Putnam's birthplace. Mr. Hoar made a historical address, eulogizing General Putnam as one of the country's greatest men.

A few weeks later Senator Hoar made an iuformal address at the English high school on the occasion of the presentation to the city of some copies of Stuart's portrait of Washington by the Daughters of the Revolution.

This was Senator Hoar's last appearance in public life.

Previous to August 17th the reports of his illness were treated lightly by his family and immediate friends. On one occasion, when a report was circulated that his condition was serious, he dictated a semi-humorous account of his illness.

Governor Bates during the day issued a proclamation announcing the death of the senator and paying tribute to his memory.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon from the Church of Unity, Rev. Edvard Everett Hale, chaplain of the United States senate, will be asked to officiate.

Mayo Reinstated.

Ex-Sheriff W. D. Mayo has been reappointed sheriff of Clay county by Acting Governor Cunningham. Mr. Mayo failed to file his new bond for the extended term as required by law. His office was therefore declared vacant. It developed that he had made out his new bond in the required time, but on account of erroneous advice by an attorney he failed to file it in time.

To Establish Creameries.

An effort is being made to establish dairies and creameries along the line of the Gulf and Ship Island railway in Mississippi, and Immigration Agent Bouslog of that railway is in correspondence with a large number of northern people to induce them to locate in the country between Hattiesburg and Gulfport.

School Tax Apportionment.

"Under the educational laws of the state how should the funds raised by a special school tax be apportioned?"

This was the question which the department of education submitted to Attorney General Massey Wilson.

The attorney general holds that the funds from a special school tax shall be apportioned as the general school funds. After a county has voted for a special school tax the tax collector collects it and he turns it over to the county superintendent. It shall then be divided among the school children in the way already from the general school fund is apportioned.

McCONNELL RESIGNS

Command of the Third Regiment of Alabama National Guard.

Lieutenant Colonel F. P. McConnell, commanding the Third infantry Alabama National Guard, has resigned. His resignation was received in the adjutant general's office at noon Tuesday and at 1 o'clock Adjutant General Brandon announced that it had been accepted by the governor, and that an election had been ordered for October 18th for the selection of a new commander.

The resignation, which was sent by Colonel McConnell from his home at Talladega, gave no reason for his retiring from the command of the Third. It is supposed that Colonel McConnell feels that his efforts to restore harmony have been unavailing. It is possible that the report of the court of inquiry on the Huntsville company which declared that company worthless and inefficient, had a bearing upon his action.

It will be recalled that Colonel McConnell at the close of the brigade camp at Birmingham recommended that this company and two others in the regiment be mustered out. This recommendation was not complied with.

OUR BIGGEST FIGHTER.

Battleship Conecticut Successfully Launched Thursday.

Although successfully launched Thursday the battleship Connecticut did not have the bottle of wine broken by Miss Alice B. Wells, who had been selected as sponsor for the ship. She threw the bottle at the bow, but it failed to break. Rear Admiral Rodgers attempted to grasp the bottle as it rebounded, but failed, and the ship was moving off into the water when a workman dashed the glass receptacle of the champagne against the side of the ship, shattering it to pieces, to the relief of the superstitious.

The Connecticut is a sister ship of the Louisiana, and both vessels were authorized by an act of congress in 1902. The Connecticut was built in a government yard and under government supervision, while the Louisiana was built by a private ship building firm at Newport News, Va.

The Connecticut when finished will be the finest and most powerful boat in the American navy and will rank with the most powerful battleships of the navies of other nations.

Document Issued.

The department of archives and history has issued as a bulletin a "History of the First Regiment, Alabama Volunteer Infantry, C. S. A." It was written by Edward Young McMorris, Ph. D., "a private of the Perota Guards, Company C, 1861, Company G 1862-1865; and an original member of both the company and regiment." It is dedicated "To the Soldiers, the Sailors and the Women of the Confederate States of America, and to Their Descendants Forever"

In a prefatory note by the director of the department of archives and history Dr. Thomas M. Owen, it is announced that the history was prepared at the request of the department, which is seeking to have provided a series of narrative histories or historical sketches of Alabama commands in the war.

Cigar Stamps Smaller.

The secretary of the treasury has issued a statement in the imported cigar stamped matter, in which he permits the order made by Assistant Armstrong to stand, so far as it relates to reducing the size of the stamp and to attaching it in a less conspicuous place on the box. He reverses the order wherein it required the stamp to be of the same color as the international revenue stamp, and it will be placed on the bottom of the box instead of the top, but at the end where it now appears opposite the internal revenue stamp.

Large Hospital.

The Mississippi sanitarium, which has been conducted in a private residence for several months past, since the burning of the former building has purchased a plot of land in the most elevated portion of Hattiesburg and will construct one of the largest and most modern hospitals in the state.

A Relic.

The old federal transport "Burnside," which was sunk during the operations about Chattanooga in the early sixties, was raised from the bed of the Tennessee river by recent high waters and landed on a shoal, where parts of the hulk and boilers are visible.

The boat was sunk while the men were attempting to transfer to it from a larger boat heavier engines than the Burnside was built to carry. She was never seen again until the high waters disturbed her. River men are getting the iron out of her.

COTTON OPENING

Is Now General and Picking is Quite Advanced.

The weather bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions is as follows:

The temperature conditions during the week ending October 3d have been generally favorable for maturing and harvesting late crops, although excessively warm in portions of Kansas and the southern states. There was practically no precipitation over the southern states.

Corn has experienced another week of favorable conditions, but frost was injurious in Wisconsin

With high temperature and practically no rain during the week in the cotton region, the staple has continued to open rapidly in all sections, prematurely in Georgia and Mississippi, and picking has progressed under favorable conditions. Complaints of scarcity of labor are still received from portions of central and eastern districts. Reports indicate that nearly all the cotton crop has been harvested in southern Georgia, Louisiana and southwestern Texas; 75 per cent in Florida, the central portions of Georgia and Texas; 50 per cent and over in other states except Arkansas and Oklahoma, where about one-fourth is picked, and North Carolina, where only a small portion has been gathered. Late cotton is still shedding in Georgia, is much shortened by drought in Tennessee, and continued depredations of insect pests have injured prospects for any top crop in Texas.

Tobacco is practically all housed.

LIBERTY'S SCULPTOR DEAD.

Consumption Causes His Final Taking Off—His Work.

Frederick Auguste Bartholdi, the sculptor, died Tuesday. Tuberculosis developed three years ago and showed violent symptoms during the last few months, but Bartholdi insisted on continuing work in his studio.

During the last days of his work he fully realized the fatality of his disease and began to design his own tombstone. This will show an allegorical figure holding out a laurel wreath. It was completed the day before Baltholdi took to his bed.

He leaves an uncompleted but important group intended to be erected in Paris in honor of the aeronauts who distinguished themselves at the seige of Paris. The group partakes somewhat of the uniqueness and magnitude of the Statue of Liberty and shows a huge balloon arising above the figures.

IRON GOES UP.

Advance of 50 Per Cent Per Ton Declared Tuesday.

No. 2, foundry, pig iron, has taken on an advance. One of the smaller companies sold two car loads of the product at $10 per ton and another advance is not improbable, the demand being very active.

One of the larger companies telegraphed all of its selling agents not to sell iron at prices which have been quoted for the past week except upon advices of the general offices. No. 2, foundry, iron has not sold as high as $10 for some time. It is believed that the change for better will be permanent in the fact of a long curtailed production and a general reduction of accumulated stock.

Controlling the Weevil.

The United States department of agriculture has just issued Farmers' Bulletin No. 209, entitled "Controlling the Boll Weevil in Cotton Seed and at Ginneries."

The bulletin was prepared by Mr. W. D. Hunter, special agent in charge of cotton boll weevil investigations of the bureau of entomology, and calls attention to the fact that the extent to which cotton seed and ginneries are factors in the dissemination of the boll weevil has not been realized generally. The bureau of entomology has paid particular attention to this matter during the present season and has demonstrated that ginneries are the most important single factors in disseminating the pest.

Church Dedicated.

The dedicatory services of the new Baptist church, just completed in East Florence, took place Sunday. Rev. W. S. Brown, of Birmingham, formerly pastor of the Florence Baptist church, preached the sermon. A collection of $200.70 was taken up, making the building out of debt.

Buried Alive in Mine.

A special from Cartersville, Ga., says six men have been buried alive in a mine near that place. The dead are R. P. Morgan, owner of the mine and a prominent business and society man, and five employes. About 1,000 tons of earth and ore fell.

Hoar's Son Nominated.

The republican convention of the third Massachusetts congressional district nominated Rockwood Hoar, son of the late senator, by acclamation for representative. Just before the dissolution of the convention the delegates stood with bowed heads for a moment out of respect to Senator Hoar.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. D. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St., Opposite Court House, CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store
CLANTON.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins,
Physician and Surgeon,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Office with Hopkins Drug Co.
CLANTON.

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 12 a. m. 1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

Notice! Notice!

If you want good Bargains and good articles in Dry Goods, Groceries & Hamilton-Brown, Shoes, we have them for you

Jackson & Robinson
Lomax, Ala.

Going to Plant

Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a postal for my new manual "How to Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.

P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

PURE GOODS

The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Saloon. Calera, Ala.

Dr. A. Conan Doyle, the author, is a stalwart cricketer, and, they say, can provide as exciting a time with

SHIP BUILT OF CRYSTALS.

Product of Famous Salt Mines of Droitwich, England.

This is a briny ship, which, however, has never sailed "the briny." In the sunlight it is a thing of beauty, sending back the radiance from its crystals. The salt that covers it is of unusual purity and is of the Droitwich kind, manufactured at the town of that name in Worcestershire, England, famous for its brine baths. Droitwich is probably the saltiest town of its size on earth; there are hills, mountains and giant blocks of it, of a whiteness and purity that evoke the admiration of the beholder—all of which is under cover in the converting plants.

WHEN DENTISTRY WAS YOUNG.

Primitive "Weapons" Once Used for Tooth Pulling.

Dr. O. C. Sharpe, a dentist of Danielson, Conn., has in his possession two pairs of forceps that represent the first departure that there is any record of from the old turnkey, the first universal instrument used for the extraction of teeth.

These forceps were presented to Dr. Sharpe fifteen years ago by a member of the family in whose possession they had been for over 100 years

At the time these instruments were in use there were no dentists, the tooth-pulling being done by the doctor, a muscular member of the family, or, as it more commonly happened, by the village shoemaker.

On what was probably a never-forgotten occasion, a handle on one pair was broken and a strong piece of wood securely wound with the "waxed end" used by shoemakers was substituted.

Exploration in Canaan.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Institute, Maj.-Gen. Sir Chas. W. Wilson delivered an address in which he described the work of exploration in Palestine during the past twelve months. Operations were being prosecuted at Gezer, a city that was a place of importance long before the Israelites passed over Jordan, and had a continuous history down to the period of the Crusades. No Levitical city had hitherto been explored, and the committee were consequently desirous that the examination of Gezer should be of the most searching nature. When the work was commenced no one expected that he would find the untouched cremated remains of a cave-dwelling race which was not acquainted with metal, or the undisturbed dead of one of the Canaanite tribes, with their bronze weapons and food vessels of hand-made pottery. Yet these and other discoveries had supplied a chronological starting point for the archaeology of pre-Israelite Canaan, and had thrown a great deal of light upon the domestic life of the Amorites, and possibly of the Israelites under the Judges.

New York Roof Garden.

A roof garden of the Broadway variety is a novelty on the East Side, Comfort on the Roof.

though concert halls and cafes of all descriptions are common enough there. The Clinton Hall roof garden may not actually be the only one east of the Bowery, but it is the first to attract general attention. One should go to the Clinton Hall roof on a bright, starlight night, which indeed is true of any roof garden.—New York Sun.

Latest Novelty in Clocks.

The latest novelty in clocks has just made its appearance in France. It consists of a perfect representation, in antique silver, of an old church, transparent enamel forming the stained windows. The clock dial is one inch in diameter and is placed in the belfry, where tiny bells chime every hour. The roof of the church proper can be raised, disclosing a gold-lined receptacle for matches.

Long Motor-Car Runs.

A motor car recently made a nonstop run of 2,000 miles, the journey being from London to Perth and back twice. A motor wagon with a five-ton load ran from Seaham Harbor to London (294 miles) in fifty-four hours, including stoppages to change drivers and take up water.

Will Keep Clergyman Busy.

A Manchester, N. H., clergyman who returned after a month's absence on vacation found such a large mail awaiting him at the postoffice that he had to take a large dress suit case to carry it home in.

BEES BREAK UP A FUNERAL.

Swarm Out of the Pulpit and Put the Mourners to Flight.

While a funeral service was in progress in the Vernon church, near Plummer's Landing, a swarm of bumble bees which had nested under the pulpit was disturbed, and, emerging from its quarters, caused a panic among the mourners, says a dispatch from Flemingsburg, Ky.

The officiating minister and friends hastily retreated from the sanctuary and were closely followed by the pall-bearers with the casket, warding off the bees as best they could in their flight.

A number of the mourners and two pall-bearers are reported to have been badly stung. However, they remained until the funeral service had been concluded in the church yard.

The exact location of the nest cannot be determined until the pulpit is torn away. The congregation dislikes to tinker with it at this time, the eve of a protracted religious meeting. Unless the bees remain under cover the meeting will probably be held in a grove.

Publisher Evidently Hoodooed.

Mr. St. John Adcock, the author, is experiencing strange luck. A short time ago the public were to have been in possession of his latest novel. The book was printed in Scotland, and the first edition was being sent to London by steamer, but the author received word that the ship has foundered, and his new book now lies on the ocean bed. Mr. Adcock's book of poems was also delayed in publication, by the first edition being burnt in a fire at the printer's. He says he is somewhat curious to see what dark fate is in store for his next work.

Mammoth Watermelon.

This huge specimen was grown in California and weighed 350 pounds.

Girls in Successful Whale Hunt.

A great whale hunt in Nestling Bay, Shetland islands, came to an end the other morning, after having lasted twenty-four hours. The whales, which numbered about sixty and were from ten to twenty-five feet in length, entered the bay. Next day a number of boats went out, their crews armed with guns and other weapons. There was a scarcity of hands, owing to most of the men being away at the fishing, but girls volunteered in large numbers, and from their boats kept the whales from escaping by throwing stones. Forty whales were in turn driven near shore and either shot or harpooned.

Fossil in Bed of Limestone.

A queer bird fossil has been found in a bed of limestone near Eureka Springs, Mo. It is quite large, and is evidently the fossil of a prehistoric bird. A strange feature is the position, showing that it was on the alert, squatting on the ground, with its head turned to one side. Scientists who have seen it say that it belonged to the cretaceous period, but they do not attempt to account for the bird's position. How it became fossilized while on the alert is a mystery.

Collie Drives Off Cows and Hawks.

On a farm in Sangerville is a year-old Scotch collie which has taken upon herself the general oversight of things. No crow or hawk can alight on the place and remain any longer than it takes her to get to it, neither are the hens and geese allowed to go beyond their bounds. The intelligence that she exhibits is wonderful, and it is safe to say that no offer could tempt her owner to part with her.—Lewiston Journal.

Somewhat Ungallant Toast.

Ring in Shell of Live Oyster.

Peter Hoffman recently visited Savin Rock, Conn., and while there found a large gold ring firmly embedded in the shell of a live oyster. The ring was a wedding ring, in which the inscription "H. R. to L. D., 1875," was plainly visible, though it must have been in the water for a long time.

BOTH TABLE AND DESK.

Handsome Piece of Furniture, Ingenious and Useful.

An ingenious piece of furniture is that just patented by an Indiana man which comprises a desk and table. As is shown in the picture, the transformation from one to the other is easily and quickly accomplished through the unique arrangement of the several parts.

The Table-Desk.

As a table a smooth rectangular surface is presented which may be used for any of those purposes to which the drawing room table is usually put. Rows of drawers, dainty lockers and shelves line the sides of the affair. Converted into a desk, the user has the advantage of a smooth writing surface, pigeonholes for the writing material and paraphernalia and an ample upper ledge or shelf for such use as he may desire. Taken all in all, this is one of the most complete and handy contrivances of the kind that has been granted patent rights recently.

A Valuable Gift.

Will Carleton, the poet and lecturer, was lecturing in a Western city several years ago, when, on leaving the platform, he was accosted by a pleasant shabby looking old woman.

"Mr. Carleton," she said, "I want to ask a great favor. Will you give me the handkerchief you carried while you lectured this evening?"

"Why, what on earth do you want that for?"

"I am very poor, Mr. Carleton," she said, "and if you give me that handkerchief I think I can live on it a year."

Mr. Carleton stared. "A year! You shall certainly have it," and the old women retired with the handkerchief, profusely thanking him.

Later Mr. Carleton learned that she had embroidered his name on it, and "raffled" it to so good effect that she cleared several hundred dollars, enough to live on for a year.—Montreal Herald.

Queer English Court Decisions.

A new set of false teeth was awarded last May as damages to a Clapton coachman who had bitten upon a small pebble which had somehow got into a steak-pudding he was eating at a coffee shop, and broken and strained the set of teeth he was using; while "the first and second pick of the next litter of pups" was the amount of damages gravely entered for a Plaistow dog-fancier who had had a little trouble with another of the craft as to the disposal of some pedigree fox terriers.

Great-Grandma's Pattens.

The pattens that our great-grandmothers wore instead of rubbers were clogs of wood standing on a ring of iron. Straps, which the feet slipped into, held them on.

Singular Fiddler.

Frank Clawson is the name of a singular fiddler of Atlanta, who is without hands. Many years ago he was caught in a blizzard and his arms were frozen so badly that both hands were amputated at the wrists. For a long time the violin was silent; but, being a mechanical genius, he invented a contrivance of wire to enable him to wield the bow. The fingering was more difficult, but by practice he trained the stump of his left hand to make the necessary shifts from one string to another and the varying positions. With the violin held in place by his chin and knees and with the help of his fingerless arms, Clawson manages to play his old-time selections with nearly as much skill as he formerly did.

Turtles in Fierce Fight.

Two turtles, weighing not less than fifty pounds each, engaged in a fierce fight on the banks of a pond in Gardiner. For a full hour they fought on, unmindful of the spectators gathered about them. Both teeth and claws were used freely and more than once each was obliged to seek the protection offered by his thick shell. After the fight about half of one turtle's tail was found cleanly cut off, as with a knife.

SENT SAMPLES OF WARES.

By Phonograph and Photograph Manager Judged of Actor.

"This is a marvelous age we live in," said a theatrical manager, "and its marvelousness was brought home to me forcibly last week.

"I had written to a French tenor and asked him what he would take to come over here and sing next season. His reply consisted of a letter and two cylinders.

"'I will come for $500 a week,' the letter said, 'and I forward in another package samples of my voice and of my acting.'

"The large cylinder was a phonographic record of one of the man's solos. The smaller one was a moving picture of him singing the solo.

"I took the two cylinders to a dealer, and one we put in a phonograph, the other in a moving picture machine, and then started the machine and the phonograph simultaneously. There he was on the screen, walking up and down the stage and gesticulating, and there was his voice issuing in sonorous notes from the big phonograph horn. I got from it as satisfactory an idea of the man's talent as I could have gotten if he had visited me."

Japanese Flatiron.

The flatiron used by the old-fashioned Japanese is a curious little tool, which they thrust into the charcoal in the hibachi, or firebox, to heat, somewhat as we use the modern curling tongs. The greater portion of ordinary Japanese wearing apparel is not subjected to the smoothing process. Cotton garments are for the most part ripped and washed in long breadths that are dried on boards; those that are not ripped are dried on a sort of frame, from which they hang smooth. For corners or gathers this little pointed iron is used.

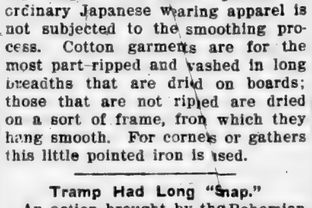
Tramp Had Long "Snap."

An action brought by the Bohemian town of Deutsch-Landsberg against the Bohemian provincial authorities revealed the astonishing fact that a tramp named Waselowsky had been kept in the local prison for three years while inquiries as to his identity were being made.

In this country the parish authorities of the place where a man is born are responsible for the cost of parochial relief or imprisonment anywhere else.

Waselowsky presumably found the prison at Leutsch-Landsberg to his taite, refused all information as to his origin, and was detained by the parochial authorities for inquiries three whole years without any result. They now claimed, but unsuccessfully, the cost of his keep from the provincial authorities.—London Mail.

Too Easy.



The alphabetical symbols of the Corean language are the simplest in the world. For this reason they are used only by women, servants and peasants. Corean men prefer Chinese characters, and use them always in official documents.

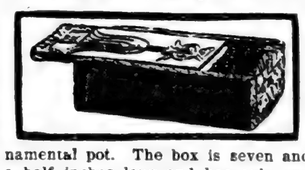
All Chinese Are Detectives.

The detective force in China is a secret body second to none in the world in point of organization. From one end of the Celestial land to the other a very wide-open eye is kept upon every man, woman and child, whether foreign or native, and, for that matter, the detectives watch one another most vigilantly.

FINE OLD TINDER BOX.

Interesting Curio That Recalls the "Good Old Days."

In these days of electric lighting tinder boxes stand in the same relation to illumination as a flintlock does to the modern firearm. They, however, serve as interesting curios, and many at present in England are ornate to a degree, and show no little artistic and decorative skill. This one belongs to a Mr. Oswald Barron. He procured it in Flanders. It is of oak and handsomely carved on all its faces. On the sliding lid is wrought a tuliplike flower, rising from an ornamental pot. The box is seven and a half inches long and has only one division, which is longitudinal.



DOG KEPT LONG WATCH.

On Guard Twenty-Four Hours Without Food or Water.

When Miss Bonnie V. Lynn returned from her rural mail delivery route on Tuesday she was much surprised at the non-appearance of her faithful old dog Tracey, which always accompanies her on her rounds.

Diligent search and inquiry developed nothing as to the whereabouts of the faithful companion. The members of the Lynn household were grieved by the absence of the favorite canine, which was regarded almost as one of the family. They were confident that nothing short of death or imprisonment could prevent Tracey from returning to them.

Next day, when Miss Lynn was again covering her route, she was surprised, upon stopping to deposit some letters in a box, to find the lost dog lying near the place, faithfully guarding an empty envelope that she had dropped on the ground the day before.

For twenty-four hours Tracey had kept vigil over this envelope, evidently realizing the responsibility that rested upon his mistress and believing the preservation of the envelope was of vital importance.

During this long watch the dumb animal had neither food nor water, and not until the envelope was picked up would it desert its post.—Los Angeles Times.

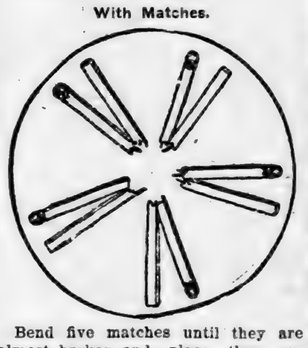
Dog No Match for Woodchuck.

It is unusual to see a woodchuck drive a dog; it is usually reversed, and the chuck takes to his hole, to be dug out by the dog.

A Phillips canine followed his mistress, who was on a drive through the back towns of Phillips the other day, and after driving off all the hens from the farms along the road he came upon a woodchuck near the road. He barked with joy at the sight of that strange animal, and with one leap he landed in front of the woodchuck.

Then he stopped—there was something in the woodchuck's eye that indicated that there might be serious trouble. The dog discovered it and backed away to safety, and, strange to state, the woodchuck followed him; followed him until the poetry was all out of the experience and the fun was all gone. Finally the dog acknowledged his defeat by dropping his tail and starting for Phillips at a very fast pace.—Bangor News.

With Matches.



Bend five matches until they are almost broken and place them as shown. Then drop a little water on the broken ends and see the extremities stretch till they form a star.

Volcano Still There.

Workmen were driving an artesian well near Pisa, in Italy, recently, when a huge column of gas rose up from the boring made in the ground, followed by an eruption of warm water, sand and mud. Frightened at this unexpected turn of events, the men ran away. Engineers came up and were investigating the phenomenon, when a workman approached with a lighted match. This ignited the escaping gas and a column of fire rose very high, which lit up the neighborhood throughout the whole night. Efforts were made without success to extinguish the fire, which continued for days, accompanied by eruptions of sand and subterranean noises. In ancient times a volcano, known as the San Giuliano, existed on a neighboring hill, but has long been inactive.

Opossum Traveled in Bananas.

While a consignment of bananas from Jamaica was being unloaded at Bradford, Pa., the other day, an opossum jumped out. He was captured and is being cared for by the owners of the bananas.

Lightning Woke Him Up.

George Nugent of Beverly Farms had his slumber disturbed recently by being suddenly precipitated to the floor, the slats of his bed having been ripped out by lightning.

FALSE TEETH OF G. W.

May Be Seen in a Baltimore Museum—Were Carved Out of Ivory.

It is a matter of history that George Washington was the proud possessor of the first set of false teeth made in this country, but it is not generally known that these identical teeth, which were carved from a solid piece of ivory, are now exhibited at a Baltimore dental college.

In the "Encyclopaedia Britannica" is found the following reference:

"It has always been a subject of curious speculation to some minds how much of the calm and benign expression of the face was due to the shape of Washington's false teeth."

To the above the American editor of the encyclopaedia adds in a footnote:

"This 'curious speculation' must be that of a curious sort of man. These ivory carved teeth, however, made by John Greenwood, the first American dentist, are now in the museum of the oldest of all dental colleges, which is in Baltimore, Md.

The teeth are in the museum of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery. They are mounted on a silver rod and protected by a glass case, which is enclosed in another glass case of larger proportions. They never fail to arouse great curiosity among the visitors at the college.

The Goddess of Drink.

Supposed to depict a reporter of the New York Telegraph on an assignment which does not seem to displease him.

Adventures of Thousand-Franc Note.

A lady passing down the Rue Richelieu had the misfortune to lose a pocketbook containing, among other valuables, a 1,000-franc note. The pocketbook was picked up by a chair mender named Renaud, who lives at Montreaux, and he placed it very carefully in his pocket and proceeded home. It is not often that a chair mender has occasion to change a note for that amount, and Renaud, recognizing the impossibility of turning it into gold without detection, agreed with a friend to do the business for the consideration of 100 francs.

This friend, Lucien Mathern, also a chair mender, was in his turn filled with apprehension. The difficulty was solved by the aid of a horticulturist, named Simmonnet, who kindly consented to buy himself a horse for 300 francs and return the change. Renaud thus became richer by 600 francs. All might have gone well if, two days later, it had not been discovered that the horse had been stolen from a dealer at Meaux. This led to the arrest of the trio, and later in the day the police put their hands on the horse thieves.—Paris Messenger.

Took a Fatal Nap.

At Newport News, Va., George Lawrence, 60 years old, of Baltimore, took a fatal nap under an old work bench in the unused power house of the Consumers' Light, Heat and Power Company.

Lawrence is said to have been under the influence of liquor and strolled into the place and lay down to sleep. About 7 o'clock W. S. Powell and a companion entered the place and did some pistol practice with the target placed above the bench. After the second shot the practice was brought to a sudden close by groans coming from under the bench. The young men found Lawrence writhing in pain from a wound in the abdomen. The man was taken to the hospital, where he died.

Diamond Hitch.

The "diamond hitch" is at once the pride of the woolly west, and the despair of the tenderfoot. No cargo strapped onto a mule's back with a can possibly slip, no matter how rough the road. The invention of a Spanish muleteer the hitch was first used in America by the Spaniards who conquered Mexico and looted the treasure houses of the Montezumas.

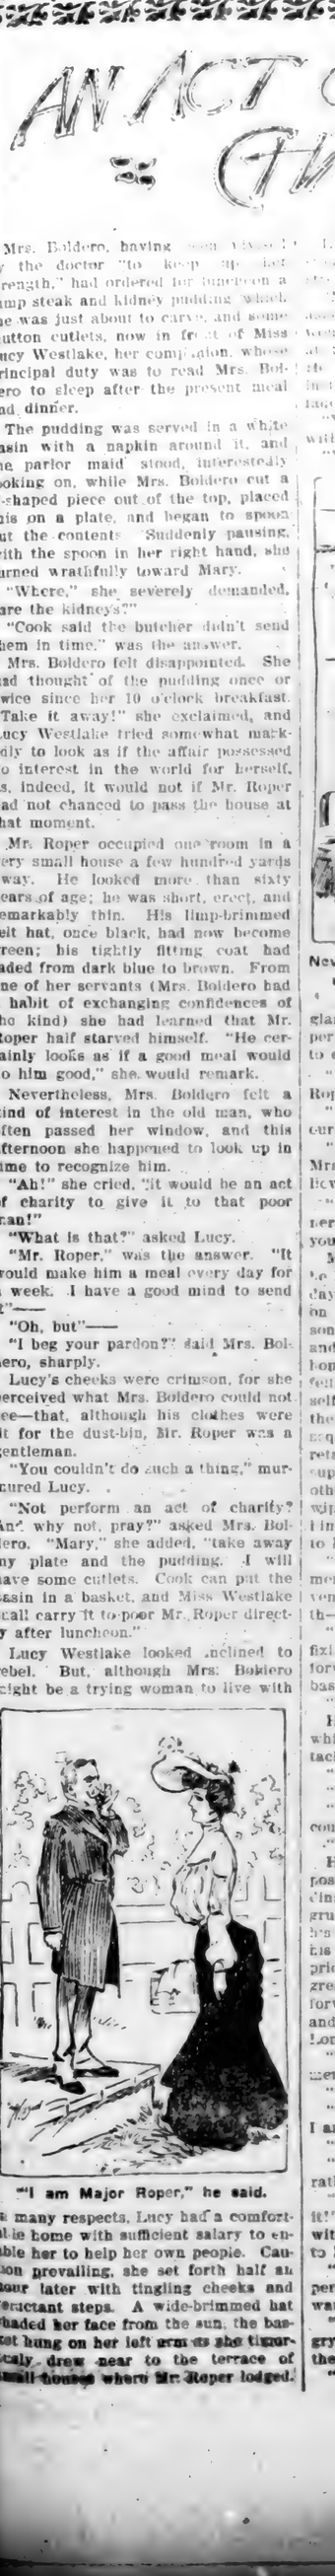
Suggestive Marriage Headline.

—Spider-Webb was the headline over a notice of a marriage that occurred in the vicinity of Burns recently.

At Nigh



Mrs. Boldero, having been ordered by the doctor "to keep up her strength," had ordered for luncheon a rump steak and kidney pudding which she was just about to carve, and some mutton cutlets, now in front of Miss Lucy Westlake, her companion, whose principal duty was to read Mrs. Boldero to sleep after the present meal and dinner.

The pudding was served in a white basin with a napkin around it, and the parlor maid stood, interestedly looking on, while Mrs. Boldero cut a V-shaped piece out of the top, placed this on a plate, and began to spoon out the contents. Suddenly pausing, with the spoon in her right hand, she turned wrathfully toward Mary.

"Where," she severely demanded, "are the kidneys?"

"Cook said the butcher didn't send them in time," was the answer.

Mrs. Boldero felt disappointed. She had thought of the pudding once or twice since her 10 o'clock breakfast. "Take it away!" she exclaimed, and Lucy Westlake tried somewhat markedly to look as if the affair possessed no interest in the world for herself, as, indeed, it would not if Mr. Roper had not chanced to pass the house at that moment.

Mr. Roper occupied one room in a very small house a few hundred yards away. He looked more than sixty years of age; he was short, erect, and remarkably thin. His limp-brimmed felt hat, once black, had now become green; his tightly fitting coat had faded from dark blue to brown. From one of her servants (Mrs. Boldero had a habit of exchanging confidences of the kind) she had learned that Mr. Roper half starved himself. "He certainly looks as if a good meal would do him good," she would remark.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Boldero felt a kind of interest in the old man, who often passed her window, and this afternoon she happened to look up in time to recognize him.

"Ah!" she cried, "it would be an act of charity to give it to that poor man!"

"What is that?" asked Lucy.

"Mr. Roper," was the answer. "It would make him a meal every day for a week. I have a good mind to send it"——

"Oh, but"——

"I beg your pardon?" said Mrs. Boldero, sharply.

Lucy's cheeks were crimson, for she perceived what Mrs. Boldero could not see—that, although his clothes were fit for the dust-bin, Mr. Roper was a gentleman.

"You couldn't do such a thing," murmured Lucy.

"Not perform an act of charity? And why not, pray?" asked Mrs. Boldero. "Mary," she added, "take away my plate and the pudding. I will have some cutlets. Cook can put the basin in a basket, and Miss Westlake shall carry it to poor Mr. Roper directly after luncheon."

Lucy Westlake looked inclined to rebel. But, although Mrs. Boldero might be a trying woman to live with

"I am Major Roper," he said.

in many respects, Lucy had a comfortable home with sufficient salary to enable her to help her own people. Caution prevailing, she set forth half an hour later with tingling cheeks and reluctant steps. A wide-brimmed hat shaded her face from the sun, the basket hung on her left arm as she timorously drew near to the terrace of small houses where Mr. Roper lodged.

BOX.

Recalls the lighting same rela- intlock does They, how- curios, and and are or- w no little skill. This ald Barron. rs. It is of d on all its is wrought from an or-seven and s only one inal.

ATCH.

ours With- r.

ynn return- very route surprised er faithful ays accom-iry devel- hereabouts The mem- old were he favorite almost as were confi- death or nt Tracey

Lynn was e was sur- posit some e lost dog ally guard- t she had e day be-racey had e, evident- ility that nal, believ- envelope

the dumb or water. as picked Los An-

Schuck. oodchuck reversed, hole, to be his mis- rough the other day, the hens road he the road. sight of with one the wood-as some- e that in- e serious d it and strange to ved him; y was all the fun dog ac- dropping llips at a s.

artesian recently, rose up ground, arm wa- d at this he men up and omenon, with a the es- fire rose eighbor- ght. Ef- ccess to ontinued ruptions ses. In n as the eighbor- ctive.

nas. bananas aded at n oppo- red and ners of Farms ecently to the g been

FALSE TEETH OF G. W.

May Be Seen in a Baltimore Museum—Were Carved Out of Ivory.

It is a matter of history that George Washington was the proud possessor of the first set of false teeth made in this country, but it is not generally known that these identical teeth, which were carved from a solid piece of ivory, are now exhibited at a Baltimore dental college.

In the "Encyclopaedia Britannica" is found the following reference:

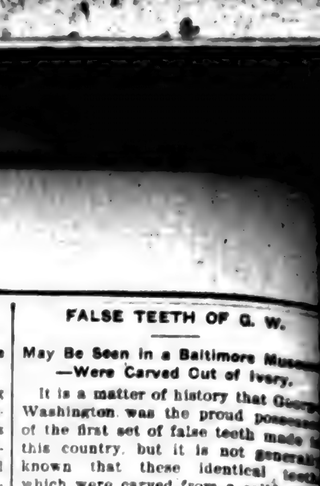
"It has always been a subject of curious speculation to some minds how much of the calm and benign expression of the face was due to the shape of Washington's false teeth."

To the above the American editor of the encyclopaedia adds in a footnote:

"This 'curious speculation' must be that of a curious sort of mind. These ivory carved teeth, however, made by John Greenwood, the first American dentist, are now in the museum of the oldest of all dental colleges, which is in Baltimore, Md."

The teeth are in the museum of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery. They are mounted on a silver rod and protected by a glass case, which is enclosed in another glass case of larger proportions. They never fail to arouse great curiosity among the visitors at the college.

The Goddess of Drink.



Supposed to depict a reporter of the New York Telegraph on an assignment which does not seem to displease him.

Adventures of Thousand-Franc Note.

A lady passing down the Rue Richelieu had the misfortune to lose a pocketbook containing, among other valuables, a 1,000-franc note. The pocketbook was picked up by a chair mender named Renaud, who lives at Montreaux; and he placed it very carefully in his pocket and proceeded home. It is not often that a chair mender has occasion to change a note for that amount, and Renaud, recognizing the impossibility of turning it into gold without detection, agreed with a friend to do the business for the consideration of 100 francs.

This friend, Lucien Mathern, also a chair mender, was in his turn filled with apprehension. The difficulty was solved by the aid of a horticulturist, named Simmonnet, who kindly consented to buy himself a horse for 300 francs and return the change. Renaud thus became richer by 600 francs. All might have gone well if, two days later, it had not been discovered that the horse had been stolen from a dealer at Meaux. This led to the arrest of the trio, and later in the day the police put their hands on the horse thieves.—Paris Messenger.

Took a Fatal Nap.

At Newport News, Va., George Lawrence, 60 years old, of Baltimore took a fatal nap under an old work bench in the unused power house of the Consumers' Light, Heat and Power Company.

Lawrence is said to have been under the influence of liquor and strolled into the place and lay down to sleep. About 7 o'clock W. S. Powell and a companion entered the place and did some pistol practice with the target placed above the bench. After the second shot the practice was brought to a sudden close by groans coming from under the bench. The young men found Lawrence writhing in pain from a wound in the abdomen. The man was taken to the hospital, where he died.

Diamond Hitch.

The "diamond hitch" is at once the pride of the woolly west, and the despair of the tenderfoot. No cargo strapped onto a mule's back with it can possibly slip, no matter how rough the road. The invention of a Spanish muleteer the hitch was first used in America by the Spaniards who conquered Mexico and looted the treasure houses of the Montezumas.

Suggestive Marriage Headline.

Spider-Webb was the headline over a notice of a marriage that occurred in the vicinity of Burns recently.

At Night.

Yonder a June night moon rides high,
The sparkling stars are faint and blurred.
A wind goes ruffling earth and sky
And the silver'd smoke is idly stirred.

And I through the city streets alone
Go thumping between the window'd walls,
Lost in a silent world of stone,
A solitude of vacant halls.

What are my thoughts in this weird place?
The wonders of science? the world? the new?
No, men are still of the human race;
I think of a woman; I think of you.

—James Oppenheim in New York Sun.

AN ACT OF CHARITY

Mrs. Boldero, having been advised by the doctor "to keep up her strength," had ordered for luncheon a rump steak and kidney pudding, which she was just about to carve, and some mutton cutlets, now in front of Miss Lucy Westlake, her companion, whose principal duty was to read Mrs. Boldero to sleep after the present meal and dinner.

The pudding was served in a white basin with a napkin around it, and the parlor maid stood, interestedly looking on, while Mrs. Boldero cut a V-shaped piece out of the top, placed this on a plate, and began to spoon out the contents. Suddenly pausing, with the spoon in her right hand, she turned wrathfully toward Mary.

"Where," she severely demanded, "are the kidneys?"

"Cook said the butcher didn't send them in time," was the answer.

Mrs. Boldero felt disappointed. She had thought of the pudding once or twice since her 10 o'clock breakfast. "Take it away!" she exclaimed, and Lucy Westlake tried somewhat markedly to look as if the affair possessed no interest in the world for herself, as indeed, it would not if Mr. Roper had not chanced to pass the house at that moment.

Mr. Roper occupied one room in a very small house a few hundred yards away. He looked more than sixty years of age; he was short, erect, and remarkably thin. His limp-brimmed felt hat, once black, had now become green; his tightly fitting coat had faded from dark blue to brown. From one of her servants (Mrs. Boldero had a habit of exchanging confidences of the kind) she had learned that Mr. Roper half starved himself. "He certainly looks as if a good meal would do him good," she would remark.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Boldero felt a kind of interest in the old man, who often passed her window, and this afternoon she happened to look up in time to recognize him.

"Ah!" she cried, "it would be an act of charity to give it to that poor man!"

"What is that?" asked Lucy.

"Mr. Roper," was the answer. "It would make him a meal every day for a week. I have a good mind to send it"——

"Oh, but"——

"I beg your pardon?" said Mrs. Boldero, sharply.

Lucy's cheeks were crimson, for she perceived what Mrs. Boldero could not see—that, although his clothes were fit for the dust-bin, Mr. Roper was a gentleman.

"You couldn't do such a thing," murmured Lucy.

"Not perform an act of charity? And why not, pray?" asked Mrs. Boldero. "Mary," she added, "take away my plate and the pudding. I will have some cutlets. Cook can put the basin in a basket, and Miss Westlake shall carry it to poor Mr. Roper directly after luncheon."

Lucy Westlake looked inclined to rebel. But, although Mrs. Boldero might be a trying woman to live with

"I am Major Roper," he said.

in many respects, Lucy had a comfortable home with sufficient salary to enable her to help her own people. Caution prevailing, she set forth half an hour later with tingling cheeks and reluctant steps. A wide-brimmed hat shaded her face from the sun, the basket hung on her left arm as she timorously drew near to the terrace of small houses where Mr. Roper lodged.

Lucy's voice trembled as a short, stout, red-faced woman opened the street door.

"May I speak to Mr. Roper?" she asked, and, turning her back, the woman of the house shouted his name at the foot of the narrow staircase. He came down a few moments later in the act of buttoning his shrunken, faded coat.

"You wish to see me?" he inquired, with a bow.

"Ye—es, if you please," said Lucy,

Never since his boyhood had he felt such temptation at the sight of anything to eat.

glancing from the basket to Mr. Roper's face, and scarcely knowing how to explain her errand.

"A remarkably fine day," cried Mr Roper, with a cough.

"Mrs.—Mrs. Boldero saw you pass our window," Lucy faltered.

"I have not the—er—pleasure of Mrs. Boldero's acquaintance, I believe."

"Still," said Lucy, becoming more nervous every instant, "she knows you very well by sight."

Mr. Roper straightened his back; he had been somewhat of a buck in his day—major in a line regiment, retired on half pay some years ago. His only son had come to a melancholy end, and, having left numerous debts of honor undischarged, Major Roper had felt it incumbent to take them on himself. In order to raise immediately the necessary sum of money, he had sequestrated the bulk of his pension, retaining, in fact, sufficient only to support the barest existence. Another year and the debt would be wiped out; then, Major Roper told himself, he would once again be able to hold up his head.

"Mrs. Boldero presents her compliments," said Lucy, drawing on her invention, "and she—she has sent you th—this."

"And what is 'this'?" he demanded, fixing his single eyeglass, and leaning forward to peer into the uncovered basket.

"A—a rump steak pudding."

He stood glaring at Lucy's rosy face while he ferociously twirled his mustache.

"I am Major Roper!" he said.

"Mrs. Boldero thought"——

"She evidently thought that she could insult me with impunity."

"I—I am very sorry," faltered Lucy.

His annoyance was the greater, if possible, on observing that the pudding was not even whole, yet, incongruously enough, the sight of it tickled his palate. Still, Major Roper found his appetite easier to control than his pride, which had never been more aggressive than now, when he looked forward shortly to leave Borrowfeld and to live again within reach of a London club.

"You will kindly present my compliments to Mrs.—er"——

"Boldero," faltered Lucy.

"To Mrs. Boldero, and tell her that I am very much—very much obliged."

"She will be rather hurt," said Lucy.

"And I," said Major Roper, "am rather hurt."

"I do wish you would let me leave it!" cried Lucy, holding out her arm with the basket in her left hand close to his face.

"I have told you I am Major Roper!" he answered, stepping backward.

"Mrs. Boldero will be immensely angry," murmured Lucy, gazing from the basket into his face.

"Angry—with you, do you mean?"

"I am afraid she will," said Lucy, with a deprecatory smile.

Major Roper began to cough.

"You will kindly present my compliments to Mrs.—er—Boldero, and say that I am greatly obliged, and accept her—her gift in the spirit in which, no doubt, it is offered."

"Oh, thank you!" exclaimed Lucy, and, with an air of extreme relief, she saw Major Roper take the basket.

"You will wait a moment for the—for the basin?" he suggested, as she would have turned away.

"I can come to-morrow"——

"There is no necessity to give you that trouble," he insisted, "if you will pardon my closing the door." He did not wish her to follow his movements, so, leaving Lucy standing on the top step and the street door ajar, the major held the basket gingerly as he walked along the passage to another door which led to a back yard.

There he removed the basin from the basket, standing this on the red tiles while he gazed with mingled sensations at the top of the half cold but still savory pudding. Never since his boyhood had he felt such temptation at the sight of anything to eat. Holding the basin now at arm's length, he stepped toward the dust bin, and therein emptied the enticing contents. A few feet to the right was a tap, and, stooping in front of it, Major Roper turned the water into the basin, which he afterward dried upon a duster that hung from a nail in the wall. Having replaced the empty basin, he carried the basket into the house and opened the street door.

"A thousand apologies for keeping you," he said, offering the basket to Lucy, whose face looked quite cheerful again.

"I hope you will enjoy the pudding, major!" she cried, with a laugh which made him feel almost young again.

"You will kindly tell Mrs.—er—Mrs. Boldero it is one of my favorite dishes," he answered, with a bow, and Lucy nodded brightly as she walked away with the basket.—New York Telegraph.

HE WOULD TAKE NO RISKS.

Cowboy Wanted to Have Decent Chance of Spending His Money.

"In the West," said Mr. William Sturgis of Cheyene, Wyo., "the people take very slowly to the notion that government should busy itself in the endeavor to regulate public morals.

"For that reason, although we have a pretty stiff state anti-gambling law, the statute is of little potency, and the boys gather in the old familiar centers to bet their coin against faro, roulette, hazard or poker.

"Not long ago one of my clients, of the cowboy tribe, who had deposited $1,000 with me, made a trip to town, and for several days got me to let him have about $100 per diem. I thought he was trying his luck at faro, and finally, when he had spent just half his capital, I advised him that the writing of checks was getting monotonous, and that if he meant to keep on playing to withdraw the remaining $500 in a lump, so that he need not 'bother to hunt for me.' At the same time I advised him in strong terms to stop then and there and take no chances in losing the money he had acquired through months of patient toil on the plains. He heard me through with the utmost patience, taking no apparent heed of my rebuke and then said: 'I know what you say is true, Judge; but supposing I should die right sudden and get no chance to spend that other $500?'"—Washington Post.

Their First Falsehood.

"It is said there should be implicit confidence between married folk," said a Fifth avenue clergyman whose church is not far from Fortieth street. "I am a believer in this little injunction, but I am also certain that I once married a couple who tried to deceive not only me another, but even themselves, at the altar. I knew them both. He was a bachelor of seventy; she was a spinster of about sixty. But you would not have thought so when they came to get me to marry them. She was attired like a shopgirl out for her first ball, and his raiment bespoke the youthful dude of twenty-two or twenty-three. His snow white mustache had been dyed black and waxed until the ends looked like knitting needles.

"I asked them their ages.

"'Thirty-five,' he said gravely.

"'Thirty,' she simpered.

"Now each was aware of deceiving the other, but I want to tell you both looked positively happy and untroubled over the conscienceless falsehoods with which they had begun their married life."—New York Herald.

To a Haven at Last.

I have seen the worst of the world, and
I care no more
For chances and changes, for perils afloat and ashore.
God is over them all; a spirit more calm than fate
My times upon Him wait.

In the uttermost parts of the sea there the corals grow.
And the wealth of its ooze floor no divers know;
When the laboring ship strains on through an ocean of weed
Our captain takes good heed.

But better heed takes he who steers without chart the storm,
Who hath bidden the north blow cold
and the south breathe warm;
That, though he splinters the dip on the coral marge,
He hath her crew in charge

From the peril of fire and flow, from the roof and rock
He hath gathered them man by man—a weary flock—
He will bring them home to the haven
where they would be,
Over a jasper sea.
—Black and White.

Rubies of Great Value

Oriental rubies are worth, weight for weight, about twelve times the value of diamonds.

AUSTRIAN GIRLS WELL TAUGHT.

Careful Education in All Branches Accorded Them.

Austrian girls are often taught in school until they are 15 years old. They are not during this time kept entirely out of society, but are dressed with the greatest simplicity, never wearing a silk gown until they have left school and attended their first ball.

On leaving the schoolroom they have one or two years' training in the kitchen and pantry, either by some member of their own family or under a trained cook in another's house.

Though they may never be required to cook for themselves, they know exactly how everything should be done, and long before they set up housekeeping on their own account are competent to take charge of a household. They make most affectionate wives and mothers, says Woman's Life.

An Austrian lady is said to be as accomplished and learned as an English governess, as good a cook and housekeeper as a German, as bright and witty in society as a Parisian, and as handsome as an American. In Vienna are found some of the most beautiful women in Europe.

Austrian girls are brought up in habits of industry, and are rarely seen without some kind of work in hand. They are famous for their great piles of linen, a certain number of yards of which are every year from a girl's birth woven and laid aside for her marriage portion.

The grandmothers spend much of their time in knitting for their grandchildren, not only supplying their present need, but laying by dozens of stockings of every kind for the young girl's trousseau. Some of these woven ones.

stockings are as fine as the finest

Wanted His Presents Back.

Recorder Pickersgill, at Perth Amboy, N. J., was asked to settle a novel case, in which Andrew Lichask was arrested on complaint of Miss Julia Platt, who charged him with annoying her on the streets. She declared that every time they met Andrew persisted in stopping her and speaking to her, and she wanted the practice stopped.

Andrew explained to the recorder that he and Julia were once lovers, and that while he was courting he made her a present of half a book of trading stamps. Recently Julia rejected him, and their engagement was broken. Andrew thought that as he was jilted he should have the stamps back.

Julia admitted having received them, but declared she could not return them as she had exchanged them for a beautiful plush chair. On Andrew promising not to speak to Julia again the recorder let him go.

The Market Price of Titles.

A dealer in foreign titles and decorations, in response to an inquisitive inquirer, gives the price of the commodities he offers. The title of count costs 30,000 francs; viscount, 25,000; baron, 15,000. These are Spanish.

"Chevalier" is naturally much less expensive, the highest order being for sale at 8,000 francs.

The red, black and white rosette of the Red Cross, given for aid to the wounded on land and sea, can actually be purchased for 1,500 francs; no further qualification being necessary than the payment of this sum. One month suffices the intermediary to secure this decoration to the candidate who desires it. The higher titles necessitate a delay of five or six months.

Half the purchase money has to be sent to the dealer in titles on application.

A Chronological Impression.

January's made for work an' February, too,
Comes 'round to give de folks a chance to show what dey kin do.
Dar's Christmas an' Thanksgivin' day
a-scatterin' through the year.
An' spring to staht you singin' 'cause
de sky is bright an' clear.
Mos' every month dat comes along some special work will show, Exceptin' one. Dat's Augus'. Den de world moves kind o' slow.
You feels like loafin' frum de dawn until de shadows fall,
It 'pears like Augus' wasn' made foh anything at all.
It gives the ol' thermometer a second chance to climb,
It jes' slips in between de fireworks an'
de reed bird time.
De sleepy days is noddin' like de branches of de trees
Dat's bendin' whah de clover is invitin' of de bees.
When folks divided up de year, I reckon
it was found
Dey had mo' sunshine dan dey really needed to go 'round.
Dey found some extra time dat somehow didn't fit in pat.
So dey rolled it un together an' made
Augus' out o' dat.
—Washington Star.

Women as Dress Judges.

It would almost seem as though a new profession for women were making its way to the front—that of dress experts to puzzled county court judges.

Judge Edge, at his wits' end at Clerkenwell, yesterday, to decide a dispute about the fit of a dress, bethought him of a colleague who had created the precedent of calling in a disinterested lady to decide the point, and, following it, gave judgment in accordance with the expert's advice.

"If I get many of these cases," said Judge Edge, pathetically, "I shall either have to learn dressmaking or have a lady expert attached to the court."—London Express.

Deepest Sounding Ever Made.

The deepest sounding ever made by any vessel was the United States ship Nero while on the Honolulu-Manila cable survey. When near Guam the Nero got 5,269 fathoms, or 31,614 feet, only 66 feet less than six miles. If Mount Everest, the highest mountain on earth, were set down in this hole, it would have above its summit a depth of 2,012 feet, or nearly half a mile of water.

Pass Under the Rod

An Old Favorite

I saw the young bride, in her beauty and pride,
Bedecked in her snowy array,
And the bright flush of joy mantled high on her cheek,
And the future looked blooming and gay.
And with woman's devotion she laid her fond heart
At the shrine of idolatrous love,
And she anchored her hopes to this perishing earth
By the chain which her tenderness wove.
But I saw when those heart-strings were bleeding and torn,
And the chain had been severed in two,
She had changed her white robes for the sables of grief,
And her bloom for the paleness of woe;
But the Healer was there, pouring balm on her heart,
And wiping the tears from her eyes;
He strengthened the chain he had broken in twain,
And fastened it firm to the skies!
There had whispered a voice—'twas the voice of her God—
"I love thee, I love thee—pass under the rod!"

I saw the young mother in tenderness bend
O'er the couch of her slumbering boy;
And she kissed the soft lips, as they murmured her name,
While the dreamer lay smiling in joy.
O! sweet as the rosebud encircled with dew,
When its fragrance is flung on the air,
So fresh and so bright to that mother he seemed
As he lay in his innocence there.
But I saw, when she gazed on the same lovely form,
Pale as marble, and silent and cold;
But paler and colder her beautiful boy,
And the tale of her sorrow was told!
But the Healer was there who had stricken her heart,
And taken her treasure away;
To allure her to heaven he has placed it on high,
And the mourner will sweetly obey.
There had whispered a voice—'twas the voice of her God—
"I love thee, I love thee—pass under the rod!"

I saw a father and mother who leaned
On the arms of a dear gifted son,
And the star in the future grew bright to their gaze
As they saw the proud place he had won;
And the fast-coming evening of life promised fair,
And its pathway grew smooth to their feet,
And the starlight of love glimmered bright at the end,
And the whispers of fancy were sweet.
And I saw them again bending low o'er the grave
Where their hearts' dearest hope had been laid,
And the star had gone down in the darkness of night,
And the joy from their bosom had fled.
But the Healer was there, and his arms were around,
And he led them with tenderest care;
And he showed them a star in the bright upper world—
'Twas their star shining brilliantly there!
They had each heard a voice—'twas the voice of their God—
"I love thee, I love thee—pass under the rod!"

Hat on a Frolic

The young man seemed to be of a particularly mild disposition and the straw hat he wore was not out of the ordinary, but the combination was the cause of a series of mishaps on a Seventh avenue car the other day. And it was a closed car at that. The young man and the hat took a seat well forward and were soon in deep thought—at least the young man was. The hat was evidently cooking up mischief.

The chance came at last. It was blowing a gale in the street and hats were flying in all directions. The sight probably fired the ambition of the hat on the young man's head.

At Twenty-third street the car stopped. A stout woman climbed on the front platform and the motorman obligingly opened the door for her. With the woman came the tail end of a particularly fierce gust of wind which hit the car plumb center. The hat arose from the young man's head, seemed to pause for a moment in mid-air as though selecting a victim, and then started on its aerial flight. It nipped off the eyeglasses of a choleric looking old man, caromed across the car and smacked a German woman in the face. Then, gathering fresh impetus from an open window, it sailed up to the roof of the car, tried to ring up a couple of fares on the register, and fell into the lap of a woman carrying a baby. From thence it dropped lightly to the floor, evidently satisfied with its work.

The owner of the hat jumped after it at the first stage of the desertion, but was obliged to tack about the stout woman whose entrance to the car had caused the trouble. When he got by he failed to see the choleric old man, who was blindly groping for his glasses on the floor of the car and saying harsh things sotto voce. Therefore, the young man was hardly to blame when his knee came into violent contact with the choleric party's car, knocking off his hat. The young man, who was crimson with embarrassment, turned to apologize, and, plunging forward in his confusion, stepped squarely upon the crown of his mischievous hat, which was reposing at the feet of the woman with the baby.

The young man was still several blocks from his destination, and the rain had begun to fall; but somehow he felt that his presence in the car was rather embarrassing to the other passengers, so he got off. The choleric man found his hat and glasses, but not his temper. The German woman quoted Wagnerian selections while she prospected about her face for possible scratches, and the woman with the baby said something that sounded like "chump."—New York Press.

Digging in Ancient Ruins

Interesting and valuable archaeological discoveries have been made on the site of the ancient Greek city Olbia. The site is situated on the southern bank of the Boug, about midway between Otchakoff and Nicolaieff, and not far distant from the estuary of the Dneiper. This ancient city was a great center for Greek trade with the interior. It is generally maintained among archaeological authorities that a trade route extended from Olbia across country to the northern sea, and when a find of ancient Greek coins was made it was contended to be substantial proof of the fact. Recently, however, it was proved that these coins were spurious.

Olbia was destroyed by the Getoa about 70 to 60 B. C., but it revived and when it was visited by Dion Chrysostum about 100 A. D. it was again a flourishing city. The excavations that are now in progress upon the site of this city are being carried out by M. Formakovski under the auspices of the Russian Archaeological society. M. Formakovski has succeeded in unearthing extensive portions of the walls and foundations of the original city, which date back from the seventh century, B. C. The masonry is identical with that of the ruins of ancient cities excavated in various parts of Greece. Before this depth was reached two different strata of walls and basements bearing descriptions of the fourth and first centuries B. C. were encountered.

The stone blocks composing the ruins of houses, temples, etc., in these upper strata are of remarkably exact area, square proportions and excellently dressed. The more solid constructive work is, however, found in the remains of the original city. At this depth there was unearthed a perfectly preserved wine cellar. Some fifty huge jars or vases had evidently contained red wine, now turned to a light powdery substance. A large collection of valuable antiques in gold, marble and ancient pottery has also been found in these newly uncovered ruins. These have been dispatched to the Hermitage at St. Petersburg. M. Mormakovski, however, is carefully examining every antique unearthed, to establish its genuine character, as it was on this site that the spurious tiara of Saitapharnes, now in the Louvre, was alleged to have been discovered.

When Time Hung Heavy

J. B. Southard, old-day miner in the Western El Dorado, lawyer at the state bar, preacher for a season, judge on the bench, but now gone over "Lethe's wharf" into the sea that sweeps away to an unknown shore, once found time hanging on his hands.

He accidentally met one afternoon a long-lost friend and ex-partner from the mines of an upper county. The judge had not seen Bill since they had shoveled dirt into a flume together back in the dim '50's. They dropped all else and hugged each other in Oriental fervency. Then the hours flew with a whiz. Not in the ordinary rush, but so rapidly that the minutes and seconds fell off the body of time and were lost on the way. First at the Occidental bar, where the judge was at home; thence to Frank Garcia's, and afterward to the Pacific club—now out of date. Then to the other resorts frequented by the bohemians of the town and the day. Without halting they went over the route again, hurrying, hurrying on through the night. No account has been kept of the libations that were poured out in that bacchanalian feast. Bill had frequently turned himself loose and made the golden dust fly after the clean-up, but this was faster than the best time of a mining town carouse.

Along toward morning Bill began to break, and finally lost his feet. The judge carried him on around the stretch till his condition called imperiously for a downy bed and the restorer—sleep.

When the hack had rolled off for the hotel with Bill the deserted and lonely man stood looking sadly down the street. The sun was flushing the sky over the green Alameda hills and the young day was finding its way through the city streets. But time had left no record of the passing night. To him an hour was as a second and a century as a day.

"What shall I do," he soliloquized; "what the thunder shall I do the rest of the night?"—San Francisco Call.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

SUBSCRIBE NOW.

The offer of THE Union with the St. Louis Globe-Democrat which comes TWICE-A-WEEK, is great value. Just think of it, 156 papers a year for a hundred and fifty cents, less than 3c per week. Come in now. THE UNION is reaching for the 800 mark this month; in October we'll set our stakes farther on. Stand by your own paper the one that represents the people.

OUR CLUBBING LIST.

The Union and Yellow Jacket, both for one year $1.00
The Union and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser 1.25
The Union and Weekly Atlanta Constitution 1.50
tf

Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it. tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

PEOPLE'S PARTY NOMINEES.

County Ticket.

For Judge of Probate,
L. H. REYNOLDS.
For County Treasurer,
J. BICE.
For Tax Collector,
T. J. HUBBARD,
For Tax Assessor,
L. B. POUNDS.
For Clerk of Circuit Court,
SAM W. COLLINS.
For County Supt. of Education.
J. W. MOORE.
For Coroner,
FRANK MASSEY,
For County Commissioner, 1st District,
W. H. CONWAY,
For County Commissioner, 2d District,
ALEX GLASSCOCK.
For County Commissioner, 3d District,
R. P. KENDRICK.
For County Commissioner, 4th District
MOSES ROBINSON.
tf

HOLD YOUR COTTON.

We commend the following letter from Commissioner of Agriculture R. R. Poole to our people. Mr. Poole has a full general knowledge of the cotton crop in this and other states. It is his business and his advice should be heeded.

Mr. Poole's Letter.

"Montgomery, Ala., October 4, 1904.

"To the Farmers of Alabama: The government report of October 3d, putting the condition of the cotton crop at 75.8 is entirely too high. This report, in my opinion, is calculated to force the price of cotton to a lower level. Judging the future by the past, the report of last month of 84 was too high, as has been shown by the deterioration in the last month. I am satisfied that the report should not have been over 65 or 66.

"To every well informed man it is a well known fact that the cotton crop can not possibly go over 10,750,000 bales at the outside, and perhaps less. The excessive rains of July and August, followed by the extreme dry weather of the latter part of August and September, caused much rust and shedding. The extreme dry and hot weather has caused the cotton to prematurely open, and the increased facilities for ginning and handling the crop, coupled with the seductive price of 10 cents and over, has swelled the receipts enormously. In my opinion, 50 per cent of the cotton has been gathered and 97 1-2 per cent is open.

Trying to Hammer It Down.

"In thirty days the crop will all be gathered. The bear clique is doing everything in its power to hammer the prices down, and I earnestly advise the farmers not to sell their cotton for less than 10c. Enough has been sold to meet pressing obligations, and I advise them to hold the remainder of their crops. If you need money, hypothecate your warehouse receipts and borrow money from the banks. Every bale of cotton stored will increase in weight as soon as the rainy season commences, thereby paying all cost of storage and insurance. On the 9th of last October I estimated the cotton crop of Alabama at 1,000,000 bales, and the total yield at 10,471,000 bales. The cotton buyers all told me that I was too low, but my estimate of the crop was very much nearer the mark than the government report or Mr. Theodore H. Price's, who estimates this crop at 12,000,000 bales.

Masters of Situation.

"The cotton planters are masters of the situation if they but use the means that they have in their hands by following the plan suggested. I predict that you will realize 12 1-2c per pound for every pound of cotton before the 1st day of February. The question of frosts will cut no figure in this crop, as we have no top crop, and all of the cotton is already open. The Association of Southern Commissioners of Agriculture will hold its annual meeting on the 12th, 13th and 14th of this month at Baton Rouge, La. I predict that its estimate of the crop will be in the neighborhood of 10,750,000 bales of cotton. Farmers, hold your cotton and get 12 1-2c for it.

R. R. POOLE.
"Commissioner Agriculture and Industries."

THE RED CROSS.

A number of our subscribers will see a red X on their paper this week. This is only to remind them that they are in their second year for THE UNION and have not paid. They no doubt have forgotten it. A dollar is a comparatively small amount, but when so many forget it it is a serious thing for the editor of a paper.

The Banner Man.

The banner man denies the truth of our statements in THE UNION of September 22d as regards him. Let him specify what is untrue. For instance, did not the people's party of Chilton county take him up and support him and his paper? Did he not sell his paper out to Hon. S. J. Bowie in 1900? It seems to me that Bowie's private secretary said so. Did he not call the people's party of Chilton county "—ers" just after the primary in which they polled almost 1,000 votes, pretty near 400 more votes than the democrats on April 4th? Did he not take out his naturalization papers before Judge Denson in the spring term of court in 1902? Does it not follow that he was not a naturalized citizen of this country in 1896, when he ran for the nomination of representative? Did he not go on the stand before the Alabama Press Association in the investigation of rottenness in said association in 1903 and confess that he wrote a letter to Captain J. M. Falkner asking for passes for his two sisters? See the Montgomery Advertiser's report of that trial. He refers to Judge Honeycutt and Hon. L. H. Reynolds. We have not had a chance yet to interview Judge Honeycutt, but Mr. L. H. Reynolds says that all of The Union's article is true except that he has not any knowledge of the press association affair. This is all the space that we have to spare this time to Ananias Judas Crichton, but will deliver the rest later on. The word liar is the only word that will fit him. Ananias of old was a baby in his specialty to this man Crichton. We don't need to sign our name to this, as we have said time and again that we are personally responsible for all editorials.

VERBENA.

Editor Union:

Please allow me to add a few words to what Mr. J. N. Dennis said in last week's UNION. Mr. Dennis no doubt (like a number of good people) thinks Mr. Goss is sincere in what he says, but if Goss was sincere in saying E. B. Deason had a spotless character both public and private, and it was a duty we owed him (the probate office) that he is a self-made man and is trying to build himself up, etc., why did he (Goss) try so hard to defeat him in 1896 when Deason was making his canvass for circuit clerk and pleading the people's cause and could not get a house to speak in and so was forced to stand under a tree by the side of the public road? Why did Goss sit at a distance and refuse to hear him? No doubt but it made Mr. Deason feel a little sick to read them lines and think of the reception he got. Now, after Mr. Deason has gone back on the people that took him from the plow handles and honored him, Goss can yell himself hoarse, and that speaks true ring rule democracy. It's not surprising to hear those little fellows holler for Parker, for they had rather wear democratic tin roosters and patched breeches and return back to the days of 93-97 of corn bread and sorghum molasses than to own cattle of a thousand hills under any other administration than democratic. Yes, there is as much sincerity in Goss's letter as there is in Frank Crichton's "heart to heart talks," the tramp that has no doubt emigrated from his native soil for the benefit of his country. If there was any truth in Crichton's attacks on other people, it don't help his cause. Crichton has sold out the people that befriended him and called them absurd names without cause, and now tries to make it appear that Edler is one of the worst men in the world. In 1896 when the populist state convention was held at Montgomery, Chilton county was pledged to nominate a straight ticket and not to fuse with any other party. From some cause the delegate from beat 4 (Clanton) did not go, and this same Frank Crichton went and tried as the editor of the populist organ to land the whole populist party in the republican party, and there is a man still living that went to Crichton and told him if he didn't keep his mouth shut he would tell that convention he was not a delegate and expose him, and by that means kept him down. Was Crichton sincere in that or was he after the loaves and fishes? Yes, Crichton has used every means known to a sneak of an Englishman to get money from a people that has befriended him and then betrayed them into the hands of their enemies, and now says he would like to have his beastly carcass laid in a cemetery in our fair county.

A VOTER.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE HELD AT STANTON, ALA., SEPT. 23 AND 24, 1904.

FRIDAY.

The superintendent being absent, on motion, Professor W. B. Speer was elected temporary chairman.

Devotional exercises conducted by Rev. W. J. Ruddick.

Welcome address by Professor W. B. Speer.

On motion, J. R. Bone was chosen secretary and enrolled the names of the teachers.

The subject, "Fundamental Factors in School Room Education," was very ably discussed by Professor P. G. Maness, after which an adjournment for dinner was in order.

We can not compliment the good ladies too highly for the dinner, for it must have been enjoyed by all.

At 1:30 the society was called by singing.

"How to Make Alabama History Interesting" was discussed by Professor J. T. Martin, J. L. Ruffin and others.

"Should Chilton County Have Local Taxation?" was discussed by Professors W. B. Speer, W. J. Moore and Robert Jones, and the following resolutions were adopted:

"That it is the sense of this institute that the county school board should take immediate steps to secure local taxation for Chilton county."

"How to Teach Agriculture, and the Importance of this subject" discussed by Professor R. A. Rasco.

"Manual Training, or Folks and Things," discussed by Professor Robert Jones.

"What Should be Done by the County Board of Education Created Under the Redistricting Act?" discussed by W. O. Perry.

The society then adjourned till 7:30, when it was called to order again by singing. Then we were entertained by an interesting programme consisting of songs, recitations and an oration on "Greater Alabama" by Master Ira Dunsmore and short talks from Professors Rasco and Moore.

But the best of all was the ice cream and cake which was served after the exercises. The handsome sum of thirty-odd dollars was raised, which finished paying for a new organ for the school.

SATURDAY.

Devotional exercises conducted by Professor Robert Jones.

"Should We Let Pupils Elect Courses or Topics?" discussed by Professor J. L. Ruffin.

Educational address by Professor Robert Jones.

Resolutions:

"That we, the Chilton County institute, assembled at Stanton, have collectively and individually enjoyed the kindness and hospitality of the people; be it resolved:

"1st. That we express our thanks to Professors Speer and Jones for their time and labor in making pleasant arrangements for our entertainment.

"2nd. To those good people for the pleasure of their homes and associations.

"3d. To Master Ira Dunsmore for his oration, the choir for their music, and to all others who have in any way contributed to our pleasure.

"4th. To Superintendent Moore and other members of the board who have begun so earnestly to unify our county school work and pledge them our support.

"5th. To request THE UNION to publish the proceedings of this institute."

J. L. Ruffin, Miss Carrie Walker, Mrs. Dunlap, committee on resolutions.

J. W. MOORE,
County Supt.
J. R. BONE, Secretary.

A CARD.

Clanton, October 3, 1904.

Editor Union—As I can not see all my friends personally, I ask you to publish this card, which does, as best I can, express my thanks and heartfelt gratitude for the kindness shown me and mine during the illness of my little daughter, Sallie Florence, who died on September 28th. While it is a great loss and sorrow to me to give her up, I shall remember with fondness the fact that she died in the Lord, and will ever have a heart full of affection for those who so faithfully administered to her wants during her last days with us. Respectfully,

JOHN W. FOSHEE.

Hoar's Son Nominated.

The republican convention of the third Massachusetts congressional district nominated Rockwood Hoar, son of the late senator, by acclamation for representative. Just before the dissolution of the convention the delegates stood with bowed heads for a moment out of respect to Senator Hoar.

The objection to nurses bearing arms on German army life is not in their action, but in their truth.

Spooning and making love in public at Atlantic City is to be abolished. The municipality already has collected a number of fines from couples who refused to obey the notifications posted about. The era of spooning has passed so far as that resort is concerned. The strong hand of the law grasps the wrist of the audacious youngster and unwinds his arm from the pliant waist, the New York News glibly remarks.

It is not alone that the conduct of the Japanese war vessels in saving the drowning seamen of the Rurik battleship is to be commended for its humanity and Christianity, the Newark (N. J.) Daily True American remarks, but it is in the contrast afforded of the Russian warship which sank a transport with its hundreds of human crew without lifting a hand to save a life. Russia is supposed to be a Christian nation and Japan is not, but Japan, in these incidents, stands far ahead of Russia in every attribute of Christianity and civilization.

The danger of convicting on the evidence of personal identifications, so painfully shown in the recent case of Adolph Beck, twice falsely imprisoned on the testimony of numerous witnesses, has just been still further illustrated in the West London Police Court. One Maria Ryder swore that one Thomas Ryder was her husband, and had deserted her in 1869. Ryder denied it, and Mrs. Ryder sought to prove her case by means of the scars of burns on his arm. Ryder bared the member, and the burns were not forthcoming. All he had in common with the culprit was his name.

School houses and the yards connected with them are neglected everywhere, declares Green's Fruit Grower. Where the buildings are fairly good, or where they are dilapidated, in almost every case the yard itself seems to have received no attention, and yet how easy it would be to gather from the forest trees of the maple, elm, beech or basswood to plant on the outskirts, and inside of these low growing shrubs, which, planted irregularly along the borders on both sides and in the rear of school grounds, would give the schoolhouse a framework or setting which would make it attractive, not only to the school children and teacher, but to the passers-by.

A Maine Methodist writes to the Zion's Herald, a Boston paper of that denomination, that he is now the sole Methodist left in his neighborhood, the rest having been drawn away to churches of "higher social standing." As soon as Methodists "are elevated to any degree of prosperity or social eminence," he explains, they want to get into a more fashionable crowd. This suggests a remark made by an English Bishop many years ago, that when dissenters drive in their own carriages they are likely to pass by the dissenting "chapel" and rein up at a "church." Snobbishness is carried even into the domain of religion. Wesley prophesied wisely when he said that if wealth and fashion came into Methodism by the door, religion would fly out by the window. Preference for a church because of its "social standing" may not be unnatural, and certainly it is frequent; but, as this forlorn Maine Methodist remarks, it is "a culling process on a social basis not flattering to the religious character" of the culled.

Will Meet at Talladega.

At its regular monthly meeting at the capitol the Alabama railroad commission decided to hold a special meeting at Talladega on December 13th to consider the application of citizens therefor better depot accommodations for the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and Yellow Jacket, $1.00
The UNION and Home and Farm $1.00
The UNION and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser. $1.25
The UNION and Weekly Atlanta Constitution. $1.50
The UNION and Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's Second Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton county for the year 1904, and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Benson, beat 3, Nov. 1, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Nov. 2, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Nov. 3, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Nov. 4, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Nov. 7, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Nov. 8, 1904.
Gentry & Cofer's Mill, beat 2, Nov. 9, 1904.
Hayes' Mill, beat 2, Nov. 10, 1904.
Providence, beat 2, Nov. 11, 1904.
Elijah Buzbee's, beat 2, Nov. 12, 1904, till 12 m.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Nov. 14, 1904.
Smith's Schoolhouse, beat 1, Nov. 15, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Nov. 16, 1904.
Providence, beat 10, Nov. 17, 1904.
Burwell, beat 10, Nov. 18, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Nov. 21, 1904.
Davis & Rollins' gin, beat 6, Nov 22, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Nov. 23, 1904.
Stanton, beat 8, Nov. 24, 1904.
Valley Creek, beat 8, Nov. 25, 1904
Clanton Ford, beat 8, Nov. 26, 1904. till 12 m.
Verbena, beat 5, Nov. 28, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Nov. 29, 1904.
Clanton, beat 4, Nov. 30, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Dec. 1-2, 1904.
Clanton, last 10 days in the year commencing December 20, 1904.

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.
tf

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Notice No. 25613.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., September 12th, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of the Circuit Court at Clanton, Ala., on October 21st, 1904, viz; Hiram P. Collum, Homestead entry No. 35417, for the Ne 1-4 of Section 20, Tp 24 n of R 14 east.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Sam Caton, John N. Northcutt, Henry Gentry, Alexander Gentry, all of Jemison, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
tf Register.

LOST.

A three year old heifer, color yellow, with white ring around nose and white tail with black bush. Anyone returning said animal or giving information that leads to her recovery will be liberally rewarded by applying to
tf THE UNION OFFICE.

Closing Out Sale.

J. W. Franzen, of Thorsby, Ala., will sell his large stock of General Merchandise, as he is compelled to quit business on account of his health Everything to be sold at greatly reduced prices, in quantities to suit purchasers. Also Farming Lands and Orchard Tracts for sale.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of
SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS. PAINTS OILS and GLASS.
We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.
CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 acres within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is timbered, 1 set mill-rocks, 48 inch, 1 Horse, weight 1100 lbs.
Alfred Popwell,
tf Clanton, Ala.

Notice.

All persons who are indebted to me will please call and settle such account at once, as I am closing out my business. Respectfully
J. W. Franzen,
Thorsby, Ala.

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton County for the year 1904 and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Clanton, beat 4, Oct. 1, 1904
Kincheon, beat 6, Oct. 3, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Oct. 4, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Oct. 5, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Oct. 6, 1904
Maplesville, beat 7, Oct. 7, 1904.
Benson, beat 3, Oct. 8, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Oct. 10, 1904.
Providence, beat 2, Oct. 11, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Oct. 12, 1904.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Oct. 13, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Oct. 14, 1904.
Cane Creek, beat 4, Oct. 15, 1904, till 12 m.
Mountain Creek, beat 5, Oct. 17, 1904
Verbena, beat 5, Oct. 18, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Oct. 19, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Oct. 20, 1904.
James Maddox's gin, beat 4, Oct. 21, 1904

A. C. MIMS,
Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector. tf

CHILTON COUNTY FARMERS' ALLIANCE.

Recommendation to Planters.

Chilton County Farmers' Alliance, in called session assembled, recommend to the farmers of this and other counties of the state, the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions, "being the full report of the special committee on warehouse, and

Whereas, from all reports from the planters and public press, we believe the cotton crop will be short in comparison with the estimate of sixty days ago, caused by excessive rains and rust, and

Whereas, arrangements have been perfected with the Planters' warehouse of Clanton for storage of cotton, including storage, weighing, sampling and shipping at 25 cents for first month or part thereof, and 5 cents per week for each succeeding week, and

Whereas, arrangements have been perfected with the Peoples' Savings Bank of Clanton to advance cash to three-fourths market value of each bale so stored, at rate of interest at 8 per cent per annum, and

Whereas, arrangements have been made for the insurance of cotton at three-fourths to full value at 15 to 20 cents per bale per month, and

Whereas, we believe it to be to the interest of all who grow cotton to avail themselves of these opportunities and withhold sale of their cotton until 1st of February or March, 1905, and

Whereas, the merchant has promised to aid in the above arrangements; therefore be it

Resolved, That we request the farmers and cotton growers to store their cotton until after Christmas, and if needed, draw three-fourths value in cash on same, and not sell until satisfactory prices are reached, and not rush their cotton on the market and depress the price, as is now being done, marketing a crop in ninety days that requires twelve months to produce.

We earnestly solicit the co-operation of all cotton growers and newspapers friendly to the view that cotton will bring a higher price later on.

Unanimously adopted and secretary ordered to have 1000 copies printed for distribution among alliancemen and farmers.

MOSES ROBINSON,
President Chilton County Farmers' Alliance.
W. H. CONWAY, Chm. Warehouse Com., and Lect. C. C. F. A.
Clanton, Ala., September 14, 1904.
tf

IMPORTANT!

GIN SAWS FILED—I have one of the best machines made for that business. Put in your order now if you have any work in this line.

J. M. MADDOX.
Clanton, Ala.

Coming Events

NOTICE.

I am ready to lecture to or organize any alliance on short notice, and hold myself ready to attend all calls.

W. H. CONWAY,
County Lecturer and Organizer.

ALABAMA GIRLS' INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL,
Montevallo, Ala.

Literary, Scientific, Commercial, Industrial, Domestic, Pedagogical, Musical, Artistic.

Session opens September 15th. Expenses, $90.

Healthful location. Faculty of 27 teachers.

For catalogue, address
FRANCIS M. PETERSON
tf Montevallo, Ala.

REGISTRARS' DATES.

Clanton, fourth Monday in September, and all that week to register all applicants who may be entitled to registration. Also on Friday and Saturday, November 4th and 5th. A resident of any beat in the county can register at Clanton on the above dates. tf

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton County for the year 1904 and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Clanton, beat 4, Oct. 1, 1904
Kincheon, beat 6, Oct. 3, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Oct. 4, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Oct. 5, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Oct. 6, 1904
Maplesville, beat 7, Oct. 7, 1904.
Benson, beat 3, Oct. 8, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Oct. 10, 1904.
Providence, beat 2, Oct. 11, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Oct. 12, 1904.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Oct. 13, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Oct. 14, 1904.
Cane Creek, beat 4, Oct. 15, 1904, till 12 m.
Mountain Creek, beat 5, Oct. 17, 1904
Verbena, beat 5, Oct. 18, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Oct. 19, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Oct. 20, 1904.
James Maddox's gin, beat 4, Oct. 21, 1904

A. C. MIMS,
Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector. tf

CHILTON COUNTY FARMERS' ALLIANCE.

Recommendation to Planters.

Chilton County Farmers' Alliance, in called session assembled, recommend to the farmers of this and other counties of the state, the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions, "being the full report of the special committee on warehouse, and

Whereas, from all reports from the planters and public press, we believe the cotton crop will be short in comparison with the estimate of sixty days ago, caused by excessive rains and rust, and

Whereas, arrangements have been perfected with the Planters' warehouse of Clanton for storage of cotton, including storage, weighing, sampling and shipping at 25 cents for first month or part thereof, and 5 cents per week for each succeeding week, and

Whereas, arrangements have been perfected with the Peoples' Savings Bank of Clanton to advance cash to three-fourths market value of each bale so stored, at rate of interest at 8 per cent per annum, and

Whereas, arrangements have been made for the insurance of cotton at three-fourths to full value at 15 to 20 cents per bale per month, and

Whereas, we believe it to be to the interest of all who grow cotton to avail themselves of these opportunities and withhold sale of their cotton until 1st of February or March, 1905, and

Whereas, the merchant has promised to aid in the above arrangements; therefore be it

Resolved, That we request the farmers and cotton growers to store their cotton until after Christmas, and if needed, draw three-fourths value in cash on same, and not sell until satisfactory prices are reached, and not rush their cotton on the market and depress the price, as is now being done, marketing a crop in ninety days that requires twelve months to produce.

We earnestly solicit the co-operation of all cotton growers and newspapers friendly to the view that cotton will bring a higher price later on.

Unanimously adopted and secretary ordered to have 1000 copies printed for distribution among alliancemen and farmers.

MOSES ROBINSON,
President Chilton County Farmers' Alliance.
W. H. CONWAY, Chm. Warehouse Com., and Lect. C. C. F. A.
Clanton, Ala., September 14, 1904.
tf

IMPORTANT!

GIN SAWS FILED—I have one of the best machines made for that business. Put in your order now if you have any work in this line.

J. M. MADDOX.
Clanton, Ala.

X, OFFICIALS

...dson Strock.
...W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rol...
...Mullins, J. M. Potts.
...Watts Moore.
...Ed Smitherman.

...TS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.
...Term—1st Monday in April.
...Term—3rd Monday in July.
...Term—1st Monday in Novem...
...T. Scott Sayre.
...F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
...B. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.
...Term—2nd Monday in March.
...Term—2nd Monday in Septem...
...ller—Hon. R. B. Kelley, An...
...—Mrs. E. A. Stewart, Clan...

COUNTY COURT.
...Monday in each month.

...MISSIONERS' COURT.
...Monday February, 1st Monday ...t Monday June, 2nd Monday ...f Monday August, 1st Monday ...er.

COUNTY OFFICERS.
...of Probate—S. M. Adams.
...rer—Alex G. Dake.
...—J. M. Morgan.
...—J. O. Middleton.
...Assessor—A. C. Mims.
...Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

...UNTY COMMISSIONERS.
...District—W. H. Conway.
...d District—Alex Glasscock.
...District—W. A. Green.
...h District—R. C. Riggins.

...UPT. OF EDUCATION.
...J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.
...W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.
...L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

...NTY CHURCHES

...s and clerks are cordially ask...nd the editor any news regard...y churches which they would ...blished. Also if there are any ...these notices please send cor...

...ISSIONARY BAPTISTS.
...—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
...es, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
...Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas...C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
...on—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; ...Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
...y—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday. ...ett, clerk, Verbena.
...—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st ...d Sundays. W. I. Mullins, ...
...Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th ...V. J. Gragg, clerk.
...Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, ...J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
...—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd ...T. N. Parrish, clerk.
...Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm...1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, ...
...t Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, ...J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
...—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd ...W. B. Jones, clerk.
...Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, ...y. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
...—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st ...M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
...—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas...J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
...—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas...H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
...—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ...odgers, clerk, Jemison.
...Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd ...W. M. Wood, clerk.
...nia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd ...H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
...Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas...J. Barnes, clerk, British.
...—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ...arey, clerk, Randolph.
...Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud...or; W. M. Roebuck, clerk, ...
...Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, ...D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
...Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, ...W. H. Wilson, clerk.
...nia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd ...George Trawick, clerk.
...dron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas...Billingsley, clerk.
...lem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, ...G. W. Hill, clerk.
...po—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd ...Henry Smith, clerk.
...Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, ...M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
...Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom...day; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
...Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, ...R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
...Grove—Rev. G. W. Free...; H. C. Latham, clerk, ...
...Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, ...J. J. McDowell, clerk.
...—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt. ...W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi...
...—Rev. W. J. Armstrong. ...Robinson, clerk, Clan...
...J. D. Hughes, pastor; ...son, clerk, Rushton.
...T. J. Deason, 2nd ...J. Billingsley, clerk.
...Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sat... tf

...J. Dea...
...Thorsby—...
...Robert Jones...
Union Gro...
...pastor; R. ...
...son.
Union Poi...
Sunday. J. ...
Verbena—...
Sunday. T. ...
Valley Cre...
...er; J. W. ...
...ville.

PRIM...
Bethel—E...
Saturday be...
J. T. Aberna...

It is belie...
three golden ...
Lombard m...
bearings ...
representati...
...ddress.

METHOD...
Clanton Circ...
Thorsby—...
Walnut G...
...ng.
Unity—2nd ...
Shady Gro...
Mount Pisg...
Enterprise—...

CHR...
Highland ...
Lett, 3rd Sun...
T. L. Adams, ...
Enterprise—...
Sunday. T. ...

NORWE...
St. Olafs, ...
...pastor. Ever...

SWED...
Concordia, ...
...berg. Every...
Rocky Mo...
Mr. Carroll, ... service every ...
noons. Pray...
...nesday night...

FRATE...
Clanton R...
Third Saturd...
Amande Lo...
250—Fourth ...
Clanton Lo...
423—First Sa...
Century Lo...
567—First Sa...
Bozeman L...
No. 534—Sat...
...moon, Marbu...
Jemison Lo...
411—Saturday ...
Jemison.
Stanton Lo...
473—Tuesday ...
Stanton.

Jemison Lo...
...urdays.
Clanton Lod... fourth Saturd...

WOODME...
Black Jack ... and third Mo...

FINANC...

BRITISH AMI...
Of T...
1st ...

UNITED ...

Government ...
State and mu...
Cash on hand ...
Stocks and bo...
Premiums in ...
Interest due ...

Reserve premi...
Y. Standard ...
Reserve for ...
es ....

Surplus in Un...

Total income ...
States for ...
Total losses p...
from 1874 to ...
sive ....

WALLACE ...
Clanton, ...

NOTICE F...
Noti...
Department of ... fice at Mont...
12, 1904.
Notice is he...
lowing named ...
of his intention ...
support of his ...
proof will be m...
Circuit Court ...
tober 21st, 190...
lum, Homestea...
the Se 1-4 of S...
14 east.
He names the ...
prove his cont...
and cultivation ...
Caton, John N. ... try, Alexander ...
son, Ala.
...ROBERT...
tf

Coming Events

NOTICE.

I am ready to lecture to or organize any alliance on short notice, and hold myself ready to attend all calls.

W. H. CONWAY,
County Lecturer and Organizer.

ALABAMA GIRLS' INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL,
Montevallo, Ala.

Literary, Scientific, Commercial, Industrial, Domestic, Pedagogical, Musical, Artistic.

Session opens September 15th. Expenses, $90.

Healthful location. Faculty of 27 teachers.

For catalogue, address
FRANCIS M. PETERSON,
tf Montevallo, Ala.

REGISTRARS' DATES.

Clanton, fourth Monday in September, and all that week to register all applicants who may be entitled to registration. Also on Friday and Saturday, November 4th and 5th. A resident of any beat in the county can register at Clanton on the above dates. tf

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton County for the year 1904 and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Clanton, beat 4, Oct. 1, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Oct. 3, 1904.
Fletcher, beat 8, Oct. 4, 1904.
Dixie, beat 9, Oct. 5, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Oct. 6, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Oct. 7, 1904.
Benson, beat 3, Oct. 8, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Oct. 10, 1904.
Providence, beat 2, Oct. 11, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Oct. 12, 1904.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Oct. 13, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Oct. 14, 1904.
Cane Creek, beat 4, Oct. 15, 1904, till 12 m
Mountain Creek, beat 5, Oct. 17, 1904
Verbena, beat 5, Oct. 18, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Oct. 19, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Oct. 20, 1904.
James Maddox's gin, beat 4, Oct. 21, 1904

A. C. MIMS,
Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector. tf

CHILTON COUNTY FARMERS' ALLIANCE.

Recommendation to Planters.

Chilton County Farmers' Alliance, in called session assembled, recommend to the farmers of this and other counties of the state, the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions, "being the full report of the special committee on warehouse, and

Whereas, from all reports from the planters and public press, we believe the cotton crop will be short in comparison with the estimate of sixty days ago, caused by excessive rains and rust, and

Whereas, arrangements have been perfected with the Planters' warehouse of Clanton for storage of cotton, including storage, weighing, sampling and shipping at 25 cents for first month or part thereof, and 5 cents per week for each succeeding week, and

Whereas, arrangements have been perfected with the Peoples' Savings Bank of Clanton to advance cash to three-fourths market value of each bale so stored, at rate of interest at 8 per cent per annum, and

Whereas, arrangements have been made for the insurance of cotton at three-fourths to full value at 15 to 20 cents per bale per month, and

Whereas, we believe it to be to the interest of all who grow cotton to avail themselves of these opportunities and withhold sale of their cotton until 1st of February or March, 1905, and

Whereas, the merchant has promised to aid in the above arrangements; therefore be it

Resolved, That we request the farmers and cotton growers to store their cotton until after Christmas, and if needed, draw three-fourths value in cash on same, and not sell until satisfactory prices are reached, and not rush their cotton on the market and depress the price, as is now being done, marketing a crop in ninety days that requires twelve months to produce.

We earnestly solicit the co-operation of all cotton growers and newspapers friendly to the view that cotton will bring a higher price later on.

Unanimously adopted and secretary ordered to have 1000 copies printed for distribution among alliancemen and farmers. MOSES ROBINSON,
President Chilton County Farmers' Alliance.
W. H. CONWAY, Chm. Warehouse Com., and Lect. C. C. F. A.
Clanton, Ala., September 14, 1904.
tf

IMPORTANT!

GIN SAWS FILED—I have one of the best machines made for that business. Put in your order now if you have any work in this line.

J. M. MADDOX.
Clanton, Ala.

...Y OFFICIALS

...dson Strock.
...W. M. Wilson, R. G. Rot...
...Mullins, J. M. Potts.
...Watts Moore.
...Ed Smitherman.

...TS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.
...Term—1st Monday in April.
... Term—3rd Monday in July.
...—1st Monday in Novem...

...F. Scott Sayre.
...F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
...B. Deasom, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.
...Term—2nd Monday in March.
...—2nd Monday in Septem...

...—Hon. R. B. Kelley, An...
...—Mrs. E. A. Stewart, Cla...

COUNTY COURT.
...onday in each month.

...MISSIONERS' COURT.
...day February, 1st Monday
... Monday June, 2nd Monday
... Monday August, 1st Monday

...COUNTY OFFICERS.
... Probate—S. M. Adams.
...—Alex G. Dake.
...—J. M. Morgan.
...—J. O. Middleton.
...sessor—A. C. Mims.
...llector—T. J. Hubbard.

...NTY COMMISSIONERS.
...District—W. H. Conway,
... District—Alex Glasscock.
... District—W. A. Green.
... District—R. C. Riggins.

...PT. OF EDUCATION.
... W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.
...W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.
... H. Reynolds, Jemison.

...NTY CHURCHES

...d clerks are cordially asked ...the editor any news regarding churches which they would ...lished. Also if there are any ...these notices please send cor...

...SSIONARY BAPTISTS.
...—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
...es, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
...lem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas...
... Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
...n—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; ...Wilkins, clerk, Fletcher.
...y—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday.
...ett, clerk, Verbena.
...—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st ... Sundays. W. I. Mullins, ...

...ek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th ...V. J. Gragg, clerk.
...Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, ...Samons, clerk, Jemison.
...—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd ...T. N. Parrish, clerk.
... Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm... Sunday. J. W. Littleton, ...

...t Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, ...W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
...—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd ...W. B. Jones, clerk.
...Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, ...r. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
...—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st ...M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
...—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas... Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
...—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas... Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
...—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ...dgers, clerk, Jemison.
...Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd ...W. M. Wood, clerk.
...ia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd ...H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
...ll—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas... Barnes, clerk, British.
...y—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ...ey, clerk, Randolph.
...Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud... W. M. Roebuck, clerk, ...

...ion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, ...H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
...Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, ...H. Wilson, clerk.
...ia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd ...George Trawick, clerk.
...dron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas... Billingsley, clerk.
...em—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, ...G. W. Hill, clerk.
...—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd ...Henry Smith, clerk.
... Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, ...M. Tidwell, clerk, Fletcher.
... Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom... D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
... Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, ...R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
... Grove—Rev. G. W. Free... H. C. Latham, clerk,

...prings—Rev. W. J. Bone, ...J. J. McDowell, clerk.
...—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt. ...W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi...

...—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, ...y Robinson, clerk, Clan...

...v. J. D. Hughes, pastor; ...on, clerk, Rushton.
...er. T. J. Deason, pas... J. Billingsley, clerk.
...ev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun... tf

...v. J. Deason, clerk, Adams.
...Thorsby—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Robert Jones, clerk, Thorsby.
Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, pastor; R. S. Chandler, clerk, Jemison.
Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 1st Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.
Verbena—Rev. J. W. Partridge, 1st Sunday. T. J. Bland, clerk.
Valley Creek—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. W. Mitchell, clerk, Plantersville.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.
Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

It is believed that the sign of the three golden balls was adopted by Lombard merchants from the armorial bearings of the Medici family, some representatives of whom were moneylenders.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.
Clanton Circuit, Rev. T. F. Davis, Pastor.
Thorsby—1st Sunday.
Walnut Grove—2nd Sunday, morning.
Unity—2nd Sunday, evening.
Shady Grove—3rd Sunday.
Mount Pisgah—4th Sunday, morning.
Enterprise—4th Sunday, evening.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.
Highland School House—Rev. M. F. Lett, 3rd Sunday and Saturday before. T. L. Adams, clerk.
Enterprise—Rev. M. F. Lett, 4th Sunday. T. F. Patterson, clerk.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN.
St. Olafs, Thorsby—Rev. H. Engh, pastor. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.
Concordia, Thorsby—Rev. J. E. Hedberg. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2d Sunday. Song service every 2d and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.
MASONIC.
Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday, Clanton.
Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 250—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.
Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 423—First Saturday, Clanton.
Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 567—First Saturday Billingsley.
Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.
Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 411—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.
Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 473—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.
Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.
Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.
WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.
Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT
of the
BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE CO.
Of Toronto, Canada.
1st January, 1904.

UNITED STATES BRANCH.

Assets.

Government bonds	$223,650.00
State and municipal bonds	511,473.19
Cash on hand and deposit	169,730.71
Stocks and bonds	305,793.00
Premiums in course of col.	204,834.79
Interest due and accrued.	11,833.20
	$1,427,304.89

Liabilities.

Reserve premium fund (N. Y. Standard).	$849,771.77
Reserve for unpaid losses	100,786.14
	$950,557.91
Surplus in United States.	$476,746.98
Total income in United States for 1903	$1,547,736.84
Total losses paid in U. S. from 1874 to 1903, inclusive	$14,674,843.26

WALLACE C. EDLER, Agent,
Clanton, Alabama.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.
Notice No. 25612.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., September 12, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of the Circuit Court at Clanton, Ala., on October 21st, 1904, viz. Burton E. Collum, Homestead entry, No. 35416, for the Se 1-4 of Section 20, Tp 24 n of R 14 east.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Sam Caton, John N. Northcutt, Henry Gentry, Alexander Gentry, all of Jemison, Ala.

ROBERT BLACKWELL, Register.

LOCAL WEATHER REPORT.

U. S. Department of Agriculture. — Weather Bureau.
CLANTON, ALA.
Week ending Oct. 5

Date	Temperature High	Low	Rain fall
Sep 29	100	60
30	99	64
Oct 1	100	63
2	95	55
3	100	57
4	90	49
5	91	54

A. STEWART, Obs.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.
Total receipts to Oct. 5, '04, 2213.
Price on same date, 9 1-2c.
Total receipts same week '03, 1498.
Price same date 1903, 8 3-4c.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

E. J. Kelly was in Clanton Thursday.

Rev. W. M. Wood and wife were in town last week.

Secar Harris was a pleasant visitor Thursday.

W. A. Riggins was in Clanton Thursday. His father, J. W. Riggins, has made 102 gallons of sorghum syrup on a patch of about 3-16 of an acre, only seven days' labor, including planting and hauling. Don't that beat cotton? J. W. Hayes boiled the syrup in 12 hours, including three cool downs.

J. N. Culpepper was a welcome visitor Thursday.

Allen and Roberts saw mill burned out September 28th. Only a little lumber was saved.

J. W. Hayes was a pleasant visitor Thursday.

W. M. Barrett was in Clanton Friday.

Congressman S. J. Bowie paid us a call Friday. He is going through his district "fixing his fences."

T. M. Harrison, of Coosa, and W. A. and L. D. Looney, of Talladega, were in Clanton Saturday.

L. A. McGraw was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

J. M. Curlee was a welcome caller Saturday.

J. W. FRANZEN, OF THORSBY, IS SELLING OUT. tf

Additional rural mail routes to be established November 1st: One each from Clanton, Jemison and Verbena.

H. W. Devaugha was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

G. W. Foshee was a caller Saturday.

Collector Hubbard and Assessor Mims started on their tax round Saturday, beginning at Clanton.

J. R. Popwell was a pleasant visitor Monday.

CALL ON J. W. FRANZEN FOR EXTRA BARGAINS. tf

B. E. Collum was in Clanton Monday.

Two car loads of new style furniture just received at W. I. Mullins'. Big assortment and great value.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Vickers were in Clanton Saturday. Their little daughter, Esther, who has just recovered from a severe illness, accompanied them.

CUT PRICES RULE AT FRANZEN'S. tf

W. J. Patterson was a pleasant visitor Tuesday.

Hon. W. J. Martin, a prominent lawyer of Ensley, was in Clanton Tuesday, he being retained as counsel in the Cate-Marcus case before the county court. They waived to the grand jury.

DON'T FORGET FRANZEN'S BARGAINS. tf

Sheriff Morgan returned last week from Gulfport, Miss., with Oce Holman, who was wanted on account of highway robbery near Maplesville some months back. The sheriff says he will uphold our laws and arrest anybody that breaks them, no matter who.

Sheriff Morgan went to Thorsby Wednesday on business.

George Gore went to Birmingham Wednesday on a business trip.

Enoch H. Foshee is carrier for the new Clanton route, with Woodie Ward as substitute.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Clyde J. Moore and Miss Ida G. Reynolds. Will Wood and Miss Annie Jane Norwood. J. W. Sharbutt and Miss Emma Davis.

DEATH OF MISS S. F. FOSHEE.

Miss Sallie Florence Foshee died September 28th at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Foshee, aged sixteen years. On the 29th Rev. A. C. Swindall, of East Lake, who is the Baptist pastor at Clanton, preached the funeral sermon at Clanton Baptist church to a large assemblage of relatives and friends, and the body was then taken to Clanton cemetery and interred. The young lady was only taken sick ten days before her death, but in spite of skillful medical attendance and good nursing her life could not be saved. She was the only daughter of John W. and Martha Foshee, and leaves, besides her parents, six brothers to mourn her loss. Miss Sallie had been a consistent Baptist for some years and her sweet disposition had gained her many warm friends, who deeply mourn her untimely death. "There is no fear for those that die in the Lord."

COMMITTEES MET.

The people's party county committee met in Clanton Tuesday. They selected the men that will represent the party in the election of November 8th as managers and clerks and transacted other important business. The republican county committee that was elected by the Thorsby convention also met on the same date and selected the men who they wish appointed managers and clerks. The committee took no official action in regard to the Clanton postmastership. Among those in attendance on the two committees were W. H. Shaw, J. D. Collins, F. J. Fitts, W. T. Nix, A. F. Childress, J. M. Grant, G. W. Thomas, J. H. Gore, W. T. Mahan, C. L. Langston, S. W. Collins, J. R. Thomas, L. B. Pounds, L. H. Reynolds, Alex Glasscock, R. J. Williams, J. Bice, Charles L. Glasscock, W. F. Foshee, B. C. Crawford, E. J. Jones, W. J. Atchison, J. M. Wilson and M. A. Killgore.

The Thorsby republican committee also nominated a full county ticket as follows: Judge of probate, L. H. Reynolds; county treasurer, J. Bice; tax collector, T. J. Hubbard; tax assessor, L. B. Pounds; circuit clerk, Sam W. Collins; county superintendent of education, J. W. Moore; coroner, Frank Massey; commissioners, first district, W. H. Conway; second district, Alex Glasscock; third district, R. P. Kendrick; fourth district, Moses Robinson.

THORSBY.

Miss Rosa Forsman spent a few days last week with her sister at St. Vincent's Hospital, Birmingham.

Mrs. J. K. Snyder returned to her home here last Wednesday from Indiana, where she has been visiting relatives and friends.

Rev. C. E. Crenshaw, of Verbena, was in our city Friday.

Mrs. S. E. Norton, who has been spending the past few weeks among friends and relatives in Chicago, is expected to return this week.

Miss Alena Lefstad entertained the Sunshine Society Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Heaton and daughter, who have been ill for the past few weeks, are now convalescent.

S. W. Collins made a business trip to Birmingham Friday.

Wm. Walker, of Mulberry, visited friends here Friday.

Dr. McNiel, of Jemison, was in our city Friday.

Walter Hill returned to Birmingham Saturday after spending a week here with relatives.

I. E. Sarber returned home Friday. He has spent the last few weeks at Prattville.

Lewis Bazer and wife, of Griswold, Ia., are guests of W. W. Wright. They are en route to Pensacola, where they will spend the winter.

Miss Robinson, of Birmingham, who has been visiting Mrs. Katie Pugh, returned to her home Saturday.

Miss Jones, of Jemison, is assisting Professor Ruffin in the normal school.

Ed Snyder, of Prattville, spent Sunday here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Snyder.

The old settlers of this town spent a pleasant day at Mineral Springs Sunday, celebrating their anniversary.

Mrs. Fors died at her home here Monday morning. Her son arrived here from Chicago Sunday evening.

Calvin Pugh, of Selma, is the guest of his motner, Mrs. Rawlinson.

"OTHELLO."

PLEASANT GROVE LOCALS.

Our people are busy picking cotton, and the harvest will soon be gathered in this section. Merchant W. E. Thomas is doing a thriving business with his new fall goods. Our gins are doing splendid business, running day and night to keep up. Miss Selma Patterson is visiting her sister, Mrs. Green, at Parkwood. Moses Payne, of Bibb county, was a pleasant visitor here Sunday. Mrs. Elizabeth Franklin is quite sick, but we all hope for her speedy recovery. Terry Ward, who has been on the sick list, is now convalescent. W. R. Dawson visited his sick brother, Calloway Dawson, Sunday. We regret the loss of one of our good citizens, Mr. Seaborn Cleckley, who died on the 28th ult. and was laid to rest in the family grave yard near his place on the 29th. Miss Emma Hubbard and Mr. F. W. Fitts were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Caddell Sunday. D. C. Smitherman had five bales of cotton picked last week. Success to THE UNION and its readers.

"ANGELO."

PROVIDENCE.

Editor Union—Please allow us space in our valued paper to say a few words. Having seen a piece some time ago in THE UNION from our much beloved brother and pastor, Joseph H. Thomas, in which he refers to the people of Providence, we want to say to the public generally that he has preached for us three years, and we know him to be all right. He has been preaching to us since the primary, and if there is any change in him it is for the better; in fact, we hear it said that Brother Thomas is doing some of the best preaching we have yet heard, or better than before the primary election. Notwithstanding it has been said he had quit his churches on account of politics, we want to deny the infamous charge. We only wish that we had more men like him, both in politics and the ministry. You will always find him true to what he professes. We believe he's more determined now than ever before, and he is worthy of any honors that the people can bestow upon him. He is useful in many ways, being weighty as well as witty. Respectfully,

W. R. Houlditch, J. A. Lowry, W. A. Sims, P. L. Verden, W. H. Shaw, J. H. Anderson, J. F. Lowery.

The Sak's Store
Birmingham, Alabama.
READY-MADE Apparel for Men, Women and Children.
Our Mail Order Department is quick, efficient and serviceable.
Write for Catalogue

DRINK
CREAM of KENTUCKY Whisky.
Sold only by
COLLINS BROS., Calera, Alabama.
Mail orders promptly filled.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.
—Is at The Head of The Procession.—
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,
COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.
W. I. MULLINS,
Clanton. Alabama

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,
Furniture and Rugs.
—SOLE AGENTS—
Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.
Catalogue for the asking.
1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,
Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.
County and Office Supplies a Specialty.
Ask for Estimates.
2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association
of Alabama.
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
By the People and for the People.
Chilton County Branch
Organized February 3rd, 1900.
W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.
INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.
Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.
Full particulars furnished upon application to
WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

PAUL CALAME,
205 21st Street
Birmingham, Ala.
Practical Watchmaker and Optician
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly filled

A most complete
Stock of General Merchandise, Dress Goods, Etc.
The Millinery Department
is complete in every detail and is in charge of a first-class milliner, Miss Clere Small, of St. Louis
P. D. WILSON,
CLANTON, ALABAMA.

PORTO RICO REGENERATE

TROPICAL SPECIALITIES THAT WILL REVOLUTIONIZE THE ISLAND.

The Prosperity Must Always Rest on Its Agriculture—The Litchi Tree—Prospects for Sapodillas—The Cashew Tree—Ylang-Ylang Oil.

Tropical Porto Rico is to be revolutionized. American influences there may not always have been for the best, but the process of adaptation is steadily progressing. When this is completed there will be a new future for Porto Rico. The prosperity of the island must always rest in its agriculture; but this must be brought up to date, and made to yield its quota of the world's goods that are in special demand.

Under the scientific directions of the department of agriculture it is proposed to make Porto Rico an island of specialties—specialties in tropical commercial fruits. Sugar, tobacco, and a few other staple products will not be abandoned; but the island's salvation appears to lie in other directions. It needs more variety of industries—more materials out of which to weave a solid, substantial prosperity.

The soil, climate, and other conditions are all there, and even the products in some instances but there have been lacking the brains and the ability to adapt nature to the demands of the day. For some time now government experts have been studying the botany of the island, and incidentally experimenting with some of the native and important plants of commercial value. The opening of the prosperity of Porto Rico will begin with the cultivation of these plants according to the most recent scientific methods. Many of them are indigenous to the island, but either through lack of proper culture, or ignorance of their commercial value, they have been of little real use to the natives. Others are to be imported from the Orient and transplanted to the island for cultivation. They are eminently adapted to the soil and climate of Porto Rico, and hence there is little doubt, in the minds of the scientists having the matter in charge, about their success.

One of these new plants to be transplanted from southern China or British India is the litchi tree (Litchi chinensis), which is eminently adapted to a climate and soil such as furnished in Porto Rico. Specimens of these trees have been brought to this country and experimented with in the Washington greenhouses, and plantations of them are expected to be planted in Porto Rico by the government experts within the next year. A litchi orchard once started should prove a source of income for the owner for a lifetime. The fresh fruit has a delicious flavor, and dried the fruits resemble raisins in appearance. A few of these dried fruits are imported from the Orient every year, and they sell as high as 50 cents a quart. In the far east, however, they are eaten chiefly in their fresh, acid condition. Enormous quantities are consumed, and they are considered by natives and visiting foreigners in southern China, British India, and the Malay Peninsula as most excellent fruits. The cultivation of plantations of these fruit trees in Porto Rico should open a market here for their products, and in a short time the industry should prove a most paying and satisfying one.

The sapodilla tree is one that visitors to Florida see at times, but it has never been raised on a commercial scale in that state. The sapodillas are fruits that are greatly enjoyed in tropical countries, and there is a growing demand in our northern markets as they are better appreciated. The question of raising these in Porto Rico on a large commercial scale is not a doubtful or visionary one. It is believed that there is a great future for the trees when they are raised in sufficient quantities to make it worth while to introduce the fruits in our cities. These fruits could be brought by steamers direct to this country, and if properly refrigerated in transportation they would offer a tempting fruit to the millions of consumers in the United States. In Porto Rico there is no frost to endanger the life and production of the trees, and a plantation should continue to produce for upward of 20 years. When too old to yield a good crop, the trees furnish a most excellent and costly, close-grained wood that sells for nearly as much as the cost of starting and cultivating the grove for the first few years.

The tree which produces the cashew nut of commerce is a tropical growth that can be raised in Porto Rico on a large scale, and it is estimated that plantations of this tree alone should add many millions of dollars to the island's income within the next half century if its cultivation is wisely and faithfully attended to. The cashew nut is of superior flavor, and of great value in candy making. Its flavor is delicious, and the oil expressed from it is considered for many purposes superior to almond oil. The few cashew nuts brought from the West Indies to this country are readily absorbed, but their imports have been so small, and the prices so high, that they have never received the popular attention they deserve.

From the juice of the cashew tree many commercial products are made, such as mucilage, chewing gum, and various lotions and anaesthetics. The use of the products of the tree is so varied that it would require a good deal of descriptive text to explain them. The wood of the trees is excellent for commercial purposes, and has a close, compact, unyielding grain. Plantations of these trees should represent an agricultural specialty proof against nearly every kind of local disaster, except possible hurricanes.

A tree known as Cedrela odorata, but commonly spoken of in tropical countries where it grows as ylang-ylang, thrives wonderfully well in Porto Rico. It is known in that island as the West Indian cedar, and its wood is more compact and beautiful than the best Central American mahogany. From different parts of Porto Rico this tree has been foolishly cut down and wastefully used for cabinet work and house-building. The flowers of this tree are beautiful and fragrant. From them is extracted a commercial product almost equal to the famous attar of roses. This attar of ylang-ylang is what makes the trees most valuable. It sells as high as $5 per pound. Ylang-ylang oil has been held as an exclusive monopoly by France and Germany; but a steady cultivation of the trees in Porto Rico should lead to a change. The oil is extracted by simple processes, and without the use of chemicals, and from 75 pounds of the flowers a pound of oil is usually produced. In Europe the oil of ylang-ylang is used as the basic essence of the best perfumes as much as the famous attar of roses. —George E. Walsh, in the Scientific American.

JAPANESE PAPER.

Varieties Superior to Ours Made From Bark of Trees and Shrubs.

From the bark of trees and shrubs the Japanese make scores of papers, which are far ahead of ours. The walls of the Japanese houses are wooden frames covered with thin paper which keeps out the wind but lets in the light, and when one compares these paper-walled "doll houses" with the gloomy bamboo cabins of the inhabitants of the island of Java or the small-windowed huts of our forefathers, one realizes that, without glass and in a rainy climate, these ingenious people have solved in a remarkeable way the problem of lighting their dwellings and, at least in a measure, of keeping out the cold. Their oiled papers are astonishingly cheap and durable. As a cover for his load of tea when a rainstorm overtakes him, the Japanese farmer spreads over it a tough, pliable cover of oiled paper, which is almost as impervious as tarpaulin and as light as gossamer. He has doubtles carried this cover for years, neatly packed away somewhere about his cart. The "rikisha" coolies in the large cities wear rain mantles of this oiled paper, which cost less than 18 cents and last for a year or more with constant use. An oiled tissue paper, which is as tough as writing paper, can be had at the stationer's for wrapping up delicate articles. Grain and meal sacks are almost always made of bark paper in Japan, for it is not easily penetrated by weevils and other insects. But perhaps the most remarkable of all the papers which find a common use in the Japanese household are the leather papers of which the tobacco pouches and pipe cases are made. They are almost as tough as French kid, so translucent that one can nearly see through them, and as pliable and soft as calfskin. The material of which they are made is as thick as cardboard, but as flexible as kid.—David G. Fairchild in the National Geographic Magazine.

QUAINT AND CURIOUS.

There are more blind people among the Spaniards than among any other European race.

The blind delight in races of all sorts. They do not run toward a tape, as the seeing do, but toward a bell that jangles briskly.

There is a board of guardians in the south of London that allows inmates who have seen better days to don the silk hat when they go out for a holiday.

A trolley representing the latest type of modern car building embodies the semi-convertible idea; that is, the windows when not in use disappear in receptacles in the roof.

The director of the Berlin (Germany) street railway has received an unstamped letter, on which he had to pay twopence postage. The sender inclosed two penny stamps which he said he owed the company.

Fishermen on the lake of Neufchatel are using automobile boats. They are driven by a benzine motor and lighted by electricity. They are flat bottomed, glide noiselessly over the water, do not frighten the fish and are a great success.

Although the Caspian and Aral seas have no outlet and receive large rivers, especially the Volga, the Ural and scores of streams from the Caucasus, both have for many years been getting shallower. Evaporation exceeds the inflow.

"Whistling" trees grow abundantly in Nubia and the Soudan. They are a species of Acacia. Insects form a sort of globula bladder on the tree. After they emerge they leave a circular hole in the swelling which played upon by the winds sounds much like a sweet toned flute.

English War on the Ivy.

War is once more being declared in England on ivy and an elder bushes near cathedrals and other fine buildings. The ivy is accused of being "a destructive boa-constrictor weed," while the elder is condemned because its roots have a naughty habit of forcing themselves in the masonry chinks

MARSHAL OYAMA

The Japanese General a Fighter by Fate and Not From Choice.

FAR from being a hard-eyed, shaggy browed general, as one might imagine, the hero of so many difficult campaigns is the kindest, most amiable old gentleman it would be possible to meet. He himself declares that he has no liking whatever for war, and that it is irony of fate, not personal inclination, which has made him the soldier he is today. Like most of Japan's great men, he is not rich in this world's goods. He is far too liberal to amass a fortune. It is told of him that during the Chinese War he bought provisions for his men and horses out of his own pocket rather than pillage the wretched homes along the route.

In fact, charity got to be such a mania with him that his wife, an extremely economical woman, had to act as treasurer and dole him out a small allowance daily.

During his residence in Paris he was often greatly upset by the way dumb animals, particularly horses, were abused. Once he got into a dreadful muss with a cabby, and both had to be marched off to the police station to explain their conduct. Though the marshal could speak but little French he stormed around the terrified commissaire until justice was given him and he saw the jehu condemned to a $20 fine. Japanese merchants in Paris, as well as cabmen, remember this active military attache, though in quite a different way.

One day, sitting in front of a cafe, he noticed a Japanese offering some beautiful fans at exceedingly low prices, lower even than the same article could be purchased in Japan. Beckoning the man to him, he asked him how he could do it. The other told him how, owing to long illness, business had dropped off. He was unable to pay the rent, which would come due on the following day, so he and his wife, rather than lose all their stock, were selling what articles they could smuggle out on the streets of Paris. The attache had several important engagements on hand that afternoon, but he postponed all and hurried off with the merchant. After thoroughly examining into matters, he paid the rent, suggested the man's moving into a better quarter of the capital, and during the rest of his stay there did what he could to work up a clientele among his friends. From that day the merchant's affairs flourished, and two years ago he died worth a nice round sum.—By his will he left $20,000 of it to his benefactor.—Chicago Tribune.

RELIC OF JOUSTING DAYS.

Quintain Still Stands Before a House in Kent.

A curious clause, taking one right back to the Middle Ages, appears in the title deeds of a house in the village of Offham, in Kent, England. This is that the owner of the house must keep in good repair the village quintain, which still swings on its stout oaken post before the house.

One end of the swinging crossbar of this quintain (said to be the only surviving specimen in England) is shaped like a square target pierced with a number of holes into which the point of the player's lance would enter.

When struck it would swing around, and unless the player were nimble the sandbag hung on the other end of the crossbar would swing around and unseat him.

AN OLD-TIME QUINTAIN.

FIELD-MARSHAL MARQUIS OYAMA AND HIS FAMILY.

Field-Marshal Oyama is a hero of many wars. He is a native of the Satsuma Province, and was Commander-in-Chief of the Imperial army in the war of restoration. He has been Minister of War a number of times, and in the war with China he acted as Commander-in-Chief of the Second Army Corps. He landed at Takushan and fought his way to Port Arthur in twenty days. He captured Port Arthur by assault the night after his arrival before its walls. He is one of the Japanese Elder Statesmen, and, with Marquis Yamagata, deserves the credit for the present development and efficiency of the Japanese Army. At the outbreak of the war with Russia, he was appointed Chief of Staff; and, now that the various army corps have taken their allotted positions in Manchuria, he is ordered to the front to take command of all the Mikado's forces in the field. This photograph was taken on the eve of his departure from Tokio. On his right stand his wife, the Marchioness Oyama, who is a graduate of Vassar College. She was one of the first Japanese girls to come to America to be educated. On his left stands his daughter, Lady Hisako Oyama, and in the background are his two sons.

A PEASANT'S CART IN SOUTHERN RUSSIA.

The Lawyer and the Painter.

Last summer at a dinner at Delmonico's Senator Depew told the following very laughable story: A certain lawyer who was noted for his success on cross-examination found his match several years ago in a long-suffering witness. He had plied the witness with question after question, and finally asked him how long he had work at his business of painting. The witness said, "I've worked at it off and on, but for the last twenty years I've worked at it steady."

"How long off and on have you worked at it?"

"Fifty-five years," was the reply.

"How old are you?" asked the lawyer.

"Fifty-five," answered the witness.

"Then you have been a painter from birth?" asked the lawyer.

"No, sir," responded the witness.

"Then why did you say you have worked at your trade for fifty-five years?" inquired the lawyer.

"I have worked at it off and on fifty-five years," said the witness. "Twenty-five years on, and thirty years off."

The Same Mosquitoes.

Charles Oliver Iselin, the well-known New York yachtsman, last summer at the yacht club very neatly called the turn on an overly fresh young man. "Talking about mosquitoes," said the young man, "I shall never forget the swarm of them that overtook my yacht just off Newport last summer. I tell you, gentlemen, those mosquitoes were as big as sparrows. Why, ten minutes after they came down on us they had carried away every inch of sail on the yacht."

"Phew!" exclaimed the yachtsmen.

"It's true," cried the young man; "it's true."

"Yes," interrupted Mr. Iselin; "I can vouch for every word of it."

"How can you do that—you weren't there!" exclaimed the young man.

"I know I wasn't, but I ran into the same bunch of mosquitoes the next day at Bar Harbor," said Mr. Iselin.

"How do you know that they were the same mosquitoes?" inquired the young man.

"Because," said Mr. Iselin, "they all wore canvas overalls."

Surakarta is the paradise of umbrellas. They are carried proudly over the heads of every official and every nobleman, but invariably are shut at the approach of a person of higher rank, and inside the kraton no umbrella may be carried open, except that of the employer himself.

The records of the criminal department in Japan show a striking contrast to those of American and European cities. Last year out of a total of 148,239 convictions in the criminal courts only 3,323 were for what are called "crimes"—that is, penal offenses.

Gold mining is not a conspicuous industry in Great Britain, but a mine in North Wales has lately filed a report showing a total of $165,000 extracted in six months, with a net profit of over $120,000. But there are not many mines of even this moderate richness.

E. C. Cummings, near Norristown, Pa., claims to have the largest number of birds of any pigeon grower in the world. He now has 10,000. The entire plant covers sixteen acres and represents an investment of $25,000. Five hundred squabs are sold weekly.

During the fiscal year closed June 30 last the revenue from 6,707,471,863 cigars was $20,122,415.59, which is a falling off in revenue of $236,756.01 and a decline in cigar production for the last year of 78,918,670 cigars.

Fourteen thousand one hundred dollars is an item the United States pays every year to support its foreign prisons. These are four in number and located at Bangkok, Shanghai, Yokohama and Turkey.

Captain Hamlet states that the destruction wrought by the party of Japanese poachers on Lislansky island to bird life was something appalling. He estimates that they killed at least 300,000 birds.

THOUGHT SHE WOU

Mrs. S. W. Marine, of C... Began to Fear the W... Kidney Pills Saved Her.

Mrs. Sarah Marine, of ... street, Colorado Springs, ... dent of the Glen Eyrie C...

A friend advised me to try ... ney Pills. Within a week ... using them I was so much ... I decided to keep up the ... and when I had used a few ... boxes I was entirely well ... enjoyed the best of health ... than four months, and ... poorly express my gratitude ...

For sale by all dealers ... cents. Foster-Milburn Co., ...

Several weeks ago Mrs. ... moved from Beatrice, Ne... rado. At a place about ... his old home ... Now he has returned ... very worn and weary, having ... ly traveled 600 miles on ...

The tiger will sit with ... out of the water on a ... They will also nearly ... selves when they come ... at night, and leave a ... trail on the sand behind ... emerge.

Ten million gallons of ... Niagara Falls every minute ...

DYSPEP

"Having taken your wonderful ... three months and being entirely ... catarrh and dyspepsia, I think it ... due to" Cascarets "for their wonderful ... I have taken numerous other ... but without avail and I find that ... more in a day than all the other ... would in a year."
James McGuire, 130 Mercer St., ...

Best for The Bowels

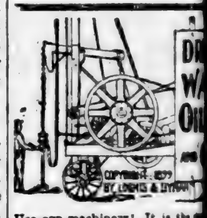
Cascarets

CANDY CATHARTIC

THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Pleasant, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good, Do Good, Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10, 25, 50 cents. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped CCC. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York. 308

ANNUAL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES



Use our machinery! It is the ... the least power. Carries the ... much faster. Lasts longer and ... more money than any other ... earth. Machines made for ... diameter, and for Horse, Steam ... LOOMIS & NYMAN, ...

Drop...

Removes all ... days; effects ... in 30 to 60 days ... given free. No ... Write Dr. N. ... Specialists, ...

Bryant & ...

Business, Shorthand ... writing College, Louisville, Ky. ... year. Students can enter any ...

PISO'S CURE

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

25 CTS.

THOUGHT SHE WOU

Mrs. S. W. Marine, of C... Began to Fear the W... Kidney Pills Saved Her.

Mrs. Sarah Marine, of ... street, Colorado Springs, ... dent of the Glen Eyrie C...

A friend advised me to try ... ney Pills. Within a week ... using them I was so much ... I decided to keep up the ... and when I had used a few ... boxes I was entirely well ... enjoyed the best of health ... than four months, and ... poorly express my gratitude ...

For sale by all dealers ... cents. Foster-Milburn Co., ...

Several weeks ago Mrs. ... moved from Beatrice, Ne... rado. At a place about ... his old home ... Now he has returned ... very worn and weary, having ... ly traveled 600 miles on ...

The tiger will sit with ... out of the water on a ... They will also nearly ... selves when they come ... at night, and leave a ... trail on the sand behind ... emerge.

Ten million gallons of ... Niagara Falls every minute ...

DYSPEP

"Having taken your wonderful ... three months and being entirely ... catarrh and dyspepsia, I think it ... due to" Cascarets "for their wonderful ... I have taken numerous other ... but without avail and I find that ... more in a day than all the other ... would in a year."
James McGuire, 130 Mercer St., ...

Best for The Bowels

Cascarets

CANDY CATHARTIC

THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Pleasant, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good, Do Good, Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10, 25, 50 cents. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped CCC. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York. 308

ANNUAL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

Use our machinery! It is the ... the least power. Carries the ... much faster. Lasts longer and ... more money than any other ... earth. Machines made for ... diameter, and for Horse, Steam ... LOOMIS & NYMAN, ...

Drop...

Removes all ... days; effects ... in 30 to 60 days ... given free. No ... Write Dr. N. ... Specialists, ...

Bryant & ...

Business, Shorthand ... writing College, Louisville, Ky. ... year. Students can enter any ...

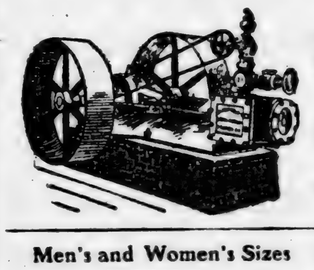
PISO'S CURE

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

25 CTS.

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS COMP...

MANUFACTURE...



High Pressure Return Tub... Morison Internally Fired ... High Grade Slide Valve ... Transmission ... Heavy Castings ... Wrought Iron ... Tanks, Stacks and Stand ...

Heavy Pipe Work a ...

Address Machinery Dep... MACON, GE...

Men's and Women's Sizes

GOLD WATC...

Free ... out any work, write ...

BLACH...

1912-1914 ...

Birmingh...

For a copy of their ... ter Big Value Book ... Boys' Apparel ... full particulars. ...

FARME... ATTENT...

NO LINIMENT W... MADE THAT E...

SLOA... LINIM...

FOR HORSES AND C... STOCK AND ALL FAMILY...

It Kills Pain and Kills ...

DR. EARL S. SLOAN, 615 ALBANY ST., BOS...

WINCHEST...

Take-Down Repeating Sh...

Don't spend from $50 to $200 for a gun, ... much less money you can buy a Winche... Down Repeating Shotgun, which will ou... outlast the highest-priced double-bar... besides being as safe, reliable and ha... dealer can show you one. They are sold e...

FREE: Our 160-Page Illustrated Catalogue.

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO. NEW H...

...41, 1904.

Thompson's Eye Water

From Mt. Genevieve ... pin county, Col., a pe... four states and one ...

antation Ch...

To cure, or money refunded ...

yer and the Painter.

er at a dinner at Delmon- Depew told the following ie story: A certain law- noted for his success on tion found his match sev- in a long-suffering wit- l plied the witness with r question, and finally w long he had work at f painting. The witness orked at it off and on, ast twenty years I've steady."

off and on have you "

ears," was the reply. re you?" asked the law-answered the witness. ave been a painter from the lawyer. sponded the witness. did you say you have our trade for fifty-five ed the lawyer. ked at it off and on fifty- id the witness. "Twen- n, and thirty years off."

ame Mosquitoes.

r Iselin, the well-known htsman, last summer at very neatly called the erly fresh young man. t mosquitoes," said the shall never forget the em that overtook my Newport last summer. lemen, those mosquitoes s sparrows. Why, ten they came down on us ed away every inch of ht."

nimed the yachtsmen. cried the young man;

upted Mr. Iselin; "I can word of it."

u do that—you weren't ed the young man. sn't, but I ran into the f mosquitoes the next rbor," said Mr. Iselin. know that they were quitoes?" inquired the id Mr. Iselin, "they all eralin."

the paradise of um- are carried proudly of every official and n, but invariably are proach of a person of nd inside the kraton y be carried open, ex- employer himself.

of the criminal depart- show a striking con- f American and Euro- ast year out of a total ctions in the criminal were for what are —that is, penal of-

not a conspicuous in- Britain, but a mine in s lately filed a report of $165,000 extracted ith a net profit of over there are not many his moderate richness.

gs, near Norristown, ave the largest num- any pigeon grower in now has 10,000. The ers sixteen acres and nvestment of $25,000. ubs are sold weekly.

cal year closed June nue from 6,707,471,863 23,415.59, which is a venue of $236,756.01 cigar production for 78,918,670 cigars.

and one hundred doi- he United States pays pport its foreign pris- four in number and kok, Shanghai, Yoko- .

f states that the de- t by the party of s on Lasiansky Island something appalling they killed at least

THOUGHT SHE WO

Mrs. S. W. Marine, of Kidney Pills Saved Her.

Mrs. Sarah Marine, of street, Colorado Springs, dent of the Glen Eyrie Ci

A friend advised me to t ney Pills. Within a week using them I was so mu I decided to keep up th and when I had used a f boxes I was entirely well. enjoyed the best of hea than four months, and w poorly express my gratitu For sale by all dealers cents. Foster-Milburn Co.

Several weeks ago Hor moved from Beatrice, Ne rado. At a place about 60 his old home his dog Now he has turned up very worn and weary, hav ly traveled 600 miles on

The tiger will sit with c out of the water on a hot They will also nearly im selves when they come do at night, and leave a lon trail on the sand behind emerge.

Ten million gallons of w Niagara Falls every minut

DYSPEP

"Having taken your wonderful three months and being entirely c catarrh and dyspepsia, I think I o due to "Cascarets" for their wonder I have taken numerous other re- but without avail and I find that C more in a day than all the oth would in a year."

James Moulane, 138 Mercer St., N

Best for The Bowels

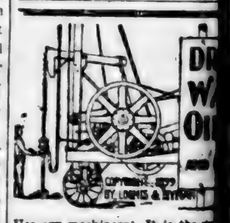
Cascar

CANDY CATHAR

THEY WORK WHILE

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Tas Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. I sold in bulk. The genuine tablet Guaranteed to cure or your money Sterling Remedy Co., Chica

ANNUAL SALE, TEN MIL



Use our machinery! It is the cl the least power. Carries the ha much faster. Lasts longer and gra more money than any other ha earth. Machines made for drai diameter, and for Horse, Steam or FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of two testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

KOOMIS & NYMAN, TI

Drop

Removes all d days; effects a in go to 60 days. given free. No Write Dr. H. Specialists,

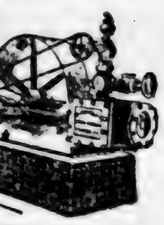
Courtesy

Business, Shor writing College, Louisville, Ky year Students can enter any ti

PISO'S CURE

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. In time. Sold by drug CONSUMP

SCHOFIELD'S SONS COMP



MANUFACTURE

High Pressure Return Tub Morison Internally Fired Hi High Grade Slide Valve En Transmission Ma Heavy Castings Wrought Iron Tanks, Stacks and Steel P

Heavy Pipe Work a

Address Machinery Depa

MACON, GA

Women's Sizes

GOLD WATC

Free

If y kno the any out any work, write

BLACH

1912-1914

Birmingha

For a copy of their ter Big Value Book Boys' Apparel full particulars.

Hughson, of Chicago, whose follows, is another woman in high who owes her health to the use of E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham:—I suffered for several years with general bearing-down pains, caused by womb trouble. My appe- ful, and I would lie awake for hours, and could not sleep, more weary in the morning than when I retired. After of your advertisements I decided to try the merits of Lydia 's Vegetable Compound, and I am so glad I did. No one the good it did me. I took three bottles faithfully, and ding up my general health, it drove all disease and poison ody, and made me feel as spry and active as a young girl. 's medicines are certainly all they are claimed to be."—Hughson, 347 East Ohio St., Chicago, Ill.

Tells How Ordinary Tasks Produce Displacements.

ly trifling incidents in woman's daily life frequently produce s of the womb. A slip on the stairs, lifting during menstruation, counter, running a sewing machine, or attending to the most s may result in displacement, and a train of serious evils is started. indication of such trouble should be the signal for quick action. condition become chronic through neglect or a mistaken idea overcome it by exercise or leaving it alone. a million women have regained health by the use of Lydia E. Vegetable Compound.

lightest trouble appears which you do not understand Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for her advice, and a few from her will show you the right thing to do. This you nothing, but it may mean life or happiness or both.

Mrs. Lelah Stowell, 177 Wellington St., Kingston, Ont., writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—You are indeed a godsend to women, and if they all knew what you could do for them, there would be no need of their dragging out miserable lives in agony.

"I suffered for years with bearing-down pains, womb trouble, nervousness, and excruciating headache, but a few bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made life look new and promising to me. I am light and happy, and I do not know what sickness is, and I now enjoy the best of health."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can always be relied upon to restore health to women who thus suffer. It is a sovereign cure for rms of female complaints,—that bearing-down feeling, weak and displacement of the womb, inflammation of the ovaries, and the uterus or womb. It dissolves and expels tumors from the early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancer- It subdues excitability, nervous prostration, and tones up the system. Its record of cures is the greatest in the world, and ed upon with confidence.

FARMERS! ATTENTION!

NO LINIMENT WAS EVER MADE-THAT EQUALS

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

FOR HORSES AND OTHER STOCK AND ALL FAMILY USES

It Kills Pain and Kills Germs

DR. EARL S. SLOAN 615 ALBANY ST. BOSTON, MASS.

WINCHESTER

Take-Down Repeating Shotguns

Don't spend from $50 to $200 for a gun, when for so much less money you can buy a Winchester Take-Down Repeating Shotgun, which will outshoot and outlast the highest-priced double-barreled gun, besides being as safe, reliable and handy. Your dealer can show you one. They are sold everywhere.

FREE! Our 160-Page Illustrated Catalogue.

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO. NEW HAVEN, CONN.

41, 1904.

Thompson's Eye Water

From Mt. Genevieve, a peak in Gilpin county, Col., a person can see into four states and one territory.

AN AMERICAN YOUTH.

A Famous Son Who Won the Cecil Rhodes Scholarship.

New York has cause for self-congratulation in the representative that the State has chosen for the Cecil Rhodes scholarship at Oxford in the person of Warren Ellis Schutt, Cornell, 1905. The sturdy Ithacan will be as splendid a type of American manhood as will be sent abroad to the English university by any State in the Union. Schutt's career is thoroughly interesting. He is the son of a prosperous farmer who lives six miles from Ithaca. Young Schutt got his primary education at a country school near his home, and then won a four-year scholarship in the Ithaca High School in a competitive examination. Instead of moving into Ithaca to live, or even driving to and from school with one of his father's teams, as he might easily have done, Schutt walked to and from the high school each morning and night. In this way he prepared for Cornell University. His first year in college he continued to walk to and from his home. His scholarship continued to be of the same high standard as in the high school, and he took all the prizes and scholarships to which he was eligible, ending up with the Cecil Rhodes scholarship at Oxford University. In his sophomore year for the first time Schutt entered college athletics. There the trainer took him under his care and developed him into the greatest cross-country runner in the country. It was here his twelve miles of daily walking to and from his home counted in Schutt's favor in the physical condition of the athlete. He ran in Cornell's victorious cross-country teams against Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania. On the track team he captured the two-mile intercollegiate run and lowered the time. Last May he duplicated the feat and was subsequently elected captain of Cornell's 1905 track team. This position he will, of course, resign upon his going to England. He is only twenty years old, stands more than six feet in height and weighs more than 165 pounds.—Illustrated Sporting News.

The Venetian courts have been trying to ascertain whether Prince Carlo Vincenzo Giovanni, who is known to have been alive in 1703, is dead yet. The disposal of a claim to more than $1,000,000 is at issue. So far no death certificate in the case has been producible, but a priest has offered to swear that the prince is no longer alive, and his deposition will be accepted.

In pensions women are in the lead. Mrs. Garfield and Mrs. McKinley receive $5,000 a year each. Mrs. Philip H. Sheridan receives $2,500, while the pensions of Mrs. Logan, Mrs. McClellan and Mrs. Frank Blair are each $2,000. Eighteen widows of generals and admirals receive $1,200 a year.

The making of shoes for dogs has now developed into quite a big industry, and is especially flourishing in Labrador. The dogs attached to sledges travel at great speed over the rough ice, and some protection for the feet is necessary. The shoes are made of sealskin.

The returns in London for the quarter ending June 30 show a decrease of revenue of $12,500,000. A large meeting under the presidency of a dignitary of the Church of England, therefore pointed out to the chancellor of the exchequer that it would be advisable to tax cats half a crown a head.

The raffesia flower of Sumatra weighs fifteen pounds. The cup, free of its contents, will hold twelve pints of water. The odor, however, is that of tainted beef

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

The man who first made steel pens got $1 apiece for them.

Piso's Cure cannot be too highly spoken of as a cough cure.—J. W. O'Brien, 322 Third Avenue, N., Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6, 1900.

One-tenth of the world is still unexplored.

Dyeing is as easy as washing when Putnam's Fadeless Dyes are used.

Tobacco exports are decreasing.

China's Medical School.

The Dowager Empress of China has given a sum of money for the establishment of an institution for teaching medicine, the management to be confided to the missionaries.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

West & Truax, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Walding, Kinnan & Marvin, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price, 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

His Just Deserts.

A Chicago railway ticket scalper must serve eighteen months in the House of Correction for fraudulently representing himself to be a clergyman to obtain half-rate tickets.

Waked Up All Kinds of Snakes.

Snakes are unusually plentiful in the Middletown Valley this year, if the report of Farmer George Cramer is reliable, for he tells the champion story of the season. He lives at Catoctin Switch, in the southern part of the valley, and says that while he was mowing clover a few days ago a large blacksnake jumped up from the grass and landed on the machine. He stopped the machine and killed the reptile, which measured five and a half feet.

Later in the day he picked up a bunch of hay to give to one of the horses, when he felt something move in his hand. Investigation revealed the fact that he had picked up a rattlesnake in the hay. He dropped it pretty quick and killed it. But this is not all. Toward evening, while hauling the hay from the field to the barn, he heard a peculiar noise back of his head while seated on the saddle horse. Upon glancing around, his face came almost in contact with a large copperhead snake that was sticking out of the load of hay. He stopped the team and killed the intruder.

While cutting the hay during the day he killed two blacksnakes and three copperheads.

Mr. Joseph Huffer, south of Middletown, has so far this season killed twelve large blacksnakes on his farm. Mrs. Christopher Ringgold, of the same vicinity, killed a six-foot blacksnake in her henhouse.—Baltimore Sun.

The Coffee Smokers.

Two old men in blue uniforms, veterans attending the soldiers' reunion, sat on a bench in Boston Common.

"What was your hardest week during the war?" said the first veteran.

"My hardest week," the other answered, "was the one when I had no tobacco. I'll never forget that."

He paused to light a cigar. Then he went on:

"Do you know what we all smoked during that week? Why, sir, we all smoked coffee. We ground up our coffee coarse, and smoked it in our pipes."

The other veteran looked interested.

"How did it taste?" he said.

"Taste? Why, it tasted about like you'd think it would."

"Smelt good, I bet you."

"Yes, smelt all right."

"Any bad effect from it?"

"Gorry, yes. Took the skin off all our tongues."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

A Whopper From Pennsylvania.

While picking huckleberries on the mountains near Hagerman's Run, near Williamsport, on Sunday, D. W. Mack and son, Lewis, of South Williamsport, walked into a den of about thirty rattlesnakes. An exciting fight followed, the two men using stones and clubs. Seventeen of the snakes were killed, the others seeking safety in the crevices of the rocks.

During the battle Mr. Mack, who held an open jack knife in his hand, ribbed a gash ten inches long in a snake's body, and a mink, which had been swallowed by the reptile, crawled through the hole and tried to get away, but was so nearly dead from the squeezing it had received and confinement in the reptile's body that it could not get far, and Mr. Mack killed it with a blow of his club.—Wellsboro Agitator.

Guatemala's Big Coffee Crop.

When the volcanic eruptions in Guatemala last year covered the coffee fincas it was believed that the industry was ruined and that Guatemala had received a blow from which recovery would be slow. Many planters abandoned their ash covered plantations and believed themselves ruined. But the activity of the volcanoes was followed by heavy and long continued rains, which washed away a great deal of the ashes and incorporated more of them with the soil. The rain also seemed to bleach the ashes and extract from it a liquid fertilizer which proved of great benefit to the coffee trees. The result is a crop nearly as large again as last year's. Hereafter when the volcanoes of Guatemala erupt and spout ashes the only unfortunate coffee planters will be those whose fincas are outside of the showers.—London Globe.

Inspecting Our Roads.

R. Peacock, an Egyptian railroad man from Assiout, is visiting this country. He is locomotive superintendent of the Egyptian State Railways, and has come here at the request of his Government to inspect the American railways with a view to introducing some of the modern American methods of transportation into his country.

The czarina of Russia smokes cigarettes now and then, and on her desk there are always a couple of golden engraved cigarette cases, a silver ash tray and a malachite match holder.

Switzerland entertains through the year 3,000,000 visitors, who spend $30,000,000. Italy, the Riveria and Spain between them, attract an expenditure of $60,000,000.

Oriental merchants do not bargain for precious stones by word of mouth, but by signs.

New York's police department says women who smoke in automobiles will not be interfered with.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

A STRONG DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "COMFORTING CERTAINTIES."

The Rev. Dr. Robert Bruce Hull's Talk on the Words Addressed to Nicodemus —The Person That the Verities of Our Precious Faith Cluster About.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Sunday morning the Rev. Dr. Robert Bruce Hull, pastor of Greenwood Baptist Church, preached on "Comforting Certainties." The text was from John iii:11: "We speak that we do know." Dr. Hull said in the course of his sermon:

These words were addressed to Nicodemus. He was an earnest, honest, yet timid inquirer after truth. He had come to Jesus under cover of the darkness. As an official of the Jewish Sanhedrim, he did not dare to be seen talking with the Nazarene Teacher. Yet he is convinced in his own mind that Jesus is a prophet and that, too, a prophet sent of God. This much he confesses to the Christ. Then begins the wonderfully instructive interview from which the text is taken. This interview is evidently only an outline, but the outline is marvelously suggestive. Nicodemus was a good man. He was a religious man. He conformed to all the religious forms and ceremonies of his nation. His outward deportment was blameless and his standing in the community was honorable. But he was not a spiritual man. He was not what we would call to-day a converted man. To him Jesus thrice used the solemn double "Amen, amen, I say unto thee."

Nicodemus could not understand what Jesus meant by being born again. He was unable to see what that new spiritual life was of which he himself was lacking. Then it is that the third double amen of Jesus introduces the words of the text: "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, we speak that we do know and testify that we have seen." In this utterance Jesus uses the word "we," not simply as the plural of majesty, but connecting Himself with all His disciples, so that it is perfectly proper and right for us to-day to use His words and say: "We speak that we do know." Christians are competent witnesses to the certainties of religion. While in a sense it may be said that "the Bible and the Bible alone is the religion of Protestants," yet in the fuller sense our religion is a life. Christ is Christianity. His life in Himself and in His disciples is the spirit and the power of true religion. We have something more than opinion; something better than creeds; we have as one of the eternal verities Jesus Christ as the manifestation of God. It has been well said that "Christ either deceived mankind by conscious fraud or He was Himself deluded and deceived, or He was divine. There is no getting out of this trilemma. It is inexorable." He stood before the men who knew Him best and said: "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father," and again declared to them: "I and My Father are one." This was tremendous assumption and awful blasphemy if it was not the truth. That it is the truth the course of time and the course of Christianity both abundantly declare.

The verities of our precious faith cluster about a person. This person was God, manifest in the flesh, and for all the centuries since Bethlehem the noblest, wisest and holiest have bowed before Him, reverently exclaiming, "My Lord and my God!" It matters not from what point we view Him, Jesus stands before the world as more than man. It is said of a safe and perfect arch that it must meet two requirements. Its feet must not slip and its middle must not bend. Jesus Christ is the arch connecting humanity and divinity. The weight of the centuries of Christianity rest on that arch and they rest there safely, for "Jesus is God; there never was a time when He was not;

Boundless, eternal, merciful, the word,
the Sire begot;
Backward our thoughts through ages stretch, onward through realms of bliss,
For there are two eternities and both alike are His."

Another of the certainties is that the Christian life is a divine life. This was a new thought to Nicodemus. It is a new thought to many to-day. It was not a figure of speech, but a plain statement of fact, when Jesus insisted that it was necessary to be born again in order to enter heaven. Those of Nicodemus' time would have said it was necessary to reform, to deal honestly, to behave kindly, to live uprightly. So many say to-day, and if by all this they mean uprightness in its perfect form they are right. But no man has ever lived who has been thus upright. "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." The history of mankind shows that we must not seek holiness in order to God, but God in order to holiness. Christ must come into the soul of man with His divine life, and then, and not till then, are we in harmony with the divine holiness.

When that life comes in then there is manifested the "expulsive power of a new affection," better still, the expulsive power of a new life. Nothing less than life can account for the change in men. Nothing but life can exert the power which the centuries of Christianity have manifested. In physics we affirm confidently that every effect must have an adequate cause. This also is true in the realm of spirituality. If persecutors are changed into preachers, if those once thoroughly depraved have been molded into recognized saints, if the dregs of society have been transformed into unparalleled martyrs for the truth, if common people have been fashioned into those of whom the world was not worthy—we ask what cause or what power is adequate for such marvelous alterations. We know these changes. It is folly to say we do not know the power.

Twice each day our city is washed by a mighty ebb and flow of tides that sweep in and out, despite all the winds that blow. Your child recognizes the fact, but he is puzzled to think that the pale, silent moon, serene amid the clouds, is the cause of those resistless floods. The child is puzzled, but when your philosopher explains to you that the moon does this by attraction of gravitation, and you ask him to explain to you this attraction of gravitation, then he, too, is puzzled. Yet he knows the power, knows it so well he can measure it and use it. So, too, with Christianity, and its power. We can recognize its force and use it, but its secret is the secret of life. Like all force, in its origin it is a mystery. Tennyson says:

"We have but faith we cannot know,
For knowledge is of things we see."

This is not quite true. Knowledge is of things we feel, as well as of things we see. Many things we know that we cannot see. We never saw a pain, but we should call him a fool who should say we never felt or knew a pain. We know the power of the Christ life in the believer, because we have felt it, and sometimes when this Christ-life in us has its perfect freedom we are able to say with Paul: "I can do all things in Christ who strengtheneth me."

This certainty concerning the power of the Christ life can be attained by all who will fulfill the conditions. There must be a surrender to Christ and a trust in Christ. You cannot have the sunbeam without the sun. You cannot have the power of Christ without the Christ Himself. The apostle says: "Christ is in you the hope of glory," and it is certainly true that Christ must be in us the power for glory. Thus the centre of our certitude is Christ Himself. We know Him. We know His power. It has been exercised upon us and in us. Like the once blind beggar, we exclaim: "One thing I know, whereas, I was blind, now I see." There was no note of uncertainty about this; there should be no note of uncertainty about our utterances concerning our faith or concerning our own position.

But in this age of doubt many Christians are so frightened out of sanity that they are afraid to say even of the deepest experiences of the soul, "I know." Not so Paul, facing death: "I know whom I have believed." Not so John, the beloved disciple, declaring, "We know that we have passed from death unto life. We know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him." It is not modesty, but lack of faith which prompts Christians to say, "I hope I am a Christian." When we have life we know it and should not be ashamed to say so. If we have not the life then by all the importance of eternity make sure of obtaining it. It is possible to have a living experience of Jesus Christ. To have such an experience that we may say: "I live, yet not I, but Christ, liveth in me." Belief may be glorified into this experience if we yield ourselves completely and unreservedly to Him who is able to "keep that which we have committed to Him against that day."

The effect of this certainty is in every way most precious and helpful. Consider for a moment what this certitude means in the presence of the awful calamity which last summer sent a thrill of horror around the globe. True, indeed, is the Scripture declaration "if in this life only we have hope in Christ we are of all men most miserable." If death were the end of all then we might well believe that cruelty sat in the throne of the universe. But, staggered as all are by the unutterable sorrow, yet God rules and overrules, and though we cannot see it now, yet in eternity we shall know that the carelessness—or worse—of man has been overruled to eternal good. Because we know that God is love, and because we know Jesus still lives and is the same to-day as when He shed tears at the grave of Lazarus, we dare to go into bereaved homes and speak of the reunion at the right hand of the throne of God. I went over to the pier where lay hundreds of the unclaimed bodies, and I would not have dared to do it, but that I might comfort some heartbroken one with the assurance that God cared, God loved and in eternity God would make this unspeakable sadness a source of perpetual joy. Can I explain it? No! But I could not preach. I could not hold up my head as a Christian if I did not believe; yea, if I did not know, that somehow, some time, the curse shall be changed into a blessing. This is the privilege of Christians to say even now: "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God."

Why is it that all do not know these things? Partly because of their condition. There are to-day those who "having eyes see not, and having ears hear not." The influence of training is not easily overcome. Trained only to consider as real that which can be analyzed by scientific implements, men refuse to admit the reality of things which they cannot weigh in their scales or measure by their rules. They are honest. So is the blind man honest who says color does not exist. So is the deaf man honest whose soul cannot be moved by the concord of sweet sounds. It is not a question of honesty, but of fact. God is, even though the unbelieving eye may sweep the heavens with the telescope and assert I cannot see God. But trusting hearts will say with ever increasing certitude: "I know whom I believe." This gives us comfort in such a time as this. It is the only thing which can give comfort. So, brethren, let us place ourselves in the hands of a loving God. Let us lean on the divine power. Let us trust the divine wisdom. Let us assure ourselves of the divine home in those mansions which divine love has prepared for us, and let us be confident that "Trial works for ends

Too high for some to trace—
That oft in dark attire He sends
Some embassy of grace."

Love as a Cosmetic.

Love is the greatest beautifier. The reason is easy to see. Love itself is beautiful, and if we give unselfish love a lodgment with us it is constantly exerting a molding influence upon us.

Love always appears at its best. When it goes wooing it always chooses the most becoming attire and the most captivating adornment. So love, when it gets possession of a human body, proceeds to mold the face of that body into the most attractive form, for love always seeks to clothe itself in the most attractive garb.

That is the explanation of the transformation that takes place in a woman who is a mother. She may be plain otherwise, but when she bends over her babe in an ecstasy of mother-love she becomes beautiful. And in proportion as we give place to unselfish love do we become attractive.

There is no masseur like love to work miracles in a homely face, says the Christian Endeavor World. There is no facial specialist who can begin to do as much to make a plain young man or woman attractive, to overcome deformity or hide blemishes as the magician love can do.

To hate is to become hateful. To love as Christ loved is to become lovely. It is not a cheap recipe, for such love costs in proportion to its depth and intensity. But any one that is willing to pay the price may be beautiful.

Boastful Building.

"Blow, O winds! Rise, O ocean! Break forth, ye elements and try my work!" Such was the boastful inscription put upon the first Eddystone lighthouse built by the eccentric Winstanley. His challenge was accepted, and one fearful night the sea swallowed up the tower and its builder.

The next one met a similar fate, the structure and its builder, Rudyard, again perishing together.

The third was erected by Smeaton, who built it all of stone, making it a part of its rock foundation, so that the lighthouse penetrates it as a tree penetrates the soil. Upon this lighthouse no vaunting inscriptions were placed, but on the lowest course were chiseled the words: "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it," and on the keystone, above the lantern, is the exclamation, "Laus Deo!" That structure still stands, a never-failing beacon light to storm-tossed mariners.

He who would build for eternity must not set about his task in any vainglorious, over-confident spirit. He must be careful as to his foundation, building firmly and deeply upon the rock, Christ Jesus, and relying in trust and humility upon Him who alone can enable one to reach a perfect result.—Wellspring.

Grace to Bear.

When Christ does not take away the thing that is hard for us to bear, He gives us grace to keep it and to get on even better than if He had relieved us of it. To Paul He said: "My grace is sufficient for thee." That is, Paul would receive grace from Christ, Christ's own strength in his life, enough of it to meet all his need, so that the suffering would be overbalanced by the grace, and the hindrance overcome by the divine strength imparted. This promise is for every Christian who has a thorn of any kind which Christ does not remove. While we must keep it we shall be helped to bear it, and it will be as though we did not have it.—Forward.

Idols Transformed.

A missionary in Travancore, India, saw, one morning, a native coming to his house with a heavy burden. On reaching it he laid on the ground a sack. Unfastening it he emptied it of its contents—a number of idols. "What have you brought these here for?" asked the missionary; "I don't want them." "You have taught us that we do not want them, sir," said the native, "but we think they might be put to some good use. Could they not be melted down and formed into a bell to call us to church?" The hint was taken; they were sent to a bell founder and made into a bell, which now summons the native converts to praise and prayer.

antation Chill Cure is Guaranteed

To cure, or money refunded by your merchant, so why not try it? Price 50c.

CROP PROGRESS.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau—Alabama Section—For Week Ending October 3, 1904.

GENERAL CONDITIONS.

Dry, hot weather prevailed, temperatures averaging higher than for any week of this growing season; stock water is getting scarce in some districts, and the continued drouth has caused cotton to open rapidly; in many fields late cotton has opened prematurely. The greater portion of the crop is now open and over the state as a whole more than one-half has been picked, though pickers are scarce in some localities. In some southern counties picking is practically completed. There will be very little top crop made. Reports indicate that the bulk of the crop will be gathered by Nov. 1st, with a yield averaging a little better than last year's. The crop is being ginned and marketed almost as fast as it is picked. The lint is of good quality. Comparatively few reports of rust and shedding are now received. A very good corn crop is assured, though late corn has failed considerably through lack of moisture. Much corn remains to be housed. Considerable hay has been saved in good condition, though pastures, fall gardens and late Irish potatoes need rain. Sorghum and sweet potatoes are making a fairly good yield, and cane is doing fairly well. A large crop of field peas has been made. Very little fall plowing has been done.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORTS OF CROP CORRESPONDENTS.

(County—Place.)

NORTHERN DISTRICT.

Calhoun, Piedmont: Weather dry; cotton rusting and shedding; no top crop; corn excellent; potatoes good.—W. J. Gilmer.

Cherokee, Lawrence: Dry weather continues; cotton picking general, prospective yield considerably below an average; corn good; turnips need rain.—D. D. Fleming.

Cullman, Cullman: Cotton picking well advanced, promising yield about the same as last year's; rain needed.—James Kemp.

DeKalb, Round Mountain Crops damaged by continued drouth; cotton picking progressing, prospective yield below average.—A. F. Brock.

Etowah, Crudup: Much cotton open, one-fourth picked, prospective yield about the same as last year's; corn little better than last year.—T. C. Galloway.

Franklin, Phil Campbell: Favorable weather for picking cotton, prospective yield about the same as last year's; no corn gathered.—M. M. Duke.

Jefferson, Covington: Weather dry; late vegetables not doing well.—R. A. McBride.

Lauderdale, Smithsonia: Considerable cotton open, some picked, promising yield slightly better than last year's; no corn gathered.—J. T. Reeder.

Lawrence, Town Creek: Dry weather continues, causing cotton to shed rapidly, yield will be somewhat below average.—W. J. Bracken.

Madison, Madison Station: Cotton opening in good condition, large yield of lint of good quality.—John Hertzler, Sr.

Marion, Guin: Nearly all cotton open, will be about all picked in another month, promising yield considerably below an average.—Frank A. Meier.

Walker, Kansas: Much cotton open, considerable picked, will be about all picked by November 1st, prospective yield less than last year's.—A. H. Blackwell.

MIDDLE DISTRICT.

Bullock, Flora: Nearly all cotton open, much picked, will be nearly all gathered by October 30th, promising yield slightly above last year's.—J. E. Allums.

Chambers, Waverly: Most of cotton open, considerable picked, prospective yield about the same as last year's; no corn housed.—Monroe Jones.

Chilton, Lomax: A great deal of cotton open, about all will be gathered in next four weeks, promising yield slightly below last year's.—A. A. Jackson.

Choctaw, Pushmataha: Weather very dry; cotton opening very rapidly, pickers scarce; peas damaged by dry weather.—C. C. Brown.

Clay, Ashland: Much cotton open, will be about all picked by December 1st, prospective yield above last year's, no plowing done.—James L. Carwile.

Dallas, King's Landing: Nearly all cotton open and about one-half picked, prospective yield about the same as last year's.—W. T. Alison.

Elmore, Spigners: Bulk of cotton crop open, about two-thirds picked, promising yield about the same as last year's.—W. P. Clark.

Lee, Roxana: Most of cotton open, about all will be gathered by the 20th inst, prospective yield below last year's.—J. H. Hays.

Lowndes, Calhoun: Dry weather continues; considerable cotton open and picked, promising yield better than last year; no plowing done.—A. M. Troyer.

Marengo, Hampden: Nearly all cotton open, one-half picked, promising light yield; minor crops and gardens need rain.—A. P. Dumas.

Perry, Uniontown: Cotton opening prematurely, last picking will be light, late corn poor.—J. M. Richeson.

Pickens, Ethelsville: Very dry, late crops need rain, no top crop of cotton, sugar cane good.—H. C. Moorhead, M. D.

Randolph, Pittman: Rain needed; cotton opening rapidly; picking progressing, promising yield slightly above last year's; fall crops need rain.—W. M. Burt.

Shelby, Columbiana: Weather dry, nearly all cotton open, no top crop, prospective yield less than last year's.—J. A. Cameron.

Sumter, York: Considerable cotton open, much picked, promising yield about the same as last year's; no fall plowing done.—Frank Holman.

Talladega, Chandler Springs: Week dry, cotton opening rapidly, little picked, promising yield far below an average.—M. F. Chandler.

Tuscaloosa, Moore's Bridge: Nearly all cotton open, picking will be about finished by November 1st, promising yield below last year's.—E. Tannehill.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Barbour, Bush: Weather dry; nearly all cotton open, much picked, promising yield slightly above last year's; no fall plowing.—R. D. Bush.

Butler, Bolling: Most of cotton open and picked, about all will be gathered by October 15th, prospective yield about the same as last year's.—S. D. Boggan.

Clarke, Whatley: Still dry; cotton nearly all open, will be all picked by November 1st, promising yield slightly below last year's.—J. A. Hill.

Conecuh, Bermuda: Most of cotton open, two-thirds picked, promising yield below an average.—M. J. Morris.

Covington, River Falls: Nearly all cotton open, about all will be picked by October 30th, promising a yield a little above last year's.—A. F. Powell.

Dale, Verona: Weather dry; about all cotton open, no top crop, picking nearly completed, yield good.—J. F. Sammons & Co.

Escambia, Pollard: Cotton opening rapidly, will be picked by November 1st, promising yield about the same as last year's.—J. W. Kelly.

Mobile, Grand Bay: Favorable weather for haying and for growing crops, syrup making will begin soon.—Julius Schnadelbach.

Monroe, Burnt Corn: Weather very dry; cotton nearly all open, two-thirds picked, promising yield slightly above last year's.—A. J. Lee.

Wilcox, Catherine: Most of cotton open, one-half picked, will be all gathered by November 10th, prospective yield slightly above last year's.—W. L. Bruce.

FRANK P. CHAFFEE,
Section Director, Montgomery, Ala.

RECOGNIZED IN TENNESSEE

Harrison Armour Now in Jail for Murder.

Harrison Armour, fugitive from justice, with a record as a desperate man, is lodged in the Jefferson county jail.

Harrison Armour and his brother, Thomas K. Armour, are alleged to have killed Reuben L. Little at Morris on the 14th of November, 1903, and made good their escape. The brothers had words with Little some time previous to the killing.

A sheriff's posse chased the fugitives into Marshall county, where Thomas K. Armour was shot and killed while resisting arrest by R. L. Amos, constable at Boaz. Harrison Armour eluded the officers.

About six weeks ago Harrison Armour was arrested in Chattanooga by Deputy Sheriff Shelton on the charge of carrying a concealed weapon. He was then known as Will Davis, and had been working in a machine shop in Chattanooga. The arrest grew out of an altercation which he had in a saloon. He was tried in the criminal court, fined $50 and costs and sent to the Hamilton county work house.

Sheriff Shipp, who has recently been inducted into office, went to Knoxville the other day to take some prisoners before the supreme court, and while there he received the information that "Will Davis" was identified with Harrison Armour.

May Offer to Arbitrate.

A clerical paper says that the pope will probably offer his services as moderator in the Japanese-Russian war. It is stated if the pope should offer his services he would not have the slightest chance of effecting peace, as both the Russians and Japanese are determined to have a decisive outcome.

New Drug Company.

The Greenville Drug Company, of Greenville, with a capital stock of $5,000, has informed the secretary of state of its incorporation.

Jim Heald, a nineteen-year-old white boy, who lived at Attalla, was run over and killed by a switch engine at the steel works Tuesday. It is certain that the youth had deliberately gone to sleep across the track.

State Convention.

The state convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Mississippi will meet in Hattiesburg November 4-7. The sessions and accompanying services will be held in the Main Street Methodist church. There will be present speakers for the convention services some of the best and most talented women in the south.

HENRY C. PAYNE DEAD.

Postmaster General Passed Peacefully Away Tuesday Night.

CORTELYOU WILL SUCCEED

Heart Trouble Was the Cause of Death—Interment Will be at Milwaukee.

Henry C. Payne, postmaster general of the United States, a member of the national republican committee, a stalwart friend of his party, with the history of which, both in his home state and nationally, he has been identified for years, died in Washington Tuesday night, aged 60 years. The death and its cause was announced in the following official bulletin issued by the attending physicians:

"The postmaster general died at 6:10. He died peacefully without a struggle. Cause of death, disease of miltral valve and ditoneton shrdl — mitral valve and dilation of the heart."

Mr. Payne had been in poor health for at least two years, but his last illness covered only seven days, an attack of heart trouble precipitating the end at a time when after a rest he seemed to have recovered small measure of his vitality, impaired by years of arduous labor. Death came after nearly six hours of unconsciousness.

The last official caller to inquire as to Mr. Payne's condition was President Roosevelt, and he had been gone only about ten minutes when the stricken member of his cabinet expired.

As Mr. Roosevelt was leaving he spoke feelingly of Mr. Payne to the newspaper men gathered in front of the hotel as the "sweetest, most lovable and most trustful man I ever knew."

When the postmaster general had breathed his last Dr. Magruder led Mrs. Payne out of the room. It was stated that she had stood up bravely under the heavy strain.

The last day had been one during which practically all hope had been abandoned for some hours. The approach of dissolution began during the noon hour, when the sick man lost consciousness, and no longer recognized those whom he had attempted to cheer during his illness by saying to them that he was all right.

Funeral services will be held at St. John's Episcopal church. The remains should arrive at Milwaukee Sunday evening, and services will be held there. Interment will be at the Forest Home cemetery, Milwaukee.

In succession to Mr. Payne, George Bruce Cortelyou, former secretary of the department of commerce and labor and now chairman of the republican national committee, will become postmaster general.

Mr. Cortelyou's appointment as head of the postoffice department was determined upon several months ago by President Roosevelt when Mr. Payne indicated his desire to retire from the department on accountof the precarious state of his health. Mr. Payne would have resigned the portfolio long ago had it not been for the pending investigation of the affairs of the department.

It is the understanding now that Mr. Cortelyou will assume the duties of postmaster general as soon as he can conveniently after the close of the pending campaign. It is probable that he will enter the office about the 1st of December.

In the interim the responsibilities of directing the affairs of the postoffice department will devolve on Mr. Wynne, who has just returned from an extended trip to Europe. He will continue as acting postmaster general until such time as the president may designate formally the successor of Mr. Payne.

Will Rebuild.

The commissary building of the Lacey-Buck Iron Company, which was burned at Crudup a few nights ago, will be rebuilt soon as possible. The plans are for a two-story frame structure, which will have a frontage of about fifty feet and which will cost about $4,000.

Cost of Guard.

It is estimated that the cost of guarding the Huntsville jail from Thursday afternoon, Sept. 15, to Sunday, Sept. 25, amounted to $1,300 including commissary expenses, salaries and transportation.

Change of Venue.

Arguments of several days over the petition for a change of venue in the Iroquois theater cases culminated in Judge Keerstan granting the petition, after State's Attorney Barnes withdrew his objections.

Alabama Cotton.

The cotton crop of Alabama for the present season will not exceed 1,100,000 bales, according to a prediction made by Hon. R. R. Poole, commissioner of agriculture and industries.

Mr. Poole bases his prediction on a careful review of the situation and reports that have come to him from several hundred correspondents of his department.

MAY NOT BE PAID.

Judge and Solicitor at Huntsville in Legal Tangle.

"Suppose Judge Speake and Solicitor Pettus, of the Limestone-Madison circuit, were to ask for warrants for their pay for the past month, would you let them have the warrants?"

This question was asked State Auditor Sowell. "No," replied the auditor, "I would not let them have the warrants." This shows one of the main features of declaring the Lusk bill unconstitutional by the supreme court. This judge and solicitor have served the state the past month trying the lynchers of Horace Maples. This circuit is the main one that is seriously affected. These men were appointed by the governor and have been drawing their pay for the services rendered the state, yet under the decision of the supreme court they have not been legally entitled to it.

The question is now asked: "If these officers are not entitled to the money received by them, will the state get the money back?" They have performed their duty, yet under the decision just rendered they had no duty to perform.

EPISCOPALIANS

In Triennial Convention in Trinity Church, Boston.

The intellect and the power of the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States are concentrating in Boston.

In addition to the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Church of England has as representatives here the Rt. Rev. William Boyd Carpenter, lord bishop of Ripon, and one or two other members of the Anglican Episcopate.

Talks with the prominent churchmen indicate that the coming convention will be full of interest and importance. Among the important topics of business to be considered and acted upon is the report of the commission which was appointed three years ago to consider the question of changing the legal name of the church, "Protestant Episcopal," and to ask the opinion of the diocese. The commission in a report made public last spring decided against a change at this time.

The agitation for a more explicit and stricter canon on the prohibition of marriage of divorced persons, except for one cause, will also be discussed at length, and the advisability of grouping the diocese of the country into provinces, with a primate at the head of each province, will also be considered. A proposed board of review, where appeals from the diocesan courts may be heard, the question of meeting the situation in the insular possessions and other issues will also be taken up.

FEVER CRAZED MAN.

Kills Four Persons and Escapes to the Woods.

Four persons were shot to death by Charles Gertrell, a young Memphian, at O'Brien's Landing, Mo. Delirious from fever, Gertrell, who is a commissary clerk, rose from bed, seized a gun and ran amuck.

After the shooting Gertrell, it is said, leaped from the store where the shooting took place, picked up two pistols as he ran and disappeared in the woods. He was clad only in a night shirt.

The sheriff of Charlestown, Mo., was notified and a posse was formed to hunt for Gertrell. They expect that he will have to be killed before he will surrender. No clew as to the whereabouts of the young man had been found from all reports.

KILLED WITH A STONE.

Self-Defense Claimed by the One Who Threw It.

Hugh Wright, a well-known young man of Leighton, surrendered himself to the sheriff and was lodged in the county jail pending the action of the grand jury now in session. Wright killed "Coon" Aycock Saturday afternoon at Leighton. It is claimed that Aycock was advancing upon Wright with an open knife, and the latter jumping behind a buggy picked up a stone from the ground and hurled it at Aycock, the missile striking him on the head, fracturing his skull, death resulting instantly.

The dead man had a family, and had recently returned from Texas, where he had been living for the past three or four years. The man who did the killing is unmarried.

Only Woman Forecaster Dead.

Mrs. Annie Hall Grenewald, the only woman forecast official employed by the United States government, is dead at her home in Pennsylvania, aged 57 years. For seventeen years Mrs. Grenewald had kept on her husband's farm a complete station record of weather conditions and was regarded by the farmers of York county as an authority.

Mrs. Grenewald was president of the National Scientific Club of Washington and editor of Earth and Air, a scientific journal.

And He Turns Them Away.

With an estimated record of nearly 1,500 marriages, the fiftieth anniversary of the Church of Transfiguration, in New York city, known far and wide as the Little Church Around the Corner, has been celebrated.

Speaking of the many marriages celebrated in the church, the rector, Dr. Houghton, declared that he turns away many more couples than he marries.

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

Louisville & Nashville R.

Read Down — CENTRAL TIME.

AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58	....
7 19	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42	....
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17	....
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 11	....
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
For rates and further information address

A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Al

A Great Combination Of

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democ

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the of the national campaign, and all the news of all the you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home pape the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City. for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.

SHOES that are Reliable.

SHOES made to Wear.

NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and F

Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Al

Gelder's Restaurant

Good Meals at Reasonable Pri

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Pure Water Prevents Fever

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WA

We guarantee water or no charge m

Estimates given. Address

I. E. SARBER CO

Thorsby, Alabama.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE A

FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Bra

'Are the Best on Earth'

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alab

It Pays, An Ad In This Pa

T

VOL II.

ATTLE IS RAGING

en Russians and Japan- at Yentai. Japanese are Aggressivc

ARTILLERY ENGAGEMENT.

Papers Attribute Kuropatkin's erations to Pressure from St. Petersburg.

loody battle is raging about six north of Yental railroad sta- The Japanese on Sunday fell along the whole of the north and the Russian advance guards d the Schili river (about half between Mukden and Liao Yang) ame within three miles of Yen-erday, however, the Japanese re- strong reinforcement of in- and artillery and not only held positions, but even assumed the ive. The fighting lasted the en- day and night.

Japanese directed their artil- ire with great skill and searched ussian positions so fiercely that Russians fell back north of the river, which crosses the rail- 7 miles from Yental. The Rus- this morning resumed their ad- , once more crossing the Schili and engaged the Japanese two south of it. A terrific artillery gement is occurring along the front. The result of the battle ill undecided.

e latest official dispatches indi- g the disposition of the various show that the whole army is et in line of battle. The present gement may therefore be regard- the result of a counter attack the Japanese might be expect- o make, but without any calcula- to prevent the Russian advance.

CONSPIRACY

Be Charged Against Members of Huntsville Mob.

ited States circuit court for the ern district of Alabama con- d at Huntsville Tuesday morning, Thomas G. Jones presiding. A deal of interest was felt in Jones' charge to the grand jury. was known that he would deal the recent lynching of Horace substance Judge Jones charged rand jury that if they found that lynching of Maples was due to dice against him because of his they should find indictments for y. More ominous however than section of his charge was that ference to the federal prisoners lives were endangered by assault on the county On this subject Judge Jones d that members of the mob the jail were guilty of a felony, y knew there were federal pris- therein.

his charge Judge Jones treats piracy and said indictments he found for conspiracy.

Mississippi Levee Commission.

e report of the October meeting Mississippi board of levee com- oners has been received at the nor's office.

e report shows that at the end of fiscal year, September 30, the urer of the board had on hand 14.53, and a good portion of this will be paid out for levee work under course of construction. The receipts from all sources for the were $470,855.51, and the total rsements $229,870.98, leaving a ce as above stated. The finance mittee checked the books and them correctly kept.

Took Morphine.

Lou Moore of Morgan county, was found dead in bed and an morphine bottle by her side the story. Her parents had ob- ed seriously to her marrying a g man of the neighborhood.

1641 the first attempt was made form a universal language.

New Spindles.

the third quarter of the year 119,- spindles were added or projected the southern capital. This is a reduction from the additions in corresponding quarter of 1903. this total Alabama secures 22,- spindles; Georgia, 30,000; Missis- 9,600.

1,500 Miners Quit Work.

fteen hundred miners employed by Massillon, O., Coal Mining company on strike demanding an advance cents a ton over the scale fixed April for machine mining.

ng door spiders have been known ve sixteen months without food.

HIS P

Smooth Sc

One of gery en oped in M man name under arre the name rimonial Grayson alleged s somewhat was an i W. Booth munity Accordi went to h tain young ing town w the old ma to enter him with object.

Grayson the court ducted by bling block he could Grayson w ters for B the epistle

This w months. G letters for mailing the his sister would app old man f cate subter to relieve the amoun footing up aggregate were made but the summation suspicions discovered I it than was which resu son and he the grand

The city and New D ances requi cities to nu places of b streets will

As soon ties will iss the Decatur

Th

The loss gunboat He mission gra of the disas

The Hely eon Bay on and founde the entire c

Inasmuch Granade, w tion on No pine, solici cuit, has s the governo before the Mr. Granade

Will Thoro

It is exp few days a will arrive gating the bama with mammoth pose of dri is said tha will have a that they fullest exte

According logical surv ties in the Pennsylvan Texas.

The city and New D ances requi cities to nu places of b streets will

As soon ties will iss the Decatur

Th

The loss gunboat He mission gra of the disas

The Hely eon Bay on and founde the entire c

Inasmuch Granade, w tion on No pine, solici cuit, has s the governo before the Mr. Granade

Are Not W

The Pru have just erection sian cities of German for a modi ulations in dustry and experienced ing sufficie the growin tioners pol limitation in Berlin necessary i of steel c answered not been r ing, citing States wh stories cou broke out showing it tor so high

Time Table
In effect August 1, 1904.
ville & Nashville R.
CENTRAL TIME.

PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2
10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45
18	Calera	9 25	10 33
...	Jemison	8 58	....
...	Thorsby	8 51	....
...	Lomax	8 42	....
03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48
...	Cooper	8 17	....
...	Verbena	8 11	....
...	Mt. Creek	8 00	....
25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25

Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
ther information address
TINSON, Agent, Clanton, A

t Combination Of
will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the
uis Globe-Democ
WITH
The Union
FOR Papers One Year Only$
is Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-W or more, every Tuesday and Friday.
Politics and has no equal or rival
Modern Newspaper.
ll the news of the World's Fair, all the campaign, and all the news of all the e Globe-Democrat during the coming
OW IS THE TIME.
To-Day and get your best home pape ewspaper of the World's Fair City.
Address
nion, Clanton, Ala.

My Specialty..
f Leather.
that are Reliable.
HOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.
Groceries, Flour and F
ffs, Tobacco and Snuff.
Department Full and Complete.
J. W. SMITH.
ce Building. Clanton, Al

er's Restaurant
als at Reasonable Pri
110 North 20th Street,
MINGHAM, ALABAMA.

ter Prevents Feve
ELLS FURNISH PURE WA
ntee water or no charge m
ven. Address
I. E. SARBER C
Alabama.

. MERCHANDISE A
FERTILIZERS
FOR SALE.
ecial & Mule Bra
the Best on Earth
C. JONES,
- - - Alab

An Ad In This Pa

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. II. CLANTON, ALA., OCTOBER 13, 1904. NO. 29.

TTLE IS RAGING

en Russians and Japan-at Yentai. Japanese are Aggressive

TILLERY ENGAGEMENT.

Papers Attribute Kuropatkin's rations to Pressure from St. Petersburg.

ody battle is raging about six north of Yental railroad sta-
The Japanese on Sunday fell long the whole of the north d the Russian advance guards the Schill river (about half tween Mukden and Liao Yang) me within three miles of Yenrday, however, the Japanese re-strong reinforcement of inand artillery and not only held positions, but even assumed the ve. The fighting lasted the en-y and night.

Japanese directed their artil-
e with great skill and searched ssian positions so fiercely that ssians fell back north of the river, which crosses the rail-f miles from Yental. The Rusthis morning resumed their ad-once more crossing the Schill and engaged the Japanese two south of it. A terrific artillery gement is occurring along the front. The result of the battle ll undecided.
latest official dispatches indithe disposition of the various show that the whole army is ll in line of battle. The present ement may therefore be regard-the result of a counter attack the Japanese might be expect-make, but without any calcula-to prevent the Russian advance.

CONSPIRACY

Be Charged Against Members of Huntsville Mob.

ed States circuit court for the ern district of Alabama con-at Huntsville Tuesday morning, Thomas G. Jones presiding. A deal of interest was felt in Jones' charge to the grand jury, was known that he would deal
the recent lynching of Horace
.
substance Judge Jones charged and jury that if they found that nching of Maples was due to ice against him because of his they should find indictments for
y. More ominous however than ction of his charge was that rence to the federal prisoners lives were endangered by assault on the county
On this subject Judge Jones
d that members of the mob
the jail were guilty of a felony, knew there were federal pristherein.
his charge Judge Jones treats racy and said indictments be found for conspiracy.

Mississippi Levee Commission.

report of the October meeting
Mississippi board of levee comners has been received at the nor's office.
report shows that at the end of cal year, September 30, the urer of the board had on hand 14.53, and a good portion of this will be paid out for levee work nder course of construction. The receipts from all sources for the were $470,855.51, and the total rsements $229,370.98, leaving a ce as above stated. The finance ittee checked the books and them correctly kept.

Took Morphine.

Lou Moore of Morgan county, was found dead in bed and an morphine bottle by her side the story. Her parents had ob-seriously to her marrying a man of the neighborhood.

1841 the first attempt was made a universal language.

New Spindles.

the third quarter of the year 119,- pindles were added or projected southern capital. This is a reduction from the additions in rresponding quarter of 1903.
this total Alabama secures 22,- pindles; Georgia, 30,000; Missis-
6,600.

1,500 Miners Quit Work.

ven hundred miners employed by assion, O., Coal Mining company strike demanding an advance cents a ton over the scale fixed April for machine mining.

door spiders have been known sixteen months without food.

HIS PRIVATE SECRETARY.

Smooth Scheme Worked to Get Money From Old Man.

One of the most unique cases of forgery on record has just been developed in Mississippi. A young white man named Grayson has been placed under arrest on the charge of using the name of his sister-in-law for matrimonial purposes.

Grayson is a married man and the alleged victim of his original and somewhat amusing confidence game was an illiterate old man named R. W. Booth, who lives in the same community.

According to the evidence Grayson went to Booth and told him that a certain young lady living in a neighboring town was very much smitten with the old man's charms, and would like to enter into a correspondence with him with matrimony as the ultimate object.

Grayson convinced his victim that the courtship would have to be conducted by letter. This was a stumbling block in the old man's path, for he could neither read nor write, and Grayson was engaged to write the letters for Booth, and also read for him the epistles from the lady.

This was kept up for several months, Grayson not only writing the letters for Booth, but also writing and mailing the replies under the name of his sister-in-law, and frequently he would apply an artistic touch to the old man for coin, using various delicate subterfuges. Methods were used to relieve the old man of his money, the amounts being always small, but footing up a good sized sum in the aggregate. Several arrangements were made for clandestine meetings, but the plans always failed of consummation until Booth finally became suspicious, especially after he had purchased a wedding gown and delivered it to Grayson. An investigation was started on his own account which resulted in the arrest of Grayson and he is now being held to await the grand jury session.

SKYSCRAPERS

Are Not Wanted in Germany—Danger From Fire Cited.

The Prussian ministers of public have just rejected a petition for the erection of "sky-scrapers" in Prussian cities. The Central association of German manufacturers had asked for a modification of the building regulations in the interest of the iron industry and because of the difficulty experienced in some cities in supplying sufficient dwellings to accomodate the growing population. The petitioners pointed out that the present limitation of the height of buildings in Berlin to seventy-four feet is unnecessary in view of modern methods of steel construction. The ministers answered that the danger of fire had not been removed through steel framing, citing recent cases in the United States where people on the high upper stories could not be rescued when fire broke out in the lower stories and showing it was impossible to get water so high to extinguish the flames.

FRENCH OIL CO.

Will Thoroughly Test the North Alabama Fields.

It is expected that within the next few days a party of French capitalists will arrive for the purpose of investigating the oil fields of North Alabama with a view to organizing a mammoth oil company, for the purpose of drilling for oil at Decatur. It is said that the company, if formed, will have almost unlimited capital and that they will test the fields to the fullest extent regardless of cost.

According to the United States geological survey this section of Alabama lies in the oil belt which extends from Pennsylvania to the great fields of Texas.

City Directory.

The city councils of both Decatur and New Decatur have passed ordinances requiring the citizens of both cities to number their residences and places of business. The names of the streets will also be put up.

As soon as this work is done parties will issue a city directory of both the Decaturs.

Three Hundred Lost.

The loss of the Japanese armored gunboat Heiyen is announced and permission granted to publish the details of the disaster.

The Heiyen struck a mine off Pigeon Bay on the night of September 18 and foundered. Nearly 300 persons, the entire complement were drowned.

Resigned.

Inasmuch as his successor, James Granade, will be elected to the position on November 8, John W. McAlpine, solicitor of the Thirteenth circuit, has sent in his resignation to the governor to take effect one day before the election which will put Mr. Granade in.

CROP PROGRESS.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau—Alabama Section.

October 10, 1904.

GENERAL CONDITIONS.

Dry, moderately hot weather prevailed, the temperature averaging a few degrees above normal, though day temperatures were somewhat lower than during the previous week; beneficial showers were received in some northern and a few southern counties, but elsewhere the drought continues practically unbroken; in many localities, streams are dry, many wells have failed, and stock water is scarce in some districts. Practically all the cotton is open in southern and middle counties, with about three-fourths of it open in the northern district; picking is well advanced, and has been completed in some fields; pickers are still scarce in some localities, but reports continue to agree that the bulk of the crop will be gathered by November 1st; the quality of the lint continues good; while there has been a slight improvement in the yield in a few fields, the yield for the state, as a whole, will be but little better than that of last year; there will be very little top crop; cotton is being marketed rapidly. Early corn is being housed slowly, the yield being generally very good, though light in a few scattered localities; late corn will make a generally light yield, owing to damage by drought. More hay has been saved in good condition; sweet potatoes and field peas are making an irregular, though generally good yield; sorghum is yielding fairly well, and cane continues promising; fall gardens and late Irish potatoes were benefited where rains were received, but are generally a failure through lack of moisture; cut worms are damaging fall gardens in gulf counties; little plowing has been done, and a little oats have been sown.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORTS OF CROP CORRESPONDENTS.

(County—Place.)

NORTHERN DISTRICT.

Calhoun, Duke: Cotton opening rapidly, promising yield slightly better than that of last year, sorghum being ground; sweet potatoes good.—W. M. Curry.

Cleburne, Abel: Rain on the 5th; considerable cotton open, promising yield about the same as that of last year; no fall plowing done.—E. H. Taylor.

Colbert, Leighton: Bulk of the cotton crop open; about one-half picked, prospective yield about the same as that of last year; no corn gathered.—A. B. DeLony.

Cullman, Wenzel: Most of the cotton open; about one-third picked; prospective yield about the same as that of last year.—C. B. Livingston.

Etowah, Keener: Favorable weather for picking cotton, prospective yield about the same as that of last year.—F. M. Tabor.

Fayette, Pilgrim: Dry weather continues; cotton picking well advanced, with light yield indicated; some corn gathered, yield good; minor crops need rain.—V. Savage.

Franklin, Churubusco: Cotton nearly all open, about one-third picked, picking will be about completed by November 15th, yield promises about that of last year.—J. A. Benson.

Jefferson, Argo: Considerable cotton open, about one-half picked, promising yield somewhat below an average; no fall plowing; rain on 6th.—G. B. Prayton.

Lamar, Pharos: Weather favorable for picking cotton, prospective yield slightly below last year's; corn yielding well; gardens need rain.—J. J. Weeks.

Limestone, Athens: Cotton nearly all open on uplands, picking being pushed, indicated yield about same as last year's.—W. H. Dougherty.

Marshall, Albertville: Drought continues; cotton picking well advanced, promising yield about the same as that of last year; no fall plowing.—W. H. Garrett.

Morgan, Simpson: Nearly all cotton open, about one-fourth picked, promising yield somewhat below an average; large yield of hay.—J. H. Black.

St. Clair, Trussville: Good rain on the 6th; cotton being picked, ginned, and marketed rapidly, prospective yield about the same as that of last year.—James M. Tresly.

MIDDLE DISTRICT.

Autauga, Haynes: Little cotton remains to open, picking nearing completion; gardens need rain.—W. N. Gaines.

Bullock, Inverness: Cotton about all open, considerable picked, prospective yield a little above that of last year.—H. McLean.

Chilton, Mountain Creek: Most of cotton open, much picked, ginned and marketed; some corn being gathered.—T. J. Henderson.

Choctaw, Buffalo: Cotton nearly all open, two-thirds picked, promising yield better than that of last year; some corn gathered.—J. T. Spence.

Coosa, Goodwater: Weather still dry; cotton opening rapidly, with yield slightly below last year's; some corn being gathered.—R. C. Meacham.

Dallas, Harrell: Bulk of cotton crop open, will be about all picked by November 1st; corn being housed with excellent yield.—W. B. Moore.

Elmore, Dexter: Little cotton remains to open, considerable picked, promising yield about the same as last year's; late cotton poor.—E. Powell.

Greene, Union: Weather dry; nearly all cotton open, prospective yield about the same as that of last year; gardens damaged by drought.—W. L. Story.

Lee, Gold Hill: Considerable early cotton open, late very unpromising; corn being housed, yield good; weather continues dry.—W. T. Andrews.

Montgomery, Hope Hull: Favorable weather for picking cotton, most of which is open; hay of good quality being saved; too dry for gardens.—J. W. Smith.

Pickens, Ethelsville: Cotton about all open, being picked rapidly, pickers scarce; late field crops and gardens damaged by drought.—H. C. Moorehead, M. D.

Randolph, Napoleon: Favorable week for gathering crops; cotton opening rapidly, picking being pushed; light showers 2d and 5th.—L. W. Townsend.

Russell, Heard: Some fine hay saved this week; drought continues, streams nearly all dry.—John E. Bush.

Shelby, Vincent: Favorable weather for gathering crops; cotton picking and ginning progressing; dry weather continues.—B. H. Samuel.

Sumter, Sumterville: About four-fifths of the cotton open, picking progressing fairly well, yield will be considerably less than last year's; corn being gathered, with good yield.—Godfrey Bros.

Talladega, Chandler Springs: Light shower on 6th, though still very dry; cotton being picked; sorghum being ground.—M. F. Chandler.

Tuscaloosa, Tuscaloosa: Bulk of cotton crop open, much picked, promising yield about the same as last year's.—E. N. C. Snow.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Baldwin, Magnolia Springs: Rain on the 6th, benefiting gardens; cut worms damaging Irish potatoes and garden crops; favorable weather for haying.—H. P. Kreuger.

Barbour, Mt. Andrew: Most of cotton open, being picked and marketed rapidly, promising yield better than that of last year; minor crops damaged by drought.—J. J. Willis.

Butler, Forest Home: Still dry; bulk of cotton crop open, three-fourths picked, will be about all picked by November 1st.—J. P. Benson.

Clarke, Thomasville: Most of cotton open, more than one-half picked, indicated yield better than anticipated.—T. N. Davis.

Coffee, Enterprise: Nearly all cotton open, about four-fifths picked, prospective yield about the same as last year's no fall plowing.—B. W. Fleming.

Conecuh, Brooklyn: A great deal of cotton open, will be about all picked by November 1st, promising yield about the same as last year's.—M. H. Sanders.

Dale, Ozark: Weather dry; cotton all open, about three-fourths picked, promising yield somewhat below an average.—Daniel McNeal.

Mobile, Grand Bay: Rain on the 6th, benefiting fall gardens; cane improving; haying still in progress.—Julius Schnadelbach.

Monroe, Monday: Cotton nearly all open; considerable picked, will be about all picked by November 1st, prospective yield below an average.—R. T. Solomon.

Pike, Troy: Weather dry, except light shower on 7th; cotton about all open, more than one-half picked, promising yield slightly above last year's.—J. M. Warren.

FRANK P. CHAFFEE,
Section Director, Montgomery, Ala.

Public Funds.

The governor sent to the office of Treasurer J. Craig Smith two drafts on Uncle Sam, in the sums of $292.97 and $439.45, which came as the state's part in the two and three per cent net proceeds of public lands sold within the state by the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904.

New Doctors.

Nearly sixty young medical students appeared before the state board of health to stand examination for license to practice medicine in Mississippi. One young lady graduate was among the number. Several negroes are also on the list.

The Atlantic City (N. J.) lovers who are forbidden to spoon on the beach should have sand enough to stand up for their natural rights, comments the Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald.

This is from the jealous-minded Atlanta Constitution: "Up in Ohio the farmers are so prosperous that they are being operated on for appendicitis," says the Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

The University of Chicago has added 1700 volumes of books on marriage and divorce to its library. People will still continue to get their information on these subjects from the school of experience.

It will be one of the greatest tributes to democracy that the age has afforded if little Japan, with her thoroughly democratic system of military organization, should triumph over Russia with her autocratic and aristocratic methods, says the Boston Globe.

The fable of the hare and the tortoise received a modern illustration in the experience of an automobile party that started from Becket, Mass., for Boston, says the Boston Transcript. After going four miles the machine broke down and was hauled back by a yoke of oxen.

The celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Kings College, now Columbia University, will take in only members of the family, but, as there are now about 14,000 of the alumni, it may be quite a tea party, after all, says the Boston Transcript.

Ask any of those who promote men in their employment what happens—especially when they give a man authority over others and make a petty boss of him. There is not one man in five that can stand the exercise of authority without being made conceited and more or less useless.

Short fiction writers seem to be turning toward business for inspiration, the New York Evening Post states. May we not hope that in this field, at last, something stimulating will be found against which the intellectual tooth may be set with confidence that there is wherewithal to gnaw.

It has been suggested that, as there is no established abbreviation for Alaska, Aaa., would make a convenient and distinctive abbreviation. This form would not be confounded with the abbreviation for Alabama. The suggestion is made by William A. Kelly, superintendent of the Industrial Training School, Sitka, Alaska.

The United States shipped to Europe the last year apples to the value of $8,750,000, Great Britain being the chief consumer. American apples of the best varieties are becoming more popular in Europe every year, the New York Tribune declares, a fact which may give owners of New England farms, unprofitable at present, a valuable hint.

Closing Out Sale.

J. W. Franzen, of Thorsby, Ala., will sell his large stock of General Merchandise, as he is compelled to quit business on account of his health Everything to be sold at greatly reduced prices, in quantities to suit purchasers. Also Farming Lands and Orchard Tracts for sale.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc. You will find a full line of

SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS. PAINTS OILS and GLASS.

We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.

CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 4th St., Opposite Court House.
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins,
Physician and Surgeon,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Office with Hopkins Drug Co.
CLANTON.

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 12 a. m.
1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

Notice! Notice!

If you want good Bargains and good articles in Dry Goods, Groceries & Hamilton-Brown, Shoes, we have them for you

Jackson & Robinson
Lomax, Ala.

Dr. A. Conan Doyle, the author, is a stalwart cricketer, and, they say, can provide as exciting a time with

Going to Plant

Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a postal for my new manual "How to Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.
P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

PURE GOODS
The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

The Farm

The Fat Cattle.

But few cattle reach the market that are as fat as they might be, and it is frequently the case that steers could be made to weigh 100 or more pounds if properly prepared for market. A fat steer that can be made to take on 100 pounds more will not only have the additional value in weight, but will bring one or two more cents more per pound; hence, the additional 100 pounds may add from $15 to $20 to the value of the animal, and at small cost.

Marketing Products.

Farmers often allow their stock to go on the market in an unfit condition, and in consequence, realize unsatisfactory prices. Others market fruit, vegetables, grains, etc., without being properly sorted and cleaned. The difference between marketing products in this condition possible is the difference between marketing a finished and unfinished product, and the prices realized are generally in proportion.

Value of Salt For Sheep.

Experiments recently made in France for the purpose of ascertaining the nutritive value of salt for sheep show that sheep which had been fed salt gained in weight four and a half pounds more than those which received no salt. Moreover, the sheep which received salt produced one and three-quarter pounds more wool and of a better quality than those which received no salt.

It is in accord with the experiences in this country also. Perhaps no careful experiments have been made to show these facts, as in France, yet the observations of flock masters are to the effect that salt is a very essential thing for sheep, and it is their practice generally to supply it regularly.

To Cure Mange.

Mange is not a disease in the common sense of the term, but is caused either by a vegetable parasite or by an insect, which grows in the skin. There are two kinds, but both are treated alike. The skin is first washed with warm water and carbolic soap to soften it and open the pores, in which the parasites are embedded; it will help matters to rub the skin with a corncob or something rough to break up the vessels and remove the crust. The parts are then dried and rubbed thoroughly with an ointment made of four parts of lard, one part sulphur and one part kerosene, adding about twenty drops of creosote to an ounce of the mixture. Work this well into the skin with a hard brush, repeating daily for two weeks or more in order to destroy any new growth from eggs or spores.

Sowing Clover With Wheat.

Farmers who appreciate the value of clover in farming operations are quite willing to go to some trouble to obtain a stand. Oftentime failure results, but in many cases this failure is due to some fault in the plan of sowing the seed. Try the following plan: The wheat field is thoroughly prepared and gone over with a spring tooth harrow before sowing the wheat. Level the soil with a harrow and then apply fertilizers at the rate of 300 pounds per acre, making up a ton of it in the following proportions: 1000 pounds of acid phosphate, 800 pounds of kainit and 200 pounds of muriate of potash. The fertilizer is broadcasted on the soil and then about eight loads of fine manure put on; then the whole field is harrowed two or three times, and it is ready for the wheat seed and clover. The plan, as outlined involves considerable labor and expense, but it is likely to bring desired results.—Indianapolis News.

Early Scarlet Radish.

While there may not be a great deal of money in growing radishes, the crop is one that is easily and cheaply grown, and for a time early in the season sells well. Naturally, the earliest sorts are the most profitable, although, if one is located near a live town and will grow the radish crop so that they are crisp and fresh at all times, it is possible to extend the profitable season. The Earliest Scarlet is one of the best of the early sorts, and as it has not been grown for several season, it has proved its worth.

The skin is a rich scarlet color and the flesh white and crisp. While it is a favorite for growing under glass, it is equally profitable grown in the open ground, where it matures quickly and thus retains its crispness. By dropping seeds in the ground whenever a pulling is made, the radish season is considerably prolonged and the soil made to yield a larger percentage of profit. The variety is well worth planting everywhere.

Soil Erosion.

More soil fertility goes into the streams in winter than goes to grow a crop the following summer, unless the surface is covered with growing roots. A well sodded pasture field without naked spots will not wash. A cornfield well set with green rye or wheat of strong, full growth will do much less surface washing or soil leaching than a barren field where the furrows run with the incline and have no carpet of green for a covering and no roots to bind the surface. The waste land o southern Indiana bears the mark of the corn cultivator traversing up and down the hillside, making ditches to carry the water rapidly to the valley below. Then this hilly cultivated land was permitted to wash all winter without a covering, the first rivulet following the furrow of the cultivator every time the loose earth is removed until a well-established ditch is formed.

When ditches are formed the only hope is to break the soil, fill the ditches and get something to grow on them during winter. Oftentimes this fall sowing will afford sufficient late fall pasture or early spring pasture for sheep or pigs to pay for the expense of sowing the cover crop. Then the protection given in winter is a free gift. Many farmers on their rolling land need these free gifts if they make a living on their hilly farms.

Raising Turkeys.

Turkeys, if properly cared for, perhaps, give better results than any other branch of poultry on the farm.

First, select the best blood possible for the amount of money you can spare, and in order to get the best results, consult the buyer of your neighborhood; he is sure to know the person with the best stock, and can generally buy, for market price, birds that will do for the beginner. For profit, I think the bronze are best, because they are larger and have stronger constitutions than the other breeds.

To raise a number of turkeys don't let the hens sit on their own eggs, but put the eggs under chicken hens, at least the first and second layings.

When the little turks are hatched take them from the nest as soon as dry and place in a box with straw or sawdust on the floor. Above all things, don't feed them; they won't eat at first, but when they are hungry, will peck at the smallest thing to be found. Wait several hours, then give them smearcase, all they care to eat, from your hand. Do not feed anything but the smearcase for some time. Keep in a dry place where they can have sunshine and shade as suits them. The little pen must be tight enough to keep them in, for they will follow anything until they know the mother. After a few weeks wheat may be given, but not until they become tired of the smearcase. I may come again and tell you something of the profits I have enjoyed by the above method.—C. G. T., in Indiana Farmer.

Typical Bronze Turkey Cock.

The above splendid specimen of bronze turkey was second gobbler at Madison Square Garden poultry show, New York, last winter, exhibited by Mr. George W. Salsbury. Forty pound bronze males are not rare at the leading shows. However, males that are so much above standard weight rarely possess such rounded form in all sections. The great fault in most large poultry is coarseness. The medium sized birds of the breed, as a rule, are nearer the ideal form. We present the above as one of the most symmetrical males shown above forty pounds. The size, general form, character and color points of this typical bronze cock are worthy of imitation on the best turkey ranches and where show quality is sought.—F. Sewell, in Reliable Poultry Journal.

OVER FORTY POUNDS.

Silage For Horses.

Corn silage is a natural food for milking cows and growing cattle. It is useful in the ration of fattening lambs. It may be fed to horses with probable advantage, but it must be fed with extreme caution.

If fed in regular amounts not exceeding ten to fifteen pounds per day many experiences have been entirely satisfactory. If fed in unlimited amounts, and especially if the silage has been poorly made or has undergone some further degeneration, it has proved very deadly in its effects. Last winter, in Minnesota, a man came to us at the Farmer's Institute with a sorrowful tale. He had filled his silo with frozen corn and there was mould on the silage. He had no hay. His horses had been gorged with silage, having no other feed. They ate a bushel or more a day. They gained in flesh for a time. Then they began mysteriously to sicken and die. Paralysis of the throat was one symptom. No remedy helped them. All died, I think, and he was a poor man, in debt for his farm.

Last winter a friend fed lambs silage. What they rejected was thrown out in the yard in a rack. From this rack cows gleaned. One day eight horses running in the yard ate all they wanted of this half spoiled silage. All died. The symptoms were peculiar, including nervous spasms, and one veterinarian pronounced the disease hydrophobia. It may possibly have been, but I fear the silage alone was responsible.

This need not deter any one from building silos. There is abundant use for silage in the dairy barn, the cattle yard, the sheep pens, even in the swine pens. Let the horses have dry forage or silage in very small amounts. —Joseph E. Wing.

More than a million sewing machines are made in Germany every year.

WRETCHED RUSSIAN PEASANTS

The Great Masses of the Czar's People Lead Squalid Lives---Both Docile and Fierce, Rebellious and Submissive at Times---Their Miserable Homes---Not Strong Physically. . . . .

A QUEER mixture of docility and turmoil is this vast Russian people, who seem to hate their Czar with fierce malignity one moment and are ready to shed their life blood for him the next.

They are like great, shaggy, dumb beasts, snarling and showing their teeth when kicked by the one who masters them, and waiting for a chance to fly at his throat when he is off his guard, but fearful and cowering before the recognition of his superior power. But let a foreign beast attack their master, and woe betide the intruder if he is less strong than they; they will tear him in bits without the least compunction for daring to touch with anything less than reverence the scarlet person of their ruler.

But aside from this fierce uprising of the emotions, the Russian peasant has little sense of leadership about him. He can work under a head, but without that it is impossible for him to accomplish much, and what small advancement is visible he has copied from his more progressive neighboring countries. Like a sponge, Russia has absorbed; she has not assimilated.

The Russian peasant is as closely attached to his landlord's community as he was while a serf, not being allowed to leave it without his former owner's permission, under penalty of fine and imprisonment, and being sent back again. The ex-serf was given a small piece of land in his commune to cultivate, but it was scarcely more his own than the piece of ground which he had planted in his owner's estate.

Neither the individual peasant nor the commune possessed the land assigned, but held only the common right to cultivate it, and neither may relinquish his right or dispose of it: may not sell the land or forfeit it or be rid of it in any way, and yet they must pay their regular heavy taxes. Not only this, the commune must pay a certain sum, and if the crops of some of the peasants have been so bad as to prevent their paying their share, then others must work doubly hard on their more productive plots to make up the proper sum

In spite of this oppression, the higher classes look upon the peasants as the people of Russia. They are regarded as the means of bringing about developments which will make Russia even greater than it is, and help the Slav race to success in the world struggle for supremacy. Even the Church and the Government have respect for the peasant power, and both priests and officials are careful to avoid situations where they would be in a position of antagonism to it.

Yet, in spite of this, the peasant remains dull, stupid, uneducated, uninstructed and ignorant of the power he possesses. He remains the same slave of his surroundings and conditions as in old Muscovy; it is the aspect of others toward him that has changed.

The brightness and charm, the cleanliness and attractiveness of the little people of the Mikado's Empire, and of their towns and homes, is painfully lacking among "the people" of Russia. Low, clumsy houses, with rarely an attempt at anything like architecture, some with shingle and most of them with thatched roofs, they are not made more attractive by their inmates. Few of the houses are made with more than one story, unless it be the space under the roof, which is never used for anything but a lumber room. Mother, father, children, sons and unmarried daughters, for the brides are taken to their husbands' parents to live, daughters-in-law and grandchildren, all are crowded into one small hut, and the dirt and squalor, coupled with poverty, are appalling. The small piece of land attached to the house is worked by the men, and the women, when opportunity offers and permission is granted, hire in the fields along with the men, than whom they are no less able workers.

Lately, with a broadening of ideas in the the country, it has been found that village workers are considered more able than those of the towns, and find employment in all the large cities. Field labor is undertaken in this way, and gangs of peasant women may be seen weeding the market gardens in the neighborhood of the capitals. Too often labor of this kind is contracted for by a middle man, who advances the railway fares, feeds, and sometimes lodges, has gang of laborers, and pays them a lower wage than he receives for their hire.

But the peasant lives in misery and squalor, and at certain seasons may be in actual want, ordinarily, though he grumbles and objects to his taxes and church oppressions, he would be mightily offended if you were to suggest that, in comparison with the lower classes of other countries, he was a pauper.

In his eyes the fact that in the Western countries the laborers do not possess land nor cows, nor even a horse, indicates the most abject poverty.

The question of cheap labor in Russia finds its answer in the manner of living of the peasants, and the explanation of his small strength. It is a physical impossibility for him to work as the American does. He has not the same stimulus; what he possesses in an inordinate degree is the passive quality of endurance. He is big, he is strong, but he has neither terseness nor vitality. In this connection he shows very clearly that physical quality is a question of diet, and the Russian peasant takes the consequence—and suffers—of not feeding rationally. The staple foods are sour black bread and salt, sour cabbage soup, milk curds and salted fish. Together with the usual means of living, that is, the conditions under which he lives at home, with an unsanitary house and an unsanitary way of keeping himself the result as it is, is the only one to be expected.

A far more dreaded enemy than those in high places is the demon of fire that is incessantly traversing and ruining the country. Crowded one against the other, the wooden houses, with their thick roofs of thatch, are surrounded with ricks of straw and connected by lines of sheds, while wattled palisades envelop the whole village like a net with meshes of fine wood. After the long summer drouths this agglomeration of benches, old beams and straw dried by the sun is as inflammable as tinder. Fire is continually breaking out somewhere. In a single hour the village is swept away like a field of dry grass, and the peasants, with a truly remarkable resignation to the inevitable, then proceed to rebuild the village, so as to be ready for the next descent of the fire demon.

HOUSEKEEPING IN ROME.

Cheap Living in the Italian Capital—Its Inconveniences.

People who would be called well off in America are rich in Rome; people we should consider poor can live here with much comfort and some luxury. For instance, cabs cost sixteen cents a course for two people, or forty cents an hour. I pay my seamstress fifty cents a day and my cook $7 a month; a clever young Italian doctor, modern, up to date, well educated, is quite satisfied with $1 a visit. Good hotels (not the two or three most extravagant) charge twelve francs (about $2.40) a day. Meat, chickens, eggs, fish, fruit and vegetables are cheap, but all imported groceries are horribly dear by reason of the fifty per cent. duty they must pay. Coffee costs fifty cents a pound, sugar twenty; American kerosene oil is sold in five-gallon cans for $3—fancy! we pay more for petroleum than for olive oil or for wine. Postage stamps, salt and tobacco—all Government monopolies—are sold only at tobacconists. Milk is not cheap; the best in Rome comes from Prince Doria's herd of Jerseys. Unfortunately, we are not on his milkman's route; our milk comes from the Villa Ada, which belongs to an American lady, a daughter of Rogers, the sculptor. It is very good milk, quite different from that we get at a pinch from the vaccaria round the corner, where in a dark, dreadful dungeon stable pale cows with long, untrimmed hoofs pass their melancholy lives. Pompilia is in despair because we will drink our milk unboiled; when I saw the prisoner cows I understood why. Italy is a poor country, and poor people can live comfortably here. Rents, servants and food are all cheap; it may be a paltry reason for abandoning one's country that one can get more pork for one's shilling elsewhere, but it is a potent reason. Here in Rome prices are all scaled to the different pockets. I pay less at the same shops for the same things than my rich friends pay, but some things even the rich cannot secure; certain conveniences — rapid transit, steam heat, "rapid delivery," express service —cannot be purchased, and, what is really serious, good schooling is not to be had at any price, so few Americans with children to educate settle in Rome. Willy nilly, I learn something every time I go out of doors, whether it be to the Appian Way, the Via Sacra, the Forum or to the Corso. The yellow Tiber, the fountains, the nightingales of the Villa Medici, the ilex trees of the Borghese, seem to whisper the secrets of the city with the mighty past, the mother and lawgiver of nations.—Maud Howe, in Lippincott's.

Individuality in Vegetation.

The vegetation covering the slopes of European mountains as well as that on the great snowy peaks of the American cordilleras and other ranges has an individuality, a character, of its own, striking even the most indifferent of tourists. In this flora all is dwarfed and on a small scale. The flowers alone, of relatively exaggerated size, and generally brilliant in color, seem to be abnormally developed. The manner of growth of these plants is a surprise to those ignorant of their history and the cause of their peculiar appearance. While in the lowlands large plants, with spreading branches and well developed foliage, generally have flowers smaller than the leaves, the reverse is true in the higher regions.

Another easily noticed peculiarity is that while the Alpine flora in sunshine shows flowers of great size and vivid coloring, as the gentians, auriculas, anemones and violets, in the shade, on the other hand, we find them small and weak in color. Thus the action of the sun's rays on vegetation at great elevations seems to be more intense than on the plains.

A Way to Avenge.

To avenge his defeat in the municipal elections for the Provincial Council at Tralos Montes, the Marquis de Xanos cornered the entire stock of the butchers and poulterers of the town. The inhabitants had to subsist without meat for a week.

Of Interest to Women

TOO MANY PLAYTHINGS.

Never let the chicks have many or very elaborate playthings. A child's interest is so easily aroused that a large stock of playthings proves confusing and wearisome, besides which you are only making him blase by giving him the best of everything while he is small. For the same reason all amusements should be of the simplest.

THE FADDISH GIRL.

The more animals the faddish girl can carry about her the better. She wears a silver head at her belt, the head of an animal; she carries a carved cat upon her parasol handle; in her pocket there reposes a carved ivory elephant; at her throat there is a tiny black dog; her shirtwaist set is in the shape of animal heads; and, upon her bag, there is fastened a silver ornament which resembles an animal of jungleland. Truly, she does not move about unprotected.

A HOMELY HINT.

"I believe that good cooking on the home table will keep many men away from over-indulgence in intoxicants," says a prominent American woman. "Therefore girls in domestic service are fitting themselves for marriage and a more useful life. The evil of bad cooking is displayed in a still sadder way by the great number of crippled children among the families of the poor. Any physician will tell you that this curse has been brought upon the little ones by malnutrition."

BLACK AND WHITE GOWNS.

Very beautiful black and white transparent gowns are being worn. Black lace on white gauze, or black nets overlaid with white lace motives are very desirable. Of course there is an underdress of black or white chiffon, and the effect is delicate and fragile beyond description. At several weddings lately elderly matrons wore such black and white creations. They were distinguished far above the customary satins and velvets worn on such occasions by the older women.

A VERSATILE WOMAN.

To have been a lady of great estate, a traveler around the world for pleasure, a model for a Parisian dressmaking establishment, a traveling salesman of art ware, and a politician is no usual number of experiences for a young lady just turned her twenty-fourth year. But to Miss Estelle Whitaker, at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, all of these and even more comprise the history of her occupations since leaving an Eastern college. Miss Whitaker was left a large fortune when quite young. For three years she traveled through Europe with her parents. She is a young woman of spirit, however, and was not content to continue a life of indolence and ease. She gave a large amount of money to a charitable institution, and then she became active in Colorado politics, where women have the say. She made the race for assistant clerk of the General Assembly and won. Miss Whitaker is one of the most famous models in America. She is known in her Western country as the "Colorado American Beauty." She is a tall, striking brunette, of excellent carriage and intelligent conversation.

THE WOMEN OF JAPAN.

The women of Japan do not go out and fight to-day as they have done on rare occasions in the past. We had an Empress once who led an army into Korea and fought at the head of her soldiers. And even in the last century, when the Shogun made his last stand against the Mikado, nearly a thousand women and girls belonging to families attached to the Shogun fought behind and upon the castle walls, and many were killed, says a writer in Harper's Weekly.

It is different now. Only the men go out. But there is much left for the women to do, and there is not a woman in Japan who will shirk her duty. Not only must she take care of the family while the men are away, but she must work for the soldiers. Our Empress herself is the patron of the Japanese Red Cross Society, whose President is always a prince of the royal house. With her own hands the Empress prepares bandages and clothing for the men in the field; and so great was her personal interest in the men who fought in the war with China that at the close of the war she gave an artificial limb to every man who had lost one on the battlefield.

The women who act as nurses must lay aside their kimonos and wear the regular dress of a hospital nurse. Both before and since the war with China the women of Japan have attended the hospital training schools, where instruction is given by American and European nurses, and there are now no better nurses in the world than those of Japan.

FIRST WOMAN TO CROSS ABYSSINIA.

Mrs. W. N. MacMillan is a St. Louis woman who bears the distinction of being the first American of her sex to cross Abyssinia at the head of her own caravan.

"We really started from Cairo," said Mrs. MacMillan, "but as the start from there to Khartoum was made sail or boat, we dated our start the time we left the latter place January 25. With my husband self were Sir John Harrigan, C. W. Bulpott, Dr. Singer and several vants. Sir John Harrington British Minister to Abyssinia through his influence we secured ernment launches to tow our Nassa. From there we continued and at Pakum, at the foot of the sinia Mountains, my husband separated, he going to explore country around Lake Rudolph. I continued on toward Adis Abeba, capital of Kink Menelik's kingdom.

"For a week Sir John Harrington companied me, but he was suddenly called back to Nassa, and I was left with only Dr. Singer and the servants. We were over four weeks making the trip by mule train. At Adis Abeba I was received by King Menelik. He was very cordial and seemed interested in our trip. The King speaks no English, though, and all our conversation had to be carried on through an interpreter.

"The homeward journey was much easier, as we went directly to the town of Diri Daua, thence to Djibouti by rail, and then home by way of the Red Sea."—New Haven Register.

DAINTY FASHION ACCESSORIES.

Fashions this season are surely the liveliest seen for many years, and they are the ideas of many brilliant women of both this time and those of other days. The most charming effects are seen, and the accessories, which are of the most elaborate conception, are those which could not be improved upon. They are very fussy, and those which are not are extremely simple and elegant in their designing.

Parasols are fit examples for the exquisiteness of things this season, and nothing more beautiful is on sale. Simpleness seems to be the one strong point of them, and the new Dresden parasols with the tiny dainty handles are all that could be wished for, even for the most elaborate gowning. Those of chiffon are a trifle passe, and few are to be seen, while the white, green and blue ones dot the horizon wherever the feminine sex is in evidence. Striped ones are pretty, and most peculiar effects may be achieved by a parasol of striped silk with huge dots below. Of course, we must not pass over the embroidered parasols, and these, with the linen gown and embroidered to match, are extremely chic. The quaint Dresden silk ones remind one of the painting of a beautiful shepherdess, with her dainty gown studded with tiny sprays of flowers, and these are used expressly for that purpose. Large bows are being used extensively on the handles, and for the smart woman who can afford such luxury the handles are studded with precious stones. Lace coverings are used on many of the plain ones, and when one wants a different parasol a good scheme is to cover the old one with a lace cover, which gives a soft and dainty effect.

Other parasols have long chiffon streamers which flow from the handle and are perhaps a yard or two long.

FASHION NOTES.

Great swirling patterns in braid are appliqued to the front box pleat of the new linen shirt waists.

Broadtail velvet, which is really a crushed velvet, is one of the coming stuffs for outer wraps.

Beautiful squares of ecru lace, showing a heraldic design, are appliqued upon the right sleeve of the handsomest cloth gowns.

Braided designs in wash silk braid are upon the cuffs of linen gowns and upon the cuffs of silk dresses as well, for braid is very fashionable.

Deep lace cuffs are stiffened with wire and slipped on over the cuffs of silk shirt waists and overcoat cuffs and the cuffs of wash dresses.

For the lingerie dress and the separate blouse, to wear with a taffeta gown, the finest of linen, known as handkerchief linen, is most swagger.

Very beautiful effects are achieved by making up an attractive gauze or net gown over two, or perhaps three, chiffon skirts, each of a different shade.

Japanese peach blossoms, in three shades of pink, harmoniously blended, form one of the most attractive of the season's favored flowered designs in organdy.

Brown, which has held its own so well all summer, is to be a still more popular shade for winter, and both seal brown and navy blue will lead in fashion's march.

Lovely lace styles, for instance, are fastened around the neck of little silk bolero coats, with the lace ends hanging well down in front, and a beautiful silk rosette adorning the neck.

A blackberry wreath, the berries being variegated from green to black, with some ruddy tints mingled with the pretty white blossoms of the plant, are very smart and out-of-the-ordinary hat garnitures.

Girdles are made of silk which is stiffened and cut to a point in the middle of the front. This girdle is hand embroidered, and shows the loveliest of green flowers to match the green trimmings of hat and gown.

Press On

If obstacles beset your way
And darker grow the cloud
Do not feel sad, but ever ga
Press on.

If on a trolley car you ride
Do not upon the platform
Of course, there's standing
Press on

If you've a girl that's neat
Who wears good clothes a taste,
Remember that she has a Press on
—Yonkers

TWO RES

BY STEPHEN

It was near midnight, when the tel[ephone] that phone in the castle of Zsaby began to ring sharply and excitedly. Baron Sebastian Petrovics, the owner of Zsaby had not yet retired, but was deep in a book. He hurried to the telephone.
"Hallo! Petrovics. What can I do for you, countess?"

An excited female voice, the sobbing of which betrayed only too plainly that something had happened, replied: "Are you there, baron, thank God, you are at home. Please come over at once; burglars are breaking into the house!"

"I will come immediately," the baron shouted into the telephone. "Bolt the doors, and let no threats prevail upon you to open until I am there. I shall take men with me. In ten minutes! Be brave, countess!"

He did not wait for the answer; snatching his hat, revolver and sword, he rushed out of the room, swung himself on his horse and called to his men: "Follow me as fast as you can!"

He spurred his horse and galloped toward Gyongy.

Gyongy was the property of Countess Gulacsy, separated from Zsaby only by a narrow strip of woodland. The owners of the two castles led a retired life, the baron from necessity, for his finances did not allow him to continue the extravagant life he had led in first youth; the countess from a hatred of people which had induced her to take refuge in this secluded spot. Her marriage had not been a happy one, and her husband's conduct had made the thought of men hateful to her. It was only a certain community of interests which had brought her and the baron together. They were neighbors, and could not avoid a meeting from time to time. Gradually she became accustomed to Petrovics, who was an excellent companion and knew how to make time pass in pleasant conversation.

Once he had said to the countess: "You see, countess, you make me happy when you allow me to amuse and entertain you. If you are willing, we can arrange things so that I may hear your voice even when it rains, or in the long winter evenings whenever you would enjoy a friendly talk."

"You know, baron," the countess had interrupted, "that I am no friend of society. You would often seek me in vain, and find only Mme. von Csongay, my companion and friend."

"But if you will give your permission, I will have a telephone connection made between Zsaby and Gyongy, so that you can call me when you please."

The young woman smiled and made no objection. Then the "devil's machine," as the servants called it, was introduced; but up to the time this story opens no one had as yet made use of the telephone.

One day, the week before, the mistress of Gyongy was in very bad humor, and even vented it on her companion: "My dear Csongay," she cried,

"Hello!"

petulantly, "we won't receive Baron Petrovics again! He has abused my friendship and confidence."

"That is unheard of, incredible! So tactful a man——"

The countess shook her head nervously. "Imagine! He had the audacity to ask for my hand."

"Well, that is not an unpardonable crime."

"Don't irritate me, dear. I don't want to marry, and that is the end of it. All men are alike—calculating and selfish. How do I know whether he loves me or not? Could he become a hero for my sake—die for me, if need be? Could he force me to admire him and bend to his will? You don't think if

THINGS.

have many or gs. A child's roused that a gs proves con-besides which him blase by of everything
the same reauld be of the GIRL.

faddish girl better. She her belt the he carries a rasol handle;
sses a carved great there is rwise; set is ads and unened a silver
s an animal she does not

INT.

oing on the y men away ntoxicants,"
can woman,
esthe service
marriage and evil of bad
still sadder of crippled lies of the tell you that ht upon the
."

GOWNS.

white gowns
orn. Black k nets over-es are very is an under-lon, and the ade beyond dlings late such black we'd sum-
erry satins ccasions by

MAN.

ent estate,
d for pleasdressmak-ling sales-olitician is ences for a er twenty-ss Estelle nine Hotel. comprise ions since e Miss e fortune ree years with her woman of t content and ease.
money to then she politics.
She
clerk of
ven. Miss t famous known in Colorado
s a tall, carriage

AN.

go out done on
We had ran into d of her ost cen-nis last-ery a oking to fought ds, and later in

I can go for the a wed-her du-care of away.
oldiers ation of Society.
rance of hands es and d; and rest in ar with he war every battles must ear the nurse.

r with ive at-chools,
Ameri-
there world

ABYS-

Louis on of r sex
f her

said

DAINTY FASHION ACCESSORIES.

Fashions this season are surely the liveliest seen for many years, and they are the ideas of many brilliant women of both this time and those of other days. The most charming effects are seen, and the accessories, which are of the most elaborate conception, are those which could not be improved upon. They are very fussy, and those which are not are extremely simple and elegant in their designing.

Parasols are fit examples for the exquisiteness of things this season, and nothing more beautiful is on sale. Simpleness seems to be the one strong point of them, and the new Dresden parasols with the tiny dainty handles are all that could be wished for, even for the most elaborate gowning. Those of chiffon are a trifle passe, and few are to be seen, while the white, green and blue ones dot the horizon wherever the feminine sex is in evidence. Striped ones are pretty, and most peculiar effects may be achieved by a parasol of striped silk with huge dots below. Of course, we must not pass over the embroidered parasols, and these, with the linen gown and embroidered to match, are extremely chic. The quaint Dresden silk ones remind one of the painting of a beautiful shepherdess, with her dainty gown studded with tiny sprays of flowers, and these are used expressly for that purpose. Large bows are being used extensively on the handles, and for the smart woman who can afford such luxury the handles are studded with precious stones. Lace coverings are used on many of the plain ones, and when one wants a different parasol a good scheme is to cover the old one with a lace cover, which gives a soft and dainty effect.

Other parasols have long chiffon streamers, which flow from the handle and are perhaps a yard or two long.

FASHION NOTES.

Great swirling patterns in braid are appliqued to the front box pleat of the new linen shirt waists.

Broadtail velvet, which is really a crushed velvet, is one of the coming stuffs for outer wraps.

Beautiful squares of ecru lace, showing a heraldic design, are appliqued upon the right sleeve of the handsomest cloth gowns.

Braided designs in wash silk braid are upon the cuffs of linen gowns and upon the cuffs of silk dresses as well, for braid is very fashionable.

Deep lace cuffs are stiffened with wire and slipped on over the cuffs of silk shirt waists and overcoat cuffs and the cuffs of wash dresses.

For the lingerie dress and the separate blouse, to wear with a taffeta gown, the finest of linen, known as handkerchief linen, is most swagger.

Very beautiful effects are achieved by making up an attractive gauze or net gown over two, or perhaps three, chiffon skirts, each of a different shade.

Japanese peach blossoms, in three shades of pink, harmoniously blended, form one of the most attractive of the season's favored flowered designs in organdy.

Brown, which has held its own so well all summer, is to be a still more popular shade for winter, and both seal brown and navy blue will lead in fashion's march.

Lovely lace styles, for instance, are fastened around the neck of little silk bolero coats, with the lace ends hanging well down in front, and a beautiful silk rosette adorning the neck.

A blackberry wreath, the berries being variegated from green to black, with some ruddy tints mingled with the pretty white blossoms of the plant, are very smart and out-of-the-ordinary hat garnitures.

Girdles are made of silk which is stiffened and cut to a point in the middle of the front. This girdle is hand embroidered, and shows the loveliest of green flowers to match the green trimmings of hat and gown.

Mrs. MacMillan, "but as the stre from there to Khartoum was made sail or boat, we dated our start f
the time we left the latter place January 25. With my husband a self were Sir John Harrigan, C. W.
Bulpott, Dr. Singer and several vants. Sir John Harrington is British Minister to Abyssinia, a through his influence we secured Go ernment launches to tow our boats Nassa. From there we continued alo and at Pakum, at the foot of the Aby sinia Mountains, my husband and separated, he going to explore th country around Lake Rudolph, whi
I continued on toward Adis Adeba, t capital of Kink Menelik's kingdom.

"For a week Sir John Harrigan a companied me, but he was suddenl called back to Nassa, and I was le with only Dr. Singer and the servant
We were over four weeks making th trip by mule train. At Adis Adeba was received by King Menelik. H was very cordial and seemed interest ed in our trip. The King speaks n English, though, and all our conversa tion had to be carried on through a interpreter.

"The homeward journey was much easier, as we went directly to the tow of Dirf Daua, thence to Djibouti by rail, and then home by way of the Red Sea."—New Haven Register.

Press On.

If obstacles beset your way
And darker grow the clouds each day,
Do not feel sad, but ever say—
Press on.

If on a trolley car you ride,
Do not upon the platform hide;
Of course, there's standing room inside—
Press on.

If you've a girl that's neat and chaste,
Who wears good clothes and has good taste,
Remember that she has a waist—
Press on.
—Yonkers Statesman.

TWO RESCUES

BY STEFAN BARSONY

It was near midnight, when the telephone in the castle of Zsaby began to ring sharply and excitedly. Baron Sebastian Petrovics, tthe owner of Zsaby, had not yet retired, but was deep in a book. He hurried to the telephone. "Hallo! Petrovics. What can I do for you, countess?"

An excited female voice, the sobbing of which betrayed only too plainly that something had happened, replied: "Are you there, baron. Thank God, you are at home. Please come over at once; burglars are breaking into the house!"

"I will come immediately," the baron shouted into the telephone. "Bolt the doors, and let no threats prevail upon you to open until I am there. I shall take men with me. In ten minutes! Be brave, countess!"

He did not wait for the answer; snatching his hat, revolver and sword, he rushed out of the room, swung himself on his horse and called to his men: "Follow me as fast as you can!"

He spurred his horse and galloped toward Gyongy.

Gyongy was the property of Countess Gulacsy, separated from Zsaby only by a narrow strip of woodland. The owners of the two castles led a retired life, the baron from necessity, for his finances did not allow him to continue the extravagant life he had led in first youth; the countess from a hatred of people which had induced her to take refuge in this secluded spot. Her marriage had not been a happy one, and her husband's conduct had made the thought of men hateful to her. It was only a certain community of interests which had brought her and the baron together. They were neighbors, and could not avoid a meeting from time to time. Gradually she became accustomed to Petrovics, who was an excellent companion and knew how to make time pass in pleasant conversation.

Once he had said to the countess: "You see, countess, you make me happy when you allow me to amuse and entertain you. If you are willing, we can arrange things so that I may hear your voice even when it rains, or in the long winter evenings whenever you would enjoy a friendly talk."

"You know, baron," the countess had interrupted, "that I am no friend of society. You would often seek me in vain, and find only Mme. von Csongay, my companion and friend."

"But if you will give your permission, I will have a telephone connection made between Zsaby and Gyongy, so that you can call me when you please."

The young woman smiled and made no objection. Then the "devil's machine," as the servants called it, was introduced; but up to the time this story opens no one had as yet made use of the telephone.

One day, the week before, the mistress of Gyongy was in very bad humor, and even vented it on her companion. "My dear Csongay," she cried,

"Hello!"

petulantly, "we won't receive Baron Petrovics again! He has abused my friendship and confidence."

"That is unheard of, incredible! So tactful a man——"

The countess shook her head nervously. "Imagine! He had the audacity to ask for my hand."

"Well, that is not an unpardonable crime."

"Don't irritate me, dear. I don't want to marry, and that is the end of it. All men are alike—calculating and selfish. How do I know whether he loves me or not? Could he become a hero for my sake—die for me, if need be? Could he force me to admire him and bend to his will? You don't think that yourself. No, I am no longer at home for the baron."

* * * * *

A week had passed since this conversation, when the baron was called to Gyongy over the telephone. When the burglars appeared, the male servants happened to be away on various errands. The enormous Newfoundland dog barked furiously. He attacked one of the villains, but a pistol shot soon made an end to the faithful animal. The report roused the inmates of the house. The mistress of the castle hurried to bolt the doors and then she had the happy inspiration to telephone for the baron.

Swayed, and would have fallen.

The burglars seemed to be numerous. They hammered at the lattices of the windows, and swore to set fire to the house if the doors were not opened. Mme. von Csongay was beside herself with fear; she was saying the Lord's prayer over and over, and muttered between times: "It is over with us. They will murder us."

The bandits now tried to burst open the outer door, and the noise was terrible; but the countess was no longer frightened, for her fine ear had detected the sound of hoofbeats, and soon she saw three horsemen coming at a gallop.

Shots were heard outside. The noise was deafening, and above the tumult rose the death-cry of the burglar who had stood guard. After a while quiet ensued, and was broken only by the commanding voice of the baron. The countess turned white as death; it was not her own fate, but that of the baron, which frightened her. Feverish and trembling, she opened the door; the baron stood before her. When she saw him safe and sound she swayed, and would have fallen if the baron had not caught her in his arms.

* * * * * *

About a year and a half later after that exciting night a happy family event was celebrated at Gyongy—the baptism of the first-born son of the Baron Petrovics and his wife, formerly Countess Gulacsy.

Mme. von Csongay played a more important part than ever. The champagne and the joy had loosened her tongue, and while she caressed the baby she remarked, jestingly: "You owe it all to me; both you, my precious, and your father."

She turned to the baron with a meaning glance. The baroness looked up and saw it, and also that her husband flushed crimson. There was nothing for it but confession. Kissing his wife tenderly, the baron said: "Since it must be, dear, I will tell you all. I adored you, and yet you banished me from your sight. Your friend there was my good angel. She knew how I suffered, and suggested a plan—a detestable plan, I admit. Well, you insisted on a hero, and we played that little comedy of the burglars—"

A shouting and running in the yard interrupted the confession, much to the baron's relief, and he went out to see what was the cause of the excitement.

The baroness felt as if she had tumbled from the clouds, and resolved to be seriously angry with her husband. When he returned, she was about to make a cutting remark, but checked herself at the sight of him. He was dripping wet from head to foot.

"What has happened to you?" she exclaimed anxiously.

"Nothing much, dear. The little daughter of one of my men had fallen into the well, and would have drowned if I had not jumped in after her. The men seemed to have lost their heads."

For answer the baroness, flushing with pride, held out her arms to her husband, who smiled and said, pointing to his wet clothes: "Wait a minute, dear, until I have changed my things."

Mme. von Csongay looked triumphantly at the baroness, as if to say "You see, he is a hero, after all!"—From the Hungarian of Stefan Barsong.

HOW TO MAKE FRIENDS.

Be Interested in Them, but Never Show Curiosity.

If you would have friends, be interested in them.

There is a difference between interest and curiosity. Never be curious.

Interest asks nothing, but is glad of others' joys and sorry for others' misfortunes. Curiosity seeks to find more than is written upon the surface, seeks it for the purpose of distribution, for innocent slander.

One's friends like one to be interested. They detest one who is curious.

To be interested in those one meets needs but to wish them well.

To see the best of those about us will cause us to wish them well.

To our well-wishers we pour out our joys and sorrows. They are interested. They understand.

The interested friend always understands. The curious acquaintance never sees through motives. The curious one is blinded by his own interpretation of causes and his prejudiced view of results.

Don't, therefore, seek to know what is hidden. If your friends conceals something from you he has a reason for doing it. Prove your interest and your lack of vulgar curiosity by trusting him in spite of the concealment.

Those who are truly interested and never curious are surrounded by friends.—Detroit Tribune.

William Penn's Grave.

I notice that one or two of your correspondents seem concerned about the condition of William Penn's grave. Having, while in England during the summer of 1902, visited Jordan's Meeting House and burying ground, where the remains of William Penn lie, I can testify that the graveyard was then in a respectable condition, and the graves of William Penn, his two wives, Isaac Pennington, Thomas Ellwood and others prominent in their day, were well kept, and marked by neat, modest head stones, after the simple manner of the Society of Friends. The little graveyard and the meeting house close by are under the care of trustees, who appear to guard and protect the property carefully. Jordan's is about two miles from the quaint and ancient village of Chalfont St. Giles. It was in this place that the poet John Milton lived, and where he wrote "Paradise Lost." The house is in a good state of preservation, and visited by many every year.—Letter in Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A Yachting Family.

Some very remarkable figures as to the influence of the Coats family in yachting were given in the course of a speech made at a dinner in Largs, which Mr. George Coats gave to the crews of his yachts Finnuella and Kelpie. The various members of the family have no fewer than twelve yachts in commission, ranging in size from the stately schooner Glenlffer and the magnificent Queen of Scots to the bantam racer Thetis. The boats give employment to about 120 men, and its costs not less than $100,000 per annum to maintain them.

A Natural Inquiry.

A few days ago a gentleman called up his wife by the automatic 'phone, but when a voice responded knew there must have been a mistake in the number. The question hovering on his lips slipped out anyway, and he said:

"Is supper ready?"

"Yes," replied the unknown lady.

"I'm coming up immediately."

"All right," said she, "but who are you?"

He hung up the receiver hurriedly. —Nebraska State Journal.

Her Day.

I.

She worried over little woes,
From which he laughing turned;
She smarted 'neath the little blows
Which left him unconcerned;
She borrowed ills or troubles when
She had noone of her own;
He smiled, as is the way with men,
And let her fret alone.

II.

A sorrow that was real and great
On them was laid one day;
Bewailing his heart-breaking fate
He flung his hopes away.
But in that dreary hour she went,
While still her eyes were wet,
And led him forth, infirm and bent,
To help him to forget.
—Chicago Record-Herald.

Germans on Prize Ship.

Most of the crew of the British steamship Cheltenham, which has been adjudged a lawful prize at the Vladivostok prize court, were Germans. When the Russians seized the vessel the Germans manifested their delight by cheers.

Athletics in Germany.

Until a few years ago little attention was paid in Germany to athletic sports. To-day tennis and football are said to be more popular than in the United States.

Doctor Leaves Snug Fortune.

Dr. Samuel Smiles, author of "Self Help" and other works, left an estate which has just been valued at $389,820.

New British Trade Unions.

Two new British unions have just been formed. One is for undertakers, and the other for gardeners.

HAD AN "ADOPTED" BABY.

Elephant Foraged for Calf to Replace One That Died.

A remarkably intelligent elephant, working a few years ago on a new bridge in Ceylon, had a young one to whom she was devoted. It died, and she became inconsolable.

Formerly the gentlest of creatures, she grew irritable, and even dangerous. One morning she broke the chain which confined her and escaped into the forest.

One night, about ten days after her escape, the officer who had been in charge of her went out to lie in wait for bears at a pond in a jungle at some distance.

As he and his native attendant were returning, early in the morning, the native silently nudged him, and they saw in the dim, gray light an elephant with her calf making their way toward the camp. They both sprang behind trees, and when the elephants had passed the native insisted that the older one was their old friend, the inconsolable mother.

When they reached the camp they found that the truant had returned, and had gone from one person to another, touching each with her trunk, as if exhibiting her adopted child, which she had evidently begged, borrowed or stolen in her absence.

Her good temper and usual docility returned at once, and her owner blessed the good fortune which had enabled her to procure a baby elephant.—Sunday Magazine.

BUTCHER WAS ONLY SCARED.

Sequel Proved That He Had Not Lost Anything.

J. Ogden Armour was talking to a group of New York reporters about the butchers' strike.

"When the butchers have trouble," said one of the reporters, "is it true, Mr. Armour, that the public pays?"

The meat millionaire laughed.

"Oh, not necessarily," he answered. "Sometimes, though," he went on, "the public pays when the butcher gets in trouble. For instance:

"A butcher had cut off some meat that had been paid for and was carrying it in from the street to his patron's kitchen.

"No sooner did he enter the yard, however, than a big, black dog pinned him to the wall. There he stood, terror-stricken, until the mistress of the house appeared.

"'Here, Hero, behave,' she said.

"The dog sneaked off, and the woman asked the butcher if he had been bitten.

"'Has Hero,' she inquired, 'hurt you at all?'

"'No,' he replied, 'I kept him off by giving him your chops, and you just arrived in time to save your steak.'"

She Never Lost Money.

Two ladies met the other day and began to talk about their servants.

"I can't trust mine," said one. "I'm actually afraid to leave the house for fear something will be stolen before I get back."

"Why don't you lock everything up and take the keys with you?" asked the other.

"I do lock all my closets and drawers," was the reply, "but it's too much trouble to take the keys with me. Besides, I hide them in an excellent place."

"Where?" asked her companion.

"In my box of candy on the mantelpiece," was the answer.

"No wonder you're robbed," exclaimed the other. "Why, you couldn't have chosen a worse place, for your servants are just as fond of sweet things as you are, and your box of candy is the first thing they examine after you leave the house. Now, I hide my keys in my work-box, for I know that my servants have a horror of work and that they will never think of going near it."

Kinship.

So like the sunset of a peaceful day
Your presence fell across my weary way,
Changing each gray rock into a mass of gold,
And gilding all the cloud waves fold on fold.
Your twilight spell upon me settled down;
Your softly sandaled feet touched mine. Your gown
You gently wrapped about me, and grief fled.
For I forgot my heart had ever bled;
No longer sobbing pine or ebbing sea
Had power to sadden either you or me.

Unto the soul those deep eyes mirrored near,
I fondly told each secret wrong and fear,
And loved you more because you heeded me;
Then came the day when I did chance to see
A glistening tear upon your cheek, and knew
With tender pity, that you suffered. Few
Had broken from so brave a heart. The tear Hung self-confessed, for lo! your sorrow, dear,
Was strangely like to mine; the likeness told.
Our silver linked kinship turned to gold.
—Charlotte Callahan in Donahoe's Magazine.

No Drug Store Treating Habit.

"Come and have a drink," invited Jones when he met his friend Smith near the bridge terminal a hot afternoon recently.

"Sorry, old man, but I've sworn off!" said Smith a little sadly.

"I meant an ice cream soda," Jones returned hurriedly. "I've sworn off, too."

"Well, I'll go you a soda," said Smith.

They named their flavors and half ate, half drank the mixture which the drug clerk set before them.

"Now, then, have one on me," said Smith when they had finished. "What'll it be?"

"Oh, I say, Smith, this isn't a bar, you know, and a fellow can't down two of these things in succession."

They went out sadly and the drug clerk observed: "And they say the treating habit isn't responsible for hard drinking."—New York Tribune.

A Halsted Street Etching

Wun Lung Kerrigan, the Sage of Bubbly Creek

Wun Lung Kerrigan had sashayed over many a foreign land, Wun Lung had a courteous manner and a haunting smile and bland,
And a copious crop of whiskers rippling down his sturdy breast,
And a pair of buckskin bloomers and a gorgeous yellow vest.

Wun Lung hypnotized the masses, Wun
Lung always charmed the ear, Wun Lung had a honeyed accent, and
a bitter, caustic sneer,
As he sold his "Lung Restorer," he would shed a physic smile, Wun Lung was a gorgeous grafter and his heart was full of guile.

"Shadrach Snakeroot's Great Elixir" was the liniment he made—
"Bolivar Borax Bilious Bitters" soothed
the thirsty Halsted trade.
"Lariat Luke" from Pocatello stood his partner tried and true,
"Pine Pete" from old Socorro joined this fierce, marauding crew.

A gaudy cloak of glaring color which he donned with careless grace,
And a dashing gray sombrero slouched
unruly round his face,
Red moccasins on his Trilby's, eagle
plumes upon his head,
And he used to thump the banjo and caroled oft of "Crippled Ned."

Bubbly Creek was where he hailed from,
where the chattering waters glide,
Bubbly Creek, whose shaggy billows cool
the steaming stock yards side;
If you catch a whiff of Bubbly you can smell it for a mile,
Oh, the fragrance of the stock yards made the tranquil rustic smile.

Wun Lung wore a Smith and Wesson and a big bowie by his side,
"Pinte Pete" from Pocatello was his liegeman true and tried;
"Lariat Luke," a courteous cut-throat with a shy embarrassed air,
Deftly whirled his snaky lasso on the Halsted thoroughfare.

Wun Lung was a smooth spellbinder and he witched the rural swain,
And he organized the glee club for the stirring fall campaign,
And he touched the boodle barrel of
each sanguine candidate,
And he chastely murmured, "Felix, we are sure to win the state."

Wun Lung stumped the rural regions with the glee club on his staff,
And convulsed each brawny toiler, made the gulleless rustic laugh,
"Tarantula Tom" would carol blithely
of the strennous pray,
"Pinte Pete" would pick their pockets
in a tender, dreamy way.

Wun Lung's strolling bunch of grafters foraged o'er the country wide,
And they argued over silver, selling gold bricks on the side,
And the courtecus green goods merchant prospered like a millionaire
How he cursed the Wall street shylocks and the sharks and gold bugs there.

Wun Lung's troubadours meandered in a gorgeous Pullman train,
And they held the masses spellbound
during all the fierce campaign,
And they worked the "short change" racket and they deftly threw the shell,
"Hungry Hiram Handout" marveled that they wrought so wondrous well.

Wun Lung gives the frosty finger to
each sanguine candidate,
Who refused to cough up boodle when they touched him for the freight;
Wun Lung used to swing the precinct in the shuddering days of yore,
When the patriots would rally and the llegemen thirst for gore.

"Shadrach Snakeroots' Great Elixir" was
the medicine they sold,
"Bolivar Borax Bilious Bitters" cured consumption, cough and cold.
Roots and herbs and spicy grasses garnered on Idalian shore, Brewed the Old Tecumseh Bitters which the Kickapoos adore.

But the Civic Federation nipped the tuneful fakers plan,
And no more he votes the corpses or the hairy lodging man,
Civil service makes him nervous, they have spoiled his artless game;
And the knockers and the grafters cast
contumely on his fame.
JAMES E. KINSELLA.
Registry Division, Chicago Postoffice.

Saved by Bad Spelling

Col. Artemus Lee of Templeton, one of the most estimable citizens of northern Worcester county, a man imperious and quick-tempered, who had been apt to have his own way in the region where he dwelt, and not very willing to give up to anybody, employed Senator Hoar once to bring suit for him against the town of Templeton to recover taxes which he claimed had been illegally assessed and collected. The senator says in his autobiography:

"He was a man whose spelling had been neglected in early youth. Aldrich was for the town. All the facts showing the illegality of the assessment, of course, were upon the town records. So we thought if the parties met with their counsel we could agree upon a statement of facts and submit the question of law to the courts.

"We met in Judge Aldrich's office, Col. Lee and myself and Judge Aldrich and some of the town officers, to make up the statement. But Mr. Aldrich had not had time to look very deeply into the law of the case and made some difficulties in agreeing upon the fact which we thought rather unreasonable. We sat up to a late hour on a hot summer's evening trying to get a statement.

"At last Lee's patience gave out.

"He had had one or two hot passages at arms with Mr. Aldrich in the course of the discussion already. He rose to his feet and said in a very loud and angry tone—his voice was always something like that of the bull of Bashan—'This is a farce.'

"Aldrich rose from his seat and to the occasion, and said very angrily, 'What's that you say, sir.'

"Lee clenched both his fists by his side, thrust his own angry countenance close up to that of his antagonist, and said: 'A farce, sir—F-A-R-S-E, farce.'

"Aldrich caught my eye as I was sitting behind my client and noticed my look of infinite amusement. His anger yielded to the comedy of the occasion. He burst into a roar of laughter and peace was saved.

"If Lee had spelled the word farce with a 'c' there would have been a battle royal."—Boston Globe.

To Learn to Swim

A person who is timid about the water can overcome the greatest part of the difficulty of learning to swim by the proper use of a wash basin.

The obstacle that nervous persons meet in the water is not the conscious fear of drowning, but an involuntary nervous shock that causes them to gasp for air even before their faces are under water.

It is this gasping for breath that drowns people.

They cannot control the gasping, and consequently they often snap for breath when their mouths are under water. As the buoyancy of a human body is easily disturbed, a few pints or quarts of water swallowed in these involuntary gasping acts serve to sink a person who otherwise would float long enough for help to arrive.

Now if a person afflicted with this involuntary fear of getting under water will thrust the whole face gently into an ordinary basin full of water every day and stay there as long as possible, it will be only a short time before the gasping sensation begins to disappear.

Then the bath tub should be used, so that the bather, lying full length, can immerse the entire head. At first this will bring back all the old frightening sensations of suffocation, but the attacks will be of short duration, and within a few days it will be found that the total immersion can be maintained for almost a full minute without discomfort of any kind.

Once a person has learned how perfectly comfortable one can be under water, the first great step has been taken towards learning to swim.

Many otherwise good swimmers have never really acquired this calmness under water, the result is that when such a swimmer is caught in an undertow or a swirling current, his confidence leaves him as soon as he feels himself dragged under the surface. Instead of diving or remaining motionless and so preserving his breath, he gasps involuntarily and naturally swallows water, and the choking sensation at once forces him to exhale what breath he has left and gasp again.

Confidence under water should be the first lesson in swimming.

No Problem for Him

The honeymoon was over, and they had settled down to show themselves staid and steady old married people.

"Fred," she said, knitting her pretty brows as if greatly perplexed, "I've been trying to arrange things a little systematically to-day."

"Quite right," he said. "It's time we were settled and had everything arranged properly."

"Yes, but, Fred, the fact is—I—I—"

"You what? Nothing has gone wrong, has it?" he asked anxiously.

"Oh, no, but every one was so kind to use that I find it a little hard to—to—. It wouldn't be proper to sell any of the presents, would it?"

"Certainly not."

"That's what I feared," she said, with a sigh. "You see, I don't know just what to do with them all."

"Do with them?" he exclaimed, with masculine readiness to settle any problem. "Why, use them, of course."

"But how, Fred? How?" she asked. "We have seven clocks and only a six-room flat."

He gave a low whistle.

"Then we have six dozen silver spoons and five cake baskets."

He began to look perplexed himself.

"There are fifteen butter knives and eight fruit dishes," she added.

He swore to himself, but made no suggestion.

"We have three sets of fruit knives and—"

"Enough!" he exclaimed, "Do what you please with them."

"But, Fred, I want you to—"

"They're yours," he interrupted. "They were all given to you, and not to me, weren't they? It wouldn't be fair for me to assume any right to them when they were expressly given to you."

And thus she first learned of man's ability to dodge a difficult problem.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and
Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and
Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and
Weekly Montgomery Advertiser. $1.25

The UNION and
Weekly Atlanta Constitution. $1.50

The UNION and
Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and
Saturday News $1.25

Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it. tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

PEOPLE'S PARTY NOMINEES.

County Ticket.

For Judge of Probate,
L. H. REYNOLDS.
For County Treasurer,
J. BICE.
For Tax Collector,
T. J. HUBBARD,
For Tax Assessor,
L. B. POUNDS.
For Clerk of Circuit Court,
SAM W. COLLINS.
For County Supt. of Education,
J. W. MOORE.
For Coroner,
FRANK MASSEY,
For County Commissioner, 1st District,
W. H. CONWAY,
For County Commissioner, 2d District,
ALEX GLASSCOCK.
For County Commissioner, 3d District,
R. P. KENDRICK.
For County Commissioner, 4th District
MOSES ROBINSON.
tf

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THIS?

New York, October 3.—Evidences of a silent but comprehensive campaign by the democrats for the negro vote in New York, West Virginia and Indiana are being revealed. Senator Gorman has imported a negro preacher named Tice from Maryland to superintend the literary campaign from national headquarters. The Maryland senator has also sent an expert on colored politics to West Virginia to divide the vote there. Chairman Thomas Taggart has got George L. Knox, the most prominent negro leader in Indiana, to run for congress by petition, in opposition to Representative Jesse Overstreet and the democratic candidate. Rev. Mr. Tice has been made editor in chief of an independent national Afro-American journal named the Emancipator, whose first regular issue is dated October 1st. It can be found in stacks at both the national and state democratic headquarters.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WATSON ON DEMOCRACY.

Roosevelt stands in the open and dares Parker, defiantly, almost mockingly, and Parker meekly stays out of the fight.

It is curious to note that Mr. Parker does not once mention the name of Jefferson, Jackson, or any other great democrat.

Judge Parker pleads for greater favors to the manufacturers. Great God! Are they never going to get enough?

That Cleveland crowd in history; it has been "out" a long time; woe unto the people when that predatory band get their clutches upon the government again!

Harrison reduced the public debt by a quarter million dollars, and Cleveland was not long in adding more than Harrison had taken away.

What other party ever unloaded all of its principles at one quick throwdown as they did at St. Louis?—Extract from Watson's letter of acceptance.

OUR CIRCUIT COURT.

If the 15th judicial circuit bill, better known as the "pony circuit bill," is declared unconstitutional by the supreme court, all of the acts performed by Judges Winter, Richardson and Sayre are null and void. The present circuit clerk, all indictments, trials, etc., are illegal, for the work was performed in the name of the 15th judicial circuit, and there isn't any such circuit. What a mess?

COTTON.

Let our farmers hold fast to their cotton. The market is coming to them. They don't have to hunt the buyers this season. Tuesday a Clanton merchant was telephoned to buy 100 bales of cotton for a firm of factors, but he had to telephone back "you can't get it unless you pay 10c." Hold fast; there are over 300 bales in the ware house belonging to farmers who have horse sense.

THAT RED CROSS!

Quite a few of our subscribers "came across" last week either in person or by letter, but there are a lot left that have not made any sign. Will we have to put it on again?

A DEMOCRATIC LETTER.

The Age-Herald of the 10th inst. contains an article from which we cut the following extracts, for the benefit of our readers:

"Washington, September 10.—Colonel John S. Mosby, the old confederate guerrilla leader, has received from a prominent democrat of Alabama and a man well known in political circles in the south, an interesting letter expressing this man's views on the south's dread of negro relation and President Roosevelt's relation to the race question. Colonel Mosby has sent the letter to the president. In part it reads:

"'There is but one explanation, my dear colonel, of the pretended dread of the south of negro domination under existing conditions or as a result of anything that Mr. Roosevelt has ever said or done, and that lies in the fact that politicians find it necessary to have some such bugaboo as an excuse for their own continued residence in office, some appeal to the prejudice which will keep their constituents opposed to any change in the holders of place, either through the substitution of adherents to the opposing party or by removing them for other and perhaps better, broader men in their own.

"'Such a scheme and such an issue, whether real or feigned, is the breath of their nostrils; the substance by which their bellies may be filled. In none of his speeches or writings has Mr. Roosevelt indulged in one word or suggestion of enmity or ill-will toward the south or southern men. Never has he intimated that he would favor negro control of the government of any southern state.'"

Watson's Letter of Acceptance.

The Saturday News, Joliet, Ill., can furnish an unlimited number of copies containing Watson's great letter of acceptance, which is just out at the rate of 50 cents per hundred or $3.00 per thousand.

There has never been anything like it to enthuse populists and arouse interest in our cause. If placed in the hands of the voters it means a million more votes for the populist ticket. Send for a bundle. Address and make all orders payable to the Saturday News, Joliet, Ill. tf

A National Paper.

The News company of Joliet, Ill., proprietors of one of the largest and best printing plants in the state outside of Chicago, are publishing the Saturday News as a third edition of their paper. The Saturday News is devoted exclusively to the interests of the people's party and is national in scope. Each week it contains matters of interest regarding the progress of the party from all parts of the nation.

Being published at the headquarters of the party and the chairman of the national committee being president of the News company and one of the editors, it is peculiarly favorably located to give general news of the movement.

The People's party has long felt the need of a national paper and it is cause for congratulation that one has been started and by a concern that is so strong that its success is assured from the start while the names of such well known workers and writers as Hon. James H. Ferriss, Charles Q. De France, Jo A. Parker and R. E. Bray is a guarantee of its character and loyalty.

The regular subscription price of the Saturday News is 50 cents per year, but we have arranged with the publishers to furnish it and the Union, both papers one year for $1.25.

Call at our office and see a sample copy and take advantage of this offer. tf.

JEMISON, ALA.

Jemison, Ala., Oct. 10, 1904.

Editor Union:

Just a little space in THE UNION for a few words to the people. I think we are getting along all right politically and our ticket will be elected by a large majority. All we have to do is to get out our voters, and see that the votes are counted as cast. Now, I wish to say this: I think that there has been enough personalities in this canvass. I have watched closely and up to this date I've not been able to discover a single issue raised by the democrats except some slanders that are almost too little and mean for a civilized people to take notice of. Has it come to the place that men can't differ in politics and still be gentlemen? Whenever I see a fellow writing in the paper slandering and misrepresenting the other side, and then not have the manhood to sign his name, it convinces me that there is nothing in the party he advocates, and he's only trying to cover up their shortcomings by slandering the other side. My attention has been called to some writing in the Banner signed by fictitious names. I wish to say right here that I concede to every man the right to think and act as he pleases in politics and to work for the success of his side, but when it comes to personalities and slandering people because they don't agree with me, I'm not going to do it, and I care nothing at all for what they say of me. I don't take the Banner. I never give the other fellow a stick to frail me with, and every time we pay the Banner a dollar it makes it a dollar stronger to fight us. If Crichton wants to help the democrats and turn his back on those that picked him up and started him in business (and the democrats doing all they could against him) that is his privilege, but it will not hurt us. The people of Chilton are hard to fool. It is about time for a few around the court house to get together and (as they think) work some awful scheme, publish something terrible like the address the democratic committee got out two years ago, just a few days before the last election, in which they said that any advantage the "black belt" might have in the public school money was on account of the rich land; that the 16th section brought more there than it did here, and that that was the reason the children in the "black belt" got more than our children. Now, there was not a word of truth in that statement. Every lawyer (and most every one else) knows that the 16th section fund is equalized out of the state appropriation, and ALL CHILDREN are SUPPOSED to RECEIVE the SAME AMOUNT. But, Judge Richardson did not say it was because the land was rich that our children did not get their share of the public school money. Well, something had somewhat to say about my not being present in the constitutional convention at roll call every time. Nearly everybody knows that the roll might be called 25 to 50 times a day, and I was sick a good deal while the convention was in session. But I ask the people to see if I wasn't there on time to vote against that part of the constitution that has disfranchised thousands of white men in our state and nearly 1,000 of them in Chilton, many of them democrats. Has my prophecy come true or not when I said the new constitution would disfranchise white men? In conclusion I wish to say that I've represented Chilton county in the legislature several terms, and have always tried to treat all men alike regardless of their politics; and if I am elected probate judge I will try to fill the office according to law and treat all men alike in my official capacity, and to manage the finances of the county to the best of my ability. Hoping that this campaign will get on a higher plane, I am respectfully,

L. H. REYNOLDS.

P. S.—As I've sold out my mercantile business I wish to thank those that have traded with me so long, for I've sold goods to some of you nearly 12 years. I feel very grateful to every customer I've had. I thank you for the trade you have given me, and I assure you that our business together has been pleasant on my part, and whenever I can serve you, command me. L. H. R.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 10, '04.

Well, Mr. Editor, here I come, "just a voter," asking to waste a little space in your paper. Look out, democrats, I'm loaded for bear. I've been silent all these days, but blessyour soul, honey, I've had both ears open, and when I get through with this Clanton crowd there'll be nothing left but a greasy spot. Well, I told you all that I'd come to the conclusion that it paid to hold an office, and do you know I've stood around and swelled up and tried to look wise. I'd stick out like Judge Adams and some one would mention such and such a fellow for office, and I'd close up and look a little wiser, and I'd think surely they'll suggest me next time, and do you know at a meeting in Clanton I actually slipped into the probate judge's office and got in that big twisting chair—oh! how I did turn round and look wise, and I just couldn't see how some of the parties could keep from mentioning me for judge. Of course I wanted the populists first and then the republicans, and do you know I got to wanting it so bad I'd have considered a proposition from the democrats, even; but they have taken down and put up—down and up—but not one ever mentioned me, and I'd about give up in despair, but after the populist primary I thought the democrats would be able to get out an independent ticket. I could hear it talked around Clanton on the quiet that there would be an independent ticket, etc., and that if such a ticket would get started and organized and make a good show that the democrats would help us with a little "chink" and I thought even if there was no office a little "chink" would be nice; but all this has fallen to the ground and it looks like that every faction and everybody is going to nominate the July ticket, populists, republicans, lily whites, black and tans, and all the rest, and I'm looking for the independents at any time to come out for it, so you see everybody that amounts to anything in politics in Chilton has come across, so here I go for the July ticket. I just shut my eyes after the republicans greased it the other day, and swallowed the whole thing, hide, hoofs and horns (after I saw there was no chance on earth to beat the ticket). I tell you, when you beat L. H. Reynolds managing politics you must get up before day. You know I told you last spring that he was a slick duck and some other fellow said "he could walk a slack wire." Well, if he can walk a slack wire I reckon he can run a tight one, and he surely has them tight now. Do you know that the fellow that was writing against him in the Alabamian is now actually supporting him, and nearly everybody else? Did anybody ever expect to see Mr. Lee Hayes and Judge R. M. Honeycutt supporting Reynolds? But they are all the same. Don't strange things happen in politics? I believe the Lord is on the people's side. Say! I want to round up some few next time. Oh, young democrat, where wilt thou stand when I get through with you? The people will think you are young; they'll know you haven't cut your eye teeth. Some fellows will sit around and whittle and whine, and never done a day's work in their life, and write something about other folks, but they know it won't do to put their names to the article, as it would be like a red flag to a bull. Well, we had a meeting here the other day, and some thought the dems had the people by a nice trick, but bless your life the people are onto it, and down goes the dems as usual. You know they are counting on some kind of scheme to pull them through, and the Lord (or the devil, I expect) only knows what they'll do next. I knew when there was so much changing around Clanton, and most of it at night, that something would turn up. All these western trips were not for health alone, but haven't the democrats got us in a pickle (changed around and around), got Judge Richardson to appoint Mr. Foshee clerk and now it has turned out that Judge Richardson is no judge, and so we are without a clerk (that is, a legal one), and all Clerk Foshee's acts will be null and void, but he is not there for long. Just like all the Clanton tricks, it turns up against them. I tell you, the Lord (and nearly all the people) are against the democratic party. Say! In my next letter I'm going to make the fur fly. I'm going to speak out in meeting. I'll tell some things that has happened here of late. Little folks had better get under the bed and the Clanton tricksters hide out. I'll make Frank walk on his lame leg. Say, do you know I'm sorry for Frank? He's in a bad fix. Look out for me next week.

"JUST A VOTER."

THORSBY.

James Bosworth, of Birmingham, spent a few days here last week.

Several northern people arrived here last Wednesday.

Mrs. S. E. Norton and little son returned home here, after spending several weeks in Chicago.

Mr. Fors and family, of Chicago, will remain here for some time.

Monroe Sorrell, of Birmingham, is spending a few days here with friends and relatives.

Grandpa Winslow left for Carthage, Ind., Wednesday to look after his farm there.

Mr. Phalin made a business trip to Birmingham last Thursday.

J. W. Franzen will move his family to New Mexico in a short time.

Miss Dora Thorson entertained the Sunshine Society Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Kirkeby visited Clanton on Saturday.

H. B. Oliver, of Verbena, was here Thursday.

A number of our people attended the camp meeting at Rocky Mount Sunday.

Miss Deila Wambem is taking a short vacation, after which she will open her school.

"OTHELLO."

Jemison, Oct. 10, 1904.

Editor Union:

I have no apology to offer for making a reply to "Young Democrat's" reply to me. I feel that I've honorable columns to reply through, and don't at all censure "Young Democrat" for making the pitiful excuse he did, in replying through the foetid pages of the "obnoxious banner"—Yes, we admit that the "banner office" is a pretty nice building and that it is fairly well equipped for the business of pouring out its vile, contemptible spuriousness on the people that made it look so grand and up-to-date. If memory was blotted out, so that past facts would revert to our view we might with "Young Democrat"—but, while we were (in our mind's vision) viewing the "banner's" magnificent office and contents you describe the view lost its beauty as the mirror of the past reflected to our minds the history of some twelve years ago, down to four years ago and our mind's eye catches another view, and we see an object coming down into Clanton. Our people took that object without clothes, money or friends and furnished him money and press to start and publish "The People's Party Banner" to defend the people's rights which he pretended to do, until some four years ago he showed of a "Red Coat Englishman" by trying to sell out the people that had made the fine office you refer to, possibly, for him to occupy and have paid for the contents of the same. Now, because the people refuse to be sold by a deceptive Englishman he pours out in a lavish way his diabolical epithets on them. You democrats can howl and boast of the nice office of your dirty sheet, but you did not do anything to make it what it is; the people did that and now by the act of a traitorous "Red Coat" you have the use of it. Yes, The Union is ready to be handed down, and it will be handed to the good people of the county and appreciated by them. You don't want to compare your good men with our lot and then admit that we have some good men on our ticket, if you have men of merit please talk it, but you shyly refrain from doing so. As to the man that heads our ticket only voting 88 times in the constitutional convention and being absent at roll call, we are proud of a man that remembers the old adage, "better be alone than in bad company," and congratulate him on staying away from it when possible to do so. Surely the 88 votes cast by the head of our ticket were not cast in the affirmative, if they were we are greatly surprised to hear that there were 88 questions in that convention that an honest man could vote for. In comparison with Deason, will say who elected Deason ago? Well do we remember that Deason would have liked very much to have been the member to the constitutional convention from this county, but he knew well that he could not get there over Mr. Reynolds, and so made the excuse that if he was elected to the place that the democrats would declare the office of clerk vacant and appoint some one in his place. Don't worry over Mr. Pounds' financiering, he is thoroughly equipped for the office of tax assessor, and will fill the place with honor to himself and the county. I am no father of a fair white girl, and I have no fear of my sister having to walk by the side of a burly black negro, or go to school with them, or having to associate with them in any other way, unless the democrats are responsible for it just as they are in several of the Northern states, as in Indiana, the state you refer to. While I am not the father of a fair white girl, I have never condescended to mar and spoil the fair and superior looks of our white race by amalgamation with the black race. I was once in a democratic county in this fair state of ours, and on remarking that I was from Chilton, to a crowd of negroes at public work, one of the negro's spoke up and said that he was a half brother to one of the good men you have on your ticket. No, we don't believe in dealing with the negro problem by amalgamation. It is a glorious thing for you democrats that you have the negro to play on; he is the only string to your harp, the only issue you have; but for him you would be entirely without a plan of campaign. Well, yes, our boys have their eyes open (populists, too) and they see the schemes and tricks of our little court house clique. "Young Democrat," your ignorance of things in general prove you must just have been hatched. Three cheers for the ticket and The Union.

YOUNG REPUBLICAN.

Our Brother—Card of Thanks.

"My feet are wearied and my hands are tired,
My soul oppressed;
And I obtain what long I have desired,
Rest, only rest."

Our brother, Ellie J. Milling, passed out into eternity September 29, death resulting from an operation performed at Copeland hospital. He had been a resident of West End, Birmingham, a number of years and gathered around him many ardent friends who mourn his demise. Our brother was in his 44th year, a faithful member of the Baptist church 25 years, married 20 years, and leaves a widow and five children. Funeral services held at undertaking establishment of Lige Hoyt, Thursday afternoon, September 30, and remains were carried to his old home church (Valley Creek near Riderville) where interment took place Friday afternoon in the presence of a host of old friends, neighbors and relatives, the services being conducted by Rev. Robert Jones, of Stanton. In behalf of his widow and children, our sister, Mrs. Carroll, and brother, Robert M. Milling, I desire to tender thanks to the good people of West End and Birmingham, who were so unstinted in their kindly ministrations to our suffering brother. Especially do we thank his pastor, Rev. J. O. Colley, and his fellow workers at the L. and N. shops for their kindness and tender sympathy in that dark hour.

THOMAS G. MILLING.

Riddersville, Ala., Oct. 4, 1904.

Coming Even

NOTICE.

I am ready to lecture to or e... any alliance on short notice, ... myself ready to attend all ...

W. H. CONWAY,
County Lecturer and Organ...

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's First R...

We will attend at the follo... times and places for the purpo... COLLECTING the STATE and C... TY TAXES of Chilton County f... year 1904 and ASSESSING the T... for the year 1905:

Clanton, beat 4, Oct. 1, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Oct. 3, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Oct. 4, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Oct. 5, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Oct. 6, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Oct. 7, 190...
Benson, beat 3, Oct. 8, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Oct. 10, 190...
Providence, beat 2, Oct. 11, 190...
Jemison, beat 2, Oct. 12, 1904.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Oct. 13, ...
Flint Hill, beat 11, Oct. 14, 19...
Cane Creek, beat 4, Oct. 15, ... till 12 m
Mountain Creek, beat 5, Oct. 17, ...
Verbena, beat 5, Oct. 18, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Oct. 19, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Oct. 20, 1904.
James Maddox's gin, beat 4, Oct. ... 1904

A. C. MIMS,
Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's Second Round.

We will attend at the follow... times and places for the purpose... COLLECTING the STATE and CO... TY TAXES of Chilton county for ... year 1904, and ASSESSING the T... ES for the year 1905:

Benson, beat 3, Nov. 1, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Nov. 2, 19...
Shoults, beat 7, Nov. 3, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Nov. 4, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Nov. 7, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Nov. 8, 19...
Gentry & Cofer's Mill, beat 2, ... 9, 1904.
Hayes' Mill, beat 2, Nov. 10, 19...
Providence, beat 2, Nov. 11, 19...
Elijah Buzbee's, beat 2, Nov. ... 1904, till 12 m.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Nov. ... 1904.
Smith's Schoolhouse, beat 1, N... 15, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Nov. 16, 19...
Providence, beat 10, Nov. 17, 19...
Burwell, beat 10, Nov. 18, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Nov. 21, 1904.
Davis & Rollins' gin, beat 6, N... 22, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Nov. 23, 1904.
Stanton, beat 8, Nov. 24, 1904.
Valley Creek, beat 8, Nov. 25, 19...
Clanton Ford, beat 8, Nov. 26, 19... till 12 m.
Verbena, beat 5, Nov. 28, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Nov. 29, 1904.
Clanton, beat 4, Nov. 30, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Dec. 1-2, 1904.
Clanton, last 10 days in the ye... commencing December 20, 1904.

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Notice No. 25613.

Department of the Interior, Land O... fice at Montgomery, Ala., Septem... 12th, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the f... lowing named settler has filed notic... of his intention to make final pro... in support of his claim, and that s... proof will be made before Clerk of t... Circuit Court at Clanton, Ala., on O... tober 21st, 1904, viz: Hiram P. C... lum, Homestead entry No. 35417, f... the Ne 1-4 of Section 20, Tp 24 n of ... 14 east.

He names the following witnesse... to prove his continuous residence u... and cultivation of said land, viz: R... Caton, John N. Northcutt, Henry G... try, Alexander Gentry, all of Jemis... Ala.

ROBERT BARBER.
tf Register.

LOST.

A three year old heifer, color yellow, with white ri... around nose and white ta... with black bush. Anyone returning said animal or giving information that leads to her recovery will be liberally rewarded by applying to
tf THE UNION OFFICE.

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 acres within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is timbered, 1 set mill-rocks, 48 inch, 1 Horse, weight 1100 lbs.

Alfred Popwell,
Clanton, Ala.

Quarterly Conference.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Clanton Circuit Methodist Protestant Church will be held at Walnut Creek church, Saturday before the Sunday in November, 1904.

T. F. PASTOR,
tf Pastor.

...TY OFFICIALS

...—Judson Strock.
...—W. M. Wilson, R. G. Rob...
...I. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
...J. Watts Moore.
...—Ed Smitherman.

...URTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.

...ing Term—1st Monday in April.
...mer Term—3rd Monday in July.
... Term—1st Monday in Novem...

...—T. Scott Sayre.
...itor—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
...—E. B. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.

...ing Term—2nd Monday in March
... Term—2nd Monday in Septem...

...cellor—Hon. R. B. Kelley, An...
...ister—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan...

COUNTY COURT.

... Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

... Monday February, 1st Monday
... 1st Monday June, 2nd Monday
... 2nd Monday August, 1st Monday
...ber.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

...e of Probate—S. M. Adams.
...surer—Alex G. Dake.
...rk—J. M. Morgan.
...itor—J. O. Middleton.
... Assessor—A. C. Mims.
... Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

... District—W. H. Conway.
...nd District—Alex Glasscock.
...rd District—W. A. Green.
...th District—R. C. Riggins.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.

... J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.

... W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.

... L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

...UNTY CHURCHES

...ors and clerks are cordially ask... ...nd the editor any news regard... ...eir churches which they would ...ublished. Also if there are any ... these notices please send cor...

...MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

...—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
...nes, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
...Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas... C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
...son—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; ... Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
...ay—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday. ...nett, clerk, Verbena.
...on—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st ... Sundays. W. I. Mullins, ...

...Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th ... V. J. Gragg, clerk.
... Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, ... J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
...rd—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd ... T. N. Parrish, clerk.
... Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm... 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton.

...ut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, ... W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
...—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd ... W. B. Jones, clerk.
... Ronda—Rev. M. J. Parrish, ...ay. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
...—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st ... M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
...—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas... J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
...—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas... H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
...—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ...odgers, clerk, Jemison.
... Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd ... W. M. Wood, clerk.
...ola—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd ... H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
...ill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas... Barnes, clerk, British.
...y—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ...ney, clerk, Randolph.
... Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud...tor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk,

...son—Rev. W. J. Armstrong. ... H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
...Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand. ... H. Wilson, clerk.
...ia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd ...George Trawick, clerk.
...ron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas... Billingsley, clerk.
...em—Rev. W. J. Armstrong. ...; G. W. Hill, clerk.
...—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd ... Henry Smith, clerk.
... Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, ... Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
... Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom...day; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
... Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, ... R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
... Grove—Rev. G. W. Free... H. C. Latham, clerk.

...ings—Rev. W. J. Bone, ... J. J. McDowell, clerk.
...—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt ... W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi...

...—Rev. W. J. Armstrong. ...y Robinson, clerk, Clan...
... J. D. Hughes, pastor; ..., clerk, Rushton.
...y. T. J. Deason, 2nd ... J. Billingsley, clerk.
...y. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun...

...day. J. ... Thorsb... Robert J... Union ... pastor; ...son. ... Union ... Sunday. ... Verbena ... Sunday. ... Valley ...er; J. W... ville.

... Bethel... Saturday ... J. T. Abe...

...re ... Lombard ... bearings ... represent... lenders.

METH...

... Clanton ...

... Thorsby ... Walnut ...ng. ... Unity—... Shady ... Mount P... Enterpri...

CH...

... Highland ...lett, 3rd S... T. L. Adam... Enterpris... Sunday. T...

NORV...

... St. Olafs... pastor. Eve...

SWE...

... Concordia... berg. Ever...

... Rocky M... Mr. Carroll, ... service ever... noons. Pra... nesday nigh...

FRATE...

... Clanton ... Third Satur... Amandé L... 250—Fourth ... Clanton Lo... 423—First Sa... Century Lo... 567—First Sa... Bozeman ... No. 534—Sat... moon, Marbu... Jemison Lo... 411—Saturda... Jemison. ... Stanton Lo... 473—Tuesday ... Stanton.

... Jemison Lo...urdays. ... Clanton Lod... fourth Saturda...

WOODME...

... Black Jack ... and third Mon...

FINANC...

BRITISH AME...

... Of To... ... 1st J...

UNITED S...

... Government bo... State and muni... Cash on hand ... Stocks and bon... Premiums in co... Interest due an...

... Reserve premiu... Y. Standard). ... Reserve for u... es' ....

... Surplus in Unite...

... Total income in... States for 190... Total losses paid ... from 1874 to 1... sive .. ..

WALLACE C...

... Clanton,

NOTICE FOR...

Notice ...

... Department of th... 12, 1904 ... fice at Montgom... Notice is hereb... lowing named set... of his intention to... support of his cl... proof will be made... Circuit Court at C... tober 21st, 1904, ... lum, Homestead e... the Se 1-4 of Secti... 14 east. ... He names the fo... prove his continu... and cultivation of ... Caton, John N. No... try, Alexander Gen... son, Ala. ... ROBERT BA...

tf

ng Democrat"— (in our mind's banner's" magnints you describe ty as the mirror
to our minds the elve years ago,
and our mind's
iew, and we see
vn into Clanton.
object without friends and furd press to start
ple's Party Ban-people's rights
do, until some owed of a Red trying to sell
d made the fine
ossibly, for him
ald for the con-ow, because the old by a decepours out in a cal epithets or can howl and e of your dirty do anything to people did that f a traitorous
the use of it.
y to be handed nded to the nty and appre
don't want to n with our lot we have some t, if you have lk it, but you ng so. As to ir ticket only constitutional assent at roll
man that ree, "better be any," and con
k away from
o. Surely the l of our ticket affirmative, if y surprised to 8 questions in n honest man nparison with lected Deason member that d very much er to the con-om this coun-that he could Reynolds, and at if he was at the demooffice of clerk
e one in his
Mr. Pounds' ghly equipped ssor, and will r to himself
father of a e no fear of
by the side
go to school
ssociate with
, unless the e for it jus'
f the North-
the state you
t the father
e never con-
poil the fair
white race,
black race,
ic county in l on remark-hilton, to a c work, one nd said that one of the n your tick-in dealing by amalganing for you
the negro to ring to your have; but ely without ll, yes, our (populists, hemes and
ouse clique.
gnorance of must just cheers for

BLICAN.

Thanks.

my hands

ve desired,

ng, passed 29, death performed ad been a ingham, a ed around ho mourn
as in his er of the arried 20
and five held at
of Lige September
ed to his reek near ent took the pres-ls, neigh-ces being
Jones, of idow and Carroll.
ng, I de-good peomingham, eir kindly brother.
s pastor,
ow work-for their y in that

LLING.
04.

Coming Eve

NOTICE.

I am ready to lecture to or o any alliance on short notice, an myself ready to attend all ent
W. H. CONWA
County Lecturer and Org

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's First
We will attend at the fol times and places for the purpo
COLLECTING the STATE and C
TY TAXES of Chilton County f year 1904 and ASSESSING the T
for the year 1905:

Clanton, beat 4, Oct. 1, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Oct. 3, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Oct. 4, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Oct. 5, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Oct. 6, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Oct. 7, 19
Benson, beat 3, Oct. 8, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Oct. 10, 190
Providence, beat 2, Oct. 11, 19
Jemison, beat 2, Oct. 12, 190
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Oct. 13
Flint Hill, beat 11, Oct. 14, 1
Cane Creek, beat 4, Oct. 15,
till 12 m
Mountain Creek, beat 5, Oct. 17
Verbena, beat 5, Oct. 18, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Oct. 19, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Oct. 20, 1904.
James Maddox's gin, beat 4, Oc
1904
A. C. MIMS
Tax Asses
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's "Se
Round.

We will attend at the follo times and places for the purpos
COLLECTING the STATE and CO TY TAXES of Chilton county for
year 1904, and ASSESSING the T
ES for the year 1905:

Benson, beat 3, Nov. 1, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Nov. 2, 190
Shoults, beat 7, Nov. 3, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Nov. 4, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Nov. 7, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Nov. 8, 19
Gentry & Cofer's Mill, beat 2, 9, 1904.
Hayes' Mill, beat 2, Nov. 10, 190
Providence, beat 2, Nov. 11, 190
Elijah Buzbee's, beat 2, Nov.
1904, till 12 m.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Nov.
1904.
Smith's Schoolhouse, beat 1, N
15, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Nov. 16, 190
Providence, beat 10, Nov. 17, 19
Burwell, beat 10, Nov. 18, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Nov. 21, 1904.
Davis & Rollins' gin, beat 6, N
22, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Nov. 23, 1904.
Stanton, beat 8, Nov. 24, 1904.
Valley Creek, beat 8, Nov. 25, 19
Clanton Ford, beat 8, Nov. 26, 19
till 12 m.
Verbena, beat 5, Nov. 28, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Nov. 29, 1904.
Clanton, beat 4, Nov. 30, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Dec. 1-2, 1904.
Clanton, last 10 days in the ye commencing December 20, 1904.
A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.
tf

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Notice No. 25613.

Department of the Interior, Land O fice at Montgomery, Ala., Septemb
12th, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the f lowing named settler has filed noti of his intention to make final pro in support of his claim, and that sa proof will be made before Clerk of t
Circuit Court at Clanton, Ala., on O tober 21st, 1904, viz: Hiram P. C lum, Homestead entry No. 35417, f the Ne 1-4 of Section 20, Tp 24 n of 14 east.

He names the following witnes to prove his continuous residence up and cultivation of said land, viz: Sa Caton, John N. Northcutt, Henry G try, Alexander Gentry, all of Jemis Ala.
ROBERT BARBER,
tf Register.

LOST.

A three year old heifer color yellow, with white rin around nose and white ta with black bush. Anyon returning said animal o giving information that lead to her recovery will be lib erally rewarded by applyin
to
tf THE UNION OFFICE

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 acres within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is timbered, 1 set mill-rocks, 4
inch, 1 Horse, weight 1100
lbs.
Alfred Popwell,
Clanton, Ala.

Quarterly Conference.

The fourth quarterly conference o
the Clanton Circuit Methodist Episc ant Church will be held at Walnu Creek church, Saturday before
Sunday in November, 1904.
tf T. F. PASTOR,
Pastor.

TY OFFICIALS

—Judson Strock.
ell—W. M. Wilson, R. G. Rob
, I. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
t—J. Watts Moore.
al—Ed Smitherman.

RTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.

g Term—1st Monday in April.
ar Term—3rd Monday in July.
Term—1st Monday in Novem-
—T. Scott Sayre.
itor—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
—E. B. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.

g Term—2nd Monday in March.
Term—2nd Monday in Septem-
cellor—Hon. R. B. Kelley, Anter—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan-

COUNTY COURT.

Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Monday February, 1st Monday
1st Monday June, 2nd Monday
nd Monday August, 1st Monday
ber.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

e of Probate—S. M. Adams.
surer—Alex G. Dake.
ff—J. M. Morgan.
itor—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

OUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

District—W. H. Conway.
d District—Alex Glasscock.
District—W. A. Green.
th District—R. C. Riggins.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.

J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.

W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.

L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

UNTY CHURCHES

rs and clerks are cordially ask-
nd the editor any news regard-ir churches which they would blished. Also if there are any n these notices please send cor-

ISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
nes, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas-
C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
son—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor;
Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
y—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday.
ett, clerk, Verbena.
n—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st
Sundays. W. I. Mullins,

Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th
V. J. Gragg, clerk.
Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard,
J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
l—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd
T. N. Parrish, clerk.
Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm-
1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton,

nt Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand,
J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd
W. B. Jones, clerk.
Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish,
v. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st
M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas-
J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas-Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor;
dgers, clerk, Jemison.
Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd
W. M. Wood, clerk.
ila—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd
H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas-
Barnes, clerk, British.
—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor;
ey, clerk, Randolph.
Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud-
r; W. M. Roebuck, clerk,

on—Rev. W. J. Armstrong,
H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
prings—Rev. J. L. Hand,
H. Wilson, clerk.
—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd eorge Trawick, clerk.
on—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas-
Billingsley, clerk.
—Rev. W. J. Armstrong,
G. W. Hill, clerk.
—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd
ery Smith, clerk.
Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason,
M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom-
y; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard,
R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
Grove—Rev. G. W. Free-
H. C. Latham, clerk.

ings—Rev. W. J. Bone,
J. J. McDowell, clerk.
—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt,
W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi-

—Rev. W. J. Armstrong,
y Robinson, clerk, Clan-

J. D. Hughes, pastor;
, clerk, Rushton.
T. J. Deason, 2nd
Billingsley, clerk.
T. J. Deason, 4th Sunday. J. Deason, clerk, Adamsville.

Thorsby—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Robert Jones, clerk, Thorsby.

Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, pastor; R. S. Chandler, clerk, Jemison.

Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 1st Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

Verbena—Rev. J. W. Partridge, 1st Sunday. T. J. Bland, clerk.

Valley Creek—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. W. Mitchell, clerk, Plantersville.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

It is believed that the sign of the three golden balls was adopted by Lombard merchants from the armorial bearings of the Medici family, some representatives of whom were moneylenders.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

Clanton Circuit, Rev. T. F. Davis, Pastor.

Thorsby—1st Sunday.
Walnut Grove—2nd Sunday, morning.
Unity—2nd Sunday, evening.
Shady Grove—3rd Sunday.
Mount Pisgah—4th Sunday, morning.
Enterprise—4th Sunday, evening.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Highland School House—Rev. M. F. Lett, 3rd Sunday and Saturday before. T. L. Adams, clerk.

Enterprise—Rev. M. F. Lett, 4th Sunday. T. F. Patterson, clerk.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN.

St. Olafs, Thorsby—Rev. H. Engh, pastor. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

Concordia, Thorsby—Rev. J. E. Hedberg. Every Sunday at 10:15 a. m.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2d Sunday. Song service every 2d and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

MASONIC.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday, Clanton.

Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 250—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 423—First Saturday, Clanton.

Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 567—First Saturday Billingsley.

Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.

Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 411—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.

Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 473—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.

Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

of the

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE CO.

Of Toronto, Canada.

1st January, 1904.

UNITED STATES BRANCH.

Assets.

Government bonds	$223,650.00
State and municipal bonds	511,473.19
Cash on hand and deposit	169,720.71
Stocks and bonds	305,793.00
Premiums in course of col.	204,834.79
Interest due and accrued.	11,833.20
	$1,427,304.89

Liabilities.

Reserve premium fund (N. Y. Standard) .	$849,771.77
Reserve for unpaid losses'	100,786.14
	$950,557.91
Surplus in United States . .	$476,746.98
Total income in United States for 1903.	$1,547,736.84
Total losses paid in U. S. from 1874 to 1903, inclusive	$14,674,843.26

WALLACE C. EDLER, Agent,
Clanton, Alabama.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Notice No. 25612.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., September 12, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of the Circuit Court at Clanton, Ala., on October 21st, 1904, viz, Burton E. Collum, Homestead entry, No. 35416, for the Se 1-4 of Section 20, Tp 24 n of R 14 east.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Sam Caton, John N. Northcutt, Henry Gentry, Alexander Gentry, all of Jemison, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER, Register.
tf

LOCAL WEATHER REPORT.

U. S. Department of Agriculture, — Weather Bureau.

CLANTON, ALA.

Week ending Oct. 12

Date	Temperature High	Temperature Low	Rain fall
6	87	60	.2
7	84	52
8	81	50
9	80	53
10	89	48
11	91	49
12	90	49

A. STEWART, Obs.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to Oct. 12, '04, 2,563.
Price on same date, 9 5-8c.
Total receipts same week, '03, 2,099.
Price same date, 03, 8 7-8c.

PERSONAL AND LOCAL.

J. A. Kicker was in Clanton Thursday. He is suffering from sciatica.

Moses Robinson, president of the Co. Alliance, was in town Thursday, and says he's received many letters from all parts of the south complimenting Chilton county for their "hold cotton" letter."

W. P. Arledge left Thursday for Meridian, Miss., where he will be night ticket agent.

W. H. Shaw, of beat 2, was appointed justice of the peace by Governor Cunningham last week.

The carriers on the new Jemison R. F. D. route will be Archie H. Glasscock and Elijah L. Glasscock; at Verbena Thomas S. Pyron and James L. Messer.

Henry Driver was in Clanton Friday.

R. H. Bean was in town Friday.

M. F. Lett was in Clanton Friday.

J. P. Thomas is quite sick—a rising on each ankle, and to cap it all he was injured working at the mill the other day.

W. J. Patterson was in Clanton Saturday.

Tom Allen was in town Friday.

C. D. Foshee was a welcome caller Saturday.

City Marshal Ed Smitherman spent several days at Maplesville last week.

W. C. Davis and son, Luther, were in Clanton Saturday.

R. E. L. Ward was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

J. F. Hayes was a welcome caller Saturday.

Miss Lulu Duncan, of Lomax, visited Clanton Thursday.

Mrs. J. J. Culp and Miss Katrina Culp were visitors to Clanton Saturday.

J. A. Bachelor has moved his family from Wetumpka here and are living on Seventh street.

J. K. Langston was a pleasant visitor Monday.

Gus Batha was in Clanton Monday.

Rev. Montgomery, pastor of the Methodist church, inaugurated a series of meetings Sunday night to last all week. Morning service at 10 o'clock, evening at 7:30. Everybody invited to come.

T. L. Robinson was in Clanton Monday.

J. W. Trawick was in town Monday.

J. W. Hardy was a pleasant visitor Monday.

Some bugs found by J. O. Wesson on his cotton were sent to Auburn by J. N. Dennis for identification, but got there so badly crushed in the mail that Professor E. Mead Wilcox wants fresh ones, which Mr. Dennis will try to furnish him.

Little Burton Higgins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Higgins, who has been down with typhoid fever, is convalescing.

J. W. FRANZEN, OF THORSBY, IS SELLING OUT. tf

J. M. Williams was in Clanton Tuesday.

W. Q. Childress was in town Tuesday.

Miss Macie Crumpton, of Jemison, is visiting her brother's (J. P. Crumpton) family here.

A. L. Wambem and Tom Ogiltree, of Thorsby, were in Clanton Wednesday.

CUT PRICES RULE AT FRANZEN'S. tf

Wiley Friday is restored to citizenship by the governor this week.

A. Horn, of Thorsby, is presidential elector for the fourth district on the prohibition ticket.

DON'T FORGET FRANZEN'S BARGAINS. tf

John A. Lindquist, of Thorsby, is presidential elector for the fourth district on the socialist ticket.

Captain A. F. Goodwin, chairman of the people's party state committee, is expected to visit Thorsby Friday. Come out and meet him.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Walter Collins and Miss Fannie Childress. D. D. Easterling and Miss K. L. Cox. L. J. Howard and Mrs. Lucinda Armstrong. T. J. Jones and Miss Beadie Miller. Wade Friday and Miss Leila Pierce.

COLORED.

Olin Downs and Mayme Cooper.

OPENING OF CLANTON SCHOOL.

Professor Davis opened his school Monday under encouraging auspices. Quite a number of parents were present. The opening services, consisting of scripture reading, prayer and a very impressive and appropriate talk, were conducted by Rev. Montgomery, pastor of the M. E. church. The talk by Principal Davis, in which he outlined his plans for the term and appealed for the sympathy and co-operation of the patrons, was heartily responded to by Co. Supt. J. W. Moore and others. During the day the rooms were cleaned and desks rearranged, pupils examined and classed. Fifty-five pupils were enrolled. At the trustees' meeting in the afternoon they elected Miss Margaret McGaugh primary teacher. Other work was done which will be fully developed later. Our school prospects are glowing. "A long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether is needed to make these prospects brighter and brighter, even to their realization. Let all rally to the support of the school, and put forth our best efforts and build such a school that Clanton will become so heartily ashamed of the present quarters that she will erect a modern building for the accommodation of her children. Our school must be a success. We owe it to ourselves, to our children, to our town and county, to the state. Our school is a unit, the great whole is only an aggregation of units. Let us throw aside all petty jealousies and dissensions and strive together for the good of those who in a few short years must take our places in the great school of life.

UNITY ASSOCIATION.

The Unity Association met with the church at Bozeman on October 5th and 6th and had a pleasant session. Reports from the churches showed advancement. Dr. W. H. Caffey, of Verbena, was elected moderator. A council of ministers examined and ordained Professor C. M. Brewer. The entertainment of the visiting brethren was very good, the meats for each day being barbecued. Rev. W. J. Ruddick was elected stated clerk. Among the visitors from Clanton were W. I. Mullins and wife, Mrs. C. V. Heath, Mrs. J. T. Mullins and Mrs. Sarah Wells.

CHILTON COUNTY FARMERS' ALLIANCE.

Recommendation to Planters.

Chilton County Farmers' Alliance, in called session assembled, recommend to the farmers of this and other counties of the state, the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions, "being the full report of the special committee on warehouse, and

Whereas, from all reports from the planters and public press, we believe the cotton crop will be short in comparison with the estimate of sixty days ago, caused by excessive rains and rust, and

Whereas, arrangements have been perfected with the Planters' warehouse of Clanton for storage of cotton, including storage, weighing, sampling and shipping at 25 cents for first month or part thereof, and 5 cents per week for each succeeding week, and

Whereas, arrangements have been perfected with the Peoples' Savings Bank of Clanton to advance cash to three-fourths market value of each bale so stored, at rate of interest at 8 per cent per annum, and

Whereas, arrangements have been made for the insurance of cotton at three-fourths to full value at 15 to 20 cents per bale per month, and

Whereas, we believe it to be to the interest of all who grow cotton to avail themselves of these opportunities and withhold sale of their cotton until 1st of February or March, 1905, and

Whereas, the merchant has promised to aid in the above arrangements; therefore be it

Resolved, That we request the farmers and cotton growers to store their cotton until after Christmas, and if needed, draw three-fourths value in cash on same, and not sell until satisfactory prices are reached, and not rush their cotton on the market and depress the price, as is now being done, marketing a crop in ninety days that requires twelve months to produce.

We earnestly solicit the co-operation of all cotton growers and newspapers friendly to the view that cotton will bring a higher price later on.

Unanimously adopted and secretary ordered to have 1000 copies printed for distribution among alliancemen and farmers. MOSES ROBINSON,
President Chilton County Farmers' Alliance.
W. H. CONWAY, Chm. Warehouse Com., and Lect. C. C. F. A.
Clanton, Ala., September 14, 1904.
tf

COLLINS' CHAPEL.

Notice is hereby given that all teachers and singers are called to meet at this place the fourth Sunday in October, 1904, for the purpose of organizing a singing convention. All teachers and singers are cordially invited to attend this convention. Bring your books and baskets and spend the day.
Respectfully,
tf J. L. GORE.

Notice.

All persons who are indebted to me will please call and settle such account at once, as I am closing out my business. Respectfully
J. W. Franzen,
Thorsby, Ala.

The Sak's Store

Birmingham, Alabama.

READY-MADE Apparel for Men, Women and Children.

Our Mail-Order Department is quick, efficient and serviceable.

Write for Catalogue

DRINK

CREAM of KENTUCKY Whisky.

Sold only by

COLLINS BROS., Calera, Alabama.

Mail orders promptly filled.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,

COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,

Clanton. Alabama

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.

Catalogue for the asking.

1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.

County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association

of Alabama.

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

By the People and for the People.

Chilton County Branch

Organized February 3rd, 1900.

W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.

Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

Full particulars furnished upon application to
WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

PAUL CALAME,

205 21st Street

Birmingham, Ala.

Practical Watchmaker and Optician

Eyes Correctly Fitted

Mail orders promptly filled

A most complete Stock of General Merchandise, Dress Goods, Etc.

The Millinery Department

is complete in every detail and is in charge of a first-class milliner, Miss Clara Small, of St. Louis

P. D. WILSON,

CLANTON, ALABAMA.

Bed in Summer.

In winter I get up at night
And dress by yellow candle-light,
In summer, quite the other way,
I have to go to bed by day.

I have to go to bed and see
The birds still hopping on the tree,
Or hear the grown-up peoples' feet
Still going past me in the street.

And does it seem hard to you,
When all the sky is clear and blue,
And I should like so much to play,
To have to go to bed by day?
—Robert Louis Stevenson.

A Tea Table Tripod.

Some time, when tea is late and the family is all about the table waiting, you may surprise all by a very clever and at the same time simple and easy trick.

Take a napkin ring, and through it pass three forks with the points upward and rest their handles on the table. Spread the tops of the forks apart and inside them place a plate or any round dish which will fit within the space they afford. This will surely look the whole thing, and a heavy dish may be placed upon the plate without fear of its being broken.

The Most Intelligent dog in the World

The marvelous achievements of Bozzie, the Second, have attracted attention of psychologists and it is announced that a number of these scientists will gather at the Chicago university in the near future and endeavor to account for the seeming extraordinary powers of this animal.

The peculiarity of Bozzie is that she "reasons."

Many exhibitions of the dog's phenomenal powers have been given.

As to the mind-reading tests. One visitor wrote on a slip of paper: "I would like to have the morning paper," and looked at the dog. Off trotted Bozzie and got it. A little boy put his hand on Bozzie's head and then the boy thought of his age. Bozzie gave 10 quick barks, which was correct.—Atlanta Journal.

Kids' Dog Feast.

Last summer the Stringtown Kids had an Indian camp in Walnut Grove. This grove is a 10-acre tract northeast of town, embracing a little valley, an abrupt bank from the brook and a sloping hill. The boys patched up old carpets, and made three tepees of fair size, and during the summer spent many hours very pleasantly in the assumption that they were noble red men of the forest. When school was out this year the Kids met to consider whether they should again erect their totem poles at the place of the roaring waters.

Clarence Scoles declared Indians were a back number; that there were few of them left, and they were either "bums" or college graduates. He had been reading about the Philippine Islands, and proposed that they should establish an Igorrote and Moro village, and have dog feasts. Clarence had been a great medicine man and a big chief the previous summer, and his word carried much weight with the Kids. They had a council of war, smoked the peace pipe, and considered it. They were not sure they knew enough about the Igorrotes and Moros to impersonate them; but Clarence hooted at that.

"What will we use at the dog feasts?" inquired Dumpy Richardson.

"Bologna, of course," answered Clarence. And that settled it.

The next afternoon the boys were all on hand, some with spades, some with axes and some with picks. They selected the place where the bluff was highest, and driving stakes in, the the branch, managed to build a platform about two feet above the water. This was the lake house. But while some said the Moros lived in lake houses, others insisted the Igorrotes dug their houses in the ground. So they decided to have both. By dint of the hardest work they dug into the bank, which, being of a firm, sticky clay formation, caved but little. In the course of a week they had hollowed a room perhaps six feet square in the bank, had braced it with lumber they had picked up, and had built a framework over the lakehouse and covered it with boughs of trees.

Someone suggested that they ought not to use spades in digging nor nails in building, as the Philippine tribes had neither.

"Yes, they do have both," thundered Clarence, who had blisters on his hands even as it was, and wouldn't stand for any harder work.

"They made nails from the bamboo and spades from the ace of spades."

And that question was settled. Clarence's four-year-old brother, Billy Blue Eyes, came with them every day, and took as much interest in the house they were constructing as did any of the Kids.

"Billy Blue Eyes is too little to play Igorrote," said Dumpy.

"No, he ain't, neither," insisted Clarence. "The Igorrotes is all little people." Then he added, in an effort to mollify the other Kids: "We can dress him up and let him be a woman. The Igorrote women are the tiniest people, almost like the dwarfs they have in the show."

So it was arranged that Billy Blue Eyes was to be a woman. Clarence proclaimed himself Sultan, and all the other Kids became notables, selecting titles that suited them, because they didn't know what kind of officers the Filipinos really had. Some hay was brought down and spread in the cave and on the floor of the lake house, and over this was spread some matting, because they had heard that the natives wove grass mats. Then they brought down each his particular treasure, and arranged a very comfortable lounging place.

All things now being in readiness, they began to arrange for their first dog feast. The mothers of the Kids, being wise women, humored the pretentions of the Kids, so long as they were innocent, for, aside from the fact that they entertained and kept the youths from mischief, it also enabled the mothers to know where they could be found. So there was baking and "fixing" in more than one home. The kids were jubilant, for their first dog feast promised to be a grand success; and they planned to follow it up with a big head hunt. Head hunting was to be their principal sport.

The day before the first dog feast the Kids were all kept at home all day doing chores. They didn't rebel, because their mothers were doing so much for them in the way of cooking. The mothers were preparing a regular picnic dinner, and meant to surprise the Kids by dropping in on them and helping at the dog feast, so the mothers were as busy as could be. This is why Mrs. Scoles did not miss Billy Blue Eyes until nearly 6 o'clock, or until supper was ready. Then she remembered that she had not seen him for two hours.

"Where is that baby?" she asked.

Every room in the house was searched, every nook and corner of the yard and barn was examined, without result. Clarence hurried to neighbor after neighbor, only to find that he had not been there.

"Like as not he has followed that Italian with the hand-organ and monkey," said Mrs. Brown. Clarence went out in search of those worthies.

When Mr. Scoles returned from his work he at once suspected that the gypsies, camped at the end of the town had stolen the child. Hearing this, Mrs. Scoles went into hysterics, but he left her under the care of a neighbor and went in search of the marshal. The two proceeded to the gypsy camp and searched it thoroughly, and though the frightened wanderers declared they had seen nothing of the "poor chavie," the marshal thought best to arrest one of the men, and hold him as a sort of hostage in case they had taken and hid the little one. He also telegraphed the particulars of the kidnapping to the marshals of the nearby towns, so they might be on the lookout for a stray child. The entire village joined in the search. The Scoles' yard was full of sympathetic women.

Clarence remained away a long time on the search. Not knowing where to look, his feet bore him where his thoughts were most—to the Moro village. He declares he was there before he realized it. But finding himself there, he thought there could be no harm in peeping in; it wouldn't take long. He got down on all fours and entered the cave house. Suddenly his hand touched a body, and his eyes becoming accumtomed to the darkness, he saw it was Billy Blue Eyes! He jumped up and ran outside and whooped for joy. "The lost is found!" He shouted as only a boy could shout. Then he entered the cave and took the still sleeping boy in his arms and started for the house, talking and laughing and fairly dancing for joy. The noise and confusion partly aroused Blue Eyes.

'Give me another piece of dog," he said, and slept again.

Everybody laughed at this, and in explanation that followed the whole village learned of the proposed dog feast.

About 10 the next day the mothers of the Kids gathered with them at the lake house to prepare the dog feast. Billy Blue Eyes was dressed in gaily-colored garments to resemble a little woman. The Kids were in all manner of fantastic attires and were armed in ways that were marvellous in their promiscuity. The mothers spread a cloth on the floor of the lake house, and, unpacking many baskets, set forth a menu that, to the boys, seemed marvellous. On a great dish in the center were served big links of bologna, intended to represent the dog feast. The Kids put boards across the stream, so that when they stood on them the floor of the lake house served as a table.

Just as they were getting ready to eat there was a tremendous roar of drums and squeak of fifes, and the Kids saw nearly the entire town entering Walnut Grove in procession, bearing the baskets of eatables. At the same time their mothers produced from some mysterious place falsefaces mounted on long poles, and handing them to the Kids, told the head hunters to take their place at the head of the parade. A jinriksha, or something like it, carried by two boys, stopped and Billy Blue Eyes was put in the place of honor. Even the gypsies were there to show them reparation for the arrest. Thus they marched for a time. And then the people of the entire village spread forth their dinners in the grove and had a fine picnic, all because the losing of Billy Blue Eyes had stirred the bond of sympathies in all.

This was the first dog feast of the Stringtown Kids made a most greater affair than anyone had anticipated. —Charles Lincoln Phifer, in the Birmingham Age Herald.

Evolution of Flies.

"The flies of this season may not be the flies of other seasons," remarked the Observer of Events and Things, "but they know all the tricks of their ancestors."—Yonkers Statesman.

Black Adventure.

FED BEAR MATCHES.

He was a venerable and intelligent man and had been a great traveler, and he kindly undertook to while away an idle hour by telling a reporter of the true inwardness of California life in the foothills of the Sierra.

"As to your question about grizzlies," he said, "I'll tell you my first and rather remarkable experience with one of those varmints. I was a kid, not yet twenty, and new to the region of the Sierras, having come from the East but a few months before. On a moonlight night early in April I was gently meandering home on muleback. I was unarmed with the exception of a pocket knife, for I had foolishly lent my pistol to a friend early in the day. I had almost reached the ranch, having only a short stretch of ground to pass. I had heard the settlers allude respectfully to old Ephraim. They said he was the fiercest in the spring, after his winter's siesta. He's always an ugly customer, and after a man has had a wipe or two from his talons there is seldom enough left of that man to tell the tale.

"On this evening I speak of I was dead tired, as I had been riding all day. I had almost fallen asleep on my mule, when—my word! how that mule did jump! Standing ahead, as large as life, on the bank of a little brook, was a big grizzly. He grinned at me and growled in a way calculated to agitate the nerves of Ajax, the fellow who defied the lightning, much more those of a tenderfoot, as I was then.

"I had heard enough to know that if I turned tail, that is, the mule's tail, I could leave Ephraim behind me; but on the other side of him was home, and I had my share of grit even then. I had heard of the notion entertained by some people that a man can master the most ferocious wild creature by looking him in the eyes and advancing straight upon him. Even a greenhorn would back out of such an experiment with Ephraim, the most ferocious of all wild creatures.

Suddenly I remembered I had in my pocket a large box filled with friction matches, those made with plenty of brimstone for use in a strong wind. An idea occurred to me, and I patted and encouraged the mule, who trembled so that I thought she would drop down under me, and urged her boldly right in the face of old Burin. When within a few feet I suddenly struck a dozen matches and threw them right into his open jaws. Never was there a more sudden change from malignant ferocity to the most abject cowardice. The huge brute actually cowered and shook with terror equal to that of the mule herself.

"This was something altogether outside of his experience. I suppose he thought he had struck a prairie fire on muleback. Even the mule saw the situation and gained courage. She advanced, and I kept a continuous shower of burning matches. Luckily a rather strong wind blew from me and carried away the fumes. In fact, this is what brought the varmint to me. To cut things short, old Eph turned tail and ignominiously fled.

"Now, stranger, I might proceed to relate further how I stuck to the heels of that old grizzly, and kept setting fire to his fur until he was entirely burned up, but in this skeptical age it may be well to suppress some of the facts of the case, for fear of being doubted." —Liverpool (Eng.) Mercury.

RETURN OF THE DESERTERS.

Back of the fact that nine enlisted men of the Fourteenth Cavalry have recently been proved not guilty of the charge of desertion, which involves dishonorable discharge and imprisonment, and have been found guilty of being "absent without leave," which involves a fine and a short term in the guardhouse, there is an example of what an American soldier will endure for the sake of active service, and what he can't endure stationed in barracks. When the Fourteenth Cavalry was organized some two years ago, men rushed to enlist because they thought the regiment would be sent to the Philippines. Two years rolled by, and for those two years a battalion of the Fourteenth was stationed at Fort Duchesne, Utah, the most forsaken post on the army map—a station "ninety miles off the map and 200 miles from anywhere." While the men were eating their hearts out there word came last spring that if they wanted to reenlist they could get their discharges at once and re-enter the army for another three years. The news flew like wildfire, and, as it was generally understood that this meant the regiment was going to the islands, almost every man renewed his oath.

In August the long wished for but will-o'-the-wisp order came for the Fourteenth to start for the railroad station enroute for the Philippines. They didn't stop for dinner that night, but began breaking camp that hour, and in a short time the battalion was started on its two days' "hike" to the railroad. But when it had covered a little more than half the journey a dusty, perspiring courier overtook it with a telegram stating that the regiment's sailing orders had been revoked and the battalion ordered to return to camp. That night two of the men bought horses and disappeared, and for days following man after man silently faded away. Some were caught, but others remained out of reach. Then, when the battalion seemed threatened with disintegration, from Washington there flashed across the wires the word that the War Department had exercised is prerogative and the troops would proceed to the islands.

As silently and mysteriously as they had disappeared, the self-absent soldiers began to dispose themselves at points where their officers could not avoid seeing them and putting them under arrest. Nine of them were tried by a court martial upon their arrival at Presidio with the Fourteenth en route to the Philippines. But when their chaplain told his story the court reduced the charge to absence without leave and sent them along with their regiment on the last transport. General MacArthur reviewed the case and agreed with the court.—San Francisco Chronicle.

DU CHAILLU'S FIRST GORILLA.

Suddenly an immense gorilla advanced out of the wood straight toward us, and gave vent, as he came up, to a terrible howl of rage, as much as to say, "I am tired of being pursued, and will face you." It was a lone male, the kind which are always the most ferocious. This fellow made the woods resound with his roar, which is really an awful sound, resembling the rolling and muttering of distant thunder. He was about twenty yards off when we first saw him. We at once gathered together, and I was about to take aim and bring him down where he stood, when my most trusted man, Malaonen, stopped me, saying in a whisper, "Not time yet."

We stood, therefore, in silence, gun in hand. The gorilla looked at us for a minute or so out of his evil eyes, then beat his breast with his gigantic arms—and what arms he had!—then gave another howl of defiance and advanced upon us. How terrible he looked! I shall never forget it. Again he stopped, not more than fifteen yards away. Still Malaonen said, "Not yet." Good gracious! What is to become of us if our guns miss fire, or if we only wound the great beast?

Again the gorilla made an advance upon us. Now he was not twelve yards off. I could see plainly his ferocious face. It was distorted with rage; his huge teeth were ground against each other, so that we could hear the sound; the skin of the forehead was drawn forward and back rapidly, which made his hair move up and down and gave a truly devilish expression to his hideous face. Once more the most horrible monster ever created by Almighty God gave a roar, which seemed to shake the woods like thunder. I could really feel the earth trembling under my feet. The gorilla, looking us in the eye, and beating his breast, advanced again.

"Don't fire too soon," said Malaonen; "if you don't kill him he will kill you."

This time he came within eight yards of us before he stopped. I was breathing fast with excitement as I watched the huge beast. Malaonen only said, "Steady," as the gorilla came up. When he stopped, Malaonen said, "Now!" And before he could utter the roar for which he was opening his mouth three musket balls were in his body. He fell dead almost without a struggle.—Adventures in Equatorial Africa.

A DISTINGUISHED M. P.

An M. P. who distinguished himself greatly during the late war in South Africa is Major J. E. B. Seely, who represents the Isle of Wight at St. Stephen's. Major Seely gained the D. S. O. during the campaign, and the manner in which he and a handful of yeomanry covered the retreat of their comrades, who had suddenly come upon a large party of concealed Boers, won them unstinted praise. Major Seely is also one of the crew of the Tolland Bay lifeboat, and it is not strange that in the Isle of Wight they think highly of his courage. Some time back he swam with a line from the lifeboat to a sinking French ship, and was thus instrumental in saving nine lives. For this act of gallantry he received the thanks of the French Government, and he enjoys the distinction of being the only lifeboatman in Parliament. John Burns, however, has saved a man from drowning. In his younger days the member for Battersea was engineer on board a steamer in the Niger, and on the cry of "Man overboard!" being raised, he jumped into the river and effected a rescue.—Montreal Star.

RUNNING THE BLOCKADE.

Sir William Allan, the veteran member of the British Parliament for Gateshead, once made the acquaintance of the inside of a prison as a result of his love for adventure. When a young man, Sir William, then a marine engineer, saw a good deal of the world and faced many perils of the sea. During the war between the Northern and Southern States, the young Scot engaged in the exciting yet dangerous pursuit of blockade running, but on one eventful night the steamer of which he was chief engineer fell a prey to a Federal cruiser. The engine room, where Sir William remained awaiting his fate, was invaded by a Union officer, who, hearing an ominous rush of water, jumped to the erroneous conclusion that the young engineer was sinking the vessel. With a fierce gesture the Federal leveled his revolver at the head of the Scot, but it was not fated that the latter should die that day, though he suffered imprisonment for his blockade running exploits, he was ultimately little the worse for the experience.

Paris Dwellings.

It is rumored that the Rothschilds propose to spend 10,000,000 francs in the setting up in Paris of dwellings for wage earners, in which the rentals shall be extremely moderate and out of which the owners do not intend to make any profits. Similar work has been done in the Peabody buildings in London and in various extensive enterprises of the sort in a number of leading cities.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

The way to be nothing is to do nothing.—Howe.

Much bending breaks the bow; much unbending the mind.—Bacon.

It is always the biggest craven who gives the dead dog the heartiest kick.

When a man gives to be seen of men he generally has a good deal to hide from the Lord.

For people who live happily together the real secret is that they shall not live too much together.—English Proverb.

The darkest hour in the history of any young man is when he sits down to study how to get money without honestly earning it.—Horace Greeley.

Never compare thy condition with those above thee; but to secure thy content, look upon those thousands with whom thou wouldst not, for any interest, change thy fortune and condition.—Jeremy Taylor.

Let us rightly search our lives that, if there be any evil in the day gone, before the angel closes his book we may repent, and the fair white page of holy deeds and genuine repentances be our only record.—John E. W. Ware.

Life our battleground, death our release; cares and sorrows upon earth, repose in heaven—of these we all have heard. But do we really grasp the thought that in our death and judgment we are confronted with new opportunity?—Isaac Ogden Rankin.

The richest women in the United States are said to be Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sr., $90,000,000; Mrs. C. P. Huntington, $75,000,000; Mrs. R. J. C. Walker (daughter of William Weightman), $50,000,000; Mrs. Henry C. Potter, $45,000,000; Mrs. Ogden Goelet, $40,000,000, and Mrs. Hetty Green, $36,000,000.

There are 318,979,564,000 ways of playing the first four moves on each side of a chessboard, yet Henry N. Pillsbury has played against as many as twenty-two boards at one and the same time without seeing a single board, and has won a large majority of the games.

In Bermuda girls are often prevented from marrying by the law of the land, which decrees that a woman who marries a foreigner shall not only lose what property she may happen to have, but shall also become incapable of inheriting any.

One hundred and nine boys were born in Italy on the same day as the new crown prince. According to Italian law, these boys will be allowed to prosecute their studies free of charge in all the military colleges of the state, and thus become officers in the Italian army.

The empress of Japan not only smokes, but uses a silver pipe with a stem ten inches long. The bowl is small—in fact, only a quantity of tobacco sufficient to give the smoker two or three whiffs can be put into it.

About 30,000 horses are said to be slaughtered for their meat in Paris each year. The carcass of a good horse yields about 369 pounds of meat.

Miss Olive R. Cameron, of Tennessee, a stenographer in the patent office, has broken all typewriting records by rattling off 23,000 words in a day of seven and one-half hours.

Tigers in central India killed only 349 persons last year, as compared with 639 in 1902. The number of cattle devoured, on the other hand, increased from 4,260 to 5,988.

Oak beams, a thousand years old, removed from the Blue Bell inn, at Bedlington, England, have been converted into a handsome suite of furniture by a local tradesman.

King Victor, of Italy, has made a present of $200,000 for the founding of an institution for aged workmen no longer able to earn a living.

New Britain, Ct., with its population of 20,000, gets along with two policemen by day and only one at night.

The Japanese government estimates the expenses of conducting the war for the fiscal year 1904-5 at about $284,000,000.

The ameer of Bokhara has given $10,000 for the foundation of a school to be named after the carevitch.

Diamonds are steadily advancing in price. They have increased 40 per cent in two years.

Awed by Sight of Wealth.

A Southern planter employed to work some of his land during past year on shares. On settling the high price of cotton the half of the proceeds amounted to The planter knew that it would any such man to get such a money, and decided that half would be enough. Upon further tion the conviction grew upon that $800 would ruin any in the world, so he cut the half again, and, piling up 400 silver dollars on his desk, sent negro and brother, and said was ready to settle. The man and fairly gasped at the amount wealth in sight.

"Land, boss," he said, "is this all ours?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, divide ; you and you take your half and mine."—Minneapolis Tribune.

Some of the Japanese officers in Manchuria, and Scotch engineers their work many years ago, married Chinese women and Chinese families and even ness as Chinamen. The loss of the standing of soldiers means loss reputation. But their have gone regularly to Tokio.

One of the most studious women Europe is the German empress, cares very little indeed for pomp ceremony. Her majesty's study is medicine and she has ed herself so well in the art of that she is regarded as quite ficient adviser in cases of illness.

The 18-year-old daughter of Chentung Lian Cheng, Chinese ter to the United States, is her social debut in Washington the coming winter. She will distinction of being the first born Chinese girl who has ever ly entered American society.

One of the favorite drinks English far has for many years grog, which owes its name to Vernon, who in bad weather the habit of pacing the rough grogram cloak, which the title of "Old Grog."

Of the many presents that of Denmark has received long life there is not one prizes more than a crown which was given to him on sion of his golden wedding school children of Denmark.

Julep is of very ancient roun al Raschid quaffed from den bowl a distillation of gul, a rose—ah, from a rose water.

An inventory of gifts to navy just completed by the shows that these tributes $110,040 in value. Silver resent the greater part of

The German emperor has ants in his employ than monarch. They number 3,000, about two-thirds of women.

An exchange of the leaves of the sweet-scented is in some parts of Italy ceremonies attendant trothal.

Charbon has appeared in One million eight hundred nine thousand tons of sugar ported from Hawaii last year.

An eminent professor that the mortality among from the age of 30 to 40 per cent, whilst among of the same age it is

Thomas A. Edison at 8 years of age, and right to all papers sold Trunk railroad before

Paul Lawrence Dunbar poet, is dead.

The prevailing low are causing some trouble in Texas.

Colorado will soon by the name of Radium be located in the heart belt, on the Grand river.

On a recent trip of were 3,818 persons crew numbered 381.

King Edward has

Men's and Women's Sizes

GOLD WATCH

Free

out any work, write

BLACH

1912-1914

Birmingh

For a copy of their F
ter Big Value Book
Boys' Apparel
full particulars.

NOW.

any cheery greeting?
coat to-day,
wait the friend and message
gone away.

one who sighs for comfort
hand grasp true
cheer the way, and surely impoverish you.

all the time regretting
is too late.
heavy heart has broken
we hesitate.

human, though so often promise our pain;
hungering for
and give again.
annon, in Christian Advocate.

E - TRACKED AT BANFF.

KATHERINE JARBOE.

N old-fashioned idea still in vogue with certain people is that certain kinds employment for all the hands. On close investigation, how would be found to be an ubiquitous taskmaster than majesty. Occasionally the a close parallel exists, and then is tragic, but as a rule the of love works on ordinary lines. His tasks are easy. instance, in this case, when simply had to press the he did the rest.

Eastbound express on the Canadian was sidetracked at ing for the eastbound train. Tracy, a kodak enthusiast stages of the disease, had ed every attractive bit from Banff. His rolls of film made a fairly complete of this most picturesque of continental lines—with occasional, of course, when night red with his labors. From platform, from the steps of and from the observation had "shot" the flying landscape early dawn until the last of the lingering northern faded away he had la-

He was standing on the last of the train, and had jotted photographic memoranda of Inglismaldie, of Perfect eating cone, with a glimpse tiful hotel nestling on the He was feeling well his work, for these last superb, and if they could fully developed would doubtless be a source of pride to him. whistle, an oncoming roar, express thundered past on the

As it slowed up at the train moved on, but had indelibly fixed on kodak a glimpse of the of the passing train. head and saw, vaguely, over a kodak focused on him, but before she car had rounded a curve lost to view.

Arrived to New York after and one of his first develop his "views". With the ordinary amateur, a were good, but most of Heavy old Sir Donald his crest into the eye to such an extent that distinguishable from the that border Lake Superiors, lakes and rivers, farm lands, were hopeless. Only one view was Framed by the door-per, a young girl looked the plate into Tracy's he exclaimed, "what a must be the Banff girl!" girl she was, and the remained for days, even months. Tracy and she was charming; she was beautiful, and crucial tests of beauty; per she was exquisite, experimental printing penetrated deeper and Tracy's heart. At last he not quite at last, for point of his folly was to silver and install her on table as mistress of his visions. There she stood looks, returning his glance perhaps, but in response to him only by the of the "Banff girl." ing, she was christened, this wise:

ran up to Tracy's communicate some person- wandering idly about saw the photograph, glanced at it carelessly, "Good photograph," of course. I didn't Edith so well. She's she?"

here was a man who what a fool he would name of a girl whose enshrined in the pri- table! In a moment was gone. Tracy rise to rush after him and where "Edith" held him back, and the sailed for Egypt.

Edith's photographic Lattimer Tracy's world was merely her from him. He dance and dinner, he eyes, hoping that he might find her.

to a dinner to meet Edith Bainbridge, heart beat with as he read the would be his. Hintermediate steps tinacy, or possibly gazed at his photoation. "Mine, and the sweetest free under the

When he stood the night his for voice I curse with death. Miss Bainbridge. The words were turned to hear was her fellow Scotch spinster how he loved the last when he was the returned his love he was girls were in the heart heard a n stand still.

"Don't tell me, Ed you have worn his

"Yes, I have. Y if you like, but of a I took from Yokoha his was the only on Of course, there wa Could any one doub very locket now, and I need him. I know I'm absolutely positiv

"How romantic!"

"But show it to us

"I wonder if you w I'll wager you don

"What will you say

"No, I won't. Of Miss Seymour arose exclamations. "And

"Oh, how do you didn't hear you come the hostess. "It's good to come so early. here, don't you? Oh, I want you to know Jack Seymour's cousin you know. You've of his cousin Edith a haven't you?"

The words flowed on murmur. Tracy heard Her hand was in course, Cupid was on the task he had considetrack at Banff.

The Two-Sided S

Speaker Cannon is one individuals who can through his life roughbreak an eggshell. He agricultural English, tobacco juice and expl The great American on itself with the desire by the buttonhole as sure as over. His campaign fit him, and one leg of always pulled up enough he wears white yarn so dalous things are told they say in Washington that no man's dress coat smoothly over the shoulders patent leather shoes splendidly or are tied graceful silken bow. the Speaker's constituents constituent will laugh.

"Now, don't you go and self about Joe. He does fine things because he just to get something or people he's rakin' with plain and straight as I feel this way about Joe much of a way of sayin' don't put thumbs up and back. But he's got some thing is good enough for enough for me." Everybody does.

The Japanese Ba

The Japanese baby is born in a curious fashion, and any circumstance, does or baby wear a hat or does he wear shoes, even weather, but his shaven pink toes peep out from garments, and he rides strapped on tightly, happy smiling always and dress is allowed to get out of garments, in the most dainty manner, all embroidered and decorated with the designs are supposed to typify the occupation of the infant.

Ballooning Accident

If statistics can be convincing, it may be interesting what I was told at the Paris last August, that is, that than a thousand ascents, balloon carrying on an average and very often three, passengers worst accident on record was a broken foot. It is not to add that accidents happen called dirigible balloons, climbs, etc., are not included summary.—From George du "Ballooning as a Sport," in tury.

F WISDOM.

othing is to do noth-enks the bow; much d.—Bacon.

biggest craven who
the heartiest kick.

s to be seen of men
good deal to hide

ive happily together that they shall not ther.—English Pro-

r in the history of
when he sits down
get money without Horace Greeley.

thy condition with but to secure thy those thousands couldst not, for any y fortune and couyor.

arch our lives that,
if in the day gone,
closes his book we
the fair white page genuine repentances
John E. W. Ware.

ound, death our re-
rrows upon earth,
f these we all have
o really grasp the ur death and judg-ronted with new op-
Ogden Rankin.

men in the United be Mrs. Cornelius
0,000,000; Mrs. C.
5,000,000; Mrs. R. J.
ghter of William
00,000; Mrs. Henry
,000; Mrs. Ogden
, and Mrs. Hetty

$79,564,000 ways of four moves on each
ard, yet Henry N.
ed against as many ards at one and the
it seeing a single
on a large majority is are often prevent-by the law of the

that a woman who her shall not only
y she may happen to so become incapable

nd nine boys were
the same day as the
. According to Ital-ys will be allowed to tudies free of charge
colleges of the state, officers in the Italian

f Japan not only a silver pipe with a long. The bowl is nly a quantity of too give the smoker two an be put into it.

orses are said to be their meat in Paris carcass of a good out 369 pounds of

Cameron, of Tennesher in the patent of-all typewriting rec-off 23,000 words in a one-half hours.

tral India killed only year, as compared
The number of cat-
the other hand, in-
50 to 5,988.

thousand years old,
he Blue Bell inn, at land, have been conndsome suite of furnitradesman.

of Italy, has made a 00 for the founding of er aged workmen no
arn a living.

Ct., with its popula-gets along with two ay and only one at government estimates

f conducting the war
ar 1904-5 at about $284,- f Bokhara has given foundation of a school

er the carevitch.

steadily advancing in ave increased 40 per ars.

Awed by Sight of Wea

A Southern planter employe to work some of his land past year on shares. On s the high price of cotton the half of the proceeds amounted
The planter knew that it w any such man to get such a money, and decided that h would be enough. Upon furt tion the conviction grew that $800 would ruin any in the world, so he cut the half again, and, piling up 40 silver dollars on his desk, sen negro and brother, and said was ready to settle. The ma and fairly gasped at the a wealth in sight.

"Land, boss," he said, "is th all ours?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, divide it in and you take your half and mine."—Minneapolis Tribune.

Some of the Japanese spies Manchuria, and Siberia co their work many years a married Chinese women, or Chinese families and went ness as Chinamen. They thus the standing of solid citizens less reputation. But their have gone regularly to Tokio

One of the most studious Europe is the German emp cares very little indeed for ceremony. Her majesty's study is medicine and she ha ed herself so well in the art that she is regarded as qu ficient adviser in cases of illness.

The 18-year-old daughter Chentung Lian Cheng, Chin
ter to the United States, is her social debut in Washing the coming winter. She will distinction of being the born Chinese girl who has ev ly entered American society.

One of the favorite drin English tar has for many grog, which owes its name
Vernon, who in bad weath
the habit of pacing the rough grogram cloak, which the title of "Old Grog."

Of the many presents th of Denmark has received long life there is not one prizes more than a crown which was given to him o
sion of his golden weddi school children of Denmark

Julep is of very ancient roun al Raschid quaffed fr den bowl a distillation of r gul, a rose—ah, from a di rose water.

An inventory of gifts to navy just completed by the shows that these tributes $110,040 in value. Silver resent the greater part of

The German emperor ha ants in his employ than monarch. They number 3,000, about two-thirds of women.

An exchange of the leaves of the sweet-scent is in some parts of Italy ceremonies attendant trothal.

Charbon has appeared i
One million eight hundr nine thousand tons of co ported from Hawaii and last year.

An eminent professor h
that the mortality amon from the age of 30 to 4 per cent, whilst among of the same age it is 18

Thomas A. Edison wa
at 8 years of age, and ow right to all papers sold
Trunk railroad before h

Paul Lawrence Dunba
poet, is dead.

The prevailing low p are causing some trouble in Texas.

Colorado will soon bo
by the name of Radium be located in the heart belt, on the Grand river

On a recent trip of th were 3,818 persons on crew numbered 381.

King Edward has ser

d Women's Sizes

GOLD WATC

Free

out any work, write

BLACK

1912-1914

Birmingh

For a copy of their F
ter Big Value Book
Boys' Apparel wh
full particulars.

NOW.

my cheery greeting?
ut to-day;
wait the friend and message
gone away.

one who sighs for comfort
hand grasp true;
er the way, and surely mpoverish you.

ll the time regretting
is too late,
heavy heart has broken
e hesitate.

human, though so often use our pain;
hungering for your comfort,
d give again.
anon, in Christian Advocate.

- TRACKED BANFF.

ATHERINE JARBOE.

N old-fashioned idea still in vogue with certain people is that Satan finds employment for all idle hands. On close investigation, however, would be found to be an ubiquitous taskmaster than majesty. Occasionally the close partnership, and then is tragic, but as a rule the of love works on ordinary lines. His tasks are easy, instance, in this case, when simply had to press the he did the rest.

ound express on the Canadian was side-tracked at for the eastbound train. racy, a kodak enthusiast stages of the disease, had every attractive bit from Banff. His rolls of film made a fairly complete this most picturesque of ntinental lines, with occaes, of course, when night ed with his labors. From atform, from the steps of and from the observation had "shot" the flying landearly dawn until the last of the lingering northern faded away he had la-

e was standing on the last the train, and had jotted tographic memoranda of Inglismaidie, of Peegating cone, with a glimpse iful hotel nestling on the He was feeling well his work, for these last superb, and if they could developed would doubtgestures of pride to him. stle, an oncoming roar, ss thundered pass on the As it slowed up at the s train moved on, but had indelibly fixed on kodak a glimpse of the of the passing train. head and saw, vaguely, over a kodak focused him, but before she ar had rounded a curve st to view.

ed to New York after and one of his first elop his "views". With e ordinary amateur, a were good, but most of Heary old Sir Donald his crest into the eye to such an extent that distinguishable from the that border Lake Superiors, lakes and rivers, farm lands, were hopeonly one view was Framed by the doorway, a young girl looked the plate into Tracy's he exclaimed, "what a ust be the Banff girl!" irl she was, and the remained for days, seven months. Tracy ught she was charming: she was beautiful, and ial tests of beauty; e she was exquisite. experimental printing ntinued deeper and 's heart. At last he not quite at last, for ot of his folly was to er and install her on e as mistress of his ions. There she stood k, returning his glance perhaps, but in numto him only by the of the "Banff girl." e she was christened, d wise:

run up to Tracy's nicate some personwandering idly about w the photograph, ced at it carelessly. "Good photograph," e, of course. I didn't Edith so well. She's she:

ere was a man who what a fool he would ame of a girl whose enshrined in the priing table! In a moe was gone. Tracy e to rush after him t, and where "Edith" d him back, and the sailed for Egypt."

Tantis's photographic d Lattimer Tracy's world was merely her from him. He ner and dinner, he hoping that he might find her. Once he was invited to a dinner to meet "My cousin, Miss Edith Bainbridge, of Victoria." His heart beat with an overwhelming joy as he read the words. At last she would be his! He entirely ignored all intermediate steps of acquaintance, intimacy, proposal and acceptance. He gazed at his photograph with rapt adoration. "Mine, mine, mine!" he cried, and the sweet eyes smiled back at him from under the wind-swept hair.

When he stood before his hostess that night his face was white and his voice hoarse with emotion.

"Edith, Miss Bainbridge, Mr. Tracy!" The words were spoken and Tracy turned to meet her. Alas! this Edith was not his Edith, but only an elderly Scotch spinster. Tracy never knew how he lived through that evening, but when he returned to his room and his Edith he was more hopelessly her slave than ever. "I will find you some time," he cried, passionately, "in spite of the world and fate!" The world and fate, be it understood, were represented by his hostess and her innocent cousin.

The winter drew to a close, and Tracy was growing hopeless. Should he start out in quest of her, he asked himself. But what a hopeless quest! Should he follow Seymour and ask, as incidentally as possible, his Edith's name? But to brand himself an idiot in Seymour's eyes was distaseful in the extreme.

It was Saturday, and Tracy was on his way to an afternoon reception. No hope of finding Edith led him thither, but one of his friends had asked him to help entertain her guests. He waited for a moment in the antechamber, realizing from the voices that only girls were in the adjoining room. Then he heard a name that made his heart stand still.

"Don't tell me, Edith Seymour, that you have worn his picture ever since."

"Yes, I have. You can call it silly if you like, but of all the kodaks that I took from Yokohama to Montreal, his was the only one that came out. Of course, there was a fate in that. Could any one doubt it? It's in this very locket now, and I'll wear it until I meet him. I know I will some time, I'm absolutely positive of that."

"How romantic!"

"But show it to us."

"I wonder if you will ever see him."

"I'll wager you don't."

"What will you say to him?"

"No, I won't. Of course, I will," Miss Seymour answered to all these exclamations. "And I'll say—"

"Oh, how do you do, Mr. Tracy? I didn't hear you come in," exclaimed the hostess. "It's awfully good of you to come so early. You know every one here, don't you? Oh, no—Miss Seymour, I want you to know Mr. Tracy. She's Jack Seymour's cousin from Montreal, you know. You've heard him speak of his cousin Edith a thousand times, haven't you?"

The words flowed on in a melodious murmur. Tracy heard none of them. Her hand was in his and—well, of course, Cupid was on hand to complete the task he had commenced on the sidetrack at Banff.

The Two-Sided Speaker.

Speaker Cannon is one of those gifted individuals who can seem to storm through his life roughshod and never break an eggshell. He talks uncouth, agricultural English, punctuated with tobacco juice and explosive profanity. The great American people trample on itself with the desire to grasp him by the buttonhole as soon as his speech is over. His campaign clothes never fit him, and one leg of his trousers is always pulled up enough to show that he wears white yarn socks. Yet scandalous things are told of Uncle Joe; they say in Washington, for instance, that no man's dress coat hangs more smoothly over the shoulders; that no man's patent leather shoes glisten more splendidly or are tied with a more graceful silken bow. Go tell one of the Speaker's constituents that; the constituent will laugh. He will say:

"Now, don't you go worrying yourself about Joe. He don't wear them fine things because he likes to. It's just to get somethin' or other outer the people he's mixin' with. Joe's just as plain and straight as you an' I. I feel this way about Joe: He ain't got much of a way of sayin' things, an' he don't put thrills up and down your back. But he's got sense. An' if a thing is good enough for him, it's good enough for me."—Everybody's Magazine.

The Japanese Baby.

The Japanese baby's head is shaved in a curious fashion, and never, under any circumstance, does the mother or baby wear a hat or bonnet. Nor does he wear shoes, even in the coldest weather, but his shaven head and his pink toes peep out from the mother's garments, and he rides pickapack, strapped on tightly, happy, chubby, smiling always and dressed, when he is allowed to get out of his binding garments, in the most dainty of kiminos, all embroidered and painted and decorated with the designs which are supposed to typify the final trade or occupation of the infant.

Ballooning Accidents.

If statistics can be considered convincing, it may be interesting to state what I was told at the Paris Aero Club last August, that is, that after more than a thousand ascents, with each balloon carrying on an average two, and very often three, passengers, the worst accident on record in the club was a broken foot. It is not necessary to add that accidents happening to so-called dirigible balloons, flying machines, etc., are not included in this summary.—From George de Geofrey's "Ballooning as a Sport," in the Century.

SNAKESTONE A MYTH.

Supposed Medicinal Value as a Poison Antidote is False.

South Africans, as a rule, trouble themselves but little about snakes, although it is well known that a few varieties are particularly deadly. Among the natives the properties of the "snakestone" have for many generations formed a centre of half superstitious credulity, and, even by people who might be expected to know better, have been supposed to effect the most surprising cures of snake bite. An investigation of its properties by the government bacteriologists of Natal, who submitted an Indian snakestone to the test of applying it to animals infected with snake venom, has shown conclusively that its properties are quite mythical and that it does nothing that is claimed for it. According to tradition the snakestone, which has absorbent qualities, and which there is some reason to believe is frequently artificially prepared, is placed on the wound inflicted by a snake bite. There it is believed to suck out the poison, and it has been said that if afterward placed in a bowl of milk the venom will exude and the milk turn blue. In certain experiments narrated in the British Medical Journal all these directions were followed. To the two rabbits injected respectively with the venom of a black mamba, a very deadly South African colubrine, and with puff adder venom, the snakestone was at once applied. The stone, by virtue of its absorbent nature, adhered to the wound, but here its adherence to tradition ended. Both rabbits died, and what was more disappointing, two other rabbits, used as a "control experiment," which were injected with the same amount of venom, recovered. Nor when the stone was placed in milk did the milk change color, though a small quantity of it was absorbed. The amount of absorption that the stone could possibly effect would be no more in hours than ordinary suction by the lips could achieve in a few minutes; and its only possible usefulness might be that of improving the physical condition of the patient by impressing him with the belief that a valuable remedy was being applied.—South Africa.

A new method of cutting trees was experimented recently in France. A platinum wire charged with a heavy current of electricity to a white heat is used like a saw. The process takes about one-eighth the time of the ordinary saw, no sawdust is produced and the carbonization acts as a slight preservative to the end of the timber.

Many English queens have chosen oak trees in Windsor forest whereon their names, with the dates of their choice, have been commemorated by means of brass plates. In different parts of the forest, with seats around them, are oaks bearing the names of Queen Elizabeth, Queen Caroline, Queen Charlotte and Queen Victoria.

The annual report of the manager of the New York clearing house showed that the total transactions for the year amounted to $2,778,655,380. In the fifty-one years since the clearing house was established transactions reached the immense total of $1,640,353,025,530.

Lord Kitchener says that he is not a woman hater, but does not think that an army officer has a right to be married, as he will think of his wife when in places of danger and instinctively take precautions for her sake that a single man would not.

Miss Helen De Young, daughter of M. H. De Young, proprietor of the San Francisco Chronicle, has been chosen by Secretary of the Navy Moody to christen the new training ship Intrepid, which will be launched at the Vallejo navy yard on October 8th.

In a few weeks the annual sale of the kaiser's carriage horses will take place. The German emperor is harder on his horses than any other monarch in Europe, and seldom keeps any horse in his stable for more than a couple of years.

A Chicago traveler, looking for pastime, utilized the wireless telegraphy equipment of one of the ocean liners to order, while he was yet 200 miles at sea, a coupe to meet him at the wharf.

The first steamship that made the western trip across the Atlantic was the Sirius. She sailed from Queenstown April 3, 1838, and crossed to New York in 18 days. June 16, 1897, she was lost off the south coast of Ireland.

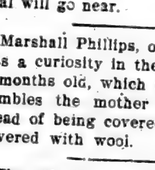
A Kentucky judge has decided that a man doing business on Sunday can not secure damages from a telephone company if it fails to deliver a message on that day.

Sculptors claim that the human foot is growing smaller. They say that 20 centuries ago the average length of a man's foot was 12 inches, while now it is 10 7-16 inches.

Grain rust is not a disease of the plant, but a plant itself, a fungus.

ALL BROKEN DOWN.

No Sleep—No Appetite—Just a Continual Backache.



Joseph McCauley, of 144 Sholto street, Chicago, Sachem of Tecumseh Lodge, says: "Two years ago my health was completely broken down. My back ached and was so lame that at times I was hardly able to dress myself. I lost my appetite and was unable to sleep. There seemed to be no relief until I took Doan's Kidney Pills; but four boxes of this remedy effected a complete and permanent cure. If suffering humanity knew the value of Doan's Kidney Pills they would use nothing else, as it is the only positive cure I know."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Korea has its own "seven wonders." First, a hot mineral spring, claimed to have miraculous healing properties. Second, two springs, far distant from each other, but connected by a subterranean passage. When one spring is full the other is empty. All the water seems to flow from one spring to the other, yet one is bitter and the other sweet. Third, the cold wind cave, in which there is always a breeze strong enough to take a strong man off his feet. Fourth a pine forest in which trees are continually sprouting, no matter how the roots are mutilated. Fifth, the floating stone. It is a large, irregular cube which seems to be resting on the ground, yet a rope may be passed under the stone without touching it. Sixth, the "hot stone," which for ages has been almost at white heat. Seventh, "a drop of the sweat of Buddha." This is kept in a temple and for thirty paces around it no grass, flower or tree will grow or animal will go near.

Marshall Phillips, of Willisboro, Vt., has a curiosity in the shape of a colt 6 months old, which in every way resembles the mother except that instead of being covered with hair it is covered with wool.

The oldest existent pharmacy is the quaint and conspicuous building located in Yorkshire, England, which pharmacy was established in 1720.

Negus attained its name from a jovial colonel in the days of George I.

Scotch Wisdom.

The fountain of content must spring up in the mind; and he who has so little knowledge of human nature as to seek happiness by changing anything but his own disposition, will waste his life in fruitless efforts and multiply the griefs which he purposes to remove.—Scottish Reformer.

$100 Reward. $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Ordered a Cab Far Out to Sea.

A Chicago traveler, looking for pastime, utilized the wireless telegraphy equipment of one of the ocean liners, on his return trip to New York, to order, while he was yet 200 miles at sea, a coupe to meet him at the wharf at a certain hour.

ALL EMERGENCIES IN THE FAMILY OR ON THE FARM FOR MAN OR BEAST

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

KILLS PAIN
KILLS GERMS

DR. EARL S. SLOAN
615 ALBANY ST., BOSTON, MASS.

MONARCH STUMP PULLER.
Will pull 6-foot stump without help. Guaranteed to stand a strain of 20,000 lbs. Catalogue and discounts address MONARCH GRUBBER CO., Lone Tree, Ia.

FISK'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

The Hospital states that 2,289,578 patients are treated annually in London hospitals and dispensaries.

Our Willow Ware.

In ten years Maryland has jumped from fifth to third place in the willow-ware industry in the United States, now ranking next to New York and Pennsylvania. Baltimore is one of the three willow-ware centres which only have shown any actual growth in the business. In Maryland the centre of the willow district lies in Howard County. In the neighborhood of Elkridge alone the output of willow exceeds $5000 per annum, while Anne Arundel County contributes $2500.

Jap Advertising.

The Japanese advance in advertising as in all else. Here is an illustration: "Our wrapping paper is as strong as the hide of an elephant. Goods forwarded with the speed of a cannon ball. Our silks and satins are as soft as the cheeks of a pretty woman, as beautiful as the rainbow. Our parcels are packed with as much care as a young married woman takes of her husband."

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free. Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

There are twenty-four crematories in the United States.

I do not believe Piso's Cure for Consumption has an equal for coughs and colds.—JOHN F. BOYER, Trinity Springs, Ind., Feb. 15, 1900.

Railroad salaries in Japan average about $12.50 a month.

There is uncertainty as to when the portable watch, as we understand it today, came into use. It was probably at the close of the sixteenth century. Queen Elizabeth owned a large number of watches. Mary Queen of Scots was the possessor of a skull-shaped watch. In fact, the "death's head" pattern was at that time much in vogue.

Divorces in Japan, which can be obtained on the most trivial pretension, have somewhat diminished in number in recent years, but they still occur at the rate of one to every three marriages. In 1902 there were 349,489 marriages and 113,498 divorces.

It is not known to all the world that the rifle of Kit Carson, the great western hunter, scout and explorer, is carefully preserved. He left this rifle to Montezuma lodge, A., F. and A. M., of Santa Fe, N. M.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.

Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

RIPANS TABULES are the best dyspepsia medicine ever made. A hundred millions of them have been sold in a single year. Constipation, heartburn, sick headache, dizziness, bad breath, sore throat and every illness arising from a disordered stomach are relieved or cured by Ripans Tabules. One will generally give relief within twenty minutes. The five cent package is enough for an ordinary occasion. All druggists sell them.

Mrs. L. C. Glover, Vice-President Milwaukee, Wis., Business Woman's Association, is another one of the million women who have been restored to health by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was married for several years and no children blessed my home. The doctor said I had a complication of female troubles and I could not have any children unless I could be cured. He tried to cure me, but after experimenting for several months, my husband became disgusted, and one night when we noticed the testimonial of a woman who had been cured of similar trouble through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, he went out and bought a bottle for me. I used your medicine for three and one-half months, improving steadily in health, and in twenty-two months a child came. I cannot fully express the joy and thankfulness that is in my heart. Our home is a different place now, as we have something to live for, and all the credit is due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours very sincerely, MRS. L. C. GLOVER, 614 Grove St., Milwaukee, Wis." Vice President, Milwaukee Business Woman's Association.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Avery & Company

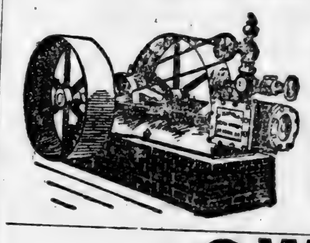
SUCCESSORS TO
AVERY & McMILLAN,
51-53 South Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.
—ALL KINDS OF—
MACHINERY
Reliable Frick Engines, Boilers, all Sizes. Wheat Separators.

BEST IMPROVED SAW MILL ON EARTH.
Large Engines and Boilers supplied promptly. Shingle Mills, Corn Mills, Circular Saws, Saw Teeth, Patent Dogs, Steam Governors. Full line Engines & Mill Supplies. Send for free Catalogue.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC

GUARANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, regularly you are sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It starts chronic ailments and long years of suffering. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS today, for you will never get well and stay well until you get your bowels right. Take our advice, start with Cascarets today under absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Never sold in bulk. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York. 500

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS COMPANY
MANUFACTURERS



High Pressure Return Tubular Boilers
Morison Internally Fired Boilers
High Grade Slide Valve Engines
Transmission Machinery
Heavy Castings
Wrought Iron and Steel Work
Tanks, Stacks and Stand Pipes
Heavy Pipe Work a Specialty
Address Machinery Department
MACON, GEORGIA.

W. L. DOUGLAS
UNION MADE. $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN.
W. L. Douglas makes and sells more men's $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world. The reason W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the world is because of their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. If I could show you the difference between the shoes made in my factory and those of other makes and the high-grade leathers used, you would understand why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater intrinsic value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day, and why the sales for the year ending July 1, 1903, were $6,263,040.00.

W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom. Look for it—take no substitute. Sold by shoe dealers everywhere. Fast Color Eyelets used Exclusively.

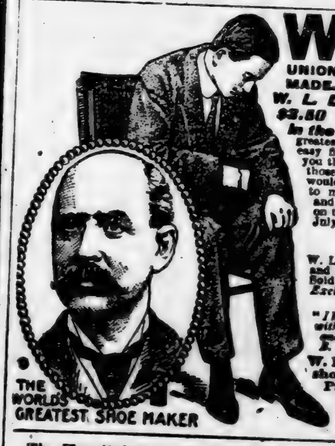
Superior in Fit, Comfort and Wear.

"I have worn W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes for the last twelve years with absolute satisfaction. I find them superior in fit, comfort and wear to others costing from $5.00 to $7.00." E. S. McCOY, Dept. Coll., U. S. Int. Revenue, Richmond, Va.

W. L. Douglas uses Corona Colt skin in his $3.50 shoes. Corona Colt is conceded to be the finest Patent Leather made.

SEND FOR CATALOGUE GIVING FULL INSTRUCTIONS HOW TO ORDER BY MAIL.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.



THE WORLD'S GREATEST SHOE MAKER

NoMoreBlindHorses For Booklet Cyclone Mixture Saves Horses, Blind Horses & others Sure. Sherry Co., Iowa City, Ia., have a cure each

Am. 42, 1904.

Plantation Chill Cure is Guaranteed
To cure, or money refunded by your merchant, so why not try it? Price 50c.

SIX MEN SUFFOCATED

In the Grand Trunk Railway Tunnel Under the St. Clair River.

RESCUERS SUCCUMB TO GASES.

Coal Train Broke in Passing Through. Heroic Efforts at Rescue Were Made.

Six employes of the Grand Trunk railroad were suffocated to death by coal gas in the St. Clair tunnel, which runs under the St. Clair river from Port Huron, Mich., to Sarnia, Ont. A coal train broke in two while passing through the tunnel, and three of the train crew were suffocated, while part of the train lay stalled in the tunnel. The engineer lost his life when he returned and endeavored to push the stalled cars back to safety, and two other rescuers perished in attempts to penetrate the atmosphere of the great tube.

The train, which entered from the American side of the tunnel, was made up of seventeen coal cars. When it broke, Engineer Coleman realized that the accident had happened, and with the three cars that were still attached to the engine, steamed out of the tunnel into the Sarnia yards. He hastily detached his engine and went back into the tube for the stalled cars.

When his engine reached them he attempted to push them back through the tunnel, and out on the American side. The grade proved too steep, however, and the attempt was a failure. The engine and cars rolled back into the gas-laden tunnel, and Engineer Coleman was suffocated at his post in the engine cab. His fireman, Fred Foresler, jumped into the partly filled water tank of the engine, where there was enough air to preserve his life, although he is in a serious condition.

When news of the broken train reached the American side of the tunnel Superintendent Begg, accompanied by two employes, started on foot, hoping that the train was near enough to the entrance so that they might rescue and carry out some of the crew. They had gone but a short distance when the coal gas became stifling and Begg succumbed. The other rescuers succeeded in crawling to the portal of the tunnel on their hands and knees.

Meanwhile preparations were being made at the Sarnia end of the tunnel to rescue the imprisoned train crew. An engine with a party of rescuers entered the tube and had proceeded but a short distance when they found John Haley, a track walker, lying unconscious. He was taken out and again the engine plunged into the gaseous atmosphere. The rescuers were overcome, however, by the gas before the train was reached.

Switchman Blake, who was a member of the party, after a time made another attempt to penetrate the gas and this time succeeded in reaching the stalled engine, coupled it to the cars and ran the train into the daylight. Simpson, Tinsley and Gillis were found dead in the caboose. Fireman Foresler was found in the water tank of the engine nearly two hours after being rescued, and his escape is regarded as almost miraculous.

Yale Enrollment.

In commenting on the decrease in the number of freshmen this year, the Yale News says that the rigidness in the examinations in ancient and modern languages and bad business conditions in the west were two potent causes. The net decrease in entrance is thirty-nine in the university.

Powder Explosion.

A special from Medina, Tenn., says by the premature explosion of gunpowder at that place, Herman Walker, the 11-year-old son of the Rev. E. T. Walker, had one side of his face torn off and received other injuries which will result fatally. Jerry Zwell had his leg broken and may die.

Pension Report.

The annual report of Pension Commissioner Ware, covering the fiscal year ended June 30, 1904, shows that during the year the cost of maintaining the pension system of the government has been $144,712,787. The appropriation for this purpose was $146,419,296, leaving an unexpended balance of $1,706,509.

During the year 47,374 persons were added to the pension rolls—329 by special act of congress and the balance by the pension bureau. During the same period 49,157 pensioners were dropped from the rolls.

Hat Saved Him.

Carl Hayes, the 7-year-old son of Ed Hayes, of Alabama City, came very near losing his life.

He and several other boys were playing in a sand bed and had dug a tunnel several feet long and deep under the sand, and were playing there when the bank caved in. His hat fell over his face and this probably saved his life, as he was nearly dead when rescued.

JAPANESE FIRE

Damages Russian Shipping at Port Arthur.

It is reported that the fire of the Japanese land batteries severely damaged four Russian warships in the harbor of Port Arthur. It is stated that one of the vessels was completely wrecked. The name of none of the ships was given.

Lieutenant General Hasegawa, late commander-in-chief of the Imperial guards division, has left for Korea to assume command of the Japanese forces there. It is probable the Korean army was dispossessed or brought under Japanese command. It is probable that this Japanese move is made in order to expel the bands of Cossacks now operating in western and northwestern Korea.

Vladivostok is being heavily fortified, the harbor is being mined and repairing of the damaged ships is going on. It is believed that it will be impossible to put the armored cruiser Rossa in a seaworthy condition.

It is stated in Vladivostok that General Kuropatkin has been very ill and unable to personally command his army since the battle of Liao Yang. Russian officers at Tsintau are responsible for the statement that ammunition and guns for the protected cruiser Diana have reached Port Arthur from Saigon. The Germans do not believe the story. The Russians are in constant communication with Port Arthur, it is believed, by wireless messages sent to Che Foo, though it is claimed that the expected dash of the Port Arthur fleet has been frustrated by the terrific storms which have prevailed.

TWO MORE STACKS

Will be Ready for the Torch About November 1st.

The work of repairing one of the Birmingham furnaces of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company and the Vanderbilt furnace of the Tutweiler Coal, Iron and Railroad company is being pushed and both companies expect to be able to resume operations at their respective plants by the first of November, or shortly thereafter. Both of these plants are being relined and otherwise improved and their production capacities are being increased. The Vanderbilt plant will receive more blowing power, a large engine being installed there, while the size of the furnace is being increased. Considerable work is being done about the Sloss-Sheffield company furnace.

Receivers Appointed.

At Montgomery William C. Levering and W. E. Hocker were appointed receivers of the Alabama Cotton Produce company by Judge Sayre. The bond of each of the receivers was fixed at $10,000. The large concern just recently established headquarters here where they removed from Atlanta.

The receivers were appointed on the prayer set out in a bill of complaint in the equity court in the form of Charles E. Kimball et al. vs. Allen Fleming.

The liabilities of the concern are put at $323,757.82. The company handled the roundlap bale entirely.

Diver Injured.

At Waco, Tex., Chester Perry, known to the profession as Starlow, a professional diver, is seriously if not fatally injured as the result of a high dive from the new iron bridge across the Brazos river.

He fell from the floor of the bridge to the water, turning a somersault as he made the descent. He broke his collar bone and sustained internal injuries. There is not much hope for his recovery.

The Dog Eaters.

It is stated that the now famous Igorrote village at the world's fair in St. Louis will be taken to Jackson, Miss., for the cotton and corn carnival to be held in December.

Negro Bank.

The American Trust and Savings bank is the name of a new financial concern that threw open its doors to the public in Jackson, Miss., Friday. The stockholders are all colored business men of the town. The capital stock is $25,000.

SHOT HIS SON-IN-LAW.

Claimed Self-Defense, but the Jury Thought Otherwise.

At Dawson, Ga., Jesse Wall shot and killed Hill Oxford, his son-in-law. The coroner's jury decided the killing was unjustifiable. Wall's statement at the inquest was to the effect that he was reprimanding Oxford for neglecting his wife, when Oxford cursed him and advanced with an open knife, and that he fired to save his own life.

A knife was found by Oxford's side unopened, and this with the fact that he was shot in the back, and testimony of eye-witnesses, led to the verdict rendered.

Auto Duty.

Automobiles to the number of 427 were brought to America through the port of New York during the nine months ending October 1st. This is almost double the number imported during the same period last year.

The total value of the 427 machines was $1,600,000, giving an average of about $3,750 for each machine. The duty paid on the machines at 45 per cent amounted to $720,000.

PAYNE'S FUNERAL

Interment Will be in Milwaukee, His Home.

Although an official funeral, the service in St. John's church over the body of the late Henry C. Payne, postmaster general, were marked by impressive simplicity. Official Washington filled the church and brilliant as were the uniforms of the large representation from the army, navy and marine corps, the solemnity of the scene was only enhanced by the sharp contrast of color with the deep mourning of the family and personal friends of the dead cabinet officer.

Side by side with Mrs. Payne sat the president and Mrs. Roosevelt, both in deep mourning.

The procession was escorted by the postal carriers of the city of Washington in uniform to the Pennsylvania station, whence the body will be taken on a special train to Milwaukee. The interment will be in that city, the home of Mr. Payne.

FIVE SUBMARINES

Shipped Across the Continent. Value, $4,000,000.

Five sub-marine torpedo boats, built in Massachusetts, have been shipped by rail from Jersey City. "West of Chicago" is the destination expressed upon the way bill which accompanied one of the first vessel shipments which has ever crossed the American continent.

Valued at nearly $4,000,000, the torpedo boats occupied seventeen new steel flat cars and six box cars. The boats were shipped in sections and each car was covered with canvas which concealed the contents.

There was not the slightest mark on any car to indicate the contents or the destination or to the railroad employes who inquired, the stereotyped answer given was that the covered masses was a part of a large shipment of machinery destined for the west.

NO EXTRA SESSION.

Governor Cunningham Declines to Call One.

There will be no extra session of the legislature of Alabama. Announcement to this effect was made by Acting Governor Cunningham.

A statement is now being prepared by the governor in which he will give his reasons for declining to call the legislature together.

There has been great pressure brought to bear upon the governor to issue a call for an extra session, owing to the numerous complications which have arisen by reason of the Lusk bill having been declared unconstitutional by the supreme court of Alabama. The governor invited suggestions from all sections of the state, and his decision is taken after consideration of all of these.

Sash and Door Men to Meet.

At a meeting of representatives of yellow pine, sash, door and blind interests of the southern states, held in Macon, Ga., an organization was perfected to be known as the Yellow Pine Sash, Door and Manufacturing association. Over twenty firms were represented, and the states of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Arkansas furnished the majority of the members. David Woodward, of Atlanta, is president.

The object of this organization is to secure uniformity in grades of goods, to secure uniformity in railroad rates and to reform and correct abuses of the trade. The next meeting will be November 16th in Birmingham.

Bit Her Tongue.

Little Pearl Evans, the 2-year-old daughter of Fred Evans, while playing on the porch of the family residence, fell to the ground, striking her chin in such a manner that she almost bit her tongue in two.

Mustered Out.

Adjutant General W. W. Brandon, of the Alabama national guard, mustered company F, third regiment, Huntsville, out of the service of the state in accordance with the recommendation of the military court of inquiry and the order of the governor.

Veterans' Reunion.

The reunion of Perry county, Mississippi, confederate veterans took place in Hattiesburg and proved a great success. About two thousand visitors from all parts of the state and many from outside the state attended the event.

Fell from Train.

Henry Couch, a soldier, fell out of the coach window near Blount Springs. He was in sleeping attire. Fortunately he was not injured. He walked into Blount Springs in his night clothing. His uniform was sent back to him and he continued his journey.

Senator Ransom Dead.

Matthew W. Ransom, United States senator from North Carolina for 23 years, and minister to Mexico for two years, died suddenly of heart failure at his country home near Garysburg. He was seventy-eight years old, his death occurring on the date of his birth.

General Ransom was one of the most popular men in public life in the state. He leaves an estate estimated at $1,000,000.

MISSISSIPPI RAILROADS.

Surveying and Construction Work in Various Localities.

Railroad promoters in Mississippi are tying to figure out the meaning of the movement of the Mobile and Ohio road which now has a party of surveyors running preliminary lines in the vicinity of Gulfport, Pascagouua and Biloxi, and a well grounded suspicion exists that plans are on foot by this system to secure another harbor on the gulf coast before the construction of the Panama canal is concluded. The survey was started at Shubuta several weeks ago, and the surveying party has been moving steadily southward, keeping their plans a profound secret.

Within the next week trains will be running on the new spur line of the Illinois Central from Brookhaven to within four or five miles of Monticello, Lawrence county, the terminus of the line. Construction work is being pushed with all possible rapidity and the company is already handling considerable cotton and lumber over the line.

Construction work has been commenced on the new branch line of the Southern railway from Elizabeth, on the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley road in Washington county, to Camellsville, a town just on the line between Sharkey and Yazoo counties. It is stated that the line will also be constructed into Bolivar county to a small town named Kuhns. The first ten miles of the line is to be completed, according to the terms of the contract, by the 1st of December.

The Yazoo and Mississippi Valley road is preparing to build a new line from Helm and also a branch from Wilcznski northward to tap the line from Rosedale to Boyle at Arnold. Material for the work has been placed on the ground.

Gas If Not Oil.

The New York-Alabama Oil company has placed an order for a new partable well drilling outfit and will within the next thirty days have two outfits at work at the same time in different sections of Madison county. The company has already spent $15,000 in drilling for oil and hasn't found it yet in paying quantities although large amounts of gas have been found. The company will drill several wells for oil and if it is not found in large quantities will pipe gas to Huntsville and engage in that business.

May Destroy Fleet.

It is reported here that the Japanese recently centered their fire from the land positions and from the fleet blockading Port Arthur on the west harbor with the object of destroying the Russian fleet and succeeded in sinking three vessels, names and character unknown.

The failure of the Port Arthur fleet to make a sortie is creating the impression that the Russians intend to destroy their ships just before the fall of the fortress in preference to taking the risk of a sortie.

Medal for Carnegie.

On Andrew Carnegie is soon to be conferred one of the greatest honors in the industrial world, the Bessemer medal, which is given only to those who are pre-eminent in the iron and steel industry.

Established by the great inventor in 1873, the medal has been conferred at stated meetings of the iron and steel institute on men whose inventions have been of a revolutionary character, or whose researches have been considered of the utmost importance.

Postoffice Robbed.

The postoffice at Northport was robbed Sunday night. The burglar entered by prying open the bars to the window. Several dollars worth of stamps and two watches were stolen.

Wages Advanced.

The Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company and the Tutweiler Coal, Iron and Railway company have advanced the wages of the men at work in their mines on the "open shop plan 2 1-2 cents per ton, now paying 47 1-2 cents per ton.

To Resume.

The Gadsden Brick company, which has been idle several months on account of being overstocked with brick, has announced that the plant will resume operations and give employment to about thirty-five people and will be kept in constant operation the entire winter. They have a number of large contracts for brick and also several houses to erect.

Archbishop Leaves Friday.

It is now thought the Archbishop of Canterbury will leave Boston Thursday and sail for London Friday.

Geographers Coming North.

The special train bearing the members of the International Geographical Society, who have been holding their annual conference in the city of Mexico, are en route north. The party numbers 67 men prominent in the scientific world.

Wheat in Mexico.

The wheat crop this year, according to reports from over Mexico, indicates an increase of 5 per cent over that of last year.

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

Louisville & Nashville R. R.

Read Down — CENTRAL TIME.

AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2	No
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7 4
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6 2
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58	....	5 5
7 19	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....	5 5
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42	....	5 4
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5 3
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17	....	5 1
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 11	....	5 1
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5 0
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4 0

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
For rates and further information address

A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

A Great Combination Offe

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democra

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Wely, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the n of the national campaign, and all the news of all the c you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home pape the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.

SHOES that are Reliable.

SHOES made to Wear.

NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Fe

Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Ala

We want your advertisi

Gelder's Restaurant

Good Meals at Reasonable Pric

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Pure Water Prevents Fever

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WA

We guarantee water or no charge m
Estimates given. Address
I. E. SARBER CO

Thorsby, Alabama.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE A FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Bra

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alab

TH

VOL. II.

MATIC RAN WILD IN SHOP

Pursuing Many, Patrick Harrigan Cut His Throat.

ING, HE FOUGHT HARD

Newly Widower, Suddenly Becoming Insane in a Brooklyn, N. Y. Shop, Dashed Through the Building Armed With a Razor—Panic Among Girls as He Slashed at His Neck.

New York City.—Becoming suddenly insane in the brass finishing shop of Pratts & Dillmeier, at 36-40 South First street, Brooklyn, Patrick Harrigan, a widower, sixty years old, after trying with a razor to wound his fellow employes and terrorizing everybody in the building, cut his throat. Notwithstanding the fact that his injuries were fatal, he fought Policeman Fallon, of the Bedford avenue station, like a tiger and cut the policeman's left hand.

Harrigan's wife died a year ago and it is said he never recovered from the blow. He kept house with his sixteen-year-old son. Some time ago he lost his job in a brass finishing plant through a strike, and he has since hung around Pratts & Dillmeier's shop in an effort to get employment. William Dillmeier, a member of the firm, took pity on the man and gave him a job as brass moulder. Harrigan's mind did not appear to be on his work, but Dillmeier said nothing to him. At 7 o'clock in the morning Harrigan reported for work and was at his bench until 10 o'clock.

Then he suddenly screamed, and, drawing a razor, ran at the other workmen, slashing at them with the steel. They outran him and escaped without injury. Schneider Brothers, shoe manufacturers, and J. Albert, a manufacturer of cut glass, are in the same building. Harrigan ran up to Schneider Brothers' place, where forty girls were at work. In their presence he cut his throat. The girls became panic stricken and rushed frantically down the stairs to the street. A number of them fell and were trampled on.

Meanwhile Harrigan had entered Albert's shop and terrified the employes there. All this time he was hacking at his throat. All the people in the building ran into the street and left the madman in complete possession.

Policeman Fallon was attracted by the tumult. Fallon drew his club and entered the building. Harrigan was behind a door and he made a savage attack upon the policeman. Fallon used his club, and although he struck the maniac again and again, the crazy man seemed to be possessed of superhuman strength and succeeded in wounding Fallon.

Harrigan finally broke away from the policeman and ran up an iron stairway. Fallon followed. On the second landing they had another desperate fight and both rolled down the stairs. Harrigan arose and staggered into the yard, where he fell on a pile of ashes. Fallon then disarmed the man and quickly sent for an ambulance to the Eastern District Hospital. Dr. Cameron found Harrigan dying and took him at once to the hospital.

The Rev. Father O'Brien, of Sts. Peter and Paul's Church, was summoned and he administered the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church to Harrigan.

Some of the women who had been chased out of the building were afraid to return to work and went home.

FOUR DAYS IN LOCKED CLOSET.

Woman Who Left Home While Delirious Found in Critical Condition.

New York City.—Locked in a dark closet of a building at 1 Thatford avenue, East New York, Mrs. Ray Singer was found half starved and blue from cold by Mrs. Rachel Levy, a tenant. She had been there four days without food or water.

Mrs. Singer, who has been ill, eluded her nurse and escaped from her home at 40 Thatford avenue, while delirious. Though her absence was discovered in a few minutes, the young woman seemed completely to have vanished. Her husband appealed to the police of the Liberty avenue station, which is only a stone's throw from the house in which she was found, and the police sent out a general alarm for her, while Singer with friends continued the search for her daily without result.

For a few days the tenants of the house at 1 Thatford avenue have heard strange noises in the building, but thought little of it and made no effort to trace them. Finally, however, Mrs. Levy, while passing through the lower hallway, heard scratching and cries coming from the closet, which is rarely used. She was frightened and, running into the street, called several men, who burst open the door.

On the floor they found Mrs. Singer, emaciated and moaning. She was in a state of collapse and a doctor was called.

Russian Troops Withdraw.

The withdrawal of Russian troops from the German frontier has again given rise to reports that Emperor William has guaranteed the security of this part of the empire.

Italian Socialists' Manifesto.

Italian Socialists issued a manifesto setting forth their platform in the campaign. A number of bishops have appealed to the Pope to permit Catholics to vote.

WRECKED

Waterlogged Miles Off

Sailors Build R Then Flash Brought

New York C stunned the ... tastic of the ... were brought liner Ajax he Charleston ... about 3:30 o' improvised ... castle stove ... tention of the ... the Apache ...

The Seguranca ... go down, in ... all by itself, ... waterlogged ... swept away, ... covered that ... board. He ... castle stove ... filled it with ... once in a while ... remove the ... quickly replac ...

It was a ... ran into the ... her master. ... ly that morn ... blowing at a ... board deck ... first. Next ... and with the ... seams forwa ... less than two ... was full of w ...

For four da ... unabating fu ... ness came th ... the water, ... a shred of he ... At this time ... off the South ... tain Morehou ... chance of re ... into the track ...

Accordingly ... mate; Seaman ... don, a negro, ... sail. To do ... staysail boom ... break of the ... made a squ ... mainsail, an ... work what ... within seve ... Then it was ... them.

WEDDED

Magistrate, ... 'Phone to U ... Philadelphi ... ephone was ... Meeleary, ... the wife of F ... of smallpox, ... bedside in ... Seated at th ... almost four ... party, Magis ... required que ... swers from t ... William L ... at the hosp ... trate's 'word ... propped up ... Royer and ... and replied ... young wo ... through the ...

Meaven wi ... and his bride ... smallpox wa ... teen days, i ... constantly ex ... fore entering ... cinated.

TIBET IN

Road Oblite ... Not Re ... Pari-Jong, ... of the British ... two compan ... the Eighth ... Pathans, w ... fortress near ... The colum ... Jong Pass ... snowstorm, ... camp. Two ... The snow ... has been obl ...

RANCHMEN

Seven Hund ... Big Pine, ... here from th ... report a pl ... sheep and ... river and Pi ... Seven hun ... of the Butte ... over a high ...

CUBAN PO

Heavy Sent ...

Havana, ... Santiago Pr ... members of ... Canvassers ... months' im ... recent elect ...

Seve ... Seven live ... ing of a ve ... during a hu ...

Dr. ... Dr. James ... degree from ...

Time Table
In effect August 1, 1904.
ille & Nashville R. R
CENTRAL. TIME.

PM	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2	N
0 3
0	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7
8	Calera	9 25	10 33	6
.	Jemison	8 58	....	5
.	Thorsby	8 51	....	5
.	Lomax	8 42	....	5
3	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5
.	Cooper	8 17	....	5
.	Verbena	8 11	....	5
.	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5
5	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4

eping Cars Dining Cars.
er information address
NSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

t Combination Offe vill furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the
is Globe-Democra
WITH
The Union
FOR
Papers One Year Only $1.
Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-We r more, every Tuesday and Friday.
Politics and has no equal or rival
Modern Newspaper.
the news of the World's Fair, all the n
mpaign, and all the news of all the ea
e Globe-Democrat during the coming y
OW IS THE TIME.
To-Day and get your best home paper
wspaper of the World's Fair City,
Address
nion, Clanton, Ala.

My Specialty..
f Leather.
that are Reliable.
IOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.
Groceries, Flour and Fe
ffs, Tobacco and Snuff.
Department Full and Complete.
J. W. SMITH.
ce Building Clanton, Ala

nt your advertisi

er's Restaurant
cals at Reasonable Pric
110 North 20th Street,
MINGHAM, ALABAMA.

ater Prevents Fever
WELLS FURNISH PURE WA
rantee water or no charge m iven. Address
I. E. SARBER C
, Alabama.

L MERCHANDISE A
FERTILIZERS
FOR SALE.
pecial & Mule Bra
e the Best on Earth'
C. JONES,
- - - Alab

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. II. CLANTON, ALA., OCTOBER 27, 1904. NO. 31.

ATIC RAN WILD IN SHOP

Pursuing Many, Patrick Harrigan Cut His Throat.

NG, HE FOUGHT HARD

dy Widower, Suddenly Becoming sane in a Brooklyn, N. Y. Shop, shed Through the Building Armed ith a Razor—Panic Among Girls as e Slashed at His Neck.

ew York City.—Becoming suddenly ane in the brass finishing shop of ts & Dillmeier, at 36-40 South 1st street, Brooklyn, Patrick Harri-, a widower, sixty years old, after ing with a razor to wound his fel- employes and terrorizing everyy in the building, cut his throat. withstanding the fact that his in- es were fatal, he fought Po- man Fallon, of the Bedford avenue tion, like a tiger and cut the police- 's left hand.

Harrigan's wife died a year ago and e said he never recovered from the . He kept house with his sixteen- r-old son. Some time ago he lost b in a brass finishing plant through rike, and he has since hung around nts & Dillmeier's shop in an effort get employment. William Dill- eier, a member of the firm, took pity the man and gave him a job as ass moulder. Harrigan's mind did t appear to be on his work, but Dill- eier said nothing to him. At 7 clock in the morning Harrigan re- rted for work and was at his bench til 10 o'clock.

Then he suddenly screamed, and, awing a razor, ran at the other work- en, slashing at them with the steel. hey outran him and escaped without jury. Schneider Brothers, shoe anufacturers, and J. Albert, a manu- acturer of cut glass, are in the same uilding. Harrigan ran up to Schnei- er Brothers' place, where forty girls ere at work. In their presence he t his throat. The girls became panic icken and rushed frantically down e stairs to the street. A number of em fell and were trampled on.

Meanwhile Harrigan had entered Al- ert's shop and terrified the employes here. All this time he was hacking t his throat. All the people in the uilding ran into the street and left e madman in complete possession.

Policeman Fallon was attracted by e tumult. Fallon drew his club and tered the building. Harrigan was hind a door and he made a savage tack upon the policeman. Fallon ed his club, and although he struck e maniac again and again, the crazy an seemed to be possessed of super- uman strength and succeeded in ounding Fallon.

Harrigan finally broke away from e policeman and ran up an iron stair- ay. Fallon followed. On the second nding they had another desperate ght and both rolled down the stairs. Harrigan arose and staggered into the rd, where he fell on a pile of ashes. allon then disarmed the man and uickly sent for an ambulance to the astern District Hospital. Dr. Cam- on found Harrigan dying and took m at once to the hospital.

The Rev. Father O'Brien, of Sts. Pe- r and Paul's Church, was summoned nd he administered the last rites of e Roman Catholic Church to Harri- an.

Some of the women who had been hased out of the building were afraid o return to work and went home.

FOUR DAYS IN LOCKED CLOSET.

Woman Who Left Home While Delirious Found in Critical Condition.

New York City.—Locked in a dark loset of a building at 1 Thatford avenue, East New York, Mrs. Ray Singer as found half starved and blue from old by Mrs. Rachel Levy, a tenant. he had been there four days without ood or water.

Mrs. Singer, who has been ill, eluded er nurse and escaped from her home t 40 Thatford avenue, while delirious. hough her absence was discovered in a few minutes, the young woman emed completely to have vanished. er husband appealed to the police of he Liberty avenue station, which is nly a stone's throw from the house in hich she was found, and the police ent out a general alarm for her, while inger with friends continued the earch for her daily without result.

For a few days the tenants of the ouse at 1 Thatford avenue have heard trange noises in the building, but thought little of it and made no effort o trace them. Finally, however, Mrs. evy, while passing through the lower allway, heard scratching and cries oming from the closet, which is rarely sed. She was frightened and, running into the street, called several men, who burst open the door.

On the floor they found Mrs. Singer, maciated and moaning. She was in a tate of collapse and a doctor was alled.

Russian Troops Withdraw.

The withdrawal of Russian troops rom the German frontier has again iven rise to reports that Emperor William has guaranteed the security of this part of the empire.

Italian Socialists' Manifesto.

Italian Socialists issued a manifesto etting forth their platform in the campaign. A number of bishops have appealed to the Pope to permit Catholics to vote.

WRECKED SHIP IS SAVED

Waterlogged Syanara Worked 180 Miles Off Carolinas—Men Saved.

Sailors Build Fire of Wood and Fat and Then Flash a Light by Raising Covers—Brought to New York by Clyde Liner.

New York City.—Five men, who constituted the crew of the British three-masted schooner Syanara, of Barbados, who for seven days battled the Atlantic off the coast of South Carolina, were brought to this port by the Clyde liner Apache from Jacksonville and Charleston. The men were rescued about 3.30 o'clock in the morning, an improvised flarelight from the forecastle stove having attracted the attention of the officer on the bridge of the Apache.

The Syanara's flarelight bids fair to go down in marine history in a class all by itself. When the vessel became waterlogged and her rigging had been swept away, Captain Morehouse discovered that he had no flarelights on board. He accordingly had the forecastle stove removed to the deck and filled it with grease and wood. Every once in a while one of the crew would remove the lid of the stove and then quickly replace it.

It was a week ago that the Syanara ran into the gale that was to prove her master. The wind freshened early that morning, and by night was blowing at a hurricane rate. The starboard deck load stanchions gave way first. Next the port stanchions went, and with them the deck load. The seams forward then opened, and in less than two hours the Syanara's hold was full of water.

For four days the storm raged with unabating fury, and then when darkness came the Syanara was level with the water, her decks awash, and not a shred of her sails remained in place. At this time the craft was 250 miles off the South Carolina coast, and Captain Morehouse realized that his only chance of rescue lay in getting back into the track of the coastwise trade.

Accordingly, George Rudolph, the mate; Seaman Nyberg and Jack London, a negro, set to work to rig a jury sail. To do this they took the forestaysail boom and lashed it to the break of the forecastle. Then they made a square sail of part of the mainsail, and with this managed to work what remained of the vessel to within seventy miles of the coast. Then it was that the Apache found them.

WEDDED IN SMALLPOX WARD.

Magistrate, Four Miles Away, Used 'Phone to Unite Patient and Fiancee.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A marriage by telephone was performed by Magistrate Mecleary. Mrs. Eva Lyons became the wife of Frederick Mehren, a victim of smallpox, standing at the man's bedside in the Municipal Hospital. Seated at the telephone in his office, almost four miles from the wedding party, Magistrate Mecleary asked the required questions and heard the answers from the sick room.

William I. Morgan, superintendent at the hospital, repeated the Magistrate's words, and the sick man, propped up in bed and watched by Dr. Royer and a nurse, listened intently and replied in a feeble voice. The young woman, however, talked through the telephone directly.

Meuren was in a critical condition, and his bride, once having entered the smallpox ward must remain there fourteen days, in which time she will be constantly exposed to the disease. Before entering the hospital she was vaccinated.

TIBET INVADERS SNOWBOUND.

Road Obliterated and Expedition May Not Reach Home This Year.

Pari-Jong, Tibet.—The headquarters of the British Tibet force, consisting of two companies of mounted infantry, the Eighth Gurkhas, and the Fortieth Pathans, was snowbound at Parl (a fortress near Boutan).

The column marched through Pari-Jong Pass in the midst of a blinding snowstorm, during which it went into camp. Two men died during the night.

The snow was drifting and the road has been obliterated.

RANCHMEN IN PITCHED BATTLE

Seven Hundred Sheep Driven Over a Cliff and Killed.

Big Pine, Wyo.—Ranchers arriving here from the vicinity of Gray's River report a pitched battle between the sheep and cattle forces between the river and Piney Creek.

Seven hundred sheep, the property of the Butterfield ranch, were driven over a high cliff and killed.

CUBAN POLITICIANS TO PRISON.

Heavy Sentence For Frauds in Santiago Province.

Havana, Cuba.—The Audiencia, of Santiago Province, has condemned the members of the Provincial Board of Canvassers to fourteen years and eight months' imprisonment for fraud in the recent elections.

Seven Lives Lost at Sea.

Seven lives were lost by the foundering of a vessel off the Florida coast during a hurricane.

Dr. Bryce is Honored.

Dr. James Bryce received the LL.D. degree from Columbia.

WEINSEIMER CONVICTED

Ex-President of Building Trades Alliance Guilty of Extortion.

END OF AN IMPORTANT TRIAL

Jury Was Out Over Six Hours When the Verdict Was Finally Rendered—Prisoner's Wife in Court at the Time—Weinseimer Appeared to Weaken Physically at the End.

New York City.—The jury which had tried Philip Weinseimer, ex-President of the Building Trades Alliance, on the charge of extorting $2700 from George T. Essig, a plumbing contractor, on the Chatsworth apartment house, at Seventy-second street and Riverside Drive, rendered a verdict of guilty at 11.59 at night, after being out six hours and a quarter. Weinseimer was remanded to the Tombs until sentence will be pronounced.

When the jury came in Weinseimer stood outside the railing. Judge Newburger asked the foreman if a verdict had been agreed upon. Weinseimer was half smiling at this time, but the smile left his face as the foreman announced that a verdict had been reached, and then replied to a second question:

"Guilty, as charged in the indictment."

Weinseimer trembled when the words were pronounced, and grasped the railing as if to steady himself. He gave a quick glance at the jury and then at his counsel. The jury was then polled and discharged. Weinseimer's pedigree was next taken. He answered the questions in tones so low as to be almost inaudible, and the clerk had to bend his head to hear them.

The wait during the evening was one of anxiety for both counsel for the defense and Assistant District Attorney Rand. When the jury desired supper at 6.30, and afterward spent so long a time without coming to a decision, counsel for the defense were jubilant. They sent for Weinseimer about 10 o'clock, and he was sitting in the rear of the courtroom when the jury filed in with the verdict. Mrs. Weinseimer was in court during the evening.

Only one ballot was taken by the jury previous to supper. The jury was at supper nearly two hours, and up to after 11 o'clock only one other ballot had been taken. A majority were always for conviction, it is said, the jury standing nine to three until the last ballot, when the three were won over to a conviction.

In summing up, Mr. Raines, for the defense, declared that the charge against Weinseimer had been fostered by Charles L. Eidlitz, President of the Building Trades Employers' Association, in conjunction with George Johnson and other members of the Johnson-Kahn Company, building contractors, who put up the Chatsworth. Because of this fact Mr. Raines declared the charges had been tainted when they were presented to the District Attorney's office.

Mr. Rand followed Mr. Raines and denied the story of the alleged plot against Weinseimer, declaring that the employers had acted like any other honest men who had become sick and tired of the way in which Weinseimer had been grafting on both capital and labor.

Judge Newburger took only a few minutes in charging the jury. He said that no overt act need be committed, or any particular form of words used to inspire fear, according to the statute. The jury must determine from the evidence, he said, whether any money had been paid, but it was immaterial where Essig obtained the money he alleged he paid to Weinseimer.

RUSSIA BUYING RAIDERS.

Reported to Have Secured Several South American Warships.

London, England.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Telegraph revives in a new form the story that Russia is obtaining South American warships. He says that judging from the status of the officials who affirm the statement it must be true.

It is to the effect that Russia has induced three of the South American republics to depart from strict neutrality and to sell warships, which will be used to prey on American and British trade with Japan.

Chile and Argentina have each sold three cruisers and Brazil one. The financial arrangements connected with the purchases were made through banks in Berlin and other capitals where Russia keeps gold deposits. The actual payments are to be made in London to a citizen of a neutral State.

TO RAISE NEW ARMY.

Rome Hears That the Czar Will Send 600,000 More Men.

Rome, Italy.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Giornale di Roma says that, after a consultation between the Czar and General Gripenberg, it was decided to mobilize 600,000 more troops, and to abandon Manchuria for the present.

Sakharoff Takes Village.

General Sakharoff sent a dispatch telling of the capture of a village east of Shakhe, and adding that the Japanese were concentrating against the Russian centre.

YOUNG MOTHER IS SLAIN

Shot by Assailant of Her Honor After Desperate Struggle.

Mrs. Frank Rasinger, of Shiloh, N. J., Found Dead by Her Young Husband With Their Baby.

Bridgeton, N. J.—With her baby, nine months old, nestling on her breast, Mrs. Frank Rasinger, twenty-four years old, was found dead in her home in Shiloh, near here, by her husband. A charge of heavy bird shot had been fired at a range of a few feet into her left side, just below the heart. Death had been instantaneous, a circular wound two inches in diameter reaching nearly through the body.

A posse of farmers began scouring the country for the murderer, their wrath increased by the emphatic statement of Rasinger that his wife was attacked before she was killed. There was every indication of a desperate struggle in the house, and it is thought that after the young mother had been overpowered she was murdered to keep her from making known the identity of her assailant. The shot was fired from Rasinger's double barreled gun, which had been standing in a corner of the kitchen, each barrel containing a charge of No. 4 shot.

Rasinger left his wife at the house with their baby at 1 p. m. She was ironing in the kitchen, but walked a short distance from the house with him, and, kissing him good-bye, returned to her work. He went to a remote part of his farm to examine some cattle and was returning when he heard the report of a shot in the direction of the house. He has told the police he thought the sound was that of a door banging. When he entered the kitchen he found his wife dead on the floor, her head close to his feet. Apparently she had been shot down when trying to flee into the open. The baby had its arms around her neck and was crying piteously. It had upset its cradle and crawled across the floor. Its hands were stained by its mother's blood and the front of its little white frock was crimson.

Rasinger was so overcome by the discovery that he delayed in looking for the murderer. When he did give the alarm no sign of the mysterious criminal was to be found. Escape from the farmstead was easy, as big areas of the surrounding country are covered thickly with timber. As soon as the news of the murder had spread through the little community the posse was organized and a thorough search begun. All towns through which the murderer might pass were informed of the crime and close watch was maintained at all these points. Rasinger went with the posse.

Mrs. Rasinger was a daughter of Ananias Wentzell, of Seeley. She was married about two years ago and had been happy.

KILLED BY MEXICAN BANDITS.

Soldiers Battle With Brigands Near Mexico City.

Mexico City, Mexico.—Three killed and fifteen more or less seriously wounded was the result of an outrage by brigands and a subsequent battle between them and a party of soldiers near here.

Crazed by drink, the three bandits, Flores, Saledo and Herrera, went to the residence of Vincento Godinez, at Santa Julia, a northern suburb of this city, and called for Godinez. When he came out, accompanied by Laurino Frias, a servant, the bandits opened fire upon them. Frias was instantly killed and Godinez badly wounded.

When news of the tragedy reached the authorities of the city, twelve rurales were at once dispatched to a plantation, whither it was learned the desperadoes had fled. A pitched battle ensued, in which nearly every soldier in the squadron was wounded and two were killed.

SENATOR ASKED TO RESIGN.

Arkansas Official Accused of Immorality Denounced by Citizens.

Little Rock, Ark.—A mass meeting of citizens of Perry County was held at Perryville to take action against State Senator Albert W. Rison, against whom charges have been preferred by his older brother, R. E. Rison. A committee reported, stating that the charges have been fully investigated and found to be true.

With the evidence offered was a copy of the divorce complaint of R. E. Rison against his wife. A resolution was unanimously adopted requesting Senator Rison to resign his seat in the State Senate, and if he refuses to do so, a committee was appointed to prefer charges against him and endeavor to have the State Senate expel him. The Senator says he will not resign.

SENATOR PROCTOR RE-ELECTED

Democrats in Vermont House Voted For John H. Senter.

Montpelier, Vt. — Senator Redfield Proctor was re-elected to the United States Senate by the Vermont Legislature. The election will be officially confirmed when the two branches meet in joint session.

In the upper branch of the Legislature every vote cast was for Senator Proctor, but in the House the Democrats supported their candidate, John H. Senter, of this city. Of the 236 votes cast, 205 were for Senator Proctor and 31 for Mr. Senter.

RUSSIA'S NEW REFORMS

Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky, New Minister of Interior, Grants Privileges.

OBSOLETE LAWS NOW TO BE USED

Students of Dorpat University to Resume Wearing Caps and Gowns—Delegates of Zemstvos Peasants to Meet to Discuss New Laws and Regulations For Their Own Government.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky, following out the promises he made upon assuming the Ministry of the Interior regarding the imperial manifesto of 1903, has invited all classes, and especially the zemstvos and peasants, to choose representatives to sit with the committee which is considering revision of the peasant laws.

The manifesto contemplated the cooperation of all classes, including the zemstvos, in this important work, one of the purposes of which is to secure additional privileges for the peasants, especially with the view to giving them an opportunity of divorcing themselves from the village communes.

M. Plehve treated this portion of the manifesto as a dead letter, imposing the duty of choosing representatives upon the provincial governors, who were practically his own appointees or at least always under his immediate control. Over eighty volumes represent the material recommendations of the local governments on this subject.

Permission has been accorded to the students at Dorpat (Livonia) University to resume wearing caps of the colors which were forbidden to such corporations under Alexander III., in pursuance of the policy of the Russification of the Baltic provinces. This step is considered to constitute another evidence of the conciliatory policy of the whole Government which has marked the inauguration of the regime of Prince Sviatpolk-Mirsky, Minister of the Interior. Dispatches from Dorpat say the announcement was greeted with the greatest rejoicing among the students. They petitioned the university to be allowed to organize a torchlight procession in honor of M. Glazon, the Minister of Education, but on account of the war the regents overruled them.

FORTY CARS ARE SMASHED.

One Man Dead, Several Are Hurt in Wreck at Whitehouse, N. J.

Whitehouse, N. J.—Both tracks of the New Jersey Central Railroad were torn up, forty coal, passenger and freight cars were smashed to splinters, and one man was killed in a wreck here.

The evening eastbound combination milk and passenger train had stopped near the station to take on the Pottersville and New Germantown milk cars. The engine left the main track to go on a siding for them. While it was there a coal train came down the grade from Pickels Mountain at fifty miles an hours and crashed into the passenger cars that had been left on the main eastbound track. The passenger cars were hurled over on the engine and the milk cars in the siding. The steel cars of the coal train were torn to pieces and piled high in the air. Both engines were completely shattered.

Levi Abel, fireman of the passenger train, was killed instantly. Fisher, the engineer of the same train, saved himself from serious injury by jumping. His leg was torn. Moser, fireman of the coaler, was severely hurt.

The engineer of the coal train says some one turned an angle cock on one of the cars of his train, which broke the air so the brakes would have no effect. The block signals were against him, but he could not stop his train. People in the rear of the passenger cars heard the coal train coming and jumped off.

WHIPPED AND BRANDED WIFE.

Elmira Man Confesses Brutal Assault —Woman Not Likely to Live.

Elmira, N. Y.—Joseph G. Riley, a father, was arrested charged with murderously assaulting his wife at their home in this city.

In his cell Riley said he had a dispute with his wife over money matters. He first attacked her with his fists, knocking her down. Afterward he whipped her with the butt end of a heavy whip into insensibility. He then thrust a hot iron into her mouth, burning away part of her tongue. Riley also applied the iron hot to her body and kicked the unconscious woman. He then left the house.

The couple have been married ten years.

15 EARTHQUAKES SINCE APRIL.

Seismograph at Johns Hopkins Records That Number of Disturbances.

Baltimore, Md.—Dr. H. F. Reid, who has charge of the seismograph at the Johns Hopkins University, developed the films and found that it had recorded fifteen earthquakes since April last. Not only is this the largest number recorded during a like period, but the machine also showed the longest shock ever recorded.

This occurred on August 27, when an earthquake began at 4 p. m. and lasted until 7.30 p. m. The shock was so great that it moved the beam that supports the registering needle over sixteen millimeters. The work just completed involved the developing of 1000 feet of sensitive paper.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St., Opposite Court House,
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins,
Physician and Surgeon,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Office with Hopkins Drug Co.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 12 a. m.
1 to 5 p. m. CLANTON

Notice! Notice!

If you want good Bargains and good articles in Dry Goods, Groceries & Hamilton-Brown, Shoes, we have them for you

Jackson & Robinson
Lomax, Ala.

Dr. A. Conan Doyle, the author, is a stalwart cricketer, and, they say, can provide as exciting a time with

Going to Plant

Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a postal for my new manual "How to Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.

P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

PURE GOODS
The following
SPECIAL BRANDS
always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.

Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

Trusting in God.

I know not what the future hath
Of marvel or surprise
Assured alone that life and death
His mercy underlies.

And so beside the silent sea
I wait the muffled oar;
No harm from Him can come to me
On ocean or on shore.

I know not where His islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care.

And Thou, O Lord, by whom are seen
Thy creatures as they be,
Forgive me if too close I lean
My human heart on Thee.
—John Greenleaf Whittier.

A FOOL and his MONEY

BY EDNA MANNERS

The haze of the semi-tropics was everywhere, blending the gorgeous tints of hills and valleys in its elusive veil. There were tears in the Mexican's eyes as he sang to his tinkling guitar, and his notes were laden with grief. He looked up from beneath his sombrero, his black eyes showing the clear white beneath.

"What's the matter?" came in a foreign voice, and he glanced up to see the American miner looking down on him. There was something unpleasant in the American's eye that held people aloof and made them speak with restraint when he was near. Raphael stopped playing, covered his face with his hands and sobbed aloud.

"Buck up, friend," the American smiled; then added in Spanish, "What's wrong, anyhow." Raphael grew calmer, looking toward the humble home where his little brothers and sisters were at play.

"Oh, senor," he cried in confiding dejection, 'tis the beautiful Senorita Anita. Senor, they have shut her up and I shall never see her any more. I die of love of her."

"No, you don't," muttered the American, turning away to hide a cynical gleam. The dam of Raphael's grief was loosened, and the contents of his soul poured into listening ears. And this was the tale he told: He loved the Senorita Anita—a bewitching damsel far above him—was dying of love for her. Many times they had met on the plaza, and she had glanced shyly from beneath her mantilla and smiled at him—yes, he could swear she smiled. She was beautiful and good as the Holy Mother. He had had no glimpse of her since, except from behind the bars of her window. He could neither eat nor sleep.

The American turned away, while his lips curled unpleasantly. Raphael amused him. He was an exceptional Spaniard. He had scraped together a kind of education for himself, and was something of a genius in music. Under more favorable conditions he might have made a way for himself in the world.

The cynicism faded from the American's eye as he asked where the senorita lived and who her family were.

* * * * * * *

Anita lay asleep. The moonlight came through the roses at the window and all was still. Suddenly, through the darkness came a single sweet note. The girl sat up to listen. She pushed back her hair and listened again. Her eyes shone, her cheeks flushed and her little heart beat fast. She stole to the window, holding her mantilla close about her chin. Beneath the orange tree stood a man. Her heart fluttered faster, and the hot southern passion shone in her eyes. It was the rich Senor Americano.

"Senorita."

This was going beyond the bounds

Sang to his tinkling guitar.

of the serenading lover, but Anita leaned out and waited.

"Senorita."

"Senor, I am here," whispered the girl, and then drew back coyly.

"Fair one, listen." Then he poured into her ears a tale of love.

'One," said he, 'loves the senorita—loves thee unto death—but he cannot marry thee in this country. Will you leave sunny Mexico and go to America with your lover—as his wife?"

She drew back and shivered a little, but the dimples played in her cheeks. Anita must love and be loved, and would make a good, true little wife for any man who would only love her enough.

"Senor," she leaned far out into the silver night, pulled a rose and threw it down to him. "Senor, when?"

He picked up the flower, kissed it and pressed it to his heart. He was so coldly, artificially Mexican. It frightened and attracted her.

"Now," he answered. "Now, Anita; will you come with me now?"

The realization came to her like a shock. Leave her father and mother? Go with this man? To America. Love and romance were her guiding stars. —poor little soul. Yes, she would go.

Stole to the window.

"In two minutes, senor," she whispered.

A victoria sped away from the house.

"Senorita," that was the first word her strange lover had spoken. He now leaned forward in the darkness. "Senorita, are you afraid?"

His gaze was cold and steady.

"No—o—o, senor. But why are you so—so still? You do not love me?"

Her voice shook.

"Senorita, I have loved many beautiful ladies. I am—bah!"—he seemed to be talking to himself—"tired of it all."

"Tired of love." A cold hand knocked at the door of her heart. The carriage was on a lonely, white country road now.

"Senorita, I cannot—I—er—well, you see, I cannot marry you—I—"

"Holy mother!" the girl cried, crossing herself and feeling for her rosary. "You cannot marry me? Then why did you bring me here?"

"Wait, senorita; do you love me?"

She was dazed by the sudden, practical question; then she shuddered and answered: "No, I hate you—I hate you, senor. Oh, take me back to my mother—take me home."

"Have you ever loved any man? Ever truly loved?" he asked without heeding her.

In her heart arose the vision of a pair of faithful, gentle eyes that had sought hers on the plaza, and a form that bent over the guitar at twilight. She burst into tears. "Oh, yes," she moaned. "Raphael, dear Raphael!"

The carriage stopped. The lover climbed out, then leaning on the window ledge, he whispered: "If you are wise, keep still."

And she obeyed. The horse stirred, the coachman dozed, and the time grew long. Then the night quiet was broken by the twangy voice of the American, mingled with the soft tones of her native tongue. The carriage door opened and there before her stood Raphael.

"No," said the American," if you want to go home I'll take you back. If you want to go with your lover, go."

For answer she threw herself into Raphael's arms, and caste and propriety were forgotten in the bliss of a first kiss of love gratified.

"Here's a purse for you and your girl, Raphael. Hope you'll like married life."

He told the driver to drive to the station with the pair, and stood watching them disappear down the white road. Then he took out a cigar, bit off the end and laughed as he said aloud: "I always thought Miles Standish was a fool. Half my mine gone, too. 'The fool and his money are soon parted.' Well, it's the only fun I'll ever get out of it."

Then he went down the road toward the city alone.—San Francisco Call.

HANKS USED SEA WATER.

Very Little Use to Deny the Milk Was Diluted.

Julius Kruttschmitt of San Francisco, the general manager of the Southern Pacific Railroad, recently gave out the largest single order for steel rails that the business world has ever known.

A reporter, in discussing this order with Mr. Kruttschmitt, called it a "daring one."

"No," said the railroad magnate, smiling, "there was nothing daring about it. Daring things are those that have in them something risky, something insecure. For instance, you might term 'daring' the well-known action of Hanks, the milkman, in the millionaire's house."

"Hanks, the milkman?' 'said the reporter, puzzled.

"Yes, Hanks, the milkman. He, one morning, forgot to water his milk. In the hall of his best customer he remembered this omission. A huge tub of fine, clear water stood on the floor by his side. There was no one to spy on him, and thrice, before the maid brought up the jugs, Hanks diluted his milk with a large measure filled from the tub. Then he served the young woman calmly and went on.

"As he was bellowing down the next area the first customer's footman beckoned to him. He returned, and was ushered into the presence of the customer himself, a millionaire.

"'Hanks,' said the gentleman, 'I prefer hereafter to water my own milk.'

"Well, sir," said Hanks, "it's useless to deny the thing, for I suppose you were watching me while——'

"'No,' said the millionaire. 'No one was watching you. But the fact is, Hanks, the children are taking medicinal baths, and the tub in the hall was full of sea water.'"

A Decomposer.

In a beer garden at one of our popular seaside resorts an Irishman sat at a table with a mug of beer at his elbow. Alongside of him stood a large, good-natured looking German. The orchestra began the "Coronation March" from "The Prophet." The Teuton's face beamed all over with a smile of pleasure, and by way of making himself agreeable and imparting information to his neighbor he remarked, with a wave of his hand, in the direction of the music:

"Ach, dot was Meyerbeer."

The Celt, whose knowledge of composers was limited, mistook the gesture and made a hasty grab for his beverage, exclaiming at the same time:

"Yez lie, yez damned Dutchman, that's my beer."—Lippincott's.

Output of Petroleum.

It is not yet half a century since Col. Drake discovered petroleum on the waters of Oil Creek, near Titusville, Pa. The total production of crude petroleum from 1859 to 1902—forty-three years—has been no less than 1,165,280,727 barrels. Of this output Pennsylvania and New York contributed 53.9 per cent; Ohio, 24.3 cent; West Virginia, 11.3 per cent; Indiana, 39 per cent; California, 3.6 per cent; Texas, 2.1 per cent, leaving .9 per cent to be supplied by Kansas, Colorado, Louisiana, Illinois, Missouri, Indian Territory, Wyoming, Michigan and Oklahoma.

Cricketer Lives 93 Years.

England's oldest cricketer, Mr. Herbert Jenner-Fust, is dead at the age of 93 years. He played for Eton eighty-two years ago, and for Cambridge university from 1825 to 1827, being captain in the last year. At the of 93 he bowled for his village eleven and batted for eleven runs. He practiced in Doctors commons till the court was abolished, and then lived as a country 'squire.

Importance.

The people do not turn to gaze
When he goes by;
He toils denied the joy of praise,
No banners fly
In token of his worth; his name
The busy world has never learned;
If Death should come to-night to crouch
Relentlessly beside his couch
The world would pass on unconcerned.

Yet, when his common task is done,
Beside his gate
There stands an eager little one
With arms that wait
To clasp themselves around his neck,
With pure lips that await his kiss,
And though his work may never bring Him fame or wealth, what greater thing
May any man achieve than this?
—S. E. Kiser.

Singer Goes Into Politics.

Tamagno, the Italian operatic tenor, whose imposing physique and tremendous high C will be remembered by many Americans, is a candidate for the Italian parliament. He knows nothing of politics, but will go on the stump as a singer, and in this way hopes to capture enough votes to insure his return.

Panama Company Troubles.

The Panama company is not yet free of its embarrassments in the liquidation of its old convention with the Colombian government. The French treasury has now put forward a claim for the payment of a sum of $2,720,000 for registration dues on the deeds of the original concession, and the renewal of the same.

Land at the North Pole.

From the known set of the currents in the Arctic ocean and from observations of the tides, R. A. Harris concludes that there may be a tract of land near the North Pole, extending from near the northwest corner of Banks Land or from Prince Patrick island to a point north of New Siberia.

Queen Favors Irish Industry.

Queen Alexandra has given orders that all her linen and tweed gowns for Cowes week should be of Irish manufacture.

SELECTING HER BURIAL SPOT

Pleasing Occupation Which Solaced Woman Traveler.

On the train to Boston was a woman who sat with pencil and paper handy with which she frequently recorded her observations. Usually these notations took the form of arithmetical computations.

"There's another one," said the woman, in somber tones. "Dear, oh, dear, isn't it awful? That makes ten of them since we left New York."

Finally the man who occupied the seat immediately in front of the painstaking statistician embraced a favorable opportunity and asked her husband what in the world she was counting, anyhow.

"Cemeteries," said the partner of the woman's joys. "She always does it whenever we go any place. She has been at it ever since we left Kansas day before yesterday. That last graveyard we passed was No. 261. Whenever we happen to get a particularly good view of the lay of the land as we whiz through she picks out the section she would like to be buried in."

"Good heavens!" said the man in the front seat. "That must be a nice, enlivening pastime for you."

Then, as soon as he could, he moved to another seat. The husband of the mortuary compiler looked as if he would like to move, too, but he could not. He had to stay right where he was and keep a sharp lookout for more cemeteries.

Some Very Odd Plants.

There are few plants that have not been utilized in one way or another by mankind for food, paper, drugs, or in other ways. Among many not so well known may be mentioned the Japanese wax tree, bearing bunches of fruit growing like grapes which contain a species of wax used in making candles. Another tree, found in the Pacific islands and known as the candle nut, yields a large quantity of oil, while the kernels are strung together on a stick and lighted as a candle. The fruit of the candle tree is between three and four feet in length and about an inch in diameter, and of a yellowish color. As they are seen hanging from the tree they present the appearance of a number of wax candles. The telegraph plant, which grows in India, is a slender, erect shrub, so called because of some resemblance to signals in the motion of its trifoliate leaves—the two side ones rising and falling alternately for a time, and then resting. Sometimes many of the leaves are in motion, and sometimes only a few, the greatest activity being in the early morning, and not depending on the wind.—Atlanta Constitution.

Absence.

I saw him once, once only; years have sped,
But still his image dwells within my heart.
So handsome then I thought him, so well bred,
It seemed a grief to me that we should part.
He wore his well-cut garments with an air
That would have well become a royal prince.
He left me, though, and filled me with despair,
I haven't seen him since.

His smile was like a ray of sunshine bright;
It warmed my heart when he first smiled on me.
His hearty greeting gave me much delight;
His hand-clasp was as warm as it could be.
No flabby pressure of the fingers, but
A grip so hard and strong it made me wince.
I look on this as fate's unkindest cut;
I haven't seen him since.

I hear his voice, so musical and low,
So soft and so persuasive that I thrill
At the remembrance. I should not, I know,
Have given up my fifty-dollar bill,
But at the time full little did I reck.
So much embarrassment did he evince,
I cashed that fascinating stranger's check,
I haven't seen him since.

"Poor White Trash."

Stanford White, the architect, has a fad for collecting statuary which often affords his friends a chance to air their wit. He has set so many sculptured figures on his lawn—Gramercy park and Lexington avenue—that he has had to put some later acquisitions across the street on the grass plot of his friend, H. W. Poor, the banker.

Oliver Herford, whose caustic wit does not all go into his books, passed these decorated lots with a friend from New Orleans.

"What's all that?" asked the stranger.

"Oh, just some Poor White trash," answered Herford.—New York Times.

Remembers Seeing Napoleon.

One of the most interesting links between the present and the past is a man who can remember seeing Napoleon cross the Alps. His name is Ignace Botta and he is 105 years old. His health is good and his memory is perfect, though he has led a hard life, sleeping in the open and living on bread and fruit. He may be seen every day in the streets of Cannes, selling brooms which he makes himself, and he has never begged and never come into conflict with the police. Some years ago he was persuaded to enter an asylum for old men, but he could not stand the confinement.

"Big Bill" Devery's Saloon.

"Big Bill" Devery, formerly chief of police in New York, is now a business rival of Bishop Potter. He has opened a saloon and will sell whisky at "a dime a throw—just the same as the bish," he explains. Mr. Devery even goes the length of saying that when a man needs a drink real badly he can have it on credit. His refectory is to be at Rockaway Beach and is to be known as "The Pump."

Homesick for Old Halsted

A Ballad of Bubbly Creek.

All around the world we've wandered,
ranged through every foreign land,
Heard the Bow Bells chime in London,
sauntered through the roaring Strand.
We have sailed to San Francisco, where they hiked in "forty-nine"
And have roamed through old Calcutta where the greasy fakers whine.

Up and down big British India, through Rangoon and Mandalay,
Have we sashayed like a gypsy, always thirsting for the fray;
In a cattle ship we clustered when our currency ran shy;
And we hid us in the steerage from the captain's furtive eye.

Always roaming like Ulysses with a fierce and hungry soul,
Through the East we sashayed blithely, north and south from pole to pole;
But the bells of old Chicago lured us from across the foam,
Oh, the sunny side of State street, and the haunting spell of home!

Here the keen breeze off the prairie fans your hot and fevered brain,
And the witchery of the city soothes your heartache and your pain;
Lonely exiles have we wandered over treacherous, alien foam,
Always yearning for Chicago and our friends and girls at home.

No matter where you wander, you
not escape her spell,
You'll be homesick for the city
ocean claims sea shell
Bubbly Creek looms on your vision
can smell it for a mile
And the fragrance of the stock
knocks you dizzy for awhile.

And the twenty-storied buildings
scrape the sapphire sky,
And the saucy tug boats darting
skimming swallows fly;
And the high bridge spans the river
ing up its haughty head.
And the foaming current soaring its cargo of the dead.

Bubbly Creek, what memories
round thy hollowed fragrant Bubbly Creek is bright emblazoned
the starry scroll of Fame.
Bubbly Creek, where oft I wandered
a restless barefoot boy
Swimming in the murky waters, oh,
fierce and soothing joy!

Take me back to old Chicago far
the sundering spray.
Harbor lights of home are gleaming
our soft-eyed sweethearts stay
I am sick of foreign places,
lures me to her side.
Take me back to Old Chicago far
the Great Divide!

JAMES E. KINSELLA,
Registry Division, Chicago Postoffice.

Passing of Old Hotel

The Girard hotel of Brownsville, the oldest hotel in the United States west of the Allegheny mountains, and which has been in continuous service furnishing entertainment for man and beast for over 100 years, was sold by the sheriff of Fayette county recently to satisfy a mortgage.

While not the first hotel built this side of the Alleghenies, the Girard is without doubt the oldest in point of service. It was built in 1800, and just four years ago this summer celebrated the centennial of its establishment. In the more than a century that has passed since it was first erected the hotel has been in constant service. It has changed hands frequently, but has always been a favorite place for travelers to stop.

In the old days of the National Pike it was a famous hostelry. Brownsville was then the head of navigation on the Monongahela river. The only route from Washington and Baltimore to all the vast domain that lies west of the Monongahela river valley was through Brownsville. At least that was the direct road, and one of the most traveled. Governors, senators, congressmen and travelers of every kind and description journeyed this way and made the old Girard house their stopping place. Andrew Jackson was a guest there. So was Henry Clay. Gen. Lafayette was entertained at the Girard, and a host of others whose names are familiar in American history. Jackson was a frequent guest at the house, and always insisted on having the best Monongahela rye whisky the valley could produce. It is related of him that on one of his trips over the pike he suffered a sprained ankle and put up at the Girard for repairs. The Brownsville physician called to attend him insisted on took to bathe the injured ankle in whisky, to which "Old Hickory" vigorously objected. Although the medical man had his way, the hero of New Orleans insisted that the use of the remedy internally would do more good and save a sacrilege.

Of late years the management of the old house has not been so successful, and it may soon make way for modern improvements. — Pittsburg Dispatch.

House Built in Waterfall

In the deep shade of the wooded cliffs beneath the Pizzo di Torno, lies a villa. This is the Villa Pliniana, built in 1570 by the Count Anguissola of Placenza, and now the property of the Trotti family of Milan.

The place takes its name from an intermittent spring in the court, which is supposed to be the one described by Pliny in one of his letters, and it is further celebrated as being the coolest villa on Como.

It lies on a small bay on the east side of the lake, and faces due north, so that, while the villas of Cernobbio are bathed in sunlight, a deep green shade envelops it.

The house stands on a narrow ledge, its foundations projecting into the lake, and its back built against the almost vertical wooded cliff, which protects it from the southern sun.

Down this cliff pours a foaming mountain torrent from the Val di Calore, just beneath the peak of Torno, and this torrent the architect of the Villa Pliniana has captured in its descent to the lake and carried through the central apartment of the villa.

The effect produced is unlike anything else, even in the wonderful Italian gardens. The two wings of the house, a plain and somewhat melancholy looking structure, are joined by an open arcaded room, against the back wall of which the torrent comes down, over stone work tremulous with moss and ferns, gushing out again beneath the balustrade of the loggia, where it makes a great semi-circle of glittering whiteness in the dark green waters of the lake.

The old house is saturated with the freshness and drenched with the falling spray of the caged torrent. The bare vaulted rooms reverberate with it, the stone floors are green with the dampness, the air quivers with its incessant rush.

The contrast of this dusky dripping loggia, on its perpetually shaded side with the blazing blue waters of the lake and their sun-steeped western shores, is one of the most wonderful effects in sensation that the Italian villa art has ever devised.—Century.

Must Have Nimble Heels

That royal women are so passionately fond of dancing is not to be wondered at, since it is only within a comparatively recent period that the rigorous etiquette by which they have been surrounded has been modified to the point where it is permissible, in a game of tennis or golf, or any game whatever, for an opponent of less exalted rank to play his or her best game without infraction of the rule that not even by accident should the royal player be defeated.

Golf, tennis and such games lost interest with those who were obliged to play under these conditions, and it was only natural that queens and princesses regarded the ball room as the sole place where they might indulge in exercise on an equal footing with a partner instead of an opponent.

Queen Wilhelmina of Holland prefers the waltz. Queen Alexandra, although 60, still waltzes with as much pleasure as in the days of her youth. Her sister, the Empress Marie of Russia, despite her widowhood and many grandchildren, is still an indefatigable waltzer, as is also Queen Charlotte of Wurtemberg.

So important, indeed, is the matter of dancing to crowned ladies that many foreign governments make a point of selecting for certain missions envoys noted for their skill as waltzers. Throughout the reign of Queen Margherita of Italy the British foreign office took care to be represented by the best dancer available, the late Lord Vivian; his successor, Sir Francis Ford, and after him the late Lord Dufferin, having been as much noted for their dancing as for their diplomatic skill.

Germany, too, followed the example of Great Britain, and was for years represented at Rome by Count Solms, who was invariably selected by Queen Margherita to open the ball with her at any entertainment where she happened to be present.—Illustrated Sporting News.

Archduke Proves Good Shot.

At a crossbow shooting competition—one of the annual series of contests which have been national institutions in Switzerland for centuries—which was held a few days ago at Zurich, the winner was a stranger, who afterward proved to be none other than "Leopold Woelfling," the name under which the identity of Archduke Leopold Ferdinand has for some years been concealed.

Thomas Lawson an Ideal Husband.

Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston copper king, is among the most devoted of husbands, his pet name for Mrs. Lawson being "Gypsy." Recently she had a watch chain made of three gold beads, each hand carved to represent a gypsy girl's head. This is attached to a watch having within the case four pictures of his wife, each in gypsy costume. The watch and chain represent a total expense of $40,000.

The following article has recently published and is one of the remarkable illustrations of the careful marshalling and use of facts in presenting a subject to the public.

LEVELERS.

Influence of Whisky, Tobacco and Coffee.

If a Creator made all things, we believe

That He must have made these.

To know what He made food and drink for, and air and sunshine, but what is Whisky, Tobacco and Coffee?

They are here sure enough and each performing its work.

So there must be some great plan behind it all; the thoughtful man seeks to understand something of that plan and thereby to judge these articles for their true worth.

It is not any "bad" or "good" without making (testimony).

There are times and conditions when it certainly seems to the casual observer that these stimulant narcotics are real blessings.

But there is the ambush that conceals a "killing" enemy.

One can slip into the habit of either whisky, tobacco or coffee easy enough, but to "untangle" is often a Gordian tangle.

It seems plain that there are circumstances when the narcotic effect of these poisons is for the moment beneficial, but the fearful argument against it is that seldom ever does one and the steady user of either whisky, coffee or tobacco free from disease of any kind.

The certainly powerful elements in their effect on the human race

It is a matter of daily history testified to by literally millions of people, that Whisky, Tobacco and Coffee are enticing, promising, beguiling friends from the start, but always false as hell at last in the end. Once they get a man enough to show their strength, they insist upon governing and drive their victim steadily towards ill health in some form; if permitted to continue their rule, they will not let up until physical and mental ruin sets in.

No man under that spell (and "under the spell" is correct), of any one of these drugs, frequently assures himself and his friends, "Why, I can leave off any time I want to. I did quit for a week just to show I could." It is a true mark of the slave when one gets to that stage. He wiggled through a week fighting every day to break the habit, was finally whipped, and began the slavery all over again.

The slave (Coffee slave as well as Tobacco and Whisky) daily reviews his condition, sees perfectly plain the steady encroachments of disease, how his nerves get weaker day by day and mind and the drug that seems to smile and offer relief for a few minutes and then leave the diseased condition weaker to view than ever and growing worse. Many times the Coffee slave realizes that he is between two fires. He feels bad if he leaves off, and a little worse if he drinks and also the effect to wear off.

So it goes on from day to day. Every day the struggling victim promises himself that he will break the habit the next day when he feels a little better (as he is quite sure to), breaks, but the habit, but his own resolution, is nearly always a tough fight, with the master ahead sure if the habit wins.

There have been hundreds of thousands of people driven to their graves through disease brought on by coffee drinking alone, and it is quite certain that more human misery is caused by coffee and tobacco than by whisky, for the two first are more widely used, and more hidden and insidious in the effect on nerves, heart and other vital organs, and are thus unsuspected and much of the dangerous work is done.

Now, Reader, what is your opinion as to the real use the Creator has for these things? Take a look at the question from this point of view.

There is a law of Nature and of Nature's God that things slowly evolve from lower planes to higher, a sturdy, steady and dignified advance toward more perfect things in both the Physical and Spiritual world. The pendulous tread of evolutionary development is fixed by the Infinite and will not be quickened out of natural law by any of man's methods.

Therefore we see many illustrations showing how nature checks too rapid advance. Illinois raises phenomenal crops of corn for two or three years, she continued to do so every year farmers would advance in wealth beyond those of other sections or countries. So Nature interposes a bar every three or four years and brings a "bad year."

Here we see the leveling influence at work.

A man is prosperous in his business for a number of years and grows rich. Then Nature sets the "leveling influence" at work on him. Some of his investments lose, he becomes luxurious and lazy. Perhaps it is whisky, tobacco, coffee, women, gambling, or some other form. The intent and purpose is to level him. Keep him from going too far ahead of the masses. A nation becomes prosperous and great like ancient Rome. If no leveling influence set in she would dominate the world perhaps for all time. But here Nature sets her army of "levelers" at work. Luxury, over eating and drinking, licentiousness, waste and extravagance, indulgences of all kinds, and comes the wreck. Sure. Sure.

The law of the unit is the law of the mass. Man goes through the same process. Weakness (in childhood), natural growth of strength, energy, thrift, probity, prosperity, wealth, comfort, ease, relaxation, self-indulgence, luxury, idleness, waste, dequackery, disease, lows. The "levelers" among the pathway men and women jolly.

Only now and then outcaught the his fortune, fame and

So the Creator Tobacco and Coffee successful ones signs of being too far behind. And wise for the error of in to the article of and change of potage.

"I will not in my right mind, not to foist is her without its tender

It's a mistake to forbid or mild sense, go along to a cheap water."

Certain Father of "mud" if fool-ish and others (perhaps some special be thrashed a fully by these

If a man traffic elers awhile, a hint, he has a good solid

When a man clean, thrifty manifesting the Creator in ness, health to him. Does

This article ple thinking, in," for every and woman something them to press about the Father mistake it; is there and health, happy worldly prosperity habits and sin cut out for us.

It has been er to provide for people to coffee habit and to health and that brings, not gone too cases where on a basis of L to the thou

It is an easy stop coffee in made Postum and hot with or and flavor caffeine or other ements of ord

On the con rebuilding cl ture are in set about re dom is it no the change stomach or plaints of kin nerves show getting better changes thing

Literally m Americans to found the val the chang

Value of

A trial of bus recently l steamer Ete results. She a carrying ca coal as her fu an average o hour, but wa voyage from and has succe of ten knots strated that i the ship mad cent. In the thirty-six per to its storage, gain in the c of the ship.

Tardy hono dered to Ma engineer who the national more than a ment will be the capital at his grave George count

Sir Alfred ber of other London have 1,500 square terior of Ne they intend mill in the w

William Fr pianist, playe 31 for seven and broke th refreshments hand.

London re lunch stands Chicago strik roast beef.

...ick for Old Halsted

A Ballad of Bubbly Creek.

...wandered,
...ooden,
...roaring
...where
...Columbia
...Dakota wheat.

...th Water, through
...dially
...ay always
...entered when our
...steerage from the
...ve

...seen with a fleece
...ominous twilight,
...ome to pole;
...Chicago lured us
...South
...State street and
...of home."

...off the prairie fans
...cool breath your
...ity soothes your
...ful fevered our
...ow tideful over
...ir joy and our
...ir home.

No matter where you wander, you
not escape her spell,
You'll be homesick for the city
ocean claims sea shell;
Bubbly Creek looms on your vision
can smell it for a mile,
And the fragrance of the stock
knocks you dizzy for awhile.

And the twenty-storied buildings
scrape the sapphire sky,
And the saucy tug boats darting
skimming swallows fly;
And the high bridge spans the river
ing up its haughty head,
And the foaming current snarling
its cargo of the dead.

Bubbly Creek, what memories
round thy hollowed fragrant Bubbly Creek is bright embla...
the starry scroll of Fame,
Bubbly Creek, where oft I wander
a restless barefoot boy,
Swimming in the murky waters, oh,
fierce and soothing joy!

Take me back to old Chicago far
the sundering spray,
Harbor lights of home are gleaming,
our soft-eyed sweethearts stay,
I am sick of foreign places,
lures me to her side—
Take me back to Old Chicago far
the Great Divide!

JAMES E. KINSELL
Registry Division, Chicago Postof...

...ssing of Old Hotel

...of Brownsville,
...United States
...mountains, and
...afterious service
...ent for man and
...ure, was sold by
...county recent-
...g.

...hotel built this
...the Girard is
...best in point of
...in 1809, and just
...manner celebrated
...establishment
...rday, that has
...first erected the
...ational service.
...frequently, but
...world's place for

...e National Pike
...Brownsville
...naveration on
...e. The only
...and Baltimore
...that lies west
...over valley was
...At least that
...and one of the most traveled. Governors, sena... congressmen and travelers of kind and description journeyed way and made the old Girard h...

their stopping place. Andrew J... son was a guest there. So was H...
Clay. Gen. Lafayette was entert... at the Girard, and a host of ot...
whose names are familiar in Amer...
history. Jackson was a freq...
guest at the house, and always in...
ed on having the best Monongah...
rye whisky the valley could prod...
It is related of him that on one of...
trips over the pike he suffered...
sprained ankle and put up at...
Girard for repairs. The Browns... physician called to attend him u...
took to bathe the injured ankle w... whisky, to which "Old Hickory" v...
ously objected. Although the me...
man had his way, the hero of N...
Orleans insisted that the use of...
remedy internally would do more...
and save a sacrifice.

Of late years the management...
the old house has not been so succ...
ful, and it may soon make way...
modern improvements. — Pittsb...
Dispatch.

...e Built in Waterfall

...of the wooded
...di Torno, lies
...Villa Pliniana,
...unt Angiussola
...the property of
...dan.
...name from an
...n the court,
...the one de...
...of his letters,
...rated as being
...mo.

...y on the east
...aces due north.
...s of Cernobbio
...a deep green

...h a narrow
...projecting into
...built against
...wooded cliff,
...the southern

...rs a foaming
...the Val di Ca...
...peak of Torno,
...chitect of the
...tured in its
...and carried through the central apartment of villa.

The effect produced is unlike thing else, even in the wonderfu...
Italian gardens. The two wing... the house, a plain and somewhat archoly looking structure, are jo... by an open arcaded room, against back wall of which the torrents down, over stone work tremulous moss and ferns, gushing out again neath the balustrade of the lo...
where it makes a great semi-circ...
glittering whiteness in the dark-g...
waters of the lake.

The old house is saturated with freshness and drenched with the ing spray of the caged torrent.
bare vaulted rooms reverberate it, the stone floors are green with dampness, the air quivers with its incessant rush.

The contrast of this dusky drip... loggia, on its perpetually shaded with the blazing blue waters of lake and their sun-steeped west... shores, is one of the most wonde...
effects in sensation that the Ital...
villa art has ever devised.—Centur...

...Have Nimble Heels

...re so passion-
...ot to be wor-
...ly within a
...riod that the
...ich they have
...been modified
...s permissible,
...gon, or any
...opponent of
...ay his or her
...rection of the
...cident should
...ated.
...xamples lost in-
...ere obliged to
...tions, and it
...queens and
...ball room as
...ey might in-
...equal footing
...of an oppo-

...Holland pre-
...Alexandra, al-
...with as much
...of her youth.

Her sister, the Empress Marie of R... sia, despite her widowhood and many grandchildren, is still an in...
fagitable waltzer, as is also Qu...
Charlotte of Wurtemberg.

So important, indeed, is the ma...
of dancing to crowned ladies t...
many foreign governments make point of selecting for certain miss...
envoys noted for their skill as wa...
ers. Throughout the reign of Q...
Margherita of Italy the British eign office took care to be represe...
by the best dancer available, the l...
Lord Vivian; his successor, Sir Fr...
cis Ford, and after him the late L...
Dufferin, having been as much for their dancing as for their di...
matic skill.

Germany, too, followed the exam...
of Great Britain, and was for ... represented at Rome by Count Sch... who was invariably selected by Q...
Margherita to open the ball with at any entertainment where she h...
pened to be present.—Illustra...
Sporting News.

...od Shot.'

...g competition
...es of contests
...l institutions
...uries—which
...t Zurich, the
...ho afterward
...han "Leopold
...er which the
...opold Ferdi-
...s been con-

Thomas Lawson an Ideal Husband.

Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston ... per king, is among the most devo...
of husbands, his pet name for h...
Lawson being "Gypsy." Recently had a watch chain made of thi... three gold beads, each hand carved represent a gypsy girl's head. Th... attached to a watch having within case four pictures of his wife, each gypsy costume. The watch and ch... represent a total expense of $40,...

—The following article has ...ently published and is one of ...t remarkable illustrations of ...e of careful marshalling and ...of facts in presenting a sub... the public.

LEVELERS.

...ies of Whisky, Tobacco and Coffee.

Creator made all things, we be...

...He must have made these.
...know what He made food and
...er, and air and sunshine, but
...hisky, Tobacco and Coffee?
...are here sure enough and each
...ing its work.
...e must be some great plan be...
...all; the thoughtful man seeks
...erstand something of that plan
...eebly to judge these articles for
...ue worth.
...s not say "bad" or "good" with...
...ing testimony.
...e are times and conditions when
...only seems to the casual observ...
...t these stimulant narcotics are
...blessings.
...t there is the ambush that con...
...a "killing" enemy.
...can slip into the habit of either
..., tobacco or coffee easy enough,
...o "untangle" is often a fearful
...ile.
...eems plain that there are circum...
...es when the narcotic effect of
...poisons is for the moment bene...
...but the fearful argument against
...is that seldom ever does one find
...only user of either whisky, cof...
...tobacco free from disease of
...kind.
...ainly powerful elements in their
...on the human race.
...s a matter of daily history testi...
...by literally millions of people,
Whisky, Tobacco and Coffee are
...g, promising, beguiling friends
...e start, but always false as hell
...in the end. Once they get arm enough to show their strength, insist upon governing and drive victim steadily towards ill health
...me form; if permitted to continue
...ie, they will not let up until phy...
...and mental ruin sets in.
...man under that spell (and "under spell" is correct), of any one of
...drugs, frequently assures him...
...and his friends, "Why, I can leave
...any time I want to. I did quit for ...eek just to show I could." It is a ...mark of the slave when one gets
...that stage. He wiggled through a ...fighting every day to break the
...l, was finally whipped, and began
...slavery all over again.
...he slave (Coffee slave as well as ...acco and Whisky) daily reviews his
...dition, sees perfectly plain the
...dy encroachments of disease, how
...nerves get weaker day by day and
...and the drug that seems to smile
...offer relief for a few minutes and
...leave the diseased condition
...er to view than ever and grow...
...worse. Many times the Coffee
...realizes that he is between two
...He feels bad if he leaves off,
...a little worse if he drinks and al...
...the effect to wear off.

...it goes on from day to day. Every
...the struggling victim promises
...self that he will break the habit
...next day when he feels a little
...as he is quite sure to), breaks,
...the habit, but his own resolution.
...nearly always a tough fight, with
...ter ahead sure if the habit wins.
...ere have been hundreds of thou...
...ds of people driven to their graves
...ugh disease brought on by coffee
...king alone, and it is quite certain
...more human misery is caused by ...e and tobacco than by whisky, for
...two first are more widely used,
...more hidden and insidious in the
...on nerves, heart and other vital
...ans, and are thus unsuspected un...
...much of the dangerous work is

...w, Reader, what is your opinion
...to the real use the Creator has for
...e things? Take a look at the ques...
...from this point of view.
...ere is a law of Nature and of Na...
...'s God that things slowly evolve
...lower planes to higher, a sturdy,
...dy and dignified advance toward
...perfect things in both the Phy...
...and Spiritual world. The pon...
...rous tread of evolutionary develop...
...t is fixed by the Infinite and will ...be quickened out of natural law
...any of man's methods.
...herefore we see many illustrations
...ing how nature checks too rapid
...ance. Illinois raises phenomenal
...s of corn for two or three years.
...she continued to do so every year
...farmers would advance in wealth
...beyond those of other sections or
...ttles. So Nature interposes a bar
...y three or four years and brings
...a "bad year."
...ere we see the leveling influence
...work.
...man is prosperous in his business
...a number of years and grows rich,
...Nature sets the "leveling influ...
...at work on him. Some of his
...tments lose, he becomes luxuri...
...and lazy. Perhaps it is whisky, to...
..., coffee, women, gambling, or other form. The intent and pur...
...is to level him. Keep him from ...ring too far ahead of the masses.
...nation becomes prosperous and
...t like ancient Rome. If no leveling
...ence set in she would dominate world perhaps for all time. But
...e Nature sets her army of "level...
...at work. Luxury, over eating and ...king, licentiousness, waste and ex...
...gance, indulgences of all kinds,
...comes the wreck. Sure. Sure.

...e law of the unit is the law of the ... Man goes through the same
... Weakness (in childhood),
...al growth of strength, energy,
..., probity, prosperity, wealth,
...fort, ease, relaxation, self-indul...
..., luxury, idleness, waste, de...
...ncbery, disease, and the wreck fol...
...lows. The "levelers" are in the bushes
...along the pathway of every successful
...man and woman and they bag the ma...
...jority.

Only now and then can a man stand
...outagainst these "levelers" and hold
...his fortune, fame and health to the
...end.

So the Creator has use for Whisky, Tobacco and Coffee to level down the successful ones and those who show signs of being successful, and keep them back in the race, so that the great "field" (the masses) may not be left too far behind.

And yet we must admit that same all wise Creator has placed it in the pow... er of man to stand upright, clothed in the armor of a clean cut, steady mind and say unto himself, "I decline to ex... change my birthright for a mess of potage.

"I will not deaden my senses, weaken my grip on affairs and keep myself cheap, common and behind in fortune and fame by drugging with whisky, tobacco or coffee; life is too short. It is hard enough to win the good things, without any sort of handicap, so a man is certainly a 'fool trader' when he trades strength, health, money, and the good things that come with power, for the half-asleep condition of the 'drug... ger' with the certainty of sickness and disease ahead."

It is a matter each individual must decide for himself. He can be a leader and semi-god if he will, or he can go along through life a drugged clown, a cheap "hewer o wood or carrier of water."

Certain it is that while the Great Father of us all does not seem to "mind" if some of His children are foolish and stupid, He seems to select others (perhaps those He intends for some special work) and allows them to be threshed and castigated most fear... fully by these "levelers."

If a man tries flirting with these lev...
elers awhile, and gets a few slaps as a hint, he had better take the hint or a good solid blow will follow.

When a man tries to live upright, clean, thrifty, sober, and undrugged, manifesting as near as he knows what the Creator intends he should, happi... ness, health and peace seem to come to him. Does it pay?

This article was written to set people thinking, to rouse the "God with... in," for every highly organized man and woman has times when they feel a something calling from within for them to press to the front and "be about the Father's business;" don't mistake it; the spark of the infinite is there and it pays in every way, health, happiness, peace, and even worldly prosperity, to break off the habits and strip clean for the work cut out for us.

It has been the business of the writ... er to provide a practical and easy way for people to break away from the coffee habit and be assured of a return to health and all of the good things that brings, provided the abuse has not gone too far, and even then the cases where the body has been rebuilt on a basis of strength and health run into the thousands.

It is an easy and comfortable step to stop coffee instantly by having well-made Postum Food Coffee served rich and hot with good cream, for the col... or and flavor is there, but none of the caffeine or other nerve destroying el... ements of ordinary coffee.

On the contrary, the most powerful rebuilding elements furnished by Na... ture are in Postum and they quickly set about repairing the damage. Sel... dom is it more than two days after the change is made before the old stomach or bowel troubles or com... plaints of kidneys, heart, head or nerves show unmistakable evidence of getting better and ten days' time changes things wonderfully.

Literally millions of brain working Americans to-day use Postum, having found the value and common sense in the change.

C. W. POST.

Value of Oil as Steamship Fuel.

A trial of oil as fuel instead of coal has recently been made by the British steamer Enterprise with satisfactory results. She is a steel vessel, with a carrying capacity of 4000 tons. With coal as her fuel she has never exceeded an average of eight or nine knots an hour, but with oil she has finished a voyage from Hawaii to San Francisco and has succeeded in gaining a speed of ten knots an hour. It was demon... strated that in substituting oil for coal the ship made a saving of forty per cent. in the weight of the fuel, and of thirty-six per cent. in the space devoted to its storage. There was also a slight gain in the cost of fuel and operation of the ship.—New York Press.

Tardy honors are about to be ren... dered to Major l'Enfant, the French engineer who drew up the plans for the national capitol at Washington more than a century ago. A monu... ment will be erected in his honor in the capital and a stone will be placed at his grave at Green Hill, Prince George county, Md.

Sir Alfred Harmsworth and a num... ber of other newspaper proprietors of London have closed negotiations for 1,500 square miles of forest in the in... terior of Newfoundland, on which they intend to erect the largest pulp mill in the world.

William Frost, of Hull (England), pianist, played the piano on August 31 for seventeen hours continuously and broke the record. When taking refreshments he played with his left hand.

London reports that her quick-lunch stands are suffering because the Chicago strike put up the price of roast beef.

A SWEDISH CITY IN PAWN.

IT BECOMES GERMAN AFTER BEING MORTGAGED A CENTURY.

The Odd Taste of Wismar, a Port of 18,000 on the Baltic—It Was Pledged by King Gustav IV. for a Loan of $1,000,000.

Wismar, a port of 18,000 people on the Baltic, situated in the German Duchy of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, but belonging legally to Sweden, has re... cently become a German city. It was pledged by King Gustav IV. for a loan of $1,000,000, and the King of Sweden having failed to redeem it within the century, it has passed to the Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, from whose ancestor the money was borrowed.

Wismar is a very ancient town. Ac... cording to one legend it was 300 years old at the beginning of the Christian era. Another tradition says it was built early in the fourth century by Wismarus, King of the Vandals. It grew in power and in the European struggle frequently changed hands, for it was a strong ally and a for... midable enemy.

In the early part of the eighteenth century, Denmark, the most powerful enemy of Sweden, after the destruc... tion of the Hanseatic League (a kind of trade union established by certain German cities for safety and commer... cial purposes), captured Wismar and razed the fortifications. Afterward peace was declared and the city re... verted to Sweden, but with the pro... vision that she should not rebuild the fortifications. The place thus lost its strength and importance and became instead an element of weakness to the Swedes. Its great sea trade was ruin... ed and its inland trade lost.

Under these circumstances it was not surprising that the Swedes tired at last of their white elephant. So in the reign of the incompetent and ex... travagant Gustavus IV., with territory lost to the French in one war, with Finland lost to Russia, with defeat in a war against Norway, the Swedes seized an opportunity to relieve them... selves of the burden of possession.

The direct opportunity was given by the cancellation by Gustavus of his engagement to the daughter of Duke Frederick Franz I. That person not unnaturally resented the insult and threatened dire things. Finally, his threats crystalized into a demand for an enormous indemnity. The money had to be raised at once. The Duchy of Mecklenburg advanced 1,258,000
reichsthaler and took Wismar, Neuk... loster and the Island of Poel as secur... ity.

Under the conditions of the loan the city of Wismar and the two govern... ment districts were to remain in pledge for 100 years. At the end of the 100 years Sweden could claim and obtain the pledged city and land by paying back the original loan with three per cent. compound interest. A further provision, however, of the loan was that should Sweden fail to take anw notice whatever of the expira... tion of the time, the contract would become renewed automatically for an... other 100 years. The sum which Sweden would have had to pay if she wished to claim Wismar and the two government districts is figured as amounting to $27,000,000, and this alone, quite apart from considerations of policy, operated doubtless as a bar against the assertion of her rights.

Thus we see that while the immedi... ate business transaction dates back but about 100 years, any diplomatic squabble over the city now would have to revert to the surrenders and armistices of the thirty years' war (1618-1648). And the fact that Wis... mar here before really was Swedish territory explains why Germany has not fortified the port, which is con... sidered the finest harbor site of the entire Baltic coast. Under the Swed... ish-Danish treaty fortifications were not to be built and when the Duchy of Mecklenburg took over the place
the stipulation was renewed.

Among the beautiful buildings that date back to Wismar's glorious past are the Archdeacon's house, erected in 1450, and the old schoolhouse, dat... ing back to about 1300.

Squint Now Comes Too Late.

Flashlight powder for photography has now become so perfected that, according to an expert, the notion that such a picture is liable to be faulty because of the startled expres... sion which comes to the eyes of some of the sitters is entirely erroneous.

The powder is quicker than human perception, and long before the sit... ter has had time to be startled the plate has caught the impression. It is, to be sure, possible so to arrange the powder that its flash continues long enough to show such expression, but no photographer who knows his business does this. The peculiar staring look seen in the faces in some flashlight pictures is generally due to the feeling of expectancy on the part of the sitters while waiting for the flash. If they did not know the flash was coming they would never jump or stare in time for the camera to catch it.—Philadelphia Record.

Her Instructions to the Dentist.

A Kansas woman wanted a set of false teeth and wrote to a Topeka dentists thus: "My mouth is three inches across, five-eighths thru the jowl. Some hummocky on the aige, shaped somethin' like a hoss shoe, toe forard. If you want me to be more particular I'll have to come up thar."—Topeka Capital.

NAVAJO BLANKET WEAVERS.

Tribe Has 25,000 People, and Most of Them are Polygamists.

Navajo blanket weaving was studied at close range by P. D. Tull on his recent six months' tour to Arizona for his health, says the Spokane Spokesman-Review. Mr.
Tull, who is much improved in health, is back to Spokane with some fine specimens of blankets which he personally picked up while in the south. He said:

"These Navajos are one of the largest tribes in the country, num... bering over 25,000 Indians. Their reservation is equally large, and is situated in northwestern New Mex... ico and northeastern Arizona. Out... side of the reservation proper the government has granted them an ad... ditional strip of forty miles wide, known as 'grazing strip.' The tribe is self-supporting, and while they know little of agriculture, they own immense herds of cattle, horses and sheep. It is from the latter that the women spin the wool and weave the blankets and rugs.

"The Navajos are a roving tribe—when they settle for any time at one place they live in a dome-shaped building called a 'hogan.' This is a form of adobe construction, made with poles and sticks and covered with mud. When on the move they live in the regulation tepees. Their nearest neighbors are the Apaches, with whom, in the old days, they were often engaged in war. The Navajos are polygamists, sometimes having four or five wives. These they buy, or trade, as they would any other piece of property. The squaws do most of the work. They wash, spin and dye the wool, and weave it on primitive looms into quaint and artistic designs. They never use figures of people, animals, or birds, as do the basket weavers,
but their designs are largely geomet... rical. Red, black, orange, white and gray are the predominating colors.

"While some squaws may use and repeat some characteristic design, it is a noteworthy fact that no two rugs are ever alike. This is almost in... credible, when we consider the hun... dreds of rugs that have been made by them.

"To say nothing of the time it takes to wash, dye and spin their wool, it requires about a month of steady work to weave a rug four by six feet. These ar easily recognized by the smaller patterns and smooth, close weave. While the Navajos have never been Christianized, it is a fact of interest that the design of the cross is seen in much of their work. As types they are fine look... ing Indians—strong, tall and well featured, largely due to their life in the saddle."

CURFEW FOR DOGS.

Bill in English Parliament to Curtail the Canine's Time.

It is said that every dog has his day. Many of them have nothing else. However that may be, the day of all dogs in England is soon to be much shorter. It once consisted of twenty-four hours, but a bill has been introduced in parliament which calls for the ringing of a dog cur... few, so to say, says the Boston Transcript.

This dog bill is designed to lessen the damage done by dogs in the wor... rying of cattle, and this it is pro... posed to do by instituting a kind of curfew for dogs and robbing them of the time-honored privilege of
"first bite."

Hitherto, in order to be successful in an action for damages done by a dog, it has been necessary to prove a previous mischevious propensity in the animal. The first clause of the new bill recites that "the owner of the dog shall be liable in damages for injuries done to any cattle by that dog; and it shall not be neces... sary to show a previous mischevious propensity in the dog, or the owner's knowledge of such propensity, or to show that the injury was attributa... table to neglect on the part of the owner."

If it can be proved that any dog has chased or injured cattle that dog is banned as dangerous and may be proceeded against according to the provisions of a rigorous law. As for the curfew regulation, it empow... ers the Board of Agriculture to make orders "for preventing dogs from starving all or any of the hours be... tween sunset and sunrise." Stray dogs may be impounded at the ex... pense of the owner, and if not claim... ed within five clear days may be de... stroyed.

Counting a Hen's Feathers.

A very unique feather-guessing contest was recently conducted by a prominent company manufacturing feed for poultry. Five hundred dol... lars in prizes was offered for best estimates, or guesses, as to the num... ber of feathers on a hen. The first prize was $100.

Thousands of guesses were re... ceived, including some very amusing ones. One party, who was probably looking for some "catch" scheme, estimated "none at all." Many esti... mates in the hundreds of thousands were received, several in the mil... lions, the highest estimate being 600,000,017. The correct number was found to be 8,120. The company says: "We feel a pardonable pride in having contributed to poultry sci... ence an item of information actually new."—St Nicholas.

The deaths by violence in Chicago during 1903 numbered 2,671; of these 492 were suicides.

MUTTON CHOPS.

If when a lamb is born the ewe is found to be short of milk, the secre...
tion may be increased by feeding a hot mash of wheat bran, with a tablespoonful of linseed meal. Put a little salt in the mash.

If the ewe has no milk, the lamb must have its first milk from some other ewe, if possible, to start the natural action of the lamb's bowels—then it can be nursed along on cow's milk until the ewe comes to her own.

The milk from a new milch cow is best, and should be diluted with one-third water at first.

LICE PREVENTION.

To keep chickens free from lice and diseases, wash the roosts with coal oil and whitewash the house in... side and out every month. Sweep the droppings from under the nests every morning and sprinkle slaked lime over the ground. Always keep a piece of red cedar under the nests to keep vermin away from the setting hens. Have the nests so you can clean them well. Never have straw for them but fill with nice, fine, dry dirt and shape it like a straw nest.
Empty every time a hen sets and hatches and you can set hens all summer on these dirt nests. I have always done this and have never seen a louse or had a young or old chicken to die from that disease.—
Fanna Billingsley, in the Epitomist.

EGG FOODS.

The majority of egg foods are com... posed of these elements that enter largely into the composition of the egg, and their success depends upon the fact that they supply material that is often overlooked by those who keep poultry. For instance, ground bone, ground meat, salt and charcoal are ingredients. The first supplies the phosphates, the second the albu... men, the third that which is not often supplied, and the fourth is a correc... tive. Hence, two pounds of ground bones, two pounds of ground meat, half a pound of salt, a pound of char... coal, two pounds of linseed meal,
with an ounce each of sulphur, bread soda and ginger, make a very good egg food, which may be given to six fowls daily, using a tablespoonful.
This is very cheap, which is an ad... vantage over some preparations.

SAVE MONEY WITH GOOD PLANTS.

The planter should always remem... ber that it costs exactly the same in labor to cultivate and care for a poor plant as a good one. In buying of trees, vines and plants generally the comparative cost should cut no figure.
One strawberry plant may cost a cent while another may cost only one-fourth of a cent. In the light of the production of a good or bad variety how much does a cent count? The same is true in the buying of trees.
A good variety should be secured, and it is never necessary to pay a fancy price for any of the good standard varities. But frequently poorer va... rieties, being in larger abundance in the hands of the nurserman, can be bought cheaper than the standard va... riety. The fruit in a single season may be worth a dollar more on the good tree than on the poor one and that will more than equal the differ... ence in cost. The chief concern of the tree planter should be to get a tree that will bear an abundance of the right kind of fruit. Saving a few cents per tree may prove disas... trous in the end.—The Farmer's Re... view.

FEEDING OLD HENS.

As long as the old hens will lay it is not wise to market them, but they must be closely watched, especially after they go into winter quarters, so that if the stop laying they can be prepared for market as quick... ly as possible. It has been found that old hens will lay into the winter for a considerable period if some pains are taken to feed them during late summer while they are on the range. One of the best foods for this period is peas, using the field peas and feeding them raw after being cracked or cooking them and feeding as a mash with bran.

This feed incites egg production and keeps the hens in good condition without making them over fat; at the same time they are in such good con... dition that should they stop laying,
they can be fattened for market at small expense. The plan is worth trying for one of the losses of the poultry business comes from spend... ing too much in fattening the hens for market after they have stopped laying.

BREEDING SOWS.

The Indiana Farmer has called at... tention to the experiences of good swine breeders to the fact that it is too frequently the case good breed... ing sows are fattened and disposed of from the herd before they do their best many times. A good swine breeder in our columns from Deca... tur county, Indiana, called attention to this matter in his excellent discus... sion under the head of "Laying the Foundation for Breeding." In one of our exchanges another hog breeder takes a similar view of the matter and says:

"Breeders generally are not wise
in sacrificing their sows too young.
It would not be safer, possibly, how... ever, to keep brood sows to too great an age. No safer rule can probably be given than the following. If the sow proves a first-class breeder and breeds regularly, and is of a quiet dis... position she should be kept until in... dications manifest themselves that her breeding powers are beginning to wane. Such indications will be found in irregular breeding, in the quality and in the size of the individuals of the litters and inability to feed the litters to the best advantage. These indications do not usually occur in a good brood sow under the age of four to six years."

FEEDING TEAMS FOR HEAVY WORK.

Before taking a horse or team out for a hard drive, or for heavy work, almost every one gives an extra feed.

No one feels like undertaking a job of heavy work or starting off on a race just after eating a hearty meal.

Probably an extra heavy feed has the same effect upon a horse.

How many of our readers know the practice of loggers, turpentine and fur... pentine operators when feeding teams in their camp?

The teams are fed but once a day.
After the day's work is over the teams are fed all the grain and hay that they will eat during the night. In fact some have a rule that if, in the morning, the feed troughs are found to be empty then more feed must be given the next night.

Fed in this way the teams eat all they want and then lie down to rest.
In the morning they no doubt eat again before the teamsters come to take them out to work.

To those who have been accustom... ed to feeding liberally three times a day it would seem like cruelty to ani... mals to only feed once a day. But owners of large gangs of teams are sure to use the methods shown by experience to give the best results.
The fact that this method has been so generally adopted is strong pre... sumptive evidence that it is the most satisfactory one that has been found.

BEAUTIFY YOUR LAWN.

In city or country there is nothing more delightful to look at than a nice, well-kept lawn. Of course, it requires some attention and labor, for there are few things beautiful or useful in this world of ours, that does not cost in labor or money, but it will repay all the labor and attention its costs.
The lawn need not be an extensive park. If only a few feet in depth, and the width of the house, it can be made very attractive. If space permits there should be a few shade trees, and care should be used in their selec... tion, transplanting and trimming. In trimming the work should be done so as to give the tree a symmetrical ap... pearance, and increase its leaf power.

The lawn should be well set in grass, and that, if closely cut, may be made to have the appearance and touch of velvet. To give it this bright, green color, and velvety soft... ness, all the dead grass must be care... fully cleaned away after each cut... ting. All visitors to Washington, D.
C., are delighted by the beautiful swards around the government build... ings, and in the smaller parks of the city. This beautiful appearance is caused by the fact that government gardeners pay as much attention to the grass as to the flowers.

Flowers should not be neglected in this lawn for your home, but should be a feature. Nearly every woman has her choice of flowers, as she has of colors for her gowns, so the choice and variety of the flowers must be left to the individual taste. The flowers can be put in tasty beds or to border the walks, and with a little care in the selection you can have flowers in bloom from very early in the spring until heavy frost comes in the au... tumn. A vase of flowers in the family room, in the parlor, or in the dining room adds a wondrous beauty and life to each of the rooms.

The farmer's wife and daughters are just as much entitled to have things beautiful about them as are the wives and daughters of those who live in the city, and what is more, they will enjoy them just as much. In the summer time, when the evenings are long, and the housework is done for the day, a wonderful sight of en... joyment can be had sitting out on a beautiful lawn, where the eye can feast on the beauties of nature. Why, such a lawn is a great humanizer.
The wife and daughter will be hap... pier for an evening spent on such a lawn, and the farmer himself would soon grow to be thankful for the pleasant shade, and the bright colored flowers, and to think that a vase of flowers on the table at meal time makes everything taste better. There is no other way a farmer can make his family so contented and happy, as by beautifying their home. It would be easy for him to get the trees, if they are not already growing on the lawn. The work of transpainting would not be very heavy. The grass and flower seeds would cost but a trifle, and the return in pleasure, hap... piness and contentment would be a thousand fold.

Great Catch of Whales.

From some unknown cause whales are unusually plentiful on the west coast of Shetland, and the steam whalers are reaping big harvests. It is only a few days since a great drive of whales, resulting in the slaughter of fifty, was recorded, and now it is reported that the week's operations have resulted in the kill... ing of no fewer than 164. Among those killed were one sperm whale and one humpback, both very scarce in that region.—London News.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed.

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, $1.25

The UNION and Weekly Atlanta Constitution, $1.50

The UNION and Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and Saturday News $1.25

Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it. tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

PEOPLE'S PARTY NOMINEES.

County Ticket.

For Judge of Probate,
L. H. REYNOLDS.
For County Treasurer,
J. BICE.
For Tax Collector,
T. J. HUBBARD,
For Tax Assessor,
L. B. POUNDS.
For Clerk of Circuit Court,
SAM W. COLLINS.
For County Supt. of Education.
J. W. MOORE.
For Coroner,
FRANK MASSEY,
For County Commissioner, 1st District,
W. H. CONWAY.
For County Commissioner, 2d District,
ALEX GLASSCOCK.
For County Commissioner, 3d District,
R. P. KENDRICK.
For County Commissioner, 4th District
MOSES ROBINSON.

For Republican Nominee for Congress 4th District.
JOHN W. KITCHEN, of Talladega.

A HIGH PLANE?

The editor of THE UNION was surrounded at Clanton Tuesday afternoon about 5:30 by T. A. Curry, G. Higgins and J. C. Dennis, who demanded from him the name of the man who writes to THE UNION under the name of "Just a Voter." I refused the demand, and Curry then said: "Either give the name or take the damnedest licking that ever man got," and the other two supported him in his demand. Curry then struck me and I defended myself to the best of my ability, badly handicapped as I was by the presence of the other two, fearing to be struck from behind, but Higgins and Dennis never struck me, but Dennis interfered to save Curry when he was down. Curry pulled out his knife, but Higgins took it away; then Curry ran into the depot office and came out with a flag stick, with which he struck at me, breaking it on my arm as I warded off the blow. The city marshal then making his appearance, I placed Curry and his club in his charge. This attack on me was not unexpected, as Probate Judge E. B. Deason (who is also the democratic nominee for that office) had demanded this name of me on Monday morning about 8 o'clock, and on my refusal he gave me until 12 o'clock to give up the name or I would have trouble. But I confess I hardly could credit the idea that man who claims to stand high in this community would make such a cowardly attack on a man of my age, but it seems I was mistaken and the conspiracy to intimidate and beat me as foreshadowed by Probate Judge Deason was carried out to the best of their ability. I make this statement in order that the people of Chilton may have a truthful and ungarbled account of this disgraceful affair. Read Judge Honeycutt's letter in this issue and see for yourselves how such disregard for law and order as above narrated bear out his assertions.

WALLACE C. EDLER.

MR. GIST'S REPLY.

The following letter from Mr. Gist is certainly unique in its class, for while Mr. Gist says he can't trust Mr. Reynolds' memory nor his own, he yet can recall about everything except the party's name, and he says he didn't ask that, though it seems like the ordinary curiosity inherent in human nature would have induced him to ask that question. Well, our contention is established, for it is acknowledged that there was some one in the market, but that the democrats didn't "have the price:"

Calera, Ala., Oct. 22, 1904.
Editor of the Union,
Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:

I have read the article in your paper replying to my note of last week. I notice that your recollection having been refreshed you have found it to be the campaign of 1898 in which I was supposed to have said that "somebody in Chilton county was offered for sale." This was quite a different statement from your first. Permit me to say that I could not be expected to give my consent for Mr. Reynolds to repeat a conversation had with him four years ago. I do not know how good Mr. Reynolds' memory is, but it would have to be better than mine if I were willing to risk it as far back as that. Never having seen the article in the Thorsby Times two years ago of which you speak, the entire matter was new to me, and I now have no recollection of the conversation to which Mr. Reynolds is supposed to have referred. Perhaps a statement of the real facts of the matter of 1898 will settle the whole controversy. I remember that during that campaign one of the congressional committeemen, not from Chilton county, stated to me as chairman that certain influences that were then supporting Mr. Aldrich in Chilton could be purchased for $300. Without asking who the party or parties were I turned the proposition down, and gave it afterwards no thought. In that campaign we did not think it necessary to go into the purchase of votes, realizing that we were not able to bid high enough to get them. This I stated to the committeemen when the proposition of purchasing this Chilton influence was suggested to me. I did not inquire at the time, and have not since, who the party was that was for sale. This I presume was the basis of the conversation to which Mr. Reynolds refers, and as the matter went no further than I have stated, you can readily see that there is nothing in it which could possibly be used by you or Mr. Reynolds, even if the matter were sifted further.

* * * *

Very truly yours,
F. W. GIST.

FARMERS' ALLIANCE.

Chilton Co. F. A. met with Mars Hill Alliance Oct. 19th and 20th and was composed of delegates from all sub-alliances (except Macedonia) and representing fully three-fourths of the county. We were entertained all Wednesday morning by a very instructive and interesting discourse on fertilizers by Pres. McElderry, of the Talladega Fertilizer Co., after which we adjourned to partake of the bounteous dinner provided for us by the good brethren and sisters of Mars Hill; like the cruse of oil, we ate and ate and still there was abundance left. Evening session was devoted to lecturing and business for the good of the order, part of which was that we place two more organizers in the work to assist Bro. W. H. Conway. Bros. J. H. Thomas and L. B. Pounds were elected and instructed to use every endeavor to finish the organization of this county, and also to organize Shelby, Coosa, Autauga and Elmore counties with the view to organize the state alliance some time about the April meeting. Thursday's session was principally discussion of fertilizers. Bro. J. N. Dennis made us a very intelligent explanation in regard to computing the commercial value of any brand of fertilizer where the analysis is given, which was of great benefit to those who heard him also his instructions in regard to selection of seed corn, etc. Bro. Dennis attended the lectures of the agricultural experiment station at Auburn last summer and has given the subject of agriculture much thought and study, and we predict that if he continues the same careful and studious course in a few years he will be one of our brightest agriculturists. It is to be hoped that more of our young men will avail themselves of attending these lectures next summer, the expense being small in comparison with the benefits received. If you will pardon me I'll say a word to our young men. The business man gives his time and study to his business, reading price currents, etc., so why not the young man starting in life as an agriculturist also study his business, reading the bulletins sent out by the various experiment stations? At the Thursday evening session it was decided unanimously to co-operate in buying our fertilizers, mixed and chemicals for making our own preparations. It was decided that our county agent should investigate in regard to prices and quality of different fertilizers and report to the alliance at its next meeting. Bro. J. N. Dennis was appointed to assist and join him in said report. Any community wishing to avail itself of co-operation in purchasing fertilizers can do so by getting together and notifying Bro. W. H. Conway of their desire to organize and he will respond promptly. As regards the advantage of such co-operation I will state that a community that has continued buying fertilizer in bulk, bought for $20.50 per ton, a fertilizer of about the same quoted commercial value that our president paid $24.50 for as an individual. This was one of the most valuable meetings we have held. The next COUNTY ALLIANCE will be held with UNION ALLIANCE, beat 1, on WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY, JANUARY 18 and 19, 1905.

ALEX G. DAKE,
Sec'y and Treas., Co. Business Agent.

(COMMUNICATED.)

JUDGE HONEYCUTT'S LETTER.

Jemison, Ala., Oct. 25, '04.

Editor of the Union:

I notice in your issue of last week the proceedings of the populist mass meeting at Thorsby, in which I am invited to make some speeches on the dates given. I desire to thank my friends for this expression of confidence in me, and to also say that I feel very grateful for the many kindnesses shown me in the past by the people of Chilton county, and will always be found ready to help them by my advice or otherwise when I am called on in the proper way.

It is very well known that I have never been much of a party man in county politics, but preferred to vote always for the man rather than the party, and I have not yet seen any good reason for changing my views on this subject. As I see the situation in this county now, the only issue is who shall hold the offices? I consider it a sacred duty every man owes his country to calmly and deliberately study the fitness and qualifications of the different men seeking their votes, considering the influence that would control them after their election, and then cast their ballot for the best man for the place.

The office we are all mostly interested in is that of probate judge, as it more directly concerns all of us. I feel deeply interested in the selection of a man for this place, and I feel that I have a right to know, and do know as well as any one in the county, the kind of a man best suited for this office.

I have had a long personal acquaintance with both the candidates for this office, and I believe that in point of fitness and ability Mr Reynolds is far ahead of Mr Deason, and if elected would discharge the duties of the office in a much more satisfactory manner to the people of the county than would Mr. Deason. Should Mr. Deason be elected he will owe his election to the party machinery and methods, and would, in my opinion, be under the influence and control of a small set of lawyers and politicians around Clanton, while if Mr. Reynolds is elected he will owe his election to the plain, common people of the county, and will be left free to discharge the duties of the office as he sees and understands those duties, and I believe he will do this without partiality to any set, class or element.

Mr. Deason is a nice young man, and I would be proud to see him succeed in any worthy undertaking, but I consider it would be a great mistake for the people of this county to elect him to the most important office in the county at this time.

I do not feel that it would be right or proper for me to accept the invitation extended to me to make the speeches mentioned at this time. I have never made any political speeches yet, and I do not see the necessity for it now, so will ask the people to excuse me, with the explanation of my position as given above.

Respectfully,
R. M. HONEYCUTT.
Clanton, Oct. 24, 04.

Dear Union:

Well, I hardly know where to start. I've been so busy, and do you know I've been much amused at some folks in Clanton. They don't know what is coming next. Say, boys, I'll not tell anything that will put any of you all in the penitentiary, but I may put you out of business. I heard a wonderful conversation about me the other day. Some said I was a democrat, some one thing and some another. One fellow said he did not want his name in the Union any more. Well, it does look like wasting paper and ink to mention some folks, and I never did like to go to the grave yard for a subject, and you know the Clanton ring is at its last gasp. I was standing on the corner the other morning and Reynolds came along headed for the court house and he looked like he was going up to take charge of the office, so I followed quietly and there was he and Lige as friendly as two sick kittens. It looked good to me, but I wondered if it was sincere, and I'd have liked to have overheard the conversation, but I couldn't. Reynolds did not stay in town long, and as he went toward the depot with Frank Goodgame I could see some folks watching him about as close as the sheriff of Jefferson watches Frank Duncan, for they all think he never comes here except to look after politics. You know Judge Adams said at a democratic club meeting last spring "that they must remember that Reynolds was a hard fighter in politics." Say, what has become of all the democratic clubs? All dead? Well, I'm glad that Mr. Bowie is coming to this county. Maybe he'll tell me all about that delegation that he got from this county and what it cost him. It may be that he paid for it in patriotism. If we could only get Mr. Bowie to go to our strong beats to stir our voters up so as to bring them out on election day! Say, it would have made a dog laugh to hear a man that was talking to Mr. Bowie over the 'phone some time ago, and asking him to come to this county, but to wait until the last days, or else the other crowd would get in behind him and poison the folks. I wonder what has become of that famous bet between Bob Smith and Tom Tyus? You know Tyus bet Smith $10 that Reynolds would not meet Mr. Bowie in a joint discussion, and I hear that Reynolds is and has been ready for the fray all the time, but it seems like Mr. Bowie is slow to come. I declare these old pops are good politicians. You know I said in my last letter that if had been narrated around that if Reynolds was elected he wouldn't get the office, so bless your life the pops had a clincher on that trick; they've said they were for the fair thing, and that if their men were not elected they'd not try to take the offices, and have asked the democrats to join them in this agreement, and now it is up to the democrats to say whether any of their candidates will try to keep an office to which the people would not elect him. If the democrats won't agree to this fair proposition they are in a hole and the hole shoved in on them. Let's see what they will do. I see Judge Honeycutt is going to make some speeches for the people's ticket. Won't he have large crowds? It will do the old fellows back in the hills good to hear him. Won't he make things hum? Yes, he'll have good crowds, for the people of Chilton believe him to be an honest man and conscientious in whatever action he takes, and you know he is fresh from the Clanton crowd, and can tell us what good can come out of the democratic party, and how it pays a pop to go to them. I tell you Mr. Frank Langston wrote a good piece last spring when he asked "if such men as Judge Huneycutt, Adams, Vandervees and many others couldn't do anything in the democratic party, what could a common voter expect?" We all felt that when Judge Honeycutt found out that there was a clique at the court house that he would quit them, and so he has. The present day democrats are worse than the old ones. I'd rather risk the old fellows that are left than the new recruits. Yes, if there ever was a ring around a court house in this world there is one in Clanton now, but ain't they quiet. I reckon they are waiting to start something just before the election, when it is too late to answer. Look at the address they got out two years ago. I heard them in the court house the day before the last election that the address was not true, so look out for campaign lies pretty soon now. Say, I was to take up the two tickets this week, but I won't have time to say much. Look at Reynolds. He has represented the county several times in the legislature, and was a member of the constitutional convention, and he made a good member, too. I've never heard a word of complaint about any vote he ever cast. Even in the last house, where he was almost alone, the democrats had to petition him to keep Clanton from being hurt, and he was as ready to help us as if the cry had come from the populists, and I believe everybody thinks he will make a good judge and treat all alike, without regard to party, and he will make us a good citizen, a public-spirited man that will help Clanton to do things right. He won't hang back for fear he might have to spend a dollar or two for schools and such things that make a good town. I will close this time, and hope some of the questions I asked last week will be answered. I also wish that Mr. Gist will give Mr. Reynolds permission to tell that conversation that they had. I remember two years ago that Mr. Gist broke into politics down here; but when Reynolds asked his permission to tell this conversation he dried up and that has been the last of him until now; but I do hope he will answer your question as to "who was it?"

Respectfully,
"JUST A VOTER."

A CARD.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 25, 1904.

Editor Union:

I wish to say a few words to the people of Chilton county through your columns. Gentlemen, you have honored me in the part, for which I am profoundly thankful, and I say to you now that I am with you heart and soul and will support and vote for the PEOPLE'S ticket from top to bottom.

Respectfully,
J. T. COOLEY.

EXTRA PUBLIC SPEAKING.

Hon. Pope M. Long and Judge J. H. Montgomery will address the people of Chilton on the issues of this campaign as follows:

Rocky Mount, Saturday, Nov. 5, at 10 a. m.

Thorsby, Saturday, Nov. 5, at 7 p. m.

Hon. J. O. Thompson and Judge J. H. Montgomery will speak at Clanton Monday, Nov. 7, at 10 a. m.

Coming Events

NOTICE.

I am ready to lecture to or organize any alliance on short notice, and myself ... ready to attend all calls.

W. H. CONWAY,
County ... and Organizer.

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton County for the year 1904 and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Clanton, beat 4, Oct. 1, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Oct. 3, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Oct. 4, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Oct. 5, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Oct. 6, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Oct. 7, 1904.
Benson, beat 3, Oct. 8, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Oct. 10, 1904.
Providence, beat 2, Oct. 11, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Oct. 12, 1904
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Oct. 13, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Oct. 14, 1904.
Cane Creek, beat 4, Oct. 15, 1904. till 12 m
Mountain Creek, beat 5, Oct. 17, 1904
Verbena, beat 5, Oct. 18, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Oct. 19, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Oct. 20, 1904.
James Maddox's gin, beat 4, Oct. 21, 1904

A. C. MIMS,
Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD Tax Collector. tf

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's Second Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton county for the year 1904, and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Benson, beat 3, Nov. 1, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Nov. 2, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Nov. 3, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Nov. 4, 1904.
Thorsby beat 9, Nov. 7, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Nov. 8, 1904.
Gentry & Cofer's Mill, beat 2, Nov. 9, 1904.
Hayes Mill, beat 2, Nov. 10, 1904.
Providence, beat 2, Nov. 11, 1904.
Elijah Buzbee's, beat 2, Nov. 12, 1904, till 12 m.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Nov. 14, 1904.
Smith's Schoolhouse, beat 1, Nov. 15, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Nov. 16, 1904.
Providence, beat 10, Nov. 17, 1904.
Burwell, beat 10, Nov. 18, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Nov. 21, 1904.
Davis & Rollins' gin, beat 6, Nov. 22, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Nov. 23, 1904.
Stanton, beat 8, Nov. 24, 1904.
Valley Creek, beat 8, Nov. 25, 1904.
Clanton Ford, beat 8, Nov. 26, 1904. till 12 m.
Verbena, beat 5, Nov. 28, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Nov. 29, 1904.
Clanton, beat 4, Nov. 30, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Dec. 1-2, 1904.
Clanton, last 10 days in the year, commencing December 20, 1904.

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

A National Paper.

The News company of Joliet, Ill., proprietors of one of the largest and best printing plants in the state outside of Chicago, are publishing the Saturday News as a third edition of their paper. The Saturday News is devoted exclusively to the interests of the people's party and is national in scope. Each week it contains matters of interest regarding the progress of the party from all parts of the nation.

Being published at the headquarters of the party and the chairman of the national committee being president of the News company and one of the editors, it is peculiarly favorably located to give general news of the movement.

The People's party has long felt the need of a national paper and it is cause for congratulation that one has been started and by a concern that is so strong that its success is assured from the start while the names of such well known workers and writers as Hon. James H. Ferriss, Charles Q. De France, Jo A. Parker and R. E. Bray is a guarantee of its character and loyalty.

The regular subscription price of the Saturday News is 50 cents per year, but we have arranged with the publishers to furnish it and the Union, both papers one year for $1.25.

Call at our office and see a sample copy and take advantage of this offer. tf.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.. You will find a full line of

SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS. | PAINTS OILS and GLASS.

We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.

CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

A FLYING MACHINE THAT ...

...seems to Have Been Invented ... Californian.

Propelled part of the way by ... own power, and the remainder of ... distance by the wind, which was ... ing at the rate of nine or ten ... an hour, the airship of Thomas ... Baldwin, of San Francisco, in ... of A. Roy Knabenshue, of Toledo, ... made an unannounced ascension ... the aeronautic concourse at ... world's fair and landed near Cabo... Ill., a distance of nearly ten ... Clinging to the frame work of ... car, his precarious foothold an ... tube, Knabenshue directed the ... ments of his flying machine and ... neuvered in circles against the ... high over the exhibit palaces of ... exposition before the accident to ... motor which rendered the big fan-... propellers useless and curtailed ... command of the airship.

Notwithstanding the breaking ... the motor, Knabenshue did not ... complete control of the machine, ... with the momentum given by the ... he was enabled to steer the ... in a course that varied several ... in each direction from the trend ... the wind, and landed at a point of ... own selection.

STEEL MILL FOR GADSDEN.

Schulers Will Enlarge Their Plant and Employ Many Men.

It is officially announced that ... Alabama Steel and Wire company ... supplement its blast furnace and ... plants by building in Gadsden an ... mense steel wire rod and wire mill ... be known as rod mill No. 2, the ... ley plant being designated as rod ... No. 1.

E. T. Schuler, president of the ... pany, is authority for the statement ... that the plant would be built as ... as possible. The mill will give ... ployment to many more men than ... steel works. The Ensley mill employs ... between 800 and 1,200, and it is ... stood that the Gadsden plant will ... much larger.

EIGHT MULES BURNED.

Fire Destroyed the Carolina Cement Co.'s Plant in Birmingham.

A fire of unknown origin destroyed ... the warehouse of the Carolina Portland Cement company in Birmingham ... and inflicted death on eight mules ... and a horse that were confined there. ... The fire was discovered by some railroad men.

The loss is very heavy. C. H. Dickinson, the manager of the company, states that it will possibly exceed $25,000, and that only a part of this will be covered by insurance. He stated that the warehouse was heavily stocked, and that the cement was entirely ruined by the water falling on it from the engines. All of the other building material that was stored in the warehouse was completely destroyed by the fire or ruined by the water.

The death of the nine animals was horrible. Their struggles could be heard from the outside of the building, but all attempts to rescue them were fruitless. The value of the animals is estimated at $1,500, and it is stated that they were insured for about $900.

JUDGE DALEY, OF GEORGIA,

Charges Statesboro Jury on the Lynching Matter.

Judge A. F. Daley charged the grand jury of Bullock county that it was their duty to indict the lynchers. He said all who participated in the mob were guilty of murder, the same as Reed and Cato, the difference being that the former were holden by the latter. Judge Daley said in part:

"If you do not intend to respect your oaths in this, then you have no business in this body. As a result of this lynching crime has been rampant in the middle circuit. The lawless element, it seems, are men who are considered good citizens, and there is no use for their crime if the law has been promptly applied."

Not "New York Harry."

Harry Vaughn, the train robber and companion of the desperadoes who were killed in the recent raid in St. Louis, denies stoutly that he is "New York Harry," Harry O'Dowd or "Graham." He was sullen when his career in the south was mentioned, and talks but little, as he claims there is nothing against him in St. Louis to hold him.

Birmingham officers have a picture of the St. Louis suspect, and they say it is not of the man wanted.

Mrs. Longstreet Appointed.

President Roosevelt directed the appointment of Mrs. James Longstreet to be postmaster at Gainesville, Ga., to succeed Colonel Henry P. Farrow, removed, on the report of an inspector that Colonel Farrow is not a resident of the community in which the post office is situated. Mrs. Longstreet is the widow of General James Longstreet.

Moody to Resign.

Surprise has been occasioned in political circles by the announcement that Chancellor C. C. Moody, of the Seventh Mississippi district, will tender his resignation to the governor within the next thirty days. The governor has been formally notified that the resignation is forthcoming.

New Bank.

Meridian, Miss., is to have a new bank with a capital of $30,000.

... OFFICIALS

...Judson Strock.
...W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rol...
...Mullins, J. M. Potts.
...J. Watts Moore.
...—Ed Smitherman.

...TS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.
...Term—1st Monday in April.
...Term—3rd Monday in July.
...Term—1st Monday in Novem...
...T. Scott Sayre.
...—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
...B. B. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.
...Term—2nd Monday in March.
...Term—2nd Monday in Septem...
...ller—Hon. R. B. Kelley, An...
...ter—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan...

COUNTY COURT.
...Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.
...Monday February, 1st Monday ... 1st Monday June, 2nd Monday ... 2nd Monday August, 1st Monday ...ber.

COUNTY OFFICERS.
...e of Probate—S. M. Adams.
...surer—Alex G. Dake.
...iff—J. M. Morgan.
...ctor—J. O. Middleton.
...Assessor—A. C. Mims.
...Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.
...t District—W. H. Conway.
...nd District—Alex Glasscock.
...d District—W. A. Green.
...th District—R. C. Riggins.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.
...J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.
...W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.
...L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

...UNTY CHURCHES

...ors and clerks are cordially ask... send the editor any news regard... their churches which they would ... published. Also if there are any ... in these notices please send cor...

...MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.
...ne—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
...Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
...h-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas...
...C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
...kson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; ...Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
...any—Rev. I. Rice, 1st Sunday. ...Huett, clerk, Verbena.
...—Rev. A. C. Mitchell, 1st 3rd Sundays. W. L. Mullins, ...e Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th ...y. V. J. Gragg, clerk.
...er Hill—Rev J. M. Gothard, ...; J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
...ard—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd ...y. T. N. Parrish, clerk.
...ias Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm... 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, ...
...nut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, ...; J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
...th—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd ...y. W. B. Jones, clerk.
...s Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, ...day. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
...th—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st ...y. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
...an—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas... W. J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
...eezer—Rev. P. G. Mancus, pas... H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
...ison—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ...Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
...ty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd ...y; W. M. Wood, clerk.
...edonia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd ...y. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
...s Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas... H. Z. Barnes, clerk, Britich.
...berry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ...Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
...nt Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud... pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk.
...nt Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, ...; D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
...le Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, ...; W. H. Wilson, clerk.
...edonia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd ...; George Trawick, clerk.
...Cedron—Rev. J. B. Moore, pas... J. W. Billingsley, clerk.
...Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, ...nday; G. W. Hill, clerk.
...Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd ...; Henry Smith, clerk.
...rims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, ...; I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
...nt Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom... Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
...nt Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, ...; W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
...nt Grove—Rev. G. W. Free... pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk.
...r Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, ...nday. J. J. McDowell clerk.
...idence—Rev. J. M. Honeycutt ...day. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi...
...idence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong ...; Riley Robinson, clerk, Clan...
...—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor; ...Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
...—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd ...; W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
...—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun...

Thompson and Judge J.
y will speak at Clanton
7 at 10 a. m.

ng Events

NOTICE.

X NOTICE.
Collector's First Round, end at the following es for the purpose of the STATE and COUN-
Chilton County for the
ASSESSING the TAXES
905.
, Oct. 1, 1904.
at 6, Oct. 3, 1904.
t 8, Oct. 4, 1904.
Oct. 5, 1904.
, Oct. 6, 1904.
beat 7, Oct 7, 1904.
3, Oct. 8, 1904.
eat 3, Oct. 10, 1904.
eat 2, Oct. 11, 1904.
t 2, Oct. 12, 1904.
eat 1, Oct. 13, 1904.
t 11, Oct. 14, 1904.
beat 9, Oct. 15, 1904.
ek beat 5, Oct. 17, 1904
5, Oct. 18, 1904.
fo, Oct. 19, 1904.
, Oct. 20, 1904.
's gin, beat 4, Oct. 21,
A. C. MIMS,
Tax Assessor.
kII Tax Collector. tf

NOTICE.

Collector's Second Round.
nd at the following es for the purpose of
he STATE and COUN-
Chilton county for the
ASSESSING the TAX-
1905.
3, Nov. 1, 1904.
eat 7, Nov. 2, 1904.
, Nov. 3, 1904.
Nov. 4, 1904.
9, Nov. 7, 1904.
at 3, Nov. 8, 1904.
's Mill, beat 2, Nov.
t 2, Nov. 10, 1904.
t 2, Nov. 11, 1904.
, beat 2, Nov. 12,
ge, beat 1, Nov. 14,
house, beat 1, Nov.
t 11, Nov. 16, 1904.
at 10, Nov. 17, 1904.
0, Nov. 18, 1904.
6, Nov. 21, 1904.
n' gin, beat 6, Nov.
8, Nov. 23, 1904.
8, Nov. 24, 1904.
eat 8, Nov. 25, 1904.
eat 8, Nov. 26, 1904.
5, Nov. 28, 1904.
0, Nov. 29, 1904.
, Nov. 30, 1904.
2, Dec 12, 1904.
0 days in the year.
ember 20, 1904.
ax Assessor.
RD, Tax Collector.

nal Paper.
pany of Joliet, Ill.
of the largest and
ts in the state out are publishing the s a third edition of Saturday News is ly to the interests
ty and is national in it contains matters
ing the progress of parts of the nation
at the headquarters
the chairman of the
ee being president
ency and one of the ularly favorably leneral news of the ty has long felt the al paper and it is ulation that one has
by a concern that is success is assured
hile the names of workers and writers
Ferriss, Charles Q.
Parker and R. E.
es of its character
escription price of rs is 50 cents per arranged with the
h it and the Union,
ar for $1.25.
and see a sample
ntage of this offer.
tf.

our Complete
UGS Etc.
a full line of
S, ETC.
PAINTS OILS and GLASS.
hased the STROCK stock your trade.
UG COMPANY

A FLYING MACHINE THAT

Seems to Have Been Invented
Californian.

Propelled part of the way by own power, and the remainder of distance by the wind, which was ing at the rate of nine or ten an hour, the airship of Thomas Baldwin, of San Francisco, in of A. Reg Knabenshue, of Toledo, made an unannounced ascension the aeronautic concourse at world's fair and landed near Cab
Ill., a distance of nearly ten mi Clinging to the frame work of car, his precarious foothold an tube, Knabenshue directed the ments of his flying machine and neuvered in circles against the w high over the exhibit palaces of exposition before the accident to motor which rendered the big fan propellers useless and curtailed command of the airship.

Notwithstanding the breaking the motor, Knabenshue did not complete control of the machine, with the momentum given by the w
he was enabled to steer the mach in a course that varied several po in each direction from the trend the wind, and landed at a point of own selection.

STEEL MILL FOR GADSDEN.

Schulers Will Enlarge Their Plant
Employ Many Men.

It is officially announced that Alabama Steel and Wire company supplement its blast furnace and plants by building in Gadsden an mense steel wire rod and wire mill be known as rod mill No. 2, the ley plant being designated as rod
No. 1.

E. T. Schuler, president of the co pany, is authority for the statem that the plant would be built as as possible. The mill will give ployment to many more men than steel works. The Ensley mill emplo between 800 and 1,200, and it is und stood that the Gadsden plant will much larger.

EIGHT MULES BURNED.

Fire Destroyed the Carolina Cem
Co.'s Plant in Birmingham.

A fire of unknown origin destroy the warehouse of the Carolina Po land Cement company in Birmingha and inflicted death on eight mu and a horse that were confined the
The fire was discovered by some ra road men.

The loss is very heavy. C. H. Di
inson, the manager of the compan states that it will possibly exce $25,000, and that only a part of th will be covered by insurance. H stated that the warehouse was heavil stocked, and that the cement was e tirely ruined by the water falling o it from the engines. All of the oth building material that was stored i the warehouse was completely destro
ed by the fire or ruined by the wate

The death of the nine animals w horrible. Their struggles could b heard from the outside of the buil ing, but all attempts to rescue the were fruitless. The value of the a mals is estimated at $1,500, and it stated that they were insured f about $900.

JUDGE DALEY, OF GEORGIA,

Charges Statesboro Jury on the Lync
ing Matter.

Judge A. F. Daley charged th grand jury of Bulloch county that was their duty to indict the lynche
He said all who participated in th mob were guilty of murder, tho' sa as Reed and Cato, the difference b ing that the former were holder tha the latter. Judge Daley said in part

"If you do not intend to respect yo oaths in this, then you have no bu ness in this body. As a result of th lynching crime has been rampant the middle circuit. The lawless el ment, it seems, are men who are co sidered good citizens, and there w no use for their crime if the law h been promptly applied."

Not "New York Harry."

Harry Vaughn, the train robber a companion of the desperadoes wh were killed in the recent raid in St
Louis, denies stoutly that he is "N York Harry," Harry O'Dowd or "Ge ham." He was sullen when his n rear in the south was mentioned, s talks but little, as he claims there nothing against him in St. Louis t hold him.

Birmingham officers have a pict of the St. Louis suspect, and they t it is not of the man wanted.

Mrs. Longstreet Appointed.

President Roosevelt directed the ap pointment of Mrs. James Longstr to be postmaster at Gainesville, Ga to succeed Colonel Henry P. Farrow removed, on the report of an inspe that Colonel Farrow is not a resi of the community in which the p office is situated. Mrs. Longstreet the widow of General James Lo Street.

Moody to Resign.

Surprise has been occasioned political circles by the announcem that Chancellor C. C. Moody, of Seventh Mississippi district, will der his resignation to the gover within the next thirty days. The gov ernor has been formally notified th
the resignation is forthcoming.

New Bank.

Meridian, Miss., is to have a ne bank with a capital of $30,000.

Y OFFICIALS

Judson Strock.
—W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rol-
, Mullins, J. M. Potts.
J. Watts Moore.
—Ed Smitherman.

TS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.
Term—1st Monday in April.
Term—3rd Monday in July.
rm—1st Monday in Novem-
—T. Scott Sayre.
—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
E. B. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.
Term—2nd Monday in March.
rm—2nd Monday in Septem-ellor—Hon. R. B. Kelley, Alaer—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan-

COUNTY COURT.
Monday in each month.

MMISSIONERS' COURT.
Monday February, 1st Monday
st Monday June, 2nd Monday
d Monday August, 1st Monday
er.

COUNTY OFFICERS.
e of Probate—S. M. Adams.
surer—Alex G. Dake.
—J. M. Morgan.
itor—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

UNTY COMMISSIONERS.
District—W. H. Conway.
d District—Alex Glasscock.
District—W. A. Green.
th District—R. C. Riggins.

UPT. OF EDUCATION.
J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.
W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.
L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

UNTY CHURCHES

ors and clerks are cordially ask-nd the editor any news regard-eir churches which they would published. Also if there are any in these notices please send cor-s.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS. se—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas-
C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
kson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor;
Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
any—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday.
Huett, clerk, Verbena.
on—Rev. A. O. Kendall, 1st
3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins,
Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th
V. J. Gragg, clerk.
r Hill—Rev J. M. Gothard,
J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
rd—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd
T. N. Parrish, clerk.
s Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm-
1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton,
nut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand,
J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
th—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd
W. B. Jones, clerk.
e Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish,
day. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
th—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st
M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
an—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas-
J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
ser—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas-
H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
on—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor;
Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
ty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd
W. M. Wood, clerk.
donia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd
H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas-
Z. Barnes, clerk, British
erry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor;
Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
t Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud-astor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk.
t Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong,
D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
e Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand,
W. H. Wilson, clerk.
donia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd
George Trawick, clerk.
Cedron—Rev. J. B. Moore, pas-
W. Billingsley, clerk.
Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong,
day; G. W. Hill, clerk.
Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd
Henry Smith, clerk.
ims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, J. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
nt Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom-
Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
nt Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard,
W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
nt Grove—Rev. G. W. Free-
astor; H. C. Latham, clerk.
e Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone,
day. J. J. McDowell clerk.
dence—Rev. T. M. Honeycutt
day. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi
dence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong
Riley Robinson, clerk, Clan
—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor;
Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd
W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sunday, J. Deason, clerk, Adams.
Thorsby—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Robert Jones, clerk, Thorsby.
Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, pastor; R. S. Chandler, clerk, Jemison.
Union Prize—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2d Sunday. J. M. Miner, clerk, Clanton.
Verbena—Rev. J. W. Partridge, 1st Sunday. T. J. Bland, clerk.
Valley Creek—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. W. Mitchell, clerk, Plantersville.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

Clanton Circuit, Rev. T. F. Davis, Pastor.
Thorsby—1st Sunday.
Walnut Grove—2nd Sunday, morning.
Unity—2nd Sunday, evening.
Shady Grove—3rd Sunday.
Mount Pisgah—4th Sunday, morning.
Enterprise—4th Sunday, evening.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Highland School House—Rev. M. F. Lett, 3rd Sunday and Saturday before. T. L. Adams, clerk.
Enterprise—Rev. M. F. Lett, 4th Sunday. T. F. Patterson, clerk.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN.

St. Olafs Thorsby—Rev. H. Engh, pastor. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

Concordia, Thorsby—Rev. J. E. Hedberg. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2d Sunday. Song service every 2d and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

MASONIC.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday, Clanton.
Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 250—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.
Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 423—First Saturday, Clanton.
Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 567—First Saturday Billingsley.
Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.
Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 411—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.
Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 473—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.
Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

of the

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE CO.

Of Toronto, Canada.

1st January, 1904.

UNITED STATES BRANCH.

Assets.

Government bonds	$223,650.00
State and municipal bonds	511,473.19
Cash on hand and deposit	169,720.71
Stocks and bonds	305,793.00
Premiums in course of col.	204,834.79
Interest due and accrued.	11,833.20
	$1,427,304.89

Liabilities.

Reserve premium fund (N. Y. Standard)	$849,771.77
Reserve for unpaid losses	100,786.14
	$950,557.91
Surplus in United States	$476,746.98
Total income in United States for 1903	$1,547,736.84
Total losses paid in U. S. from 1874 to 1903, inclusive	$14,674,843.26

WALLACE C. EDLER, Agent,
Clanton, Alabama.

Watson's Letter of Acceptance.

The Saturday News, Joliet, Ill., can furnish an unlimited number of copies containing Watson's great letter of acceptance, which is just out at the rate of 50 cents per hundred or $3.00 per thousand.

There has never been anything like it to enthuse populists and arouse interest in our cause. If placed in the hands of the voters it means a million more votes for the populist ticket. Send for a bundle. Address and make all orders payable to the Saturday News, Joliet, Ill. tf

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 acres within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is timbered, 1 set mill-rocks, 48 inch, 1 Horse, weight 1100 lbs. Alfred Popwell, tf Clanton, Ala.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to Oct. 26, '04, 2,620.
Price on same date, 9 1-4c.
Total receipts same date, '03, 3,155.
Price same date, 9 5-8c.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

J. S. Jones, of Cooper, was in Clanton Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill Foshee, of Maplesville, were guests of Miss Alphie Smitherman Thursday.

B. E. Collum was in town Friday.

P. R. Devaughan was in Clanton Saturday. He is one that is holding his cotton.

W. W. Robinson was in town Saturday.

M. C. Williams was a visitor here Saturday.

Hon. J. H. Reynolds was in Clanton Monday.

Green Burnett and Matt Benson were pleasant visitors Monday.

W. A. Riggins was in town Monday.

Squire J. J. McDowell was in Clanton Thursday.

J. Bice was a visitor Tuesday.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Marion Wilson, a girl on October 21st.

Some of our nicest young men took their best girls to Collins chapel last Sunday to the singing convention.

S. S. Scott and J. M. Grant were in Clanton Tuesday.

J. N. Dennis was in town Tuesday.

L. E. Gullahorn has been appointed Postmaster at Burwell.

Pastor Montgomery filled his regular appointment at the Methodist church Sunday. There is only one more preaching time before annual conference.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

M. O. Baker and Miss Callie Chastine. M. O. Culver and Miss Martha Evans. Madison Mims and Miss Mary Cleckler.

COLORED.

Oliver Frinderson and Sallie Hatcher.

THORSBY.

Mrs. Mary Gore, of Calera, is here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Mims.

Miss Della Wambem was in Birmingham last Thursday.

Frank DeLambert, of Beloit, Wis., spent a few days in our city last week.

Miss Della Mallach and Mrs. Parnell were in Clanton last Friday.

Mr. Williams and Mrs. Eaton, father and sister of Mr. Jacob Williams, of this city, returned to their homes in Rossville, Ohio, Monday morning.

Charles Edbert Grant, impersonator, will give an entertainment at the normal school hall October 29th at 7:30 p. m. for the benefit of a public library. The admission will be, adults 25 cents, children 15 cents.

The Baptists are engaged in a series of meetings at this place. Their services are being held in the Swedish Lutheran church.

J. G. Hay, of Bristol, Tenn., was here last week trying to establish a rural mail route. It is not settled yet whether or not he will succeed in establishing one.

Rev. Dickinson, of Jasper, will assist Rev. Windsor in his meeting that is being held here.

Miss Maude Bosworth, of Portland, Ind., arrived in this city last Wednesday. She is visiting her father.

Mr. R. C. Ray, who has been quite ill for the past few days, is reported some better.

Mrs. A. Horn and little daughter, Frances, are expected to return to their home in this city next Saturday.

Mr. Tom Collins, of Calera, was in our city Friday

Miss Mabel Malmgren is on the sick list.

Mr. Charles Howard, who has been in Chicago, returned to the "sunny south" for the winter.

Mr. Carlson returned to his home here last week. He has spent some time in northwestern Wisconsin.

J. J. Stanley made a business trip to Birmingham last Thursday.

The Fors millinery stock is now being closed out at greatly reduced prices.

Instead of Mr. A. Horn being elector of the fourth district on the prohibition ticket he is an elector at large.

"OTHELLO."

COLLINS CHAPEL.

On the 23d inst. the teachers and singers of Chilton county assembled at this place at 10 a. m. for the purpose of organizing a county singing convention and proceeded to business as follows: We sang a few songs, led by Professor J. L. Gore, after which Professor R. A. Rasco was called upon and made a speech on organization, which was followed by J. J. Grant, after which a few songs led by Prof R. D. Durham, then adjourned for dinner, which was plentiful and was enjoyed by the immense crowd present.

At 1:30 p. m. we reassembled and organized as follows: We elected for president, Prof. L. D. Durham; for vice president, Prof. J. L. Gore; for secretary, James Franklin; for treasurer, W. A. Mims, and for chaplain G. W. Gothard. Then there was a motion carried that the president appoint a committee of five, including himself as chairman of said committee, to frame a constitution and by-laws for said convention, which is as follows: R. D. Durham, J. L. Gore, J. W. Littleton, E. G. Cofer and J. B. Northcutt. A motion was carried to have a call meeting at Collins chapel on the fourth Sunday in November to meet at 10 a. m.; also that the county paper be furnished with the proceedings of this meeting for publication.

We enrolled thirty-two members and we believe that this convention will prove a success.

Yours for sacred song,
SECRETARY.

BEAT NINE ITEMS.

We are having a little cold snap just now, but the farmers are about through cotton picking. The topic with them now is whether it will pay to hold their cotton. Now, ye writer is not much of a cotton seer, but I will say that if I had cotton with the advantage the Chilton farmers have this year I'd sure hold on to it and risk the chances. A. F. Mims and wife made a business trip to Clanton Saturday. J. M. Poole and family went to Clanton Saturday. J. W. Hays is reported to have sold eight bales of cotton in Clanton Saturday. Rev. Smitherman filled his appointment at New Salem church Sunday and was chosen to serve the church another year. Rev. Lynch filled his last appointment at Cedar Grove church for this conference year, and the members voted unanimously to petition the conference to send him back to serve them another year.

NIMROD.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

The county candidates of the populist and republican parties will speak at the following times and places:

Littlejohn school house, beat 4, Saturday, Oct. 22, at 7 p. m.
Blow school house, beat 1, Thursday, Oct. 27, at 10 a. m.
Cane Creek, beat 11, Friday, Oct. 28, at 10 a. m.
Coopers, beat 10, Saturday, Oct 29, at 10 a. m.
Wadsworth's Mill, beat 10, Saturday, Oct. 29, at 7 p. m.
Kincheon, beat 6, Monday, Oct. 31, at 10 a. m.
Valley Creek, beat 8, Tuesday, Nov. 1, at 10 a. m.
Shoults, beat 7, Wednesday, Nov. 2, at 10 a. m.
Macedonia, beat 3, Thursday, Nov. 3, at 10 a. m.
Mars Hill, beat 2, Friday, Nov. 4, at 10 a. m.
Clanton, beat 4, Monday, Nov. 7, at 10 a. m.

Everybody, ladies especially, invited to attend these appointments. Outside speakers are expected. Judge R. M. Honeycutt has been invited and is expected to speak at Coopers, Valley Creek and Shoults. The opposition candidates who wish to meet with us at these appointments will please address the campaign committee.

W. H. SHAW,
Chairman Campaign Committee.
J. D. COLLINS,
Sec'y Cam. Com. tf

PROMINENT PEOPLE.

George Frederick Watts, the great English artist, died recently in London.

Jr. Juan N. Navarro, Mexican Consul-General at New York, died at his home there a few days ago.

Max Darenski, aged eight years, has won the London Academy of Music medal for pianoforte playing.

Dr. Chrysanzier, formerly the private secretary of Bismarck, is now a patient in a lunatic asylum at Hamburg.

It is proposed to honor the late Mayor McLane, of Baltimore, by naming a street in that city McLane Place.

Dr. E. G. d'Erf Browne, explorer in the Orient for the British Natural History Society, has been visiting the St. Louis Fair.

E. H. Harriman, the railroad magnate, has begun the erection of a splendid residence at Arden, near Middletown, N. Y.

General Booth's automobile "campaign" from Land's End, England, to Aberdeen, Scotland, took him over 1500 miles of road.

Another member of the dwindling band of Crimean veterans has passed away in Lieutenant-General Bourke, who died in London recently.

Yoshio Kinoshita, general passenger agent of the Imperial Government railways of Japan, is in America to make a study of our railroad methods.

Chang Yow Tong, former Secretary to the Chinese Imperial Commission to the World's Fair, has published a volume of poems that is both a tribute to American generosity and descriptive of the Exposition.

LOST.

A three year old heifer, color yellow, with white ring around nose and white tail with black bush. Anyone returning said animal or giving information that leads to her recovery will be liberally rewarded by applying to
tf THE UNION OFFICE.

AUCTION!

At Thorsby, Ala., on Saturday, Oct. 29th, 1 o'clock p m. about $200 of assorted merchandise will be sold by
D. C. HONEYCUTT,
Thorsby, Ala

WANTED

To buy or rent a house in Clanton, with barn and garden attached. Address
J. BICE,
Thorsby, Ala

The Sak's Store

Birmingham, Alabama.

READY-MADE Apparel for Men, Women and Children.

Our Mail Order Department is quick, efficient and serviceable.

Write for Catalogue

DRINK

CREAM of KENTUCKY Whisky.

Sold only by

COLLINS BROS., Calera, Alabama.

Mail orders promptly filled.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,

COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,

Clanton. Alabama

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.

Catalogue for the asking.

1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.

County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association

of Alabama.

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

By the People and for the People.

Chilton County Branch

Organized February 3rd, 1900.

W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.

Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

Full particulars furnished upon application to
WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

PAUL CALAME,

205 21st Street Birmingham, Ala.

Practical Watchmaker and Optician

Eyes Correctly Fitted

Mail orders promptly filled

A most complete

Stock of General Merchandise, Dress Goods, Etc.

The Millinery Department

is complete in every detail and is in charge of a first-class milliner, Miss Clara Small, of St. Louis

P. D. WILSON.

CLANTON, ALABAMA.

THE BUGABOO.

Brave Billy one day, with a whoop and horray,
Marched valiantly forth in his search for a fray;
All armed with a stick which he flourished and waved
In threatening style, while he shouted and raved.

Small children were nearly scared out of their clothes;
The cats hid away at the din that arose;
The hens loudly cackled, they ran and they flew,
While bold chanticleer showed his tail feathers, too.

The geese from their puddle with startled cry ran.
This terrible monster! What was it — a man?
No, never. No peaceable man ever yet
So hideous, came with such noisy threat.

"Ha, ha, and ho, ho!" Billy cried with delight.
"The enemy runs. I have put them to flight!"
Just then, with a slip, Billy stumbled and fell,
Which brought an entirely different yell.

The geese understood, for they turned short around
And saw their assailant sprawled flat on the ground.
This changed circumstances; the vicious old drake
Now charged with a vim that made Billy's heart quake.

He scrambled upright and he took to his heels.
The drake seemed to hiss, "Now you know how it feels
With bugaboos after you. Ho, ha, ho, ho!
It does our hearts good just to see how you go."

At last Billy said to himself: "What's the use
To be a poltroon at the hiss of a goose!"
He stopped. The drake stopped; and then each went his way—
Which curious thing leads the poet to say:

It isn't worth while to retreat till you know
The cause of alarm or the strength of your foe.
As long as you run from the old bugaboo
The bugaboo sure'y will run after you.
—W. W. S., in the Indianapolis News.

AN UNNECESSARY DISTINCTION.

The two expressions "by and by" and "by the bye" are really derived from the same original word, and the words "by" and "bye" have the same general sense. But the spelling "bye" has long been used in the second of these phrases, without any real reason for the change. We should not speak of a bye-law or a bye-path, and yet many are careful to write "by the bye" and "by and by." In "good-bye" there might be some reason for keeping the final "e," since it stands for the word "ye" in the shortened form of "God be with ye;" but where so much has been dropped the "e" is hardly worth keeping, especially as the old meaning is seldom recalled.—From "Books and Authors," in St. Nicholas.

GAMES FOR RAINY DAYS.

Lots of fun can be had with a peanut tournament. Have four people at each table and in the center of each have a large bowl of peanuts and a pair of tongs, such as come in candy boxes. Each person must try to remove the peanuts one at a time without stirring the other nutts. At the end of twenty minutes a bell is rung and the one having removed the largest number of peanuts is awarded a simple little prize.

Another simple and amusing pastime is to have a ring hung from the chandelier at a convenient distance from the floor. Each child must walk directly up to the rings and without hesitating try to run a pencil through the ring. This sounds very easy, but if you try it yourself you will be surprised how difficult it really is.

THE LIVING FLOWER SHOW.

One of the daintiest of entertainments is the flower show.

The flowers are all children. It is an easy matter to transform the sweet-childish face into a bright blossom. There is every opportunity for originality in carrying out the possible combinations and poses to make the flower show the success it deserves to be. A few hints will be all that is necessary to the versatile organizer.

Choose the fair-haired children for violets forget-me-nots, daffodils, bluebells and lilies. Take the black-haired babes for geraniums, red roses, etc. If there are any little red-haired youngsters let them be poppies.

Make the flower proper of large leaves of paper. Shape the petals as near as possible like the petals of the real flower. If the flower is variegated, ask some one accustomed to the use of water colors to paint certain characteristics of the petals upon the plain paper petals. Make the bare arms of the little people serve as stamens; yellow paper can be pollen where pollen is necessary. The faces, bright and eager, make the center of the flower. In case there are no stamens to be represented, let the child's arms form part of the outside of the flower, as in the moss rose, the fingers wound in green would make a capital representation of the mossy tendrils about the rosebud.

The flower should be large enough to make the body serve as the green calyx. The legs will serve as the stem, both wound in green, one leg set behind the other, so as not to show.

It is easy to make a child look like a flower, but the artistic work of the entertainment comes in making the "show" itself. Of course, everything must be in tableau.

A bed of red geraniums is effective in the shape of a star. The leaves and plants of the flowers can be made of paper. A bed of daffodils with paper foliage is attractive. The effectiveness of tall flowers is greatly added to by teaching the children to sway slightly, as if the flowers were stirred by a breeze. An old fashioned bouquet can be made up by arranging in mass a number of the living blossoms.

After the tableaux a flower drill and dance can be made an exquisite thing. Well known flower music can be used to make the work more effective—Cynthia Gray, in the Atlanta Journal.

THE GALLANTRY OF GINGER.

Wow, wow! Ginger, if you please. That is my name, and I wish to tell you I have had a terrible trial. My great trouble in this world is cats. I simply cannot endure them, and, judging by the way they growl and wail and spit and bend their backs and stiffen their tails at me, they feel no more friendly toward me than I do toward them.

There is just one pussy that I can tolerate, and she lives next door. I never call her a cat, even though she is one. I call her a dear old puss. Nancy is her name, and we have more fun than you can shake seven sticks at. Our playground is the grass plat in our backyard, and the way we chase and tumble and roll would bring a smile to the face of the wooden Indian at the cigar store.

But I draw the line just past Nancy, for she is a cat of sense, and remember, pray, that I myself have the credit of being the most sensible dog on our street. I know all the children, and they know me. There isn't one of them wouldn't feed me if I was hungry, and not one of them could be hired to disgrace me the way they do common curs by tying them to tin cans and kettles.

Yet I have had a dreadful trial right in my own house, as I started to tell you. I think it was Nora's fault—Nora is our domestic—but it was all on account of a young, unnecessary cat. Of course, I couldn't make war upon Nora, so I had to battle with the cat. Nora found the beast, lost and starving, on our front porch, and would bring it in, she pitied it so. I would have sent her scampering in a jiffy, but my lady mistress says to me, rather sharply:

"Now, Ginger, you must leave this kitty alone. Do you hear, sir?"

"O wow! Wow! Why?" I barked.

"Because Nora fee's sorry for her, and she needs protection," said my lady mistress, as she picked up the unnecessary cat, and rubbed down the bump on the wretched creature's back. She held the thing close to my nose, and I pretended to sneeze, and brushed my nose off with my paw. Then I backed away to the corner and sat down, looking as angry as possible. Indeed, I did not need to pretend being angry, for I was really boiling mad. When Nora came a few minutes later and set down my saucer with milk for that unnecessary beast. This crushed me. I felt weak. I closed my eyes in an effort to forget myself. Finding this impossible, I sneaked away, went down to the grocery, picked a sack out of a large basket, and proudly carried it home.

Nora took the sack and with an expression of surprise took it to my lady mistress. "Two heads of lettuce, a half dozen eggs and a cake of soap!" she exclaimed.

I stood by looking eagerly to see if my service had not won back their favor. My lady mistress stooped down and gave me a good-natured shaking, and said something that sounded like "scamp." I trotted to my corner and found—I can hardly speak it—found that hateful, unnecessary animal lying comfortably on my cushion, in my chair!

That was too much. I took her by the neck as gently as my feelings would allow, and, depositing her on the floor, took the place myself. And what do you suppose happened! The moment I saw myself on the chair and the weak little foundling on the floor I felt ashamed. My lady mistress looked as if she felt ashamed of me. I lay still a few minutes, and then, in a manner that must have seemed very sheepish, I slid to the floor, picked up that little creature and put it back on the chair. Then I crept away to a corner, and there my lady mistress came after a while to fondle me as of old, and call me her own pet Ginger. The next day I found that Nora had given the foundling away to a friend of hers who really wanted a cat. She will not be an unnecessary cat there; and I hope she may live happily.—Indianapolis News.

A prominent citizen of New Zealand left last month with his family for Ireland, where he says he can get land cheaper and make more money.

Gibraltar's 200 Years

Taken by Rooke in 1704 as an Afterthought, Now Britain's Bride.

By Roland McNeill in the Nineteenth Century and After.

ON August 4, 1704 (new style), the Rock of Gibraltar was captured by Great Britain and it has remained in her possession from that day to this. Among the many possessions scattered all over the globe that are comprised in the British Empire to-day there is none that the nation holds with greater tenacity for reasons both of sentiment and of material interest and none that it would lose with more poignant shame and sorrow that the redoubtable stronghold we took from Spain at the beginning of the reign of Queen Anne.

The fact that throughout the eighteenth century, when so many conquests in both hemispheres changed hands backward and forward in successive wars and under successive treaties, Gibraltar remained permanently in the keeping of England, might seem to prove that British sentiment with regard to it was from the first the same as it is to-day. But this is far from having been the case. For, although at the end of 200 years of our possession of the fortress, at a time when the imperial instinct of Englishmen has become more consciously developed and more deeply ingrained than ever before, and at the same time more intelligently appreciative of the true meaning of sea power and alive to the strategical requirements of its maintenance, the retention of the key of the Mediterranean has become an essential article of our political creed, it was a considerable time before the immense value of the acquisition was fully realized by British statesmen.

It seems strange enough to us to remember that King George I, and his Ministers were ready to give up Gibraltar merely to secure Spain's acquiescence in the arrangement by which the Quadruple Alliance was anxious to make some pettifogging modifications in the shuffle of territories effected by the treaty of Utrecht, but it is still more extraordinary that so clear-sighted, patriotic and high-spirited an empire builder as Lord Chatham himself should have made a similar offer as an inducement to Spain to help us to recover Minorca—and this, moreover, at a time when the fortress has been in our hands for more than half a century and its vital importance to our growing maritime supremacy had already been abundantly proved in the naval wars of the period. Happily the Spaniards were as blind as ourselves to the supreme importance of the position commanding the road from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean.

The truth is, as readers of Mahan do not need to be reminded, that the importance of sea power and the nature of the foundations on which it is based were very imperfectly grasped even by England in the seventeenth and the first half of the eighteenth century and scarcely at all by any other European power. Occasionally at intervals some statesmen like Colbert in France, or Alberoni in Spain, had more than an inkling of the truth, but no nation except England made deliberate and sustained efforts with a view to maritime development. Even England did so rather by instinct than by insight.

Of this blindness to the true principles of maritime policy the taking of Gibraltar and its history during the following three-quarters of a century afford a striking illustration. Just as the vast importance of its acquisition was at the time underrated both by England and Spain, so its actual capture by the former was an afterthought and (it may almost be said) an accident. It became a British possession in the first instance because at a time when we happened to be at war with one of the rival claimants to the Spanish throne our admiral in the Mediterranean happened to have no particular objective in view, and, having failed in his only enterprise of that year, was unwilling to return home with a fine fleet that had done nothing for the honor of the flag. So he thought he might as well make an attack on Gibraltar as do anything else. Nevertheless, his action has to be reckoned among the notable "deeds that won the empire," and one that on its bi-centennary deserves to be held in remembrance.

Grilled Lion Steaks.

An explorer, who has often, by compulsion, eaten the flesh of animals not generally used as human food, says that grilled lion steaks are delicious and much superior to those of the tiger; that the flesh of the rhinoceros, properly prepared, has all the good qualities of pork; that the trunk and feet of young elephants resemble veal, and that stewed boa constrictor is a splendid substitute for rabbit.

Queer Way of Telling Time.

In Malay the natives keep a record of time in a remarkable manner. Floating in a bucket filled with water they place a cocoanut shell having a small perforation, through which by slow degrees the water finds its way inside. This opening is so proportioned that it takes just one hour for the shell to fill and sink. Then a watchman calls out, the shell is emptied and the operation is begun again.

AGAINST MAIL ORDERS.

Country Merchants Fight Catalogue Houses Through Local Workites.

Cronin Brothers, owning a general store at Morris, Ill., a town between three thousand and four thousand people, publish large interesting ads in the local newspaper, advocating buying at home and offering to sell at same prices as the large Chicago houses, if freight, etc., be added. The announcements are so large as to make their reproduction an impossibility. In the paragraphs below, the gist of one of them is given without display:

We propose to meet the prices of the department stores or catalogue houses.

All we ask is that you deal with us on the same basis that you deal with catalogue houses, and give us the same amount of time to get the goods which it would require to get them from them. Plank your money down when you order the goods and we will meet each and every price they make and furnish you the same goods at the same prices they offer you.

We will go further.

We don't ask you to take any goods where mistakes are made in ordering. We'll shoulder the mistakes. If any of you have ever had anything come wrong you know what a nice little job it is to get it corrected, no matter how willing the firm is to do so. It takes correspondence, stamps and freight on the goods to get them exchanged, to say nothing of the loss of time.

Some people prefer to buy away from home because it sounds big to be able to say they ordered from Chicago, etc. We know of one party who is actually paying more for goods bought away from Morris than he could buy them of his dealer here. This kind of people we can do nothing for, but the kind who are making the dollar go just as far as they can, we can and will do something for. Give us a trial on the proposition we make, if you are one of those who have been buying away from home. Bring your catalogue with you. If we fail to furnish the goods without a reasonable excuse don't give us your confidence again. Try us once. We don't fear the result. We are residents of Morris. We are your home merchants. We help pay taxes. We have to live and consume some of your products.

Is our proposition wrong?

The whole trouble about our people about Morris is the same with which so many communities are suffering. That old slow-coach credit. Some of it so slow we never get it. No merchant can sell goods cheap on that plan. The dollar invested in goods today and sold for cash to-morrow can be invested in more goods the following day and the same process of sale may be repeated, but the dollar invested in goods to-day and sold on credit to-morrow is tied up just so long as you don't get it back, and its earning capacity is stopped for the merchant until he gets it back again. Can you wonder why the catalogue house has the advantage in price over most of your home merchants? The catalogue house won't trust you; even demands the money in advance with no goods in sight. Your home merchant often trusts and often to his sorrow, even though 100 per cent. sometimes be his profit. Many times a seeming profit of 25 per cent. on goods sold to a good man turns out to be merely a small interest on the money invested because of slow pay. Treat your home merchant like you are compelled to treat your catalogue house and we think you will get better results.

Omnivorous Polly.

Wallace Maxfield's parrot, it is said, is receiving a remarkable education. It is understood that Mr. Maxfield is teaching the bird to tell some of his best stories. "As my parrot will live to be nearly a hundred years old, barring automobile rides," said Mr. Maxfield the other day, "I have plenty of time to teach her before she dies."

It is further understood that the bird is now studying the second verse of the story about the G. A. R. veteran who had his face so full of bullets that it turned the edge of the razor to shave him.

"What does your parrot eat?" was asked Mr. Maxfield the other day.

"Well," answered Wallace as he carefully adjusted the ash of his pipe, "anything that is suitable for an elephant is fit for my Polly. She'll eat anything from bananas to lace curtains."—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Chinese Burial Customs.

When a rich and important Chinaman dies his funeral is conducted with much pomp and splendor. His friends and relatives, instead of sending wreaths, send innumerable banners. These are made of white silk, with inscriptions beautifully worked in black velvet, and express the senders' good wishes to the deceased, himself or to members of his family for many generations. On the day of the funeral these banners are carried by hired men, who are all dressed alike for the occasion. After the funeral, which lasts several hours at the cemetery, is over the banners are all brought back, and eventually grace the rooms of the late Chinaman's house.

An Accurate Timekeeper.

The best timekeeper in the world is said to be the electric clock in the basement of the Berlin Observatory, which was installed by Prof. Foerster in 1865. It is enclosed in an airtight glass cylinder and has frequently run for periods of two and three months with an average daily deviation of only 15-1000 of a second. Astronomers are making efforts to improve even this and to secure ideal conditions for the clock by keeping it not only in an airtight case, but in an underground vault, where neither changes of temperature nor of barometric pressure shall ever affect it.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

A pneumatic tube for the transfer of packages between Chicago and Milwaukee is proposed.

It bodes no good to pocketbooks when women begin to admire fall hats.

The stork is said to be getting more common in France. It seems, however, to have lost its influence.

The death of Prince Bismarck simply serves to acquaint the world with the fact that the real Prince Bismarck had a son.

If King Edward's attempt to reintroduce knee breeches should be a success, what a run on the physical culture schools there'd be!

Some Georgia girls have declared that no one shall kiss them except relatives. That must be a strong hint to the young men to speak up and get married.

Physicians insist that copper is a germ destroyer, although Tom Lawson declares that the speculative germ fattens on a copper diet, says the Washington Post.

The Russian war pictures drawn by the artists "on the spot" look as though they might have been copied out of Fox's Book of Martyrs, declares the Syracuse Post-Standard.

There will be time for a good many "bridal tours" before Niagara Falls disappears, if Prof. Gilbert is right in estimating that it is "good" to last 3,500 years.

Frank J. Gould has just purchased 2,000 acres of land in Virginia to use as a game reserve. The Birmingham Herald thinks he should have negotiated for the State.

Airships that will stay in the air and submarine boats that will not stay on the bottom all the time are yet to be consummated, although the latter is nearer reality than the former.

Lewis Yost, of St. Louis, won a bride by demonstrating that he could live on 15 cents a day. Almost any woman can afford a husband who does not cost more than that for his "keep," the New York Tribune comments.

The police say that the women's fashion of carrying handbags is responsible for the many hold-ups. As in the days of Adam, the woman is to blame, says the Chicago Evening Post.

Good wishes for that Italian baby are very sincere because everybody respects the high character of the parents of the little Prince of Piedmont, King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena, says the Buffalo Courier.

Dame Fashion decrees that the leg-o-mutton sleeve must be the thing for women this season. If her vagaries had evolved a side-of-beef sleeve the Bankruptcy Court might have to resort to a night shift of Judges, declares the Baltimore Sun.

A Newark, N. J., man woke up to find that his home had been entered by a freight train and that one car had fallen through into the cellar. A "gondola" loaded with coal stopped outside in the street, however. Such is the perversity of fate sometimes, remarks the Boston Transcript.

The dressmakers' convention that convened in New York recently has decided that gowns may be fastened either front or back, but none but slender women are to use the back fastenings. No doubt the stout women will be greatly incensed by this suggestion. Surely they can't expect to advertise a belief in their own stoutness by parading these front fastenings, says the Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

The New York Mail has finally fixed the responsibility for the baldheadedness of the men of this generation, the Watertown Times-Standard states. It is the nightcap that did the mischief, and while it did not make the generation that wore it baldheaded, it weakened the hair producing organs and subsequent generations have had to pay for the same. That is The New York Mail's explanation. It is just as good as any. Still the musician's explanation given a short time ago, that baldheadedness was caused by antagonistic vibrations of certain tunes, is rather better, because it appears so much more scientific and gives range for wider speculation.

Richest Mexican.

General Luis Terrazas, "the richest Mexican," is going to make a tour of the United States. General Terrazas is a person who is said to be worth, on a conservative estimate, $200,000,000. He has a heap of gold, real cash, so we are told, amounting to about $150,000,000, or perhaps a few millions more. He is called the largest individual land owner in the world. His real estate is said to be about 20,000,000 acres, consisting of fifteen huge ranches or haciendas. The rich Mexican has fifteen farms, each one of which is almost as large as the state of Delaware. He is the reputed owner of herds of cattle supposed to number about 1,000,000; towns are situated in his domains; he has banks and factories; 10,000 rustlers and cowboys round up his cattle.—Kansas City Journal.

THE SUNDAY SC

INTERNATIONAL LESSON CO FOR OCTOBER 30.

Subject: Elisha at Dothan. II K 6-23—Memory Verses, 15-17 Text, Psalm xxxiv., 7—Gol on the Day's Lesson.

I. Elisha assisting the King (vs. 8-12). 8. "King of Syria." Jo III., who sent the letter agains (2 Kings 5:5-7). A powerful k ing thirty-two vassal kings w the first siege of Samaria (1 Ki He was killed by Hazael (2 K "Warred." Not an open war sultory skirmishing. The plan o ian king was to set an ambush t tempt the king of Israel to h 9. "Man of God." Jehovah rael not by kings, mighty armies generals, but by the man of God might be seen that salvation w work of human strength or wi due to the God of Israel. "Be on the lookout. "Are come dow coming down." R. V. God that the wicked are doing and employ this knowledge for the the good. 10. "King of I A party of troops to preoccupy and thus the Syrians found had been detected. It is prob whenever the Syrians are selected for attack they found Israelitish forces already there himself." Those who carried God's directions will have no di fort-generaling the foe. No vice." This was done repeatedly 11. "Sore troubled." Vexed grined that all his plans were m to Israel, and that they could all his stratagems with derision me." When his design was thus edly frustrated it was natural of treachery among his own pe "One of his servants." From so ite this Syrian may have obta knowledge. "Telleth." A conf the boundless knowledge, as, before boundless power, of Israel's G torted from the Syrians. "In chamber." In the greatest po crecy.

II. The Syrians seek Elisha (v 13. "Go and spy." How blind to that He who could tell his secret could not also frustrate the move his spies. "In Dothan." Dothan "two wells" or "the double foun was situated on the south side of of Jezreel.

14. "Horses and chariots." W conscious tributes had men pay influences! The king sent "hor chariots and a great host" to ta whose sword was the word of helmet was the defense of the M whose breast-plate was right Even had it been possible to k God could easily raise up and another prophet. "By night." the city by surprise and Elisha s out any warning or opportunity cape.

15. "Servant. "Or minister." margin. "A special servant, chosen from one of the schools prophets." He had only been since Gehazi's dismissal, and had perience of his master's power faith was easily shaken. "Rise We may have been aroused by t of the Syrians. "Alas." Contrast ror of the servant with the ca the prophet. "How shall we d worst of unbelief is, that it not courage for itself, but assumes other Christians are in the same

III. God delivers Elisha (v 16. "Fear not." Elisha speaks whose eyes are opened and who God's protection whether he be angelic host about him or not. the fears of his servant, I. b his own faith in God. 2. By young man to catch a glimpse protectors. "Are more." The pe has God with him has more than can possibly be against him. God is a majority.

17. "Open his eyes." His ser are open and he sees the da open the eyes of his faith that see the protection. The grace ness we can do for the fearful a hearted is to pray for them, a recommend them to the mighty God. The opening of our eyes o our fears; the clearer sight of the power of heaven, the less fear the calamities of earth. "I opened." God opened his serv unveiled his inner sense. "Mou full." How thickly crowded t ual world must be when such s be spared for Elisha alone. "H chariots." Horses and chariots to match horses and chariots of invader. When Judas came to mane with a detachment of t guard, Christ said, "Thinkest t I cannot beseech My Father, and even now send Me more than t gions of angels?" The reserve ers and that I am to look for the same military order as the Ezekiel, Isaiah and John, when scribe the divine equipage, ver a wheeled, harnessed conflagrat means purity, justice, chastise liverance through burning cata lot of rescue? Yes, but chariot

18. "They." The Syrian army down." From the surroundin which they were encamped. Elisha, to capture him, which object in coming to Dothan. It in the character of Elisha to go the city with his now courageous "Elisha prayed." He had prayed servant that he might see. He now prayed for his enemies might be withheld from doing they designed to do. For the eyes of his understanding were ened; but for the Syrians the failed them. They were as ca not to know the place to be Dot recognize Elisha. They grope ness. Thus protection came in prayer. God is merciful to sinn his defeats their plans and wi from crime. "Smote with bl Not the usual Hebrew word for but a compound word meaning to shine. The resulting idea is that of dazzling. This would de lucination rather than total blin

IV. Elisha's treatment of his (vs. 19-23). 19. "He led them to S There is a sort of irony in these Elisha, which virtually treated th with derision.

20. "They saw." Elisha led the mies to Samaria and then their restored and they found themse tives in the midst of their enem When Jehoram, the king of Isra there he asked Elisha if he sho them. 22. Elisha strongly d this and ordered them to be w sent back to Benhadad. 23. The of Elisha's kindness was that ians ceased this sort of warfare Israel.

Burying two women in one g was done at Assaria, Kan., by same thing as requiring two to live in the same house. Sin persons are placed in their s is for a mighty long time, decla Kansas City Star.

Lighting fires for the comfort in which some people in Man England, earn a living. Strict must not light fires or candles Sabbath, which begins on Fri sunset.

SERMON FOR SUNDAY

REPENT D SCOURSE ENTITLED, CRIFYING THE FATHER."

By the Rev. Dr. Thomas H. Mc of Brooklyn, N. Y.—We can God Real, We Can Make the Sublime.

lyn, N. Y.—Upon his return to from his vacation, the Rev. Dr. . McLeod, pastor of the Clinton Congregational Church, preached st sermon Sunday morning on the Father." The text was om John xv:8: "Herein is My rified that ye bear much fruit, be My disciples." Dr. McLeod hat, dear friends, are all New representations of religion? the New Testament with the eth- ing, or religious teaching of all in this respect, and you are ished. There is nothing me- in them, nothing formal, nothing al—every process is a process of no use for a man, or for men, to they have. Abraham for their religion is not a matter of who a estors were; it is a matter of m himself is. Jesus has given us thy sentence His estimate of the the claim that is based on de- hereditv, on social prestige, when that God could raise up, or make unto Abraham out of the very the roadside. The concern that God, when it comes to the matter , is whether a man is a living a dead stick. The hedge, though dge of flowers or roses, in which occurs, does not make the stake thing. The line of descent in man stands, nor the social posi- occupies, nor the church of which attendant, or a member, is noth- man may after all be nothing in a dead stake in a hedge. was a certain fine man, a fine man religiously, politically—one of the en as men went—came to Jesus inquiry on the subject of religion. reverent and devout and respect- courteous and cultured and learned, and teacher of the people, a lec- ethics, but when it came to reli- said to that man, "Ye must be n." The vitality of the represen- find in the New Testament reli life; "I have come that ye might and that ye might have it more ly."

of tests. Not simply of the rep- ons or descriptions of religion, but tests, the New Testament tests . How are we to know that we Christians? How are we to t others are living Christians? New Testament pushes us up to of urgent belief, and insists on he test is fruit, not leaves, not t fruit, and that fruitfulness is essential thing that shall triumph test. Jesus may endure barren- de of the church, but He cannot inside of the church. A bramble ods is bearable, but a bramble in rd, that is intolerable. "By their shall know them. Men do not of thistles or grapes of thorns." of God is perfect, fruitful unto works."

tle stress Jesus lays upon those are so universally adopted and nd admitted to be sufficiently ad- ttendance upon religious ordin- scription to creed and statement, servance of rites and ceremonies: nothing of all that, and He us, friends, just as He came to e, leafy fig tree by the wayside, for fruit, not for leaves, not for not for florescence, not for fo- ht in sacred music, not for fond- literary side of religion, not for petite for well digested and pre- th, but for fruit—fruit, and He closer to us, friends, than any- can come—than our dearest and e come—for, after all, these can tside appearances. He sees real- y see things that pass for good , born, it may be, of wicked of self-conceit. He sees right the centre of the soul, and He is fruit. What shall He find in e? Fruit or leaves, or just bare is fruitfulness. Now that ought ny test to apply, and it surely, a safe test to apply—for you and y to our own selves. But then, ay say, "Well, what constitutes e?" I am ready now to lay bare fore God; I am ready now to go y face before God and apply the ready now for heart-searching, asure myself by this standard, t to know what constitutes e." "What are the fruits that rts and that I am to look for ich I am to measure myself?" Bible is simply full of that. It e whole thing so plain, and so so variously that a wayfaring a fool need not mistake as to fulness in the Christian life is. "Blessed are the poor in spirit." we are examining ourselves fruits. "Blessed are the poor in ed are the meek; blessed are l (the good hearted); blessed re in heart; blessed are the r; blessed are they who have a relish now and then, but a thirst after righteousness— These are the fruits that the an is expected to grow in his

e says, the fruits, or the fruit it, is love, joy, long suffering, ness, faith, temperance. The Christian is to develop, that oped, that Jesus will expect if —love—the heart of all good- God and love to man. "Who his brother whom he hath seen, he love God—how can he love he hath not seen?" Fruit: love in fellowship with God; joy in with believers; joy in service . Love—joy—peace. Content- under all circumstances; the conviction, of thought and af- ng suffering—patient endur- in affliction, but patient en- wrong and provocation; and temperance and all the rest. fruitfulness mean? It means velopment or achievement of t will approve itself to God. owth of character does not ex- pectation of Christ concerning not exhaust the fruit which has to bear. There is other ead that passage again and you the tenor of it has to do with llowship with Jesus, fellow- purpose to redeem this world sus is not thinking altogether His disciples are to get through with Him, but He is thinking ood which His disciples are to llowship with Him. Not alto- t His disciples are to receive, His disciples are to achieve. branch abide in the vine it h no fruit. If ye abide in Me abide in you, ye shall bring fruit."

we limit the range of the and our hearts and minds on getting, getting, getting— oying, enjoying—that we are ords of Christ concerning do- ing. Apart from the vine the bear no fruit; apart from the vine cannot bear fruit. And we come up to something bring you and me very lowly Lowly, not so much with the rification and penitence, but of exultant joy. It befits us to e our dependence upon Christ, but here w pendence branch ca in the vi fruit with Paul puts when he and numb that body members hand, no ear to he the body are the cr works; we Christ hol We are th Christ de clothe the build hom prison do supposing sinned, ho are the s publish a message o vation, but He do at?"

And yet t us all. Apa withers; it e vine, the bra and we may Father. Gl with radiance man. Make God-real; we in the eyes o it. We can live our relig grace of God our light shi and friends, shall glorify Perfection, not be found with God. An heir of has a heritag the generation all things th he finds that flesh is weak, voyage of the sins often ha he thinks it with God and attributes of cause of his breath is a p was so far fr whole nights the mountain from His co again, is decei things of God below an eart death and by cal rule of th millenial reign

Increasin

Some one ha is another op His grace and thought will p tate upon it. portunity!" glorious? Wh God has richly vice we can se think of ourse

Every one t "Come!" gives world.

Every one v "Go!" means G in the hearts heart and life God plants Hi fountain out streams of heal

Take it hom say to yourself, He that and yo ably grand an ably sweet.—A

One T

Each one in sponsible sharer part with our do our part w Apostle John true of good d greeting partak By our well wi in what others thing in the nex to welcome suc workers." Wha what we welcom hear of it—in How wide reach nities of even great is the wo can be engaged coming, or spe enter into the receive a prophe heart and do ou

Ever On

We are comm love God contin and in everyth reason is in acc joining this duty onward and upw by infinite possi ment invite him ing footstep.

Th

"Are these ma ist in a Florentin admit that I do self!" "These p swer, "are not c who are on trial, on trial, not th Observer.

ES AND COMMENT.

natic tube for the transfer s between Chicago and Mil-proposed.

no good to pocketbooks
en begin to admire fall

k is said to be getting more France. It seems, how-ve lost its influence.

ath of Prince Bismarck
ves to acquaint the world that the real Prince Bisa son

Edward's attempt to reinbreeches should be a
at a run on the physical s the'd be!

ina girls have declared shall kiss them except must be a strong hint men to speak up and

gnist that copper is a ver, though Tom Lawson
at the speculative germ
a copper diet, says the Post.

an war pictures drawn by on the spot" look as might have been copied
Book of Martyrs, de-Syracuse Post-Standard.

e time for a good many s" before Niagara Falls
If Prof. Gilbert is right in that it is "good" to last

Gould has just purchased of land in Virginia to use reserve. The Birmingham
ks he should have nego-
e State.

that will stay in the air
ne boats that will not stay om all the time are yet mmated, although the lat-reality than the former.

st, of St. Louis, won a monstrating that he could nts a day. Almost any afford a husband who does e than that for his keep,"
k Tribune comments.

e say that the women's carrying handbags is re-r the many hold-ups. As of Adam, the woman is ays the Chicago Evening

nes for that Italian baby mpre because everybody
ligh character of the pa-
Prince of Piedmont,
Emmanuel and Queen
the Buffalo Courier.

hion decrees that the lege must be the thing for season. If her vagaries a side-of-beef sleeve the court might have to resort shift of Judges, declares
Sun.

N. J., man woke up to home had been entered train and that one car rough into the cellar. A aded with coal stopped
e street, however. Such rsity of fate sometimes.
Boston Transcript.

makers' convention that
New York recently has gowns may be fastened or back, but none but men are to use the back
No doubt the stout women
ly incensed by this sugly they can't expect to lief in their own stout-ading these front fasten-Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

ish Mail has finally fixed city for the baldheadedmen of this generation,
n Times-Standard states.
ap that did the mis-
it did not make the hat wore it baldheaded; it hair producing organs generations have had the same. That is The all's explanation. It is as any. Still the mual-ation given a short time dheadedness was caused e vibrations of certain ch, more scientific and for wider speculation.

hest Mexican.

uis Terrazas, "the rich-
" is going to make a United States. General
a person who is said to a conservative estimate,
He has a heap of gold,
we are told, amounting 50,000,000, or perhaps a more. He is called the dual land owner in the ual estate is said to be 000 acres, consisting of ranches or haciendas.
xican has fifteen farms,
which is almost as large of Delaware. He is the r of herds of cattle supmber about 1,000,000;
tuated in his domains;
s and factories; 10,000
cowboys round up his
as City Journal.

THE SUNDAY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON CO
FOR OCTOBER 2

Subject: Elisha at Dothan, II
8-23.—Memory Verses, 15-
Text, Psalm xxxiv., 7—C on the Day's Lesson.

I. Elisha assisting the King
(vs. 8-12). 8. "King of Syria.
II., who sent the letter about (2 Kings 5:5-7). A powerful k ing thirty-two vassal kings wi the first siege of Samaria (1 K
He was killed by Hazael (2 Kin
"Warred." Not an open war sultory skirmishing. The plan o ian king was to set an ambush tempt the king of Israel to hi
9. "Man of God." Jehovah r rael not by kings, mighty armi generals, but by the man of Go might be seen that salvation work of human strength or wi due to the God of Israel. "Be on the lookout. "Are come do coming down." R. V. God that the wicked are doing, and employ this knowledge for the
the good. 10. "King of I-A party of troops to pre-occupy and thus the Syrians found the had been detected. It is prob whenever the Syrians arrived a selected for attack they found Israelitish forces already there himself." Those who careful God's directions will have no di in generating the foe. "Not once." This was done repeate 11. "Sore troubled." Vexed grined that all his plans were ma to Israel, and that they could all his stratagems with decision me." When his design was thu edly frustrated it was natural of treachery among his own pe
"One of his servants." From so ite this Syrian may have obta knowledge. "Telleth." A confe
the boundless knowledge, as, befo boundless power, of Israel's Go torted from the Syrians. "In chamber." In the greatest po crecy.
12. The Syrians seek Elisha (v
13. "Go and spy." How blind t that He who could tell his secret could not also frustrate the move his spies. "In Dothan." Dotha
"two wells" or "the double four was situated on the south side of of Jezreel.
14. "Horses and chariots." W conscious tributes had men pay influences! The king sent "hor chariots and a great host" to tak whose sword was the word of Go helmet was the defense of the M whose breast-plate was righte
Even had it been possible to ki
God could easily raise up and another prophet. "By night."
the city by surprise and Elisha w out any warning or opportunity cape.
15. "Servant. "Or minister.
margin. "A special servant,
chosen from one of the schools prophets." He had only been since Gehazi's dismissal, and had perience of his master's power faith was easily shaken. "Rise le may have been aroused by the of the Syrians. "Alas." Contrast ror of the servant with the ca
the prophet. "How shall we do worst of unbelief is, that it not o courage for itself, but assumes other Christians are in the same
III. God delivers Elisha (vs
16. "Fear not." Elisha speaks whose eyes are opened and who God's protection whether he be angelic host about him or not.
the fears of his servant. 1. By young man to catch a glimpse protectors. "Are more." The pe has God with him has more than can possibly be against him.
God is a majority.
17. "Open his eyes." His nat are open and he sees the dang open the eyes of his faith that see the protection. The greate ness we can do for the fearful a hearted is to pray for them, a recommend them to the mighty God. The opening of our eyes w our fears; the clearer sight we the power of heaven, the less fear the calamities of earth.
opened." God opened his spirit unveiled his inner sense. "Mount ful." How Dickly crowded th ual world must be when such a be spared for Elisha alone. "He chariots." Horses and chariots w to match horses and chariots of the invader. When Judas came to mane with a detachment of the guard, Christ said, "Thinkest t I cannot beseech My Father, and even now send Me more than t hosts of angels." The reserves the same military order as the fo Ezekiel, Isaiah and John, when scribe the divine equipage, repres a wheeled, harnessed conflagratio means purity, justice, chastisem liverance through burning escapes out of rescue? Yes, but chariot of 18. "They." The Syrian army down." From the surrounding which they were encamped.
Elisha, to capture him, which w object in coming to Dothan. It w in the character of Elisha to go fo the city with his now courageous
"Elisha prayed." He had praye servant that he might see God
He now prayed for his enemies might be withheld from doing they designed to do. For the se eyes of his understanding were open; but for the Syrians their failed them. They were as con not to know the place to be Dot recognize Elisha. They groped a mes. Thus protection came in a prayer. God is merciful to smo his defeats their plans and from crime. "Smote with bl
Not the usual Hebrew word for but a compound word meaning to shine. The resulting idea that of dazzling. This would illumination rather than total los IV. Elisha's treatment of (vs. 19-23). 19. "He led them to
There is a sort of irony in these Elisha, which virtually treated th with derision.
20. "They saw." Elisha led the mies to Samaria and then their restored and they found themse then in the midst of their ene
When Jehoram, the king of Is them, he asked Elisha if he s them. 22. Elisha wrongly ord this and ordered them to be we sent back to Benhadad. 23. T of Elisha's kindness was that this caused this sort of warfa later.

Burying two women in one g was done at Azaria, Kan., in same thing as requiring two to live in the same house. Si persons are placed in their s is for a mighty long time, dec

Kansas City Star.

Lighting fires for the amuse
in which some people in Ma England, earn a living. Str must not light fires or candle Sabbath, which begins on F sunset.

SERMON FOR SUNDAY

REVIVENT DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "GLORIFYING THE FATHER."

Delivered by the Rev. Dr. Thomas B. Mc-Leod of Brooklyn, N. Y.—We Can Make God Real, We Can Make the Sublime.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Upon his return to city from his vacation, the Rev. Dr.
Thomas B. McLeod, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church, preached an excellent sermon Sunday morning on "Glorifying the Father." The text was from John xv:8: "Herein is My Father glorified that ye bear much fruit, so shall ye be My disciples." Dr. McLeod
said:

Beloved, dear friends, are all New Testament representations of religion!
Turn to the New Testament with the ethical, or religious teaching of all religions in this respect, and you are astonished. There is nothing mechanical in them, nothing formal, nothing mechanical—every process is a process of life. No use for a man, or for men, to say they have Abraham for their father. Religion is not a matter of who a man's ancestors were; it is a matter of life in himself is. Jesus has given us the sentence His estimate of the false claim that is based on descent, heredity, on social prestige, when that God could raise up, or make children unto Abraham out of the very stones of the roadside. The concern that God has, when it comes to the matter of life, is whether a man is a living branch or a dead stick. The hedge, though made up of flowers or roses, in which the heart recurs, does not make the stake a living thing. The line of descent in which a man stands, nor the social position he occupies, nor the church of which he is an attendant, or a member, is nothing. A man may after all be nothing more than a dead stake in a hedge.
Here is a certain fine man, a fine man religiously, politically—one of the best men as men went—came to Jesus with an inquiry on the subject of religion.
He was a different and devout and respectable, courteous and cultured and learned, a good teacher of the people, a lecturer on ethics, but when it came to religion he said to that man, "Ye must be born again." The vitality of the representations found in the New Testament religion is life; "I have come that ye might have life and that ye might have it more abundantly."

All tests. Not simply of the representations or descriptions of religion, but of all tests, the New Testament tests life. How are we to know that we are Christians? How are we to know that others are living Christians?
The New Testament pushes us up to the point of urgent belief, and insists on the test is fruit, not leaves, not bare fruit, and that fruitfulness is the essential thing that shall triumph the test. Jesus may endure barrenness of the church, but He cannot tolerate of the church. A bramble bush is bearable, but a bramble in fruit, that is intolerable. "By their fruits shall know them. Men do not gather of thistles or grapes of thorns."
The fruit of God is perfect, fruitful unto good works."

The witness Jesus lays upon those who are so universally adopted and so admitted to be sufficiently adequate dependance upon religious ordinances, subscription to creed and statement, observance of rites and ceremonies;
nothing of all that, and He says, friends, just as He came to the leafy figtree by the wayside, looking for fruit, not for leaves, not for flowers, not for florescence, not for fondness for literary side of religion, not for appetite for well digested and prepared, but for fruit—fruit, and He comes closer to us, friends, than any-man can come—than our dearest and best can come—for, after all, these can but make appearances. He sees reality, sees things that pass for good now, born, it may be, of wicked pride of self-conceit. He sees right into the centre of the soul, and He is looking for fruit. What shall He find in you? Fruit or leaves, or just bare stalks?

As to fruitfulness. Now that ought to be a easy test to apply, and it surely is a safe test to apply—for you and for me to our own selves. But then, you may say, "Well, what constitutes fruit? I am ready now to lay bare before God; I am ready now to go face to face before God and apply the test; I am ready now for heart-searching, to assure myself by this standard, and to know what constitutes fruit." "What are the fruits that I see and that I am to look for which I am to measure myself?"
The Bible is simply full of that. It makes the whole thing so plain, and so unmistakably—variously that a wayfaring man, a fool need not mistake as to fruitfulness in the Christian life is.
"Blessed are the poor in spirit."
Now we are examining ourselves by fruits. "Blessed are the poor in spirit are the meek; blessed are they that mourn (the good hearted); blessed are the pure in heart; blessed are the peacemakers are they who have learned a relish now and then, but a constant thirst after righteousness—fruits. Those are the fruits that the Christian is expected to grow in his life.

The grace, the fruits, or the fruit of the spirit, is love, joy, long suffering, gentleness, faith, temperance. The fruit the Christian is to develop, that God hoped, that Jesus will expect if He come—love—the heart of all goodness, God and love to man. "Who loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God—how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" Fruit: love and joy in fellowship with God; joy in fellowship with believers; joy in service of love. Love—joy—peace. Contentment under all circumstances; the conviction, of thought and affection, suffering—patient endurance in affliction, but patient enduring and provocation; and then temperance and all the rest.
What fruitfulness mean? It means development or achievement of life will approve itself to God.
Growth of character does not expectation of Christ concerning not exhaust the fruit which has to bear. There is other read that passage again and you the tenor of it has to do with fellowship with Jesus, fellow-purpose to redeem this world
Jesus is not thinking altogether
His disciples are to get through with Him, but He is thinking well which His disciples are to fellowship with Him. Not alto-that His disciples are to receive,
His disciples are to achieve.
branch abide in the vine it no fruit. If ye abide in Me abide in you, ye shall bring fruit."

Do we limit the range of the life and our hearts and minds on getting, getting, getting—saying, enjoying—that we are deeds of Christ concerning doing. Apart from the vine the bear no fruit; apart from the vine cannot bear fruit. And we come up to something among you and me very lowly Lowly, not so much with the humiliation and penitence, but penitent joy. It befits us to our dependence upon Christ, but here we have Christ confessing His dependence on us. Marvelous thing! "The branch cannot bear of itself except it abide in the vine," and the vine cannot bear fruit without the branches. The Apostle Paul puts that thought in another form
when he says: "Ye are the body of Christ, and members—each severally—members of that body." Apart from the body the members perish. There is no power in the hand, no vision in the eye, no power in the ear to hear the voice of God apart from the body. We are the body of Christ; we are the organization through which Christ works; we are the organization by which Christ builds up His kingdom on the earth.
We are the hands of Christ. Christ wants.
Christ desires to feed the hungry, and clothe the naked, and visit the sick, and build homes for the homeless, and open prison doors for those in captivity, but supposing the hands of the Lord be paralyzed, how can He do these things? We are the voice of Christ. Christ wants to publish abroad to the end of the earth the message of God's love and the way of salvation, but if the voice be silent, how can
He do it?

We talk about the mercy of God having no limitation. We talk about the boundless pity of God, and we do well, but the pity of God and the mercy of God have their limitations. Not according to the distorted Calvinism which our fathers believed, God's mercy is infinite; God's pity is boundless; His love extends to all men—that we believe; in that declaration we glory; we count it the very flower and coronation of our religion. And yet God's mercy is limited. His compassion is bounded, His pity is shortened by us—by us. According as we are willing or unwilling is the limitlessness of the love of God.

Let us take a homely illustration. Here is a friend—a man whom you have always known, a classmate it may be in school, an associate in business—and he has fallen upon evil times and everything that he spent his life is accumulating is gone. You are rich, you are perfectly able to put that man on his feet again; to give him a second chance and another start; you are God's elected minister for that purpose.
But you don't do it. God is kindly disposed to that man; God would help that man, and He has put you in a position to help him. You are His hands; you are God's ministering agency, but you limit
God's goodness, don't you?

God is very pitiful, very pitiful. Rich men can feed poor men, but they don't do it. No manna falls from heaven to feed those poor men. They starve. God is wondrously pitiful, and there are strong people who are perfectly able to help and comfort weak and sickly people, but these sickly people die for lack of help. No ministering angel comes down to cool their fever and heal them. Don't you see that we, God's hand, God's voice, the branches and twigs of the vine, limit the fruitfulness of the vine, limit the power of the Almighty?
"Herein is My Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit, so shall ye be My disciples." Friends, the thought is appalling; it oppresses me. When I look at that from one side I am terrified to think that the thing that God wanted done yesterday is not done through my neglect.

And yet there is encouragement here for us all. Apart from the vine the branch withers; it can do nothing. Abiding in the vine, the branch bringeth forth much fruit, and we may abide and we may glorify our Father. Glorify Him. Make Him shine with radiance and beauty in the eyes of man. Make God manifest. We can make God real; we can make the gospel sublime in the eyes of those who are living without it. We can so tell the story; we can so live our religion; we can so manifest the grace of God in our lives; we can so let our light shine that others—our neighbors and friends, our children and relatives—shall glorify our Father in heaven.

God Only Is Perfect.

Perfection, in every absolute sense, cannot be found among men—it abides only with God. Man, at his best, is not free.
An heir of immortality, he is imprisoned into time. Candidate for sainthood, he has a heritage of sin and corruption from the generations of the past. Called to do all things through God strengthening him, he finds that the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak. Countless perils menace the voyage of the perfectionist. Presumptuous sins often have dominion over him, when he thinks it is not robbery to be equal with God and share with the absolute the attributes of divinity. Spiritual pride leads him to moral ruin when he is persuaded to forget the hour of prayer because of his conceit that with him every breath is a prayer. The Man of Nazareth was so far from this vanity that He spent whole nights in communion with God on the mountains and in solitary places apart from His companions. The perfectionist, again, is deceived when he materializes the things of God, by asserting for the saints below an earthly empire over disease and death and by claiming a part in the political rule of the quick-coming Christ in a millennial reign at Jerusalem.

Increasing God's Opportunities.

Some one has said that "each human life is another opportunity for God to display His grace and power." So it is, and the thought will grow upon you as you meditate upon it. Just think, "I am God's opportunity!" Isn't it wonderful? Isn't it glorious? When we look at others whom God has richly blessed and honored in service we can see how it is, but do we ever think of ourselves as God's opportunity?
Every one that responds to God's call,
"Come!" gives God a larger place in the world.

Every one who obeys God's command,
"Go!" assists God in gaining a larger place in the hearts of men. Every regenerated heart and life is a new garden in which God plants His seeds of love and grace; a fountain out of which flow constant streams of healing power.

Take it home, dear young friend, and say to yourself, "I am God's opportunity."
Be that and your life will become unutter-ably grand and your experience unspeakably sweet.—A. W. Spooner, D. D.

One Thing We Can Do.

Each one in any given place has a responsible share in every other's good work in that place. In some things we do our part with our hands; in other matters we do our part with our hearts. What the Apostle John said about evil deeds is as true of good deeds: "He that giveth him greeting partaketh in his * * * works."
By our well wishing we become partakers in what others do. John said the same thing in the next Epistle: "We * * * ought to welcome such, that we may be fellow-workers." What we speed on its way, and what we welcome in our hearts when we hear of it—in all this we have a share.
How wide reaching, then, are the opportunities of even the most secluded! How great is the work in which even the least can be engaged! As we hail any good incoming, or speed any good outgoing, we enter into the prophet's work, and shall receive a prophet's reward. Let us take heart and do our share.

Ever Onward and Upward.

We are commanded to be perfect, to love God continually, to rejoice evermore, and in everything to give thanks. And reason is in accord with revelation in enjoining this duty. Man's pathway is ever onward and upward. Larger and seemingly infinite possibilities of future achievement invite him to press on with unweary-ing footstep.

Those on Trial.

"Are these masterpieces?" asked a tourist in a Florentine gallery, adding, "I must admit that I do not see much in them myself." "These pictures, sir," was the answer, "are not on trial; it is the visitors who are on trial." It is the critics who are on trial, not the Scriptures.—New York
Observer.

A VOICE FROM THE PULPIT.

Rev. Jacob D. Van Doren, of 57 Sixth street, Fond Du Lac, Wis., Presbyterian clergyman, says: "I had attacks of kidney disorders which kept me in the house for days at a time, unable to do anything. What I suffered can hardly be told. Complications set in, the particulars of which I will be pleased to give in a personal interview to any one who requires information. This I can conscientiously say, Doan's Kidney Pills caused a general improvement in my health. They brought great relief by lessening the pain and correcting the action of the kidney secretions."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Fighting "En Deshabille."

It is reported from Lalo-Yang, says the Westminster Gazette, that owing to the heat the soldiers often fight in their underclothes. The most remarkable instance of fighting en deshabille is the famous Battle of the Shirts, which took place in 1544 on the shores of Loch Lochy, in the Highlands of Scotland, between a band of Frasers and MacDonalds. The day was so hot that the combatants threw off not only their plaids, but the rest of their clothes, and went at it in their shirts. Even then the heat was unbearable, and many, wearied with the big two-handed swords, rushed into the cool waters of the loch and fought there with their dirks. Lord Lovat, whose desperate valor earned for him the name of "Cruaidh Choscar" (the hardy slaughterer), and his son were killed. In fact, it is said that only four of the Frasers came out of the fight alive, and not many more of the MacDonalds, who, however, secured the victory.

Women Who Shun Men.

On a small island in the Greek archipelago there is a colony which is composed entirely of women. It is a sort of religious order which considers it a disgrace for one of its members to even look at a man. When a fisherman approaches the island, the women pull the cowls of their cassocks over their heads and turn their backs. Provisions are never imported, as the women, strict vegetarians, grow their own products. Only the matron, who is annually elected head of the colony, is ever allowed to leave the island. The others remain there all their lives, taking their turn at tilling the soil, washing and housekeeping.

A Record Commodore.

Captain Clay, commodore officer of the London and Northwestern Railway Company's fleet of steamships running between Holyhead and Ireland, who has just retired, has crossed the Irish Sea nearly 20,000 times as commander and has navigated the railway company's vessels about 1,500,000 miles and carried nearly 1,250,000 passengers.

The Krag carbine will soon be discarded by the cavalry and the national board will seek to obtain possession of them for distribution to the military schools at the rate of about ten pieces to each school where army officers are detailed as instructors.

Swedish postoffices are closed from 3 to 5 o'clock, and during that time the clerks are free.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

In Paris last year 6628 persons were cremated.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. SAMUEL, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

The earliest money was in the form of animal's skins.

Rocks.

The man of substance was proud to be mentioned in connection with so high an office, but he would not be a candidate.

"This rock," he exclaimed, pointing to a great granite bowlder, "shall fly from its firm base as soon as mine——"

Here the committee of notification withdrew, perceiving that their mission was hopeless.—Puck.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price, 75c. per bottle.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Labor-Saving Hand Organs.

Labor-saving devices have got to the hand organs at last, says the New York Sun. In one of the latest, instead of the organ man turning the crank, he presses a button. The music plays on till he releases his finger. The music is sweeter than that of other organs and it can be heard blocks away.

Often.

Far too much abuse is leveled at the medium for lack of results, when it is the advertisement itself that is faulty.—Newspaperdom.

The only lithotype in existence is possessed by the inventor and it is claimed that he has issued volumes from it. Printing from aluminum surfaces on the principle of lithography is now an established success, though the art is only several years old. Aluminum, it was found, has a texture which enables it to act the same as a lithographic stone, and it is less expensive and vastly lighter to handle.

As in lithography, the letters or designs are simply traced on the surface of the aluminum, in a greasy ink, and not raised as in type printing. The surface is inked for printing with rollers in the usual way. The ink adheres to the face of the letters or designs because of the affinity of the grease for the ink. The rest of the surface is not inked. A sheet of paper pressed against the inked plate in the usual way thus receives a printed impression.

Dr. Koenig, of Germany, has announced that he has succeeded in solving the problem of colored photography.

FIBROID TUMORS CURED.

Mrs. Hayes' First Letter Appealing to Mrs. Pinkham for Help:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been under Boston doctors' treatment for a long time without any relief. They tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing-down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time.

"The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor given in your little book accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice."—(Signed) Mrs. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St. (Roxbury), Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Hayes' Second Letter:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Sometime ago I wrote to you describing my symptoms and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully, and to-day I am a well woman.

"The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound entirely expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system. I can walk miles now.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors or female trouble of any kind to give it a faithful trial."—(Signed) Mrs. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St. (Roxbury), Boston, Mass.

—$5000 forfeit if original of above letters proving genuineness cannot be produced

AN ENTIRE MEDICINE CHEST

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

QUICKLY RELIEVES PAINS AND ACHES

Kills Germs

FOR MAN OR BEAST

DR. EARL S. SLOAN, 615 ALBANY ST. BOSTON, MASS.

Avery & Company

SUCCESSORS TO

AVERY & McMILLAN,

81-88 South Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.

—ALL KINDS OF—

MACHINERY

Reliable Frick Engines, Boilers, all Sizes, Wheat Separators.

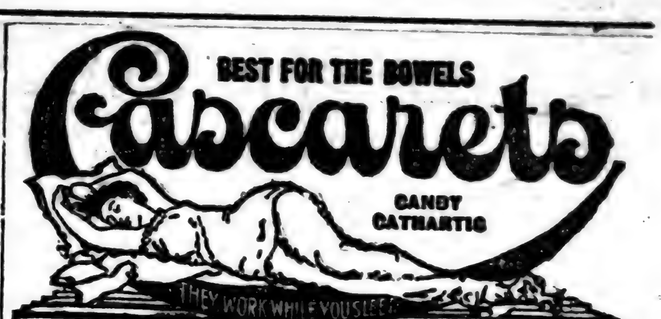
BEST IMPROVED SAW MILL ON EARTH.

Large Engines and Boilers supplied promptly. Shingle Mills, Corn Mills, Circular Saws, Saw Teeth, Patent Dogs, Steam Governors, Full line Engines & Mill Supplies. Send for free Catalogue.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

Cascarets

CANDY CATHARTIC



GUARANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, blouted bowels, foul mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, pains after eating, liver trouble, sallow skin and dizziness. When your bowels don't move regularly you are sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It starts chronic ailments and long years of suffering. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS today, for you will never get well and stay well until you get your bowels right. Take our advice, start with Cascarets today under absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Never sold in bulk. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York.

BUTTONS! 1-4 and 1-3 Price.

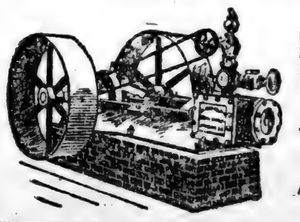
10-K Gold filled Regular Price 10c.
14-K Gold filled Regular Price 15c.
Sterling Silver. Regular Price 25c.

We want you to have our big, Handsome Free Catalogue, with its Free Gold Watch offer, so will send the famous Guaranteed "King" Collar Buttons at these prices if you order them before Nov. 10th. Add 1c postage for each Button ordered.. State if for sleeve, front or back of neck.

BLACH'S 1912 1914 First Ave. BIRMINGHAM ALABAMA.

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS COMPANY

MANUFACTURERS



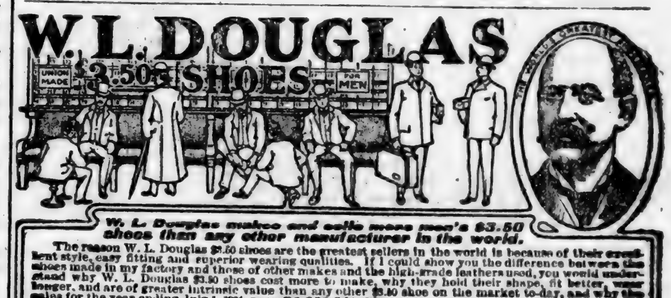
High Pressure Return Tubular Boilers
Morison Internally Fired Boilers
High Grade Slide Valve Engines
Transmission Machinery
Heavy Castings
Wrought Iron and Steel Work
Tanks, Stacks and Stand Pipes

Heavy Pipe Work a Specialty

Address Machinery Department

MACON, GEORGIA.

W. L. DOUGLAS



W. L. Douglas makes and sells more men's $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world.

The reason W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the world is because of their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. If I could show you the difference between the shoes made in my factory and those of other makes and the high-grade leathers used, you would understand why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater intrinsic value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day, and why the sales for the year ending July 1, 1904, were $6,263,040.00.

W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom. Look for it—take no substitute. Sold by shoe dealers everywhere.

SUPERIOR IN FIT, COMFORT AND WEAR.

"I have worn W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes for the last twelve years with absolute satisfaction. I find them superior in fit, comfort and wear to others costing from $5.00 to $7.00."—B. S. McCUE, Dept. Coll., U. S. Int. Revenue, Richmond, Va.

W. L. Douglas uses Corona Coltskin in his $3.50 shoes. Corona Colt is conceded to be the finest Patent Leather made. Fast Color Eyelets used exclusively.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Massachusetts.

FREE TO BOYS

A COMPLETE FOOTBALL OUTFIT, WORTH $3.00

Consisting of a pair of Intercollegiate football pants, sleeveless jacket, fine quality worsted belt and handsome heavy pair of stockings—a splendid outfit.

BOYS, we give you free this Handsome Football Outfit for selling only thirty-two of our fine quality handkerchiefs at 10c. each.

EVERYBODY USES HANDKERCHIEFS—QUICK, EASY SELLERS—SEND NO MONEY—WE TRUST YOU WITH THE HANDKERCHIEFS TO SELL.

When sold send us the money and you will receive at once the complete football outfit FREE. WE PAY ALL EXPRESS CHARGES. Send your name and address at once.

Le Moyne Handkerchief Co., 12 East 14th St., N. Y.

OTHER PREMIUMS.
All Wool Sweaters, Roller Skates, Fountain Pens, Boxing Gloves, Watches, etc.

FREE TO GIRLS

Two Beautiful Dolls.

A HANDSOME SUNDAY DOLL AND A VERY FINE EVERY DAY DOLLY.

OUR SUNDAY DOLL is a big beauty, elaborately dressed, bisque head, curly hair, pearly teeth, jointed body, sleeping eyes, dressed in silk or satin and lace large, elegant hat, shoes and stockings to match—a perfect doll baby.

OUR EVERY DAY DOLL is a large dolly, bisque head, flowing hair—a real nice every day dolly.

EXTRA PRESENTS. A beautiful Japanese doll fan and half a dozen dainty doll handkerchiefs.

GIRLS, we give you the entire doll outfit for selling only thirty-two of our fine quality handkerchiefs at 10c. each.

SEND NO MONEY. WE TRUST YOU WITH THE HANDKERCHIEFS TO SELL. When sold send us the money, and you will receive at once the complete elegant doll outfit. WE PAY ALL EXPRESS CHARGES. Send your name and address at once.

OTHER PREMIUMS.
Wool Sweaters, School Umbrellas, Roller Skates, Fountain Pens, Manicure Sets, etc.

Le Moyne Handkerchief Co., 12 East 14th St., New York.

DIVIDENDS.

I have gilt-edge dividend-paying stocks that I desire to re-do for real estate. These stocks will bear the closest investigation and, at a conservative estimate, will pay from 10 to 30 per cent. on the par value annually. For further information write to DR. W. A. LANDERS, Dun and Bel Block, Racine, Wis.

Am. 44, 1904.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.

Removes all swelling in 10 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

MONARCH STUMP PULLER. Will pull 4-foot stump without help. Guaranteed to stand a strain of 5,000 lbs. Catalogue and free course address MONARCH GRUBBER CO., Lone Tree, Ia.

No More Blind Horses Fee Specific Ophthalmia (Moon Blindness) & other Sore Eyes. Barry Co., Iowa City, Ia., have a cure

Plantation Chill Cure is Guaranteed

To cure, or money refunded by your merchant, so why not try it? Price 50c.

Is Love to be Dethroned?

By H. B. Marriott-Watson.

THE mondaine of New York and Newport will run after new dukes and buy new jewels. The sober wife of the sober New England farmer will sit under new pastors and buy new drugs.

The American woman has perfected the cult of pleasure as no living being in all the history of the world. A certain common bond unites the drab woman on her farm and the belle of Fifth avenue.

That spirit is visible in all classes of real Americanized women, whether in the daughter of the millionaire or in the factory hand. It is the spirit of independence which finds its logical issue in cold selfishness. The factory girls refuse to be married and take up the burdens of maternity; they put their savings upon their backs and "have a good time."

The typical American woman is proverbially careless of the male of her race. We Europeans see it every day in the case of our American visitors. The American woman is set on getting the best she can for her money, or her father's money, or it may be her husband's. She rides over man roughshod. It is the era of the woman's revenge, and apparently she is getting it. But in the result it is achieved by a demoralization of sex, even by a debauch of sex.

The doctrine of the superiority of woman, or its analogue, the dominance of woman, has resulted in a breach of the laws of maternity. Evasion of childbirth follows, and will follow, the passage of woman's rights and the higher feminism. Even on the threshold of this great and delicate question is one stayed by the consciousness that the American woman has aimed the first great blow at the reign of Love. So far as the eye of man can carry now, American civilization, by the overthrow of Love and its potency, will have inaugurated a new era fraught with portentious issues.

Having emerged from mere barbarism into an age of sentiment, are we to complete the cycle by passing into a stage where considerations of personal ambition, or vanity, or greed, or something material, rule the sexual relations? We are, it would appear, on the threshold of the third era, in which Love is to be faded into a sentiment so thin that it would not be recognizable of our sturdy fathers. That stage of the cycle surely must spell decline, diminution
* * * death.

Woman's taste has been perverted by her appreciation of the gifts of man as tributes to her beauty. A man will take a thing to eat or wear or use somehow, because, whether it is bad or good, he likes it. A woman's possessions are rather the fruit of her vanity than her taste. She acquires things not because she likes them or needs them, but because they represent self-esteem, gratification, the humiliation of rivals.

The Lesson of Life.

By Agnes Repplier.

IT IS to be hoped that all American boys and girls read the Sunday newspapers. How else can they learn the really important things of life, the things which it is wise and well for them to know? Where else will they be told that little William Vincent Astor, aged thirteen, eats oatmeal every morning for his breakfast, and meat and vegetables "in sparing quantities" for his dinner? That he has a tutor, a valet, a groom, a chauffeur and "a special body guard"—whatever that may be—all engaged in looking after him. That there is an "automatic street-sprinkler" among his toys. That his automobile cost twelve thousand dollars. That he is tall for his age, and that his "chin is a special heritage from his father." How, save through a Sunday paper, are young Americans to know that little Margaret Carnegie, aged four, has her own private kitchen, "which is said to excel that of any other residence in the world," and that in it are prepared "splendid banquets" for the Carnegie dolls? That she has ten rooms of her own, whereas Willie Astor has only five, and that she believes her father to be "the richest of mankind." Whether she, too, has inherited a chin is not mentioned. We can but hope that one may be found among her assets.

Here is food for thought. Let every little American boy say solemnly to himself, when he eats his morning oatmeal: "Willie Astor eats oatmeal, too." Let every little American girl remember, when she gives her dolls a tea-party, that Margaret Carnegie's dolls sit down to "banquets," cooked in the most splendid kitchen in the world. Above all, let both boys and girls ponder deeply over the sentence which describes young Astor's tutor, groom and valet as "subjects of the embryonic monarch." It is well that they should realize early in life that a rich little boy is an embryonic monarch whose tutor is his subject, not his master. Thus will our children preserve those ideals and that scorn of ignoble things which make the greatness of a nation. Thus will we foster that sturdy spirit of independence which gave us national life, and those civic virtues which alone can save us from decay.—Life.

Stanley's Qualities as a Leader

By A. J. Mounteney-Jephson.

I DO not intend to eulogize my old chief, for eulogies are seldom convincing. He had many faults, and some of them even were grave ones, but they were, I think, chiefly the faults of his qualities, and without those faults he would not probably have been possessed of some of the great qualities which made him so successful in almost everything that he undertook. His faults were never of a mean or petty kind, and were easily forgiven when one saw the true greatness and nobility of his nature beyond. That untiring energy and indomitable resolve to overcome all difficulties; that apparently ruthless determination to sweep away all opposition; his seeming hardness and callousness in working to achieve what he had undertaken, if he felt that the end was a good one; the curiously hard and unsympathetic attitude he had toward failure of any kind, no matter how blameless the failure might be; all these and many others are not qualities that are usually found in gentle and amiable natures, and they do not as a rule attract sympathy and affection. But they saved the whole expedition from annihilation many a time, they dragged us out of difficulties which would have overcome an ordinary man, they drew us through places where there seemed to be only death before us, and they gained for him the absolute trust and confidence of all those who followed him.

In the early part of the expedition, we, Stanley's four officers, Captain Stairs, Captain Nelson, Dr. Parke, and myself, did not entirely understand his character, and at first the things that he did seemed to us sometimes to be hard and unnecessary. But as the months went by, our estimate of his character changed, for we saw how absolutely right and necessary all that he had done had been, and we realized that sometimes it was very necessary to do hard things for the safety and preservation of an expedition like ours.

Stanley has often been accused of cruelty, but I can only say that during the three years we four officers were with him in Africa we never once saw him do a cruel or wanton thing, or anything of which our consciences disapproved.—Scribner's.

American Wisdom Unripe.

By President William H. P. Faunce, of Brown University.

THE American Nation is regarded by impartial observers as agile rather than profound in intellect. Whatever the goal, we arrive there while other peoples are considering how to start. Yet we still stand outside the realm of ripened wisdom and assurance and stable conviction.

The men of our time have mobility and ingenuity rather than poise and dignity; they are more attached to expedients than to principles, preferring action to thought; and our generation, so full of life, and movement, appears at times to be "bound nowhere under full sail."

We are quick to respond and adapt truths which others have discovered. We have marvelous inventors, but few scientists of the first rank; excellent writers of school books, few authorities in education; admirable preachers, few theologians whose voices are heard in Europe; skilful expositors of philosophy, no thinkers who rank with those of lands where thought has time to brood and ripen before action begins. Our age is strenuous to the breaking point.

The Rich Men of France.

According to M. Neymarck, the statistician, the number of French citizens possessing estates of a realizable cash value exceeding £2,000,000 is under 30; while those possessing estates over £500,000, but under £2,000,000 in value, is about 100. Between 500 and 600 persons possess fortunes averaging from £200,000 to £400,000. Some 4,000 persons in France possess fortunes of between £100,000 and £200,000. About 13,000 French are "millionaires" as the word is understood in France, namely, possessing over £40,000, and up to £90,000. Going lower down the scale, it is estimated that 262,000 Frenchmen possess a capital of between £2,000 and £4,000, and 1,548,000 hold between £400 and £1,900 each.—London Globe.

Shoes were not made "rights and lefts" until the year 1472.

MINOR EVENTS OF THE WEEK

WASHINGTON.

President Roosevelt removed from office Robert S. Rodie, Supervising Inspector of the Steamboat Inspection Service.

While Attorney-General Moody was taking his customary morning exercise on horseback he was thrown near the White House, and had a narrow escape from serious injury. His horse fell with him, but Mr. Moody suffered only a few bruises.

Robert Woods Bliss, United States Consul at Venice, was appointed Second Secretary of Embassy at St. Petersburg.

Montgomery Schuyler, Jr., secretary of the Legation at St. Petersburg, has been made First Secretary of Legation and Consul-General at Bangkok, Siam. Paul Nash, who is succeeded by Mr. Schuyler, has been appointed United States Consul at Venice, succeeding Mr. Bliss.

OUR ADOPTED ISLANDS.

Judge Robinson, of the First Circuit Court, in Honolulu, has sentenced E. S. Boyd, former Land Commissioner of Hawaii, to ten years' imprisonment at hard labor. Boyd was indicted last April on the charge of embezzling public funds. Pending an appeal Boyd has been admitted to bail.

Lieutenant Pritchard, of the Philippine army, son of ex-Senator Peter C. Pritchard, went insane and killed Lieutenant Deen and then killed himself.

A white man throughout the Philippines is as safe in traveling or living as in Arizona or Colorado or Montana. He may go about with perfect freedom.

The Union party, of Porto Rico, has nominated Julio Larrinaga for the office of Commissioner to the United States.

DOMESTIC.

Annual reports on the various Rock Island systems were issued.

Philip Weinseimer took the stand in his trial for extortion in New York City. Mr. Rand, for the prosecution, attempted to show that the labor leader had banked $80,000 on a $1300 salary.

Miss Miriam Grant, daughter of Ulysses S. Grant, Jr., was married to Lieutenant Ulysses S. Macy, U. S. N., in Grace Church chantry, in New York City.

Firemen say that the fire in the tenements at Nos. 15 and 17 Moore street, Brooklyn, N. Y., in which six persons lost their lives, was started by thieves for purposes of plunder.

The House of Bishops at the Protestant Episcopal Convention in Boston, Mass., approved of the amendment of the divorce canon forbidding clergymen to officiate at the marriage of any person who has been divorced.

Charles Pfefferman and Cora Kipling were found dead in the Pfefferman apartment in New York City after Mrs. Pfefferman had quarreled with her husband and gone away. The man and woman had been shot and the gas was turned on in every room.

One man was killed and the lives of many others were endangered in an elevated road accident in New York City.

Two New Jersey duck hunters were swept to sea in a leaky rowboat and tossed about thirty-six hours.

The paymaster of a contractor on the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg Railroad was wounded and robbed of $13,000 near Dubois, Pa.

The Department of Commerce and Labor has stationed 200 mounted inspectors on the Mexican border to stop suspected immigrants from entering the United States by way of Texas.

W. L. Douglas accepted the Democratic nomination for Governor of Massachusetts.

Paul Schmidt, a youth of nineteen, whose parents in New York City are highly respected, confessed to the murder of William Taylor at Sherman, Conn. He was surprised in a robbery and beat his discoverer to death.

Run over by a street car at Montgomery, Ala., C. J. Cassimus, a wealthy retired merchant, was killed, his body being fearfully mangled.

Burglars blew open the postoffice safe at Wabash, Minn., securing about $700 in cash and $700 in stamps.

Italian Day was observed at the St. Louis Exposition, the exercises being commemorative of the landing of Columbus.

There was considerable rioting in Chicago, Ill., in connection with the strike of the baggage wagon drivers.

Impeachment proceedings were filed at Montgomery, Ala., against Sheriff A. D. Rogers, of Madison County, he being charged with neglect of duty.

Edward Van Wart, pilot of the General Slocum when she was destroyed by fire, had his license restored to him.

General Chaffee issued an order calling attention to the law forbidding army officers to receive gifts from subordinates, and announcing that it would be enforced hereafter.

Edwin O. Quigley, once a wealthy broker, of New York, was released from Sing Sing prison, after serving nine years, eight months and fifteen days for forging bonds in 1895.

FOREIGN.

M. Santos-Dumont, a special cable dispatch said, is building a new steerable balloon with which he intends to make a week's voyage in the air.

Through his personal representative King Leopold of Belgium presented to President Roosevelt the Belgian reply to the charges of atrocities in the Congo Free State.

Martin Female College Burned.

Fire destroyed Martin Female College at Pulaski, Tenn., entailing a loss of $40,000, with $30,000 insurance. The occupants all escaped without accident.

Baltic Fleet Sails North.

The battleships of the Baltic fleet sailed north from Danish waters presumably starting for the Far East.

Diphtheria in Brooklyn.

An epidemic of diphtheria broke out in the Brooklyn (N. Y.) public schools.

ST. LOUIS POLICE BATTLE.

Detectives Killed by Train Robbers in Small Room.

Bandits Who Were Being Run Down by Officers of the Law Put Up a Game Fight to the End.

St. Louis, Mo.—Confined in one small room at No. 1324 Pine street, five men—three city detectives and two train robber suspects—fought a battle of death at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and hardly before the seven flashes of the revolvers had dimmed two lives had been snuffed out, another prolonged only for a few hours and two men badly wounded.

John Shea and Thomas Dwyer, city detectives, and Al Rose, a suspect, are dead, and Thomas McCluskey, another detective, and W. B. Morris, alias C. C. Blair, were mortally wounded. Detectives Harry James and Edward P. Boyle, of Kansas City, who also participated in the raid, escaped uninjured through the earlier arrest of Harry Vaughn, alias, Adams, in the street before the shooting. Vaughn was badly clubbed for attempting to assist his comrades when he was led into the house.

McCluskey and Morris are at the city hospital, while Rose's body was taken to the morgue after his death from wounds supposedly inflicted by Dwyer. The bodies of the two detectives were sent to an undertaker's.

Vaughn is in custody, as are almost a dozen persons in the neighborhood, who either witnessed part of the shooting, or may be able to throw some light on the affair, which is the most terrible in the history of the St. Louis Police Department.

Morris boasted that he did all of the shooting which resulted in the detectives' deaths, and it was he who faced them as they opened the door and sent a death fusillade with unerring aim into their ranks before himself falling to the floor from wounds in the left eye, left hand, in the back and in the left thigh. The revolver with which Morris did such terrible execution was empty when he fell, and he expressed the regret that he had run out of ammunition.

The raid was the result of a tip received by Detective Harry James that a trio of crooks suspected of the famous Pullman robbery on the Illinois Central, at Centralia, Ill., last summer, were staying at the house conducted by Mrs. Springer. Other productive raids have been made in the same neighborhood, which is considered as a gathering place of many rough characters.

John J. Shea, Thomas Dwyer, Thos. McCluskey, Harry James and Edward Boyle were the five detailed from Central Station to make the arrest. Instead of going directly to the house the squad scattered itself about the corner of Fourteenth and Pine streets to see if any of the men could be seen. Harry Vaughn soon came out of the house at 1324 Pine street and was arrested. The detectives then entered, with Dwyer in the lead, McCluskey second, Shea third, Boyle next and James following.

Morris opened fire as the officers entered the room, where he was standing in front of the mantel, the revolver extended at arm's length. Hardly had Dwyer taken a step forward when he was struck in the stomach. Rose immediately joined in the shooting, hitting Detective Dwyer in the neck. McCluskey, too, was hit before he hardly entered the room. Both detectives had been shot in the twinkling of an eye, and Detective Boyle had hardly got his revolver out of the holster before Shea threw up his arms and said, "I'm shot." Shea, however, had sent in some shots before he fell back, and Boyle, seeing Morris go down to the floor, rushed Shea out the back way and left him in the arms of a stranger.

It is believed that Shea shot Morris in the back when the latter turned for another revolver after emptying the one in his hand. The detective already had received his death wound.

After Shea had been taken into the rear by Boyle the latter returned, running into the house after getting the wounded man's gun. By this time Vaughn was making trouble for James and he was subdued only after a fierce struggle in which the prisoner suffered a badly beaten head.

GEORGIA MILITIA DISGRACED.

Officers Who Allowed Statesboro Lynching Are Harshly Dealt With.

Atlanta, Ga. — Captain Robert M. Hitch will be discharged from the service of the State. Lieutenant G. A. Mell will be suspended for one year and publicly reprimanded, and Lieutenant H. L. Griner will be publicly reprimanded, as the result of the sittings of the court of inquiry appointed by Governor Terrell to investigate the actions of the officers in charge of the State troops at Statesboro when the negroes, Cato and Reed, were taken from the court room by a mob and burned at the stake.

The board, after a session covering over a week, made up its findings and transmitted them to the Governor, and the decision received his approval and was made public. The report disgracing Captain Hitch and providing severe penalties for Lieutenants Mell and Griner has created a sensation. Governor Terrell has had the names of members of the mob, which came out in the military trial, sent to the Grand Jury of Bulloch County, and as Captain Hitch charged Judge Daly with collusion with the mob, action may be taken against him.

South Dakota Beats North Carolina.

The United States Supreme Court made its decree against North Carolina final in the suit brought by South Dakota to have certain repudiated bonds of the former State declared valid.

Port Arthur Ships in Danger.

Advices from Tokio say that the Russian warships at Port Arthur were suffering severely from the Japanese fire, but that no attempt at a sortie has been made.

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

Louisville & Nashville R. R.

Read Down — CENTRAL TIME. — Read Up

AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2	No
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58	....	5
7 19	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....	5
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42	....	5
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17	....	5
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 11	....	5
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
For rates and further information address

A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

A Great Combination Offer

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the world you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.

SHOES that are Reliable.

SHOES made to Wear.

NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Ala.

It Pays, An Ad In This Paper

Gelder's Restaurant

Good Meals at Reasonable Prices

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

Pure Water Prevents Fever

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER

We guarantee water or no charge. Estimates given. Address

I. E. SARBER CO.

Thorsby, Alabama.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Brand

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Ala.

THE

VOL. II.

AN ACT

[H. 207

...er Regulate Elections in the State of Alabama.

...ointed ... who shall ... without ... conviction be fined not more ... hundred dollars.

...4.—Each political party or ... having candidates nominated by the chairman of its county ... committee or nominees for ... or beat committeeman name ... who shall be permitted to be ... at the place where the ballots ... cast from the time the polls ...ed until the ballots are counted ... certificates of the result of ...ction signed by the inspectors. ...d watcher shall be permitted to ... ballots as they are called during ... count. The watcher shall be ... to faithfully observe the rule of ...scribed for the conduct of such ...

...4 1-2.—Each ballot shall be ...ed by one of the inspectors to ...pond to the number of the voter ... the same, on the poll list. A ... may write his name on his ballot. The number corresponding with ...ter's name on the poll list must ...inly entered in ink on the back ... ballot of the voter. Any person ...ompares the number on the ballot ...th the poll list shall be guilty ...misdemeanor, and on conviction ...be fined not less than one hundred dollars, provided this shall not ...n the trial of any contested ...

...35.—Immediately after the ... the inspectors shall post in ... of the polling place a copy of ... certificate of the result of the ...on.

...38.—It shall be the duty of the ...ctors, clerks and returning offi... appointed to meet at the place of ...g elections in the several pre... for which they have been ap...ed, by 8 o'clock of the morning of ...ection, and, before 9 o'clock open ...everal polling places as design...; and on the failure of any in... or returning officer to attend ...e hour of 8, such inspector and ...ing officers as may be present ...complete the number. If none of ...spectors appointed are present, ...turning officer of a precinct ...appoint three inspectors to act, ...in every instance, shall be qual...ectors who are entitled to vote ...polling place; and who shall ap... from the qualified electors at ...polling place such clerks as may ...ecessary to fill places of those ...g to attend; and if there should ...o inspector or returning officer ...nt by the hour of eight, at any ...g place, then any three qualified ...rs who are entitled by law to ...at that polling place in the elec... then to be held, may open the ... and act as inspectors during the ...ion, and appoint clerks to fill the ...s of those absent in the manner ...n above provided. After the polls ... been opened no adjournment or ...e shall be taken until the certifi... of the result of the election is ...d.

...c. 39.—If the returning officer is ...resent at the hour appointed, the ...ctors, or those acting as such, ... appoint from the qualified elec... one to serve during the election.

...c. 44.—Electors whose names ap... on the list of registered voters ... list of those who have paid all ... tax due furnished the inspectors ... the judge of probate may vote ...out producing their registration ...ficate or poll tax receipt.

...c. 45 1-2.—Any inspector, clerk or ... person who discloses how any ... voted shall be guilty of a mis...anor, and, on conviction, shall be ... not less than one hundred dol... nor more than five hundred dol... and may be also sentenced to ... labor for the county for not more ... six months.

...c. 48.—Any inspector, clerk, ...her, or returning officer who ... any intoxicating liquors while ... election is being held shall be ...y of a misdemeanor and upon con...on shall be fined not less than ... dollars.

...c. 49.—Any inspector who alters ...anges the ballot of a voter, or ... substitutes a ballot for the one ...ed by any voter, shall be guilty ... misdemeanor, and upon convic... shall be fined not less than fifty ...ars, and may be also sentenced to ... labor, for not more than six ...ths.

...c. 50.—Any officer who, without ...ful excuse, neglects, fails or re... to perform any official duty ...scribed by this act, shall be guilty ... misdemeanor unless otherwise ...vided, and on conviction shall be ... not less than fifty dollars.

...c. 51.—Any inspector of election ... shall wilfully exclude any vote ... tendered and unchallenged,

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

uisville & Nashville R. R

CENTRAL TIME.

M	PM	DAILY	AM	AM	N
7	No 3		No 8	No 2
5	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7
5	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6
4	....	Jemison	8 58	....	5
1	....	Thorsby	8 51	....	5
4	....	Lomax	8 42	....	5
2	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5
5	....	Cooper	8 17	....	5
0	....	Verbena	8 11	....	5
7	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5
0	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4

oom. Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
and further information address

. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

reat Combination Off

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

Louis Globe-Democr

WITH

The Union

FOR

Both Papers One Year Only $1

. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-We pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday.

an in Politics and has no equal or rival

reat Modern Newspaper.

want all the news of the World's Fair, all the n ional campaign, and all the news of all the e have the Globe-Democrat during the coming y

NOW IS THE TIME.

$1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper test Newspaper of the World's Fair City, year. Address

he Union, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..

made of Leather.

IOES that are Reliable.

SHOES made to Wear.

NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

oods, Groceries, Flour and F

Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Post-office Building. Clanton, Ala

ays, An Ad In This Pap

elder's Restaurant

Meals at Reasonable Pri

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Water Prevents Feve

LED WELLS FURNISH PURE WA

e guarantee water or no charge m ates given. Address

I. E. SARBER C

orsby, Alabama.

RAL MERCHANDISE A

FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

by Special & Mule Bra

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

on, - - - Ala

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

OL. II. CLANTON, ALA., NOVEMBER 3, 1904. NO. 32.

AN ACT

[H. 207

r Regulate Elections in the State of Alabama.

* * * * *

32 1-2.—Any manager or ointed such by the appoint- who shall fail to attend such wi ut a lawful excuse, conviction be fined not more hundred dollars.

.—Each political party, or or- having candidates nominat- by the chairman of its county committee or nominees for beat committeeman name a who shall be permitted to be at the place where the bal- cast from the time the polls nd until the ballots are count- certificates of the result of tion signed by the inspectors. watcher shall be permitted to ballots as they are called dur- count. The watcher shall be faithfully observe the rule of scribed for the conduct of such

34 1-2.—Each ballot shall be ed by one of the inspectors to nd to the number of the voter the same, on the poll list. A ay write his name on his bal- the number corresponding with r's name on the poll list must ly entered in ink on the back ballot of the voter. Any person mpares the number on the bal- th the poll list shall be guilty isdemeanor, and on conviction e fined not less than one hun- dollars, provided this shall not on the trial of any contested

35.—Immediately after the n the inspectors shall post in of the polling place a copy of certificate of the result of the on.

38.—It shall be the duty of the tors, clerks and returning offi- ppointed to meet at the place of g elections in the several pre- for which they have been ap- d, by 8 o'clock of the morning of ection, and, before 9 o'clock open everal polling places as desig- and on the failure of any in- or returning officer to attend hour of 8, such inspector and ing officers as may be present complete the number. If none of spectors appointed are present, turning officer of a precinct appoint three inspectors to act. n every instance, shall be qual- dectors who are entitled to vote polling place; and who shall ap- from the qualified electors at olling place such clerks as may essary to fill places of those to attend; and if there should inspector or returning officer at by the hour of eight, at any place, then any three qualified who are entitled by law to at that polling place in the elec- hen to be held, may open the and act as inspectors during the , and appoint clerks to fill the of those absent in the manner above provided. After the polls been opened no adjournment or shall be taken until the certifi- of the result of the election is 39.—If the returning officer is esent at the hour appointed, the tors, or those acting as such, appoint from the qualified elec- one to serve during the election.

44.—Electors whose names ap- on the list of registered voters list of those who have paid all ax due furnished the inspectors e judge of probate may vote ut producing their registration icate or poll tax receipt.

45 1-2.—Any inspector, clerk or person who discloses how any voted shall be guilty of a mis- nor, and, on conviction, shall be not less than one hundred dol- nor more than five hundred dol- and may be also sentenced to labor for the county for not more six months.

48.—Any inspector, clerk, er, or returning officer who any intoxicating liquors while lection is being held shall be of a misdemeanor and upon con- shall be fined not less than dollars.

49.—Any inspector who alters anges the ballot of a voter, or substitutes a ballot for the one d by any voter, shall be guilty misdemeanor, and upon convic- shall be fined not less than fifty r, and may be also sentenced to labor, for not more than six

50.—Any officer who, without excuse, neglects, fails or re- to perform any official duty ribed by this act, shall be guilty misdemeanor unless otherwise ded, and on conviction shall be not less than fifty dollars.

51.—Any inspector of election shall wilfully exclude any vote tendered and unchallenged, knowing that the person offering the same is lawfully entitled to vote at such election, or who shall wilfully receive a vote from any person who has been duly challenged in relation to his right to vote at such election, without exacting from such person such oath or other proof of qualifications as is required by law, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars, and may also be sentenced to hard labor for the county for not more than six months.

Sec. 52.—Any inspector of election who shall, without challenging him, permit any person to vote, knowing that he is not a qualified elector, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars.

Sec. 55.—One copy of the certificate of the result of the election shall be signed by the inspectors and enclosed in an envelope, which shall then be securely sealed, and each of the inspectors shall write his name across every fold at which the envelope, if unfastened, could be opened. That said envelope, with certificate enclosed shall be at once delivered to the returning officer of the precinct who shall deliver the same in the condition received to the judge of probate. The judge of probate shall keep and preserve the same unopened, until the board of supervisors meets to ascertain the result of the election. In case of the loss, mutilation, or absence of the original certificate of the result of the election, by the inspectors of any voting place, the envelope shall be opened, and the copy therein shall be accepted as a certificate of the result of the election for that voting place Any inspector who makes or signs a false copy of the certificate of the result, or any returning officer who fails to deliver the envelope and certificate as delivered to him to the judge of probate before the meeting of the board of supervisors, or any judge of probate who fails to properly preserve the same for the use of the board of supervisors, if needed, shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than one nor more than five years.

Sec. 55 1-2.—The poll list shall be sealed in an envelope before the inspectors begin to count the votes, and shall not be opened. Any election officer or any other person who makes a copy of the poll list or any memoranda therefrom or list of the persons voting or the number of their ballot or discloses the number of such voter's ballot shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than two hundred dollars.

Sec. 56.—That any person who by bribing or offering to bribe with money or other valuable thing, or by any other corrupt means attempts to influence any qualified elector at any election in giving his vote or to deter him from giving the same shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars.

That any person who by the offer of money, or the gift of money, or by the gift of intoxicating liquor or other valuable thing to any qualified elector at any election, or by the loan of money to such elector with the intent that the same shall not be repaid, with the intent to influence the vote of such elector at such election, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars. That any person who buys or offers to buy any vote or registration certificate of any qualified elector at such election by the payment of money or the promise to pay the same at any future time, or by the gift of intoxicating liquors or other valuable thing shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars. Any candidate for office in any election upon conviction under this section shall in addition to the fine be declared ineligible for the office to which he was elected for that term.

That any qualified elector at any election who takes or receives any money, or other valuable thing, or upon the condition that the same shall be paid at any future time, in exchange for the vote of such elector for any particular candidate, or the promise to vote for any particular candidate, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars.

Sec. 57.—Before entering upon their duties, inspectors and clerks must take an oath to perform their duties at the election according to law, and such oath may be administered by any person authorized by law to administer oaths, or by any one of the inspectors.

Sec. 58.—Any qualified elector of the precinct in which any person proposes to vote shall have the right to challenge such persons so offering to vote, who, he may know or suspect, is not entitled or duly qualified as an elector to vote, at the precinct where he offers to vote. The challenge shall be communicated to the inspectors before the person is permitted to vote, by the sheriff or some other person in attendance and in charge of admission to the polling place, where his right to vote must be determined as provided in section 82.

Sec. 64.—If the elector desires to vote a straight ticket, that is for each and every candidate for one party for whatever office nominated, he shall mark a (X) cross mark in the circle under the name of the party at the head of the ticket.

When only one candidate is to be elected to any office and the elector desires to vote for a candidate not on this party ticket, he may make a (X) before the name of the candidate for whom he desires to vote on the other ticket.

When two or more candidates are to be elected to the same office, and he desires to vote for candidates on different tickets for such office, he may make a (X) mark before the names of the candidates for whom he desires to vote on the other ticket and must also erase an equal number of names of candidates on his party ticket for the same office for whom he does not desire to vote.

If the elector desires to vote a split ticket, that is, for candidates of different parties, he may make a (X) mark in the voting space before the name of each candidate for whom he desires to vote on whatever ticket he may be.

If the ticket marked in the circle for a straight ticket does not contain the names of candidates for all offices for which the elector may vote, he may vote for candidates for such offices so omitted by making a (X) mark before the names of candidates for such offices on other tickets, or by writing the names if they are not printed upon the ballot in the blank column under the title of the office.

If the elector desires to vote for any person whose name does not appear upon the ballot, he can so vote by writing the name in the proper place in the blank column. The elector can vote blank for any ofice on his party ticket by making a cross (X) mark in the circle at the top of the ticket and striking out with pencil or pen the name or names of candidates he does not desire to vote for on the ticket.

Sec. 72.—The polls must be opened at each place of voting, in each precinct, between the hours of eight and nine o'clock in the morning, and kept open without intermission or adjournment, until the hour of five in the afternoon and no longer; provided, that in cities and towns of over five thousand inhabitants the polls shall remain open until six o'clock in the evening, and no longer.

Sec. 73.—The inspectors, before they commence receiving ballots, must cause it to be proclaimed aloud at the place of voting that the election is opened.

Sec. 74.—At all elections by the people of this state the elector must vote in the county and precinct of his residence and nowhere else, and must have registered as provided in this act; and if any elector attempts to vote in any precinct other than that of his residence, his vote must be rejected, except as provided in section 1.

Sec. 75.—Each elector, upon entering the polling place, shall be given one ballot by the inspectors. Before delivering the ballot to the elector at least one of the inspectors shall write, or shall have already written, his name, or the initials of his name, on the stub attached to the ballot. Any elector applying to vote who shall state to any of the inspectors that by reason of his inability to write the English language or by reason of blindness or loss of the use of his hand or hands, he is unable to prepare his ballot, may have the assistance of any person he may select. In such case said elector must remain within the polling place and the inspector shall send for the person selected; if the person cannot be found then any other person such elector may select. An elector who prepares his ballot alone or with the assistance of another, shall be permitted to prepare it at any point in the polling place. Any person called in to assist an elector in preparing his ballot, shall retire when the elector retires. No more than ten electors shall be allowed in the polling place at the same time. No elector shall remain more than five minutes in, nor shall he be permitted to take his ballot from the polling place. Provided, that in cities or towns of more than three thousand inhabitants, each elector on receiving the ballot shall forthwith and without leaving the polling place retire alone to one of the booths or compartments provided for that purpose, and there prepare his ballot in the manner herein provided. Any elector applying to vote in such city or town who shall state under oath to any of the inspectors, which said oath may be administered by any one of the inspectors, that by reason of his inability to write the English language or by reason of blindness or the loss of the use of his hand or hands, he is unable to prepare his ballot, may have the assistance of any person he may select. In such case said elector must remain within the polling place and the inspector shall, send for the person selected. If the person cannot be found, then any other person such elector may select and thereupon said elector and the person so selected shall retire to a booth or compartment and there the person so selected shall render said elector all such assistance in the preparation of said ballot as he may require, so that the same may be voted for the candidates of his choice, in the manner herein provided. In all other respects, said elector shall vote as is required of other electors. No candidate for election shall act as assistant to any elector in the preparation of his ballot. When all the booths or compartments are occupied, and other electors are waiting to vote, no elector shall occupy a booth or compartment for a longer time than five minutes. No elector shall be allowed to occupy a booth or compartment already occupied by another, nor to speak or converse with any one except as herein provided while in the polling place. After having voted, or declined or failed to vote, within five minutes the elector shall immediately withdraw from the polling place and go beyond the prohibited distance, and shall not enter the polling place again.

Sec. 76. Any elector who shall by accident or mistake spoil a ballot so that he cannot conveniently or safely vote same may return it to the inspectors and may receive another in lieu thereof, which ballot must be voted or returned to the inspectors by such elector.

Sec. 77.—After preparing his ballot the elector shall fold the same so as to conceal the face thereof and show the stub thereto attached with the name or the initial of the inspector, and hand it to the receiving inspector. The inspector must receive the ballot folded and call the name of the elector audibly and distinctly, and the name of each elector whose ballot has been received must immediately be taken down by each clerk on separate lists, which shall be headed, "names of voters," and called "poll lists;" and the number of the order in which such elector votes must at the same time be entered by each clerk against his name, the first elector voting being numbered one, the second two, and so on, to the last elector voting.

Sec. 78.—The inspector receiving the ballot shall detach the stub and pass the ballot to each of the other inspectors, and it must then without being opened or examined be deposited in the proper ballot box, after being numbered to correspond with poll list.

Sec. 81.—The inspectors shall select one of their number on opening the polls to act as a challenger, and it shall be his duty to ascertain if each person presenting himself to vote has registered and paid all poll taxes due, such finding to be from an examination of the lists furnished by the judge of probate. If the name of the person does not appear on each list it shall be the duty of the challenger to challenge said voter, unless he shows that he is a qualified voter in that precinct.

Sec. 82.—When any person offering to vote is challenged by an inspector or by any qualified elector, before such person shall be allowed to vote he shall take and subscribe an oath which one of the inspectors shall tender and administer to him, and which shall be in the following form:

State of Alabama, County of ———.

I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am a duly qualified elector under the constitution and laws of the state of Alabama, and that I have resided in the state of Alabama two years next preceding this election, twelve months in this county, and have actually resided three months in this precinct or ward next preceding this day or in case of change of residence provided for by section 178 of the constitution, have resided in this state two years next preceding this election, twelve months in the county and within three months next preceding the election, have removed from this precinct or ward to another precinct or ward in this county, incorporated town or city and would have been entitled to vote but for such removal), all immediately preceding this election and that I am twenty-one years of age or upwards, and that I have not voted on this day at any general or special election at any place of voting, and that I have not been convicted of treason, embezzlement of public funds, malfeasance in office, larceny, bribery, or any crime punishable by tiary, that I have not since the 28th day of November, 1901, been convicted of embezzlement, receiving stolen property, obtaining property or money under false pretenses, subornation of perjury, forgery, assault and battery on the wife, living in adultery, or any crime punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, or of any infamous crime, or crime involving moral turpitude, or of being a vagrant or tramp, or of selling or offering to sell my vote, or the vote of another, or of making or offering to make false returns in any election by the people or in any primary election to procure the nomination or election of any person to office, or of suborning any witness or registrar, to secure the registration of any elector, that I have been duly registered and have paid all poll taxes due by me at the time prescribed by law (or am exempt by law from the payment of poll taxes), so help me God." And in addition to such oath if the person is challenged is not personally known to one of the inspectors to have the qualifications required by law, then one of them shall require such person, before he shall be allowed to vote, to prove his identity and residence in the state, county and precinct in which he offers to vote, by the oath of some elector personally known to some one of such inspectors to be a qualified elector, which oath shall be administered by one of the inspectors, and be in the following form:

State of Alabama, County of ———.

I, ———, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I have (here insert the name of the person offering to vote) for the last two years next preceding this election, and that he has been a resident of this state for said time, twelve months in this county and he actually resided in this precinct or ward for the last three months preceding this election (or in case of change of residence provided for by section 178 of the constitution, he has resided in this state for two years next preceding this election, twelve months in this county and within three months next preceding the date of the election he removed from this precinct or ward to another precinct or ward in this county, incorporated town or city, and would have been entitled to vote but for such removal, all immediately preceding this election; and I believe that he is twenty-one years of age or upwards, and that he has not voted before on this day at any general or special election; so help me God." And upon such oath being duly taken and subscribed, the ballot of the person offering to vote, if he has registered, must be received and deposited as other ballots of qualified electors, and it shall be the duty of the inspectors to file all the oaths so taken and subscribed, and when the election is closed, forward them in a sealed package to the judge of probate, who shall lay them before the next grand jury sitting for the county.

Sec. 83.—When any person offering to vote at any election in this state has been challenged, before administering the oath prescribed, it shall be the duty of one of the inspectors to inform such person that if he takes the oath willfully and falsely, he is guilty of perjury, and on conviction may be imprisoned in the penitentiary for not less than two years.

Sec. 84.—If the person challenged refuses to take the oath, and if he fails to prove his identity and residence when and in the manner required, his vote shall be rejected, and the ballot, marked with his name, shall be laid aside by the inspectors.

Sec. 86.—It is the duty of all inspectors of election in the election precincts, immediately on the closing of the polls, to count the votes polled, and no votes shall be counted until the polls are closed.

Sec. 87.—In counting, the returning officer or one of the inspectors, must take the ballots, one by one, from the box in which they have been deposited at the same time reading aloud the names of the persons voted for, and the office for which such persons are voted for; they must separately keep a calculation of the number of the votes each person receives and for what office he receives them; if the elector has marked more names than there are persons to be elected to an office or if for any reason it is impossible to determine the elector's choice for any office to be filled, his ballot shall not be counted for such office, but this shall not vitiate the ballot so far as properly marked, nor shall any ballot be rejected for any technical error which does not make it impossible to determine the elector's choice and nothing in the election law shall be construed so as to prevent any elector from voting for any qualified person other than those whose names are printed on the ballot.

Sec. 88.—As soon as the ballots are all counted, the inspectors must ascertain the number of votes received for each person and for what office, and must make a statement of the same in writing, which statement must be signed by them; they must also certify in writing on one of the poll lists, that such poll is the poll list of the election precinct at which they were inspectors, the day and year on which such election was held, and for what offices, which certificates must be signed by them; and such statement of the poll lists and votes, thus certified, must be sealed up, together with a list of the registered voters in such precinct at such election on such day, in a box to be furnished by the sheriff of the county, one or more for each precinct, and to consist of wood, tin or sheet iron, and securely fastened by locks, directed to the sheriff of the county, if there be one, and if none, then to the person discharging the duties of such office, and immediately deliver the same to the returning officer of the precinct.

Sec. 89.—The inspectors must count the ballots deposited in the box, and as soon as all the ballots contained in the box are counted, the inspectors shall roll up the ballots so counted, and label the same so as to show for what officer or officers the ballots contained therein were received, and when so rolled up, and labeled, shall be securely sealed; the rejected ballots, if any, shall also be rolled up and labeled as rejected ballots and sealed up as the other parcels; and the packages so sealed up and labeled, together with one poll list shall also be securely sealed up, shall be returned to and securely fastened up in the box in the form which such ballots were taken and counted and which shall also be securely sealed and labeled so as to show the nature of its contents, and shall be delivered to the returning officer, who shall deliver them to the sheriff and shall be kept by him six months, and then the packages shall be taken out of the box, without opening or unsealing the packages, and destroyed, unless within six months the sheriff having them in custody is notified that the election of some officer for which the election was held will be contested, in which case he must preserve the box containing the ballots cast for such contestant until such contest is finally determined, or until such box is demanded by some legally constituted custodian during such contest.

Sec. 90.—The statement of votes and the poll list delivered to the returning officer of the precinct must be delivered to the returning officer of the county within forty-eight hours after the election.

Sec. 92.—Friday next after the election, at the hour of twelve, meridian, the returning officer of the county, by person or by deputy, and the judge of probate and the clerk of the circuit court shall assemble at the court house; and if there is no such judge or clerk, or if either of them fails to attend, or if either of them is interested by reason of having been a candidate at such election, his place must be supplied by a respectable freeholder or householder of the county, appointed by the board herein before provided for the appointing of the inspectors in the various precincts for said election, at the time of appointing the election inspectors and if said appointing board fail to provide for such member or members, or if any member or members as herein provided should fail to attend at the time and place herein mentioned, it shall be the duty of the returning officer to supply such deficiency by a respectable freeholder or householder of the county; and if all such officers are of the same political party then the returning officer of the county must summon three reputable persons, resident householders or freeholders of the county, members of the opposite political party, to attend at such time and place; and in the presence of such other persons as choose to attend, the board shall make a correct statement from the returns of the votes from the several precincts of the county of the whole number of votes given therein for each officer, and the person to whom such votes were given.

John Wanamaker says that it is better to be a poor man and a rich Christian than to be a rich man and a poor Christian, and the Wellsville Reporter derives from this the conclusion that to be a poor man and also a poor Christian is about the limit, says the Syracuse Post-Standard.

The Brooklyn police comfort a man who has been "burglarized" while at the theatre by telling him that he ought to give notice at the station house when he leaves his home for three hours. Police sleuths never did lack ingenuity — in some directions, comments the New York World.

Suits for alienation of affection are always instructive as reducing affection to a dollars and cents basis. To a poor young man, for example, a fellow citizen who values his wife's affection at $10,000 may easily seem to have had a remarkable helpmate; while to a millionaire it might appear that a $10,000 wife was hardly worth going to law about anyway.

The visiting Primate having been shaken up in a railway accident and the President having narrowly escaped one on his journey to Washington, D. C., it is a suitable time for managers in general to consider the question whether the railroads are run as carefully, with as close attention to the details of operation, as they ought to be, the New York Tribune declares.

Fellow Musicians.

When supper's cleared away at last,
And feeble grows the day,
And stars are gathering thick and fast
Out there across the bay,
The bull frog basso clears his throat
And night birds pause to fling
Forth to the breeze a tender note
And Teeny starts to sing.

She's only just a little lass
Who sings straight from her heart
To help the hours of toil to pass,—
What more availeth art?
Out from the kitchen rises sweet
Her childish caroling.
The twilight choir is not complete
Till Teeny starts to sing.

—Washington Star.

The MERTON JEWELS

By W. Q. AMER

Richard Merton, head of the shipping firm of Merton & Co., prospered and grew obese with his good fortune. His progress westward had at length culminated in a pretentious mansion in the charming suburb of Richmond, where he looked forward to spending the rest of his days in placid contentment. It pleased him to provide a liberal hospitality and to surround himself with good company.

Among the crowd of guests on this particular evening was a young man, tall and muscular, with a flowing mustache and distinguished features. Herbert Hendley had never yet taken life very seriously. He had had thoughts of entering one of the professions, but hitherto his modest income had sufficed for immediate needs and he had procrastinated.

He had met the Mertons at a house party in Scotland and had gladly accepted an invitation to renew the acquaintance on his return to the metropolis. He had now been several times to the house and was fast establishing a reputation as a constant visitor.

His attention was directed to the farther end of the room, where a portly, pompous individual was chatting with the charming Geraldine.

"It is stifling here. Would you not like to take a turn on the terrace?" he asked when he reached her side.

"Thank you, it is warm," she assented.

"It is a perfect night," he said enthusiastically.

"Yes, it is very pleasant," and she smiled at his earnestness.

"Do you remember our excursion up the mountain side in Scotland and how we got caught in the Scotch mist?" he mused.

"And how you wrapped me up in your great coat?" she exclaimed. "Am I likely to forget it? What an object I must have looked!" And she laughed musically.

"Well, it was then."

"What was then?" she asked softly as he stopped, seemingly lost in reverie.

"That I first loved you," he burst forth. "I had not intended to speak to-night. I have no right; I am a poor man," and he smiled bitterly. "But I love you, Geraldine; you are dearer to me than my own life. If you could wait, dearest, till I am in a position to marry I would work hard to make an income. Am I asking too much?"

"You can not ask me too much," she said simply, glancing up at him with the lovelight shining in her blue eyes.

He caught her to his breast and kissed her lips again and again. Then straining her to him he whispered, "My darling, you have made me happy."

There was considerable commotion in the Merton household on the following morning. A robbery had been committed during the night.

Mr. Merton communicated with the police and called in the aid of a private detective.

Then the housemaid made a discovery. While attending to her duties in Mrs. Merton's room she found a man's gold cuff link. It was passed from

"You cannot ask me too much."

hand to hand and scrutinized closely. Geraldine gave a start when it was shown to her.

"Why, it is just like Herbert's—I mean Mr. Hendley's," she said, blushing. Suddenly realizing that her words might connect him with the robbery she added quickly: "But of course it can't be his."

The detective said nothing, but gave her a sharp, penetrating glance.

The warm, breathless afternoon was almost at an end and in his comfortable bachelor chambers at Lancaster terrace, West Kensington, Herbert Hendley was entertaining his friend, Dr. George Wallace, who sat at his ease meditatively smoking a cigar and listening with an amused expression to Hendley's recital.

"Most extraordinary thing!"

"Preposterous!" exclaimed that young man, excitedly pacing up and down the room. "Preposterous to be made out a common thief, a burglar, a house breaker, and accused of robbing the father of the girl I love. It's—it's perfectly monstrous."

"It is certainly a trifle awkward," commented George with a smile.

"It's enough to provoke a saint, and—"

"Yes, yes," interposed George, raising his hand deprecatingly, "all that may safely be left to the imagination. Suppose we confine ourselves to the simple facts of the case. You see, at present I only know that you love Geraldine Merton, which shows a pretty taste on your part, and that Mr. Merton accuses you of committing a burglary."

"Well, the story is soon told. It appears that during the night some thieves broke into the Mertons' place and made off with £5,000 worth of jewelry. A nice little haul. As I told you, I had intended looking up old Merton this evening to ask his paternal blessing in the matter of Geraldine. Imagine my surprise, therefore, when a private detective chap called on me about midday and without too much euphemism charged me with committing the theft, informing me that if I would return the jewelry he thought no further steps would be taken in the matter. I need scarcely say I was dumfounded for the moment."

"No—o," said George, thoughtfully. "How do you account for the presence of your cuff link in the room?"

"Dashed if I know, except—"

"Yes?"

"Well, there's the possibility when I was with Geraldine it might have dropped."

"I see—dropped into the folds of her dress, and she carried it into the room and deposited it unconsciously upon the floor."

"It's the only way I can think of."

"What do you want me to do in the matter?" asked George, steadily puffing at his cigar.

"I thought you wouldn't mind acting as go-between and explain the affair to Merton."

"Hum! Tell him a prospective son-in-law is scarcely likely to rob his prospective father-in-law? Eh?"

"Well—er—hang it all, man—it's preposterous."

"Quite so, but the cuff link is nasty evidence. However, much depends upon the circumstances of the robbery. Look here, Bert, I won't promise to see you through, but I'll interview Merton and do the best I can for you."

Upon going down to breakfast at the Merton house a trifle late the next morning Dr. Wallace found his host in a state of considerable perturbation. Nothing, however, was said until the meal was finished and they had retired to the library.

"Most extraordinary thing!" burst forth Mr. Merton, as soon as he had closed the door. "I found this necklace," producing it from his pocket, "one of the stolen articles, on my dressing table this morning."

"Yes, I know," said Dr. Wallace.

"You know?" exclaimed Mr. Merton, staring in astonishment at his companion. "What do you mean? You put—"

"No. It was never in my possession."

"But—how—did—it—come—there?"

"The thief put it there."

"The thief!"

"Yes, so far as there is any theft in the matter. The fact is the jewels have never been out of the house."

"Never been out of the house!" cried Mr. Merton. "I—don't understand."

"The explanation is simple. You are a sleep-walker, Mr. Merton, and have hidden the jewels yourself."

Mr. Merton declared there was no occasion for the young people to wait, and expressed his intention of behaving handsomely toward them.

Things Animals Know.

"It is a queer thing the way animals learn the meaning of certain words," said Mr. W. T. Reeves of Little Rock. "I remember as a boy a certain old gray mare that belonged to our family, which one of my older brothers had ridden the whole time of his service in the confederate army. She was a magnificent saddle animal, and ordinarily as gentle as a lamb, but if any one ventured to say, when on her back, 'look out, the Yankees are coming!' she would proceed to bolt at the top of her speed as though terror stricken, and it was a difficult thing to quiet her down. I suppose the words had in some way been borne in upon her equine intelligence during the conflict, and they must have had some frightful meaning.

"Once I addressed them to her, to my sorrow, for, suddenly wheeling, she left the road and plunged into a thick piece of woodland, with the result that a projecting limb knocked me senseless to the ground. After that, when astride the old mare, I studiously avoided all reference to the Yankees."—Washington Post.

Rather a Puzzler.

While stumping the state during the last gubernatorial campaign, Gov. Frazier of Tennessee entered the office of a village hotel, where he discovered a corpulent German seated at a table, writing. Suddenly the Teuton paused in his task, frowned, scratched his head, chewed the end of his pen, and looked so obviously worried that Mr. Frazier good-naturedly asked:

"My friend, can I be of any service to you?"

"Yah," was the prompt and relieved reply; "blease tell me vedder you puts an 'e' behindt 'before'?"

It was several seconds before the affable candidate grasped the man's meaning and gave the desired information.—New York Times.

Giving Out Information.

Charles S. Mellen, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, was accosted in the ticket office one time by a testy individual, who seemed to be making his first visit to New York. Taking Mr. Mellen for a ticket agent, he asked shortly, "Where's Gorham?"

"What Gorham?" said Mr. Mellen pleasantly, without enlightening the man as to his identity. "Gorham, Mass., Gorham silver, or what?"

"It's your business to know where 'tis, I should think," replied the irascible hayseed.

"Well," said Mr. Mellen, thoughtfully, "Gore 'em ought to be near Bull's Head."—New York Times.

The Resemblance.

Some years ago William T. Smedley boarded in the same house with a young man who prided himself on his likeness to the artist—though, truth to tell, he was very plain, while Mr. Smedley was quite handsome. One morning at breakfast he turned to Mr. Smedley and said:

"Do you know, I am thought very like you?"

"Indeed," was the answer, "I cannot see any resemblance."

"Well, give me a good look now and tell me who I am like."

The artist looked at him steadily for a few moments, and then replied:

"You look only like the boarding-house martyr at the steak."—New York Times.

Love in the Daisies.

Love went where the daisies seemed Sweeter than the dreams he dreamed;
Rested in the meadows fair—
Saying: "All of Life is here!
Let me sleep—
Let me sleep:
I shall never wake to weep!"

And the stars looked down and kissed
Love's gold hair, in dreamy mist—
Singing to the dawning Day:
"Haste not up the Orient way!
Let him sleep—
Oh, let him sleep:
Let him never wake to weep!"

But the Dawn was cruel-kind—
Kissed the eyes that Sleep made blind—
Led the heart the daisies knew
Where the thorns in crimson grew!
Oh, Silence deep!
Oh, Night, and Sleep!
God guard the days where Love must weep!

—F. L. S., in Atlanta Constitution.

A Parable.

A woman lost two little charms, the joint gift of God and a good man. She hunted long for them. She searched in parlor, in ballroom and in theater She crowded men from the great, gaunt buildings where they earned their bread and hunted there for her lost jewels. She did things that made the world take a quick little breath, and then call her a "good fellow." But she found them not. Weary and worn she went back to the beginning, and there, in kitchen and nursery, she found the two "white stones," and written on one was "happiness" and on the other "love."—Chicago Record-Herald.

STRIPES WORN BY CONVICTS.

Their Use Based on the Authority of the Scriptures.

"Did you ever stop to think about the origin of stripes we use in our prisons?" said a man with an eye for the curious. "If you have not, it will not take you long to figure the thing out if you happen to know anything about the Bible. The fact is that we get the ideas from the old dispensation. When I say 'we,' I mean the people of our civilization, of our own day and time, and who live under and are guided by our systems and notions for instance, in the laws and ordinances of Deuteronomy we find the following, which will give us a clew to the origin of stripes as a badge of infamy: 'If there be a controversy between men, and they come unto judgment, that the judges may judge them, then they shall justify the righteous and condemn the wicked. And it shall be, if the wicked man be worthy to be beaten, that the judge shall cause him to lie down and be beaten before his face, according to his fault, by a certain number. Forty stripes he may give him, and not exceed, lest if he should exceed and beat him above these with many stripes, then thy brother should seem vile unto thee.' Now, instead of inflicting these physical stripes, we put striped clothes on the men who offend the law, or who may 'come unto judgment, that the judges may judge them,' as it is put in the text. Of course you should go much further back in history if you cared to trace the origin of marks of infamy, but you would find that physical mutilation of some sort in a majority of instances afforded the means."

Reporter Not Posted.

Col. Lovell H. Jerome of the collector's office, who boards all the incoming steamers, told the other day of an unpublished incident attending the recent arrival of the Archbishop of Canterbury. A very young reporter on a very yellow newspaper was among those assigned to meet the primate, and he sat up all night to do it. Somehow, however, he missed the Archbishop at the dock.

Nothing daunted, he rushed to a telephone and called up Archbishop Farley, whom he had once interviewed, and asked him what time he could meet his distinguished colleague from England at the archiepiscopal palace. It is said that Archbishop Farley's secretary, who is a very diplomatic ecclesiastic, explained to him as gently as possible that all archbishops did not belong to the same church.—New York Times.

He's Seventy—and Hoping.

A Wichita (Kas.) man who has been mining for five years in the wilds of Arizona tells some interesting stories about his partner, who for thirty-five years has been alternating between hope and despair as he searched for gold in the Arizona mountains. The old fellow is more than 70 years old. He thinks that one day he will strike it rich, and then he proposes to have a big time. And here is his idea of a big time. "Jack," he said, "when I strike that million I am going to marry a 16-year-old girl and buy a yacht. Then I am going to take all you duffers on a trip around the world."

To the Point.

The Rev. Leighton Parks, who has become rector of St. Bartholomew's church in New York, coming from Emmanuel church, Boston, was widely known in the latter place for the love he had for children and for his faculty of interesting them.

Since he has been in New York he has kept in communication with several of his little friends in Boston. Recently he wrote to one of his boys telling him how homesick he was, and ended his letter by asking: "Do you know of any cure for homesickness?"

Only a day or two passed before he received an answer. It read:

"Yes. Come home." — Harper's Weekly.

Four o'Clock.

"What time is it, please?"
One day I said
To the little flowers
In the garden bed.
And all were as still
As the big gray rock,
Till one blossom answered,
"It's four o'clock."

"How do you know?"
I asked the flower;
"You have no watch
To tell you the hour.
Do you hear a bell
Or a tick, tock, tock,
That you close your eyes
When it's four o'clock?"

But the pretty blossom
Would not say
How it always knew
The time of day.
It nodded its head
To the big gray rock,
And sleepily murmured,
"It's—four—o'clock."

Parts With English Estates.

The duke of Fife is one of the few land owners in Great Britain who do not believe in the accumulation of vast estates. For some years he has steadily parted with his land as opportunity afforded, holding that one man cannot control large tracts of territory to the best advantage of the community. He is probably the only total abstainer among the dukes in the house of lords.

Superstition of Author.

Winston Churchill, novelist, has a superstition regarding the letter C. The titles of all his stories have begun with that letter.—Celebrity, Crisis, Caravel, Crossing—and all have been successes. He believes that if he should write a novel with a title beginning with a D or a K or a W the book would be a flat failure.

When a candidate addresses an audience of a thousand people he knows that 995 of them are after offices, and the other five are the ones he has promised to appoint.

Fence Posts Became Tre

"People talk of the wonderful growth of the tropical jungle," said a traveler last week, "but they rarely think of the wonderful vitality and swift growth of our own domestic trees in this country.

"There is the poplar, for instance. Rip branches from a tree, thrust them into the ground without any care whatever, and inside of three months every one of those branches will have sent out a mass of roots and be developing fast into a tree.

"I have just passed through a thicket of poplars in New York state where trees of about fifteen feet in height stood so close together that a man could barely push his way between them. They were all flourishing, healthy young trees, with thick trunks.

"To my surprise, I learned from my guide that this whole little grove had sprung up from branches stuck into the ground after a windstorm had torn them from other trees along the road.

"A still more wonderful tree is the catalpa, known to most boys on account of its long bean, which some of them use for smoking after it is dry. The catalpa has such a remarkable vitality that even a tree that has been cut down and sawed into l[o]gs again and again, has been known to strike root and sprout, and even grow up into good trees.

"I saw a fence in the Middle [W]est that consisted of a straight row of beautiful catalpas, each of [w]hich was nearly twenty feet high. The [f]ence was so mathematically straight that I wondered how the trees had [b]een set so, especially as the row was [m]ore than half a mile long. So I rode over [t]o them and discovered that barbed [w]ire was stretched from tree to tree evidently as a division fence. Later I met the owner of the land and he explained to me how the trees had come to grow in so perfect a line.

"'About ten years ago,' he said, 'I wanted to raise a barb fence along the line of my property, to prevent my cattle from straying. So I went into the woods and we chopped down a lot of small catalpas of sapling size. We chopped the trees off, leaving a pointed end at the top, and sawed the crowns off clean, thus making stakes about eight feet long. These we drove into the ground along the row that you saw, and strung our barb wire to them. Inside of two months every stake had begun to sprout, and since then the young stakes have grown into trees.'

Tale of Bonanza Day

In the old days of excitement, when mining stocks were on the jump and men became millionaires over one day's dabbling, an incident occurred at the country residence of James C. Flood in Menlo, when a fairly well-to-do resident found himself without a home in the short period of one week. The man's name was Hank, and, being a first-class gardener, he readily found employment about the residences of the wealthy owners of mansions. In this way he was employed at the Flood residence. Hank was loitering about the garden one Saturday evening as the proprietor, in company with a visitor, was looking over the stock.

Mr. Flood, who had just stepped out of the hog corral, casually remarked to his friend that he would be willing to make a bet that "Con would go up to 300 before Christmas." Hank constructed "con" to mean Consolidated Virginia, and, taking the tip which he thought would make him a millionaire, he disposed of his holdings of 250 acres of fine land, his stock, and, in brief, everything he had on earth except his wife and four bright [c]hildren, and invested in Consolidated Virginia stock, which was then selling at $75 a share.

Christmas came, but instead of "Con" going up to $300 it fell to $[2]. The man was a pauper. In lamenting his loss he incidentally mentioned to a friend of Flood's how he lost his all. Flood, who was generous to a fault, sent for Hank and had him repeat the story. When he learned of his error and remark about "Con going to 300 before Christmas" he fairly shook with laughter and explained what it really meant.

It was in reference to the gift of a young sow, made a present to her by "Con" O'Connor, who, in the [v]ernacular of the thing, had called the pig "Con." The bet alluded to the sow's increasing in weight to 300 pounds by Christmas and not to Con. Virginia.

Having enjoyed the joke and the joshing Hank the noble-hearted Flood bought back the ranch for Hank and recompensed him for all his outlay. The originality of the joke and the knowledge of the penalty paid the eavesdropper was Flood's reward.—San Francisco Call.

Rank Was of Valu

When the late Prof. Sommerville of the University of Pennsylvania, the learned collector of gems, charms and mascots, had set his mind on some curio heard of in one of his meetings with orientals, nothing could bar the way, says the Bookl[o]ver's Magazine. Were it in the center of the desert of Sahara or on the topmost pinnacle of the Hamalayan mountains, he would go after it and keep up the search until the treasure was found, purchased and placed on exhibition at the university museum.

American gold was Prof. Sommerville's magnet, wherever he went. He then describes its effects on one of his expeditions.

"On one occasion we desired to visit the famous Dilwara temples in India, and for that purpose engaged two jinrikshas and a number of natives to draw them, about twelve in all. The temples, as you know, are set in a magnificent grove of mango trees on a mountain top and surrounded by great hills. With a fair measure of tact and money I hoped to secure from the people of the vicinity some of their odd talismans or rings. I said to the chief [m]an: 'Now, Lala, what will you [t]ake for me if I double your pay? I [w]ant to make this journey in half [t]ime and if you accomplish it you shall be doubly paid.'

"He went to his helpers at once and informed them that I was a prince. We started out under [t]his contract. He ran ahead of the convoy, raising both hands in the air and crying to the astounded people, 'Here comes a prince. Down before you. Here comes a prince.'

"And during the entire 12 miles ride I was treated to the American experience of seeing people cover their faces and drop abjectly to the ground in obeisance and salutation, only daring to look at me through their parted fingers. To my amusement at thus being treated as a prince was nothing to the humiliation I experienced in receiving from this people—who did not dare to refuse so august a personage as I—some of the most interesting scribed talismans that I have in my collection."

Pine Stumps Yield Oi

A new proof of the fact that what is wasted one time becomes a valuable material under other circumstances, is given in the success of pine tar plants that have been started up near the head of Lake Superior. That the industry is no experiment and of no doubtful value is shown by the fact that the Weyerhaeuser syndicate, the largest lumbering concern in the world, has taken it up, has just bought out the plants already established and is installing more.

All the region about the head of Lake Superior is, or was, covered with pine timber, and when this was cut the stumps remained on the ground. Pine stumps do not rot as do those of hardwoods and the presence of these stumps was a serious obstacle to the spread of farming in the region.

Now comes the pine tar company and offers to clear a farm of all its old stumps or to pay the owner for every cord of them that he will haul himself. For farmers, throughout thousands of acres, this is an inestimable boon and it will open hundreds of thousands more acres as fast as the stumps are got out.

The company has invented, or applied existing processes of destructive distillation of wood to the pine stumps and is securing a commercial product of great value. There is a large amount of turpentine in the dry stumps, also a high grade of creosoting oil, tar and, finally, excellent charcoal. The discovery that the creosoting oil was to be secured from stumps by carrying the distillation product to its last analysis, is quite new and no machines for producing it have yet been installed, but these are to be put in at once in the company's first plant, a few miles south of Duluth.

The Wood of Silenc

In the Wood of Silence everything goes wrong,
Very deep the shade is, and hushed with joyous song;
The heart sings on the highway and in the field of sheaves,
Who could lift a song to such a roof of leaves?

In the upland valley the lovers danced and sang,
Down beside the river still their laughter rang.
Then they crossed the cornfield, passed the white barred gate,
And knew the Wood of Silence where the shadows wait.

Once within its darkness came the sudden change,
Each, quick glancing sideways, found the other strange.
They forgot the wind then and the sun above;
In the Wood of Silence copes the end of love.

Out upon the roadway with the [s]un behind
Still they felt its magic hold their eyes blind;
Though they strove with laughter mask each hidden thought,
Nothing could unravel the spell the [t]rees wrought.

Not the failing sunset nor the [m]oon light,
As the hill they mounted, brought deep a night.
Darkness all about them, darkness the heart,
Hand in hand they journeyed, all [a]part.

Nevermore together to stand as they stood
Watching for the dryads in the [W]ood;
Or to tread the winding road and the dark above;
In the Wood of Silence came the [e]nd of love.

—E. C., in The London Athen[a]eum.

THE FALL GIRL.

[T]housand sing the girl of Spring—
[T]he maid of fluff and laces;
[T]housand more their fancies pour
To tell the June bride's graces;
[T]he Summer girl of smile and curl
[O]rations rhyming scrawl—
[M]y now is due a tribute to
The bonny girl of Fall.

The Fall Girl—
The tall girl—
In blue or gray or brown;
In tailor-made
She is arrayed—
She's coming back to town.

[T]o celebrate the graduate
[D]emure in mull or chullis;
[T]he tennis girl, with shirts awhirl,
[E]vokes a rhyming rally;
[S]ottly chant the debutante
[A]t her initial ball—
[W]here is the Muse of him who views
The bonny girl of Fall?

The Fall Girl—
The small girl—
In blue or gray or brown;
A rare delight
Unto the sight
She's coming back to town.

[F]rom head to feet she's trim and neat;
Her cheeks are full of [r]ose
That makes the gow[n]s maples show
Seem dim, and cold, and [p]ale.
[N]ow come the days of smoky haze
And distant winter's cool
[A]utumn's blur. Hats off to Her,
The bonny girl of Fall.

The Fall Girl—
She's all girl,
In blue or gray or brown,
Or any hue
Time's swagger-new.
She's coming back to town
—Wilbur D. Nesbit, in L[i]fe.

"POCKY"

When Jack Maston was taking his [g]ang of men to his logging-camp up [a]mong the head waters of the Andro[s]coggin river his cook fell ill and had [t]o be sent back, along with the man [w]ho was to have served as "cookee," [t]he cook's assistant.

After a delay of one or two days [M]aston secured a couple of French [C]anadians to take their places.

Peter, the new cook, a huge, black-[b]earded fellow, with evil, narrow eyes, [s]oon began to amuse himself by bully-[i]ng the cookee, who, on account of [h]is smallpox scars with which the [w]hole man's face, was covered, he [p]ersuasively called "Pocky."

Maston, coming into the camp kitch-[e]n unexpectedly one evening, found [P]eter belaboring Pocky with the soup [l]adle.

"Why you don't put more potat in [d]e soup, Pocky? I tol' you put in [f]ifteen potat. Hey?"

"I put them in all right," protested [t]he assistant, trying to ward off the [l]adle.

"You tol' me lie. I'll break your [h]ead right off," and Peter whacked [a]gain at the cookee's head.

"Hold on, Peter!" said Maston. "[I]t's the soup's all right. You let the [b]oy alone."

A cook in a logging-camp, if he is a [g]ood cook, is an important person, [a]ccustomed to brook interference, and Peter turned angrily.

"I ain't want no boss tell me 'bout [m]y beesness," he said. "I'll mind my [b]eesness, me."

And seizing Pocky by the collar, he [f]lung him half across the room.

Maston took two long strides forward.

"Peter," he said sternly, "if you ever [l]ay a hand on that boy again it will [g]o hard with you."

The cook's face turned black. He threw down the stack of tin plates which he had just picked up, and doubling his fists, he cried:

"I ain't 'fraid no Yankee boss never [s]ee! I lick you so quick as I lick dat [d]og."

He made at Maston. The next moment the burly lumberman had [c]atched him on the floor.

From that time on there was no more abuse for Pocky. Peter had transferred all his malice to the boss. From he watched with eyes that often [g]leamed with hate. And meanwhile, [P]ocky was watching Peter.

The huge tier of logs increased rapidly. Maston had conceived the idea of [p]lacing them upon a smooth and [s]olid railway, leading to the water. He believed then, that by knocking [o]ut two props at the foot, he could [c]atch at once the whole mass of timber. The expense of rolling the logs would thus be saved, and they would [a]lso be kept from mingling much with those of other river-men.

[D]uring the last days of March that [w]inter the weather became unusually [w]arm, and so much rain fell that the [m]ountain stream rose suddenly.

As the rain continued Maston grew [a]nxious. If the water should rise [e]nough to float the raft of logs disaster must follow, for the stream was [n]ot to abate within a few hours after the closing of the storm. Another [q]uick freeze would be sure to come, and then the logs would be held fast [u]ntil the ice broke up, when they [w]ould go out with it and be scattered and lost.

[O]n the third night of the storm [M]aston awoke and thought he heard, [a]mid the roaring of the stream and the [b]eating of the rain, another sound. He [r]ose on his elbow in his bunk and [l]istened. Again it came, and this [t]ime there could be no mistake. It [w]as a wild cry, as from a man in the [e]xtremity of pain and terror.

[M]aston sprang to the floor and began [h]urrying on his boots.

"Up, men, up!" he shouted.

[S]ee by one the sleepy loggers poked their heads out of their bunks, and [t]hen came the terrible cry.

"Down by the river, boys!" Maston [c]ried; and without waiting for them to [k]now, he seized a lighted lantern

e Posts Became Tre

...k of the wonderful ... tropical jungle," said a ... week. "But they rarely ... wonderful vitality and ... of our own domestic ... country ... the poplar, for instance. ... from a tree thrust them ... most without any care ... inside of three months those branches will have ... size of trees and be de... to a tree ... ...ot passed through a ...are in New York state ... about fifteen feet in ... to come together that ...arely push his way be... They were all flourish... young trees with thick ...

...ree I'd cut from my ... which little grove had ... branches shut into ... after a windstorm had ... other trees along the ...

...wonderful tree is the ... to most boys on the ... bear, which some ... for smoke after it is ... has such a remark... over a tree that was been cut down and sawed into ... again and again, has been kno... strike root and sprout, and ... grow up into good trees.

"I saw a fence in the Middle... that consisted of a straight r... beautiful catalpas, each of ... nearly twenty feet high. The... was so mathematically straight... I wondered how the trees had ... so, especially as the row was ... half a mile long. So I rode o... them and discovered that bart... was stretched from tree to tree... dently as a division fence. I... met the owner of the land, a... explained to me how the trees... come to grow in so perfect a l...

"'About ten years ago,' he ... 'I wanted to raise a barb wire ... along the line of my property, ... vent my cattle from straying... went into the woods and we cl... down a lot of small catalpas, ... sapling size. We chopped the... off, leaving a pointed end at the... and sawed the crowns off clean... making stakes about eight feet... These we drove into the ground... the row that you saw, and sti... our barb wire to them. Inside ... months every stake had begu... sprout, and since then the ... stakes have grown into trees."

of Bonanza Da

...ve of excitement, when ... were on the jump and ...ullionaires over one ... an incident occurred ... residence of James C... , when a fairly well ... found himself without a ... cent period of one week. ... me was Hank, and, he ... is garrulous, he readily ... about the rest ... story. When he learned of his ... remark about "Con going to ... fore Christmas" he fairly shook ... laughter and explained what it ...

It was in reference to the gift ... young sow, made a present to h... "Con" O'Connor, who, in the f... the thing, had called the pig "... The bet alluded to the sow's ... ing in weight to 300 pounds b... Christmas and not to Con. Virgi...

Having enjoyed the joke and ... joshing Hank the noble-hearted ... bought back the ranch for Hank ... recompensed him for all his l... The originality of the joke and ... knowledge of the penalty paid ... eavesdropper was Flood's rewa... San Francisco Call.

k Was of Valu

...ept his wife and four bright ... Hanks. The proceeds he invest... Consolidated Virginia stock, ... was then selling at $75 a share.

Christmas came, but instea... "Con" going up to $300 it fell t... The man was a pauper. In lame... his loss he incidentally mention... a friend of Flood's how he lost h... Flood, who was generous to a ... sent for Hank and had him repe... story. When he learned of his ... remark about "Con going to ... fore Christmas" he fairly shook ... laughter and explained what it ...

It was in reference to the gift ... young sow, made a present to h... "Con" O'Connor, who, in the f... the thing, had called the pig "... The bet alluded to the sow's ... ing in weight to 300 pounds b... Christmas and not to Con. Virgi...

Having enjoyed the joke and ... joshing Hank the noble-hearted ... bought back the ranch for Hank ... recompensed him for all his l... The originality of the joke and ... knowledge of the penalty paid ... eavesdropper was Flood's rewa... San Francisco Call.

Stumps Yield Oi

...of the fact that what ... becomes a valu... other remu... the success of pine ... have been started up ... the Superior. That ... experiment and of ... shown by the fact ... are available, the ... company in the ... has paid a dividend ... only established and ...

...about the head of ... ...rs covered with ... when this was cut ... on the ground ... rooms to begin ... the presence of ... as a serious obstacle ... ...ing the season ... ...pose for company ... a farm of all its ...

old stumps or to pay the owner ... every cord of them that he will ... himself. For farmers, throu... thousands of acres, this is an ... mable boon and if will open hun... of thousands more acres as fa... the stumps are got out.

The company has invented, ... plied existing processes of destru... distillation of wood to the ... stumps and is securing a com... product of great value. There ... large amount of turpentine in ... dry stumps, also a high grade of ... cating oil, tar and, finally, exc... charcoal. The discovery that ... cating oil was to be secured ... stumps by carrying the distilled ... not to its last analysis, is quite ... and up machines for producing ... have yet been installed, but they ... to be put in at once in the comp... first plant, a few miles south of ... luth.

Wood of Silenc

...ver everything goes ... ...e and hushed with ... the highway and in ... ...e to such a roof of ...

...by the lovers danced ... ...yed still their laugh... ...the crowded passed ... ...ss of Silence where the ... ...ll wander the sigh... ...ways, found the ... ...ed trees and the sun ... ...Silence comes the end

...by some of their odd talismans ... rings. I said to the chief ... man: 'Now, Lala, what will y... for me if I double your pay? I ... to make this journey in half ... and if you accomplish it you sh... doubly paid.'

"He went to his helpers at ... and informed them that I w... prince. We started out under ... contract. He ran ahead of the ... voy, raising both hands in th... and crying to the astounded p... 'Here comes a prince. Down ... you. Here comes a prince.'

"And during the entire t... mile ride I was treated to th... American experience of seeing ... people cover their faces and dro... jectly to the ground in obeisance ... salutation, only daring to look ... through their parted fingers. ... my amusement at thus being tr... as a prince was nothing to the ... cation I experienced in sec... from this people who did not ... to refuse so august a personag... some of the most interestin... scribed talismans that I have ... collection."

THE FALL GIRL.

...housand sing the girl of Spring—
...e maid of fluff and laces;
...ousand more their fancies pour
...o tell the June bride's graces;
...e summer girl of smile and curl
...ersions rhyming scrawl—
...now is due a tribute to
...e bonny girl of Fall.

The Fall Girl—
The tall girl—
In blue or gray or brown;
In tailor-made
She is arrayed—
She's coming back to town.

...celebrate the graduate
...mure in mull or challis;
...tennis girl, with skirts awhirl,
...okes a rhyming rally;
...ostly chant the debutante
...r initial ball—
...re is the Muse of him who views
...e bonny girl of Fall?

The Fall Girl—
The small girl—
In blue or gray or brown;
A rare delight
Unto the sight—
She's coming back to town.

...m head to feet she's trim and ...eat;
...r cheeks are full of color ...t makes the glow the maples ...show
...s dim, and cold, and duller.
...e come the days of smoky haze ...d distant winter's chill
...autumn's blur—Hats off to Her,
The bonny girl of Fall!

The Fall Girl—
She's all girl,
In blue or gray or brown,
Or any hue
Time's swagger-new
She's coming back to town.
—Wilbur D. Nesbit, in Life.

"POCKY"

...hen Jack Maston was taking his ...g of men to his logging-camp up ...ng the head waters of the Andro...gin river his cook fell ill and had ...e sent back, along with the man ...o was to have served as "cookee," ...cook's assistant.

...fter a delay of one or two days ...ston secured a couple of French ...adians to take their places.

...Peter, the new cook, a huge, black-...ired fellow with evil, narrow eyes, ...n began to amuse himself by bully... ...the cookee, who, on account of ...smallpox scars with which the ...e man's face, was covered, he ...ively called "Pocky."

...Maston, coming into the camp kitch... ...unexpectedly one evening, found ...er belaboring Pocky with the soup ...dle.

"Why you don't put more potat in ...n soup, Pocky? I tol' you put in ...fteen potat. Hey?"

"I put them in all right," protested ...e assistant, trying to ward off the ...dle.

"You tol' me lie. I'll break your ...de right off," and Peter whacked ...m at the cookee's head.

"Hold on, Peter!" said Maston. "I ...ss the soup's all right. You let the ...y alone."

...A cook in a logging-camp, if he is a ...d cook, is an important person ...accustomed to brook interference, ...Peter turned angrily.

"I ain't want no boss tell me 'bout ...beeziness," he said. "I'll mind my ...ness, me."

...nd seizing Pocky by the collar, ...w him half across the room.

...Maston took two long strides for... ...Peter," he said sternly, "if you ever ...a hand on that boy again it will ...hard with you."

...The cook's face turned black. He ...w down the stack of tin plates ...e had just picked up, and ...bling his fists, he cried:

"I ain't 'fraid no Yankee boss never ... I lick you so quick as I lick dat ...

...e made at Maston. The next mo... ...the burly lumberman had ...ched him on the floor.

...From that time on there was no ...e abuse for Pocky. Peter had ...sferred all his malice to the boss, ...m he watched with eyes that often ...ened with hate. And meanwhile, ...y was watching Peter.

...The huge tier of logs increased rap...

...Maston had conceived the idea ...placing them upon a smooth and ...railway, leading to the water. ...believed then, that by knocking ...two props at the foot, he could ...sh at once the whole mass of tim...

...The expense of rolling the logs ...ld thus be saved, and they would ...be kept from mingling much with ...e of other river-men.

...During the last days of March that ...r the weather became unusually ...m, and so much rain fell that the ...tain stream rose suddenly.

...As the rain continued Maston grew ...ious. If the water should rise ...sh to float the raft of logs dis... must follow, for the stream was ...d to abate within a few hours af... the closing of the storm. Another ...k freeze would be sure to come, ...then the logs would be held fast ...l the ice broke up, when they ...d go out with it and be scattered ...lost.

...In the third night of the storm ...on awoke and thought he heard, ...the roaring of the stream and the ...ng of the rain, another sound. He ...on his elbow in his bunk and ...ened. Again it came, and this ... there could be no mistake. It ...a wild cry, as from a man in the ...mity of pain and terror.

...Maston sprang to the floor and be... ...hurrying on his boots.

..."Up, men, up!" he shouted.

...In by one the sleepy loggers poked ...r heads out of their bunks, and ...n came the terrible cry.

..."Down by the river, boys!" Maston ...d, and without waiting for them to ...ow, he seized a lighted lantern and a peavy and ran outdoors toward the rollway.

As the swirling waters of the river flashed in the glare of the lantern, he heard a weak voice calling:

"Quick, boss! Come quick! I can't hol' dem log no longer!"

Then Maston saw Pock's face, strangely contorted, straining above the bottom log of the tier.

Loosed by the breaking of the prop at the end of it, this log had swung forward down the rollway toward the river, until it had nearly wrenched away the prop at the outer end.

Pock crouched, with his shoulder beneath a bending lever, striving against the further slipping of the ponderous tree trunk.

As yet the friction was sufficient to hold the logs behind in place, but they might move at any moment; and should the prop at the other end give way, the whole mass would overwhelm Pock, and sliding like an avalanche, plunge into the river.

Maston sprang over the log and threw his peavy into position beneath it. Bending to the lift with all his great strength, he stopped the sliding.

Pocky, feeling the terrible strain upon his shoulder relax, groaned feebly and sank down upon the ground.

In a few seconds that elapsed before the men came running down, Maston heard at his right and almost under him a moan of suffering; and when the men pried up the log, Maston drew out from under it Peter, crushed and senseless.

The cook was still breathing, however, and when he had been carried back to the camp and carefully examined, Maston was relieved to find that he had received no worse an injury than a broken leg.

By that time Pocky had recovered sufficiently to tell his story, although he was still too exhausted to emphasize it with his usually profuse gestures.

"I no like the way Peter act some time. So I keep watch, and t'ink he goin' hurt the boss. Tonight I hear him get up in his bunk and go out; and then I got up and go behin' him. I take one peevy to break his hade if do somet'ing bad.

"He has one bull's eye lantern, and goes up, down the pile of log. He sees stick what hol' the log from goin' down river. Then he takes big skid and runs hard to knock out the prop. Some time I throw peevy stick very quick between his logs, and he falls down like one frog, jus' w'en he knocks out prop.

"Oh, ba golleo! I never hear one man squeal so bad like him. And I take my peevy to try lif' the log, but kit keep squeezin' him more an' more, an' by 'n' by the boss come, and all is right. I pooty glad, me."

It was with some emotion that Maston shook the little man's hand.

"You're a good, brave boy," he said. "You've saved a man's life, and you've saved me money, and I don't believe either of us are likely to forget it."

The raft of logs went safely down stream in the end, and out of his profits Maston provided a handsome reward for Pocky. As for Peter, he did some thinking during the weeks that he lay on his back, and when he was at last well enough to take his departure from the camp, he said to his former assistant:

"I much 'bliged, Pocky. You good man. If try my bes' to be so good a man as you, me."—Youth's Companion.

Foster Mother of Five Bull Pups.

Out in Bales avenue, a most fashionable part of Kansas City, a big maltese cat mother is giving her entire attention and care to a litter of five bull puppies, while she nourishes a kitten of her own and strives painstakingly to encourage the six to dwell in peace and unity. Recently the mother of the puppies, a blue ribbon English bull that was registered and had been exhibited at many dog shows, died, leaving to mourn her loss the five puppies, then but a few days old.

Capt. Kennedy, the official dog enumerator, was surprised in no small measure when a young woman called at his office and asked for a mother for the puppies.

"I havn't a dog of that description now," explained the impounder, after he had regained his equilibrium, "but I have a big maltese cat which, I think, will prove to be the best kind of a mother to your puppies."

So the cat and one of her kittens were removed to the young woman's home in Bales avenue. Then the five hungry puppies were turned over to their strange mother. The cat purred gloriously and by other manifestations expressed her delight. For more than two weeks she has nursed the the five puppies and her one offspring. All day long the puppies caper around with the mother cat and her kitten, and when night comes the whole bloomin' menagerie climb into a box together and roll up in a solid ball of cat fur and dog hair.—Kansas City Journal.

Baby Was Well Packed.

Mr. Pett Ridge told an excellent baby story at the ladies' summer dinner of the New Vagabonds' club. A lady and her little daughter were walking through Grosvenor square, when they came to a portion of a road strewn with straw.

"What's that for, ma?" said the child to which the mother replied: "The lady who lives in that house, my dear, has had a little baby girl sent her." The child walked along for a few yards, and then turning back and nodding at the straw, said: "Awfully well packed, ma."—St. James's Gazette.

Thirteen life insurance companies in Great Britain refuse to accept risks on unvaccinated persons.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

A STRONG DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "MAN'S CONDITION: GOD'S REMEDY."

An Address Delivered at the Mildmay Conference by Sir Robert Anderson, K. C. B., LL.D.—The Spiritual Helplessness and Hopelessness of Man.

LONDON, ENGLAND.—The following address, entitled, "Man's Condition, God's Remedy," was delivered at the Mildmay Conference by Sir Robert Anderson, K. C. B., LL. D.

The special subject assigned to me is "The Spiritual Helplessness of Man by Nature, and the New Birth From Above." I am not here to defend the dogmas that theology has based upon this truth. What concerns us is the truth itself. I say this with emphasis, because of what is passing around us.

And this should be our position in regard to all the great doctrines of faith. The age of creeds is passed. In days of chivalry, when men had respect for truth and honor, creeds shut out those who could not honestly accept them. But now they avail nothing to protect the gold against "thieves and robbers." Men will publicly, and in the most solemn way, pledge their belief in every Christian truth in order to gain office in our churches; and as soon as they secure the prestige and pay which office affords, they use the pulpits to attack the very truths they are pledged and subsidized to defend. This being so, let us abandon the outworks of our creeds, and, falling back upon the Bible, stand four-square in its defense.

In this spirit I approach my subject. I am not ignorant of what theology teaches about human depravity, nor of the controversies respecting it which preceded the settlement of our creeds. But on this platform I will recognize no authority save an open Bible. My reason for saying this is because here, as on many other questions, the opponents of the truth owe their vantage ground to what is called Christian doctrine on the subject. For the doctrine is inconsistent with facts, whereas between truth and fact conflict is impossible.

A natural man, i. e., a man who has not experienced the new birth, and who has not the Spirit of God, may live a life of the highest morality and rectitude. Scripture testifies that in these qualities the Apostle Paul made no advance after his conversion. It is no answer to this to say that in his unconverted days he came under the external influences of divine truth. The fact remains that they were unconverted days, and that with such an environment he was able to maintain such a life of purity and piety and zeal, albeit he was spiritually dead in sins. He took to religion as another man might take to pleasure, or to study, or to trade, or to drink. But in this, as he himself declares, he was only following his natural bent—"the desires of the flesh and of the mind."

Neither is it an objection that such a case is exceptional. What man has done men may do. If the Fall made it impossible for men to live pure and upright lives, in would be unjust in God to judge them for their vices.

There are two great standards or principles of divine judgment. With those who hear the Gospel, the consequences of accepting or rejecting Christ are final and irreversible. As for the rest, men will be judged by the law of their being, whether as stamped on heart or conscience, or as formulated in express commands at Sinai.

THE NATURAL MAN.

The first three chapters of Romans claim notice here. The first chapter describes the condition in which the mass of the heathen world was sunk even in days when the tide of human progress and culture was at the flood, and when, moreover, the great religious cults of classic Paganism held up a standard of life as high as any that apostate Christendom presents—cults of which one at least had such spiritual vitality that three centuries afterwards it bid fair to supplant Christianity as the religion (I am not speaking of the true Christianity of the true Church of God) maintained its ascendancy, it was first by penal laws of extreme severity, and second by adopting the chief characteristic rites and errors of the Paganism which it thus persecuted.

These things need stating if we are to understand aright the closing words of the first chapter of Romans. The vile practices of the heathen world were not due to ignorance. They knew that their deeds were evil. They knew the judgment of God, that they who practiced such things were worthy of death, and yet they practiced them.

But the case of Saul of Tarsus was wholly different. If what men call conscience were the arbiter of human conduct; if that were right which a man honestly believed to be right, his was a perfect life. As judged by any and every human standard, Saul of Tarsus was a pattern saint; but as judged by God he was a pattern sinner. And if you read the middle verses of Romans 3 intelligently, this is the lesson you will learn from them: It is God's estimate of the life of the natural man at his best—the life of the upright, pious, zealous Jew under law. "For that which is highly esteemed among men is abomination in the sight of God."

The story is told of the first Duke of Cambridge, that when, in the reading of the Decalogue, the Seventh Commandment was reached, instead of the orthodox response, he answered, in an aside, that was plainly audible, "I never did that." But here was a man who could make a like response to every commandment in the Decalogue. "As touching the righteousness that is in the law, blameless." Such was his proud boast.

You will say, perhaps, that this only proves that he was utterly blind and dead. But that is precisely what I am insisting on; that so far is it from the truth that human nature is hopelessly corrupt and depraved, as men judge of corruption and depravity, that a natural man may live a life that would put to shame half the saints in the calendar. By a course of unChristian asceticism and severe penances for "punishing the body," these calendar saints attained to what men deem sainthship. But to this man sainthship was as natural as sin was to many of the saints of the calendar.

One of the tests which people hold to be final is that man shall "do his best." What more can possibly be expected of him? This man "did his best," and his best was a "record" that has never been beaten. What purity of life was his! What piety! What burning zeal! What self-sacrificing devotion to what he believed to be the cause of God! But looking back upon it all, he writes, "Who was before a blasphemer." And what a blasphemer!

And so, when he comes under the Divine searchlight, he declares himself the chief of sinners. Scanning the long line of all the sinners of the race, he takes his place at their head, "of whom I am the first." If these were not the words of an inspired Apostle in an inspired epistle, we might suspect exaggeration. And yet they only express the well recognized principle that privilege increases responsibility and responsibility deepens guilt. Of course he knew no better. But that only made his case the worse, for if ever there was a man who ought to have known better it was he. And so he takes his place as "chief of sinners." And he humbly adds, "I obtained mercy."

And he repeats this. For he was twice mercied. It is not God's way to put blasphemers into the ministry. And so, as he thinks of the Lord's "exceeding abundant grace" in calling him to the apostleship, he says, "I obtained mercy, because I did it ignorantly in belief." But for a lost, dead sinner a plea like this avails absolutely nothing. For such, the one and only plea is "that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners."

THE WORK OF REDEMPTION.

The Epistle to the Romans goes on to unfold the doctrine of salvation. Sin arraigns the sinner before the Divine judgment seat, and he stands there as guilty and doomed. Salvation therefore can only be through redemption, and redemption must be by blood. But as we have seen, sin has another aspect: it corrupts and depraves the whole spiritual being. The sinner therefore needs a new nature. He must be born again, born from above.

But these truths must never be separated. The Spirit's work depends upon the work of Christ. Hence the emphasis with which we are told that Christ came by water and blood; not by water alone, but by water and blood—as the R. V. renders it, "by the water and the blood."

We all know what the blood means. We are "redeemed by the precious blood of Christ as of a lamb without blemish and without spot." But some of us are much at sea about the water. The water and the blood are figurative expressions. But the figures are typical. And if we understand the types, both will turn our thoughts to the sacrifice of Calvary. The water was "the water of purification" of Numbers 19. Water that owed its ceremonial efficacy to the sin offering. But the sin offering was only for a redeemed people; a people already redeemed by the blood of the Paschal Lamb. When the Lord returns in blessing to Israel, then, as Ezekiel 36 teaches us, He will come "by the water." But this is because His first coming was not by the water only, but by the water and the blood. The blood has already been shed, redemption is accomplished.

The two, I repeat, must never be separated. And as redemption is altogether God's work, so also is the new birth. Like the Apostle's ministry (Gal. I: 1, R. V.), it is "not from men, neither through man." No ordinance or "sacrament" has anything to do with it. Men can fix time and place for ordinances, for ordinances relate to earth; but the new birth is from above. The Spirit breathes where He wills.

It is to this thirty-sixth chapter of Ezekiel that these words of Christ refer. Three elements in the new birth are specified in the prophecy:

(1) "I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean." (v. 25.)

(2) "I will give you a new heart." (v. 26.)

(3) "And I will put My Spirit within you." (v. 27.)

"THE WATER OF REGENERATION."

In Matt. 19:28, the time of its fulfillment for the man is designated by the Lord as "The Regeneration." And in the only other passage in the New Testament where that word occurs, it is used in connection with "the water of purification" and the Ezekiel prophecy. I allude of course to Titus 3:5: "He saved us by the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost." The word here used is loutron. It is mis-rendered "washing," for it is a noun substantive and not a verb; and the R. V. gloss (margin) is misleading, for loutron is never used in the Greek Bible for "the laver." But in the Greek Version of Eccles. 34:25 it is used for the vessel which held "the water of purification."

But to return to the Divinely appointed rite of the Jewish religion. What was the symbolism of the water? Scripture itself supplies the answer. The word loutron, like the word "regeneration," occurs only twice in the New Testament. I have already spoken of Titus 3:5; the other passage is Eph. 5:26. Christ gave Himself for the Church, "that He might sanctify and cleanse it with the loutron of water by the Word." In the type the Israelite reached the sacrifice by means of the water; in the antitype the believer reaches the sacrifice by means of the Word. Hence the language of Scripture, "the loutron of water in the Word." The water of purification was, as we have seen, the water of regeneration; and it is by the Word that the sinner is born again to God. It has nothing to do with mystic arts or shibboleths after the pattern of ancient Paganism. "We are born again" (as the inspired Apostle teaches) "by the Word of God"—"the living and eternally abiding Word of God."

And to guard against all possibility of error or misapprehension, it is added, "And this is the Word which by the Gospel is preached unto you"—preached, as he had already declared, "with the Holy Ghost sent down from Heaven." Not the Spirit without the Word, nor the Word without the Spirit, but the Word preached in the power of the Spirit.

In all this the truth of Christianity is the counterpart and complement of the teaching of the Old Testament. How can sinners, helpless, hopeless, dead—as dead as dry bones scattered on the earth—be born again to God? "Can these bones live?" was the question which led the prophet to cast himself on God. And the 37th chapter of Ezekiel gives the answer: Preach to them. Call upon them to hear the Word of the Lord. (v. 4). This is man's part; or if anything more remains it is "Prophecy unto the breath"—pray that the Spirit may breathe upon these dead. The rest is God's work altogether. For "the Spirit breathes when He wills."

Men preach; the Spirit breathes; and the dry bones live. Thus it is that sinners are born again.—London Christian.

Look Ahead.

There is glory for the time to come. A great many people seem to forget that the best is before us. Dr. Bonar once said that everything before the true believer is "glorious." This thought took hold on my soul, and I began to look the matter up and see what I could find in Scripture that was glorious hereafter.

I found that the kingdom we are going to inherit is glorious; our crown is to be a "crown of glory;" the city we are going to inhabit is the city of the glorified; the songs we are going to sing are the songs of the glorified; we are to wear garments of "glory and beauty;" our society will be the society of the glorified; our rest is to be "glorious;" the country to which we are going is to be full of the glory of God and of the Lamb.

There are many who are always looking on the backward path and mourning over the troubles through which they have passed; they keep lugging the cares and anxieties they have been called on to bear and are forever looking at them. Why should we go reeling and staggering under the burdens and cares of life when we have such glorious prospects before us?—D. L. Moody.

The Opposer of Christ.

An unloving spirit is the worst treachery to Christ that we can offer. How often do those who are full of good works for the Lord stop to think of this? The harsh word spoken by the busy teacher or superintendent or pastor is a travesty on the profession such a one makes. For Christ is one with God, and God is love. Unlove is anti-Christ. We cannot serve Christ while unlove for any child of His is in our hearts or words. "And if I have the gift of prophecy, and know all mysteries and all knowledge: and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing. And if I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and if I give my body to be burned, but have not love, it profiteth me nothing." "This is My commandment, that ye love one another."

Pray For Holiness.

Let our prayer be ever for more holiness and more fitness for the kingdom. Then shall the tabernacle of God be with men, and we shall be His people, and God Himself shall be with us.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR NOVEMBER 6.

Subject: Joash, the Boy King. II Kings xi., 1-16—Golden Text. Prov. xxix., 2—Memory Verses, 10-12—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

Introduction.—Our lessons now return to the kingdom of Judah. Last quarter we saw how Jehoshaphat, in his desire to keep peace with the northern kingdom, made the fatal mistake of uniting his son Jehoram to Athaliah, the daughter of Ahab and Jezebel. Athaliah was the image of her heathen mother, and the union was disatrous in the extreme to the kingdom of Judah. Jehoram was weak as well as wicked, and was wholly under the influence of his heathen queen, and the licentious worship of Baal was soon introduced into Jerusalem and established over the country.

Commentary.—I. Athaliah usurps the throne (vs. 1-3). 1. "Athaliah." As soon as Athaliah, Jehoram's widow, knew that her son Ahaziah was dead, she at once took steps to seat herself on the throne. She was wicked and unscrupulous and endeavored to make her title to the throne secure by ordering all of the male members of the royal family to be put to death. 2. "Jehosheba." She was probably a half-sister of Ahaziah and a step-daughter of Athaliah, being the daughter of Joram by another wife. She was the wife of Jehoiada, the priest (2 Chron. 22:11), which explains the ease with which she could arrange for hiding Joash in the temple. "Took Joash." He was an infant at this time, not a year old. "The bedchamber." The original words signify a chamber of beds. Not a regular sleeping apartment, for Athaliah would leave no such place unsearched, but a place where beds were stowed away. 3. "Was with her." That is, his nurse. "Hid . . . six years." He was concealed in one of the chambers which ran around the temple on two sides and one end and which were "variously used as wardrobes or as dwelling rooms." We may safely conclude that they were under the control of the high priest, Jehoiada. This would be a safe hiding place, for Athaliah probably never visited the temple, which, under her reign, fell into neglect and disrepute.

II. The plan to make Joash king (vs. 4-11). 4. "The seventh year." The seventh year of Joash's age. See v. 21. "Jehoiada." The high priest. He was brother-in-law to Ahaziah, and therefore uncle to Joash. In the revolution which he planned he showed great tact and ability. Always loyal to Jehovah, he was a safe and wise counselor. "Captains over hundreds" (R. V.). Their names are given in 2 Chron. 23:1, 2. They were probably officers of the army, having charge of a hundred men. "Carites" (R. V.). The men of Caria, in Asia Minor. "Guard." The word rendered "guard" is literally "runners" and applies to the royal bodyguard; the "Carites" are thought to be a similar class. These officers were strictly military. "Made a covenant," etc. He made a covenant with the five captains whom he had taken into his confidence and bound them under a solemn oath to assist him in carrying out his plans.

5. "He commanded them." The description of the arrangement of the Levite guards in the verses which follow is obscure. The difficulty comes from our ignorance of some of the terms employed. "A third part," etc. The guards were divided into five companies. "On the Sabbath." A large number of Levites were constantly employed about the temple, and they relieved each other by turns, making their shifts on the Sabbath. Jehoiada's plan was to enlist the services of those who were retiring from duty as well as those who were entering upon duty. "The king's house." One-third of those who were entering upon duty were to remain outside, instead of entering the temple, as usual, and guard the passageway leading to the royal residence.

6. "Gate of Sur." A third part were to guard the gate Sur, which was probably "the main entrance into the inner court of the temple." "Gate behind the guard." A third part were to guard this gate, which was evidently "some well known side or rear entrance into the court of the temple, from which an attack might be expected." "Be a barrier" (R. V.). In this way the Levites were to guard the approaches to the temple and be a barrier or defense.

7. "That go forth." Those relieved from duty on the Sabbath instead of returning home were to form themselves into two divisions and act as the immediate bodyguard of the youthful king. Their particular duty is more fully given in verse 8. 8. "Within the ranges." "Within the ranks" (R. V.), p. "Every man his men." That is, each of the five captains took immediate charge of the company of men put under him.

10. "David's spears and shields." The trophies of David's many wars, stored probably in some of the chambers surrounding the temple. It would have excited suspicion if the captains and the Levites had entered the temple armed. 11. "The guard stood," etc. From each corner of the porch, on the right and left, the men were ranged in lines between the temple and the altar which stood in front of the porch, so that when the king came forth he could advance between the lines and be brought into the space enclosed by them.

III. The boy king crowned (v. 12). 12. "He brought forth." Jehoiada, who had charge of Joash, brought him out and officiated in the ceremony that followed. "The testimony." As a part of the coronation ceremony the high priest gave Joash a copy of the law of Moses. See Deut. 17:18, 19. "They made him king." The people appear to have all been of one mind and rejoice greatly that the reign of the wicked Athaliah was ended.

IV. Athaliah slain (vs. 13-16). 13. "When Athaliah heard the noise." The arrangements had been made with such secrecy that Athaliah knew nothing of what was going on. When she heard the noise she hurried into the temple to ascertain the cause of the tumult. 14. "The king stood by the pillar" (R. V.). Some spot is here clearly designated which was the special position of the king on such occasions. We see that Athaliah took in the whole scene at a glance and knew without being told what was going on. 15. The high priest commanded that she be taken without the temple, so that the sacred apartments would not be stained with human blood. He also commanded that any one who might undertake to defend her should be instantly killed. 16. Athaliah was slain.

Alexieff Resigns.

The text of Viceroy Alexieff's order of the day was read before the troops in the far east Monday and announced the appointment of General Kuropatkin to be commander-in-chief of the land forces in the east.

Another Furnace.

The Alabama Steel and Wire company announces that it will at once build a second furnace at Gadsden.

General Wood proposes that soldiers shall be taught to swim, which is an excellent idea.

Birmingham's clearing house last week showed an increase of 46.9 per cent. New York recorded the only higher percentage.

"Othello, Moor of Venice," the only known complete copy of the first issue of Charles Lamb's juvenile tale, has been sold at auction. It brought $530.

Eight thousand gallons of fresh water are used in a large battleship daily. About two-thirds of this is taken up by the boilers, and the remainder is used for drinking, washing, etc.

A London newsboy, 12 years old, attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a pocket knife because he had sold only 4 cents' worth of papers and did not dare go home to his father with less than 25 cents.

It is announced that the Carnegie Hero Fund commission will not award any medals or prizes until the commission holds its next meeting, January 18, 1905. There are now 59 cases under consideration.

Permission has been accorded the students of Dorpat (Russia) University to resume wearing caps of colors which were forbidden to such corporations under Alexander III, in pursuance of the policy of the Russification of the Baltic provices.

The wonderful amethyst which Napoleon gave to Countess Walewska and which so delighted Madame Recamier, has been found again, all trace of it having been lost for many years. It is now in a case in the museum at Sens.

That kings receive petitions is common enough, but that a king should send a petition to his prime minister is out of the ordinary. Still this just what the young King Alfonso of Spain has done, requesting his prime minister to grant him an eight-hour day.

Henry James Cove, who for a great many years was in charge of the house of commons cloak-room, died recently in London. He left $210,000, all of which he bequeathed to hospitals, excepting $500 to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The largest topaz in the world is to be presented to the pope next spring by American Catholics. Money is now being collected for the purchase of this valuable stone, which was discovered in Brazil and cut and polished in Italy. It weighs nearly four pounds.

Just as there are valuable strains in other stock, so there are varieties of queen bees which are worth many hundred times their weight in gold. Italian bee farmers demand and receive without question prices ranging from $50 to $200 for a single queen bee. Some of them are even instred.

Unless steps are taken soon the old headquarters which Washington occupied at the battle of White Plains will be demolished. A New York realty company has purchased the tract of land on which the building stands and is engaged in cutting it up into building lots.

Dr. Jackson's experiment in acclimatizing the Siberian reindeer in Alaska, at first thought a failure, is proving a great success. The animals have taken to the Alaskan moss, of which there is an inexhaustible supply, and are multiplying fast. They are useful as pack or sledge animals.

The man with but little experience at farming sometimes does well in the production of some specialty because it takes less time to learn about one crop than to learn about them all. But the first-class, all-around farmer, skilled in all the details, is born and brought up to the business, not trained to order.

BY PROXY.

What the Baby Needed.

I suffered from nervousness and headache until one day about a year ago it suddenly occurred to me what a great coffee drinker I was, and I thought maybe this might have something to do with my trouble, so I shifted to tea for awhile, but was not better, if anything, worse.

"At that time I had a baby four months old that we had to feed on the bottle, until an old lady friend told me to try Postum Food Coffee. Three months ago I commenced using Postum, leaving off the tea and coffee, and not only have my headaches and nervous troubles entirely disappeared, but since then I have been giving plenty of nurse for my baby and have a large, healthy child now.

"I have no desire to drink anything but Postum and know it has benefited my children, and I hope all who have children will try Postum and find out for themselves what a really wonderful food drink it is." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Both tea and coffee contain quantities of a poisonous drug called Caffeine that directly affects the heart, kidneys, stomach and nerves. Postum is made from cereals only, scientifically blended to get the coffee flavor. Ten days' trial of Postum in place of tea or coffee will show a health secret worth more than a gold mine. There's a reason.

Get the book, "The Road to Wellville," in each pkg.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST. . . .

The UNION and Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, $1.25

The UNION and Weekly Atlanta Constitution. $1.50

The UNION and Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and Saturday News $1.25

Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it. tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

Republican Nominee for Congress 4th District, JOHN W. KITCHEN, of Talladega.

PEOPLE'S PARTY NOMINEES.

County Ticket.

For Judge of Probate,
L. H. REYNOLDS.
For County Treasurer,
J. BICE.
For Tax Collector,
T. J. HUBBARD.
For Tax Assessor,
L. B. POUNDS.
For Clerk of Circuit Court,
SAM W. COLLINS.
For County Supt. of Education,
J. W. MOORE.
For Coroner,
FRANK MASSEY.
For County Commissioner, 1st District,
W. H. CONWAY.
For County Commissioner, 2d District,
ALEX GLASSCOCK.
For County Commissioner, 3d District,
R. P. KENDRICK.
For County Commissioner, 4th District
MOSES ROBINSON.

tf

NEW ELECTION LAW.

Look on the first page of this paper and study those clauses of the new election law which will be in effect in Tuesday's election.

THANK YOU.

We are very grateful to the number of people, democrats as well as populists and republicans, who have expressed their condemnation of the assault on us last week. None are openly advocating such a breach of law and order as was then perpetrated.

EX-GOV. JOHNSTON.

Ex-Gov. Johnston was in Clanton Tuesday and spoke in the court house to an assemblage of less than sixty—men, women and children. His address was very temperate, but we wondered how he could appear in aid of the democrats in this county after the way they treated his candidacy two years ago, when they threw out of the primary boxes men's names who voted for Johnston.

DON'T FORGET.

Remember the speaking. On Saturday Judge Montgomery and Hon. P. M. Long will speak at Thorsby at 7 p. m. On Monday Hon. J. O. Thompson and Judge Montgomery will speak at Clanton at 10 a. m. All turn out and hear them.

CAMPAIGN LIES.

Be on your guard against the campaign liars just a day or two before election, when they think they can't be contradicted before their tricks succeed. Everything that could be said WITH TRUTH has been brought already. What comes out now are PURE PLAIN LIES.

REGISTER.

On Friday and Saturday, November 4th and 5th, the Registrars will be in Clanton prepared to register ALL who have come of age since their rounds or that were prevented from registering then. This is your last chance for two years.

ROOSEVELT WINS.

The New York Herald, an independent paper which supports Parker, concedes Roosevelt's election by at least 20 majority. The Herald has been noted in the past for its accuracy in forecasting election results.

VOTE! VOTE!!

Every one of our people must come out and vote next Tuesday, and thereby put the seal of condemnation on RING and ROWDY RULE by electing the PEOPLE'S ticket. The people's nominees are responsible to the people, not to any CLIQUE or RING, and will conduct the affairs of Chilton county to the best interests of the people thereof.

VOTE! VOTE!!

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 31, 1904.

Dear Editor:

This may be my last letter, for I feel sure that the county ticket headed by L. H. Reynolds will win out by two to one, so such methods as are being practiced here will be forever condemned by the voters of Chilton and it will teach the democratic party that if they ever expect to win here they must put up a different set of leaders. Yes, do you know I believe an overwhelming defeat would be the best thing that could happen to the democratic party. It would open the eyes of the people, and they would demand that the few self-constituted leaders of the democratic party around the court house take the back seat and let the country have a chance. As it is now, a country democrat has no more show than a populist, and the country folks are sure getting tired of the way their party is mismanaged, and when you see the results of this election you'll say that I know what I am talking about. I am sorry, very sorry, that I was the cause of that disgraceful attack at the depot Tuesday evening,, and tell you when it comes to where the people of a county can't run their own paper without a gang trying to take possession of it, civilization is at a low ebb. I'm sorry I mentioned some folks, for, as I told you in my last essay, it is an awful waste of ink and paper. I'm glad, Mr. Editor, that it wasn't your blood that flowed. I tell you I believe the Lord is with this people's movement, and let me say right here for the good people of Clanton that they don't believe in such doings, and I want to apologize for the democrats here. Only a few knew anything about the proposed difficulty until it was noised around Monday that Judge Deason had warned Mr. Edler that if he (Edler) did not give up the name of "Just a Voter" that he would have trouble, and had given him until 12 o'clock to comply, but still we all thought that there wouldn't be anything of it, but the trouble did come and "Just a Voter" is still unknown. It is amusing to me to hear so much said of me, as I stand around and look wise and wonder "who he is," just as they do. I heard a prominent democrat say that I was a democrat and if I was not stopped that I'd give the "whole push" away." Well, they ought not to have any secrets from the people. It would make some democrats blush if I told you how they'll vote next week, and some pretended republicans would hide out if some fellow that's running for treasurer would look after some of his expected voters. Well, I pretty nearly forgot Gist. Wasn't his letter a "a dead give-away?" I'm sure Mr. Bowie didn't see that letter before it was sent. It's so funny that Mr. Gist wouldn't consent for Reynolds to tell that famous conversation, and then told nearly all himself, but I believe his memory is bad, when he can remember all about some fellow selling out for $300, but can't remember who, though I think we all know who. I guess I knocked the banner man out of time last week with my questions. A few more and there won't be any banner left. I was in hopes that he would answer my questions, as I had some more to ask, but of course he will not attempt to answer now, as it will be too late for me to reply. I've not seen a word about anybody turning loose if they are not elected in that long piece in the banner. It was longer than the declaration of independence. I think some folks would feel better if they had been nominated by any kind of a people's mass meeting instead of getting it from a few fellows around the court house. I expect they'll have to get out some awful lie about election day to try to down the people's ticket. If everybody comes out to the speaking in Clanton next Monday I may decide to let the "cat out of the bag" and show the people who "Just a Voter" is, and when some democrats have seen me face to face they can go to their reward in peace. Wasn't Judge Honeycutt's letter a hummer. It rattled the dry bones in the clique. I told you the judge was an honest man and acted on his convictions. Farewell, friends. I hope to see you all here Monday and may we all be able to say "we have fought a good fight, we have kept the faith."

"JUST A VOTER."

P. S.—Allow me to say that all Clanton sympathizes with Mr. Vanderveer in the loss of his beautiful house by fire last Thursday evening.

Jemison, Ala., Oct. 31, 1904.

Editor Union.

Please allow we space for a few words to the people on the eve of election. To our friends I say that I am sure that we have won the victory by a large majority. All that remains for us to do now is to turn out and vote and every man on the ticket will be elected. I am sorry that it becomes necessary for me to mention my opponent, for you all well know I rarely if ever refer to those who run against me. I remember well the canvass of two years ago, and when it closed I thought more of Mr. Crumpton than I did when I entered the race against him. But Mr. Deason has seen fit to criticise my political life (which he has a perfect right to do), so I want to call attention to his. He has a great deal to say about republicans, and why he quit the populists Where is there a single republican supporting me now that did not support me and him when he was elected clerk and I representative? Are these republicans just as good now as they then were? Am I not with the same people, and has he not quit his folks and joined those who opposed him six years ago? And did he not make the flop while he was holding an office to which he was elected by the same folks that are now supporting me? Let me ask you democrats a few questions: Did Deason go in your party from principle, or to get office? Let's see. Was it not an open secret the moment he turned democrat that he was going to run for probate judge on that ticket? Do you honestly believe that he would now be a democrat if he had thought it possible for him to have got the probate judgeship from the populist and republican parties? What has he ever done for the democratic party except with a view to advancing his own interest? Which do you appreciate most, one that opposes you openly or he that is against you today and with you tomorrow if there is something in it for them? Let's see, he says I've been nominated by caucuses, mass meetings, etc. How came the people to have a mass meeting at Thorsby? Just because tney were afraid that he (Deason) would not put their ticket under the populist emblem, though we all know that the people's party and the populist party has always meant the same thing, so you see one of our mass meetings was caused by the people mistrusting him. Now, let's confer for a moment and see who has nominated us both, as he raises this question. He ran in the democratic primary last spring (with the bars down) all republicans, populists (which he says now are so bad), socialists, independents, all were admitted, and Judge Adams nominated, he receiving the highest vote. Mr. Smith came next and Mr. Deason was the lowest man, getting, I believe, about 196 votes Then Judge Adams came down and there had to be a public speaking and barbecue to get enough together to nominate him, and then beats 7 and 8 and others did not send a single delegate to participate in that convention. It has been said that a few democrats around Clanton always get their weakest men nominated and this time they wanted to be sure and make no mistake, so they called a primary to see who was the weakest, and when they saw it was Mr. Deason they took down Judge Adams and put Mr. Deason up. Now, THE PEOPLE of Chilton county called a primary this summer and they admitted only qualified voters. I ran in that primary (one of three candidates also) and I received about 780 votes. Compare these 780 votes with his 196. I believe those that voted for me are just as good men as his, and I am sure that the people of Chilton county are free and that they have a perfect right to vote for whom they please. Now, I'd never have mentioned the above facts if Mr. Deason had not seen fit to raise the question in a long article in the Banner last week. All I ask is for the voters to consider our claims and see which has been the most consistent in his public life, and consider well which you think would make you the best officer, and then vote your honest convictions, and I assure you that I will be satisfied with the verdict of the majority, whatever it may be. In conclusion, permit me to say that I've represented our county in the legislature three times and one extra session, and was a member of the constitutional convention, and I have always tried to look after the interests of thet county, and if I have not, I ask you why haven't those that oppose me showed you all wherein I have failed? You know I've been opposed by some strong men both in and out of the county, and if I'd not been true you would have known it, and you have a newspaper here in your county to keep you posted, and now we've reached the close of the campaign and not one word of criticism of any public act of mine. But I call your attention that some FALSE CHARGE may be brought at the last moment as usual, when it is too late to answer, like the democratic address of two years ago, that did not state the truth, and I am sorry that we did not have a joint canvass together, as there were some questions I wanted to mention that I have not on account of the opposition not being present. If I am elected probate judge I expect to move to Clantch and do my best to make you a good officer, and treat all men equal before the law. I am sorry that the managers of the democratic primary have not seen fit to say that if they were not elected that there would be no attempt to hold over, and I pledge you now that if I'm not elected that there will be no contest to harass the people and stir up prejudice. If Mr. Deason beats me one vote I want him to have the office, and if I beat him only one vote, I want my rights. Respectfully,

L. H. REYNOLDS.

BEAT 11.

Oct. 30, 1904.

Editor Union:

I saw in your last week's paper about the attack on you by the champions of Clanton. I just hate that I wasn't there to take your place two minutes. I think it's a nice trick for three seceshes to tackle an old man; that shows their bravery. I am a voter; let them tackle me. Brother pops and republicans, come to the polls on November 8th and let's whip them right. Demmies, if you want to fight on that you have struck the right crowd. Please put this where them three brave men can see it, and if they don't like it let them help themselves. I am a voter in beat 11 and my name is

JOHN S. DENNIS.

WILSE DAVENPORT KILLED.

Wilse Davenport, of Maplesville, was killed last Sunday near his home by Jim Hardin, colored. It is said that Hardin and a number of other negroes were near the Davenport residences cursing and acting disorderly, and Mr. Davenport went out and ordered them away. Davenport and Hardin grappled and Hardin grabbed Davenport's pistol out of his pocket and as Davenport shifted to Hardin's back, holding his arms to keep Hardin from using the pistol, Hardin pointed the pistol behind himself and pulled the trigger, killing Davenport almost instantly. After the killing the murderer fled to the swamp, and a posse gathered, but failed to overtake him. A telegram was sent to Selma for bloodhounds, but they failed to get there on time. There is much excitement around Maplesville and a lynching is probable if Hardin is caught. Davenport leaves a widow and two children. The negro carried the pistol off in his flight to the swamp.

THORSBY.

Mrs. A. M. Johnson is able to be out again. She has been staying indoors nursing a severe cold.

The entertainment given by Charles Edbert Grant Saturday evening was very good indeed. He presented "The Old Homestead." Music was furnished by Miss Kirkley and Mr. Ericson.

Master Philip Horn went to Birmingham Saturday to meet his mother and sister, little Miss Frances, on their return home. They arrived in this city Saturday evening.

Quite a number of the young people of Jemison attended the entertainment at the Normal school hall last Saturday night.

D. C. Honeycutt closed out his stock of merchandise last Saturday.

The protracted meeting being held by the Baptist congregation is well attended. There have been several accessions to the church.

Dr. Nix left for St. Louis Monday morning, where he has gone to attend the world's fair. He expects to be absent for two or three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Snyder were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Horn Sunday.

Mr. L. E. Sarber, who has been spending the past few weeks in Prattville, returned to his home here Saturday.

J. Bice made a business trip to Clanton last Wednesday.

Miss Mable Malengren is able to be out again.

M. and Mrs. Carl Larsen are the happy parents of a baby girl, born Oct. 24th.

There will be a banquet given at the Thorsby Inn Wednesday evening by the citizens of Thorsby in honor of Acting Governor Cunningham.

Rev. Montgomery, of Clanton, was in our city last Friday.

Quite a number of the Jemison people attended the services at the Baptist church here Sunday.

"OTHELLO."

In few days of this century were so many automobile, trolley and railroad accidents chronicled as in the daily journals of Monday, August 29, the New York Tribune remarks. Almost every imaginable sort of disaster which could be attributed to human folly and recklessness reaped its harvest of victims. It surely ought not to be impossible in some way to bring about a greater degree of carefulness, self-restraint and foresight in our thoroughfares of business, recreation and travel.

Japanese Bachelors and Children.

It is said that every Japanese bachelor in Korea, no matter his age, is regarded as a child, dressed as a child, and treated as a child. Even if he be seventy, he may not knot up his hair in manly fashion or assume the garb of a man.

Coming Events

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's Second Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton county for the year 1904, and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Benson, beat 3, Nov. 1, 1904.
Maplesville, beat 7, Nov. 2, 1904.
Shoults, beat 7, Nov. 3, 1904.
Dixie, beat 8, Nov. 4, 1904.
Thorsby, beat 9, Nov. 7, 1904.
Macedonia, beat 3, Nov. 8, 1904.
Gentry & Cofer's Mill, beat 2, Nov. 9, 1904.
Hayes' Mill, beat 2, Nov. 10, 1904.
Providence, beat 2, Nov. 11, 1904.
Elijah Buzbee's, beat 2, Nov. 12, 1904, till 12 m.
Mineral Springs, beat 1, Nov. 14, 1904.
Smith's Schoolhouse, beat 1, Nov. 15, 1904.
Flint Hill, beat 11, Nov. 16, 1904.
Providence, beat 10, Nov. 17, 1904.
Burwell, beat 10, Nov. 18, 1904.
Kincheon, beat 6, Nov. 21, 1904.
Davis & Rollins' gin, beat 6, Nov. 22, 1904.
Pletcher, beat 8, Nov. 23, 1904.
Stanton, beat 8, Nov. 24, 1904.
Valley Creek, beat 8, Nov. 25, 1904.
Clanton Ford, beat 8, Nov. 26, 1904. till 12 m.
Verbena, beat 5, Nov. 28, 1904.
Cooper, beat 10, Nov. 29, 1904.
Clanton, beat 4, Nov. 30, 1904.
Jemison, beat 2, Dec. 1-2, 1904.
Clanton, last 10 days in the year, commencing December 20, 1904.

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

The county candidates of the populist and republican parties will speak at the following times and places:

Littlejohn school house, beat 4, Saturday, Oct. 22, at 7 p. m.
Blow school house, beat 1, Thursday, Oct. 27, at 10 a. m.
Cane Creek, beat 11, Friday, Oct. 28, at 10 a. m.
Coopers, beat 10, Saturday, Oct .29, at 10 a. m.
Wadsworth's Mill, beat 10, Saturday, Oct. 29, at 7 p. m.
Kincheon, beat 6, Monday, Oct. 31, at 10 a. m.
Valley Creek, beat 8, Tuesday, Nov. 1, at 10 a. m.
Shoults, beat 7, Wednesday, Nov. 2, at 10 a. m.
Macedonia, beat 3, Thursday, Nov. 3, at 10 a. m.
Mars Hill, beat 2, Friday, Nov. 4, at 10 a. m.
Clanton, beat 4, Monday, Nov. 7, at 10 a. m.

Everybody, ladies especially, invited to attend these appointments. Outside speakers are expected. Judge R. M. Honeycutt nas been invited and is expected to speak at Coopers, Valley Creek and Shoults. The opposition candidates who wish to meet with us at these appointments will please address the campaign committee.

W. H. SHAW,
Chairman Campaign Committee.
J. D. COLLINS,
Sec'y Cam. Com. tf

A National Paper.

The News company of Joliet, Ill., proprietors of one of the largest and best printing plants in the state outside of Chicago, are publishing the Saturday News as a third edition of their paper. The Saturday News is devoted exclusively to the interests of the people's party and is national in scope. Each week it contains matters of interest regarding the progress of the party from all parts of the nation.

Being published at the headquarters of the party and the chairman of the national committee being president of the News company and one of the editors, it is peculiarly favorably located to give general news of the movement.

The People's party has long felt the need of a national paper and it is cause for congratulation that one has been started and by a concern that is so strong that its success is assured from the start while the names of such well known workers and writers as Hon. James H. Ferriss, Charles Q. De France, Jo A. Parker and R. E. Bray is a guarantee of its character and loyalty.

The regular subscription price of the Saturday News is 50 cents per year, but we have arranged with the publishers to furnish it and the Union, both papers one year for $1.25.

Call at our office and see a sample copy and take advantage of this offer. tf.

A Western blackmailing gang signs itself "The Five Skeletons." Such a signature means blackmail on the face of it, says the Massachusetts Ploughman, the allowance of real family skeletons being generally agreed to be only one to each family.

The Manassas manoeuvres are intended to help bring about co-operation between regulars and militia as one result, says the New York Tribune. Jefferson called the militia "our general reliance for great and sudden emergencies," and the remark is still true of this part of our army service, and the recent manoeuvres are expected to demonstrate more clearly the lamentable military power of this part of our army establishment.

"LE SPORT."

It Must Be Expensive or Fra... Don't Care for It.

This is the season of sports ... cipally for men who haven't th... ure to be "sportif" all the year, ... France they are numerous. W... the clerk and salesman, unlik... British prototype, has no oppor... for habitual exercise. In F... banks and shops close early; ... day is a half-holiday, and in ... countries—Devonshire, for inst... Wednesday also; of course no... is done on Sunday. In France ... and stores are stupidly kept op... hours on end, though there isn't ... ness enough to warrant such ... application. The time that is ... hardly enough for meals, to say ... ing of aperitifs. Hence only m... leisure, they become a ground o... sports with any sort of constan...

And this has already establi... radical distinction between the ... sports can be developed in F... and the way they are develop... Anglo-Saxon countries. As ... are the privilege of men of weal... leisure, they become a ground o... ty vanity for those who com... practice them in our French d... racy, and an object of jealousy ... guised as disdain, for those wh... deprived of them by reason of l... money and lack of leisure.

The thing is especially appare... the provinces. Today every ... prefecture has its tennis court... especially every city that has a ... son. And nothing could be ... amusing than the pride—not t... haughtiness—displayed by the ... individuals admitted to that ... court—nothing, that is, unless ... prefer to laugh at the slanderou... tility of those who are not yet ... ted and who employ various M... vellian manoeuvres to secure ... sion.

Nor is this the only proof t... France sports are regarded as ... tinctive badge of aristocracy, ... as soon as a sport comes int... eral vogue it is dropped by al... sportsmen. Canoeing, which ... flourishes on the Thames, is ... over on the Seine, with affected ... ference, to workmen and co... jumpers, who, for this part, ne... er particularly enjoy it. The ... was abandoned the moment i... duced price brought it within ... body's reach. Whenever any f... physical exercise becomes ins... sive its doom in France is seal... the only Frenchmen who have ... for sports demand something ... them than the development of ... muscles—they want them to ... mark "of social excellence." ... heart they care far more for a ... of "social excellence" than th... for the development of their m... and that is one of the reasons ... the automobile is so popular. ... monsieur, comfortably seated ... a hired chauffeur, imagines h... a sportsman. Indeed, he is pri... to wear a bearskin and a ... mask. No sportsman's club ... dare to blackball him.—Marcel ... vost in Figaro.

War Times in Japan.

The happy life of the family ... otherwise enjoyable in the ... breeze of the summer even... quite impossible this year now ... the main support of the family ... sent on account of the war. ... housewife, who sets the dinner ... daily with a seat left vacant, ... old sire, who emerges from hi... mitage into the troublesome w... toil for the daily bread for the ... buy newspapers, otherwise unk... ing, but for the sake of the one ... front, and request the eldest ... read them aloud.

"What report of the war?" s... ing, the grandfather takes int... arms the youngest grandchi... whom he says: "Thy papa is ... great deeds and will soon come ... to bless thee."

How deeply pathetic must b... scene of this country home, wh... winds that sail over the green ... of rice and even the tinkle, tin... the bells at the necks of the ... horses that pass by the door t... the family of the man at the f... Tokio Asahi Shimbun.

Age as Senator Vest Understands It.

On a certain occasion Mr. Ve... returned to the senate after one ... brief absences. Senator Hoar o... sachusetts, four years his senio... him in the lobby and chided him ... naturedly for not attending str... business when vital measures ... being debated. "You're a fine ... man," said Mr. Hoar, "to absen... self at such a time and leave ... fellows—Cockrell and me and t... —to handle these matters."

"You'll never be as old as I," ... Vest, "if you live fifty years l...

"Bless you, I was born in 18... was preparing for college be... came into the world," said the M... chusetts man.

"If you were born in 1... wouldn't be as old as I," said the ... sourian. "You and Cockrell y... years, but you will never ... You haven't lived as lively as I ... —and I am wishing sometim... I hadn't," he said, with a weary ... —Kansas City Star.

Some Hope for Him.

Young Sorreltop—Then you ... cast me off?

Miss Esmeralda (with great ... ness)—Why, no, Sylvester, ... it would be so silly for a girl ... yes the first time. If—if you ... the same mind you might ... again some day, you know.—... Tribune.

CITY OFFICIALS

Mayor—Judson Strock.
Council—W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rob... W. I. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
Clerk—J. Watts Moore.
Marshal—Ed Smitherman.

COURTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.
Spring Term—1st Monday in April.
Summer Term—3rd Monday in July.
Fall Term—1st Monday in Novem...
Judge—T. Scott Sayre.
Solicitor—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
Clerk—E. B. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.
Spring Term—2nd Monday in March.
Fall Term—2nd Monday in Septem...
Chancellor—Hon. R. B. Kelley, An...
Register—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan...

COUNTY COURT.
First Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.
2nd Monday February, 1st Monday April, 1st Monday June, 2nd Monday July, 2nd Monday August, 1st Monday November.

COUNTY OFFICERS.
Judge of Probate—S. M. Adams.
Treasurer—Alex G. Dake.
Sheriff—J. M. Morgan.
Solicitor—J. O. Middleton.
Tax Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.
First District—W. H. Conway.
Second District—Alex Glasscock.
Third District—W. A. Green.
Fourth District—R. C. Riggins.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.
Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.
Hon. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE
Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

COUNTY CHURCHES

Pastors and clerks are cordially asked to send the editor any news regarding their churches which they would like published. Also if there are any errors in these notices please send corrections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Alpine—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor. T. Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
Beth-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor. C. C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
Brookson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; W. Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
Bethany—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday. B. Huett, clerk, Verbena.
Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.
Cane Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th Sunday. V. J. Gragg, clerk.
Center Hill—Rev J. M. Gothard, pastor; J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
Concord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd Sunday. T. N. Parrish, clerk.
Collins Chapel—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.
Chestnut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
Corinth—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday. W. B. Jones, clerk.
Cross Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 1st Sunday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
Corinth—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st Sunday. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
Canaan—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pastor; W. J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
Ebenezer—Rev. P. G. Maness, pastor; R. H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
Jemison—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. N. Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
Liberty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd Sunday; W. M. Wood, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
Mars Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pastor; H. Z. Barnes, clerk, British.
Mulberry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; C. Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
Mount Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rudd, pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk, Jemison.
Mount Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, pastor; D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
Maple Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; W. H. Wilson, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday; George Trawick, clerk.
New Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; J. W. Billingsley, clerk.
New Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd Sunday; G. W. Hill, clerk.
New Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. Henry Smith, clerk.
Pilgrims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, pastor; I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Tilomson, 1st Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
Pleasant Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, pastor; W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. G. W. Freeman, pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk, Shoults.
Poplar Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, 1st Sunday. J. J. McDowell clerk.
Providence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt, 1st Sunday. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemison.
Providence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, pastor; Riley Robinson, clerk, Clanton.
Rehoboth—Rev, J. D. Hughes, pastor; R. Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
Rehoboth—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd Sunday; W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
Shoals—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun...

ing Events

TAX NOTICE.

and Collector's Second Round.

ttend at the following laces for the purpose of the STATE and COUN- of Chilton county for the d ASSESSING the TAX- ear 1905:

at 3, Nov. 1, 1904.
, beat 7, Nov. 2, 1904.
at 7, Nov. 3, 1904.
eat 9, Nov. 7, 1904.
beat 3, Nov. 8, 1904.
Cofer's Mill, beat 2, Nov.

, beat 2, Nov. 10, 1904.
, beat 2, Nov. 11, 1904.
bee's, beat 2, Nov. 12, n
prings, beat 1, Nov. 14,

hoolhouse, beat 1, Nov.

beat 11, Nov. 16, 1904.
, beat 10, Nov. 17, 1904.
eat 10, Nov. 18, 1904
beat 6, Nov. 21, 1904.
collins' gin, beat 6, Nov.

eat 8, Nov. 23, 1904.
at 8, Nov. 24, 1904.
k, beat 8, Nov. 25, 1904.
ru, beat 8, Nov. 26, 1904.

eat 5, Nov. 28, 1904.
at 10, Nov. 29, 1904.
eat 4, Nov. 30, 1904.
eat 2, Dec. 1-2, 1904.
t 10 days in the year.
December 20, 1904.
BBARD, Tax Collector.

S, Tax Assessor.

LIC SPEAKING.

candidates of the popu- blican parties will speak ing times and places:
chool house, beat 4, Sat- , at 7 p. m house, beat 1, Thurs- at 10 a. m. beat 11, Friday, Oct. 28,

at 10, Saturday, Oct. 29,

Mill, beat 10, Satur- at 7 p. m eat 6, Monday, Oct. 31,

8, beat 8, Tuesday, Nov.

7, Wednesday, Nov. 2, beat 3, Thursday, Nov.

beat 2, Friday, Nov. 4,

t 4, Monday, Nov. 7, at ladies especially, invited appointments. Outside expected. Judge R. M. been invited and is ex- k at Coopers, Valley doubts. The opposition wish to meet with us ntments will please ad- paign committee.

W. H. SHAW,
Campaign Committee.
NS.
Cam. Com. tf

ational Paper.

company of Joliet, Ill., one of the largest and plants in the state out- go, are publishing the as a third edition of The Saturday News is ively to the interests party and is national in eek it contains matters arding the progress of all parts of the nation. ed at the headquarters d the chairman of the mittee being president mpany and one of the peculiarly favorably lo- general news of the party has long felt the ional paper and it is ratulation that one has d by a concern that is its success is assured while the names of n workers and writers H. Ferriss, Charles Q. A. Parker and R. E. antee of its character subscription price of News is .50 cents per ave arranged with the rnish it and the Union, year for $1.25.

fice and see a sample dvantage of this offer tf.

ackmailing gang signs e Skeletons." Such a blackmail on the face Massachusetts Plough- nce of real family generally agreed to ech family.

manoeuvres are in- bring about co-opera- gulars and militia as the New York Tribune. the militia "our gen- great and sudden nd the remark is still t of our army service, nt manoeuvres are onstrate more clearly ry power of this part ablishment.

"LE SPORT."

It Must Be Expensive or Else Don't Care for It.

This is the season of sport cipally for men who haven't ture to be "sportif" all the year. France they are numerous. the clerk and salesman, unfit British prototype, has no oppo for habitual exercise. In banks and shops close early; day is a half-holiday, and counties—Devonshire, for inst Wednesday also; of course n is done on Sunday. In France and stores are stupidly kept hours on end, though there isn ness enough to warrant such application. The time that is hardly enough for meals, to say ing of aperitifs. Hence only leisure, they become a ground sports with any sort of constan

And this has already establi radical distinction between th sports can be developed in and the way they are develo Anglo-Saxon countries. As are the privilege of men of weal liesure, they become a ground ty vanity for those who can practice them in our French racy, and an object of jealousy guised as disdain, for those wh deprived of them by reason of money and lack of leisure.

The thing is especially appar the provinces. Today every prefecture has its tennis court especially every city that has a son. And nothing could be amusing than the pride—not haughtiness—displayed by the individuals admitted to that court—nothing, that is, unless prefer to laugh at the slanderou tility of those who are not yet ted and who employ various M vellian manoeuvres to secure sion.

Nor is this the only proof t France sports are regarded as tinctive badge of aristocracy. as soon as a sport comes int eral vogue it is dropped by a sportsmen. Canoeing, which flourishes on the Thames, is over on the Seine, with affected ference, to workmen and oc jumpers, who, for this part, no er particularly enjoy it. The was abandoned the moment duced price brought it within body's reach. Whenever any fo physical exercise becomes ins sive its doom in France is seale the only Frenchmen who have for sports demand something m them than the development of muscles—they want them to mark "of social excellence." heart they care far more for a of "social excellence" than th for the development of their m and that is one of the reasons the automobile is so popular. monsieur, comfortably seated a hired chauffeur, imagines h a sportsman. Indeed, he is priv to wear a bearskin and a mask. No sportsman's club dare to blackball him.—Marce vost in Figaro.

War Times in Japan.

The happy life of the family otherwise enjoyable in the breeze of the summer event quite impossible this year no the main support of the family sent on account of the war. housewife, who sets the dinner daily with a seat left vacant, a old sire, who emerges from h mitage into the troublesome wo toil for the daily bread for the buy newspapers, otherwise unin ing, but for the sake of the one front, and request the eldest read them aloud.

"What report of the war?" s ing, the grandfather takes int arms the youngest grandchi whom he says: "Thy papa is great deeds and will soon come to bless thee."

How deeply pathetic must b scene of this country home, whe winds that sail over the green of rice and even the tinkle, th the bells at the necks of the fa horses that pass by the door t the family of the man at the fr Tokio Asahi Shimbun.

Age as Senator Vest Understands It.

On a certain occasion Mr. Ve returned to the senate after one brief absences. Senator Hoar o sachusetts, four years his senio him in the lobby and chided him naturedly for not attending, pro business when vital measures being debated. "You're a fine man," said Mr. Hoar, "to absen self at such a time and leave fellows—Cockrell and me and —to handle these matters."

"You'll never be as old as I, Vest, "if you live fifty years l

"Bless you, I was born in 18 was preparing for college befo came into the world," said the chusetts man.

"If you were born in 18 wouldn't be as old as I," said th sourian. "You and Cockrell a years, but you will never o You haven't lived as lively an —and I am wishing sometim I hadn't," he said, with a weary —Kansas City Star.

Some Hope for Him.

Young Sorreltop—Then you cast me off?

Miss Esmeralda (with great ness)—Why, no, Sylvester; b it would be so silly for a girl yes the first time. If—if you the same mind you might as again some day, you know.—Tribune.

CITY OFFICIALS

Mayor—Judson Strock.
Council—W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rob W. L. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
Clerk—J. Watts Moore.
Marshal—Ed Smitherman.

COURTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.

Spring Term—1st Monday in April.
Summer Term—3rd Monday in July.
Fall Term—1st Monday in Novem-

Judge—T. Scott Sayre.
Solicitor—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
Clerk—E. B. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.

Spring Term—2nd Monday in March.
Fall Term—2nd Monday in Septem-

Chancellor—Hon. R. B. Kelley, Ann
Register—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan-

COUNTY COURT.

First Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

2nd Monday February, 1st Monday April, 1st Monday June, 2nd Monday July, 2nd Monday August, 1st Monday September.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Judge of Probate—S. M. Adams.
Treasurer—Alex G. Dake.
Sheriff—J. M. Morgan.
Solicitor—J. O. Middleton.
Tax Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

First District—W. H. Conway.
Second District—Alex Glasscock.
Third District—W. A. Green.
Fourth District—R. C. Riggins.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.

Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.

Hon. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

REPRESENTATIVE.

Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

COUNTY CHURCHES

Pastors and clerks are cordially asked to send the editor any news regarding their churches which they would like published. Also if there are any errors in these notices please send corrections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Alpine—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor. T. Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
Beth-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; C. C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
Brookson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; W. Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
Bethany—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday. B. Huett, clerk, Verbena.
Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.
Cane Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th Sunday. V. J. Gragg, clerk.
Center Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, pastor; J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
Concord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd Sunday. T. N. Parrish, clerk.
Collins Chapel—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.
Chestnut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
Corinth—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday. W. B. Jones, clerk.
Cross Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 1st Sunday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
Corinth—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st Sunday. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
Canaan—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pastor; W. J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
Ebenezer—Rev. P. G. Maness, pastor; R. H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
Jemison—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; N. Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
Liberty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd Sunday; W. M. Wood, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
Mars Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pastor; H. Z. Barnes, clerk, British.
Mulberry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; C. Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
Mount Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rudd, pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk, Jemison.
Mount Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, pastor; D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
Maple Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; W. H. Wilson, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday; George Trawick, clerk.
New Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; J. W. Billingsley, clerk.
New Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 2nd Sunday; G. W. Hill, clerk.
New Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. Henry Smith, clerk.
Pilgrims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, pastor; I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
Pleasant Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, pastor; W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. G. W. Freeman, pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk, Verbena.
Polar Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, 2nd Sunday. J. J. McDowell clerk.
Providence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt, 1st Sunday. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemison.
Providence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, pastor; Riley Robinson, clerk, Clanton.
Salem—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor; Riley Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
Shiloh—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd Sunday; W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
Verbena—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun

Thorsby—Rev. J. Windsor, pastor; Robert Jones, clerk, Thorsby.
Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, pastor; R. S. Chandler, clerk, Jemison.
Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2d Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.
Verbena—Rev. J. W. Partridge, 1st Sunday. T. J. Bland, clerk.
Valley Creek—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. W. Mitchell, clerk, Plantersville.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

Clanton Circuit, Rev. T. F. Davis, Pastor.
Thorsby—1st Sunday.
Walnut Grove—2nd Sunday, morning.
Unity—2nd Sunday, evening.
Shady Grove—3rd Sunday.
Mount Pisgah—4th Sunday, morning.
Enterprise—4th Sunday, evening.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Highland School House—Rev. M. F. Lett, 3rd Sunday and Saturday before. T. L. Adams, clerk.
Enterprise—Rev. M. F. Lett, 4th Sunday. T. F. Patterson, clerk.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN.

St. Olafs, Thorsby—Rev. H. Engh, pastor. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

Concordia, Thorsby—Rev. J. E. Hedberg. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2d Sunday. Song service every 2d and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

MASONIC.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday, Clanton.
Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 250—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.
Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No 423—First Saturday, Clanton.
Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No 567—First Saturday Billingsley.
Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.
Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 411—Saturday on or before full moon. Jemison.
Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 473—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.
Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

of the

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE CO.

Of Toronto, Canada.

1st January, 1904.

UNITED STATES BRANCH.

Assets.

Government bonds	$223,650.00
State and municipal bonds	511,473.19
Cash on hand and deposit	169,720.71
Stocks and bonds	305,793.00
Premiums in course of col.	204,834.79
Interest due and accrued.	11,833.20
	$1,427,304.89

Liabilities.

Reserve premium fund (N. Y. Standard)	$849,771.77
Reserve for unpaid losses	100,786.24
	$950,557.97
Surplus in United States	$476,746.98
Total income in United States for 1903.....	$1,547,736.84
Total losses paid in U. S. from 1874 to 1903, inclusive	$14,674,843.26

WALLACE C. EDLER, Agent,
Clanton, Alabama

Watson's Letter of Acceptance.

The Saturday News, Joliet, Ill., can furnish an unlimited number of copies containing Watson's great letter of acceptance, which is just out at the rate of 50 cents per hundred or $3.00 per thousand.

There has never been anything like it to enthuse populists and arouse interest in our cause. If placed in the hands of the voters it means a million more votes for the populist ticket. Send for a bundle. Address and make all orders payable to the Saturday News, Joliet, Ill. tf

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 acres within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is timbered, 1 set mill-rocks, 48 inch, 1 Horse, weight 1100 lbs.

Alfred Popwell,
Clanton, Ala.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to Nov. 2, '04, 4,083.
Price on same date, 9 1-8c.
Total receipts same date, '03, 3,654.
Price same date, 9 5-8c.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

W. H. Benson and L. B. Pounds were in Clanton Thursday.

Harvey Collins and wife were in town Thursday.

Lee Hayes was a visitor in Clanton Thursday.

John Collins and wife were in town Thursday.

A. B. Deason was a visitor Thursday.

J. A. Davis was in Clanton Thursday.

W. J. Patterson and J. M. Waller were in Birmingham Saturday on business, returning home Sunday.

J. P. Thomas has recovered and is at work.

Tom Allen visited Thorsby Wednesday.

Jasper Glass was in Clanton Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Riggins were visitors here Friday.

T. N. and M. C. Childress were pleasant visitors Saturday.

A. A. Ayers was in town Saturday.

J. M. Parker and John Franklin were in Clanton Saturday.

J. W. Hayes and J. R. Collins were in town Saturday.

J. W. G. Kicker visited Clanton Saturday.

E. M. Bean was in town Saturday.

T. P. Smith and wife were visitors to Clanton Monday.

W. T. Mahan was in town Monday.

W. D. Lawrence's gin at Maplesville burned Tuesday night, October 25th. Everything destroyed with a lot of seed and a couple of bales of cotton. Amount of insurance is not known.

Monroe Littleton was a pleasant visitor Monday and also brought in a fine order from J. M. Robinson for UNIONS and Yellow Jackets.

T. J. Hubbard was in Clanton Monday and sent his monthly report to the state auditor. Our collector is very prompt in attending to his office.

C. I. Willis was a pleasant visitor Monday.

Mr. Tyns, of Tyns, was in Clanton Monday.

R. W. Scott and family were visitors to Clanton Tuesday.

J. Bice was in town Tuesday.

W. H. Shaw, our county chairman, has been in Clanton for several days directing the campaign for the people's ticket.

J. P. Vanderveer's fine residence was destroyed by fire last Thursday afternoon. A small part of the furniture was saved, but the house was a total loss. Mr. Vanderveer and family have temporary quarters at J. W. Stanfield's. There is general sympathy for him in his misfortune.

Work at the gins has dropped off considerably, and some of the extra labor has been dispensed with. It looks as if the bulk of the cotton crop is gathered.

Rev. C. K. Helland, of Deer Lodge, Tenn., and G. A. Lundene, of Thorsby, were in Clanton Tuesday. Rev. Helland was formerly a resident of Thorsby.

Sparks from the engines set fire to a couple of bales of cotton on the L. & N. platform Tuesday night, and they were burning right merrily about 11 o'clock when a freight crew gave the alarm; the hose was attached and the fire was drowned out. The cotton burned belonged to Pinckard & Co.

Rufus Forshee, who has been very ill with typhoid fever, is convalescing slowly. His mother, Mrs. Wash Forshee, is down with the same disease, but she is mending slowly.

R. L. Woolley, of beat 2, went to Birmingham Wednesday for a few days' visit.

D. D. Woolley is moving from Dry Valley to the old Kemp farm, near Clanton. He will be a decided acquisition to our community.

WANTED

To buy or rent a house in Clanton, with barn and garden attached. Address

J. BICE,
Thorsby, Ala.

LOST.

A three year old heifer, color yellow, with white ring around nose and white tail with black bush. Anyone returning said animal or giving information that leads to her recovery will be liberally rewarded by applying to

tf THE UNION OFFICE.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.

You will find a full line of

SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS. | PAINTS OILS and GLASS.

We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.

CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins,
Physician and Surgeon,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Office with Hopkins Drug Co.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 12 a. m. 1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

Notice! Notice!

If you want good Bargains and good articles in Dry Goods, Groceries & Hamilton-Brown, Shoes, we have them for you

Jackson & Robinson
Lomax, Ala.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 4th St., Opposite Court House
CLANTON.

Dr. A. Conan Doyle, the author, is a stalwart cricketer, and, they say, can provide as exciting a time with

Going to Plant

Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a postal for my new manual "How to Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.

P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

On some of the forty-acre farms in the British Channel islands the farmers keep thirty or more Jersey cows and employ five or six hired men. But the owner doesn't have to pay the help thirty or forty dollars each per month and house rent. Intensive farming is all very well, the Massachusetts Ploughman comments, but it requires workable land, plenty of moderate-priced help, a good manager and a good market.

PURE GOODS

The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

The Sak's Store

Birmingham, Alabama

READY-MADE Apparel for Men, Women and Children.

Our Mail Order Department is quick, efficient and serviceable.

Write for Catalogue

DRINK
CREAM of KENTUCKY Whisky.
Sold only by
COLLINS BROS., Calera, Alabama.
Mail orders promptly filled.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St, THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,

COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,
Clanton. Alabama

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,
Furniture and Rugs.
—SOLE AGENTS—
Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.
Catalogue for the asking.
1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,
Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.
County and Office Supplies a Specialty.
Ask for Estimates.
2113-2119 Morris Ave, BIRMINGHAM, ALA

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association

of Alabama.
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
By the People and for the People.
Chilton County Branch
Organized February 3rd, 1900.

W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.

Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

Full particulars furnished upon application to
WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

PAUL CALAME,
205 21st Street
Birmingham, Ala.

Practical Watchmaker and Optician
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly filled

A most complete
Stock of General Merchandise, Dress Goods, Etc.
The Millinery Department
is complete in every detail and is in charge of a first-class milliner, Miss Clara Small, of St. Louis

P. D. WILSON,
CLANTON, ALABAMA.

The Boy.

A heedless boy he was and troublesome beyond compare. Vexatious, willful, wild.
He hated books—a boorish, untaught child.
I looked upon his face; no good can come,
I said, for nothing innocent is there.
One day I came upon the truant lad
Asleep beside the water, where the glad,
Bright sunlight warmed the hazy autumn air.
The vicious brow was smooth and fair, no trace
Of sullenness about the lips that smiled
As if a vision holy hued the child.
In awe I looked upon that angel face.
—Josephine E. Toal in National Magazine for August.

The GIFT of ROSES

BY ERNEST HERBERT

Dicky Amber had often read of cases like his own—with this important difference; the stories usually ended happily whereas he knew that for himself it would be madness to hope for anything save disappointment.

He was in love, desperately, madly in love with Nella Renshaw, a clever and popular actress, the admired of all admirers.

He enshrined her in his heart the very first time he saw her, which was the day on which he commenced his engagement as violinist in the orchestra of the London theater at which she was playing a leading part.

He made no effort to check this hopeless love, which grew and grew as he watched her night after night.

He could only see her when the action of the piece brought her well forward upon the stage; but he soon learned to know when these places came, and was always ready for her so as not to lose a single second of the time that she was in his view.

Once her eyes met his upturned gaze. That night he walked to his poor lodgings with his head among the stars. After that he found her look turned toward him on several occasions. On these nights he lay awake for hours asking himself whether the smile in those beautiful eyes could possibly have been for him; but by morning he had called himself a fool for imagining for one instant that what was obviously an accident in her acting, could have any significance for him. Yet, for all his wise reasonings, those glances made him absurdly happy.

Then came a blow that hurt him cruelly. Nella was to tour in America. Even the pleasure of looking at her was now to be denied him. He would not see her for a long time—perhaps never again.

A farewell performance was announced, and, sick at heart, Dicky took his accustomed place. Before then he had always felt a thrill of pleasure and pride when came the thunders of applause in acknowledgment of Nella's superb art, but on this night it filled his heart with sadness and a great lump came to his throat. This was the last time he would see the triumph of the woman he loved—the last time.

Then, as the curtain fell, he did a thing that he had never dared before to do. He quickly made his way to the stage door and waited there to watch her departure. As she passed him the fragrance of her dainty silks and laces seemed to hold his whole soul in bondage, and when her rustling skirt brushed him he nearly swooned.

She carried a magnificent bouquet that had been presented to her, and when she was half way to her carriage a rose dropped from it to the pavement. Dicky darted forward and picked it up. Murmuring something, he knew not what, he stepped to the side of the carriage and handed it to her.

As she took it she looked straight

Clever and popular.

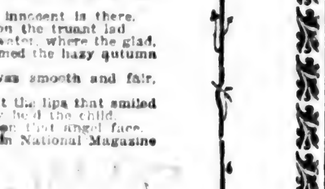
into his eyes. Then, quickly drawing another blossom from among its lovely fellows, she smilingly thrust it with the other back into his hands.

"Keep them, and—and—thank you," she said.

As the carriage drove off Dicky was staring in wonder at the exquisite flowers. Because of this he did not see that which would have filled his heart with an even greater joy. Her eyes had filled with tears.

Every now and again, during the year that followed, audacious thoughts that filled Dicky's mind as he gazed on his most cherished possessions—two withered roses. Soon after, however, he usually read in some newspaper one of the numerous accounts of Nella's trans-Atlantic success. Then his splendid hopes collapsed dismally. Yet they were always there, and though he did not know it, grew stronger and stronger until they became part of his life.

At last Nella came back. She was to open the Autumn season at her old theater and once more Dicky could see her every night. He played first



"You?" he said, huskily.

instead of second violin now and his position had been altered to one from which he had a far better view of the stage.

It was not that thought, however, which set his heart pounding with excitement as he went toward the theater that day—the day on which he was to behold her again after a year. In his heart there was a great hope that she would recognize him in some way or another. Surely she must. Then he would wait at the stage door and perhaps she would speak to him again.

Bitter and terrible was his disappointment. Not even a glance came his way.

The next day he was not at his place in the orchestra. Instead he sat at home in his room before a table covered with manuscript songs. They were those which he had written out of his great love.

Slowly, almost mechanically, he took them up and scanned every note. Then, having seen that all were as perfect as he could make them, he gathered them together in a heap.

He was going away—where he did not know or care. During the last year he had so lived on the almost unconscious hope born in him by the gift of roses that the realization that it had been founded on nothing had dazed his every faculty. It was as though he had fallen from the clouds.

At first when the wish to leave the place of sorrow had come to him, he had determined to burn his songs; but they were his children—the only children of his love—and he could not. Then came a wild desire that she should know of his heart's longing, and, after examining them all to make sure that they, at least, were worthy of her attentions, he gathered them together to send them to her.

He took the withered roses from his breast. She should have them, too. Pressing them passionately to his lips, he laid them tenderly on the top of the pile.

Then the stupor that had dulled his understanding went and in its place an awful dispair seized him. He laid his head on his arms and sobbed—sobbed as only can the man from whom is taken the only hold on life.

For a long while he lay. Then there came a tap at the door. He did not hear it. The door opened gently and a woman entered. It was Nella. Quietly she stepped to the table. Her eyes rested on the roses. She read her name on the dedication of the song on which they rested, and a great sob half of sorrow, half of joy, rose in her throat. Very tenderly she touched the bowed head.

Dicky started up and stared at her without comprehension. Then a light came into his eyes. "You?" he said, huskily.

"Yes, I," she answered, smilingly.

"But—but—I— —"

"Tell me," she said, stopping him; "why you kept those flowers?"

Though her voice was without emotion, Dicky saw something in her face that sent the blood leaping in his veins. He rose and drew her to him.

"Because I love you," he whispered, his voice almost fierce with joy.

It was Nella who wept now.

"Dicky," she sobbed, "when I didn't see you in the orchestra I fancied all sorts of dreadful things, so I asked your address from the doorkeeper—and came here to find out what had happened to you. Why didn't you write to me while I was away, Dicky? I thought you would understand when I gave you the flowers. Oh, Dicky, Dicky, I have loved you ever since I looked down into your eyes that night. I thought that you loved me until I went away and you did not write. Then I was miserable, Dicky. But it doesn't matter now?"

"Nothing matters now," said Dicky, and he kissed her on the lips.—Chicago American.

THE FLIGHT OF TIME.

Single Men and Women Have Little Sense of Its Passage.

Men and women who remain single are apt to lose all sense of the passage of time. They are conscious of no perceptible difference in their own feelings—they grow older so gradually that they do not notice any particular difference in their appearance, so it is no wonder that every now and then they are brought up, as it were, with a disagreeable shock, says the New York Tribune.

"Where have you come from?" said a man to a college chum whom he met at the Grand Central station, and whom he had not seen for what seemed to him only a few years.

"I've just been seeing Tom off to school," said the other.

"To school?" repeated the friend, looking puzzled. "Why, surely, he must be at college by this time."

The second man gave a great laugh. "Why, wake up, Rip Van Winkle!" he cried. "My brother Tom, if you are thinking of him, has been through college long ago, and is married. I am talking of my son, who is 12 years old, and is going up to G—— for his first term."

"Great Scott!" exclaimed the first man, feeling somehow as if the years had shriveled up and blown away. "How did you do it all so fast?"

"It is very difficult to keep track of people that you do not see all the time," remarked a suburban woman. "The other day I went off my own route and took the ferry to Staten Island to visit a friend. On the boat I saw a woman with whom I used to be quite intimate. 'You know Nelly has been so very ill,' she said, 'but now we are so happy, for the doctors have pronounced her out of danger.'

"'I am so glad,' I exclaimed cordially. 'How relieved you must be!' The truth of the matter being that I did not have the slightest idea who Nelly was."

Young Love Lived Once in an Humble Shed.

Young love lived once in an humble shed,
Where roses breathing,
And woodbines wreathing
Around the lattice their tendrils spread,
As wild and sweet as the life he led.
His garden flourish'd
For young Hope nourish'd
The infant buds with beams and show'rs;
But lips though blooming, must still be fed,
And not even Love can live on flowers.

Alas! that Poverty's evil eye
Should e'er come hither,
Such sweets to wither!
The flow'rs lay down their heads to die,
And Hope fell sick as the witch drew nigh,
She came one morning
Ere Love had warning,
And raised the latch—where the young god lay.
"Oh, ho!" said Love—"is it you? good bye!"
So he opened the window, and flew away.
—Thomas Moore.

Death Dealing Canoe.

Abolish the canoe and Canada might have a war every five years and then lose fewer young men than the great number that must go down to death in ten years of summer holidays.

It is pitiful the mothers who weep, the fathers who mourn and the homes that are darkened simply because young people will take chances that they have no business to take.

Death may part the young man from his canoe. Good advice cannot. "Ephraim is joined to his idols," and the victims of the canoe habit will neither keep out of canoes nor be careful while they are in canoes.—Toronto Telegram.

Frailty.

"Frailty—thy name is woman." 'Tis False.

All for a pair of melting eyes,
And for the winsome glance that in them lies;

For a shifting dimple in a rounded chin,
A silken hose and a foot therein;

For a smothered sigh, a tangled tress,
A "cuddle doon," and a soft caress;

He fell.

Frailty—thy name is Man.
—Town Topics.

An Enterprising Sleuth.

A man who was "wanted" by the police had been photographed in six different positions, and the pictures were duly circulated among the police. The chief of police in a country town wrote to police headquarters of the city in search of the malefactor a few days after the set of portraits had been issued as follows:

"'I duly received the pictures of the six miscreants whose capture is desired. I have arrested five of them, and the sixth is under observation and will be secured shortly."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

LITTLE TIME BETWEEN SPELLS.

Answer of Valet Showed the Two Sides to an Excuse.

Gen. Frederick D. Grant, who has recently been assigned to the command of the Department of the East, is noted for the equanimity of his temper.

Gen. Grant believes in self-command. Concerning hasty tempers, he said one day:

"The plea of the quick tempered is that if they are soon angered they are soon pleased again. There is an answer to this plea, though. The former valet of a friend of mine has a good answer to it.

"This valet, an excellent servant, worked for my friend two months. Then he said that he was going to leave.

"'Why are you going, James?' my friend said kindly.

"'Well, sir, to be frank,' James answered, 'you are too quick tempered.'

"'Pooh, pooh, James,' said my friend. 'What if I am a bit quick tempered? My anger is no sooner on than it is off.'

"'True, sir,' said James respectfully, 'but it is no sooner off than it is on again.'"

Proof of Widow's Constancy.

"Yes," the widow answered, glancing down at her pretty, plump, white hands, as she rocked complacently back and forth, "my ring is rather broad, I know. You see, I have been widowed three times, and I used to wear my wedding rings in turn; first, John's for a few days, then I would put on Edward's and then I would wear the ring Robert gave me. But I never felt quite happy.

"When I was wearing John's ring, I felt somehow as though I was disloyal to Edward and Robert. When I put on Edward's ring, I felt unhappy because I seemed to be neglecting John and Robert, and when it came time to take off that ring and give Robert's ring its turn, I felt as though I was disloyal to my first and second. Finally I solved the problem by having all three rings welded together.

"It does make rather a broad band," she said, holding up her left hand and looking at the circlet in question, "but then, you see, it makes me feel that I am being constant to all three of them."

Hens Victims of Old Fogy Notions.

"My son and myself," said Dr. E. F. Hodges, "took an automobile run to Martinsville. He was the chauffeur; we did not return by the same road. I don't know how many hens we ran over going and coming. We did not stop to count.

"It is a dry time and the roads are dusty. So much the worse for the hens. I suppose it is different with hens in the cities and towns, but along the country roads they have not yet learned to make proper calculations for escape from the automobile. The hen is of a mathematical turn of mind. She rolls in the dust of the highway and no horse-drawn vehicle was ever known to run over one. She figures closely, but always escapes. Now, it is different when she comes to take the automobile into consideration. She expects to escape by the length of a horse. The horse is not there, and she falls under the wheels of the juggernaut, a victim to old fogy notions not in accord with modern speed devices."—Indianapolis News.

The God of Love.

It is not gold of rippled hair,
Like cornfields swept by winds at play;
It is not cheeks as fresh and fair
As apple bloom at dawn of day.

It is not these that sing to Love,
And bid him wake so sure, so soon;
That set the skies alight above,
And set him crying for the moon.

It is not heart-gold, pure and bright
As virgin gold in hidden seams;
It is not soul as clear and light
As sunrise in a poet's dreams.

It is not these that give Love food
And drink—the magic wine and bread,
That set, amid his solitude,
The enchanted garland on his head.

Love only knows one god sublime,
The trinity in unity;
And the god's names are Space and Time
And—Opportunity.
—E. Nesbit in London Outlook.

All Guns to Be Resighted.

Plans are being drawn in the bureau of ordnance at Washington for the resighting of all the guns in the United States navy. The cost of this work will be tremendous, but its necessity was readily realized when called to the attention of the president and the orders have already been issued. An improved variety of sight will be used and the work will be pushed with all the rapidity practicable. For the rapid-fire guns a telescopic sight will be used, of a kind that will permit of continuous aim. Nearly all of the guns are in need of resighting.

His Greatest Grievance.

"The revenoos smashed my still into a thousand pieces," said the Georgia moonshiner.

"Too bad."

"Took me away from my wife an' thirteen children."

"Awful."

"You're right it was. But the crownin' cruelty wuz—it not only put me in jail, but ackchully took my fiddle from me!"

Big Cedar Log Boom.

What is declared to be the largest boom of cedar logs ever moved on Puget sound was towed into Ballard recently by the tug Tillicum, Capt. Charles Worth. It contained thirty-eight sections of from sixty to one hundred cedar logs each, or the equivalent of 1,330,000 feet, according to the estimate of those on the tug.—Seattle Post Intelligencer.

Gratitude is the fairest blossom which springs from the soul and the heart of man knoweth none more fragrant.

Gila Monster a Terro

Although rattlesnakes are considered dangerous from a poisonous standpoint, they are insignificant when compared with the dreaded gila monster of the sandy deserts of the southwestern United States. Prof. William Wetherbee, who has been studying there desert creatures, has made a number of very interesting and important discoveries as to their nature and general habits. This lizard-shaped animal when full grown measures about eighteen inches in length and is girth about the size of an ordinary boy's arm.

Its tail composes one-third of the length of its body and its skin is of a pustular nature and motley in color, giving a reddish yellow and brown effect. Its legs are placed on its body similar in character to those of a lizard, but it has none of the rapidity in movements of that animal. It seeks the hottest places in the desert and delights in heat ranging about 135 degrees. According to Prof. Wetherbee science does not know of a single antidote to the poison emitted from this animal and it was in hope of discovering such that he made a recent sojourn in the desert of Arizona and California. The rapid increase of settlers in this section of the country, owing to the recent strides made by the reclamation projects, has made it necessary for the authorities to look to their safety from the dreaded animal.

Since the departure of the Indians from this part of the country t monsters have increased in numbers, as the Indians killed off formerly in large quantities. Hualipis, a tribe of Mexican Indi are said to have a remedy for the of the gila monster, but this, howe is kept secret by the tribe and all inducements so far made have without results in trying to ob even the smallest portion of this eted antidote. The president of ico himself even went among the dians and tried to secur the sec Unlike most poisons of anima are generally of an acid this exception is alkaline. Death soon follows the bite of the imal.

During the professor a Mexican assistant was the thumb by one of the animals the result was he died within two minutes, after first falling into a por. Another case was noted half-Mexican girl who had been bitt She at first was seized with paraly A little later she cried that her h was splitting. Gradually the however, left her and a few min before expiring she lapsed into consciousness. During these devel ments she lived about two hours a half after being bitten. Next mer Prof. Wetherbee intends among the Hualipis and trying to cure, by fair or unfair means, the cret of this tribe as regards the a dote.

A Race of Savage

According to Jameson Reid, who recently traveled through the country, it would be impossible to imagine a people more unenlightened and barbarous than the native population of northeastern Tibet. He says that they are but a grade removed from the animals. At one of the villages his party was honored at a sumptuous banquet and the gluttonous appetites displayed by the natives seemed to know no limit. Each diner consumed vast quantities of food and washed the same down with great draughts of tea and other native drinks. Mr. Reid was puzzled to know where they stored all the material they had eaten and contents himself with the remark that the problem of a Tibetan's stomach would trouble a professional mathematician, adding that the chief avocation of the Tibetan, when fortune permits, is the enjoyable business of eating.

"During many months," says Mr. Reid, "spent among Tibetans—to say nothing of their manners, excluding women from all companionship at their meals, dipping their hands up to the elbow in one dish, eating sheep's insides and sleeping in miserable tents or stone dwellings crawling with vermin—I never in a single instance noticed temperance or gality, except from necessity, for their nature they are gluttons will eat at any and all times till are gorged of whatever they can and then lie down and sleep brutes. I have sometimes myself by testing their appetites. stead of scorning tainted or unfit they will devour it with avidity, with the full knowledge that must pay dearly for this incontin

"One of the strangest custom these Djun-Ba Tibetans is that ing death and burial. When a dies the nude body is attached stake driven into the ground and posed to the attacks of rave beasts and birds. Nothing be more ghastly than to upon one of these grewsome marks, from which flocks of ca vultures rise slowly into the air hoarse croakings. The bones and er remains left after the attack the birds and beasts are cremated, ashes placed in sacred bowls, with magic charms and hung the tent or dwelling or else b beneath an obo of stones. A lit the dust is placed in small bags these are worn round the neck the family as preventive of disea

Maine Has Queer Serpe

To the specter moose of Lobster lake, the moose-hoofed cow of Machias and the Northport sea serpent with teeth like a Virginia fence, Maine has now added the wriggly and bellicose serpent of Gardner's lake, which can stay under water months at a time, swallows molasses jugs and when going full speed gives off an odor like brimstone.

There are several Washington county people, including C. Hollis White of East Machias, the register of probate, who have seen it in times past, says the Bangor correspondent of the Philadelphia Record. An Indian woman, whose sobriety is vouched for by the White Ribboners of the neighborhood, saw it last summer, and there are some old settlers who declare that the "critter" has been "sloshin' 'round" in Gardner's for the past twenty years.

It is described as being twenty-five feet long with dark and scaly body and a head much that of a boa constrictor. It comes to the surface when there fishing parties on the lake evinces a desire to follow all boats that come out. No man ever been able to paddle a canoe as fast as this serpent can This week Francis Dana, a Pas quoddy Indian, saw the reptile gave chase, but was distanced Dana is champion canoe man of tribe. The residents of the l take little stock in legends, b one of them says, "When we critter like that a-swimmin' fa a tugboat an' a-smellin' like a fact'ry, we know it, b'gosh!"

In the Ocean's Depth

If only the sea would open wide,
Or the veil be torn away,
How our weird and wild imaginings
Would pale to the real, fantastic things
That down in the murky depths abide,
Piled there day by day.

Here in the dim-lit world below
Of the things that were and be
Is the moldering hulk of a Dutchman's ship
That sank to the blow of the English whip
Years and years ago.
And here she is lying, and no one cares
To know her name or how she fares;
She is only a phantom of other years
In the gloom of the ancient sea.

And here is a mighty galleon
With ingot and bar and doubloon.
How many a slave she wrung from these
In the golden isles of the Carib seas.
In the lusty days that are dead and gone
In the deep and dark lagoon.

And here by her side is a yankee bark
That sailed with a last-year tide.
And she who is weeping may dry tears,
And she who is waiting may wa years.
Alone by the shore when the sk dark,
For the sea is her loved one's

And around the barnacled ships
Where the things of time are
There is desert and vale and dale,
Jungle and brush and strange sail
Where the sea flowers bloom and
And all is peace in this wondrous Save when a ship, by the whirled,
Bursts—by a thousand fathoms
Midway to the great at last.

Ah, if only the sea would open
Or the veil be torn away,
How our weird and wild imaginings
Would pale to the strange, m
things
That down in the pale green abide,
Piled there day by day.
—New York T

Committee in a Hurr

Probably the most informal notification of nomination ever made was that which announced to George M. Dallas his selection as vice president in 1844, says the St. Paul Dispatch. The committee reached Philadelphia at 3 o'clock in the morning and went directly to the residence of Mr. Dallas. In response to the knocks that roused him from sleep Mr. Dallas opened his window to see a party of gentlemen in his front yard, among whom he recognized Senator Robert J. Walker, later Polk's secretary of the treasury, and father of the famous Walker tariff of '46. Dallas slipped on slippers and a dressing gown and came down, unlocked the door and the party filed into the unlighted lor in silence, ranging them about the room.

Dallas, utterly unaware of cause of this irruption, went Walker into the back parlor and ed what it all meant. Walker him to wait a moment. The doors were thrown open and the parlor, where lights had lighted meanwhile, the chair the delegation came forward Dallas of his nomination. Ben Poore, who tells the story in his niscences, says that Dallas that he would make a formal later by letter, and "he then his sideboard and all joined ling success to the ticket."

Miss Agnes Miller, o
young women about Menstrual Period — how ffering and remove th
ydia E. Pinkham's Veg

"To Young Women:—I suffered f (painful periods), so much so that it meant three or four days of in was due to an inflamed condition of repeated and neglected colds.
"If young girls only realized how d critical time, much suffering would Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable C dicine which helped me any. Within it, I noticed a marked improvement time of my next monthly period the I kept up the treatment, and was c her person since. I am in perfect healt ed 12 pounds to my weight, my colo
oy."—Miss Agnes Miller, 25 Poton
The monthly sickness reflects the lth. Anything unusual at that proper attention. Fifty thousand Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable ation and makes those periods pe

READ WHAT MISS LIN

"Dear Mrs. P
ham's Vegetable fitted me. I will t trouble was painful month went by tha severe bearing-dow men.
"A friend advi medicine. I did s pain during my pe
1201 6th Street, R

FREE AD
Remember invited to writ is anything ab
not understand.
a, Mass., her advice is free and ch woman who asks for it. Her adv
e than one hundred thousand wo
y sick sisters?

000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produ above testimonials, which will prove their Lydia E. Pi

Paris Pickpockets.

The ingenuity of the Parisian thief inexhaustible. Its latest manifestation has been in the clever adaptation dentistry to the purposes of the pocket. A practitioner took up his on in a frequented thoroughfare, by means of large posters, offering tively low rates, he soon drew a er of clients and a convenient , until it was at last found that the dentist was exercising his ity of cleaning the teeth to the of being "warranted white for ears," his lady assistant was ing" out the pockets of the pa with equal expedition and thor ess. A substantial sum had been before the imposture was de —London Globe.

Automobile trains are to be run on roads in German East Africa ders to the railway lines.

Penny-in-the-slot gas meters are so ar in Liverpool that the city is ing from a dearth of coppers.

HAPPY WOMEN.

, Pare,
of C. B. a prom-t resiof Glas-
Ky.,
"I was ering a com-tion of y trou-
Besides
d back, a great of trou-with the tions,
were exceedingly variable, some-excessive and at other times
. The color was high, and pas-were accompanied with a scalding tion. Doan's Kidney Pills soon ted the kidney secretions, makeir color normal and banished flammation which caused the g sensation. I can rest well, ck is strong and sound and I feel better in every way."
ale by all dealers, price 50 cents
x. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo,

a Monster a Terro

rattlesnakes are consid- from a poisonous they are insignificant with the dreaded gila the sandy deserts of the United States. Prof. who has been desert creatures, has of very interesting discoveries as to their general habits. This mal when full grown eighteen inches in about the size of one-third of the and its skin is of and motley in col- yellow and brown placed on its body to those of a liz- of the rapidity in animal. It seeks in the desert and about 135 de- to Prof. Wetherbee know of a single poison emitted from was in hope of dis- that he made a recent desert of Arizona and rapid increase of set- tion of the country, trade made by projects has made it authorities to look from the dreaded ani- departure of the Indians from this part of the country monsters have increased in numbers, as the Indians killed off formerly in large quantities. Hualpis, a tribe of Mexican Ind are said to have a remedy for the of the gila monster, but this, how is kept secret by the tribe and all inducements so far made have without results in trying to ob even the smallest portion of this eted antidote. The president of ico himself even went among the dians and tried to secure the se Unlike most poisons of animals, are generally of an acid compos this exception is alkaline in na death soon follows the bite of the mal.

During the professor's experim a Mexican assistant was caught the thumb by one of the animals the result was he died within tw minutes, after first falling into a por. Another case was noted half-Mexican girl who had been b She at first was seized with para A little later she cried that her was splitting. Gradually the however, left her and a few min before expiring she lapsed into consciousness. During these dev ments she lived about two hours a half after being bitten. Next mer Prof. Wetherbee intends among the Hualpis and trying t cure, by fair or unfair means, the cret of this tribe as regards the dote.

Race of Savage

to Jameson Reid, who re- ed through the country, impossible to imagine a unenlightened and bar- the native population of Tibet. He says that they de removed from the ani- of the villages his party at a sumptuous banquet ious appetites displayed es seemed to know no ner consumed vast quan- and washed the same eat draughts of tea and drinks. Mr. Reid was now where they stored cial they had eaten and self with the remark that of a Tibetan's stomach a professional mathema- that the chief avocation n, when fortune permits, ble business of eating. any months," says Mr. among Tibetans—to say heir manners, excluding all companionship at dipping their hands up in one dish, eating s and sleeping in unser- stone dwellings crawl- ent. I never in a single instance noticed temperance or ality, except from necessity, fo their nature they are gluttons will eat at any and all times till are gorged of whatever they can and then lie down and sleep brutes. I have sometimes am myself by testing their appetites. stead of scorning tainted or unfit they will devour it with avidity, with the full knowledge that must pay dearly for this incontin "One of the strangest custom these Djun-Ba Tibetans is that att ing death and burial. When a dies the nude body is attached stake driven into the ground and posed to the attacks of rave beasts and birds. Nothing be more ghastly than to ha upon one of these grewsome marks, from which flocks of ca vultures rise slowly into the air hoarse croakings. The bones and er remains left after the attack the birds and beasts are cremated, ashes placed in sacred bowls, m with magic charms and hung u the tent or dwelling or else b beneath an obo of stones. A lit the dust is placed in small bags these are worn round the neck the family as preventive of disease

e Has Queer Serpe

erfer moose of Lobster ehoofed cow of Machias pert sea serpent with ersula fence, Maine has o wriggly and bellicose ardiner's lake, which can ater months at a time, sses jugs and when go- d gives off an odor like several Washington , including C. Hollis of Machias, the register o have seen it in times Bangor correspondent iphia Record. An in- whose sobriety is vouch- White Ribboners of the saw it last summer, some old settlers who the "critter" has been "sloshin' 'round" in Gardner's for the past twenty years.

It is described as being twenty-five feet long with dark and scaly body and a head much that of a boa constrictor. It comes to the surface when ther fishing parties on the lake evinces a desire to follow boats that come out. No man ever been able to paddle a canoe as fast as this serpent can This week Francis Dana, a Pas quoddy Indian, saw the reptile gave chase, but was distanced Dana is champion canoe man tribe. The residents of the lo take little stock in legends, b one of them says, "When we critter like that a-swimmin' fa a tugboat an' a-smellin' like a fact'ry, we know it, b'gosh!"

he Ocean's Depth

And she who is weeping may dr tears,
And she who is waiting may wa years.
Alone by the shore when the shi dark,
For the sea is her loved one's b

And around the barnacled ships
Where the things of time are m
There is desert and vale and hi dale,
Jungle and brush and strange sail
Where the sea flowers bloom and
And all is peace in this wondrous
Save when a ship, by the b whirlpool,
Bursts—by a thousand fathoms hur
Midway to the great at last.

Ah, if only the sea would open
Or the veil be torn away,
How our weird and wild imaginin
Would pale to the strange, things
That down in the pale green abide Piled there day by day.
—New York T

mittee in a Hur

e most informal notifica- nation ever made was nounced to George M. ection as vice president the St. Paul Dispatch. e reached Philadelphia the morning and went residence of Mr. Da- nse to the knocks that from sleep. Mr. Dallas ndow to see a party of his front yard, among gnized Senator Robert er Polk's secretary of and father of the fam- riff of '46. Dallas slip- s and a dressing gown unlocked the door and the party filed into the unlighte lor in silence, ranging them about the room.

Dallas, utterly unaware o cause of this irruption, went Walker into the back parlor an ed what it all meant. Walker him to wait a moment. The doors were thrown open and the parlor, where lights had lighted meanwhile, the chairm the delegation came forward an Dallas of his nomination. Ben. Poore, who tells the story in his nlscences, says that Dallas that he would make a formal later by letter, and "he then ing success to the ticket."

Miss Agnes Miller, of Chicago, speaks to young women about dangers of the Menstrual Period—how to avoid pain and suffering and remove the cause by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"To Young Women:—I suffered for six years with dysmenorrhœa (painful periods), so much so that I dreaded every month, as I knew it meant three or four days of intense pain. The doctor said this was due to an inflamed condition of the uterine appendages caused by repeated and neglected colds.

"If young girls only realized how dangerous it is to take cold at this critical time, much suffering would be spared them. Thank God I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that was the only medicine which helped me any. Within three weeks after I started to take it, I noticed a marked improvement in my general health, and at the time of my next monthly period the pain had diminished considerably. I kept up the treatment, and was cured a month later. I am like a new person since. I am in perfect health, my eyes are brighter, I have gained 12 pounds to my weight, my color is good, and I feel light and happy."—Miss Agnes Miller, 25 Potomac Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The monthly sickness reflects the condition of a woman's health. Anything unusual at that time should have prompt and proper attention. Fifty thousand letters from women prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regulates menstruation and makes those periods painless.

READ WHAT MISS LINDBECK SAYS:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has greatly benefitted me. I will tell you how I suffered. My trouble was painful menstruation. I felt as each month went by that I was getting worse. I had severe bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen.

"A friend advised me to try Mrs. Pinkham's medicine. I did so and am now free from all pain during my periods."—Jessie C. Lindbeck, 1201 6th Street, Rockford, Ill.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN.

Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., her advice is free and cheerfully given to every all-woman who asks for it. Her advice has restored to health more than one hundred thousand women. Why don't you try her sick sisters?

$1000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.
Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Paris Pickpockets.

The ingenuity of the Parisian thief is inexhaustible. Its latest manifestation has been in the clever adaptation of dentistry to the purposes of the pocket. A practitioner took up his position in a frequented thoroughfare, by means of large posters, offering extremely low rates, he soon drew a number of clients and a convenient crowd, until it was at last found that the dentist was exercising his facility of cleaning the teeth to the accompaniment of being "warranted white for years," his lady assistant was "working" out the pockets of the patients with equal expedition and thoroughness. A substantial sum had been collected before the imposture was detected.—London Globe.

Automobile trains are to be run on the roads in German East Africa as feeders to the railway lines.

Penny-in-the-slot gas meters are so common in Liverpool that the city is making from a dearth of coppers.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Pare, of C. B. a prominent resident of Glasgow, Ky., "I was suffering a complication of troubles. Besides a bad back, a great deal of trouble with the kidneys. were exceedingly variable, sometimes excessive and at other times scanty. The color was high, and passage accompanied with a scalding pain. Doan's Kidney Pills soon regulated the kidney secretions, made the color normal and banished the inflammation which caused the pain and sensation. I can rest well, my back is strong and sound and I feel better in every way."
Sold by all dealers, price 50 cents per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Some People Say.

That it is really only the poor musician who is a nuisance to the neighborhood.

That it is always a favorable symptom if a husband is patient and good-natured while his wife is preparing a belated meal.

That it is rather discouraging to a man to be forced to wait until he is dead in order to discover what a good fellow he was.

That another man with a genius for stirring up trouble is to the front with the query as to whether or not it is really advisable to tell one's wife everything.

That a good rule in automobiling is that it is better to be safe than sorry.

That a man whose occupation consists of hanging around and waiting for a rich uncle to shuffle off his mortal coil would not like to hear the comments which the neighbors make.

That when a man is always throwing out hints that he knows a good many things that he won't tell the probability is that he has already told more than he knows.

That if a girl doesn't put on her best hat and stunningest clothes when she goes out trolley riding with her young man it's a sign that she is confident that she has him cinched.—Utica Tribune.

A Prison Without Walls.

Represa, a convict prison in California, is unique in the fact that it possesses no wall. The grounds are studded with nineteen guard posts, which are built of stone and wood, and resemble a system of lighthouses. They are built on salient points of observation, and are fitted with Gatling machine guns, Winchester rifles and shotguns. These posts are from forty to sixty feet high, and are placed various distances apart, averaging 300 yards. No convict is allowed to pass between the posts unless he has permission or is accompanied by an officer or guard. Each post is manned by a clever marksman, and is only accessible by a draw ladder, which is pulled up after the post is occupied.

The Russians are deeply religious and charitable. Even the poor, who can ill afford to give, do their part toward swelling the alms that go to the poor and needy.

THE VALLE OF "NO."

Difficulties in Refusing Favors When Often Necessary to Oneself.

"No" is characterized as "a monosyllable the easiest learned by a child, but the most difficult to practice by the man."

Dr. Johnson displays a world of wisdom in these few simple lines, and the saying is no less true in regard to women than it is to men.

It seems cold and heartless to a man to refuse to lend a friend a little money to tide over some anxious time, and yet it is a great question as to whether he is justified in doing so if he himself is forced to make some of his own creditors wait while his money is fulfilling a friend's need.

In domestic life a woman has also much call for the little monosyllable "No." She may dislike to disappoint her children in some matters, but knows in her heart of hearts that the granted favor would be bad for their future health or happiness.

Yet how few mothers do say "No" under such circumstances! And they excuse themselves by saying it is bad for children to be thwarted! So it is, but if the said children were brought up to know that their mother had always a good reason for her decision and was not to be cajoled out of that decision, the mother would save a great deal of annoyance both to herself and to others thrown in contact with her offspring. — Philadelphia Ledger.

A London trade paper announces a shortage in the mummy market, which is felt by the color-makers. It is explained that mummies, in good condition and not over 2,000 years old, make, when properly ground, a rich light brown which is in great favor among artists. But where human mummies cannot be had, mummified cats make a fair substitute.

A custom still observed in parts of England is that of visiting hives of bees, when a death occurs, and whispering the news to the bees and telling them when the corpse is to be lifted for interment. If this is not done it is urged that bad luck will follow.

No matter where a British warship may be on the Atlantic or in the Mediterranean, the British admiralty can communicate with it at any moment."

It is said that the Irish commit suicide most infrequently of any nationality.

The latest title to be applied to Edward VII., of England, is that of "the lightning conductor of Europe."

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bott. and treatise free Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

The average family in the United States has four and seven-tenths persons.

Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of throat and lungs.—Wm. O. Endsley, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900.

In seven years 930 pupils in German schools committed suicide.

Our Social Distinctions.

"But," said the foreigner, "you have nothing here to exhibit your social distinctions. You all herd together everywhere. Your upper and lower classes are on the same footing."

"You're mistaken. We have sanitariums and lunatic asylums."—Chicago Record-Herald.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

West & Truax, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
Walding, Kinnan & Marvin, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price, 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Her Opinion.

"I have been very much interested in these experiments with tetrahedral kites," said the man with the gold glasses.

"Yes," answered Mrs. Cumrox, complacently, "but I have about concluded that the surest way to get rid of all such things is to boil the drinking water."—Washington Star.

ANNUAL REUNION ALABAMA DIVISION UNITED CONFEDERATE VETERANS, MOBILE, ALA., NOV. 15-16th, 1904.

Account the above occasion the Southern Ry. takes pleasure in announcing a rate of one cent per mile in each direction, plus 25 cts., for round trip, from points within the state of Alabama, to Mobile and return, with a minimum rate of fifty cents.

Tickets on sale Nov. 14-15th, 1904, with final limit of Nov. 18th.

The following rates will govern from points named below:

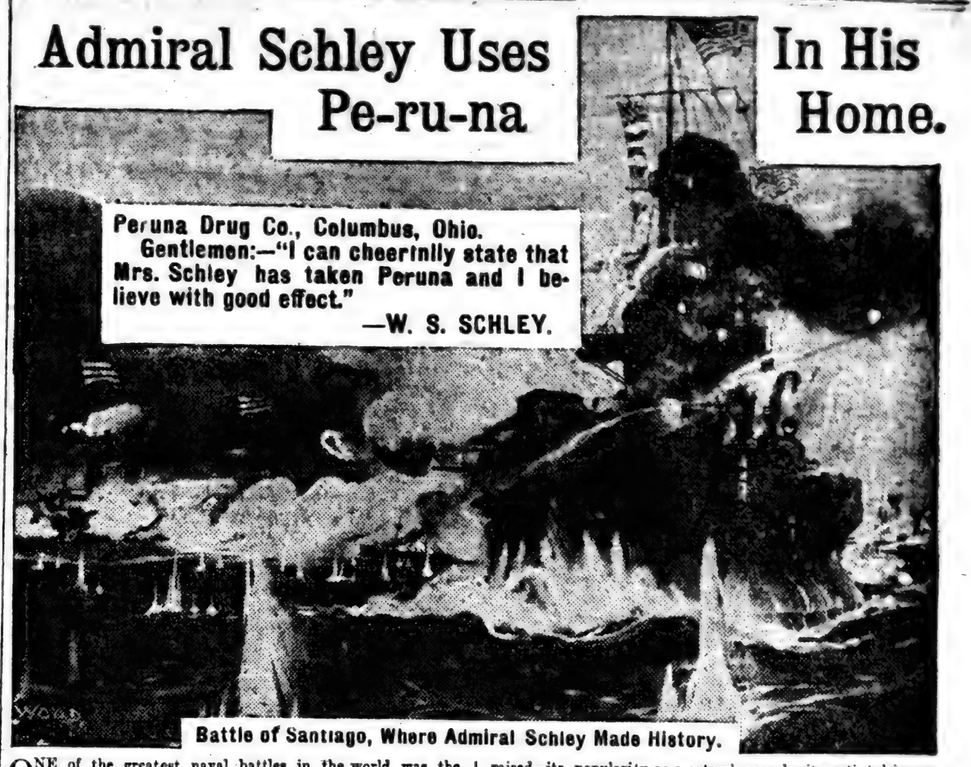
Anniston, Ala.	$6.20
Birmingham, Ala.	5.55
Cuseta, Ala.	4.75
Childersburg, Ala.	5.30
Maplesville, Ala.	4.15
Pell City, Ala.	6.80
Selma, Ala.	5.50
Talladega, Ala.	5.70

For ticket and further information call on nearest Southern Ry. Agent, or address,
E. E. Cranor, T. P. A.,
J. N. Harrison, D. P. A.
Birmingham, Ala.

An official of the Denmark milk industry, Herr Hegelund, has discovered that a cow can be made to yield double the quantity of milk if milked eight times a day.

Russian soldiers frequently use smoke signals like the Indians.

Admiral Schley Uses Pe-ru-na In His Home.



Peruna Drug Co., Columbus, Ohio.
Gentlemen:—"I can cheerfully state that Mrs. Schley has taken Peruna and I believe with good effect."
—W. S. SCHLEY.

Battle of Santiago, Where Admiral Schley Made History.

One of the greatest naval battles in the world was the Fight Off Santiago. Never since the disperson of the Spanish Armada has there been a more epoch making victory in the onward march of civilization than in the notable event of July 23, 1898, in which the great hero, Admiral Schley, took a leading part.

A GREAT NAVAL BATTLE.

It was a great naval battle. Without a moment's warning it began. Quick decision, undaunted courage, excellent discipline, resolute self-confidence—these combined in Admiral Schley to produce that dash and daring so characteristic of the American soldier.

A man must think quickly in these days. There is no time for slow action. New enterprises arise in an hour. Old ones pass away in a moment.

A multitude of great themes clamor for notice. A man must take sides for or against by intuition, rather than logical deduction.

One day this fighting admiral, Schley, happened to be in company with others who were talking on various topics of popular interest. The subject of Peruna was raised—its popularity as a catarrh remedy, its national importance, its extensive use.

ADMIRAL'S OPINION OF PE-RU-NA.

One asked his opinion: Without a moment's hesitation he said: "I can cheerfully say that Mrs. Schley has taken Peruna and I believe with good effect."

Like the battle of Santiago, the thought was sprung upon him without any warning, and he disposed of it with the same vim and decision as he did with the Spanish fleet led by the ill-fated Viscaya.

His words concerning Peruna have gone out into the world to be repeated by a thousand tongues, because he has said them.

Like the news of his victory over Cervera, his words concerning Peruna will be caught up by the multitudes and passed from mouth to mouth, across oceans and continents.

ADMIRAL'S WORDS CARRY WEIGHT.

Except for an inborn manly independence, in a country of free speech, these words never would have been uttered by an officer in such a notable position as that of Admiral Schley.

Except for a world-wide notoriety and popularity, such as Peruna enjoys, no remedy could ever have received such outspoken public endorsement by such a man.

At a recent sale at Christie's famous rooms, London, a playing card, the five of diamonds, brought the enormous sum of $13,750. This particular five of diamonds held on its back a circular miniature in gouache, by Hans Holbein of Frances Howard, duchess of Norfolk.

The Osage Indians are the richest people in the world. They have $3,000,000 in a state bank and own 1,500,000 acres of land. Each squaw, brave and papoose in the tribe possesses land to the value of $4,000 and the interest on their money gives an annual income of $200 to each member.

The vicar of Little Hutton, England, does not like makers of tombstones to cut their names on the stones, but allows them to do so on stones placed in his graveyard if they pay $2.50 for the advertisement.

Uncle Sam's Panama canal diggers already have about 30,000 men on their payroll.

Queen & Crescent Route

CHEAP RATE TO THE WEST via. Queen & Crescent Route A. G. S. R. R.

The Queen and Crescent Route, (Alabama Great Southern), will sell cheap round trip Homeseekers' tickets to all points in Texas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory on November first and fifteenth also December sixth and twentieth with final limit 21 days from date of sale; choice of routes via either New Orleans or Shreveport. Twelve hours quickest time to Texas, via Shreveport. No Transfers. All changes of cars made in Union Depot at Shreveport. The line traverses some of the finest farming lands in the United States situated in Louisiana and Mississippi, including the Delta lands of the Mississippi River, and the famous Red River lands of Louisiana making it by far the most desirable Homeseekers' Route to Texas.

For Maps, Literature, Rates and other information, call on or address
A. B. FREEMAN, T. P. A.,
1925 1st Ave., - Birmingham.

WORMS

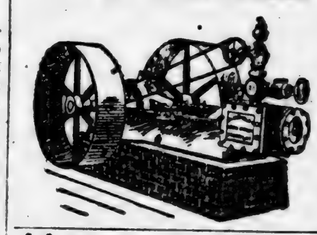
"I write to let you know how I appreciate your Cascarets. I commenced taking them last November and took two tea cent boxes and passed a tapeworm 14 ft. long. Then I commenced taking them again and Wednesday, April 4th, I passed another tape worm 28 ft. long and over a thousand small worms. Previous to my taking Cascarets I didn't know I had a tape-worm. I always had a small appetite."
Wm. F. Brown, 184 Franklin St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Best for The Bowels
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC
THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped CCC. Guaranteed to cure or your money back.
Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y. 304
ANNUAL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

FARMERS! ATTENTION!
NO LINIMENT WAS EVER MADE THAT EQUALS
SLOAN'S LINIMENT
FOR HORSES AND OTHER STOCK AND ALL FAMILY USES
It Kills Pain and Kills Germs
DR. EARL S. SLOAN, 615 ALBANY ST., BOSTON, MASS

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS COMPANY
MANUFACTURERS



High Pressure Return Tubular Boilers
Morison Internally Fired Boilers
High Grade Slide Valve Engines
Transmission Machinery
Heavy Castings
Wrought Iron and Steel Work
Tanks, Stacks and Stand Pipes
Heavy Pipe Work a Specialty
Address Machinery Department
MACON, GEORGIA.

"DOUGLAS"
$3.50
SHOES
DELIVERED FREE!

"W. L. Douglas" charges 25c. express himself. We want you to have our big mail order catalogue, so make this extraordinary offer: Send $3.50 and your size and we will send the style shoe you want—over 56 styles to pick from—deliver it to you absolutely free, no matter where you live. Don't put up with small stocks when you have this large selection at your disposal. Just address

Blach's, Birmingham, Alabama.

Bryant & Stratton
Business, Shorthand and Typewriting College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 5 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.
Am. 45, 1904.

If afflicted with Weak eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES
Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors silk, wool and cotton equally well and is guaranteed to give perfect results. Ask dealer or we will send post paid at 10c a package. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Unionville, Mo.

Plantation Chill Cure is Guaranteed
To cure, or money refunded by your merchant, so why not try it? Price 50c.

BANK ROBBER KILLED.

Struck by Bolt of Electricity While Attempting to Cut Arc Light Circuit.

HAD COMPLETE BURGLAR'S KIT.

Was Prominent Young Man, Member of Military Company and College Graduate.

The dead body of James Hendrick, a prominent young man of Montgomery, was found on a shed adjacent to the American National bank Tuesday morning.

He had on a uniform of the Montgomery Greys. A stick of dynamite, a revolver and other tools were found on him. A kit of new tools was also found. All the indications are that it was his intention to blow open the safes of the bank.

He was evidently killed in attempting to cut the wires leading to a series of arc lights, containing about 4,000 volts.

Hendrick was well known and popular. He was a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and of the Greys.

The town is greatly excited. It is presumed he was the tool of other men.

INDUSTRIAL MIGRATION.

Northern Manufacture is Constantly Seeking Homes in the South.

The Tradesman says:

Despite statements to the contrary, there seems to be little doubt that more of the New England manufacturers will change their base to the south in the near future, and that this industrial migration will increase rather than decrease. This part of the United States will be the field for investment of a large amount of northern capital within the next few years, unless some extraordinary event occurs to check the interest. As the Massachusetts and Rhode Island manufacturers have branched out in Georgia and Alabama, they will probably be represented by extensive plants west of the Mississippi. The history of cotton manufacturing in the south has shown that wherever a mill has been established it has resulted in attracting to its vicinity not only trades people, but other industries."

BALED COTTON.

Increase is Shown in Southern States Up to October 18th.

The census office issued a bulletin showing that up to October 18, 1904, 5,776,565 running bales of cotton have been ginned in 668 counties located in the various cotton producing states, as against 3,455,082 running bales reported to the same date in 1903. Counting round bales as half bales, the number of running bales for 1904 is reduced to 5,704,770.

The number of counties in states from which ginning is reported and the number of running bales from each state is as follows:

Alabama, 55 counties, 601,482 bales; Florida, 119 counties, 40,483 bales; Georgia, 124 counties, 1,052,818 bales; Louisiana, 42 counties, 305,153 bales; Mississippi, 68 counties, 548,968 bales; Tennessee, 35 counties, 72,618 bales.

North Sea Inquiry.

Reports are current that the board of inquiry into the North Sea affair will consist of one Russian, one English and one French official, but the report is unconfirmed. It is thought likely this number will be added to by two persons from powers less vitally interested.

Ovens Lighted.

One hundred and eighty coke ovens have been lighted near Bessemer, and other ovens will be lighted as fast as possible until all of the battery are turning out coke. The Tennessee company has 720 ovens at this point, and at present about five hundred of them are burning coke.

Want Convicts.

Several of the largest planters in the delta are anxious to hire squads of state convicts to aid them in picking the cotton crop.

Cotton picking on the Mississippi convict farms will be finished within the next ten days, but the planters who own the farms adjoining the places farmed by the state are not so fortunate, as they have a great deal of cotton still in the fields and are unable to procure labor to pick it, although wages of from 60 to 65 cents per 100 pounds are being paid, and in some instances 70 cents is offered.

Out on Bail.

At Athens, after a prolonged trial, John M. Morris and his son, Walter, who have been in jail since the last of June, were admitted to bail in the sum of one thousand dollars each. They are charged with being in a conspiracy to kill B. F. Grisham, and the shooting of Andrew Vaughan and Professor William McClellan.

The court refused to admit to bail John Morris, Jr., who fired the fatal shot at the memorable picnic.

HALLOWE'EN PRANKS

Proved Serious in Some Instances on Monday.

As the climax of a hallowe'en prank, William Sears, of Chicago, was mistaken and shot and instantly killed by a policeman.

Thinking that an object was a hallowe'en dummy on the tracks, a Columbus, O., motorman did not stop his car and ran over and killed an unknown man.

During the hallowe'en celebration in Vanderbilt Heights, Pa., Roy Saisgiver, a prominent young man, was shot and instantly killed by a man named Charles Manilla, with whom he had an altercation. Manilla was arrested.

At East Liverpool, Ohio, David Dewar, aged 16, was accidentally shot through the head and killed and Saul McCoy received a bullet through the back of his neck while engaged in hallowe'en pranks. McCoy's condition is critical.

Hallowe'en humor in Birmingham this year ran to soft soap. The street car management got an inkling that soft-soaping the tracks of the car lines would be the order of the night, and made preparation accordingly. Track walkers were engaged, and each car was equipped with a supply of sand. Accidents were quite narrowly averted in some localities on inclines.

FIGHT WITH ROBBERS.

They are Captured After a Fight and Outfit Found.

Two men, thought to be safe blowers from the outfit they carried with them, have been captured near Hamilton, Ala., by a posse of citizens organized after a series of burglaries in Hamilton in which three prominent stores were broken into and robbed. The capture took place in the woods only after a desperate struggle with two of the posse leaders, in which one of the supposed burglars was shot in the leg and the other beaten into insensibility.

The burglaries took place Sunday night. Immediately after discovery a number of citizens, led by Judge C. R. Lunsford and M. J. Webb, gave pursuit and came upon the men sleeping around an open fire. The two leaders, who had preceded the rest of the posse, rushed up and grappled with the men, who awakened in time to prepare for defense.

The sacks which the men had with them were found to contain a complete safe cracking outfit, fifteen steel drills, a quart flask of powder, nitroglycerine caps and fuse. The men were both armed with revolvers.

PROBATE JUDGES

Will Take Their Seats Soon as Elected—Opinion Rendered.

In a lengthy opinion Attorney General Massey Wilson says that the judges of probate throughout the state, now in office, may rightfully hold during the interim between the expiration of their terms on November 3d and the time when their successors will be entitled to enter upon the discharge of their duties.

He also holds that the new judges can enter upon the discharge of their duties as soon as they can qualify after November 8th.

Thirdly, the attorney general holds the old judges can retain their offices from November 3d to November 8th without giving new bonds.

This means that the new probate judges elected next Tuesday will take their seats at once.

That Scottsboro Firebug.

Captain John R. Harris lost his fine barn and a large quantity of the latest improved machinery by fire on his plantation Sunday night. He also lost about fifteen or twenty tons of pea and millet hay and one hundred bushels of peas. This makes the third large barn burned in that immediate vicinity in the past few days.

Accidentally Shot.

At Scottsboro, Ala., H. B. Lansdon, the depot agent for the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad, while out bird hunting, was accidentally shot and painfully, but not dangerously wounded by his friend, Mr. Long, who was hunting with him.

Special Elections.

Several special elections have been ordered in various Mississippi counties to be held next Tuesday on the date of the general election.

Newton county will fill a legislative vacancy caused by the resignation of Hon Floyd Loper. A legislative vacancy is also to be filled in Yalobusha county. Holmes county will elect a circuit clerk and member of the board of supervisors. Marion county will pass on the question of issuing $50,000 in bonds for the purpose of erecting a new court house at Purvis.

On the 11th of November the town of Water Valley will hold a special election to pass on the question of issuing $25,000 in bonds for schools.

50,000 TONS

Of Ensley Steel Rails Ordered by Louisville and Nashville.

The Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company will begin in January to make the first delivery of its order for fifty thousand tons of steel rails to the Louisville and Nashville railroad. The price to be paid is $28 per ton.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Named in a Proclamation Issued Tuesday by President Roosevelt.

THURSDAY, NOV. 24TH, NAMED

As a Day of Gratitude for a Year of National Peace and Plentiful Harvests.

President Roosevelt has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:

By the President of the United States of America—A Proclamation:

It has pleased Almighty God to bring the American people in safety and honor through another year, and in accordance with the long unbroken custom handed down to us by our forefathers, the time has come when a special day shall be set apart in which to thank Him who holds all nations in the hollow of His hand for the mercies thus vouchsafed to us.

During the century and a quarter of our national life we as a people have been blessed beyond all others, and for this we owe humble and heartfelt thanks to the author of all blessings. The year that has closed has been one of peace within our own borders as well as between us and all other nations. The harvests have been abundant and those who work, whether with hand or brain, are prospering greatly. Reward has waited upon honest efforts. We have been enabled to do our duty to ourselves and to others. Never has there been a time when religious and charitable effort has been more evident. Much has been given us and much will be expected from us. We speak of what has been done by this nation in no spirit of boastfulness or vainglory, but with full and reverent realization that our strength is as nothing unless we are helped from above.

Hitherto we have been given the heartiest strength to do the tasks allotted to us as they severally arise. We are thankful for all that has been done for us in the past, and we pray that in the future we may be strengthened in the unending struggle to do our duty fearlessly and honestly with charity and good will, with respect for ourselves and with love toward our fellowmen.

In this great republic, the efforts to combine national strength with personal freedom is being tried on a scale more gigantic than ever before in the world's history. Our success will mean much not only for ourselves, but for the future of all mankind; and every man or woman in our land should feel the grave responsibility resting upon him or her, for in the last analysis this success must depend upon the high average of our individual citizenship, upon the way in which each of us does his duty by himself and his neighbor.

Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the 24th day of this November, to be observed as a day of festival and thanksgiving by all the people of the United States at home or abroad, and to recommend that on that day they cease from their ordinary occupations and gather in their several places of worship or in their homes, devoutly to give thanks unto Almighty God for the benefit he has conferred upon us as individuals and as a nation and to beseech Him, that in the future His divine favor may be continued to us.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this first day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-ninth.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

By the president:
JOHN HAY,
Secretary of State.

Timber Land Deal.

George W. Carlisle, a real estate man of Jackson, Miss., reports the best sale of timbered lands that has perhaps ever been made in the state of Mississippi—2,688 acres located in Pike county for $47,000, or about $17.50 per acre. The land is heavily timbered with yellow pine.

Street Railway.

Jackson, Miss., capitalists are organizing to build a belt line of electric railroad connecting the northern and southern suburbs of the city with a loop line through the western portion of the city.

Very Low Water.

The Tennessee river is the lowest in its history. At Whitesburg, Ala., it is almost low enough for people to walk across it. If it does not rain in a few days wagons can be driven across the river. Drought continues in a serious form in this section.

Consulate Burned.

The consulate at Amoy, China, was burned Sunday, according to advices from Consul John H. Foster.

NORTH AND SOUTH RAILROAD.

French Capital Said to Be Behind a New Scheme.

A dispatch from Houston, Texas, says:

Edward D. Steger, president of the Denison, Bonham and New Orleans railroad, has just returned from France, where he has been for three months arranging with one of the largest banking institutions of the continent for the financing of what will be the first through railway north and south in America. It is to run from Duluth, Minn., via Kansas City to Galveston, Texas, with subordinate lines. The construction will amount to about 3,000 miles. The road is to be completed in five years. The contract with the French syndicate is for an investment of $78,000,000. Construction will begin in Texas within sixty days, according to Mr. Steger.

FOUR STEAMERS BURNED

And One Life Lost in a Brooklyn Fire.

One man is dead, several missing and $1,000,000 worth of property destroyed in a fire which burned four ocean steamers, several piers and the warehouses of terminal companies' stores in South Brooklyn.

The dead is Patrick Cushing, a policeman, who was caught by the flames at the end of the pier.

The vessels burned are the American, Arizonian and Nebraskan of the German Hawaiian Steamship company, and Citto Di Palermo, of the Italian line.

Whether all the crews escaped is not known. Officials believe the fire was of incendiary origin, as the company desired to close a number of streets, which was bitterly opposed by the residents.

TAX VALUES INCREASED.

Mississippi Breaks Her Record This Year.

Mississippi has made a new record in the matter of increased valuations of personal property for the fiscal year just ended. One year ago the valuation of personality was $70,769,063, whereas it is now $87,063,090, an increase of $16,294,027. This is the largest increase the state has ever known in a single year. In fact, the increase last year over the year previous on both realty and personalty was only $10,288,324, but there was no assessment of realty this year. The total valuations of the state this year will be in the neighborhood of $4,269,000,000, on which the state will receive six mills in the way of taxes, and more than one-half of which will go to the cause of public education.

COTTON GINNED.

Government Report and Comparative Statement Issued.

A bulletin issued by the census bureau gives a summary of the reports on cotton ginned in the United States in the present year up to October 18. The reports cover ninety-six counties, and show a total of 426,883 running bales as against 292,669 running bales reported for the same counties for the same period last year.

The number of ginneries from which reports were received is 2,141, as against 2,342 for 1902.

A comparative statement for 1903 shows that up to October 18 that year, a total of 3,839,627 bales had been ginned. The total number of counties from which ginning was reported in 1903 was 812, and the number of ginneries 27,723.

Sub-Station.

The postoffice department at Washington has ordered the establishment of a sub-station to the Huntsville postoffice at Merrimac.

Before Railroad Commission.

The traffic officials of every railroad operating in Mississippi having business with local compress plants will be cited to appear before the railroad commission at the session on November 22 to answer the complaints filed against the contract form exacted of compress companies by the railway corporations.

Hope Abandoned.

It is reported that General Stoessel, in command of the troops at Port Arthur, has abandoned the hope of holding the port against the attacks of the Japanese. It is said he wired the czar "Now, I bid you good-bye. Port Arthur will be my grave."

Store Burned.

The store of W. A. Woods, at Piedmont, was completely destroyed by fire although a hard fight was made to save it. The stock was valued at $5,000 with an insurance amounting to $3,000 carried. The building was owned by people in Talladega.

Alexieff Resigns.

The text of Viceroy Alexieff's order of the day was read before the troops in the far east Monday and announced the appointment of General Kuropatkin to be commander-in-chief of the land forces in the east.

Another Furnace.

The Alabama Steel and Wire company announces that it will at once build a second furnace at Gadsden.

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

Louisville & Nashville R. R.

CENTRAL TIME.

Read Down AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2	Read No
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7 45
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6 22
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58	....	5 56
7 15	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....	5 52
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42	....	5 40
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5 32
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17	....	5 17
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 11	....	5 11
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5 04
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4 00

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
For rates and further information address

A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

A Great Combination Offe

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democra

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival as a

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.
SHOES that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Fe

Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Ala

Gelder's Restaurant

Good Meals at Reasonable Pric

110 North 20th Street,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Pure Water Prevents Fever

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WAT

We guarantee water or no charge ma
Estimates given. Address
I. E. SARBER CO.
Thorsby, Alabama.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE A FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Bra

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alab

It Pays, An Ad In This Pa

T

VOL. II.

SHOP MADE APPOINTMENTS

Next North Alabama Conference Meets in Athens

SESSIONS ARE ADJOURNED.

Few Changes Are Made in the Assignment of Position in the Birmingham District.

Talladega. After the ... the appointments for the coming year by Bishop A. W. Wilson, D. D., LL. D., the North Alabama conference was adjourned Monday night to meet next year at Athens.

The greater portion of the morning session was taken up with a discussion of the report of education. The Rev. Dr. George W. Read, chairman of the board of education, read the report which recommended that trustees of the Athens Female College be authorized to borrow $[illegible] which disapproved of the union of the North and South Alabama educational interests.

The appointments are as follows:

Birmingham District.

Presiding elder, S. L. Dobbs; First church, C. B. Riddick; St. John, W. J. Hendrix; Five Points, J. H. Mc[illegible]oy; Eleventh Avenue, W. E. Morris; Trinity, L. D. Patterson; Fountain Heights, F. W. Brandon; St. Paul and Ninth Street, S. R. Lester; Wesley chapel, J. O. Hanos; Twenty-first Avenue, J. S. Glasgow; Mt. Vernon, H. M. Dobbs; East Birmingham, J. L. Ferguson; Newman chapel, W. McD. How[illegible]ll; Avondale, J. C. Persinger; Woodlawn, J. T. Morris; East Lake, W. W. Duncan; Birmingham circuit, T. O. Jones; A. S. V. Blythe, superintendent; Elyton, W. A. Horton; Owenton and East Thomas, W. B. Woodall; Fairview, S. B. Smith; West End, Z. A. Dowling; Sunnyside circuit, J. W. Akin; Pratt City station, W. E. Foust; Pratt City circuit, J. T. Miller; Ensley, G. W. Read; Wylam circuit, T. M. Purcell; Jonesboro and Brighton, L. A. Holmes; Bessemer, J. L. Brittain; Lipscom and Pleasant Hill, J. W. Culberson; president North Alabama Conference college, J. R. Turner; professors North Alabama Conference college, E. B. Norton and S. F. Slaton; assistant editor Alabama Christian Advocate, S. P. West; conference colporter, J. L. Ferguson; agent for homes and conference claimants, J. W. Norton.

Decatur District.

Presiding elder, George E. Boyd; Decatur station, S. E. Wasson; New Decatur station, George L. Jenkins; Austinville mission, A. J. Chappell; Athens station, Anson West; Athens circuit, T. B. McCane; Cambridge[illegible]ply; Pettusville circuit, J. A. Syfrett, supply; Westmoreland circuit, G. R. Hen[illegible]egar, supply; Trinity station, W. G. Henry; Hillsboro circuit, J. W. Lethet[illegible]er; Town Creek circuit, W. P. McGlawn; Moulton circuit, E. H. Driskill; Town Creek circuit, W. P. McGlawn; Moulton circuit, E. H. Driskill; Dan[illegible]ville circuit, J. T. Scott, supply; Crooked Creek mission, to be supplied; Falkville circuit, G. W. Alley; Cullman station, F. T. J. Brandon; Hartselle circuit, L. F. Parish; Somer[illegible]ville circuit, D. S. McGlawn, supply; Courtland station, W. D. Parish.

Florence District.

Presiding elder, J. D. Simpson; Florence station, W. O. Waggener; East Florence, A. C. Smith; Center Star circuit, M. M. Blasse; Rogersville circuit, J. A. Dozier; Greenhill mission, W. T. Holdridge; Cloverdale circuit, G. M. Randle; Oakland circuit, C. C. Godby; Gravelly Springs mission, W. J. Smith; Waterloo and Riverton, E. H. Harrison; Cherokee station, J. T. Self, W. L. Lyon, superannuated; Cherokee circuit, G. T. Morten, supply; Pleasant Site circuit, W. A. Wood, supply; Spring Valley circuit, W. E. Gibson; Tuscumbia station, George Stoves; Tuscumbia mission, T. J. Lindsey, supply; Leighton station, L. F. Stansill; Sheffield station, P. L. Abernathy; Branson chapel, M. R. Heflin; Phil Campbell mission, D. T. Dye; conference missionary secretary, J. D. Simpson.

Gadsden District.

Presiding elder, I. F. Hawkins; Gadsden station, J. W. Newman; Gadsden mission, W. R. Howell; Alabama City mission, W. W. Scott; Attalla station, R. I. Walston; Attalla circuit, to be supplied; Collinsville circuit, C. L. Herring; Fort Payne and Valley Head, J. M. McCluskey; Henegar circuit, I. F. Clark; Sulphur Springs mission, W. M. Wade, supply; Clifton mission, R. L. Wilson; Lookout Valley circuit, S. E. Igon, supply; Gaylesville circuit, J. H. Vain; Centre circuit, C. W. Seal; Leesburg circuit, E. E. Emerson; Hokes Bluff circuit, J. T. Lane; Obatchie circuit, J. T. Wilkins; Coal City and Ragland,

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

uisville & Nashville R. R

CENTRAL. TIME.

PM	PM	DAILY	AM	AM
No 7	No 3		No 8	No 2	No
25	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7 4
35	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6 2
04	....	Jemison	8 58	....	5 5
11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....	5 5
24	....	Lomax	8 42	....	5 5
32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5 3
45	....	Cooper	8 17	....	5 1
50	....	Verbena	8 11	....	5 1
57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5 0
00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4 0

Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
and further information address

T. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

reat Combination Offe

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

Louis Globe-Democra

WITH

The Union

FOR

Both Papers One Year Only $1.

t. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-We pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. I can in Politics and has no equal or rival a reat Modern Newspaper.

want all the news of the World's Fair, all the ne ional campaign, and all the news of all the ear have the Globe-Democrat during the coming ye

NOW IS THE TIME.

$1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper a test Newspaper of the World's Fair City, L year. Address

he Union, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..

made of Leather.

IOES that are Reliable.

SHOES made to Wear.

NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

oods, Groceries, Flour and Fe

Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Post-office Building. Clanton, Alab

elder's Restaurant

Meals at Reasonable Pric

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Water Prevents Fever

ED WELLS FURNISH PURE WAT

guarantee water or no charge ma tes given. Address

I. E. SARBER CO.

orsby, Alabama.

R AL MERCHANDISE AN FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

y Special & Mule Bra

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

n, - - - Alab

ays, An Ad In This Pa

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. II. CLANTON, ALA., DECEMBER 1, 1904. NO. 36

SHOP MADE APPOINTMENTS.

xt North Alabama Conference Meets in Athens.

SESSIONS ARE ADJOURNED.

Few Changes Are Made in the Assignment of Position in the Birmingham District.

Talladega.—After the reading of e appointments for the coming year Bishop A. W. Wilson, D. D., LL. D., e North Alabama conference adurned Monday night to meet next ear at Athens.

The greater portion of this morngs session was taken up with the iscussion of the report of education. he Rev. Dr. George W. Read, chairan of the board of education, read e report which recommended the rustees of the Athens Female College e authorized to borrow $10,000, and hich disapproved of the union of e North and South Alabama educaonal interests.

The appointments are as follows:

Birmingham District.

Presiding elder, S. L. Dobbs; First urch, C. B. Riddick; St. John, W. Hendrix; Five Points, J. H. Mcoy; Eleventh Avenue, W. E. Morris; rinity, L. D. Patterson; Fountain eights, F. W. Brandon; St. Paul and inth Street, S. R. Lester; Wesley hapel, J. O. Hanes; Twenty-first Ave ue, J. S. Glasgow; Mt. Vernon, H. M. Dobbs; East Birmingham, J. L. Ferguson; Newman chapel, W. McD. Howell; Avondale, J. C. Persinger; Woodlawn, J. T. Morris; East Lake, W. W. Duncan; Birmingham circuit, T. O. Jones; A. S. V. Blythe, superintendent; Elyton, W. A. Horton; Owenton and East Thomas, W. B. Woodall; Fairview, S. B. Smith; West End, Z. Dowling; Sunnyside circuit, J. W. Akin; Pratt City station, W. E. Foust; Pratt City circuit, J. T. Miller; Ensley, G. W. Read; Wylam circuit, T. M. Purcell; Jonesboro and Brighton, L. A. Holmes; Bessemer, J. L. Brittain; Lipscom and Pleasant Hill, J. W. Culberson; president North Alabama Conference college, J. R. Turner; professors North Alabama Conference college, E. B. Norton and S. F. Slaton; assistant editor Alabama Christian Advocate, S. P. West; conference colporter, J. L. Ferguson; agent for claimes and conference claimants, J. W. Norton.

Decatur District.

Presiding elder, George E. Boyd; Decatur station, S. E. Wasson; New Decatur station, George L. Jenkins; Austinville mission, A. J. Chappell; Athens station, Anson West; Athens circuit, T. B. McCane; Cambridge Pottsville circuit, J. A. Syfrett, supply; Westmoreland circuit, G. R. Henegar, supply; Trinity station, W. G. Henry; Hillsboro circuit, J. W. Letbetter; Town Creek circuit, W. P. McGlawn; Moulton circuit, E. H. Driskill; Town Creek circuit, W. P. McGlawn; Moulton circuit, E. H. Driskill; Danville circuit, J. T. Scott, supply; Crooked Creek mission, to be supplied; Falkville circuit, G. W. Alley; Cullman station, F. T. J. Brandon; Hartselle circuit, L. F. Parish; Somerville circuit, D. S. McGlawn, supply; Courtland station, W. D. Parish.

Florence District.

Presiding elder, J. D. Simpson; Florence station, W. O. Waggener; East Florence, A. C. Smith; Center Star circuit, M. M. Blasse; Rogersville circuit, J. A. Dozier; Greenhill mission, W. T. Holdridge; Cloverdale circuit, G. M. Randle; Oakland circuit, C. C. Godby; Gravelly Springs mission, W. J. Smith; Waterloo and Riverton, E. H. Harrison; Cherokee station, J. T. Self, W. L. Lyon, superannuated; Cherokee circuit, G. T. Horten, supply; Pleasant Site circuit, W. A. Wood, supply; Spring Valley circuit, W. E. Gibson; Tuscumbia station, George Stoves; Tuscumbia mission, T. J. Lindsey, supply; Leighton station, L. F. Stansill; Sheffield station, P. L. Abernathy; Brabson chapel, M. R. Heflin; Phil Campbell mission, D. T. Dye; conference missionary secretary, J. D. Simpson.

Gadsden District.

Presiding elder, I. F. Hawkins; Gadsden station, J. W. Newman; Gadsden mission, W. R. Howell; Alabama City mission, W. W. Scott; Attalla station, to be supplied; Collinsville circuit, C. L. Herring; Fort Payne and Valley Head, J. M. McCluskey; Vinegar circuit, I. F. Clark; Sulphur Springs mission, W. M. Wade, supply; Clifton mission, R. L. Wilson; Lookout Valley circuit, S. E. Igon, supply; Haylesville circuit, J. H. Vain; Centre circuit, C. W. Seal; Leesburg circuit, E. E. Emerson; Hokes Bluff circuit, J. T. Lane; Obatchie circuit, J. Wilkins; Coal City and Ragland, J. W. Shoemaker; Pell City circuit, F. L. Aldrich; Springville and Trussville, C. M. Hensley; Ashville circuit, J. W. Spencer; student Vanderbilt university, W. F. Price.

Guntersville District.

Presiding elder, J. L. Williams; Guntersville station, W. B. Hope; Langston mission, W. R. Eddings; Southill circuit, J. F. Rudicill; Wilton mission, W. L. Rice; Aldertsville station, S. J. Parish; Boaz station, J. A. Mathison; Boaz mission, J. T. Terry; Pleasant Hill circuit, W. Williams, supply; Blountsville circuit, W. P. McDonald; Cleveland circuit, W. E. Aldridge; Oneonta circuit, D. W. Ward, W. L. Hendricks supply; Altoona mission, L. W. Young; Selfville circuit, S. T. Daniel; Village Springs circuit, W. E. Draper; Warrier, T. K. Tierce; New Castle circuit, R. J. Pollard; Mineral Springs circuit, H. F. Crim; Hanceville circuit, E. D. Emmerson; Arkadelphia circuit, D. B. Thompson, supply; Baileyton circuit, W. V. Teer; Arab circuit, supply; Union Grove circuit, W. A. Hambrick, supply; Pine Mountain circuit, J. A. Thomason, supply.

Huntsville District.

Presiding elder, J. F. Sturdivant; First church, F. P. Culver; Epworth mission, George R. Jordan; Merrimack mission, R. L. Tyler; Newmarket circuit, G. W. Sellers; Gurley circuit, W. J. Reid; Newhope circuit, W. R. Beal; Newhope mission, L. P. Hunkapillar; Meridianville circuit, J. H. Lesley; Kelly circuit, E. D. Totherow; Fabus mission, F. H. Gardner; Bridgeport, I. Q. Melton; Stevenson mission, Charles W. Hall, supply; Scottsboro and Stevenson, H. E. Emerson; Larkinsville circuit, J. B. Culpepper, supply; North circuit, J. M. Tabor, supply; Woodville mission, W. J. Hodges, supply; Madison circuit, I. B. Sargent; Triana circuit, M. N. Morris; Princeton circuit, George M. Gipson, supply; student North Alabama Conference college, H. L. Aldridge.

Jasper District.

Edward Fulmer, presiding elder; Jasper station, J. S. Robertson; Cordova station, J. E. Morris; Dora station, S. B. Johnson; Brookside circuit, E. H. Price; Sayres mission, O. N. Holmes; Oakman circuit, Robert Wilson; Warrior circuit, to be supplied; Corona station, W. P. Bevins; Alta mission, A. M. Johnson, supply; Fayette station, W. K. Simpson; Fayette circuit, T. W. Hayes; Covin circuit, Rev. Elroy; Fernbank circuit, W. I. McGregory, supply; Vernon circuit, B. T. Cantrell; Sulligent circuit, M. R. Smith; Crews mission, M. L. Patton, supply; Detroit circuit, Eugene Binford Hamilton circuit, J. F. Fullerton; Brilliant circuit, E. B. Redus; Houston mission, S. H. Wilson, supply; Carbon Hill station, R. H. Jones; Pocahontas circuit, G. L. Crow; Gamble Mines circuit, L. M. Harris; Double Springs mission, J. C. Prince; Coronada mission, to be supplied; student Vanderbilt university, F. K. Gamble.

LaFayette District.

Presiding elder, R. W. Anderson; LaFayette station, E. M. Glenn; LaFayette mission, J. H. Harris; Roanoke circuit, G. W. Hamilton; Alexander City station, H. M. Stevenson, H. S. Mathews, supply; Dadeville circuit, J. C. Francis; Camphill circuit, R. A. Thompson; Rockford circuit, M. W. Heflin; Goodwater circuit, T. W. Ragan; Hackneyville circuit, W. T. Daniel; Weogufka circuit, to be supplied; Millersville mission, W. R. Hurst, supply; Daviston circuit, K. N. Mathews; Ashland circuit, J. C. Craig; Fredonia circuit, O. L. Millican; Lanett and Langdale, L. A. Brown; Lineville circuit, C. Wolford; Oak Bowery circuit, R. M. Archibald; Cuma mission, J. P. Lancaster; student Vanderbilt university, A. L. Mathison.

Talladega District.

Presiding elder, J. W. Johnson; Talladega station, L. C. Branscomb; Anniston First church, J. D. Ellis; Sylacauga, A. J. Nonestine; Oxford station, T. K. Roberts; Easonville circuit, C. C. O'Neal; Jacksonville and White Plains, G. E. Driskell; Munford circuit, J. W. Cary; Piedmont circuit, A. M. Yoe; Lincoln circuit, Joshua Warren; Columbiana circuit, G. T. Harris; Childersburg and Fayetteville, J. S. Chadwick; Plantersville circuit, J. M. Igon; Alexandria, circuit, R. P. Baird; Heflin circuit, W. Tucker; Leeds circuit, F. A. Vann; Wilsonville mission, C. D. Brooks; Glen Addie and Oxanna mission, T. A Kerr; West Anniston mission, R. Y. Hannon; Lecta mission, C. B. Cole, supply.

Tuskaloosa District.

Presiding elder, V. O. Hawkins; Tuscaloosa, H. C. Howard, W. F. Melton, Jr., preachers; Northport, J. V. Emmerson; Cotton dale, James Williams, and one to be supplied by J. H. Marchant; Blocton, J. W. Cowan; Coleanor and Piper, S. N. Burns; Montevallo, H. S. Wheeler; Calera, J. T. Black; Pelham, J. A. May; Helena and Saginaw, T. G. Slaughter; Burnee mission, William H. Steurdivant, supply; Woodstock, W. S. Branham; Johns and Adger, B. B. Glasgow; Brookwood, D. L. Parish; Searles, J. J. Crow; North River, B. V. McCoy and C. B. Cottrell, supply; Berry, W. F. Barnes; Kennedy, J. H. Jennings; Millport, Robert Echols; Carrollton, W. T. Herndon; Gardo, H. B. Ralls; Sipsey, L. K. Knowles.

Transferred to Other Conferences.

W. H. McNeal, transferred to Alabama conference; W. F. Andrews, transferred to Little Rock conference; G. W. Hall, W. T. Turner, W. C. Driskell and Joseph Parkin transferred to the Indian mission conference; G. W. Mathison, transferred to Florida conference; R. E. Tyler, transferred to Northwest Mexico mission conference; L. H. Dorsey, transferred to Mississippi conference.

Notes From the Conference.

Talladega, Ala.—The North Alabama Methodists held a great mission anniversary service Saturday night. Bishop A. W. Wilson was the first speaker.

He dwelt largely on the motive in missionary work, declaring it was in obedience to the king. His disciples are impelled by love to Him.

He said that the rescue of the foreign embassy at Pekin during the Japanese-Chinese war was due to the few Christian missionaries there, and that it was one of the finest tests of Christianity since the days of the apostles.

Bishop Wilson has impressed every one as a man of great learning and a preacher of unusual eloquence.

He was followed by Dr. W. R. Lambuth, of Nashville, secretary of the mission board, who spoke most interestingly of Brazil as a mission field. Dr. Lambuth has recently returned from a visit to that country.

Speaking of its great material resources he said that one acre of ground would produce two and one-half bales of cotton, also it had the second largest gold mine and second largest diamond mine in the world. Nine-tenths of the coffee consumed in the United States comes from Brazil.

Sunday Bishop Wilson preached at the First Methodist church, and Dr. G. W. Young, of Kentucky, at night. All the other churches were supplied with preachers.

At the Methodist church, following Bishop Wilson's sermon, fifteen deacons, who had been elected, were ordained.

The coference selected Athens as the next place for meeting.

A memorial service was held Sunday afternoon in honor of the late Revs. Z. A. Parker, R. A. Timmons and P. K. Brindley, who have died since the last conference.

Gompers Again President.

San Francisco, Cal.—Samuel Gompers was unanimously re-elected Saturday president of the American Federation of Labor, except that Vice-President Burger of Milwaukee, in the convention voted in the negative and asked that his vote be so recorded. Gompers was given a great welcome when he retook the gavel. He promised the delegates to try to do more for the labor movement in the future than he had done in the past. Secretary Frank Morrison and Treasuer John B. Tennon were unanimously chosen to serve another term.

The following eight vice-presidents were re-elected:

James Duncan, John Mitchell, Jas. O'Connell, Max Morris, Thomas I. Kidd, D. A. Hays, Daniel Keefe, and William Spencer.

The American Federation of Labor voted to meet next year in Pittsburg. Pittsburg was selected by a large vote over St. Louis, Toronto, and Niagara Falls.

Million Dollar Bank for the South.

Memphis, Tenn.—The Commercial-Appeal says:

A new bank with a capital stock of $1,000,000, to be known as the Bankers' Savings Bank and Trust company, will be organized in this city within five months. It is to have the active backing of at least three hundred banks in Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas. Already more than $700,000 of the stock has been subscribed. The proposed bank is intended to do away with the necessity of calling upon New York and financial houses annually for securing money to finance the cotton movement in this region. The names of the promoters are withheld for the present.

Russian Jews Coming to America.

Copenhagen—Herr Gludestadt, a well known banker, and other prominent Jews, have formed an organization to assist the Russian Jews in emigrating to America through Danish ports. Funds are being collected to facilitate their passage and give the emigrants a start in life on their arrival at their destination. It is estimated that fully ten thousand of these emigrants left Denmark during the present year. The traffic is becoming so large at Scandinavian ports that the Hamburg-American Steamship company is arranging a new service to Copenhagen, Gothenburg, Christiana and the western coast of Norway, supplementary to its regular service to America.

HEAVY LOSS BY JAPS.

Japanese Lost Seven Thousand at Port Arthur in Great Battle.

JAPS ROASTED.

Will Now Try to Starve Out the Russians.

Rome—Giornale Di Roma has a dispatch from Tokio reporting that the general attack on Port Arthur fortifications which begun on the night of the 26th, have been partially successful. Forts Ehrlensgshan, Rastorhlung and Maickbujama have been destroyed, but the Japanese attacks on Sungshan and Vikwan and probably Kaokawan forts were repulsed.

The total Japanese losses reported are nearly seven thousand. The correspondent adds that possibly the attack will not be renewed, but the Japtacks. Many of the Japs had their town until the Russians are forced to capitulate by lack of food.

A correspondent with the Russian forces in Manchuria sends the following interesting particulars of the use the Russians are making of electricity as a defensive weapon:

At Liao Yang, says the writer, all the way round the Russian defense were stretched electric wires with high pressure currents. In some cases they were fixed among barbed wire entanglements in such a way that it was impossible to distinguish whether the wire was "alive" or not. The effect of these wires was terrible. As the Japanese, armed with wire cutters burst into the network, blue flickers sped along the wires, and dozens of the enemy tumbled over, dead or insensible. The ignorant Russian soldiers imagined that heaven had sent down lightning to "blast the heathen," and taking it as an omen, stood steadfast in the face of terrific attacks. Many of the Japs sad their flesh badly burned, and others without any trace of injury lay writhing and groaning.

A Boy Hero.

St. Petersburg—After General Stoessel, Nikolai Suyeff, aged 13, is the hero of Port Arthur. According to the Russian press, Suyeff has pierced the Japanese lines, carrying dispatches to Kuropatkin, no less than four times. Suyeff is a lad of good education, the son of an engineer, and grandson of an English woman named Graves. During his third return journey he was captured by the Japanese, who spared him a spys death owing to his youth. On the night following his capture he shot his guard, mounted upon a cavalry horse, and made a dash for freedom. At 3 oclock in the morning he rode up to the outworks at Palichwan with a Jap bullet through his shoulder.

Suyeffs method of escaping capture was to hide himself by day and crawl through the investing lines by night. His first exploit was to walk from Port Arthur to Taschichao, then in Russian hands, passing Japanese troops no less than eleven times. On another occasion he acted as spy, penetrating the Japanese lines and bringing back the breech-block of a gun as proof that he had done so. Kuropatkin has decorated the boy dispatch rider with the Order of St. George, and General Stoessel has specially reported his services to the czar.

Rome—A message from Tokio says bitter cold prevails throughout Manchuria. The cold is especially intense about Shakhe river, where the armies of Field Marshal Oyama and General Kuropatkin face each other. Five of General Kuropatkins sentinels have been frozen to death at their posts.

Russia to Sign Treaty.

St. Petersburg—Russia has accepted the invitation of the United States to conclude an arbitration treaty on the lines of the American-French treaty.

An Election Probable.

Huntsville, after spending several months as superintendent of roads for Madison county, Maj. W. P. Gorman has come to the conclusion that the country must either have a bond issue to raise the sum of $100,000 or allow the pike system to go to ruin. Major Gorman stated that the amount appropriated each year for repairs is utterly inadequate, leaving aside the matter of constructing new roads that are demanded. He will urge the county commissioners to issue bonds to save the county's extensive system of pikes. The people of the county will probably be called upon to decide the matter in an election.

Confidence Expressed.

"The Russian troops arein the best of spirits and have unlimited confidence in their leaders. They expect Kuropatkin to attack during the winter. The Russian forces now number 300,000 men. The cavalrymen from the Don district are superior to their Siberian comrades. The former are intelligent, brave and active and have fine, powerful horses.

"There are only a few hundred wounded at Mukden and 30,000 wounded at Harbin.

"I came out on the Siberian railroad, which seemed to be doing its tremendous work smoothly. The warehouses along the railroad between Mukden and Harbin are full of supplies which are almost untouched as up to the present the army has subsisted chiefly on the country.

"The handling of the Russian artillery is improving while the Japanese artillery fire seems less effective. Originally the Russians did not conceal their artillery, which the Japanese quickly disabled. Now the Russians handle and conceal their guns with perfect science.

Faith in Port Arthur.

"The belief is general at Mukden that Port Arthur will hold out until relieved, no matter how long the much expected Russian second squadron may take in reaching the far East.

"General Kuropatkin is not talkative. His only reference to the war was:

"'The war is progressing as I wish.'

"He still lives in his railroad car and the light in his office is burning night and day. It is commonly stated that the general never sleeps. His officers are not surprised at being called to a conference at any hour of the night. The generals only relaxation is at dinner time, when the officers who are his guests number scores. Wine is plentiful, but Kuropatkin drinks mineral water. Every Russian officer seems to have an unlimited supply of money, the government being lavish in its expenditure.

"It is my opinion that Kuropatkin will never retreat from Mukden until defeated decisively, and I think that the next battle will be a Russian victory.'

Mukden, Nov. 28.—On his first trip in the new automobile, Kuropatkin's only comment was: "I have the advantage of General Shafter."

The Chinese now regard Kuropatkin and his machine with superstitious awe, believing the latter to be an atrocious power of the specimen of the "foreign devil."

Mr. Kevoir said: "The two armies lie facing each other, each having three fortified lines. The soldiers of both armies live mostly in caves behind their trenches, which when covered with snow, have the appearance of a great host of polar bears waiting to spring at each other. The caves are warm even without fire.

No Rain Since July.

Louisville, Ky.—The record-breaking drouth in Kentucky is beginning to decrease the milk supply in Louisville. Several dairies have put their customers on half allowance and confectioners are unable to secure enough of the liquid in making certain kinds of candy. A number of distilleries have suspended operations until rain falls. In a number of small places the citizens are buying water and farmers are compelled in many instances to drive stock several miles to water.

For more than a month the Southern Railroad has been hauling water to its Shelbyville tanks and for the past three weeks it has been hauling ten carloads of water a day. Freight engines running between Lawrenceburg and Burgin are carrying double water tanks.

All the freight engines on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad have been carrying two tanks for several weeks.

The Cincinnati Southern railroad reports that it has closed all its watering stations between Lexington and Somerset, a distance of eighty miles, and the Somerset reservoir is now running low. Other railroads report practically the same conditions.

There has been no rain since July 3. In many churches prayers were offered for rain. The weather bureau announces a possibility of showers within the next few days.

Good Coal Found in Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss.—Since the advent of the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City railroad, coal is reported as having been found in several localities, especially in Leake, Kingston and neighboring counties. During the past few days. E. D. Terry, of Thomastown, a village in the northern portion of Leake, has shown samples of coal taken from ten feet beneath the surface, that have been declared by the Alabama A. and M. college chemists to lack onl 7 per cent. of being as fine coal as was ever mined in that state. This announcement has created considerable interest in that section of the state, and prospectors are scouring the country for deposits.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St., Opposite Court House
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins,
Physician and Surgeon,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Office with Hopkins Drug Co.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 1 a. m.
1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON.

Notice! Notice!

If you want good Bargains and good articles in Dry Goods, Groceries & Hamilton-Brown, Shoes, we have them for you

Jackson & Robinson
Lomax, Ala.

Going to Plant

Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a postal for my new manual "How o Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.

P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

PURE GOODS

The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.

Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

Life, Full Life

Full flowered, reared from homely earth,
Rooted in duty, and through long calm years
Bearing its load of healthful energies;
Stretching its arms on all sides; fed with dews
Of cheerful sacrifice and clouds of care,
And rain of useful tears; warmed by the sun
Of calm affection, till it breathes itself
In perfume to the heavens—this is the prize
I hold most dear, more precious than the fruit
Of knowledge or of love.
Each setting sun brings some new joy—
They have the scraping dance to-day;
Took prisoner a minstrel boy.
And bade the imprisoned minstrel play.

'Tis late—I miss their noisy prance,
Our dim old land is quiet reats,
And, wearied of the pow-wow dance,
Bleep minie Indians in their nests.
—New York Sun

"AND OBEY"

BY ETHEL BARRINGTON

"Come, Kezy, it is only saying the word that is hard, the rest is easy."

"Which word?" questioned Keziah, suspiciously.

"That you love me, and will be my wife."

Keziah breathed more freely. "It is not difficult—to love you—" she said, softly, "but I can't say the rest."

"But if you care for me—why not?"

"We are arguing in a circle," objected Keziah, as she turned miserably to the window.

Will Carter watched her curiously as she stood outlined in the glow of the setting sun, a slender, girlish figure, with a wealth of black hair, and a determined little chin.

"Sweetheart, what is it—are you afraid—?" There was a long silence.

"Yes—" breathed the girl at last.

"Of me—?"

"No—can not you let things be? Why are men always so anxious for a change."

"Ah, why indeed!" laughed the man. "Did you ever read the marriage ceremony?" she demanded presently.

"I know its meaning," Carter assured her stoutly. "Instead of a little portion of your friendship, you will be all mine to live and work for."

"For better, for worse. I could be sure of you. The trouble is, what about my share in the contract?"

"Don't say 'contract,' Kezy—it is so beastly cold blooded. You need only to say 'Yes.'"

"But 'yes' in this instance is so wide it covers 'Love, honor and—obey.'"

"O—" laughed Carter, with new light.

"You conscientious little prodigy! Why couldn't you have said so before? We will cut 'obey.' Many girls do. What care I for form, if you will only have me?"

But Keziah shook her head. "No—it must be all or nothing. If unable to answer for myself, I have no right to attempt it. No—" interrupting Carter, who would have spoken. "Let me finish.

"There are too many unhappy women, all because they overlooked that word 'obey.' Will, do you realize I have never obeyed any one in all my life! Dear father spoils me. In his eyes I am always right—and there has been no one else.

"Now suppose you command, 'Do this, or that,' and I—I am not saying that I should, but it is possible—suppose I refused?"

"Then the 'Noes' would have it." But it is absurd, dear. Have we ever come to such a tilt in all the years that we have known each other."

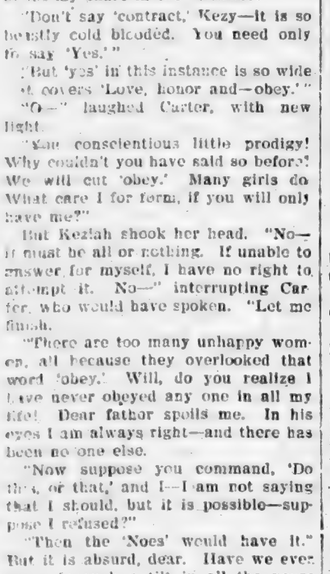
Keziah shook her head. "We are not married—yet."

Carter wanted her for his wife, and when Carter made an effort he generally succeeded in his aim. But as the days lengthened he grew despondent. He had to acknowledge that Keziah's will was out of all proportion to her slight frame.

"You are going to this coaching picnic?" inquired Carter one evening as he sat with Keziah on the porch.

She assented. "And you—"

"They are such a funny crowd," he grumbled. "The Deanes are well



"But I can't say the rest."

enough, but some of the men they admit are no good—the Marshalls—I hate you to meet them. But, anyway, I shall be there, so—"

"I am glad you are going!"

Carter gripped her hand with sudden passion. "If you would only trust me—always. These last weeks have been an eternity—I can't stand it much longer."

After he had gone, her head pillowed on the rail where his hand had pressed, Keziah tried to picture life without Will Carter, a calamity that had never before seemed possible.

On the evening of the picnic Harriet Doane visited Keziah, overflowing with enthusiasm. Everything promised delightfully, when Carter arrived with disappointing news.

"I am awfully sorry—but I can not go."

"O, Will!" Keziah was in dismay.

"Cheer up, girlie," consoled Harriet. "There are the Marshall boys. Now,

"I don't want you to go."

behold my magnanimity! You shall take your choice."

"Oh, no—" refused Keziah, while Carter's brow grew black.

As he rose to go Keziah followed him to the hallway.

"Can't you put off this trip?"

"I must take to-night's express to Albany. I have only time to get my satchel. You understand — good-by, Kezy, and—considering the Marshalls—you won't go to-morrow, will you?"

Keziah's eyes widened with astonishment.

"Of course I shall."

"Bad enough with me to care for you," opposed Carter, "but alone—" He consulted his watch. "I dare not wait; be reasonable, dear—"

"It is you who are unreasonable," accused Keziah hotly.

Carter was half way down the steps, but he turned.

"Keziah, I can not explain further—but I know I am right—and I don't want you to go."

"I have promised Harriet," repeated Keziah. And he was gone.

. . . . . .

"Well, how was the picnic?" inquired Carter, a couple of evenings later, as he watched Keziah making tea.

"Heard—didn't you go?"

"You objected so strongly, you remember."

"Yes—but you said—"

"I know," Keziah smiled wisely. "But afterward I found it was what you said that counted, so—" she broke off suddenly as Carter, a changed and triumphant lover, bent over her.

"Condemned out of your own mouth," he exulted. "Darling, I've entered the fortress of your will."

But Keziah did not understand.

"I forbade your going, the only time I ever tried authority, and, sweetheart—you obeyed."

"O—it was not obedience—it was love—" protested Keziah with lowered head, for Carter's arms were closing about her and all fear of the future had melted away.

"Sweetheart, I fancy that is what it always amounts to with a true wife—just love."—Ethel Barrington in Boston Globe.

Definition of Incense.

"Give a sentence containing a synonymous expression for 'incense,'" commanded a Brooklyn school teacher to her class. It was a very hard question and if you don't believe it, you had better try to answer it yourself. The resourcefulness of school children, however, is remarkable. The toughest boy in the class raised his hand. When called upon by the teacher he said:

"Holy smoke, what a scrap it was!"

THOUGHT SHE WAS WARM.

Imagination as Good as Fire to Absent-Minded Lady.

It was a cold, drizzly afternoon, in spite of the calendar's assertion that the month was August. Mrs. Parker, who was much interested in one of the latest novels, decided that a grate fire would add materially to her enjoyment of the book.

It was the maid's day out, so the chilly woman, who was rather proud of her ability along practical lines, proceeded to build her fire. First she crumpled a newspaper and thrust it deep into the grate. Next, she carefully built an Indian tepee of slender sticks of kindling. To this, with a practiced hand, she added a selected piece of hardwood and two neat chunks of soft coal. Then, surveying the arrangement with pride, she drew her chair before the fireplace, placed her feet on the fender, and with a pleasureable sense of warmth and comfort stealing over her began to read.

Two hours later Mrs. Parker's sister bustled in.

"My!" she exclaimed. "Isn't it wretchedly cold? I'm just chilled through."

"Draw up a chair," urged Mrs. Parker, without taking her eyes from her fascinating book, "and do let me finish this page—it's the very last one. It's delightfully warm here by the fire."

"Fire?" exclaimed the visitor. "I don't see any fire."

"Why, bless me!" cried Mrs. Parker, suddenly coming to life. "Here's the match in my hand! I forgot to scratch it."—New York Tribune.

TIMES MUST HAVE BEEN HARD.

Limit of Financial Embarrassment Humorously Described.

Two society women were talking together a few days ago, each having run up to town on some important business matter. They were sitting in the station waiting for the special Long Island train on which each was to make her return home.

The first to speak was a large, florid, handsome blonde, who, hurrying into the waiting room, was accompanied by her maid laden up to the skies with bundles of every kind, sort and description. Noting her friend already seated and absolutely bundleless, she at once began her discourse, volubly extolling the charms and amazing cheapness of some of the midsummer bargains of which, as the maid bore ample evidence, she had so plentifully availed herself.

The bundleless one listened in rather pathetic silence until the first full period. Taking advantage of it with a deep, pathetic sigh, she turned and gazed covetously at her friend's spoils of war.

"My dear," she said, "if macaroni was a cent a mile I couldn't afford enough this season to lace my shoes with!"—New York Times.

A Need of the Hour.

"It seems to me," said his friend, "that your college ought to establish a chair of gambling."

"A chair of what?" said the professor.

"Gambling. It is the great occupation of many if not most of us, and the average college graduate is apt to take it up in some form or other in spite of all the warning he may receive. Therefore, why not train him to follow it with skill and success? Why not have, say, lectures on how to play poker, on how to play the races, on how to speculate in stocks, and so on? If you could have these subjects properly handled you might turn out a corps of experts who would cover their alma mater with glory and reap a golden harvest for themselves."

"But, supposing the movement to be a success, it would simply ruin the public."

"Well, I judge that's what the public is for. It is simply a question of who gets the money."

Queensland Opal.

Opal, little opal, with the red fire glancing,
Set my blood a-spinning, set my pulse astir,
Strike the harp of memory, set my dull heart dancing
Southward to the sunny land and the love of Her!

Opal, shining opal, let them call you luckless jewel,
Let them curse or let them covet, you are still my heart's desire,
You that robbed the sun and moon and green earth for fuel
To gather to your milky breast and fill your veins with fire!

Green of fluttering gum-leaves above dim watercourses,
Red of rolling dust-clouds, blue of summer skies,
Flash of flints a-fire beneath the hoofs of racing horses,
Sunlight and moonlight and light of lovers' eyes.

Pink clasping hands amid a Southern summer gloaming,
Green of August grasses, white of dew-strung pearls,
Gray of winging wild geese through a sunset homing,
Twined with all the kisses of a queen of Queensland girls!
—W. H. Ogilvie.

Natural Progression.

Mrs. Ascum—How about your servant girl? The last time I was here, you know, you complained about her being so slow.

Mrs. Hiram Offen—O, she's progressing.

Mrs. Ascum—Yes?

Mrs. Hiram Offen—Yes, she's getting slower and slower.

Material for Him.

"I see they're advertising a new breakfast food," said the passenger.

"That so?" replied the stranger, who shared his seat. "I'll have to look it up."

"Fond of these things?"

"Oh, no; but it might be worth dramatizing. I'm a theatrical manager."

WILL PRESERVE FOOD LONG.

New Method That Promises to Give the Best Results.

An ingenious method of preserving food has recently been devised which is based on the fact that powdered gelatin, or thin sheets of the same material, not only do not spoil, but are capable of protecting incorporated substances from bacteria, moisture, and other agencies which bring about decomposition. Thus to make a concentrated beef extract, tea or coffee, extract, soup, etc., the liquid is mixed hot with 1 per cent of primary gelatin, which differs from the commercial article in not having the gluelike taste of the latter.

After cooling a jelly is formed, and this is cut into thin films and dried by a current of cold air until it becomes brittle. When this condition is reached the sheets are then reduced to a fine powder, which will keep indefinitely. While it will absorb moisture it does not do so to a degree to occasion decomposition, and the moisture is subsequently given off in dry air. The powder, while likely to cake, forms a brittle cake, not interfering with its use, while it is too hard for insects. When placed in warm water it dissolves immediately, and is thus ready for use. If heated above the temperature of boiling water before packing all disease or other germs will be killed, and to secure the best results the powder should be packed airtight. Such a concentrated food possesses many advantages, and is susceptible of wide application, as upon explorations.—Harper's Weekly.

BRINGING UP A PRESIDENT.

Pointer for Ambitious Mothers of the Coming Generation.

It is a fortunate thing to be tall and straight and of a viking's shoulders where one strives for political popularity, since the hopeless per cent of people come by their opinions through the eye. It is what they see rather than what they hear that turns to be impressive.

Washington was equal to a running broad jump of 22 feet; Jefferson lifted 1,000 pounds with his bare hands, and was known as the Strong Man of Albemarle.

The world has had its Caesars and Napoleons, but it adopted these little people slowly and after trial.

The first thing to remember in bringing up a president is his health; his stomach should be thought of as often as his head. A dyspeptic would find the road to the white house full of double difficulties, and he would make a dangerous president—nay, he might even invite impeachment.

A good stomach and a good heart go far as raw material in the construction of a best man. They are the bedplates for that engine called the mind.—Alfred Henry Lewis in Good Housekeeping.

The Ananias Triplets.

In the lobby of the Knickerbocker Mr. Dillingham was ordering out the "House Full" sign the other night, when Amelia Bingham's husband passed by.

"Have you heard the latest?" asked Harry Sommers.

"Dillingham was standing on this very spot the other night when a consumptive looking man strolled along. 'Do you recognize the profession?' he asked, in a one-lung voice. 'When an artist is known to me, I sometimes give him a seat,' replied the Chesterfieldian manager.

"'I'm a freak,' said the cadaverous one.

"'A freak,' gasped Dillingham.

"'Yep' (with a tinge of pride), 'I'm the only artist of my kind in the world.' Mr. Dillingham looked as nearly interested as he ever permits himself. 'What's your line?' he inquired, courteously. The attenuated one sidled toward the door. 'I never licked Lloyd Bingham,' he cried, proudly.

"Of course, I laughed at the story, and asked Mr. Dillingham if I might repeat it. 'God made three liars,' was the Machiavellian reply, 'Anson Pond is one and Sommers is the other two!'"—New York Telegraph.

Women's War Organizations.

Eight organizations of women have grown out of the American civil war on the northern side, to say nothing of those that exist in the south. Besides the Woman's Relief Corps, which is the best known of them all and is auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, there is the Association of Army Nurses, the Ladies' Aid Society auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans; the Daughters of Veterans, composed of daughters and granddaughters of unions soldiers; the Woman's Veteran Relief Union, auxiliary to the Union Veterans' Union; the Woman's National Association, auxiliary to the Union ex-Prisoners of War, and the Ladies' National Association of Naval Veterans.

What a Billionaire Might Own.

It is easy enough to talk of a billion dollars, but what does it really mean? The City of Boston affords a good example. On May 1 of this year the total assessed valuation of Boston real estate was $1,006,122,900. Of this amount $607,109,450 was on land, and $339,103,450 on buildings.

Having these figures in mind, then, we can have some idea of what it is to be a billionaire.

The Way of Peace.

I sought the path of peace;
So long I sought, and far;
A place where naught might enter in
My happiness to mar.

I sought, and sought in vain,
Until with fainting heart
I turned about, and found a place
Where I could bear a part.

In lifting heavy loads;
In sharing others' woes;
And in the path of duty, lo!
I found my heart's repose.
—Edith Virginia Brad:

Visitor Not an Agent

A gentleman prominent in legal circles in Baltimore recently moved into a beautiful home in the suburbs of that city. At first the lawyer was much pleased with his purchase, but in a little while so many agents of various sorts had called upon him that he became strongly tempted to move back to town. To a friend in whom he confided he stated that during one afternoon not fewer than nine agents had called upon him to dispose of one thing or another.

The tenth visitor was a tall, sad eyed man, who, after the customary exchange of greetings, started in as if to deliver a lengthy harangue. The lawyer, goaded to the point of desperation, interrupted his caller:

"My dear sir, really you are wasting your time trying to sell any window screens at this house. We are, as you see, quite well provided for in that respect. The week—"

"But, sir, if—"

"Nor do we wish to buy a lawn mower. We do not need any furniture polish. As for folding beds, we wouldn't have one on the place, as I told—"

"Really, my dear sir," indignantly interjected the sad-eyed man, "this is most extraordinary—"

"Of course, of course!" came from the harassed lawyer; "it always is extraordinary! I never knew it to be otherwise! I suppose you'll offer it to us on easy payments. But you are frittering away your time, my good man; we do not need anything—"

"Sir, sir!" protested the sad gentleman with the sad expression, "may I you allow me one word? I am not an agent for anything!"

"Pardon me, pardon me!" the lawyer gasped. "May I then ask who you are."

"I am the pastor of the Brethren church, and I [illegible] on you in order to ma[illegible] were running a private [illegible] quaintance, not knowing [illegible] And now, sir, I wish you good day."

And the lawyer states that him a whole week to fix [illegible] with the pastor.

Many Uses for Banana

New uses are being found for the banana—that valuable plant which will produce forty-four times as much human food to an acre of land as can be obtained from an equal area in the shape of potatoes.

One of the latest novelties is "banana coffee," which is made by drying the fruit and subjecting it to a process of roasting, after granulating it. It tastes a good deal like real coffee, and like many preparations of the kind evolved from cereals is recommended as devoid of the harmfulness commonly attributed to the true coffee bean.

Another product put up by the same concern is "banana figs." The fruit is cut into slices and put through a process which is yet a secret, though sugar is employed incidentally—the result being a decidedly toothsome delicacy, not much like figs, but equally far away from the ordinary banana. It is sufficiently palatable to deserve popularity.

Yet another novelty in the same line is "banana raisins," as they are called, which are appetizing bits of the fruit prepared, by a different process, with sugar. They are put up in boxes and sold as a sweetmeat.

In countries where the banana grows it is highly valued as a vegetable for cooking, being fried in slices or otherwise prepared; but in the United States (save in Florida) its availability for culinary purposes is practically unknown. Of all fruits it is the most nutritious, containing as it does 27 per cent of starch. Many people consider the fruit indigestible, but the probability is that it has the reputation because people swallow it in chunks instead of chewing it properly, as they would any other food.

Kipling on the Auto

Rudyard Kipling, who is an enthusiastic automobilist—or motorist, as they say in England—has written the following on his favorite sport: "The chief end of my car, so far as I am concerned, is the discovery of England. To me it is a land full of stupefying marvels and mysteries; and a day in the car in an English county is a day in some fairy museum where all the exhibits are alive and real and yet none the less delightfully mixed up with books. For instance, in six hours I can go from the land of the 'Ingoldsby Legends,' by way of the Norman conquest and the barons' war, into Richard Jefferies' county, and so through the regency, one of Arthur Young's less-known tours, and 'Celia's Arbor' into Gilbert White's territory.

"Horses, after all, are only horses; but the car is a time machine on which one can slide from one century to another at no more trouble than the pushing of a lever. On a morning I have seen the assizes, javelinmen, and all, come into a cathedral town; by noon I was striking a new-built convent for expelled French nuns; before sundown I was watching the channel fleet off Selsea bill, and after dark I nearly broke a fox's back on a Roman road.

"You who were born and bred in the land naturally take such trifles for granted, but to me it is still miraculous. In Africa one has only to put the miles under and go on; but in England the dead, twelve-coffin deep, clutch hold of my wheels at every turn, till I sometimes wonder that the very road does not bleed."

Magic in Child's Laugh

is there, when the winds are singing
In the happy summer time—
When the raptured air is ringing
With earth's music heavenward springing,
Forest chirp, and village chime—
Is there, of the sounds that float
Sighingly, a single note
Half so sweet, and clear, and wild,
As the laughter of a child?

Listen! and be now delighted;
Morn hath touched her golden strings;
Earth and sky their vows have plighted;
Life and light are reunited
Amid countless carolings;
Yet, delicious as they are,
There's a sound that's sweeter far—
One that makes the heart rejoice
More than all—the human voice!

Organ finer, deeper, clearer,
Though it be a stranger's tone—
Than the winds or waters dearer,
More enchanting to the hearer,
For it answereth to his own.
But, of all its witching words,
All its myriad magic chords,
Those are sweetest, bubbling wild
Through the laughter of a child.

Harmonies from time-touched towers,
Haunted strains from rivulets,
Hum of bees among the flowers,
Rustling leaves, and silver showers—
These, ere long, the ear forgets;
But in mine there is a sound
Riveting on itself, year round—
Heart-deep laughter that I heard
Ere my child could speak a word.

Ah! 'twas heard by ear far purer,
Sooner to catch the seraphim—
Ear of one whose love is surer—
Here, the mother, the endurer
Of the deepest share of pain;
Hers the deepest bliss to treasure
Memories of that cry of pleasure;
Hers to hoard, a life-time after,
Echoes of that infant laughter.

'Tis a mother's large affection
Hears with a mysterious sense—
Breathings that evade detection,
Whisper faint and fine inflection,
Thrill in her with power intense
Childhood's honeyed words untaught
Riveth she in loving thought,
Tones that never thence depart;
For she listens—with her heart.
—Saman Bla[illegible]hard

Slumbers of the Ant

During sleep the ant's body is quite still. Occasionally may be noted a regular lifting up and setting down of the fore feet, one leg after another, with almost rhythmic motion. The antennae also have a gentle quivering, apparently involuntary, movement, almost like breathing. The soundness of slumber was frequently proved by applying the feather end of a quill. The feather tip is lightly drawn along the back, stroking "with the fur." There is no motion. Again and again this action is repeated, the stroke being made gradually heavier. Still there is no change. The strokes are directed upon the head, with the same result. Then the feather is applied to the neck with a waving motion intended to tickle it. The ant remains motionless.

Finally the sleeper is aroused by a sharp touch of the quill. She stretches out her head; then her legs, which she shakes also; steps nearer to the light, yawns, and begins to comb her antennae and brush her head and mouth. Then she clambers over her sleeping comrades, dives into an open gangway, and soon has said "Good morning" to another tour of duty. But it well noted, however, that she has gone to work, as she and all her fellows always do, not only rested, but with her person perfectly clean.—Harper's Magazine.

Lyddy Baxter Was Wise

"Talk about always having your wits about you," began Mrs. Doull. "If you can find anything to beat Lyddy Baxter, I'll board ye a week for nothing." The boarder preserved the silence of the modest and the inexperienced, but his look of interest was all the encouragement Mrs. Doull needed.

"Now, take it this summer," she continued. "'Long the early part of June she 'n' I went down to the chapel one night to evening meeting. We set in Lyddy's pew. 'Bout as soon's we got there young Thomas Lutner showed a woman into the seat ahead, and Lyddy says to me, 'That's one of Almiry Burnham's boarders, and they say she's well off.'

"When the hymn was given out Lyddy see the woman hadn't a hymn book, so she passed over one of hers, finding the place and all. 'Keep right through,' says she. After meeting the woman turned around and passed it back to Lyddy.

"'Thank you,' says she. 'I'm going to be here several weeks, and I'd like to buy one o' them books.'

"'I guess you can have this one for the summer,' says Lyddy passing it right back, quick's a flash, 'if you'll give me a pair of gloves same's yours, only mebbe a shade lighter and No. 7.'"—Youth's Companion.

A Too Successf[illegible]

By Carroll W[illegible]

The day before the opening [illegible] annual fair in Camp County, Gilbert Ware, the nineteen-year-old son of the president of the Agricultural Society, was in charge of the entry [illegible] the administration building. The secretary, who usually attended to the matter, was busy superintending the erection of a new handstand, [illegible] one having at the last moment unexpectedly collapsed.

There were seven books open, [illegible] the long counter in front of Gilbert. Near them a stack of entry cards [illegible] to receive the exhibitors' tickets. The names of their exhibits and [illegible] es to which they belonged. Each entry book contained a long list of articles for which premiums were offered, with blank spaces for the exhibitors' names. It was a very [illegible] simple arrangement, and for the first hour, when the exhibits arrived, Mr. Gilbert had no trouble [illegible] o'clock found his table piled [illegible] cucumber pickles, crocheted [illegible] pers, cut flowers, dresses and [illegible] works of art, cabbages, and canary birds in cages.

A score of impatient exhibitors were demanding exhibition tickets [illegible] attention to the merits of their [illegible] special brand of potatoes; and [illegible] upon being attended to at once. Some of the men were making pathetic attempts (to give names to the articles of fancy work entrusted to their womenkind.

"One at a time!" pleaded Gilbert, pressing his hands to his head. "It's this man's turn. Your name, please?" "Olaf Olesen." "Number two hundred and twenty-five. What have you?" asked Gilbert, writing the name. "Apples, winter cabbage, some jelly and yarn for my womans, some sewing work, some—" "Hold on! Let's tend to the apples first. What kind—Duchess of Oldenburg?" "Yaw." They look like Baldwins," objected a bystander. "They're Baldwins; aren't they?" "Yaw," assented the Swede. "No, they're Red Astrachans," said a second objector. "I've got some just like 'em." "Well, fix it up with the head of that department. I've entered 'em plain apples. What's this cloth thing?" "Sewing work. My womans she—" "Yes, yes! But what's its name? Is it knitted, embroidered or hemstitched? Is it a table-cloth, a rug, or a sofa pillow?" "Yaw," replied the man obligingly. "I must have help!" cried Gilbert, springing up and making for the door. "I'll be back presently."

He looked up and down the road, but the prospect was not promising. The working force was inadequate, the heads of the departments were already overburdened, and the fairgrounds were three miles from town. There were people enough, to be sure, streaming in at the gates with more exhibits for Gilbert to enter, but he saw none who were likely to make valuable assistants. Suddenly, however, he caught sight of a girl who was flying up the road on a bicycle, with a small parcel dangling from her handlebars. He recognized in her a classmate, and one of the brightest girls in the high school.

"O Virginia," he shouted, "wait a minute!" "Did you call me?" asked the girl, springing to the ground. "Yes. Could you help a fellow that's in a peck of trouble? You don't need to go home, do you? I brought lunch enough for two. Mrs. Bailey is going to make coffee over the [illegible] fire, and we're all to have lunch in her building. I need you awfully to help me with the entry books. I can't see how a woman can work for a year on a piece of sewing and then not know what to call it when it's finished."

"I'll do what I can," laughed Virginia, "with the prospect of one of Mrs. Bailey's good lunches to cheer me." "I'm your friend for life!" said Gilbert, lifting the bicycle up the steps.

Virginia promptly separated the sheep from the goats—to be accurate, the pumpkins from the Battenberg lace. When the secretary looked in an hour later things were going finely, the piles of entry-tags had been materially reduced, and the crowd of waiting exhibitors had dwindled to a few scattered individuals.

"Now that was a bright idea," said the secretary, catching sight of Virginia. "It takes a feminine mind to grapple with works of art, fancy work and home-grown preserves. Hope you'll stay right by us, Miss Virginia."

Virginia worked all the afternoon and promised to return the following morning. She would need to come, anyway, she said, to enter some things of her own.

In addition to being bright in school the girl was clever with her fingers, and was in many ways unusually gifted. She painted in water colors, made pen-and-ink sketches, and the walls of her schoolmates' rooms were adorned with her spirited football posters. Moreover, she was skilful with her needle, as many a dainty bit of embroidery attested.

Just at that time a certain blue silk waist, marked down from ten to seven dollars, was tempting her sorely. It was precisely what she wanted for the Saturday evening concert; but her mother had shaken her head and said:

"No, Virginia, it's very pretty and most beautifully made, but I can't afford to buy it for you. Why don't you take some of your work to the fair? The premiums might pay for it."

"I did think of it, but Mrs. Blake or Not an Agent

...ronment in legal cir... recently moved into ... the suburbs of ... the lawyer was ... his purchase, but ... ments of vari... on him that he ... to move ... whom ... bring one ... agents ... sons of one ...

... was a tall, sad ... the customary ... clothed in as if ... arrange. The ... the aid of despera... his caller ...

... son are wait... to sell any win... house. We are ... provided for in ...

"Really, my dear sir," indignantly interjected the sad-eyed man, "this is most extraordinary—"

"Of course, of course!" came from the harassed lawyer; "it always is extraordinary! I never knew it to be otherwise! I suppose you'll offer it to us on easy payments. But you are frittering away your time, my good man, we do not need anything."

"Sir, sir!" protested the tall gentleman with the sad expression, "will you allow me one word? I am not an agent for anything!"

"Pardon me, pardon me!" the lawyer insisted. "May I then ask who you are?"

"I am the pastor of the Orthodox Brethren church, and I merely called on you in order to make your acquaintance, not knowing that you were running a private madhouse, quarantine, not knowing that you were. And now, sir, I wish you good day."

And the lawyer states that it took him a whole week to fix things right with the pastor.

Uses for Banana

...being found for the ...bacide plant which ... four times as much ... an acre of land as ... from an equal area ...otatoes.

...est novelties is "bu...ch is made by drying ...cting it to a process ...r granulating it. It ...l like real coffee, and ...rations of the kind ...ua is recommended ...armfulness common ...the true coffee bean. ...t picked up by the same ...na figs." The fruit ...s and put through ...s yet a secret, though ...ed incidentally the ...decidedly toothsome ...like figs, but equally far away from the ordinary banana. It is sufficiently palatable to deserve popularity.

Yet another novelty in the same line is "banana raisins," as they are called, which are appetizing bits of the fruit prepared, by a different process, with sugar. They are put up in boxes and sold as a sweetmeat.

In countries where the banana grows it is highly valued as a vegetable for cooking, being fried in slices or otherwise prepared; but in the United States (save in Florida) its availability for culinary purposes is practically unknown. Of all fruits it is the most nutritious, containing as it does 27 per cent of starch. Many people consider the fruit indigestible, but the probability is that it has this reputation because people swallow it in chunks instead of chewing it properly, as they would any other food.

ng on the Auto

..., who is an enthusi... or motorist, as ...and has written the ...esorite sport: "The ...ar, so far as I am ...discovery of Eng... a land full of stupe... mysteries; and a ...g English county is ...museum where all ...after and real and ...delightfully mixed ...For instance, in six ...on the land of the ... by way of the ...and the barons' war, ...ers' county, and so ...ney, one of Arthur ...tours, and 'Celia's ...t White's territory. ...all are only horses; but the car is a time machine on which one can slide from one century to another at no more trouble than the pushing of a lever. On a morning I have seen the assizes, javelinmen, and all, come into a cathedral town; by noon I was striking a new-built convent for expelled French nuns; before sundown I was watching the channel fleet off Selsea bill, and after dark I nearly broke a fox's back on a Roman road.

"You who were born and bred in the land naturally take such trifles for granted, but to me it is still miraculous. In Africa one has only to put the miles under and go on; but in England the dead, twelve-coffin deep, clutch hold of my wheels at every turn, till I sometimes wonder that the very road does not bleed."

in Child's Laugh

...ds are singing ... ...ward spring— ... that float ... and wild, ...

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, $1.25

The UNION and Weekly Atlanta Constitution. $1.50

The UNION and Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and Saturday News $1.25

Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it. tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

POLL TAX.

Now, every one of our people be sure to call on the tax collector and pay their back poll taxes, pay up and get into shape so that you can vote on stock law or school tax when they come up, as they surely will the coming year. In paying your poll tax it is only taking it out of one pocket and putting it into the other. The money stays right in your own community and goes to the school. tf

PENSION WARRANTS.

The state pension warrants are now at the probate judge's office ready for distribution, and Judge Reynolds would like to have you call and get them.

AT LAST.

The people's officers are in charge. Judge L. H. Reynolds and Circuit Clerk Sam W. Collins took charge of their respective offices Monday, the former incumbents went out quietly without any protest. Judge Reynolds has taken for his assistant Henry I. Honeycutt. Mr. Honeycutt had a deal of experience in the office when his father was probate judge and the office is running perfectly smooth. In looking in at Judge Reynolds sitting in that revolving chair that "just a voter" spoke about in one of his letters, we realized how thoroughly he fills the chair and the position, for he not only looked the master of the situation, but he is. Now, brethren, we are in charge of our own affairs once more; let us take heed and stay there; there must be no sleeping on our rights. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

LAW AND ORDER?

We found a miniature coffin fastened to the door of THE UNION early Tuesday morning when we went to open our office, some cowardly miscreant having taken advantage of the night to do an act which they were afraid to do by day. What do they mean? We are at a loss to comprehend it, for if any party or organ needs a coffin it is our opponents. THE UNION, the cause it fights for and the men it supported are very much alive and enjoying the victory gained on November 8th. If the gang of cowardly scoundrels (with what little brains they originally had sodden by whisky or ignorance, or both) think they can put the editor of THE UNION in his coffin why we are at our office every week day. Let them come around and try it; but no, these vile night roaming human hyenas haven't a grain of real courage. The better democrats in town came to us personally and expressed their utter condemnation of such acts as the above. We believe them, for we don't condemn a party for the acts of the rabble that hang on its skirts; we have learned toleration and believe that every man has a right to his political or religious opinions, with liberty of expressing them, and we intend to exercise our prerogative as an American citizen born and bred.

A CARD.

I wish to thank all those who supported me in the campaign that has just closed. Brethren and friends, you all have my heartfelt gratitude for the hearty support given me, not only this time, but in the past as well. I shall administer the office to the best of my ability, always with a view of placing our county in the front rank in educational matters. Again, thank you and God bless you all is my prayer. Respectfully,

J. W. MOORE,
County Superintendent of Education.

HOLY PLACES.

By Rev. Job Reynolds.

When people come into the House of God, they put on a sober appearance, they act as if there were something very strange about the House of God. I would not say a word to detract from the holiness of God's house, but let us bear in mind that every place ought to be holy to a child of God, that in every place we ought to be true to God; we ought to be as true to Him in our place of Business as we are in the church. When Jacob said this is the house of God and this is the gate to heaven he was under the canopy of high heaven, that was where God met him and God will meet us in the street as well as in the place of worship He will meet us at home. He is also with us in our closets. Any place where God is is holy, and this putting on another air and a sanctimonious look, when we come in the House of God, and then laying it aside when we go out, thinking that this is going to be acceptable to God is all wrong. Every place ought to be holy to a true child of God.

Lomax, Ala., Nov. 28, '04.

Editor Union:

Allow me a few lines in your paper to thank the good people around Thorsby for the many good things they gave to the old people in the alms house for Thanksgiving; the poor old folks say they never had such a dinner before. We thank Dr. Nix and wife for their kindness, and we'll remember all in our prayers. It makes the old folks feel so good to think that they are not forgotten. I, as superintendent, saw that the table was dressed right and that everything was equally divided. When all were gathered together, after grace, all set to and had a good time. Poor old Mrs. Morgan was very low and unable to come to the table, but I carried her share to her room. She could not eat, but it pleased her to look at the good things; death came to her relief on the 25th about 5:30 p. m., and she was laid to rest at Rocky Mount church Saturday evening with prayer and songs. I tender my heartfelt thanks to my neighbors and the good people at Rocky Mount.

Respectfully,
R. A. MILLER,
Superintendent Co. Poor.

BEAT NINE.

Mrs. Fannie Honeycutt is visiting relatives at Belle Ellen this week. Joe Price, one of our most prosperous farmers, made a business trip to Jemison Monday. Johnnie Mims went to Birmingham on business Monday. Dutch and Jesse Price are gone to Calera, where they expect to work till the holiday season. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Collins went to Clanton Saturday. A. F. Childress and C. C. Hayes were in Birmingham Saturday. Rev. S. H. Wilson, of Double Springs, Winston county, visited his son, W. H. Wilson, here Saturday, preached at Cedar Grove church at 11 a. m. on Sunday and returned home Monday; come again, Mr. Wilson. A. F. Mims is improving his place with a new yard fence; we also note many other improvements in our community, which denote prosperity. Success to you.

"NIM ROD."

COLLINS CHAPEL.

Editor Union:—Our people are doing nicely, they are done gathering and some have sowed wheat, as they say that they can't afford $6.00 flour. Isn't that a good idea? We've added a third room to our school school house and have a good school and teachers. I see Mr. Kilgore wants the people of this county to come together and organize a republican party. I don't believe that will do, brother. Look how the ticket ran before. The people won't go republican, although it is my choice of the two old parties. Best wishes to the Union.

J. D. COLLINS.

Tall Building is Opposed.

The proposition to build a twelve-story office building on the space now occupied by the fountain in the public square at Montgomery has aroused the women of the city, and they made a warm protest at a meeting of the council committee Saturday. There is almost general opposition to putting the building on this spot.

LOOK! LOOK! LOOK!

Misfit Suits made by the best tailors in the United States at a Cost of $15.00 to $25.00. These Suits Must be sold within ten days for $5.98.

First Brick Store West of R. R.

LIFE PRISONER ESCAPES

Recaptured After Hiding Beneath a Wharf Near Sing Sing.

Charles W. Johnson, Murderer of the Brooklyn, N. Y. Miser, Abbott, Attempts Escape From His Guards.

New York City.—Nearly starved and frozen to death, Charles W. Johnson, the life prisoner, who killed "Old Man" Abbott last summer, and escaped from the State Prison at Sing Sing, N. Y., was captured while clinging to a plank, his body half submerged in the water under a pier near the prison, while kepeers and detectives were scouring the country between Sing Sing and Brooklyn.

His sufferings were terrible, and when he was captured by strategy he was so weak from exposure that he could not stand and had to be carried to the prison hospital.

There the doctor said the man's condition would propably make the life term very short and carry him off with pneumonia.

Johnson was in such a terrible state that he could not answer any questions as to how he escaped, and even the replies that he made were in keeping with the general report that he is insane.

"He is the shrewdest insane man I ever saw," said the warden, "and as the song says, he is a wise old guy."

Johnson was caught late at night. Warden Johnson knew that as an ex-convict he would be familiar with prison signals. Warden Johnson, confident of the watchfulness of the guards, was satisfied that when Johnson disappeared he found a hiding place somewhere near. A close search failed to disclose the hiding place.

The outside guards had failed to find and those in the inside and towers had not seen Johnson clear the prison wall.

Warden Johnson gave instructions to the prison engineer to give the signals to call off the guards on the outside, believing that Johnson would understand them and make a break for liberty. The engineer sounded the whistle, but the guards kept their posts. Not so with Johnson.

Principal Keeper Connaungton was watching just outside the south wall, and about fifteen minutes after the calling in signal had been given a white body was seen climbing from the river to the pier near the end.

The figure of a man was clearly outlined in the electric light, and when he reached the freight platforms he fell forward on his face. Connaughton and the guards fell on him, but it was needless.

The man was Johnson. He was nearly frozen. He could not speak or move. He was nearly nude. Upon the top of his head was strapped a bundle containing his prison clothes and some underwear. Johnson was carried to the prison.

An examination of the hiding place of Johnson under the pier showed that the only way he could keep out of sight was to keep his body nearly submerged. With the temperature about at the freezing point, it is considered marvellous that the man kept alive for two days.

Warden Johnson said that Johnson had escaped from Elmira and had been shot in the leg by a keeper.

PUBLIC SALE

On December 15th 1904 at 10 A. M. I will sell to the highest bidder the following viz:

Household and Kitchen Furniture,
Farming Tools all new,
Mule 7 years old, weighs 1,000 lbs.
A 1 Horse Wagon and Harness,
Two good Milch Cows,
One brood Sow (Berkshire)
A Fine meat Hog,
100 bushels Corn,
1000 bundles Fodder,
150 bushels Cotton Seed,
One Yearling Calf,

At my place 2½ miles north of Cooper.

C. C. Mitchell.

Coming Events

A National Paper.

The News company of Joliet, Ill., proprietors of one of the largest and best printing plants in the state outside of Chicago, are publishing the Saturday News as a third edition of their paper. The Saturday News is devoted exclusively to the interests of the people's party and is national in scope. Each week it contains matters of interest regarding the progress of the party from all parts of the nation.

Being published at the headquarters of the party and the chairman of the national committee being president of the News company and one of the editors, it is peculiarly favorably located to give general news of the movement.

The People's party has long felt the need of a national paper and it is cause for congratulation that one has been started and by a concern that is so strong that its success is assured from the start while the names of such well known workers and writers as Hon. James H. Ferriss, Charles Q. De France, Jo A. Parker and R. E. Bray is a guarantee of its character and loyalty.

The regular subscription price of the Saturday News is 50 cents per year, but we have arranged with the publishers to furnish it and the Union, both papers one year for $1.25.

Call at our office and see a sample copy and take advantage of this offer. tf.

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's Second Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton county for the year 1904, and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Jemison, beat 2, Dec. 1-2, 1904.
Clanton, last 10 days in the year commencing December 20, 1904.

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

Notice No. 25720.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., November 4, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., Dec. 17, 1904, viz: Ansom M. Hudgens, Homestead entry No. 34625; for the Sw 1-4 of Nw 1-4, W 1-2 of Sw 1-4, Section 30, Tp. 21 n R 17 east.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Redding J. Holloway, of Verbena, Ala.; George E. Skinner, of Lightwood, Ala.; William Gaylor, of Lightwood, Ala.; James Glenn, of Mountain Creek, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
6t Register.

Personal Mention.

Premier Balfour's private income is $350,000 a year.

The Rev. William May, the oldest Methodist preacher in Kentucky, died recently.

Ewald Hering, of the German University at Prague, has just celebrated his seventieth birthday.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of

SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS. PAINTS OILS and GLASS.

We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.

CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

The Sak's Store
Birmingham, Alabama

READY-MADE Apparel for Men, Women and Children.
Our Mail Order Department is quick, efficient and serviceable.

Write for Catalogue

DRINK
CREAM of KENTUCKY
Whisky.
Sold only by
COLLINS BROS., Calera, Alabama.
Mail orders promptly filled.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.
—Is at The Head of The Procession.—
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,
COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.
W. I. MULLINS,
Clanton. Alabama

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,
Furniture and Rugs.
—SOLE AGENTS—
Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.
Catalogue for the asking.
1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA

DISPATCH PRINTING CO
Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.
County and Office Supplies a Specialty.
Ask for Estimates.
2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, AL

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Associati
of Alabama.
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
By the People and for the People.
Chilton County Branch
Organized February 3rd, 1900.
W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.
INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and C tents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.
Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.
Full particulars furnished upon application to
WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala

PAUL CALAME,
205 21st Street
Birmingham, Ala.
Practical Watchma and Optician
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly f

P. D. WILSON'S
Going out of Busine
Big Reduction in Prices of Everything for CASH O
Now is the Time to get GENUINE BARGAINS

Y OFFICIALS
Judson Strock.
W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rob
J. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
J. Watts Moore.
Ed Smitherman.

RTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS
CIRCUIT COURT.
Term—1st Monday in April.
Term—3rd Monday in July.
Term—1st Monday in Novem
T. Scott Sayre.
—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
E. D. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.
Term—2nd Monday in March
Term—2nd Monday in Septem
cellor—Hon. R. B. Kelley, An
ter—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan

COUNTY COURT.
Monday in each month.

OMMISSIONERS' COURT
Monday February,
1st Monday June, 2nd
2nd Monday
ber.

COUNTY OFFICERS
e of Probate—S. M. Adams
surer—Alex G. Dick
—J. M. Morgan
itor—J. O. Middleton
Assessor—A. C. Mims
Collector—T. J. Hubbard

OUNTY COMMISSIONERS.
t District—W. H. Conway.
nd District—Alex Glasscock.
d District—W. A. Green.
th District—R. C. Riggins.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.
J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.
W. R. Oliver, Calera

REPRESENTATIVE.
L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

UNTY CHURCHES
ers and clerks are cordially ask send the editor any news regard their churches which they would published. Also if there are any in these notices please send cor ns.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.
ine—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
n-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas
C. C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
okson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor;
W. Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
hany—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday.
Huett, clerk, Verbena.
nton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins,
e Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th
ay. V. J. Gragg, clerk.
ter Hill—Rev J. M. Gothard,
; J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
ord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd
ay. T. N. Parrish, clerk.
ins Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm
g. 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton,
nut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand,
; J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
nth—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd
ay. W. B. Jones, clerk.
s Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish,
unday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
inth—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st
ay. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
nan—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas
W. J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
neser—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas
R. H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
nson—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor;
. Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
erty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd
ay; W. M. Wood, clerk.
cedonia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd
ay. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
s Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas
M. Z. Barnes, clerk, British.
lberry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor;
Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
nt Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk,
nt Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong,
; D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
ple Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand.
; W. H. Wilson, clerk.
cedonia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd
ay; George Trawick, clerk.
Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas
J. W. Billingsley, clerk.
Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, nday; G. W. Hill, clerk.
Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd
y. Henry Smith, clerk.
rims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason,
I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
asant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom t Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
asant Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard,
; W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
asant Grove—Rev. G. W. Free pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk, lar Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, nday. J. J. McDowell clerk.
idence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt nday. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi idence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong
; Riley Robinson, clerk, Clan
m—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor; Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
ob—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd
y; W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
a—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun

Sak's Store

ngham, Alabama

READY-MADE Apparel for Men Women and Children.

Our Mail Order Department is quick efficient and serviceable.

for Catalogue

DRINK

CREAM of KENTUCKY Whisky.

Sold only by

INS BROS., Calera, Alabama.

Mail orders promptly filled.

THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.

— Is at The Head of The Procession. —

Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes FURNITURE,

FINE AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,

on. Alabama

M. Jacobs & Bros.,

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Vernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.

sue for the asking.

Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA

PATCH PRINTING CO

nk Book Makers and Lithographers.

nty and Office Supplies a Specialty.

timates.

Mor is Ave., BIRMINGHAM, AL

rs' Mutual Insurance Associati

of Alabama.

ARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

By the People and for the People.

Chilton County Branch

Organized February 3rd, 1900.

M. WILSON. President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

ES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and C and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind tning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Method of Insurance Known to Man.

early Cost r Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

culars furnished upon application to

WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Al

UL LAME,

st Street

ingham, Ala.

Practical Watchma and Optician

Eyes Correctly Fitted

Mail orders promptly f

D. WILSON'S

Going out of Busine

ction of for ing CASH

Now is the Time to get GENUINE BARGAINS

Y OFFICIALS

Judson Strock.
W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rob
I. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
J. Watts Moore.
Ed Smitherman.

TS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.

Term—1st Monday in April.
Term—3rd Monday in July.
Term—1st Monday in Novem

T. Scott Sayre.
F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
E. D. Deason, Clanton.

CHANCERY COURT.

Term—2nd Monday in March.
Term—2nd Monday in Septem

ellor—Hon. R. B. Kelley, An
ter—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan

COUNTY COURT.

Monday in each month.

OMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Monday February, 1st Monday
1st Monday June, 2nd Monday
nd Monday August, 1st Monday
ber.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

e of Probate—S. M. Adams
surer—Alex G. Dake.
iff—J. M. Morgan.
itor—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

OUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

District—W. H. Conway.
nd District—Alex Glasscock.
d District—W. A. Green.
th District—R. C. Riggins.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.

J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.

W. R. Oliver, Calera

REPRESENTATIVE.

L. H. Reynolds, Jemison.

UNTY CHURCHES

ers and clerks are cordially ask send the editor any news regard ir churches which they would ublished. Also if there are any in these notices please send cor s.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

ne—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor. Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville. -Salom—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas C. C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley. kson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher. hany—Rev. I. Rice, 1st Sunday. Huett, clerk, Verbena. ton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th . V. J. Gragg, clerk. er Hill—Rev J. M. Gothard, J. Samons, clerk, Jemison. ord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd . T. N. Parrish, clerk. s Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, nut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers. th—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd W. B. Jones, clerk. s Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, nday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk. th—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st M. F. Wagoner, clerk. an—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek. ester—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton. son—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Rodgers, clerk, Jemison. ty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd W. M. Wood, clerk. rdonia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd H. H. Armstrong, clerk. Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas Z. Barnes, clerk, British. berry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Veazey, clerk, Randolph. nt Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk, nt Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo. le Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, W. H. Wilson, clerk. donia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd George Trawick, clerk. Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas W. Billingsley, clerk. Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, nday; G. W. Hill, clerk. Hopo—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd Henry Smith, clerk. ems' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Fletcher. ant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk. ant Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison. ant Grove—Rev. G. W. Free pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk, ar Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, nday. J. J. McDowell clerk. idence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt nday. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi idence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong Riley Robinson, clerk, Clan —Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor; Robinson, clerk, Rushton. h—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd W. J. Billingsley, clerk. la—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun day. J. Deason, clerk, Adams.

Thorsby—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Robert Jones, clerk, Thorsby.

Union Grove—Rev. J. M. Thomas, pastor; R. S. Chandler, clerk, Jemison.

Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2d Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

Verbena—Rev. J. W. Partridge, 1st Sunday. T. J. Bland, clerk.

Valley Creek—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. W. Mitchell, clerk, Plantersville.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

Clanton Circuit, Rev. T. F. Davis, Pastor.

Thorsby—1st Sunday.
Walnut Grove—2nd Sunday, morning.
Unity—2nd Sunday, evening.
Shady Grove—3rd Sunday.
Mount Pisgah—4th Sunday, morning.
Enterprise—4th Sunday, evening.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Highland School House—Rev. M. F. Lett, 3rd Sunday and Saturday before. T. L. Adams, clerk.

Enterprise—Rev. M. F. Lett, 4th Sunday. T. F. Patterson, clerk.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN.

St. Olafs, Thorsby—Rev. H. Engh, pastor. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

Concordia, Thorsby—Rev. J. E. Hedberg. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2d Sunday. Song service every 2d and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

MASONIC.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday, Clanton.

Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 250—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 423—First Saturday, Clanton.

Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 567—First Saturday Billingsley.

Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.

Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 411—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.

Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 473—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.

Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

of the

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE CO.

Of Toronto, Canada.

1st January, 1904.

UNITED STATES BRANCH.

Assets.

Government bonds	$223,650.00
State and municipal bonds	511,473.19
Cash on hand and deposit	169,720.71
Stocks and bonds	305,793.00
Premiums in course of col.	204,834.79
Interest due and accrued.	11,833.20
	$1,427,304.89

Liabilities.

Reserve premium fund (N. Y. Standard)	$849,771.77
Reserve for unpaid losses	100,786.14
	$950,557.91
Surplus in United States	$476,746.98
Total income in United States for 1903	$1,547,736.84
Total losses paid in U. S. from 1874 to 1903, inclusive	$14,674,843.26

WALLACE C. EDLER, Agent, Clanton, Alabama.

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 acres within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is timbered, 1 set mill-rocks, 48 inch, 1 Horse, weight 1100 lbs. Alfred Popwell, Clanton, Ala.

NOTICE.

All persons owing me are hereby notified to call and settle their accounts at once, as I am going out of business and must close up all accounts, notes etc. without delay.

Respectfully
P D Wilson.

tf

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to Nov. 30, '04, 5,619
Price on same date, 8 5-8c.
Total receipts same week, '03, 5,728.
Price same date, 11c.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

J. B. Barber and one of his charming daughters were in Clanton one day last week taking advantage of the low prices of goods at P. D. Wilson's.

J. N. and Ben Downs, near Beth-Salem, lost a house, 7 bales of cotton and a lot of roughage by fire on Friday, Nov. 18th. Their loss is about $600 without a cent of insurance.

A. M. Whitworth was in Clanton Thursday.

W. T. House was in town Thursday.

Wes Mims and wife were in Clanton Thursday.

E. B. Popwell was a pleasant visitor Thursday.

Wiley Littlejohn spent Friday at Birmingham.

John W. Baker and Jans Baker were in Clanton Saturday.

W. J. Dennis and wife were pleasant visitors Saturday, paying for THE UNION and Home and Farm for next year. Mr. Dennis has rented the old Peter Barrett place near Thorsby for the coming year.

M. P. Rawlinson, of Coosa county, was in Clanton Saturday.

M. F. Lett was a pleasant visitor Monday.

Lee Vickers left Monday on a visit to relatives and friends in Tallapoosa county. He intends being away a week or so. We hope he will have an enjoyable time, but Chilton can't spare him long. Men of his firmness and straightgoing way are none to plenty.

C. C. Mitchell was in Clanton Monday. Says he is going to Louisiana to live. We are sorry to lose him. See the advertisement of his sale on December 15th in this paper.

W. R. King was a pleasant visitor Monday. He and family will move to Weogufka this week. Good luck be with them, though we are sorry to lose them.

Squire J. J. McDonald was in town Monday. He has his new commission and is now ready to tie the matrimonial knot. Go and see him.

W. H. Robinson and family were in Clanton Monday taking advantage of the bargains offered here.

Henry Carter, who was arrested a short time ago, had his trial before the county court Saturday and was acquitted.

B. E. Collum and C. C. Bowles were in Clanton Monday.

R. J. Williams was in town Monday.

Deputy Sheriff R. H. Bean made several arrests the past week, all making bond for future appearance.

E. A. Knight was in Clanton Monday.

J. B. Downs is back in the old stand selling dry goods at a bargain. John M. Robinson is in with him. Mr. Downs offers some fine real estate for sale. See his ad.

G. A. Keen was a pleasant visitor Tuesday, bringing in subscriptions for THE UNION and Yellow Jacket. Come again, Bro. Keen.

Get on to the Misfit Clothing "ad." in this issue of THE UNION.

Dudley Collins and little son, Gladstone, were in Clanton Tuesday.

Mrs. L. H. Reynolds was in Clanton Tuesday looking at the various houses that have been offered Judge Reynolds. The Reynolds family will be an acquisition for our town.

R. A. Miller was in town Tuesday.

M. A. Kilgore was in Clanton this week.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

L. M. Stevens and Miss Cuba Jones.
W. B. Giles and Miss Bessie Fisher.
W. G. Mims and Miss Lula Miller.
W. A. Moore and Miss Eula Gentry.
P. M. Scott and Miss Alice Watson.
J. C. Henley and Mrs. M. C. Chasteen.
J. M. Mims and Miss Laura Ann Victoria Dykes.

COLORED.

Frank Lewis and Floretta Hubbard.
Sumner Bugg and Ella Zimmerman.

THORSLEY, ALA.

Editor Union:—I wish to say a few words through your paper to the people of Chilton county. While I was defeated for treasurer by 15 votes, I feel very thankful to the people that supported me. I'm not the man to lay still because I was defeated. I shall continue to work for the interest of my party and will say now that I am ready at any time when called upon by our party, to do everything I can for the interest and upbuilding of our party. I beleive if only the qualified votes had been counted, I'd have been elected, or if only qualified electors had been allowed to vote I'd have been elected: but I don't care to go into a contest for the office. Again thanking the people that supported me, I'll be found loyal to my party. Yours truly.

J. BICE.

PROPERTY FOR SALE.

The prettiest house in Clanton, 8 rooms with two acres of ground enclosed by fancy wire fence.

One brick store house.

Two frame houses, three rooms each, new, near depot.

All pay a handsome income.

Bargains, see me at once.

tf. J. B. DOWNS.

COTTON CONVENTION.

Governors of the Cotton States Will Each Appoint One Hundred Delegates.

Shreveport—In order to systematically defend the cotton crop and the industries dependent upon it, a national cotton convention has been called to meet in Shreveport, December 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th, 1904. The governors of the cotton states are each appointing one hundred delegates. The various cotton exchanges and associations throughout the country have been asked to send representatives, and no pains will be spared to make this national cotton convention a medium through which a definite campaign against the weevil will be organized, and the nation's greatest crop protected.

The weevil has this past season spread by natural migration, as much as 50 miles north and east into previously uninfested territory, and in a few years will, if unchecked, extend its invasions to the northern and eastern limits of the cotton belt. To delay an intelligent and united action against the foe, will mean financial embarrassment to the cotton farmers and to the industries they support.

World's Visible Supply of Cotton.

New Orleans—Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton, made up from special cable and telegraphic advices, compares the figures of this week with last week, last year and the year before.

It shows an increase for the week just closed of 215,896, against an increase of 156,063 last year and an increase of 78,490 year before last.

The total visible is 3,874,078, against 3,658,182 last week, 3,342,996 last year and 3,259,754 year before last.

Of this the total of American cotton is 3,326,078, against 3,129,182 last week, 2,847,996 last year and 2,780,754 year before last and of all other kinds including Egypt, Brazil, India, etc., 548,000, against 529,000 last week, 495,000 last year and 479,000 year before last.

The total world's visible supply of cotton, as above, shows an increase compared with last week of 215,896 an increase compared with last year of 531,082, and an increase compared with year before last of 614,324.

Of the world's visible supply of cotton, as above, there is now afloat and held in Great Britain and continental Europe 1,892,000, against 1,687,000 last year and 1,420,000 year before last; in Egypt 149,000, against 150,000 last year and 152,000 year before last; in India 187,000, against 130,000 last year and 138,000 year before last, and in the United States 1,646,000, against 1,376,000 last year and 1,550,000 year before last.

West Point Defeats Navy.

The Annapolis eleven failed to score in the gridiron battle held in this city Saturday, West Point winning by a score of 11 to 0.

An immense crowd witnessed the game. This was the last big game of the season.

From the standpoint of foreign exchange the cotton crop is much the most important crop raised in this country. Notwithstanding the large increase in the consumption of cotton in the United States—the cotton spindles in this country having increased from 19,008,000 to over, 22,300,000 in the last three years—close to 65 per cent of the cotton crop raised in this country every year is exported. The average annual percentage of the domestic product exported from 1879 to 1883 was over 67 per cent. The average amount exported from 1899 to 1903 was 64.53 per cent. These figures show that while the consumption of cotton in the United States is rapidly increasing, the largest part of the crop is still exported.

The value of our cotton exports is very much greater than the wheat and corn exports. The agricultural department estimated that of the 670,000,000 bushel wheat crop of 1902 there was exported 202,900,000 bushels. Even at 90 cents a bushel—a higher price than was received—the total value of the wheat exports in 1902 was only $182,000,000. The wheat exports in 1903 were very much smaller. Should the cotton crop prove to be larger than 11,000,000 bales, or the price average more than 10 cents a pound, the value of the cotton exports will be correspondingly larger. It is perfectly safe to say that the value of the cotton exports this year will amount to something like 2 1-2 times as much as the value of the wheat exports.

The decline in the foreign exchange market which occurs regularly every fall, and the imports of gold from Europe which are almost always made at that season of the year, is largely due to the enormous amount of cotton bills which come into the market during September, October and November. During these three months last year something like $300,000,000 of cotton bills came into the market.

Grand Duke Has Escape.

According to a special cable dispatch from Naples, the Grand Duke Cyril had a narrow escape while journeying by rail to that city, a rock becoming detached from a mountain and striking the side of his car.

Threaten Milk Adulterers.

Judges of the Court of Special Sessions, in New York City, announced that any one convicted twice of adulterating milk would be sent to prison.

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

Louisville & Nashville R. R.

CENTRAL TIME.

Read Down AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3	DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2	Read Up PM No 10
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7 45
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6 22
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58	....	5 59
7 19	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....	5 53
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42	....	5 40
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5 32
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17	....	5 17
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 11	....	5 11
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5 04
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4 00

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
For rates and further information address

A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

A Great Combination Offer

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival as a

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth, you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, both for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.

SHOES that are Reliable.

SHOES made to Wear.

NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed

Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building Clanton, Alabama

Gelder's Restaurant,

Good Meals at Reasonable Prices.

110 North 20th Street,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

Pure Water Prevents Fevers.

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER

We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address

I. E. SARBER CO.
Thorsby, Alabama.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Brand

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alabama.

It Pays, An Ad In This Paper

FARM AND GARDEN

SOWING GRAIN IN STANDING CORN.

It is conceded by most farmers, that a crop of grain sown in standing corn is never as good as that taken from fallow ground; if often happens, however, that the farmer is so situated that he cannot cut up all his corn, but still wishes to seed all the land. What then is the best way to proceed with wheat or rye? In the first place it is much cheaper getting in a crop on such ground than the summer plowing and preparing of fallow; good wheat raisers tell us that land for wheat should be sowed and worked down several weeks before sowing time. Now this is exactly the condition of corn land, broken in the spring, cultivated during the season, and then left in plenty of time to settle and become fine by September 15 or 20—giving us then an ideal seed bed encumbered only by the standing corn. To get the grain in properly the farmer must have a good one-horse drill either five or six hand with a fertilizer attachment. Have a strong, steady horse and give him his time, put a muzzle on him to save wasting corn and use a short single-tree; it will help in turning, if the outside row of corn is cut at ends of fields. With a good horse, a careful man will do good work and sow from five to six acres per day. The drill is arranged so it can be widened or closed to suit the width of rows; if corn is down or leaning, it will require an extra hand to go ahead and turn it. By using care and having a slow horse, the drill can be run very close to corn thus avoiding vacant strips of land. Of course farmers differ in their methods of work; some say you can never count on a good yield of wheat on corn ground. But I have raised 23 bushels per acre in standing corn and maintain that if it is not the best way to grow wheat it is often a very convenient way and so much cheaper, that one can afford to take a little less per acre. It is often objected that the corn rows will make very rough bottom if land is seeded down to meadow, but I find by actual experience that if the corn receives level cultivation at it should, if the last plowing is shallow, and in cutting meadow the mower is run with the old corn rows, you will find very little trouble. Again I think the stalks are a protection to grain in winter, for after being pastured by cattle they are broken down, make a covering, hold the snows and finally decay on the land. I used to know a farmer who had creek bottom fields planted in corn each year; he always sowed rye in his standing corn early in the fall, by which he kept his fields covered, got a lot of pasture when the ground was so he could turn in, and had a valuable coat of green manure to turn under in the spring for the next crop and mellow the effects of the rye roots. In sowing grain in standing corn, I would prefer that the corn be planted north and south so that the drill rows of grain may stand fairly to the sun and receive its effects equally on both sides. If the corn stands well, so it can be readily done, a one-horse drag or an old machine wheel drawn through the middles ahead of drill will smooth down any chance clods, level up the ground and insure the drill covering the seed to a uniform depth. As to amount of clean seed, kind and quantity of fertilizer per acre, I leave that to the intelligent decision of each farmer.—A. B. Milligan, in the Epitomist.

GROWING CLOVER.

The growing of clover has so important place in dairy husbandry that we reproduce the following in this department from A. M. TenEyck in Kansas Farmer:

"It is usual to sow about ten to fifteen pounds of common red clover per acre, while five to eight pounds of the alsike clover per acre is sufficient.

"Clover should be sown early in the spring on a well-prepared seed-bed. The ground should be mellow at the surface but not loosened too deeply; rather, the subsurface should be firm (not hard). A good seed-bed for clover may be prepared by disking and harrowing corn-stubble, or on early fall-plowed ground. As a rule, it is not best to spring-plow land for seeding clover, alfalfa or any grass seed. Ground freshly plowed is apt to be too loose and mellow, and in case the weather remains dry the seed will start poorly and the young plants may be destroyed by drouth. Clover may be sown broadcast and harrowed in. The seed-bed should be fully prepared before seeding and one harrowing after the seeding is sufficient to cover the seed. It may be safer in the average season to put the clover in with the drill. It will be necessary to have a grass-seeder attachment on the ordinary grain-drill in order to sow clover. An attachment in which the tubes from the grass seeder box join the spouts from the grain-box in order that the seed may be sown in the drill furrows is one of the best kind of implements to use for seeding clover.

"Usually at this station we have had good success in sowing broadcast and this is the simplest method of seeding. The clover may be seeded clover has made some start it is able to withstand considerable drouth and adverse weather conditions.

"At this station we have the best success in getting a stand of clover in seeding alone without a nurse crop. In a favorable season, however, it is possible to get a stand of clover by seeding with some early spring grain. Also I have known of instances where clover was seeded in the wheat early in the spring and harrowed in. The cultivation as a rule does not injure the wheat and in a favorable season it is possible to get a catch in this way. In case clover is seeded with early spring grain the clover should be seeded after the cultivation is finished and the grain is sown, and then harrowed in lightly, once harrowing after seeding being sufficient to cover the seed. When grain is used as a nurse-crop it is best to sow the grain thinner than is the usual practice when grain is grown alone."

by hand or a handy implement for seeding broadcast is the little wheelbarrow seeder. It is possible, also, to sow clover-seed with an ordinary grain-drill by mixing the seed with ground feed, bran, ashes, etc., in proper proportions so as to sow the required amount of clover-seed per acre. Care should be taken in seeding with the drill not to plant the seed too deep. In the early spring the seed should not be covered with more than an inch or so of mellow soil. There is some danger of clover being killed by hard frosts in the spring when it is sown too early, and it may be safer to prepare the seed-bed and sow when the danger from hard frosts is past, choosing a time for seeding when it will sprout and grow at once. As a rule, however, I prefer early spring seeding; as the season advances and the weather gets hot, the young plants are apt to be burned off by a few days of hot weather, whereas if the

COST OF A YEARLING CALF.

The market value of a cow raised on the farm does not represent the whole profit of the operation. The home-raised cow, if properly cared for, is likely to give better satisfaction than one which has come out by chance and which has been sold by its owner for some good reason; but I reckon that calf raising is also a fairly good money-making operation. I estimate the value of the young calf fit to raise at $4, milk for ten days $2.50, oil meal and other grains, $2.50, hay $1.25, grass six to eight months $7.50 calf meal for four months $3, labor $1.25, total about $25, bringing the calf to a year of age, at which time, if she is of the proper stock, the value should be about $30, leaving a clear margin of about $5 profit.

My calves are weaned at four months old, having used up to that time about $4 worth of milk. Some calves would, of course, be worth more at twelve months old, but none of proper stock and breeding should be worth less than the amount I have stated.

Calf raising gives no more trouble and costs no more than production of other farm specialties. It requires, say four months, careful attention on the part of somebody, but the final results repay all the bother attending the early stages.—L. W. C. in the Massachusetts Ploughman.

HANDLING COARSE FODDER.

Each and every farmer should have a good feed cutter for silo filling and for chaffing feed. By running all corn stalks through the machine, they give better returns when fed, and the coarser portions left uneaten are in good form for bedding and the manure heap. Long corn stalks are a nuisance in the feeding manger, worthless for bedding, and troublesome in the manure pile. Difficulty is found in a few cases in feeding cut corn-stalks as the cows refuse to eat them. In many cases the sharp ends of the cornstalks, when cut certain lengths, injure the mouth of the cows. Where they are not well eaten the cause is often due to overfeeding, or endeavoring to have the cow live on too limited a variety of foods. By keeping the mangers clean and feeding the cut fodder with care, very little will be left over, and that only the coarsest part. Where different varieties of corn are raised more of the cut stalks are eaten than if fed uncut under the same conditions. Less waste is found in feeding cut fodder as the animals eat the butts readily, but reject them when fed without being cut. All stock relish it when they become used to it, as well as hay or other chopped foods.—Otto Irwin in the Epitomist.

SELLING LATE CHICKS.

Late-hatched chicks are sold whenever they reach five pounds per pair. The main point in their management is to keep them growing. They must be fed separately from the adults, and should not be crowded, or they will not grow. The best food is buckwheat in the morning. If buckwheat is not obtainable, use whole wheat. Do not feed too much in the morning, but let them seek their food on the range. At night give them a mess of cut meat and bone, with a second ration of wheat, and if they are kept free from lice they will thrive and grow rapidly.

COUNTERFEITERS FAIL.

ALWAYS MAKE ERRORS THAT ARE EASY TO DETECT.

Every Fraudulent Bill Bears Evidence That the Cleverest of Counterfeiters Is not a Good Mechanic—The Habitual Criminal is Never Thorough.

A new $100 counterfeit bill has been found in circulation at the Delmar race track. It is described as "wonderfully like the genuine," but in some respects crude and defective. This drawback is so perfectly characteristic of counterfeits in general as to suggest some reflections. One who finds pleasure or profit in speculating upon the reasons for things might employ a little time to advantage in considering why it is that the makers of counterfeit bills always fail in some important detail to imitate correctly what they seek to reproduce.

The making of a counterfeit which will deceive the least wary is a work of great labor and one which calls for high skill. The average of the work needs to be fully up to the standard of the original, which means that the engraver must be nearly if not quite as skillful as the men employed in the making of plates for good notes. He does not have to originate anything. Every detail has been carefully worked out for his guidance, and all that devolves upon him is to imitate what he is copying. That he can do this in most respects shows that he is equal to doing it in all respects. Why is it, then, that no counterfeiter has yet succeeded in making a bill which in some important and easily recognized detail is not so different can detect it as soon as he submits it to crucial examination?

from the one imitated that the expert.

The answer is probably that men willing to employ their skill in criminal practices are temperamentally incapable of thoroughness. It would seem as if the financial backers of counterfeiting enterprises, in view of risks involved, would be critical of the work on the plates they are asked to approve and pay for. So far as the records show, however, the undetectable counterfeit bill has never been made. Probably it never will be. This must be explained on the assumption that counterfeiters, like other criminals, are clever only up to a certain point. They resent the requirement of patient industry. With this they can make honest and safe livings, and if the conditions of earning the dishonest dollar are the same as those of earning the honest dollar the former loses its attractions. The remarkable skill of the counterfeiter is shown in his ability to do part of his work so well that it is as good as that which he imitates, and sometimes better. The qualities which make him a criminal appear in his willingness to be careless with other parts, which stamp the whole with the proof of fraud. Whoever will take a counterfeit bill and compare it with an original of the issue imitated will have no difficulty in discovering the occasional slip of the burin, the occasional evidence of carelessness in drawing, of willingness to pass as "good enough" what is not good enough, or recklessness and indifference which show that the cleverest of counterfeiters is not a good mechanic.

The normal man can not understand carelessness of this sort, especially in matters which render futile the labor of months or years in the engraving of counterfeit plates and make detection as easy as it is inevitable. The conclusion would seem to be irresistable that the counterfeiter is born, not made, and that those who deliberately elect to follow crime for gain do so in obedience to a natural instinct, the result of a mental warp which unfits them for the self-restraint and patient industry of an honest career. Criminals often show evidence of astonishing cleverness, and it seems to the average man that their talents, if employed in honest labor, would make them conspicuously successful. The error of this assumption is that in any monotonous and reputable employment the man thus gifted could not, or would not, employ his talent, which is not of the kind which qualifies for honorable success. The police tell us that the habitual criminal is never thorough.—New York Times.

MAKING PETS OF HORNETS.

If Gently Handled, They Become Docile as Butterflies.

The female hornet has a rapid fire armament with a recoverable projectile. It likes it for both attack and defence, and with remarkable aim and efficiency. The first stroke of a hornet is as penetrating as an electric shock. At the base of its sharp sting there is a sack containing poison, which, when injected into the substance of its enemy, causes pain, swelling and discomfort—facts to which most persons are able to testify by experience. Should the injection be upon the end of the thumb or nose, or upon the tongue, there is danger from it. Strong ammonia applied to the wound is the best antidote. Yet the hornet, when treated politely and with gentle ceremony, is as docile as a butterfly.

In the mountains of West Virginia I had a wire fly-trap which, by the seductive influence of molasses, persuaded the house flies infesting my stave built office to enter. Once within it, they remained incarcerated until hot water cured. For several days a very persistent black and white striped hornet amused me by its futile endeavors to seize flies from the buzzing horde of prisoners. At last it found its way in, and, to my astonishment, after capturing a fly found its way out. It had remembered the way of its entrance even in the excitement of the chase. It did not paralyze its prey, as does the mud wasp, and other species. It did not stop to eat a single fly, so far as my observation extended. It had a victualling job on hand, and attended faithfully to it. Such unselfishness excited admiration.

During one of its absences I placed my hand over the trap entrance, and upon it laid a piece of ripe peach. Upon the hornet's return it lit on my hand and ran confusedly over it, yet soon tried to get under the covering fingers. Failing, it went to the peach and took a hearty meal. While it was eating I quietly moved my hand from the opening. After preening itself the hornet entered and continued its fly raid.

After many dozens of trips it brought a comrade with it, and personally conducted it into the fly pound. Thereafter they always worked together. To be sure of this, by slow approaches of an affectionate finger I was enabled to stroke them while lunching. I marked them both with a spot of red ink. Many continued experiences convinced me that hornets work in pairs, like detectives. Several other hornets from the same nest visited the cage, tried to enter it, but found the problem too much for them. In no instance did the pair offer these instruction or pay any attention to them. They all partook of my luncheons freely and in harmony, but the favored pair guarded their secret. Were they selfish? Did they receive special plaudits at the home nest for their phenomenal success in fly capture? Or were they simply governed by hornet manners?

I grew fond of these winged warriors. I introduced them to my several fingers, by placing tempting sweets upon them. They learned to come to me after they had emptied the trap of prisoners, and gradually became very companionable.

Following the direction of their home flight, and noting the range of trees, their nest was easily found. It hung on the end of a branch of mountain rhododendron. The glossy, green leaves overhanging it were undisturbed in their position, but were so built into the outer layer of papier-mache covering as to give the nest natural concealment. Whether this was intentional or not, or whether the leaves simply became an obstruction as the nest was increased in size by dismantling the inside and building upon the outside, I do not know, but the evidence was in favor of engineering, reason, intention, rather than accident. Hornets were the first users of wood pulp for paper manufacture. They make it from wood and leaf fibre, and there are both forethought and economy in tearing out the insides of their nest to make room for larger tiers of cells in which to raise their young, and in using the material to enlarge the nursery.—The Farm and Fireside.

"Yankee Trick" in Paris.

The "confidence trick" is known here as the "vol a l'Americaine," and when a Frenchman is the victim, the transatlantic republic is anathematized for introducing it to France. Yesterday, however, Parisians had the laugh on their side when they read the report of a case in which an American, named Somber, from Boston city, had suffered at the hands of three English exponents of the trick. The American put up at a first class hotel near the Gare Saint-Lazare, and there, over the dinner table, made the acquaintance of three young men, who told him they were university "undergrads" over for a holiday. Cards were exchanged, and in the evening they all went out to "see the sights" and afterwards sat down in a well known cafe, where they soon became very confidential. They had visited a music hall during the evening, and had there admired the dexterity of a conjurer with a hat. One of the Englishmen said he could do a trick or two, and jokingly suggested that each should put all his money into the hat, he beginning with £600 in notes. The others followed suit, the American parting with £540, and the "conjurer" rose and walked rapidly out. A minute later another of the "undergrads" said, "He's a long time gone with our money," and went to the door, whence he returned, saying he thought they had been robbed. The three decided to go to the police station, but on the way there the remaining two Englishmen found pretexts for disappearing, and the American was left alone to mourn his lack of "cuteness," and to make up his mind to be more careful in future.—London Globe.

The Koreans' White Dress.

As the Koreans are obliged to dress in white for three years for every case of death and as once three kinds died within ten years, by which deaths mourning was imposed on the whole nation, the majority of people chose rather to dress continually in white in order to avoid the great expense involved by repeated change of clothing. The women make these garments, and every time they have been washed they are entirely taken to pieces and beaten for hours with a wooden paddle in order to obtain the metallic gloss which is considered particularly beautiful.

Small ties of hand-embroidered handkerchief linen complete the French turnovers of that fabric.

Yokes of all shapes are very popular, even in the shirtwaists.

Many of the rural letter carriers in the Tyrol are women.

WOMAN'S WORLD

SOME SMART FROCKS.

Exquisite gowns for home wear, or for "way down South," are already being shown in the shops. One is of pastelmauve crepe de chine, the fullness drawn into curved gaugings below the waist, has the lower part of the skirt looped up at intervals under medallions of cream lace, the bodice much swathed, but the folds in front falling soft and loose, little bows of pansy colored velvet studding the lace vest, the small shoulder collar of tucked chiffon trimmed with lace and velvet, the full elbow sleeves of lace. A very pretty gown is of ecru silk batiste, the full skirt trimmed with quillings of the material, and the bodice, drawn into a deep-pointed belt of eau de Nil silk, has a wide pointed collar of ecru broderie Anglaise, a cascade of little green bows half way down the front.

A dinner gown for a young girl is of a new net pattern with oblong rings, the skirt pleated into the waist, the hem simply feather-stitched, but on the lower part of the satin underskirt are insertions of lace and soft ruchings of chiffon. Lace also trims the full bodice with its sash of white and lily-leaf green chiffon to accord with the spray of lilies of the valley on the berthe.

A Watteau fancy dress is lovely, the petticoat of pink moire with a band of velvet at the hem, the white moire brocaded sacque patterned with dainty little baskets of flowers, fitting the figure at the sides, with lace prettily draped around the open neck with tufts of daisies.

An evening gown is of magnificent heliotrope brocade, the pointed bodice tightly swathed, and outlining the low neck in a garniture of guipure inlet with chine silk; soft gaugings of pale yellow tulle are held in place by straps of heliotrope velvet, a little basque of tulle threaded with chenille at the back only.

In Paris just now all the best dressed Frenchwomen are ordering the plainest, neatest coats and skirts imaginable, and one or two importers here are making a specialty this year of severely tailor made coats and skirts, depending entirely for their style on the perfection of the cut and fit, which have taken the fancy of the Parisian mondaines for country and morning wear. They are made in any tweed or serge preferred, but the newest material is a fine herring bone cheviot; it is made in various colors, such as dark Oxford gray, dark blue, green, red, purple, light gray, and, of course, black. One costume has an all-round simple but extremely well cut skirt; the coat, more like a habit, is a long three-quarter coat, single breasted and tight fitting, with coat sleeves, and the velvet collar is either plain or of velvet prettily embroidered in chenille and silks and a touch of gold thread. They give a distinctive note, these little French embroidered velvet collars, and are very smart.

In another costume the skirt is slightly different, the long three-quarter fitting coat partly double-breasted—that is, buttoning over diagonally in front—the back like a man's morning coat, and in yet another style the skirt is long, the coat has a tight-fitting back, and fronts semi-fitting with pockets at each side. This coat, though simple, is very smart. A capital little Norfolk costume is in herring-bone tweed.

For auto wear there is a splendidly warm coat and skirt of golden-brown corduroy velvet piped with green velvet.—New York Globe.

CHILDREN'S LIES.

Should a child be punished for lying? How?

This question was recently brought home to me directly by an experience with my own ten-year-old boy. He had been ill upon the sofa, and in an absent-minded way had traced some crude drawings, evidently illustrating the story of Hiawatha, upon the calcimining on the wall. I called him to me and said, "Stuart, did you do that?" Having positive circumstantial evidence I felt confident of a humble affirmative answer. But, no. He looked me straight in the eye and said, "No, sir." I concealed my astonishment as best I could and said: "I always believe you, my boy. I will believe you now. If the whole world would line up and say that Stuart Krohn did make those pictures on the wall I would not believe them, but believe you." He wavered a little and said, with the air of a witness before the grand jury, "Well, anyway I don't remember anything about it." To this I replied, "I think I can also trust your memory," and went to my office, not returning until late at night, after he had retired. The next morning at break of day he was up engaged at the writing desk with pen, ink and paper. He would not tell anyone what he was doing nor would he leave his task until completed. When I went into my den an hour or so after breakfast I found a note on my desk, written in the formal school-boy style, and addressed in sealed envelope to "Mr. William O. Krohn." On opening it I found the following:

"Chicago, Ill., March 11, 1900.

"Dear Sir:—I am willing to confess that I scratched those pictures on the wall. I also am willing to take consequences.

"With haste,

"STUART KROHN."

Dear reader, can you wonder that I hold this letter sacred? Can you wonder that I highly prize its manliness? This letter is to me more precious than much fine gold. Punishment? Was I weak in thinking he had been punished enough by his twenty hours' consciousness of guilt? Was I too weak to put my arm around him and say, "My boy I know all the time, and I could depend upon you."—W. O. Krohn, in Child Study Monthly.

A NOBLE WOMAN.

The recent death of Miss Mary Postler, of the Oregon Home for Incurables, removes a striking figure from the ranks of the world's women workers. Born 44 years ago, in a humble little parsonage, the Russian-German preacher, showed as a girl very noteworthy talents in the literary line. She contributed freely to journals and magazines, and began to acquire a reputation. She determined to devote her life to the moral, immediate and practical needs of a suffering world. Having conceived a strange affection for China and the Chinese, the people, their customs, their religion and their literature, she removed to Hongkong, where she established a mission school for Chinese girls. She began with 10, but when, after eight years of hard and unremitting work, she left for vacation to her native land, she had so far advanced the interests of the school that it possessed a building of its own and numbered 40 pupils. The drain upon her time and energies was severe, and she gladly sacrificed the work her fine talent for which. As if by instinct, she returned to her native German city this year, and after a lingering illness, caused by overwork, she died. Her last work was entitled "A Chinese New Year Flower," which she sent to her publishers in 1903. Her last words were reported to be: "Remember me kindly to all, and say to them: 'I was happy in my life and I die peacefully.'"

THE CHAPERON IN THE WEST.

All unmarried females of means in position are chaperoned here. Age doesn't matter. There are spinsters—that's enough. No tender miss of thirteen goes unattended in Cafe Reno. No single woman of any age goes to the theatre alone with a man, and for "buggy riding," the custom is unknown. No girl goes to a restaurant for lunch with a youth she has known from the cradle. It would not be correct, and it would not be entirely correct, either, for her to get a latch girl. No; she must have the chaperon—the tried and seasoned veteran of matrimony—or else the proprieties will be split up the back.

The ardor with which the custom of the chaperon has been taken up in the West should make the thoughtful pause. At the rate we're going we'll soon be where they are in France, and it will be hopelessly unpromising for any of us to walk two blocks on the public street with one of our acquaintance. Geraldine Bonner in San Francisco Argonaut.

A QUEEN OF EMBROIDERY.

Mrs. Hoessel, whose remarkable embroideries are being shown at the London Society of Artists, although brought up in Germany and married with a German, is an Englishwoman by birth, clever and industrious, of gracious manner and personality. In Berlin she has already exhibited with great success. The German Prince, in whose love affair the Kaiser is now so much interested, has bought some of Mrs. Hoessel's embroidered cushions and clothes. The embroideries include fanciful subjects, such as "A Midsummer Night's Dream," panels representing the seasons, and pictures of sea, sky, sun and moon.

WOMEN'S REVERSIBLE GLOVE.

A new idea in women's fabric gloves just placed on the market has a wrist side made of taffeta, while the hand is of Suede finish, each having the embroidery. The clasps are placed on both sides. Thus two pairs are practically provided at nominal expense.

In addition to dual service, the wearer is supplied with a ready choice, at the same time being furnished an opportunity obviating the necessity of reversing her handwear after "putting it off. Again, an extra advantage is available in that elimination of turning the glove fingers into place after wearing proves harmless.—New York Globe.

FASHION HINTS.

Have a velvet gown for high occasions.

It takes almost a whole dress pattern to fashion a pair of the new sleeves.

Many of the resurrected styles are copied from masculine rather than feminine dress.

Double-width crepe de chine is a boon to the tailor and dressmaker.

The sectional skirt is the simplest and easiest solution of present problems.

GOOD POTATOES BRING FANCY PRICES

To grow a large crop of good potatoes, the soil must contain plenty of Potash. Potatoes, tomatoes, cabbage, turnips, lettuce, beets, all vegetables remove large quantities of Potash from the soil. Supply

Potash

Made by the use of fertilizers containing from 8 to 10 per cent. actual Potash. Larger and more profitable yields. Send for pamphlets and our special low rates. Also for valuable information on fertilizers. Write now.

GERMAN KALI WORKS
New York—Nassau Street, or Atlanta—Empire Building.

Prodora Cotton.
LEADING VARIETY ON EARTH.

Write Quick for a Big Bargain
Better advertise the South's Leading Business College, four scholarships are offered young persons of this county at less than WRITE TODAY
M.A. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

AN ENTIRE MEDICINE CHEST
SLOAN'S LINIMENT
QUICKLY RELIEVES PAINS AND ACHES
Kills Germs
FOR MAN OR BEAST
EARL S. SLOAN, 615 ALBANY ST., BOSTON, MASS.

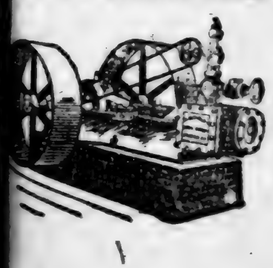
BAD BREATH
For months I had great trouble with my stomach and used all kinds of medicines. My tongue was actually as green as grass, my breath having a bad odor. Two weeks ago a friend recommended Cascarets and after using them I can without hesitancy say that they have entirely cured me. I have no pain left and know that I shall recommend them to any one suffering from such troubles.—E. R. Kalpus, 109 Rivington St., New York, N.Y.
Best For The Bowels
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC
THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP
Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablets stamped C.C.C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back.
Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y. 508
ANNUAL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

Planters on Earth
Planter's Planters and Distributors
WE GUARANTEE THEM.
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.
Write for Prices and Catalogue.
PLANTERS MFG. CO., Macon, Ga.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B, Atlanta, Ga.

Bryant-Stratton
Business, Shorthand and Typewriting College, Louisville, Ky. Open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

Am. 49, 1904.
If afflicted with weak eyes, use
Thompson's Eye Water.

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS


High Prices
Morison
High Grade
Tanks, Stills
Heavy
Address

E SMART FROCKS.

owns for home wear, or down South," are already n in the shops. One is of o crepe de chine, the full- n into curved gaugings be ast, has the lower part of oped up at intervals under of cream lace, the bodice ched, but the folds in front l and loose, little bows of ed velvet studding the lace all shoulder collar of tuck- trimmed with lace and vel ull elbow sleeves of lace. etty gown is of ecru silk e full skirt trimmed with f the material, and the bo- n into a deep pointed belt silk, has a wide pointed to broderie Anglaise, a case moves a striking figure from the of the world's women. Born 44 ago, in a humble little parsona the Russian-German frontier, showed as a girl very noteworth ents in the literary line. She tributed freely to journals and zines, and began to acquire a reputation. She determined, how to devote her life to the more p date and practical needs of a ng world. Having conceive strange affection for China an Chinese, the people, their cu their religion and their literatur removed to Hongkong, wher established a mission school for Chinese girls. She began with but when, after eight years of ed unremitting work she left vacation to her native land, sh so far advanced the interests o school that it possessed a build its own and numbered 40 pupils drain upon her time and energ severe, and she gladly sacrific the work her fine talent for w As if by instinct, she returned native German city this year after a lingering illness, caus overwork, she died. Her last was entitled "A Chinese New Flower," which she sent to her in 1903. Her last words were "Remember me kindly to all, a to them: 'I was happy in my li I die peacefully.'"

THE CHAPERON IN THE W

All unmarried females of mea position are chaperoned here, doesn't matter. There are sp —that's enough. No tender m thirteen goes unattended in Ca No single woman of any age theatre alone with a man, for "buggy riding," the custom known. No girl goes to a rest for lunch with a youth she has from the cradle. It would not b rect, and it would not be entire rect, either, for her to get a girl. No; she must have the ch —the tried and seasoned vete matrimony—or else the prop will be split up the back.

The ardor with which the the chaperon has been taken the West should make the thos pause. At the rate we're go we'll soon be where they a France, and it will be hopelessly promising for any of us to wa blocks on the public street with of our acquaintance. Geraldin ner in San Francisco Argonaut.

A QUEEN OF EMBROIDE

Mrs. Hoossel, whose remarkab broideries are being shown at th don Society of Artists, al brought up in Germany and w with a German, is an English by birth, clever and industriou of gracious manner and perso In Berlin she has already ex with great success. The Prince, in whose love affair the is now so much interested bought some of Mrs. Hoossel's ions and clothes. The embro include fanciful subjects, such Midsummer Night's Dream," p representing the seasons, and of sea, sky, sun and moon.

WOMEN'S REVERSIBLE GL

A new idea in women's fabric just placed on the market h side made of taffeta, while the is of Suede finish, each havi embroidery. The clasps are on both sides. Thus two pa practically provided at nomi sense.

In addition to dial service, m supplied with a ready choice same time being furnished an tunity obviating the necessity versing her landwear after "I it off. Again, an extra advan available in that elimination ing the glove fingers into after wearing proves harmless York Globe.

FASHION HINTS.

Have a velvet gown for hig sions.

It takes almost a whole dr tern to fashion a pair of t sleeves.

Many of the resurrected sty copied from masculine rath feminine dress.

Double-width crepe de chin goon to the tailor and dress

The sectional skirt is the n and easiest solution of press lems.

wall. I also am willing to tak consequences.

"With haste,
"STUART KRO

Dear reader, can you wonder hold this letter sacred? Can you der that I highly prize its manli This letter is to me more pr than much fine gold. Punish Was I weak in thinking he had punished enough by his twenty hours' consciousness of guilt? W weak to put my arm round him say, "My boy I knew all the tim I could depend upon you."—W O. Krohn, in Child Study Monthly

A NOBLE WOMAN GONE.

The recent death of Sister M Postler, of the Order of St. Joh moves a striking figure from the of the world's women. Born 44 ago, in a humble little parsona the Russian-German frontier, showed as a girl very noteworth cents in the literary line. She tributed freely to journals and zines, and began to acquire a reputation. She determined, how to devote her life to the more p date and practical needs of a ng world. Having conceive strange affection for China an Chinese, the people, their cu their religion and their literatur removed to Hongkong, wher established a mission school for Chinese girls. She began with but when, after eight years of ed unremitting work she left vacation to her native land, sh so far advanced the interests o school that it possessed a build its own and numbered 40 pupils drain upon her time and energ severe, and she gladly sacrific the work her fine talent for w As if by instinct, she returned native German city this year after a lingering illness, caus overwork, she died. Her last was entitled "A Chinese New Flower," which she sent to her in 1903. Her last words were "Remember me kindly to all, a to them: 'I was happy in my li I die peacefully.'"

THE CHAPERON IN THE W

All unmarried females of mea position are chaperoned here, doesn't matter. There are sp —that's enough. No tender m thirteen goes unattended in Ca No single woman of any age s the theatre alone with a man, for "buggy riding," the custom known. No girl goes to a rest for lunch with a youth she has from the cradle. It would not b rect, and it would not be entire rect, either, for her to get a girl. No; she must have the ch —the tried and seasoned vete matrimony—or else the prop will be split up the back.

The ardor with which the the chaperon has been taken the West should make the thos pause. At the rate we're go we'll soon be where they a France, and it will be hopelessly promising for any of us to wa blocks on the public street with of our acquaintance. Geraldin ner in San Francisco Argonaut.

A QUEEN OF EMBROIDE

Mrs. Hoossel, whose remarkab broideries are being shown at th don Society of Artists, al brought up in Germany and w with a German, is an English by birth, clever and industriou of gracious manner and perso In Berlin she has already ex with great success. The Prince, in whose love affair the is now so much interested bought some of Mrs. Hoossel's ions and clothes. The embro include fanciful subjects, such Midsummer Night's Dream," p representing the seasons, and of sea, sky, sun and moon.

WOMEN'S REVERSIBLE GL

A new idea in women's fabric just placed on the market h side made of taffeta, while the is of Suede finish, each havi embroidery. The clasps are on both sides. Thus two pa practically provided at nomi sense.

In addition to dial service, m supplied with a ready choice same time being furnished an tunity obviating the necessity versing her landwear after "I it off. Again, an extra advan available in that elimination ing the glove fingers into after wearing proves harmless York Globe.

FASHION HINTS.

Have a velvet gown for hig sions.

It takes almost a whole dr tern to fashion a pair of t sleeves.

Many of the resurrected sty copied from masculine rath feminine dress.

Double-width crepe de chin goon to the tailor and dress

The sectional skirt is the n and easiest solution of press lems.

GOOD POTATOES BRING FANCY PRICES

grew a large crop of good potatoes, the ust contain plenty of Potash.
matoes, melons, cabbage, turnips, lettuce beet, all vegetables remove large quanti- of Potash from the soil. Supply

Potash

ly by the use of fertilizers containing ust have 10 per cent. actual Potash. ger and more profitable yields are sure to pamphlets are not advertising circulars ing special fertilizers, but contain valu- information to farmers. Sent free for the Write now.

GERMAN KALI WORKS
York—93 Nassau Street, or Atlanta, Ga.—1278 South Broad St.

rodora Cotton.

LEADING VARIETY ON EARTH.

most prolific, fibre long and strong, ading 5to6c per pound over common not sea island, therefore delinted on grows anywhere. Mr. T. E. Hardman of el, Ga., in 90 days from planting, grew bought of me, stalks averaging 1500 and bolls, stalks being 7 feet, 3 inches feet 4 inches through and 37 feet Price of seed given on application.

L. A. STONEY, Allendale, S. C.
ence:—Chas. B. Farmer, Banker, Allen- C. C. P. Calhoun, President Bank of ell, Barnwell, S. C.

Write Quick FOR A Big Bargain

ter advertise the South's Leading College, four scholarships are of- young persons of this county at less than WRITE TODAY.

A. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

AN ENTIRE MEDICINE CHEST
SLOAN'S LINIMENT
QUICKLY RELIEVES PAINS AND ACHES
Kills Germs
OR MAN OR BEAST
EARL S. SLOAN, 615 ALBANY ST. BOSTON, MASS

AD BREATH

months I had great trouble with my stomach ed all kinds of medicines. My tongue has ually as green as grass, my breath having lor. Two weeks ago a friend recommended me and after using them I can willingly and ly say that they have entirely cured me. I ther les you know this I shall recommend any one suffering from such troubles.
H. Galpin, 109 Rivington St., New York, N.Y.

Best For The Bowels
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC
THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

ant, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good, Do Good, Sicken, Weaken or Gripe, 10c, 25c, 50c. Never k bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. eed to cure or your money back.
erling Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y. 598
AL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

on Earth
's Planters and Distributors
E GUARANTEE THEM.
EWARE OF IMITATIONS.
for Prices and Catalogue.
T MFG. CO., Macon, Ga.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

Lyman Station
Business, Shorthand and Typewriting College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

Am. 49, 1904.

If afflicted with weak eyes, use
mpson's Eye Water.

DOG COULD NEVER FORGIVE.

Always Attacked Trolley Men Because a Car Cut Off His Toes.

Because he could not forgive trolley employes after a car had cut off three of his toes, Bruno, a splendid St. Bernard dog, belonging to Mayor Charles A. Bookwalter, of Indianapolis, Ind., had to be chloroformed. His hostility to street car conductors and motormen was his only fault, but that phase of his character caused so many threats of damage suits that Mayor Bookwalter decided that he could not afford to keep him.

Several years ago while in the street in front of his master's house the dog was struck by a street car. His foot was caught under the wheel and he came out of the accident minus three toes. This was the beginning of his antipathy to street car men, and it grew upon him till no employe was safe if Bruno saw him off his car.

Mayor Bookwalter lives on North Illinois street. Near his residence is a place where the conductors and motormen change cars, and as many of them reach the point before their cars arrive, there are always several in the street. Up to a few months ago Bruno contented himself with attacking his supposed enemies when they passed the mayor's house off their cars. But recently he began to lie around the relieving station and before his presence was suspected he would have one of the men by the leg.

Complaints were made, and the mayor sent the dog to his farm, but Bruno wouldn't stay. No motormen nor conductors came that way, and he was lonesome. So he came back, and when sent away a second time, again returned. He was always found waiting around for an opportunity to get a street car man by the leg. So Bruno was sent on a journey from which he will never return.

"He was a great dog," said Mr. Bookwalter, "but he was made for an 80-acre field, and not for a town lot. I am satisfied that his only motive for attacking street car men was to get even for the loss of those toes. He felt the deformity keenly, and was never the same dog after he was injured. Any child could play with him, and I never knew him to attack a stranger, but the sight of a street car conductor or motorman seemed to awaken in him a spirit of revenge which was never manifested under any other circumstances.—Philadelphia Record.

One of the most remarkable places of worship in the world is the miners' chapel in Mynddd Menigdd colliery, Swansea, Wales. It is close to the bottom of the shaft. The only light is that obtained from a solitary safety lamp, hung over the pulpit from the ceiling, and the oldest miner in the colliery is generally chosen to officiate.

The Danes have been building a vessel upon the lines of Noah's ark as described in Genesis. The model is thirty feet long, five feet wide and three feet in height, one-tenth of Noah's measurements. It was launched on the sound on October 30, with a party of professors, engineers and officials on board, and is reported to have behaved admirably at sea.

Mr. Arthur Evans, the Oxford archaeologist, who has made interesting discoveries in the so-called palace of Minos, in Crete, has found in a subterranean sanctuary certain very ancient small, earthenware statues, representing some goddess and two of her servants. The dress of the figure is said to be highly modern.

Outside the polar regions there remains unexplored, it is estimated, about one-fiftieth of the land surface of the globe. Fifteen years ago the unknown portions were about one-eighth of the earth's total.

Between the mining towns of Clifton and Metcalf, Ariz., there runs the steepest, narrowest and most tortuous railroad in the world.

The seven great fruit growing states in the order of production are: California, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois and Indiana.

The Rock of Gibraltar is really pumice stone—the creation of a volcano.

The New Hybridized Eden WATERMELON

WHY THE BEST?

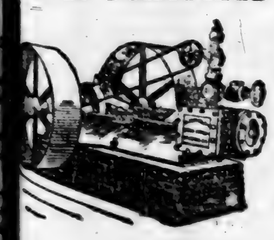
Combines by successive cross-fertilization the merits of leading varieties, firm rind, the best shipper; glossy appearance, the best seller, commanding premium 25 per cent. over all other varieties; great productiveness. Write for price of seed, and how to grow over eight thousand 30 to 40-pound luscious melons of this variety on plot of land 210 feet square (one acre), land being of medium fertility.

L. A. STONEY, Allendale, S. C.

References:—Chas B. Farmer, Banker, Allendale, S. C.; C. F. Calhoun, President Bank of Barnwell, Barnwell, S. C.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS COMPANY



MANUFACTURERS

High Pressure Return Tubular Boilers
Morison Internally Fired Boilers
High Grade Slide Valve Engines
Transmission Machinery
Heavy Castings
Wrought Iron and Steel Work
Tanks, Stacks and Stand Pipes

Heavy Pipe Work a Specialty

Address Machinery Department
MACON, GEORGIA.

JOKERS BUDGET

HER BEAUTY TO WYN.

A cute little damsel named Flynn
Was cursed with a wart on her chynn;
A hammer she seized
A hammer she seized
And attempted to pound it back ynn!
—Milwaukee Sentinel.

THE ARTFUL DODGER.

Wagger—They say that old Couponnes, the banker, has untold wealth.

Gagger—Yes, that's what the tax collector suspects.—Town Topics.

NOT HER FAULT.

"Mary Anne, didn't I hear you kiss that policeman in the kitchen last night?"

"I hope not, mum."—Chicago Journal.

THE DUKE.

May—I wish I knew whether the Duke intended to propose.

Pamela—Why don't you inquire of his solicitors?—Town Topics.

THE MIDNIGHT PROMENADE.

She—Henry!

He—Huh?

She—Just imagine baby is one of those sick friends you sit you all night with.—Harper's Bazar.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

"I wonder what it is," said the family man, "that makes landlords and janitors dislike to have small children in flats."

"The small children, I guess," replied the savage bachelor.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE DIFFERENCE OF A PREFIX.

"Some people insist on referring to flats as 'apartments.'"

"It's wrong," answered the discontented man. "They are compartments."—Washington Star.

MORE THAN ALL ELSE.

"Did you see anything in Italy that appealed to you particularly?"

"Yes; the beggars!"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

LIGHT-HEADED.

She—Miss Flippant wears fearfully heavy earrings, doesn't she?

He—Yes, she had to—for ballast.—Detroit Free Press.

PROBABLY NOT.

"I hope he's not as green as he looks."

"Who?"

"The man who just sat down on that newly-painted bench."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HER HARD LUCK.

"I made an awful fauxpas last night," said Mrs. Oldcastle.

"Did you," replied her hostess. "I've been wantin' to make one for a long time, but I ain't been able to get a pattern. Whose did you have?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

YES! YES!

Little Rollo—Papa, what is a villa?

Mr. Outtaway—A villa, my son, is a house that is sold you by a villian!—Harper's Bazar, COULDN'T FOOL HER.

Mrs. Boardman—What did those pies taste like which we had for dinner?

Mr. Boardman—Sawdust.

"Exactly! That accounts for it! I heard the boarding-house woman tell her husband to order some kindling wood, as she 'wanted to make some pies for dinner!'"—Yonkers Statesman.

ONE ON THE TEACHER.

Teacher (in spelling class)—Johnny speel "fail."

Johnny—I can't.

Teacher—You can't spell that simple word? Why not?

Johnny—'Cause you told me there was no such word as fail.—New Yorker.

A BAD BLUNDER.

Hotel Guest—This is queer tasting mineral water. Where did you get it?

New Porter—Found it hanging there on the wall.

Guest—You idiot! That isn't mineral water; it's fire extinguisher!—Philadelphia Ledger.

PLENTY OF ADVICE.

"His trouble was just due to a neglected cold."

"A neglected cold? I don't believe there ever was such a thing. No man ever had a cold without having at least a dozen friends attending to it for him."—Philadelphia Ledger.

INFORMATION WANTED.

"Are you a married man?" asked the absent-minded attorney who was doing a cross-examining stunt.

"No, sir," replied the witness. "I am a bachelor."

"Very well, sir," continued the lawyer. "Now kindly tell the court how long you have been a bachelor and what the circumstances were that induced you to become one."—Chicago News.

PERFECTLY DREADFUL.

"Here," said Mrs. Bickers, who had been reading the paper, "is an account of a man who chopped his wife up and fed her to the chickens. Wasn't that perfectly dreadful?"

"I should say it was," replied Bickers. "I hope the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals got on his trail immediately."—Smart Set.

In the Other Pocket.

"I can't quite make your change," said the storekeeper, painfully recounting the pile of pennies in his hand. "It's a cent out of the way." "Oh, never mind," returned the munificent buyer. "But it's my cent," was the unmoving rejoinder.

Sometimes it does happen to make a difference if we know who owns the cent. The New York Press tells this story of a man who, early one morning recently, came to the assistant treasurer of a church.

"I attended service yesterday," said he, "and I made a mistake when you took up the collection. I had a penny and a five-dollar gold piece in my pocket. I think——"

Here he stopped to take breath, and the other man interrupted him with some impatience. He had heard just that complaint before. Somebody was always hunting a five-dollar gold piece.

"I think you are mistaken," said he. "We had no five-dollar gold pieces in Sunday's collection."

"That's just what I am trying to get at," said the old gentleman. "You out to have had one. I meant to put mine in the basket, but I made a mistake and dropped in the penny instead. Here is the gold piece."

London has a high school which makes a specialty of teaching the students to use the two hands indiscriminately. It has over two hundred pupils.

The original manuscript of "Ben Hur" was recommended for return to the author by three of the "readers" of the publishing houses to which it was submitted.

The costliest railroad in the world is the New York subway at $2,000,000 per mile.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer, $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

Jews whose language is Spanish abound in the East.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. SAMUEL, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

It is suggested that bees be used as carriers of military dispatches.

Icebergs are the product of Greenland glaciers and are formed by the thousand in the far northern fiords. As the glaciers sweep into the sea they "calve" or throw off mighty blocks, and these are what we know as icebergs.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price, 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The carcass of an elephant in the Ghent Zoological Gardens, which had been killed, was bought by a local pork butcher, who transformed it into Frankfurter sausages. He was able to manufacture no fewer than 3800 pounds of sausages, which sold like hot cakes.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband should be a woman's constant study. Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Potts tell their stories for the benefit of all wives and mothers.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will make every mother well, strong, healthy and happy. I dragged through nine years of miserable existence, worn out with pain and weariness. I then noticed a statement of a woman troubled as I was, and the wonderful results she had had from your Vegetable Compound, and decided to try what it would do for me, and used it for three months. At the end of that time I was a different woman, the neighbors remarked it, and my husband fell in love with me all over again. It seemed like a new existence. I had been suffering with inflammation and falling of the womb, but your medicine cured that and built up my entire system, till I was indeed like a new woman.—Sincerely yours, MRS. CHAS. F. BROWN, 21 Cedar Terrace, Hot Springs, Ark., Vice President Mothers' Club."

Suffering women should not fail to profit by Mrs. Brown's experiences; just as surely as she was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure other women who suffer from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, and nervous prostration. Read the story of Mrs. Potts to all mothers:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—During the early part of my married life I was very delicate in health. I had two miscarriages, and both my husband and I felt very badly as we were anxious to have children. A neighbor who had been using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it, and I decided to do so. I soon felt that my appetite was increasing, the headaches gradually decreased and finally disappeared, and my general health improved. I felt as if new blood coursed through my veins, the sluggish tired feeling disappeared, and I became strong and well.

"Within a year after I became the mother of a strong healthy child, the joy of our home. You certainly have a splendid remedy, and I wish every mother knew of it.—Sincerely yours, MRS. ANNA POTTS, 510 Park Ave., Hot Springs, Ark."

If you feel that there is anything at all unusual or puzzling about your case, or if you wish confidential advice of the most experienced, write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and you will be advised free of charge. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured and is curing thousands of cases of female troubles—curing them inexpensively and absolutely. Remember this when you go to your druggist. Insist upon getting

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Every Coupon Counts for a present with

GOOD LUCK Baking Powder

Buy Good Luck Baking Powder. In so doing you get the most of the purest baking powder at the smallest cost. Furthermore, if you will save the coupons that you will find plainly printed on the label of each can, you can get the beautiful premiums we are now offering. Cut out these coupons. They are valuable. It takes but a few of them to obtain some of the numerous useful gifts on the premium list.

A little book inside of every can explains all about the premiums. It shows a picture of each gift and tells just how many coupons are required to get them. Don't fail to save the coupons. Take a delight in your baking and secure some of the charming premiums.

GOOD LUCK Baking Powder

was established in 1892. The sales have so increased to date, that to-day we are shipping Good Luck Baking Powder in carload lots to every section of the country. The cause of this enormous popularity is plain. In Good Luck, housekeepers get not only a positively pure baking powder of great leavening force, but at a price a little less than they have been accustomed to pay for some other kind that was not as satisfactory in results.

When buying Good Luck think of its purity and consider the good results obtained from its use. Remember every Good Luck coupon counts for a present. If your grocer doesn't keep Good Luck, send us his name and we will see that you are supplied.

THE SOUTHERN MANUFACTURING CO.,
Richmond, Va.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors silk, wool and cotton equally well and is guaranteed to give perfect results. Ask dealer or we will send post paid at 10c a package. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Unionville, Mo.

THE WEATHER BUREAU

Great Value of Its Work. Exposure of So-Called Long Range Forecasts.

There is no branch of the government service that has been of greater practical utility to the great industrial interests of the country than the Weather Bureau. There is hardly any branch of industry that is not more or less influenced by the weather, but to the agriculturist, the knowledge of coming weather changes is of vital importance.

The forecasts are now so widely disseminated through the press, and by mail, telephone, and telegraph that they are available to nearly all those to whom the information is of benefit.

As the demand for this valuable information has increased, through the increasing accuracy of the official forecasts, numerous so-called "long range" weather forecasters are endeavoring to take advantage of the public, with their claims that they can foretell the weather weeks, months, and even years in advance.

Public Warned.

It is only recently that the Weather Bureau officials and other reputable scientists have attempted to controvert the harmful effect exerted by the "long range" weather prophets, but it seems that the claims of the "weather fakirs" have reached that stage when it is considered proper that reputable scientists should warn the public of the fallacy of such unreasonable guessing as marks the work of the almanac and other systems of "long range" weather prophecy.

Long Range Forecasts of No Value.

Section Director Frank P. Chaffee, who has charge of the climate and crop work of the Weather Bureau in Alabama, with headquarters at Montgomery, furnishes the following in connection with the above:

"After over 30 years careful research by the specialists of the weather bureau, during which time the forecasts of the bureau for 36 to 48 hours have steadily improved, until they now average about 85 per cent verification, it must be admitted that, so far, no system of 'long range' forecasting has been developed that is of any practical use to the public.

Fraudulent Claims.

"Most of the so-called 'long range' forecasters know that their claims are fraudulent, and they are systematically fooling that portion of the public which pays any attention to their prophecies. It would indeed be a blessing if any system should be devised by which the weather of a coming season could be foretold. If this is ever accomplished, it will not be by such blind guessing methods now in use by 'long range' weather guessers, but by a comprehensive study of weather records of long periods.

Honest Deceivers.

"Some of the 'long range' weather prophets may be honest, and really think they have discovered physical laws controlling weather changes, which have not yet been disclosed to reputable scientists, who have made meteorology a lifetime study. The weather fakirs have all kinds of systems, but none of them can withstand honest investigation."

"The great majority of their prognostigations are based on the law of averages, or a regular recurrence in weather changes, while, in reality, it is seldom that average weather conditions occur; others claim a system of cycles, some cycles within cycles, and many of the weather quacks invoke the aid of celestial influences in their calculations. Their so-called forecasts are so vague and indefinite that they claim verification on almost any weather that occurs. They harp on their occasional hits and never refer to their universal misses.

Legitimate Forecasting.

"The Weather Bureau has a large number of well equipped stations distributed over the entire country. At all of these stations observations are taken exactly at the same instant, at 8 a. m. and 8 p. m., 75th M. time. By means of a cipher code and a thorough arrangement of telegraph circuits, the reports from all stations have been collected at a number of centers within about 40 minutes after the instruments were read. These reports show the temperature, weight, direction, and velocity of the air, kind, amount, and movement of clouds, the relative amount of moisture in the air, etc.

"The reports are charted at the various centers and show an instantaneous survey of the weather conditions over the entire country. Now, by comparing the maps from day to day, and watching the inception, development, and movement of storm areas, it is possible to forecast the weather ahead of these storms, from 24 to 48 hours, with a considerable degree of accuracy, the accuracy depending greatly on the skill and experience of the forecaster. This method should certainly appeal to the public as much more reasonable than the attempt to forecast storms that have not yet begun to form.

"The public, which pays for the weather service, is entitled to the most accurate weather forecasts that can possibly be made. The Weather Bureau takes the public into its confidence and candidly admits that, at present, weather forecasts can not regularly be made for even a week in advance, with such a degree of accuracy as to make the information of any value. It does claim, however, that it is possible to make reasonably accurate forecasts of the weather from 24 to 48 hours in advance, as is shown in the Bureau's daily work, which is continually being placed before the public, and which has become of such acknowledged value to the various industries of the country.

"Now, if the Weather Bureau with its vast system of observations and reports, its over 30 years experience in weather forecasting, its highly trained experts and specialists, admits that it cannot make 'long range' forecasts with sufficient accuracy to justify their being given to the public, it would certainly seem that the public should appreciate the utter fallacy and worthlessness of the almanac and other systems of so-called 'long range' weather forecasts, which many would-be prophets are endeavoring to foist on the public notice."

Chicago to Have a Great Subway.

The Chicago Subway company, with a capital stock of $50,000,000 and composed of men who represent 90 per cent of the railroads having Chicago terminals, was organized a few days ago and took over the $30,000,000 company here which has built fifteen miles of freight tunnels under the city's streets. The vast tonnage of the railroads represented by the financiers in the new corporation will be diverted into the company's tunnels, which are already under every street in the business district of Chicago.

Apparently in connection with the mammoth deal Sir Ernest Casset, the financial adviser of the king of England, was in Chicago recently with Jacob Schiff, head of the international banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who is heavily interested.

Men who will enter the directory Harriman, the principal factor of the Harriman, the principal faytor of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific and big factor in the Alton and Illinois Central railroads; James Stillman, president o fthe National City bank of New York, and a factor in the control over large numbers of great eastern and western systems, notably the Chicago and Northwestern and Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroads, and Jacob Schiff, of New York, a member of the Wall street firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and a big factor in the Pennsylvania system.

The subway company has taken over it is officially announced the entire stock of the Illinois Telephone Construction company, 66 2-3 per cent of the stock of the $30,000,000 Illinois Tunnel company and stands ready to take over all remaining stock of the tunnel company at the terms on which it acquired the two-thirds.

The Illinois company will remain the home operating corporation, but owned by the Chicago Subway company of New Jersey.

The deal guarantees the immediate use of the tunnels by the railroad interests concerned, and promises speedy relief for Chicago from the present congestion in terminal railroads in the downtown district

The new owners will extend and improve the system, and as far as possible the steam railroad freight of the Harriman-Stillman-Schiff and other trunk railroads will be transported through the underground system.

Hot Race for Georgias Governor

Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, has announced his candidacy for governor of Georgia to succeed Governor Terrell two years hence.

This announcement followed by a few days that of J. H. Estili, editor of the Savannah News. Both of the gentlemeh are prominent in the state, and the race will be a red hot one. Both have had considerable dealings in politics heretofore as well.

Steamship Lines Quit Rate War.

A confirmation of the rumors current during the past few days that the rate war between the continental steamship lines had been settled was had when the Cunard line issued a circular raising the rate from $17 to $32. Some of the other lines have already gone back to the rate which prevailed before the war.

Roosevelt Will Visit Alabama.

President Roosevelt will visit Alabama in March. Just after his inauguration he will make a Southern tour, and probably take in tht states of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

Michigan has produced some tall men, but now breaks her record by announcing that she has a 20-year-old youth who is 7 feet 3 inches tall and

---

Mantle of Snow Covers Armies.

Mukden.—The Jananese November 24th again made a preliminary bombardment of Poutiloff hill under the cover of which they attacked but were repulsed. There were encounters at other places along the front, but they were in the natura of small brushes and mostly took place at night. Yesterday there was al ight fall of snow and the surrounding country now has all the appearance of winter.

IN THE FAR EAST

Great Attack on Port Arthur Progressing. Definite Results Expected Hourly.

TRENCHES 20 PACES APART.

In the Silence of the Night Voices of Opposing Armies Can Be Distinguished.

Tokio—The general attack on Port Arthur is progressing but the results are unknown. Generals Nakamura and Saito, leading specially trained bodies of swordsmen, charged into the Russian lines and engaged the Russians in a hand-to-hand and bloody encounter. The result of the charges has not been learned.

Mukden—At Tinshinpu, of which the northern half is in Russian hands and the southern is held by Japanese, the trenches are twenty paces apart, and it is possible in the silence of the night to distinguish the voices of the Japanese.

Use Old Style Guns.

Fidaytown, six miles east of Shakhe—Since November 23, there have been light engagements day and night. On November 24 Japanese artillery began firing on Norgorod Hill, using old style cast iron shells with copper bands. Scratches on these shells, Russian artillerymen say, indicate that they were fired from worn out guns.

It is evident that the Japanese are exerting every effort to increase the number of their guns, and in view of their lack of quick firing artillery, they are bringing up guns of old construction. This is confirmed by statements made by Chinese that large numbers of worn out cannon are in Liao Yang. On November 24, an artillery duel took place. The Japanese bombarded Poutiloff (Lone Tree) Hill, the Russians replying but not vigorously.

Japs Use Pocket Stoves.

Field Headquarters, General Kuroki's Army—A light snow storm left two inches of snow on the ground. Along the tops of the hills where is located in many places the advanced lines of General Kuroki's army, the snow is deeper. The soldiers are living in earthen burrows, and shelters constructed of cornstalks and are able to keep warm through the freezing nights.

It is impossible to build camp fires in the trenches and bivouac within sight of the enemy. For warmth the soldiers depend on charcoal fires in "shibachis" pocket stoves. Some supplies of charcoal was brought from Japan, but most of it has been purchased in Manchuria. The army has employed many coolies cutting trees and making charcoal since early last summer, forseeing the present need of it.

Preparing for Great Struggle.

Mukden—The lapse of six weeks without fighting on any large scale, confirming the belief that the opposing armies have rested for the winter together with the unexpeted demonstration of force which the Russians have been able to make since the depletion of their army as the result of the fighting on the Shakhe emphasizes conclusively the failure of the Japanese and their most plausible plans for earliest occupation of Manchuria.

This outcome taken in connection with the general situation appears to guarantee that with the opening of spring there will begin a contest far more terrible than any yet fought and points to the termination of the war in the next campaign. It is still possible that there will be a general attack during the winter, but the wether is now broken and uncertain and seemingly renders it impossible for the troops of either army to abandon their present shelters.

Gradual alterations have taken place in the different departments of the Russian army since the abolition of the viceroyalty as Alexieff's partners have returned to Europe with him.

The hostilities are characterized by individual efforts of a most daring and dangerous character. One outcome of the close relations between the Russians and Japanese along the Shakhe river is the occasional blowing up of houses by the opposing outposts and the sniping of their occupants.

The Chinese authorities have taken preliminary steps to bring grain into the north and to store it for the use of the starving farmers and villagers. This action was brought about by the destitution which is prevalent for some twenty miles behind the Russian army.

Gen. Lew Wallace is 73 and dying of live to see 100

Paul Kruger's Will Shows Large Fortune.

New York—Paul Kruger, the late president of the Transvaal republic, left a fortune estimated by the Amsterdam correspondent of the World at $3,750,000. He had bequeathed $125,000 to the various societies in Holland and sums to all the funds opened after the South African war for the support of the widows and orphans. Bequests also were made for the maintenance of the Dutch language.

NO JURISDICTION.

Impeachment Proceedings Are Quashed Because it Was Shown Court Had No Power to Act.

Montgomery, Ala.—The action of the supreme court on Saturday in striking from the records of that court the impeachment proceedings brought by the attorney general against Sheriff A. D. Rodgers, of Madison county, brings to light another oversight on the part of the last legislature in not carrying into effect the provisions of the constitution which authorized the attorney general to institute impeachment proceedings against the sheriffs by filing his information with the supreme court. The attorneys for Sheriff Rodgers moved to quash the proceedings on three grounds: First, that the governor did not have the power to order the attorney general to institute the proceedings. Second, that the attorney general did not have the power to institute the proceedings, and third, that the supreme court did not have jurisdiction. The attorneys asked that the information be stricken from the record and the court did so.

Jefferson Comes Up Monday.

The supreme court Saturday adjourned until Monday, when the Sixth division will be taken up. This division is composed of the following counties: Blount, Cullman, Fayette, Jefferson, Lamar, Pickens, Marion, Tuscaloosa. The next division to be taken up will be the third, which is composed of the following counties: Autauga, Butler, Conecuh, Escambia, Lowndes and Montgomery.

Examination in Chilton.

State Examiner of Public Accounts J. T. Gorman has returned from Chilton county, where he went to examine the accounts of the officials of that county.

Appointments.

The following appointments were made by the governor Saturday: Notaries public—T. F. Caput, of Ensley; E. H. Glenn, Scale; Robert A. Morris, Birmingham; H. L. Oberkiarch, Mobile; S. C. Smith, Cottonwood.

Attend Test.

Among the state house officials that attended the test of the Lowry cotton picker Saturday afternoon on Mr. McLemore's plantation were: Governor Cunningham, J. K. Jackson, J. C. Adams, Gen. R. F. Ligon, Capt. W. M. Seldon, Walter Brassell, Dr. Shirley Bragg, G. F. Sedberry, Joel Miller.

WILL NOT CONTEST.

This Announcement is Made By B. W. Walker, Whom He Defeated. Question May Be Raised.

Mr. B. W. Walker, the republican candidate for congress from the Fifth district of Alabama, will not contest the seating of Mr. Thomas Heflin, the successful democratic candidate, as has been rumored.

Mr. J. O. Thompson, chairman of the state republican executive committee, in speaking of the report that Mr. Walker would enter a contest, said this morning:

"Mr. Walker will not make a contest. The republicans of the Fifth district made a very active canvass and many republican votes were secured in places where no republican votes had previously been cast. The gains were substantial and the republicans are satisfied with the showing made. However, there is no doubt but Mr. Heflin secured a large majority of the people of the district. For these reasons no contest will be entered by Mr. Walker."

Question May Be Raised.

Continuing, Mr. Thompson said: "If there is any question raised as to the seating of Mr. Heflin, and I am sure the question will be raised, it will not be through Mr. Walker, and if Mr. Heflin is denied a seat, it will not be that a republican may occupy it. On the other hand, if Mr. Heflin is unseated, then there will be a vacancy in the Fifth district and another election will be in order."

"Will an effort be made to prevent Mr. Heflin from serving the term to which he was elected?" was asked.

"I am positive of it," was the reply.

The effort to prevent Mr. Heflin serving his term, as indicated by Mr. Thompson, grows out of the utterances of Mr. Heflin in his congressional race.

Good Iron Orders.

Englishmen Will Visit the South.

New York.—It is probable that the Lancashire Cotton association will accept an invitation extended by the municipalities, cotton exchanges and chambers of commerce to visit the southern states of America, according to a Times dispatch from London.

Some objection is made to the invitation on the ground that the New England and Southern manufacturers' associations are not concerned in it. It has also been urged by some Lancashire manufacturers that the invitation is in the interest of American growers and in opposition to the British Cotton Growers' association. This suggestion, however, does not seem to have great support.

The Don Quixotes still survive. British fishing smacks are no more like Japanese torpedo boats than windmills are like giants.

There are so many new fashions this season that it will take three or four meetings of the missionary society to try out all of them, declares the Bristol (Vt.) Courier.

PROSPEROUS SEASON

Farmers Are Out Of Debt And Independent--Bank Deposits Large.

BIRMINGHAM A MONEY CENTER.

Is Second Only to New Orleans. Local Money is Used to Move Alabama's Crop.

"Our advices are that a third of the cotton crop of Alabama remains in the hands of the planters," said the president of one of Birmingham's great banks. "They have paid off their debts with the cotton which has been sold, and the remainder is therefore almost clear profit. Being under no stress to sell this cotton, they will hold it for the best prices obtainable. This means a year of prosperity for Alabama. I expect wonderful developments as the result. In the past two years Alabama has made greater strides forward than in any five in her previous history."

"In view of the promise of the future," it was suggested, "Birmingham ought to become the metropolis of the South."

"Birmingham is the financial center of Alabama today," replied the banker. "There is no doubt of that, in fact, money is coming to Birmingham for deposit and investment from Florida, Georgia, Tennessee and Mississippi, as well as from all parts of this state. And the merchants of those states have learned that money on good collateral may be obtained in Birmingham on as favorable rates as can be had in the large cities. I am entirely within the facts when I say Birmingham is now second only to New Orleans as a financial center of the South.

Organization of Banks.

"A great many banks have been organized in Alabama within the past few years, and each of these has a Birmingham correspondent. When a new bank is organized in this section it is regarded as essential to secure a Birmingham correspondent as it is to have one in New York.

"The planters and merchants of the South can do better in Birmingham when they are in need of accommodations than they can in New York. The banks here are acquainted with conditions under which the planter labors and the merchant operates and they are much more ready to extend accommodations.

"A great deal of Birmingham money has been used to move the cotton crop in Alabama. This bank has put out a million dollars for that purpose. We expect that million to bring back half a million with it in the way of deposits and increased business. In fact our deposits show an increase of about half a million since August.

"It is to the advantage of the merchants and planters of Alabama to have a financial center within easy reach, a city where they may secure monetary accommodations on as favorable rates as are to be had. The merchants and planters are realizing this, and money from all parts of the state will flow into Birmingham in in increasing volume."

Rate War Settled.

Liverpool — The trans-Atlantic steamship rate war has been finally settled. The Cunard and White Star lines have agreed on differential rates for slow and fast boats. Circulars are now being put out by the two lines certifying increased steerage rates.

Money in Grapes.

Birmingham.—One wine maker in this county has sold more than $100 worth of wine in a month. He has eighteen barrels, and sells all he brings to town at 80 cents a gallon, because it is absolutely pure juice of the grape. This is better than walking up and down a big field all the hot months for half the money.

President Home Again.

Washington.—President Roosevelt arrived home after his remarkable St. Louis trip. There was not a single hitch in the programme. The plans made for the journey were carried out to the letter. Every move was on schedule time. The arrangements for this trip were the most thorough ever made for any presidential journey.

Oranges Are Moving.

Jacksonville, Fla.—There is a good demand for Florida oranges in New York. This point has shipped 75,000 boxes since the first of November. So far the prices have been satisfactory.

Has Tenth Cotton Mill.

Huntsville.—Huntsville's tenth cotton mill has been finished, it being Mill No. 3 of the Lowe Manufacturing company. The new plant will have 10,000 spindles and will be ready for operation by January 1.

Christmas Feast.

The Salvation Army is planning to feed from 1,000 to 3,000 of the cities' poor in each large city of the South. They will also furnish a dinner for the prisoners of the county jails.

WANT SYSTEM CHAN

Memphis Exchange Urges Ginners' Report in Full

Memphis, Tenn.—At a the board of directors of the cotton exchange today a was adopted protesting issuance of the monthly ports in piecemeal form

The resolution urged the ment of statistics of the reau to issue the reports tirely, and asked the other cotton exchanges the country in a petition partment to resume the od of making the Prior to the present partment had issued when replies form all been received and

Traffic Begins

Birmingham.—Ma general superintende board Air Line ra Parsons, superint sion, accompanied officials, began the mingham to Atla line, which when the first to cross city as a scratch ben will thereaf with a view to traffic Monday. of the officials trains at that time tention will be something in favor making a poste In speaking of the ger before leavin freight trains would running over the said that some defe beginning the passe will be some time bed has settled suf the heavy passenger the necessary rate of

Committee for Mobile H

Montgomery, Ala.—Judge H len, of Birmingham, Outer Bar convention bled in Mobile, Thursday 17th, is in Montgomery state supreme court.

Last night Judge Al his appointments on the representative citizens of who are to appear before and harbors committee of to urge the needs of an tion of $250,000 with which the outer bar of Mobile bay.

The following are the the committee of whose has almost been assured:

Judge H. Austill, of Mobile chancellor of the southwest cery division; Erwin Craig tor of the Mobile Register; H Craft, of Mobile, member of islature; F. G. Blair, of Tu Frank G. Lathrop, of Gadsde McCarthy, of Demopolis; W. cock, of Selma; Rufus N. R Birmingham; Joseph H. Pa Birmingham; W. F. Vandiv gomery; E. K. Campbell, ham.

New Negro College.

Birmingham.—Ground was Tuesday at Mason City, th southwest of Birmingham. Louisville and Nashville rail the Colored Industrial colleg erected by the Freedman's Southern Education society. priate exercises were held grounds, a special train complimentary by the Louis Nashville railroad carrying number of people, both white ored, to the place.

As has been stated before, building to be erected will or four stories high and w nucleus of a large institut Freedman's Aid and Southern tional society is a branch of odist Episcopal church and prominent members of that tion attended the exercises.

Parker Will Argue C

Albany, N. Y.—The unpre spectacle of a former chief the court o fappeals arguing before the court from whi signed will be presented Tuesday, December 6, when Alton B. Parker will appear the first case which he has counsel in many years.

Ten American Vessels

Eastport, Me.—A messag ceived here saying that t vessels owned in Eastport were seized by the Canadia les protective cruiser Curlew George, N. B., Sunday n value of the boats and t ment aggregates more tha The boats were engaged herring in Passamaquody appears that Coatin Prett, lew, decided they were op Canadian waters illegally. ure is the most extensive been made by a Canadian several years.

Clubs Gather in Mo

Mobile, Ala.—The annua tion of the Alabama Fed Women's Clubs began its Tuesda. The convention three days.

The delegates from the men's clubs of the state a rive Monday, though most came in late last night and ing. Each train was met delegations of the leading men of this city and the were given a royal welco Gulf City.

T

VOL. II.

ILLIANT OPENIN

shington Was Crowded Never Before With a Gay Throng.

ENATE ADJOURNED AT ONC

of Respect to Memory of H nd Quay.—House Remained Session Less Than an Hou

Washington.—The ion thirteen m med as a mark of Senators Quay and e at 12:53 adjourned al Holiday Made of Opening casion.

Washington.—The last Fifty-eighth congress was ther at noon. The openin der the usual condition and a e scenes that for years have m reassembling of congress a notable events of the country Hundreds of sight-seers to nged the corridors and crowd the galleries to witness the proceedings. From one end capitol to the other the l of statesmen and the flutter minity distinguished the occa any other in the official or so adar of the year.

From the lethargy which has ch erized Washington since early spring, the city awakened to a n and heralded with apparent day which opens both the offic social seasons.

A Gala Occasion.

The streets were crowded w ple intent on witnessing the ce ies. Carriages flocked about ts ready to carry the guests capitol and two hours before no eady stream of vehicles bearin ies made its way to the front building.

Many newly elected members we the capitol, although they will n r office until March 4. A p larly sad feature of the assembli the absence of kindly fac wn old in the service of the co Rarely in the memory of the o rd has the opening day been ma h a gala occasion. The galleri er than the floor provided the co of attraction for rows upon ro andsomely gowned women look n upon the statesmen who grou about the chamber or strolled out of the cloak rooms to nge greeting with old friends a ive those of new ones.

Remembered With Flowers.

Members of both bodies were flood with remembrances in the form al pieces and the chambers pr ed an appearance which the er knew on any occasion. Basket clusters of bright roses, chry emums and other flowers covere desk. Though the rain and sle during the entire morning, the omforts were insufficient to m success of the event.

This will be the short session of th y-eighth congress and a notabl esting one, for with the inaugura of President Roosevelt the se will go out in a blaze of glor y once in four years does congres e an opportunity to wind up it rs under the historic condition h prevail next March

First Seaboard Train.

rmingham.—The first train ove Seaboard Air Line from Atlant ed in the city Monday evening he occasion was celebrated l ing of whistles and ringing o . The first eastbound train lef Monday night

Miners Get Increase.

rmingham.—The union miner ing in the mines of the Birming district are now receiving 5 per ton for cutting coal. This i vance of five cents per ton over rice paid in November, and is an ce of 7 1-2 cents since October he day laborers or dead workers the mines are receiving a cor ding increase, which means that st of mining coal in the mines oying union labor is something 14 cents greater than on Octo ast.

e companies that are employing shop labor have also recently d an advance of five cents per based upon their individual con calling for the sliding scale in prices of iron.

sident Flynn of the United Mine ers, said this morning that he ted that the union miners in istrict were now cutting about tons of coal per day, which mean that the five thousand miners are receiving a very increase with which to do their mas shopping.

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL, SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL II. CLANTON, ALA., DECEMBER 8, 1904. NO. 37

SPEROUS SEASON

rs Are Out Of Debt And lependent--Bank Deposits Large.

GHAM A MONEY CENTER.

nd Only to New Orleans. Lo- Money Is Used to Move Alabama's Crop.

are that a third of of Alabama remains of the planters," said board Air Line railroad, an Parsons, superintendent of sion, accompanied by seven officials, began the journey mingham to Atlanta over t line, which when completed the first to cross these hills city as a starting point. Th men will thoroughly inspect with a view to beginning th traffic Monday. It is the of the officials to start the trains at that time if so, and position will be carried out something is found on this making a postponement n In speaking of the matter M ger before leaving stated freight trains would probabl running over the road Mond said that some delay is nece beginning the passenger traf will be some time before t bed has settled sufficiently the heavy passenger trains t the necessary rate of speed.

Committee for Mobile Ha

Montgomery, Ala.—Judge E hon, of Birmingham, presiden Outer Bar convention which bled in Mobile, Thursday, N 17th, is in Montgomery attend state supreme court.

Last night Judge Allen an his appointments on the comm representative citizens of t who are to appear before th and harbors committee of to urge the needs of an a tion of $250,000 with which t the outer bar of Mobile bay.

The following are the men the committee of whose ser has almost been assured:

Judge H. Austill, of Mobile chancellor of the southweste cery division; Erwin Craigh tor of the Mobile Register; H Craft, of Mobile, member of islature; F. G. Blair, of Tus Frank G. Lathrop, of Gadsde McCarthy of Demopolis; W. cock, of Selma; Rufus N. R Birmingham; Joseph H. Pa Birmingham; W. F. Vandiv omery; E. K. Campbell, ham.

New Negro College.

Birmingham.—Ground was Tuesday at Mason City, th southwest of Birmingham. Louisville and Nashville rail the Colored Industrial colle erected by the Freedman's Southern Education society. priate exercises were held grounds, a special train complimentary by the Louis Nashville railroad carrying number of people, both white ored, to the place.

As has been stated before, building to be erected will or four stories high and w nucleus of a large institut Freedman's Aid and Southern tional society is a branch of odist Episcopal church and prominent members of that tion attended the exercises.

Parker Will Argue C

Albany, N. Y.—The unp spectacle of a former chief the court o fappeals argue before the court from whi signed will be presented Tuesday, December 6, whe Alton B. Parker will appear the first case which he ha counsel in many years.

Ten American Vessels

Eastport, Me.—A messag ceived here saying that t vessels owned in Eastport were seized by the Canad ies protective cruiser Curlew George, N. B., Sunday m value of the boats and t ment aggregates more tha The boats were engaged herring in Passamaquoddy b appears that Coatin Prest, o few, decided they were o Canadian waters illegally. are is the most extensive been made by a Canadian several years.

Clubs Gather in Mo

Mobile, Ala.—The annu tion of the Alabama Fed Women's Clubs began its Tuesda. The convention three days.

The delegates from the men's clubs of the state h rive Monday, though m came in late last night and ing. Each train was m celegations of the leadi men of this city and the were given a royal welc Gulf City.

WANT SYSTEM CHA

Memphis Exchange Urges In Ginners' Report in Pl

Memphis, Tenn.—At a m the board of directors of the cotton exchange today a was adopted protesting a issuance of the monthly gi ports in piecemeal form.

The resolution urged the ment of statistics of the c reau to issue the reports in tirety, and asked the co-op other cotton exchanges th the country in a petition to partment to resume the form od of making the reports. Prior to the present system partment had issued the rep when replies form all the gin been received and compiled.

Traffic Begins Monda

Birmingham.—Maj. E. K. general superintendent of t board Air Line railroad, an Parsons, superintendent of sion, accompanied by seven officials, began the journey mingham to Atlanta over t line, which when completed the first to cross these hills city as a starting point. Th men will thoroughly inspect with a view to beginning th traffic Monday. It is the of the officials to start the trains at that time now, and position will be carried out something is found on this making a postponement n In speaking of the matter M ger before leaving stated freight trains would probabl running over the road Mond said that some delay is nece beginning the passenger traf will be some time before t bed has settled sufficiently the heavy passenger trains t the necessary rate of speed.

Organization of Banks.

...many banks have been ... in Alabama within the past ... and each of these has a ... correspondent. When a ... is organized in this sec... is essential to ... Birmingham correspondent ... have one in New York.

... bankers and merchants of ... can do better in Birming... than they are in need of ac... rather than they can in New ... but here are acquaint... conditions under which the ... and the merchant op... they are much more ready ... accommodations.

... deal of Birmingham's ... been used to move the cot... crop of Alabama. This bank has ... years for that pur... expect that million to ... half a million with it in ... deposits and increased ... for our deposits show ... of about half a million

... advantage of the mer... planters of Alabama to ... financial center within easy ... they where they may secure ... accommodations on as fa... as are to be had. The ... and planters are realizing ... money from all parts of the ... flow into Birmingham in ... volume."

Rate War Settled.

... The trans-Atlantic ... rate war has been finally ... The Cunard and White Star ... agreed on differential rates ... and fast boats. Circulars ... being put out by the two ... ratifying increased steerage ...

Money in Grapes.

... One wine maker in ... has sold more than $100 ... in a month. He has ... and sells all he ... at 50 cents a gallon ... pure juice of ... than walk... the field all the ... the money.

dent Home Again.

... Roosevelt ... remarkable ... There was not a sm... The ... were car... Every move... The arrange... were the most ... for a reception...

...s Are Moving.

... as a ... in Nova ... of November. So ...

s Tenth Cotton Mill.

... ready for ... by Jan...

Christmas Feast.

...vation Army is planning to ... 1,000 to 3,000 of the cities ... each large city of the South. ... also furnish a dinner for ... ners of the county jails.

ILLIANT OPENING

shington Was Crowded as ever Before With a Gay Throng.

NATE ADJOURNED AT ONCE

of Respect to Memory of Hoar ... Quay.—House Remained in Session Less Than an Hour.

Washington.—The senate was in ...on thirteen minutes and ad...ned as a mark of respect to the Senators Quay and Hoar. The ...e at 12:53 adjourned.

t Holiday Made of Opening Occasion.

Washington.—The last session of Fifty-eighth congress was called ...der at noon. The opening was ...r the usual condition and amid ...e scenes that for years have made ...ressembling of congress among ...notable events of the country. ...ndreds of sight-seers today ...nged the corridors and crowded ...the galleries to witness the for... proceedings. From one end of ... capitol to the other the busy ...d of statesmen and the flutter of ...inity distinguished the occasion ... any other in the official or social ...ndar of the year.

...om the lethargy which has char...rized Washington since early in ...spring, the city awakened to a new ... and heralded with apparent joy ...day which opens both the official ... social seasons.

A Gala Occasion.

...e streets were crowded with ...s intent on witnessing the cere... ...es. Carriages flocked about the ...ls ready to carry the guests to ...capitol and two hours before noon ...eady stream of vehicles bearing ...les made its way to the front of ...building.

...any newly elected members were ...e capitol, although they will not ... office until March 4. A par...larly sad feature of the assembling ... the absence of kindly faces ...n old in the service of the coun...

...rely in the memory of the old ...t has the opening day been made ...a gala occasion. The galleries ...r than the floor provided the cen... of attraction for rows upon rows ...andsomely gowned women looked ... upon the statesmen who group...bout the chamber or strolled in ...out of the cloak rooms to ex...ge greeting with old friends and ...w those of new ones.

Remembered With Flowers.

...mbers of both bodies were flood...with remembrances in the form of ... pieces and the chambers pre... an appearance which they ...knew on any occasion. Baskets ...sters of bright roses, chrys...mums and other flowers covered ...esk. Though the rain and sleet ...uring the entire morning, these ...orts were insufficient to mar ...ccess of the event.

...is will be the short session of the ...ighth congress and a notably ...ing one, for with the inaugura... of President Roosevelt the ses... will go out in a blaze of glory. ...ce in four years does congress ... an opportunity to wind up its ... under the historic conditions ... prevail next March.

First Seaboard Train.

...ingham.—The first train over ...board Air Line from Atlanta ... the city Monday evening. ...casion was celebrated by ...s of whistles and ringing of ... The first eastbound train left ...nday night.

Miners Get Increase.

...ingham.—The union miners ...g in the mines of the Birming... district are now receiving $5 ...per ton for cutting coal. This is ...ease of five cents per ton over ...e paid in November, and is an ...e of 7 1-2 cents since October ...e day laborers or dead workers ... mines are receiving a cor...ding increase, which means that ...t of mining coal in the mines ...g union labor is something ...4 cents greater than on Octo...

...ompanies that are employing ...n labor have also recently ... an advance of five cents per ...ed upon their individual con... calling for the sliding scale in ... prices of iron.

...dent Flynn of the United Mine ... said this morning that he ...d that the union miners in ...strict were now cutting about ...tons of coal per day, which ...hown that the five thousand ...miners are receiving a very ...crease with which to do their ...mas shopping.

LOW LOCAL POSTAL RATES.

Washington.—Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow in his annual report makes the following important recommendation:

That congress fix a rate of 3 cents per pound on packages not exceeding five pounds mailed at the distributing postoffice of any rural free delivery route for delivery to a patron on said route. This rate should apply only to packages deposited at the local postoffice for delivery to patrons on routes emanating from that office, and not to mail emanating from one office to another.

Lower Local Rates.

The report says concerning this proposed new rate of postage:

"With the establishment of rural mail delivery, and the increasing extension of rural telephone service by private interests, there has grown up a demand by the patrons of the rural service for the delivery of small packages of merchandise such as food stuffs, tobacco, dry goods, drugs, etc., on an order to the local merchant by postal card, telephone or otherwise. The value of these packages of merchandise is usually small, and the present rates of postage of one cent per ounce is practically prohibitive. The patron or merchant cannot afford to pay sixteen cents for the delivery of a pound of tobacco or coffee, or similiar articles, but if a special rate were established on such matter from the distributing office, for delivery to any patron on the rural routes of that office, it would be a great convenience to the patrons and become a source of revenue to the department. The rate of three cents a pound would be ample remuneration for the department, because there is no expense for rural transportation, and the system by which these packages are to be delivered is already established, and such delivery would entail no extra expense to the department."

The advantage of this proposed innovation to patrons of rural routes and to merchants in the towns from when the routes proceed is so apparent that the members of congress will no doubt hear a mighty cry go up from the rural district in support of Mr. Bristow's recommendation.

Pig Iron Advances.

Birmingham, Ala.—Pig iron has advanced in price again and No. 2 foundry has been sold at $13.75 per ton. There are indications that a still further advance is probable before the expiration of a week. The market is strong and it is plainly to be seen that there is not only a scarcity of iron in this section, but a good demand also for the product.

The Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company has sold three thousand tons of iron on a basis of $13.75 per ton for No. 2 foundry. It is stated that considerable of this iron will go out of the immediate district, which indicates that northern and western iron makers are not underselling the southern manufacturers.

The manufacturers of pig iron in the Birmingham district are not anxious to sell their iron at any price under $13.50 per ton No. 2 foundry, and even at that price now it is a difficult matter to get iron. The sales made in the last few days provide for delivery after January 1, 1905.

Ironmaker Dead.

Thomas Kimball, the oldest and first maker of pig iron in Alabama, died at his home twelve miles east of Green Pond on the Cahaba river in Tuscaloosa county at the advanced age of almost one hundred years Monday. He made pig iron at the old Tannehill or Sanders furnace near Goethite mines, now owned by the Republic Iron and Steel Company, long before the war. Out of the pig iron turned out of this furnace guns were made for the Confederate service. After the war was over the furnace was enlarged and operated for some time with profit.

Alabama Masons Meet.

Montgomery, Ala.—The annual meeting of the Grand Masonic bodies of the state began in this city today. Grand High Priest Charles R. Bricken, of Laverne, presided this morning at the meeting of the grand convocation of the Royal Arch Masons of Alabama, who assembled in their seventy-ninth annual convocation. They were in session all day.

The grand council of royal and select Master Masons will assemble Wednesday in annual council. Deputy Grand Master of the Lodge H. H. Mathews, of Montgomery, will be selected to succeed Grand Master R. J. Redden, who retires. All the meetings will be held behind closed doors.

King for Fifty-Six Years.

Vienna.—Throughout the dual monarchy there were celebrations to mark the fifty-sixth anniversary of the accession of Emperor Francis Joseph to the throne. Business was suspended generally in the capital, and in all the churches thanksgiving services were held.

JAPANESE CONFIDENT

Capture of 203 Meter Hill Gives Nogi Command of Entire Harbor.

SIEGE GUNS CAN SWEEP CITY.

Russians Fighting Without Hope.—Japan Wild With Joy Over Situation.

The official announcement comes from Tokio that the Japanese have occupied the summet of 203-Meter Hill. This important position has been the object of severe and continuous fighting, and cable reports from time to time have indicated that many men have been sacrificed in the effort to capture it. Two hundred and thirty-three Meter Hill is a dominating point in the range which lies to the westward of the town of Port Arthur, and according to reports it commands artillery range of the harbor and a portion of the main town. Its approximate distance from the citadel or main defenses is three to four miles. Reports from both Tokio and St. Petersburg indicate that isolated engagements of a more or less severe nature are occurring along the front of the Manchusian armies, but it is not apparent that the main forces are engaged.

Tokio.—General Nogi's telegram announcing the storming and capturing of Two hundred and three Meter Hill was received with cheers by the Japanese people. It vovives the hope of an early capture of Port Arthur proper.

Prepared to Meet Fleet.

Cheefoo.—Japanese preparedness for an encounter with the Russian second Pacific squadron was evidenced by the officers of the French steamer Bink Thuan, which left Japan Nov. 30, and arrived here Saturday. Near Sasebo they saw the Japanese battleship Mikansa unscarred and evidently fully repaired and painted. Forty miles south of the Shan Tung promontory the officers of the Bink Thuan sighted the Japanese battleship Asahi similarly rehabilitated. She was steaming north.

The repair work of the Japanese fleet has been progressing with great secrecy and at Port Dalny.

The torpedo boat and torpedo boat destroyer flotilla is reported to have been maintained in good shape. The boats are mostly at the Japanese naval base and at Port Dalny.

Russians Will Not Surrender.

Paris.—The Russian ambassador has declared to a reporter of the Figaro that fighting along the Shakhe river will probably continue all winter, and that under no circumstances will General Kuropatkin retreat another inch. He is daily receiving reinforcements, and is even now strong enough to attack the enemy, but prefers to give his exhausted soldiers as long a rest as possible and await the new supplies and winter clothing which are coming in by trainloads every day. Russia has no lack of money, having just succeeded in borrowing $260,000,000 from Germany and a Dutch bank.

Big Timber Purchase.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Joseph O'Brien, of Albany, N. Y., has purchased 38,500 acres of valuable timber land in Madison county, North Carolina, near the Tennessee line. The property was sold by order of court to satisfy an involuntary bankruptcy proceeding. A mortgage of $222,000 is assumed, and a cash bonus of $25,000 is paid. This is regarded as one of the most valuable tracts in these mountains. Edgar H. Betts, of Troy, N. Y., was the largest creditor, his claim being $101,901.08.

High Price for Meat.

Chicago.—The big steer, "Clear Lake Jute II.," winner of the international grand championship at the live stock show in progress here, was sold to a New York firm for $36 per hundred pounds.

River Too Low For Navigation.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—The stage of the river here will not yet permit of the running of boats from this point. The river is about two feet below the navigation point. The Tennessee River Navigation Company has, however, inaugurated a schedule for the winter, so that boats will be run as soon as the river will permit. The river saw mills are still idle.

The situation at Port Arthur recalls the old saying, "Man is never, but always to be blessed," in that the stronghold "is never, but just about to be taken."

WORLD'S FAIR CLOSED.

St. Louis.—The Louisiana Purchase Exposition has ended. The stupendous and magnificient exposition, the interest of which has extended into every portion of the civilized world, has run its course, and now passes into history as probably having comprised the most representative collection of the resources, industries, art, peoples and customs of the world ever assembled. From the inception of the project to hold the exposition until the gates were thrown open and the world was invited to enter, occupied a period of seven years. The duration of the exposition has been seven months, and during that time nothing has occurred to throw a dampening effect on the interest or to detract from the exposition in any way. The best order has been maintained throughout, and there have been but few fires, but all of small moment with the exception of the destruction of the House of Hoo Hoo, and the partial destruction of the Missouri building recently. No loss of life has occurred during the exposition from accidents. St. Louis has proffered her most gracious hospitality to the world, and it has been accepted.

The opinion has been expressed at all times, on all sides, and without reserve that the Louisiana Purchase Exposition has been a success.

The man probably most prominently known in connection with the world's fair is the president, David R. Francis, and it was deemed fitting that the final day should be designated as Francis Day" in his honor.

Russia's Horses.

"One of the things the observant stranger may note in the streets of St. Petersburg and Moscow is the excellence of the horses. Not only the chargers of the army officers and the carriage horses of the rich, but cart horses, cab horses, droschky horses, even car horses and bus horses, seem to be of good breed and in fine condition. The horses wear little harness, which fashion is admirably designed to show off a handsome animal, and they are driven with very light snaffle bits; although the Russian horses seem full of spirit, these simple bits control them, for they are thoroughly broken. You seldom see a whip on a private carriage or a hackney cab in Russia. The horses have intelligent eyes and seem to be better trained than ours; but that is not saying much, for we have more thousands of miles of railways in the United States and more thousands of horses that take fright at the thousands of railway trains than any country in the world.

The czar's stables at Peterhof are very plain buildings, but they are filled with handsome horses which is better than handsome stables filled with poor horses. It was well worth the visit to see those rows of fine animals standing in their stalls, with their sleek, black coats and long tails.

Rockefeller Has Troubles.

William Rockefeller's gamekeepers on his vast forest preserve in the neighborhood of Saranac, N. Y., are earning their pay these days. The natives thereabouts resent the appearance of these guards, several of whom have been fired upon recently. One of them resigned after having a bullet pass through his coat sleeve as he was patrolling his lonely beat in the forest. The "snipers" use smokeless powedr and all efforts to locate them have failed. Mr. Rockefeller owns 53,000 acres of fine forest land in the vicinity named, but the natives can not be made to see that with the real estate he bought the deer. Nor can they understand how he owns the fish which were put into the streams at public expense. They have shot and fished on the land as far back as the oldest inhabitant can remember, and see no reason why the arrival of Mr. Rockefeller among them should change their custom. Hence the placing of the guards, of whom there is a small army.

To Kill Out Boll Weevil.

Montgomery, Ala.—Dr. J. A. B. Lovett, president of the Ninth District Agricultural school, in a letter to the Montgomery Advertiser, offers a new idea for the extermination of the boll weevil. He would rotate the crops, with force by the government, if necessary.

BIG POULTRY SHOW.

Entries from All Over the Country.—One Bird Worth $500.

Birmingham, Ala.—The Alabama Poultry and Stock Association convenes in this city Tuesday and will be in session for four consecutive days. The exhibition will have many attractions. There are 1,350 entries for exhibits of chickens, rabbits, and other day. The chicken exhibit of the middle states and the great west will not only be interesting but of practical instruction as well.

The star attraction is a white Wyandotte cock from the famous Biltmore farm. This fowl is alone worth $500.

Jackson's Grandson Appointed.

Washington, D. C.—President Roosevelt has appointed Stonewall Jackson Christian, grandson of General Stonewall Jackson, to a cadetship at the United States military academy at West Point. President Roosevelt says: "We want a Stonewall Jackson in our army."

The act of President Roosevelt in giving a cadetship to young Stonewall Jackson Christian, grandson of General Stonewall Jackson, the great Confederate military chieftain, was a most graceful one. No man who admires military genius and daring could fail to admire the character of Stonewall Jackson. General Jackson himself was a graduate of West Point academy and achieved distinction as a soldier long before the civil war. He was a regular army officer during the war with Mexico and won fame on the battlefield there. So gallant was his conduct that he was twice given promotions.

Many historians have published garbled accounts of how General Jackson came to be called "Stonewall." The scubriquet was applied to him by General Barnard E. Bee, of South Carolina, at the first battle of Bull Run. General Bee was himself a West Pointer, and like Jackson had won glory in the Mexican war. He was commanding a brigade at Bull Run consisting of the Second and Eleventh Mississippi, the Fourth Alabama and First Tennessee regiments and Imboden's battery. His brigade was in advance of the one led by General Jackson. Bee's forces were at one time broken by a terrible charge of the federal troops when Jackson brought up his five regiments to their support. Bee, mounted upon a magnificent charger, rushed to meet Jackson and with drawn sabre and perspiration streaming down his face, laboring under great excitement, he exclaimed in tones bordering upon despair: "General, they are beating us back." Jackson was cool and almost curt, as was his manner in moments of great peril. Turning to General Bee he replied: "Sir, we will give them the bayonet." These words seemed to act upon Bee like a clarion. Rushing back to his men and pointing his sword towards Jackson, who sat bolt upright upon his horse, coolly surveying the situation, Bee rallied his men, exclaiming, "Look, there is Jackson standing like a stone wall. Let us determine to die here and we will conquer." This appeal acted like magic and what threatened to be a rout was turned into a victory. General Bee soon afterwards fell mortally wounded as he carried the colors of the Fourth Alabama at the head of the charge.

Italians Coming South.

Washington.—Pressure of official work has forced Baron Mayor des Plances, the Italian ambassador, to postpone his trip through the south until next year.

Shortly after the adjournment of congress he will visit Florida, Louisiana and Texas in the interest of worthy respectable Italians in New York and other large cities who desire to escape from their crowded surroundings and make homes for themselves in a warmer climate where they may operate truck farms and become self-supporting citizens.

Throughout his service at Washington, Baron Mayor des Plances has done much to alleviate the condition of his countrymen in the United States and he has made a thorough study of their condition in New York. The ambassador and the commissioner of immigration concur in the opinion that the better class of Italians in the large cities are frequently handicapped by a lawless element which inquiry has shown to be greatly in the minority.

Many Italian immigrants coming to this country have not funds enough to reach the interior and build homes for themselves. The south is anxious to obtain immigrants who are law-abiding and can become self-supporting. The proposition has been made by certain railroad interests whose lines operate in several southern states, to furnish tracts of land to Italian farmers at a reasonable rate and enable them to build cottages which can be paid for on easy terms.

To inquire into the practicability of this proposition will be the object of the ambassador's trip.

Famine Among Fishermen.

Okhotsk, Russia.—A severe famine prevails in the district of Gishiga, owing to the small fish catch and the fault of the arrival of two steamers loaded with privisions. The authorities propose dispatching relief sledges drawn by reindeer and dogs, but mails sent by those means last winted did not get through.

If your friends believe you to be poor, they will all conspire to keep you poor. If they think you rich they will all try to make you richer.

Make a practice of doing some act of kindness every day until the habit grows on you and stays with you.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 4th St, Opposite Court House.
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbeile,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins,
Physician and Surgeon,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Office with Hopkins Drug Co.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon.
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullen' Building
Office Hours 9 to 12 a. m. 1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

Notice! Notice!

If you want good Bargains and good articles in Dry Goods, Groceries & Hamilton-Brown, Shoes, we have them for you

Jackson & Robinson
Lomax, Ala.

Going to Plant

Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a postal for my new manual "How to Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.
P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

PURE GOODS

The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	L. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

The Judgment of Nathan;

Or, the Story of How He Selected the Right Woman For a Wife.

"Set right down here, Nathan," said Daniel. "I'll have to see what Joel Wickerson wants. He's always bothering aroun' like an aggravatin' fly. What's eatin' you, Joel?"

"I want a gallon of your best oil," said Joel; "what's it worth today?"

"Fifteen cents," answered Daniel, bustling about as if the store were crowded with patrons. "Let's have your can."

"It's only 14 cents at the White Front," protested Joel, holding his can obstinately behind him.

"Fifteen here to regular customers," replied Daniel, meaningly.

Joel sighed. "Well, then, give me a gallon, an' a dime's worth of eatin' tobaccer, an' a pound o' Caroliny prunes, an' put it on the book."

"California prunes," amended Daniel.

"Caroliny," insisted Joel. "I reckon I know what I want. How are you Nate?"

"Ain't well," said Nathan crisply.

"Rheumatiz?"

Nathan nodded his head, willing to admit what was not altogether true for the sake of discouraging conversation.

"Miss Wickerson allows that rheumatix is only another name for laziness. I ain't just prepared to agree with her an' yet I never heered of it keepin' a man from anything but work. Don't operate agin' goin' fishin' does it, heigh?" He chuckled his audience in the side and leered knowingly.

Nathan had little use for an observation that approached too closely to the truth, and Joel, being notorious for just such observations, there was nothing to do but retreat in as good order as possible, so he got on his feet and strolled carelessly toward the door.

"You can look at that cow any time, Daniel!" he called back, over his shoulder.

"Wait a moment, I'll go right now. Where's Dave?"

Playing dominoes for the cigars up to Andy Wiggins's," volunteered Johnny Henly in his cheerful treble. "I see him."

"Pick ye out a handful of candy," commanded Daniel, magnanimously, "an' run an' tell him I want him—hustle now!"

Dave soon appeared at the back door and having dusted his shoes, parted his hair becomingly and adjusted his necktie, took his place behind the counter and assumed an attitude of careful attention to business. Dave was considered very stylish, wore broad-shouldered clothes and high collars, sang in the church choir, and played a B flat cornet in the Millville Band. As such he had quite a following among the boys and was also much admired by the fair sex. A number of the girls would walk several squares out of their way after school to pass Freeman's store because Dave Marcus was sure to be out in front about that time, leaning gracefully against the awning post, swapping reminiscences with Elmer Jordan, who had but lately returned from Manila, and who still affected a military carriage, wore his leggins and army hat, and smoked with his cigarette drooping rakishly from his lips.

"Come along, Nathan," said Daniel, threading his way between Uncle Billy Harlow and the cannon stove. "We'll go out and look at the cow. Did you say you wanted a cheese sandwich? Here it is."

Jimmy Henly picked up a crumb of cheese from the floor, wiped it on his sleeve, and ate it. Uncle Billy Harlow got up on his chair to reach for the Millville Weekly Clarion, and in doing so stumbled over his dog, who was always afraid he was about to be left behind. Rebecca Poulson came in to buy a pattern from Dave Marcus, and in the general excitement Joel Wickerson managed to abstract a couple of dill pickles and a handful of crackers, and to make a triumphant exit with them and his groceries.

"Let's go on the 'pull race,'" suggested Daniel.

It was not far to walk. Just across the railroad bridge down the steep side of the grade, through a forest of Spanish needles, between the sagging wires of a fence and then you struck a well beaten path that ran along the bank of the race to the mill. Two sycamore trees, as spotted as leopards, locked arms and leaned together far out over the listless current, and some one had rigged up a board between the trunks which made a very good seat and a capital place for the wayward small boys to smoke cigars and play cards. Nathan picked up a stick and opened his knife with a click. Daniel re-lit his cigar, flipped the match into the water and settled his back luxuriously against the tree.

It was a hazy day in mid-autumn. The first frost had come and gone and the forest had begun to don its Joseph's coat of many colors.

A flock of crows flapped leisurely along overhead. A jay screamed harshly in the thicket. A red-head rapped officiously far up in the sycamores, and a squirrel whisked out to protest against the interruption. The school bell rang for recess and the shouts of the playing children came loud and soft by turns with the ebb and flow of the gentle breeze. The local freight arrived and stopped at the dripping water tank.

"Nathan," said Daniel, solemnly, "I'm a-goin' to get married."

His companion's jaw dropped as suddenly as if some concealed spring had snapped. "Why—why, you can't mean it, Daniel," he stuttered.

"I most certainly do," replied Daniel, with an assumption of nonchalance that he was far from feeling.

"B-but at your age!"

"Never too late to mend," observed Daniel blithely.

"I don't know if mend is the right word for it," Nathan shook his head dubiously, "and if it is it seems to me that if I'd a got along to the ripe old age of sixty-three unmended I'd a sort a felt so natural that way that I would not a bothered about the repairs."

"I ain't but sixty-two," objected his friend.

"As good as sixty-three. I know when your birthday is by reckonin' from mine. Don't you remember, I had to lie about my age so's we could enlist in the same company?"

"Well, then, have it your own way then, do. Sixty-three ain't old."

"I'm not so sure. Now I am a great grandpa at that age an' you just a startin' in, but who's to be the happy Mrs. Freeman?"

Daniel blushed until his mottled face resembled a variegated pincushion. "There's two of them I'm a hesitatin' between," he answered, looking vaguely at a flaming sumach bush on the opposite shore.

"Well," prompted Nathan.

"Two of 'em," repeated Daniel, bring his index finger down upon the board with a thwack and staring hard at it; "one is—one is"—he shifted his gaze to a thistle close at hand, and picking up a switch, threshed it vigorously. Nathan whittled away without the least appearance of interest.

"One is Abby Bell—"

Nathan nodded his head in corroboration, somewhat disappointed at a revelation that was no revelation, because Millville had been daily expecting their marriage for thirty years.

"And the other is—confound that bee, he's agoin' to sting me yet."

"Well, for heaven's sake," ejaculated Nathan, "say it—say it—is who?"

"Ann Elizabeth Tompkins," Daniel blinked his eyes, inflated his cheeks, until they resembled a bellows, and blew out the name as if it were a plug.

"The mischief!" gasped Nathan.

"Now, what have you got against Ann Elizabeth?" demanded Daniel, with an injured air.

"A widow an' a gossip, an equal suffragist an' a social purityite, a soul feeder an' a sanctified person, an' to marry you! Lord! Lord! The saint and the sinner, the hawk an' the dove, the sheep an' the goat—yah, yah!" The old man grasped his knees in his hands and rocked to and fro in an ecstacy of mirth.

"Go on!" cried Daniel. "File it up. Insult your best friend if you will, but don't drag her in; don't you say nothing about her until she's present to defend herself."

"I wouldn't dare to then," said Nathan, earnestly. "Why, Dan'l, she's a match for any two men in Millville, an' you know it. Six feet tall an' two hundred—if a pound. Who-ee! Don't you sit there an' admit that you're considerin' her. Back track, Back track! Climb a tree; swim a stream. Any way to spike the scent, my boy. I hope it ain't too late, comrade. I hope you haven't gone and committed yourself beyond recall."

An acorn rattled from bough to bough in a neighboring tree and struck the ground with a thud. Daniel dodged with a quick duck of the head and glanced apprehensively over his shoulder.

"It ain't went that far," he admitted. "I'm only a-figurin', as a fellow says."

"All right, but dont you figger too close. Looky here, Dan'l, I ain't got a thing against you marryin', but after having been so uncommon deliberate, let's not get in an all-fired hurry all at once. It's mighty easy to get married. It's as easy as it is for a rat to get into one of them patent traps, and marriage has got its bars, too, as well as its bait. Now, to continue the argument, we will say, my boy, you're a-marryin' to better your condition—for the purpose of becomin' more comfortable; an' I judge that's all a bachelor thinks of when he's marryin'. If such be the case, an' I think I know you pretty well, don't you make the mistake of marryin' a widow of strong convictions and mature age. My brother married a widow. He was about your age when he did it, too, an' out of consideration for his feelin's an' in the hope of havin' a life of ease the rest of his days he selected what he thought was a rich widow. Well, they hadn't hardly et their first meal together until he realized he was tied up to a whited sepulchre. Yes, sir, for a fact. She took all her money and put it into a costly monument to her first husband, an' George W. had to cut sight out an' dig for a livin'.

"He tells me it is a mighty handsome stone, with two angels carved on it, clasping hands, an' right below the words, 'Till we meet again.' 'Many's the night,' says George W., 'that I've laid awake calculatin' just where I'm 'spposed to be whilst they are a-meetin' an' claspin' hands.'

"Dan'l, a widow either makes a club or a clog out of her first husband. You are either a whole lot worse or you're never quite so good as he was, an' the longer he's buried the better he gets.

"Another thing, too, Dan'l, there is no such thing as romance in a second marriage. Love's is a plant that don't bloom more than once for any one. And when a widow decides she needs another helpmeet she sizes up the candidates with a mighty cold, calculatin' eye first, while a widower acts as if he was afraid the supply would run out before he got a chance to get one.

"To my mind, there's one time, and one time only, for marriage. It's when you're young an' in love, so young an' so much in love that nothing else matters at all. A second marriage is like a set of false teeth—a more or less passable substitute for the first according to fit, but dreadful hard to write poetry about."

"You're powerful set against such things, it seems," complained Daniel. "Now, I want to know what you'd do in case you was left? Wouldn't you turn an' marry again?"

"Maybe I would. Maybe I would, Dan'l," Nathan sighed. "A man an' a moth has a habit sometimes of a cuttin' loose from everything an' flying plum in the face of Providence."

"Do you think I ought to marry Abby Bell, then?"

"Um—perhaps. She ain't so old but she might be older. An' she's probably so unselfish that she'd marry you for your own good. Yes, Abby could likely scrape up enough romance to be happy herself, an' she'd be so perfectly proud that she had got a man, after all, that she'd pamper you up like a young lord—an' that I judge is what you're looking for."

"Now, Nathan"—Daniel leaned forward and put his hand on his friend's shoulder—"as man to man, as the man in a light to a man in the darkness, is it the thing—marriage? Can you, in the face of your knowledge and experience say so—to me!"

Nathan cleared his throat huskily.

"Comrade, don't you gather from what I've ever said to you that Zerelda hasn't been a good companion to me. I've talked mighty triflin' about my wife, which is a thing no man ought to do, but I've got the savin' grace to be ashamed of it. When she left her home to come out here with me it was a sore trial to her. She thought a heap of her mother, an' she bid her good-by realizin' that she could never hope to see her again. She jest put her hand in mine and set her face to the west, an' if she ever looked back, like Lot's wife, I never knowed it. We didn't have much to come to. Only a log cabin in a clearin', but love glorified it into a shinin' palace, an' it was not long until there was a curtain at the window, a flower in the garden an' a babe in the cradle—three things to make a man happy."

"We've raised four children an' buried two, Dan'l, an' if ever a woman done her duty by her family it was her. It's only lately that she's had any time to devote to the cause of sufferin' humanity in general. A houseful of children will keep a woman out of lots of deviltment. Dan'l, I use tobacco, fish a good deal, an' play cards whenever I get the chance; while Zerelda 'tends church an' prayer meetin', feeds preachers and delegates, wrestles with the demon rum, an' pretends to sanctification; an' now that I come to think of it, I reckon, after all, its simply different ways we have of enjoying ourselves, an' she's as much right to her way as I have to mine. An' I'll go further, and remark right here, that if any other man would say the things of my wife that I've said of her, I'd bust his head open I would."

"Nathan," said Daniel, hoarsely, "It's—it's—a-goin' to be Abby."

The two old men clasped hands, and looked long and darkly into the waters of the race, that, like the stream of life, could never turn backward.

The two sycamores alike bound together swayed and bent low in the breeze, appearing with outspread arms and rustling foliage to be whispering a benediction.

A golden leaf fluttered loose, and, turning over and over, fell gently into the water, and the ripples spreading in slowly widening concentric circles seemed at last, like life and love, to reach from shore to shore.—Allen G. Garrigue in Indianapolis Journal.

He Paid His Debt Promptly.

A train was just starting to leave a suburban station, says the New York Tribune, when an elderly man rushed across the platform and jumped on one of the slowly moving cars. The rear-end brakeman, who was standing by reached up just as the man got aboard, grabbed his coat tails and pulled him off. "There," he said, sternly, "I saved your life! Don't ever try to board a train that way again."

"Thank you," said the old man, calmly. "Thank you for your thoughtful kindness. It is three hours till the next train, isn't it?"

"Three hours and a quarter," said the brakeman, "but it is better to wait that length of time than to be killed."

The long train, meanwhile, had been slowly gliding by, slowly gathering speed. Finally the last car appeared. This was the brakeman's car, the one for which he had been waiting, and with the easy grace born of long practice, he started to step majestically on it.

But the old gentleman seized him by the coat, and with a strong jerk pulled him back, and held him until it was too late.

"One good turn deserves another," said the old gentleman, with a smile. "You saved my life. I have saved yours. Now we are quits."

An Extraordinary Feat.

Admiral Togo's report that in a recent engagement he arranged his ships in a formation representing the first letter of the Japanese alphabet, leads a London paper to say most unkindly that we have all been doing the Japanese alphabet a great injustice if it contains letters into the shape of which a fleet of ships can be arranged without bending them.

SYRIA'S BEAUTIFUL RIVER, THE ORONTES.

HAREMS ALONG THE ORONTES RIVER IN SYRIA.

If one has lived in Syria, it is not the twenty-four slender minarets of Hama that hold the gaze, not even the Great Mosque, which is one of many that claim to guard the bones of John the Baptist; but beautiful and interesting above all is the Orontes, winding its slender cord of blue through the great city, bringing to Hama fertility and prosperity and health. One sees few rivers in this land. Although they make Damascus so fertile, Abana and Pharpar are hardly more than noisy creeks. It is true that parts of Lebanon fairly sweat with springs, but few of these reach the coast as more than stony wadis that dry up in summer. The Jordan in the south, the Leontes, emptying between Tyre and Sidon, and the Orontes in the north—these complete the tale of Syrian rivers; and Hama is the only great Eastern city that I have seen in which the river fills a large part of the panorama. Rising from the snow springs of Lebanon, then flowing northward through the Entering in of Hamath, dammed up near Homs by the old Hittites, growing slowly as it passes through the "Land of Hama" until at Antioch it is almost deep enough for navigation, the Orontes has made three of the great cities of the world.

It winds and twists through Hama so that you meet it at every turn of the street. We crossed no less than four bridges, each with a different scene, yet always the scenery of Hama. Along one bank a line of closely latticed windows mark the harems of the wealthier citizens; farther on, a little company of women are washing clothes under the shade of the cypress trees; yonder a weary train of mules are standing knee-deep in the cool water, while a crowd of naked boys are sporting in the shallow stream with as much energy and zest as any truant brothers of the West.—Scribner's Magazine.

A FAMOUS OLD PULPIT.

First Used by Robert Strawbridge in a Maryland Farmhouse.

One of the newly-elected Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States recently preached from a pulpit which is perhaps the most notable in America. Its length of service comprises as many years as the life of the Methodist Episcopal Church, for it was first occupied when this great religious organization came into being in the State of Maryland. The one who first discoursed from it was the famous Robert Strawbridge, who has been credited with being the organizer of the church referred to, for when he preached the doctrine of John Wesley in the little Maryland farmhouse he used the pulpit which had been made for this occasion. A narrow strip of board fastened to the pulpit pillars formed the reading desk on which was spread the Bible, from which came his inspiration. The memorable sermon was preached to a little band of about twenty people, but such was its effect that then and there was created the nucleus of a religious body which was destined to become one of the most powerful in the world.

PULPIT USED BY ROBERT STRAWBRIDGE

It is indeed a crude affair—the Strawbridge pulpit, as it is termed—but it has had a most interesting history. For a quarter of a century it was utilized by many ministers and carried from place to place in Maryland where services were held. Among those who occupied it was the famous Bishop Ashbury, another pioneer of American Methodism. The little pulpit was taken to the dwelling of John Evans, where it was first utilized, and stored away to be forgotten for nearly a half century. A few years ago it was accidentally discovered by a clergyman who was visiting in the Western part of Maryland and who was familiar with its history. He carried it to Baltimore, where it was given the place of honor among a number of other relics of the church, including the first portrait ever made of Bishop Asbury and the saddle bags in which were stored the Bishop's Bible and his food when he went from place to place preaching the doctrine of his denomination. When the great fire occurred which laid so much of Baltimore in ruins the building containing these precious mementos was destroyed. Two Methodist clergymen, however, endeavored to rescue them, and even while the structure was on fire, bravely entered the building and carried the relics to a place of safety, trundling them away in a wheel-barrow.

No Treacle-Moon in Oklahoma.

When one of our young couples get married they do not spend a month honeymooning, like it is the custom in the East, but they settle down to the routine of life with the one harmonious purpose of building up a comfortable and happy home. Instead of "spooning" around over the country, attracting the attention of everybody, looking sickingly lovable and calling each other all kinds of sweet little "chestnuts," the newly married may be found at work the next day following the nuptials. It may be the bride will put out a big washing, while the other half will be found plowing corn and carrying water simultaneously.—Alutual (Okla.) Enterprise.

Cultivating the Eye.

A pianist has to cultivate the eye to see about 1500 signs in one minute, the fingers to make about 2000 movements and the brain to receive and understand separately the 1500 signs while it issues 2000 orders. In playing Weber's "Moto Perpetuo" a pianist has to read 4541 notes in a little under four minutes.

The dogs of Constantinople, in several parts of the city, are now daily being fed by the Turkish Government.

MOUNT RAINIER, THE HIGHEST MOUNTAIN IN THE UNITED STATES. ALTITUDE ABOVE SEA LEVEL, 14,500 FEET.

View From Spray Park, on the Headwaters of the Puyallup River.

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS

Radish and Cucumber Salad.

Arrange on a bed of carefully w[as]hed watercress, alternate thin slic[es] red skinned radishes and cucum[bers] and pour over a French dressing. [The] combination of scarlet, white and [the] shades of green is attractive, while [the] crispness and blending of spicin[ess] coolness pleases the palate.

Chicken Fricassee.

Have the chicken disjointed and [cook] until nearly done; then drain from [the] broth. Put one-half cup of butter [in] a frying pan and fry the chicken [to a] brown. Pour the broth into the [pan] and thicken by allowing one [level] tablespoon of flour to each cup of broth. Put the chicken in a deep [dish] and pour the gravy over.

Artichoke Soup.

Artichoke soup is another [delicacy] but it needs to be thickened with a little white roux. The artichokes (peeled and put for a few minutes in cold water) must be boiled in a quart of milk; rubbed through a sieve, seasoned; and if cream is at hand a spoonful or two may be added. Cream always adds to the velvet smoothness of thick soups.

For Sour Milk.

Here is a new use for sour milk. Put your silver into the milk when it is thick; let it stand for half an hour, take the pieces out and wash them in clean hot soapsuds; wipe dry, and you have clear, bright silver. It will pay a busy housekeeper who has to do her own polishing to buy two or three quarts of milk and let it stand for the purpose.—Deborah.

Grape Catsup.

Cook five pounds of ripe grapes with a little water until soft and strain through a colander. Add five cups of sugar, two cups of vinegar, one level tablespoonful each of cinamon, cloves, allspice and black pepper and salt. If this is not spiced enough to suit the taste add a little more of all the spices in the same proportion. Cook two hours until thickened, then seal in bottles or jars.

Parsnip Fritters.

Cook parsnips in boiling water until tender and then press through a ricer or sieve. Measure two cups of this pastry flour and sift with one and one-half level teaspoons of baking powder. Beat two eggs light, and two cups of milk, then add the flour; beat and add the cold sifted parsnip. Beat well and fry in tablespoonfuls in deep hot fat. In dropping the spoonful into the fat hold the spoon near to top of the fat. When a light brown drain the fritters and serve at once.

For sponging out bureau drawers, sideboards use tepid water containing a small quantity of shymolin.

The old idea of putting oilcloth on the washstand cover is now adopted for dollies on highly polished tables.

Jars and bottles that smell of onions will be quite sweet and odorless if left out of doors filled with sand or garden mold.

Raisins for fruit cake are much improved by cooking. Let them stew slowly and then simmer until the skin is tender.

A great convenience, at trifling cost when building a new house, is a dumb waiter connecting the kitchen with the floors above.

If salt is sprinkled over the range before frying is commenced, there will be no disagreeable odor if the fat spatters over.

Varnished walls in the bathroom or halls are easily washed off, and it is little in either money, time or trouble to varnish them.

If silver is washed every week in warm suds containing a tablespoonful of ammonia the polish can be preserved for a long time.

When using a broom don't sweep with your back, use your arms. Sweep in one direction with long, even strokes. Sweep the carpet with the pile not against it.

Nuts are said to make a great improvement in chicken salad. A cup of English walnut meats to a cupful of celery cubed and one of chicken cut in cubes is the proper proportion.

The cane furniture, with white and gilded woodword, so much in vogue in the eighteenth century, is having quite a fashionable revival at present for elaborate rooms of the French style.

Desk sets of brilliant scarlet leather give a pretty touch of color to solid oak desks of weathered oak. The best furnishings now so much in vogue are mission beautifully with the dull finish of this wood.

When the eyes are tired from too long use or reading by insufficient light, moisten pieces of old linen or absorbent cotton with some good toilet, and place them on the closed eyelids for fifteen minutes or half an hour while you lie down in a quiet room.

For bachelor apartments of restricted dimensions, a shaving stand that is really a small chiffonier, resting on legs, is a most convenient article. This has a square swinging mirror at the top and six shallow drawers, large enough to accommodate a set of toilet articles.

CONGRESSIONAL MESSAGE

Official Communication

Read

SUGGESTIONS ON LEGISLATION

President Makes Strong Recommendations Concerning Capital Labor, Foreign Affairs, Army Navy, Commerce and Other Subjects That Will Come Before Congress.

[The] following is the substance of the message of President [Roosevelt] in both Houses of Congress to the Senate and House of Representatives:

To the Congress of the United States:

[The] Nation continues to enjoy a healthy prosperity. Of course primarily the individual [is] benefited together with the great [corporations]; but an important [part] of the prosperity of the people [as a] whole is the result of wise [legislation] and of the steady growth of [orderly] government. We have emphatically [the right] to feel satisfaction at the general [result], and to express our approval of the principles [which] underlie these policies, and their due [enforcement] in these principles be kept [steadily] in mind unchanged, although of course [modified] in progressive spirit to meet changing conditions.

CAUTION AGAINST EXTRAVAGANCE.

The enlargement of the scope of the functions of the National Government required by our development is a [benefit] as involves, of course, increased expense; and the period of prosperity through which the country has [recently] passed justifies expenditures for permanent improvements far greater than would be wise in hard times. But [while] wise and forts, public buildings, and improved waterways are investments which should be made when we have the money; but abnormal revenues always invite extravagance, and constant care should be taken to guard against unnecessary increase of the ordinary expenses of government. The cost of doing Government business should be regulated with the same rigid scrutiny as the cost of doing a private business.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

[One] of the vast and complicated problems of our modern civilized life the dominant note is the note of industrial [strife] and the relations of capital and labor, and especially of organized capital and organized labor to each other and to the public at large come second in importance only to the fundamental questions of family life. Our peculiar system of government, with its sharp division of authority between the National and the several States, has helped the whole far more advantageously in the development from a more strongly centralized government. But it is undoubtedly responsible for much of the difficulty of meeting with adequate legislation the new problems presented by the total change in industrial conditions that has come on this continent during the last half century. In actual practice it has proved exceedingly difficult, and in many cases impossible, to get unanimity of action among the various States on these subjects. From the very nature of the case this is especially true of the questions affecting the employment of capital in huge masses.

[While] with regard to labor the problem is even more important, but it is simpler, because as long as the States retain the primary control of the police power the circumstances must be altogether exceptional which require interference by the Federal authorities, whether in the way of safeguarding the rights of capital or in the way of seeing that labor is not done by unruly processes. Let each State shield themselves behind the name of labor. If there is resistance to the decrees of the Federal courts, interference with the mails, or interstate commerce or molestation of Federal property, or if the State authorities in some crisis which [they] are unable to face call for help from the Federal Government may interfere; but though such interference may be caused by a condition of things arising out of trouble connected with the question of labor, the interference itself assumes the form of restoring order without regard to the conditions which have caused the breach of order—for to keep order is a primary duty and in a time of disorder violence all other questions sink into subservience until order has been restored. In the District of Columbia and in the Territories the Federal law is the entire field of government. Where the labor question is only acute in the great centers of commerce, manufacturing or mining. Nevertheless, both in enactment and in the enforcement within the Federal Government within restricted sphere should set an example to the State governments, especially in a matter so vital as that of labor. I believe that under present industrial conditions it is often necessary, and even where not necessary it is yet often wise, that there should be organization of labor in order better to secure the rights of the individual wage-worker. All encouragement should be given to any such organization, so long as it is conducted with due and decent regard for the rights of others. There are in this country labor unions which have nobly, and other labor unions which often, have been among the most effective agents in working for good citizenship and for uplifting the condition of those whose welfare should be close to our hearts. But when any labor union seeks improper ends by improper means all good citizens and more especially all honorable public servants should oppose the wrongdoing as resolutely when they would oppose the wrong doing of any great corporation. Of course any violence, brutality, or corruption should not for one moment be tolerated. Wage-workers have an entire right to organize and by all peaceable and honorable means to endeavor to persuade their fellows to join with them in organizations. They have a legal right, which, according to circumstances may or may not be a moral duty, to refuse to work in company with men who decline to join their organizations. They have under no cir-

L RIVER,
S.

IN SYRIA.

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS

Radish and Cucumber Salad.

Arrange on a bed of carefully w
red watercress, alternate thin slic red skinned radishes and cucum and pour over a French dressing combination of scarlet, w..ite and shades of green is attractive, whil crispiness and blending of epicurea coolness pleases the palate.

Chicken Princesse.

Have the chicken disjointed and f until nearly done, then drain from broth. Put one-half cup of butt in frying pan and fry the chicken brown. Pour the broth into the and thicken by allowing one tablespoon of flour to each cup broth. Put the chicken in a deep and pour the gravy over.

Artichoke Soup.

Artichoke soup is another vari
but it needs to be thickened with little white roux. The artich (peeled and put for a few minutes cold water) must be boiled in a q of milk, rubbed through a sieve seasoned, and if cream is at han spoonful or two may be added. Cr always adds to the velvet smooth of thick soups.

For Sour Milk.

Here is a new use for sour m
Put your silver into the milk whe is thick; let it stand for half an h take the pieces out and wash them clean hot soapsuds; wipe dry, and have clear, bright silver. It wo pay a busy housekeeper who ha do her own polishing to buy two three quarts of milk and let it
for the purpose.—Deborah.

Grape Catsup.

Cook five pounds of ripe grapes w a little water until soft and st through a colander. Add five cup sugar, two cups of vinegar, one l tablespoonful each of cinamon, clo allspice and black pepper and salt.
this is not spiced enough to suit taste add a little more of all t in the same proportion. Cook toge until thickened, then seal in bo or jars.

Parsnip Fritters.

Cook parsnips in boiling water u tender and then press through a r or sieve. Measure two cups of sif pastry flour and sift with one and half level teaspoons of baking pow Beat two eggs light, and two cup milk, then add the flour; beat and the cold sifted parsnip. Beat well fry in tablespoonfuls in deep hot In dropping the spoonful into the hold the spoon near to top of the
When a light brown drain the
ters and serve at once.

For sponging out bureau drawer sideboards use tepid water contai
a small quantity of thymolin.

The old idea of putting oilcloth un
the washstand cover is now ado for dollies on highly polished tab

Jars and bottles that smell of on will be quite sweet and odorless if out of doors filled with sand or gar mold.

Raisins for fruit cake are much proved by cooking. Let them slowly and then simmer until the
is tender.

A great convenience, at trifling c when building a new house, is a d water connecting the kitchen with floors above.

If salt is sprinkled over the r before frying is commenced, there be no disagreeable odor if the spatters over.

Varnished walls in the bathroom halls are easily washed off, and it c little in either money, time or tro to varnish them.

If silver is washed every week
warm suds containing a tablespoo of ammonia the polish can be served for a long time.

When using a broom don't sw with your back, use your arms. Sw in one direction with long, l strokes. Sweep the carpet with pile, not against it.

Nuts are said to make a great provement in chicken salad. A of English walnut meats to a cu minced meat and one of chicken cut in cubes is the proper propor

The cane furniture, with white gilded woodwork, so much in vogu
the eighteenth century, is ha quite a fashionable revival at pr for elaborate rooms of the Fr style.

Desk sets of brilliant scarlet le give a pretty touch of color to so desks of weathered oak. The le furnishings now so much in vogue monize beautifully with the dull br of this wood.

When the eyes are tired from sewing or reading by lamplig light moisten pieces of old linen absorbent cotton with some good tract, and place them on the c eyelids for fifteen minutes or l while you lie down in a quiet ro

For bachelor apartments of stricted dimensions, a shaving that is really a stand on casters, w on it makes a most convenient
This has a mirror swinging adjus
the top and six shallow drawers, large enough to accommodate a assortment of toilet articles.

E UNITED STATES.
FEET.
he Puyallup River.

NUAL MESSAGE OF ESIDENT ROOSEVELT

ficial Communication Fr The President is Read in Cress

SUGGESTIONS ON LEGISLATION

President Makes Strong Recom- ndations Concerning Capital and bor, Foreign Affairs, Army and ry, Commerce and Other Subjects t Will Come Before Congress.

llowing is the substance of the an- message of President Roosevelt, h both Houses of Congress:

e Senate and House of Repre- tives:

Nation continues to enjoy note- y prosperity. Such prosperity is primarily due to the high in- l average of our citizenship, together with our great natural ces; but an important factor is the working of our long- ished governmental policies. The have emphatically expressed approval of the principles under- these policies, and their desire these principles be kept substan- unchanged, although of course ed in progressive spirit to meet ging conditions.

AUTION AGAINST EXTRAVA- GANCE.

e enlargement of scope of the ons of the National Government ed by our development as a na- involves, of course, increase of se, and the period of prosperity se which the country is passing es expenditures for permanent vements far greater than e wise in hard times. Battle and forts, public buildings, and roved waterways are investments should be made when we have oney; but abundant revenues and e surplus always invite extrava- , and constant care should be to guard against unnecessary in- e of the ordinary expenses of gov- ent. The cost of doing Government ess should be regulated with the rigid scrutiny as the cost of a private business.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

the vast and complicated mechan- of our modern civilized life the nant note is the note of industrial- and the relations of capital and , and especially of organized capi- and organized labor, to each other to the public at large come second importance only to the intimate ons of family life. Our peculiar of government, with its sharp on of authority between the Na- and the several States, has been e whole far more advantageous to development than a more strongly alized government. But it is un- tedly responsible for much of the ulty of meeting with adequate lation the new problems presented e total change in industrial condi- on this continent during the last ntury. In actual practice it has d exceedingly difficult, and in cases impossible, to get unanimity e action among the various States ese subjects. From the very nature case this is especially true of the affecting the employment of capi- huge masses.

th regard to labor the problem is s important, but it is simpler. ng as the States retain the pri- control of the police power the stances must be altogether ex- which require interference by deral authorities, whether in the of safeguarding the rights of or in the way of seeing that s is not done by unruly persons uld themselves behind the name bor. If there is resistance to the al courts, interference with the or interstate commerce or mole- n of Federal property, or if the authorities in some crisis which are unable to face call for help, the Federal Government may in- but though such interference be caused by a condition of things out of trouble connected with estion of labor, the interfer- simply takes the form of order without regard to the which have caused the breach for to keep order is a pri- y and in a time of disorder nce all other questions sink ance until order has been

In the District of Columbia the Territories the Federal law the entire field of government; labor question is only acute in nters of commerce, manufac- mining. Nevertheless, both in ment and in the enforcement the Federal Government within ted sphere should set an ex- the State governments, es- a matter so vital as this labor. I believe that under industrial conditions it is often ry, and even where not neces- yet often wise, that there be organization of labor in ter to secure the rights of the wage-worker. All encourage- ould be given to any such or- n so long as it is conducted ive and decent regard for the others. There are in this coun- labor unions which have na- and other labor unions which ten been among the most effec- nts in working for good citi- and for uplifting the condition whose welfare should be close- r hearts. But when any labor eks improper ends, or seeks to proper ends by improper all good citizens and more es- all honorable public servants ose the wrongdoing as resolute would oppose the wrong any great corporation. O violence, brutality, or cor- should not for one moment be d. Wage-workers have an en- to organize and by all peace- honorable means to endeavor ade their fellows to join with organizations. They have a le- which, according to circum- may or may not be a moral refuse to work in company who decline to join their ions. They have under no cir- cumstances the right to commit vio- lence on those, whether capitalists or workers, who refuse to support their organizations, or who side with those whom they are at odds; for mob violence is intolerable in any form.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY LAW.

The e-workers are peculiarly en- titled e protection and the encour- agemen the law. From the very na- ture o r occupation railroad men, for ins are liable to be maimed in doing t gitimate work of their pro- fession, as the railroad companies are req by law to make ample provisio their safety. The Admin- istration been zealous in enforcing the exis law for this purpose. That law shou e amended and strength- ened. W er the National Govern- ment ha wer there should be a stringent mployer's liability law, which sh apply to the Government itself wh e Government is an em- ployer of r.

PREVENTION OF RAILROAD ACCI- DENTS.

The ev increasing casualty list upon our r ads is a matter of grave public con and urgently calls for action by C Congress. In the matter of speed an mfort of railway travel our railroad ve at least as good ser- vice as thos any other nation, and there is no son why this service should not a be as safe as human in- genuity can ke it. Many of our lead- ing roads h been foremost in the adoption of most approved safe- guards for th protection of travelers and employe et the list of clearly avoidable acci its continues unduly large. The pass of a law requiring the adoption a blocksignal system has been pro ed to the Congress. I earnestly co in that recommenda- tion, and wo also point out to the Congress th ent need of legislation in the interes the public safety limit- ing the hou of labor for railroad employees in an service upon rail- roads engaged in erstate commerce, and providing tha only trained and experienced person employed in po- sitions of responsibi connected with the operation of trai Of course nothing can ever prevent cidents caused by human weakness misconduct; and there should be astic punish- ment for an railroad employee, whether office or man who by issu- ance of wrong orders by disobedi- ence of orders causes disaster. The law of 1901, equiring interstate rail- roads to make monthly eports of all accidents to passengers and employees on duty, should also be amended so as to empower the Government to make a personal investigation through proper officers, of all acciden involving loss of life which seem to rulre investiga- tion, with a requirement that the re- sult of such investigion be made public.

UNIONS OF GOVERNMENT EM- PLOYEE

There is no objection to employees of the Government forming or belong- ing to unions; but the Germent can neither discriminate for or discrimi- nate against nonunion m who are in its employment, or who ek to be em- ployed under it. Moreove it is a very grave impropriety for Government em- ployees to band themselve together for the purpose of extorting emproperly high salaries from the Government. Es- pecially is this true of thos within the classified service. The lett carriers, both municipal and rura are as a whole an excellent body o public ser- vants. They should be amp paid. But their payment must be obined by arguing their claims fairly and hon- orably before the Congress, ad not by banding together for the defeat of those Congressmen who refe to give promises which they can no in con- science give. The Administtion has already taken steps to prent and punish abuses of this natur but it will be wise for the Congres to sup- plement this action by legislatn.

BUREAU OF LABOR

Much can be done by the Government in labor matters merely by giving pub- licity to certain conditions. The Bureau of Labor has done excellent work of this kind in many different directions. I shall shortly lay before you im spe- cial mesage the full report of te in- vestigation of the Bureau of Labr into the Colorado mining strike, as this is a a strike in which certain ver evil forces, which are more or less at work everywhere under the condition of modern industrialism, became part- ticularly prominent. It is greatly t be wished that the Department of Com- merce and Labor, through the Labor Bureau, should compile and arrange for the Congress a list of the labor law of the various States, and should be given the means to investigate and report to the Congress upon the labor conditins in the manufacturing and mining re- gions throughout the country, both as to wages, as to hours of labor, as to the labor of women and children, and as to the effect in the various labr centers of immigration from abroad. I this investigation especial attentio should be paid to the conditions o child labor and child-labor legislatio in the several States.

CORPORATIONS.

When we come to deal with great corporations the need for the Govern- ment to act directly is far greater than in the case of labor, because great cor- porations can become such only by en- gaging in interstate commerce, and interstete commerce is peculiarly the field of the General Government. It is an absurdity to expect to eliminate the abuses in great corporations by State action. It is difficult to be patient with an argument that such matters should be left to the States, because more than one State pursues the policy of creating on easy terms corporations which are never operated within that State at all, but in other States whose laws they ignore. The National Gov- ernment alone can deal adequately with these great corporations. To try to deal with them in an intemperate, destruc- tive, or demagogic spirit would, in all probability, mean bat nothing what- ever would be accomplished, and, with absolute certainty, that if anything were accomplished it would be of a harmful nature. The American people need to continue to show the very qual- ities that they have shown—that is, moderation, good sense, the earnest de- sire to avoid doing any damage, and yet the quiet determination to proceed, step by step, without halt and without hurry, in eliminating or at least in min- imizing whatever of mischief or of evil there is to interstate commerce in the conduct of great corporations. They are acting in no spirit of hostility to wealth, either individual or corporate. They are not against the rich man any more than against the poor man. On the contrary, they are friendly alike to- ward rich man and toward poor man, provided only that each acts in a spirit of justice and decency toward his fel- lows. Great corporations are necessary, and only men of great and singular mental power can manage such corporations successfully, and such men must have great rewards. But these corporations should be managed with due regard to the interest of the public as a whole. Where this can be done under the present laws it must be done. Where these laws come short others should be enacted to supplement them.

Yet we must never forget the deter- mining factor in every kind of work, of head or hand, must be the man's own good sense, courage, and kindli- ness. More important than any legis- lation is the gradual growth of a feel- ing of responsibility and forbearance among capitalists and wage-workers alike; a feeling of respect on the part of each man for the rights of others; a feeling of broad community of in- terest, not merely of capitalists among themselves, and of wage-workers alike; a feeling of respect on the part of each man for the rights of others; a feeling of broad community of interest, not merely of capitalists among them- selves, and of wage-workers among themselves, but of capitalists and wage-workers in their relations to each other, and of both in their relations to their fellows who with them make up the body politic. There are many cap- tains of industry, many labor leaders, who realize this.

BUREAU OF CORPORATIONS.

The policy of the Bureau is to ac- complish the purposes of its creation by cooperation, not antagonism; by making constructive legislation, not de- structive prosecution, the immediate object of its inquiries; by conservative investigation of law and fact, and by refusal to issue incomplete and hence necessarily inaccurate reports. Its policy being thus one of open inquiry into, and not attack upon, business, the Bureau has been able to gain not only the confidence, but, better still, the co- operation of men engaged in legitimate business.

The Bureau offers to the Congress the means of getting at the cost of pro- duction of our various great staples of commerce.

Of necessity the careful investiga- tion of special corporations will afford the Commissioner knowledge of certain business facts, the publication of which might be an improper infringement of private rights. The method of making public the results of these investiga- tions affords, under the law, a means for the protection of private rights. The Congress will have all facts ex- cept such as would give to another cor- poration information which would in- jure the legitimate business of a com- petitor and destroy the incentive for individual superiority and thrift.

The Bureau has also made exhaus- tive examinations into the legal con- dition under which corporate business is carried on in the various States; into all judicial decisions on the sub- ject; and into the various systems of corporate taxation in use. I call special attention to the report of the chief of the Bureau; and I earnestly ask that Congress carefully consider the report and recommendations of the Commis- sioner on this subject.

AGRICULTURE.

The Department of Agriculture has grown into an educational institution with a faculty of two thousand special- ists making research into all the scien- ces of production. The Congress appro- priates, directly and indirectly, six millions of dollars annually to carry on this work. It reaches every State and Territory in the Union and the islands o fthe sea lately come under our flag. Cooperation is had with the State ex- periment stations, and with many other institutions and individuals. The world is carefully searched for new varieties of grains, fruits, grasses, vegetables, trees, and shrubs, suitable to various localities in our country; and marked benefit to our producers has resulted.

The activities of our age in lines of research have reached the tillers of the soil and inspired them with ambition to know more of the principles that govern the forces of nature with which they have to deal. Nearly half of the people of this country devote their en- ergies to growing things from the soil. Until a recent date little has been done to prepare these millions for their life work. In most lines of human activity college-trained men are the leaders. The farmer had no opportunity for special training until the Congress made provision for it forty years ago. During these years progress has been made and teachers have been prepared. Over five thousand students are in at- tendance at our State agricultural col- leges. The Federal Government expends ten millions of dollars annually toward this education and for research in Washington and in the several States and Territories. The Department of Ag- riculture has given facilities for post- graduate work to five hundred young men during the last seven years, pre- paring them for advanced lines of work in the Department and in the State institutions.

PENSIONS.

The veterans of the Civil War have a claim upon the nation such as no other body of our citizens possess. The Pension Bureau has never in its history been managed in a more sat- isfactory manner than is now the case.

JAMESTOWN TRICENTENNIAL.

In 1907 there will be held at Hamp- ton Roads the tricentennial celebra- tion of the settlement at Jamestown, Virginia, with which the history of what has now become the United States really begins. I commend this to your favorable consideration. It is an event of prime historic significance in which all the people of the United States should feel, and should show, great and general interest.

POSTAL SERVICE.

In the Postoffice Department the service has increased in efficiency, and conditions as to revenue and ex- penditure continue satisfactory. The increase of revenue during the year was $9,358,181.10, or 6.9 per cent, the total receipts amounting to $143,382,- 624.24. The expenditures were $152,- 362,116.70, an increase of about 9 per cent over the previous year, being thus $8,979,492.36 in excess of the current revenue. Included in these expenditures was a total appropriation of $12,956,637.35 for the continuation and extension of the rural free-deliv- ery service, which was an increase of $4,902,237.35 over the amount ex- pended for this purpose in the pre- ceding fiscal year. Large as this ex- penditure has been the beneficent re- sults attained in extending the free distribution of mails to the residents of rural districts have justified the wisdom of the outlay. Statistics brought down to the 1st of October, 1904, show that on that date there were 27,138 rural routes established, serving approximately 12,000,000 of people in rural districts remote from postoffices, and that there were pend- ing at that time 3,859 petitions for the establishment of new rural routes. Unquestionably some part of the gen- eral increase in receipts is due to the increased postal facilities which the rural service has afforded. The reve- nues have also been aided greatly by amendments in the classification of mail matter, and the curtailment of abuses of the second-class mailing privilege. The average increase in the volume of mail matter for the period beginning with 1902 and end- ing June, 1905 (that portion for 1905 being estimated), is 40.47 per cent, as compared with 25.46 per cent for the period immediately preceding, and 15.92 for the four-year period im- mediately preceding that.

EXTRAVAGANCE IN PRINTING.

I call your attention to the great extravagance in printing and binding Government publications, and especi- ally to the fact that altogether too many of these publications are print- ed. There is a constant tendency to increase their number and their vol- ume. It is an understatement to say that no appreciable harm would be caused by, and substantial benefit would accure from, decreasing the amount of printing now done by at least one-half. Probably the great majority of the Government reports and the like now printed are never read at all, and furthermore the print- ing of much of the material contained in many of the remaining ones serves no useful purpose whatever.

CURRENCY.

The attention of Congress should be especially given to the currency ques- tion, and that the standing committees on the matter in the two Houses charged with the duty, take up the matter of our currency and see whether it is not possible to secure an agreement in the business world for bettering the system; the committees should consider the question of the retirement of the greenbacks and the problem of securing in our currency such elasticity as is consistent with safety. Every silver dollar should be made by law redeemable in gold at the option of the holder.

MERCHANT MARINE.

I especially commend to your at- tention the encouragement of our mer- chant marine by appropriate legisla- tion.

TARIFF.

On the tariff I shall communicate with you later.

ORIENTAL MARKETS.

The growing importance of the Ori- ent as a field for American exports drew from my predecessor, President McKinley, an urgent request for its special consideration by the Con gress. In his message of 1898 he stated:

"In this relation, as showing the peculiar volume and value of our trade with China and the peculiarly favora- ble conditions which exist for their expansion in the normal course of trade, I refe rto the communication addressed to the Speaker of the House of Representatives by rhe Sec- retary of the Treasury on the 14th of last Jnue, with its accompanying letter of the Secretary of State, recommend- ing an appropriation for a commission to study the industrial and commer- cial conditions in the Chinese Empire and to report as to the opportunities for and the obstacles to the enlarge- ment of markets in China for the raw products and manufactures of the United States. Action was not taken thereon during the last session. I cordially urge that the recommenda- tion receive at your hands the con- sideration which its importance and timeliness merit."

PROTECTION OF ELECTIONS.

The power of the government to protect the integrity of the elections of its own officials is inherent and has been recognized and affirmed by re- peated declarations of the Supreme Court. There is no enemy of free government more dangerous and none so insidious as the corruption of the electorate. No one defends or excuse corruption, and it would seem to fol- low that none would oppose vigorous measures to eradicate it. I recom- mend the enactment of a law directed against bribery and corruption in Fed- eral elections. The details of such a law may be safely left to the wise discretion of the Congress, but it should go as far as under the Con- stitution it is possible to go, and should include severe penalties against him who gives or receives a bribe intended to influence his act or opinion as an elector; and provis- sions for the publication not only of the expenditures for nominations and elections of all candidates, but also of all contributions received and expen- ditures made by political committees.

ALASKA.

The message makes a number of suggeations on Alaska, the treat- ment of the natives and other matters affecting the welfare of the territory. It is also recommended that Alaska be given a delegate in Congress.

THE INDIANS.

It is recommended that better treat- ment be accorded these wards of the nation, and that every encouragement possible be extended them to become more industrious and self-supporting.

CONSULAR SERVICE.

It is recommended that the consular service be raised to the highest degree of efficiency by selecting men who are familiar with trade conditions and who know something of the language of the country to which they are ac- credited.

CITY OF WASHINGTON.

The President recommends that the city be thoroughly cleaned up, so that it be made in fact a perfect Amer- ican city, free from contagious and evil influences.

THE ARMY.

Within the last three years the United States has set an example in disarmament where disarmament was proper. By law our Army is fixed at a maximum of one hundred thousand and a minimum of sixty thousand men. When there was insurrection in the Philippines we kept the army at the maximum. Peace came in the Philip- pines, and now our Army has been re- duced to the minimum at which it is possible to keep it with due regard to its efficiency. The guns now mounted require twenty-eight thousand men, if the coast fortifications are to be ade- quately manned. Relatively to the Nation, it is not now so large as the police force of New York or Chicago relatively to the population of either city. We need more officers; there are not enough to perform the regular army work. It is very important that the officers of the Army should be ac- customed to handle their men in masses, as it is also important that the National Guard of the several States should be accustomed to actual field maneuvering, especially in connection with the regulars. For this reason we are to be congratulated upon the suc- cess of the field maneuvers at Manas- sas last fall, maneuvers in which a larger number of Regulars and Na- tional Guard took part than was ever before assembled together in time of peace. No other civilized nation has, relatively to its population, such a diminutive Army as ours; and while the army is so small we are not to be excused if we fail to keep it at a very high grade of proficiency. It must be incessantly practiced; the standard for the enlisted men should be kept very high, while at the same time the ser- vice should be made as attractive as possible; and the standard for the of- ficers should be kept even higher— which, as regards the upper ranks, can best be done by introducing some system of selection and rejection into the promotions. We shall be able, in the event of some sudden emergency, to put into the field one first-class army corps, which should be, as a whole, at least the equal of any body of troops of like number belonging to any other nation.

Great progress has been made in protecting our coasts by adequate fortifications with sufficient guns. We should, however, pay much more heed than at present to the development of an extensive system of floating mines for use in all our more important har- bors. These mines have been proved to be a most formidable safeguard against hostile fleets.

THE NAVY.

The strong arm of the Government in enforcing respect for its just rights in international matters is the Navy of the United States. I most earnest- ly recommend that there be no halt in the work of upbuilding the American Navy. There is no more patriotic duty before us as a people than to keep the Navy adequate to the needs of this country's position. We have undertak- en to build the Isthmian Canal. We have undertaken to secure for our- selves our just share in the trade of the Orient. We have undertaken to protect our citizens from improper treatment in foreign lands. We con- tinue steadily to insist on the applica- tion of the Monroe Doctrine to the Western Hemisphere. Unless our atti- tude in these and all similar matters is to be a mere boastful sham we can not afford to abandon our naval pro- gramme. Our voice is now potent for peace, and it is so potent because we are not afraid of war. But our protes- tations upon behalf of peace would neither receive nor deserve the slight- est attention if we were impotent to make them good.

HOWAII AND PORTO RICO.

The Alaskan natives should be given the right to acquire, hold, and dis- pose of property upon the same condi- tions as given other inhabitants; and the privilege of citizenship should be given to such as may be able to meet certain definite requirements. In Hawaii Congress should give the gov- ernor power to remove all the officials appointed under him. The harbor of Honolulu should be dredged. The Ma- rine Hospital Service should be em- powered to study leprosy in the islands. I ask special consideration for the re- port and recommendations of the gov- ernor of Porto Rico.

THE PHILIPPINES.

In the Philippine Islands there has been during the past year a continua- tion of the steady progress which has obtained ever since our troops definite- ly got the upper hand of the insurgents. The Philippine people, or, to speak more accurately, the many tribes, and even races, sundered from one another more or less sharply, who go to make up people of the Philippine Islands, contain many elements of good, and some elements which we have a right to hope stand for progress. At present they are utterly incapable of existing in independence at all or of building up a civilization of their own. I firmly believe that we can help them to rise higher and higher in the scale of civili- zation and of capacity for self-govern- ment, and I most earnestly hope that in the end they will be able to stand, if not entirely alone, yet in some such relation to the United States as Cuba now stands. This end is not yet in sight, and it may be indefinitely post- poned if our people are foolish enough to turn the attention of the Filipinos away from the problem of achieving moral and material prosperity, or work- ing for a stable, orderly, and just gov- ernment, and toward foolish and dan- gerous intrigues for a complete inde- pendence for which they are as yet

Every measure taken concerning the islands should be taken primarily with a view to their advantage. We should cretainly give them lower tariff rates on their exports to the United States; if this is not done it will be a wrong to extend our shipping laws to them. I earnestly hope for the immediate en- actment into law of the legislation now pending to encourage American capital to seek investment in the is- lands in railroads, in factories, in plan- tations, and in lumbering and mining.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The White House, Dec. 5, 1904.

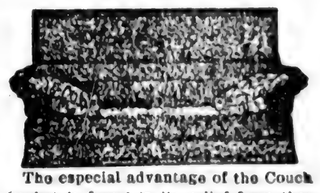
A NEW-STYLE CASKET.

An Innovation Which Does Away With the Uncomfortable-Appearing Coffin.

It is not so much what you pay for, nor what you pay, but what you get that needs your attention in the selec- tion of a casket, for the genius of the twentieth century has been just as busy in the way of funeral furnish- ings as in other line, until today the styles of caskets are quite differ- ent from what they were fifty years ago and changing every day.

This is especially true in Metallic Caskets, the old style heavy cast iron goods having given away to the more up-to-date copper linings which are neatly fitted into the best grades of varnished or cloth covered work.

One of the latest designs as recently brought out by the National Casket Co., is what is designated as a Couch Casket, which has the appearance of a comfortable couch when open, yet re- tains all the requisite outlines of the best styles in regular casket work when closed.



The especial advantage of the Couch Casket is found in its relief from that stiffness usually noted in all other designs, and impressing the minds of the friends as well as that of the fam- ily with a feeling of peace and rest- fulness not known before.

If it is desired to retain all of the preservation qualities as found in the copper linings, the Couch Casket can be enclosed in a metal lined outside box, which will then answer the dou- ble purpose of preserving both the casket as well as the remains.

All undertakers in the south should be in a position to furnish these latest improved goods, as the National Cas- ket Co's. large plant at Nashville, Tenn., has been especially fitted up for furnishing them on short notice, and large sales already prove that their efforts are being appreciated by the best class of people everywhere.

Write Quick FOR A Big Bargain

To better advertise the South's Leading Business College, four scholarships are of- fered young persons of this county at less than cost. WRITE TODAY.

GA-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

Wise Paul.

Paul Revere had just made his fa- mous ride.

"I'm so glad I didn't use an auto- mobile," he helated.

"Why not?" asked the friend.

"I would have been arrested for fast riding."—Chicago News.

Thieving has become so prevalent in Standford University that President Jordan has issued an appeal to the whole student body to assist him in running down the criminals.

Kindness is catching.
One sin bears many seeds.

The Recently Enlarged Edition of WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

CONTAINS
25,000 NEW WORDS, Etc.
New Gazetteer of the World
New Biographical Dictionary
2380 Quarto Pages.
Cloth. Leather. 1000 Illustrations.

Should be in Every Home, School, and Office

Rev. Lyman Abbott, D.D., Editor of The Outlook, says: Webster has always been the favorite in our household, and I have seen no reason to transfer my allegiance to any of his competitors.

FREE, "A Test in Pronunciation," instructive and entertaining. Also illustrated pamphlets.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

Best on Earth
Gantt's Planters and Distributors
WE GUARANTEE THEM. BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.
Write for Prices and Catalogue.
GANTT MFG. CO., Macon, Ga.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 5 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

No More Blind Horses Pat. Spiral Re-Opth. Shoe. Blind Horses & other Sore Eyes. Barry Co., Iowa City, Ia., have a new one.

FOR MEN only; everybody wants one; agents coin money. Send name. C. M. MALLORY 740 Walnside Street, Chattanooga, Tenn.

RIPANS TABULES are the best dys- pepsia medicine ever made. A hun- dred millions of them have been sold in a single year. Constipation, heart- burn, sick headache, dizziness, bad breath, sore throat and every illness arising from a disordered stomach are relieved or cured by Ripans Tab- ules. One will generally give relief within twenty minutes. The five cent package is sufficient for an ordinary occasion. All druggists sell them.

RIVER,
S.

IN SYRIA

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS

Radish and Cucumber Salad.

Arrange on a bed of carefully w ed watercress, alternate thin slice red skinned radishes and cucumb
and pour over a French dressing.
combination of scarlet, white and shades of green is attractive, while crispness and blending of spiciness cooness pleases the palate.

Chicken Fricassee.

Have the chicken disjointed and until nearly done; then drain from broth. Put one-half cup of butter a frying pan and fry the chicken u brown. Pour the broth into the and thicken by allowing one h
tablespoon of flour to each cup broth. Put the chicken in a deep d
and pour the gravy over.

Artichoke Soup.

Artichoke soup is another varia
but it needs to be thickened with little white roux. The artichok (peeled and put for a few minutes i cold water) must be boiled in a qua of milk, rubbed through a sieve a seasoned; and if cream is at hand spoonful or two may be added. Crea always adds to the velvet smoothne
of thick soups.

For Sour Milk.

Here is a new use for sour mil Put your silver into the milk when is thick; let it stand for half an hou
take the pieces out and wash them clean hot soapsuds; wipe dry, and y have clear, bright silver. It wou pay a busy housekeeper who has do her own polishing to buy two three quarts of milk and let it so for the purpose. Deborah.

Grape Catsup.

Cook five pounds of ripe grapes w a little water until soft and stra through a colander. Add five cups sugar, two cups of vinegar, one le tablespoonful each of cinamon, clove
allspice and black pepper and salt.
this is not spiced enough to suit t taste add a little more of all kin in the same proportion. Cook togeth until thickened, then seal in bott
or jars.

Parsnip Fritters.

Cook parsnips in boiling water un tender and then press through a ric or sieve. Measure two cups of sift pastry flour and sift with one and o half level teaspoons of baking powde Beat two eggs light, and two cups milk, then add the flour; beat and a the cold sifted parsnip. Beat well a fry in tablespoonfuls in deep hot f
In dropping the spoonful into the f hold the spoon near to top of the f
When a light brown drain the fr
ters and serve at once.

For sponging out bureau drawers sideboards use tepid water contain a small quantity of thymolin.

The old idea of putting oilcloth und the washstand cover is now adopte for doilies on highly polished table

Jars and bottles that smell of onio will be quite sweet and odorless if le out of doors filled with sand or garde
mold.

Raisins for fruit cake are much i proved by cooking. Let them soa slowly and then simmer until the sk
is tender.

A great convenience, at trifling co when building a new house, is a dum waiter connecting the kitchen with t
floors above.

If salt is sprinkled over the ran before frying is commenced, there w be no disagreeable odor if the f
spatters over.

Varnished walls in the bathroom a halls are easily washed off, and it cos little in either money, time or troub
to varnish them.

If silver is washed every week
warm suds containing a tablespoonf of ammonia the polish can be pr
served for a long time.

When using a broom don't swe with your back, use your arms. Swee in one direction with long, lig strokes. Sweep the carpet with t
pile not against it.

Nuts are said to make a great i provement in chicken salad. A c of English walnut meats to a cup celery cubed and one of chicken a cut in cubes is the proper proportio

The cane furniture, with white a gilded woodwork, so much in vogue the eighteenth century, is havi quite a fashionable revival at pres for elaborate rooms of the Fren style.

Dress sets of brilliant scarlet leath give a pretty touch of color to som desks of weathered oak. The bras furnishings now so much in vogue h monize beautifully with the dull bro
of this wood.

When the eyes are tired from long use or reading by insufficie light moisten pieces of old linen peroxide cotton with some good tract and place them on the clo eyelids for fifteen minutes or long while you lie down in a quiet room.

For small house apartments of limited dimensions, a shaving mir that is really a chest of toilet, ra etc., is a most convenient arti
This has a set of receptacles fitt into the top and six shallow drawers, f large enough to accommodate a f sized towel.

NITED STATES.
E.I.
Puyallup River.

ANUAL MESSAGE OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

fficial Communication From The President is Read in Congress

SUGGESTIONS ON LEGISLATION

President Makes Strong Recommendations Concerning Capital and Labor, Foreign Affairs, Army and Navy, Commerce and Other Subjects That Will Come Before Congress.

Following is the substance of the annual message of President Roosevelt, read in both Houses of Congress:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

The Nation continues to enjoy noteworthy prosperity. Such prosperity is of course primarily due to the high individual average of our citizenship, taken together with our great natural resources; but an important factor therein is the working of our long-continued governmental policies. The public have emphatically expressed their approval of the principles underlying these policies, and their desire that these principles be kept substantially unchanged, although of course applied in progressive spirit to meet changing conditions.

CAUTION AGAINST EXTRAVAGANCE.

The enlargement of scope of the functions of the National Government required by our development as a nation involves, of course, increase of expense, and the period of prosperity through which the country is passing includes expenditures for permanent improvements far greater than would be wise in hard times. Battleships and forts, public buildings, and improved waterways are investments which should be made when we have the money; but abundant revenues and large surplus always invite extravagance, and constant care should be taken to guard against unnecessary increase of the ordinary expenses of government. The cost of doing Government business should be regulated with the same rigid scrutiny as the cost of doing a private business.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

In the vast and complicated mechanism of our modern civilized life the dominant note is the note of industrialism; and the relations of capital and labor, and especially of organized capital and organized labor, to each other and to the public at large come second in importance only to the intimate questions of family life. Our peculiar system of government, with its sharp division of authority between the National and the several States, has been of the whole far more advantageous to development than a more strongly centralized government. But it is undoubtedly responsible for much of the difficulty of meeting with adequate legislation the new problems presented by the total change in industrial conditions on this continent during the last half century. In actual practice it has proved exceedingly difficult, and in many cases impossible, to get unanimity of wise action among the various States on these subjects. From the very nature of the case this is especially true of the questions affecting the employment of capital in huge masses.

With regard to labor the problem is less important, but it is simpler. So long as the States retain the primary control of the police power the circumstances must be altogether exceptional which require interference by the Federal authorities, whether in the way of safeguarding the rights of labor or in the way of seeing that nothing is not done by unruly persons to shield themselves behind the name of labor. If there is resistance to the Federal courts, interference with the mails, or interstate commerce, or molestation of Federal property, or if the State authorities in some crisis which they are unable to face call for help, then the Federal Government may interfere; but though such interference may be caused by a condition of things arising out of trouble connected with the question of labor, the interference itself simply takes the form of securing order without regard to the conditions which have caused the breach of order—for to keep order is a primary duty and in a time of disorder of violence all other questions sink into insignificance until order has been restored. In the District of Columbia and in the Territories the Federal law covers the entire field of government; and there the labor question is only acute in the great centers of commerce, manufacturing or mining. Nevertheless, both in the enactment and in the enforcement of law the Federal Government within the limited sphere should set an example to the State governments, especially in a matter so vital as this of securing labor. I believe that under the modern industrial conditions it is often necessary, and even where not necessary it is yet often wise, that there should be organization of labor in order better to secure the rights of the individual wage-worker. All encouragement should be given to any such organization, so long as it is conducted with due and decent regard for the rights of others. There are in this country great labor unions which have nobly, and other labor unions which have often, been among the most effective agents in working for good citizenship and for uplifting the condition of those whose welfare should be closest to our hearts. But when any labor union seeks improper ends, or seeks to use proper ends by improper means, all good citizens and more especially all honorable public servants should oppose the wrongdoing as resolutely as they would oppose the wrong doing of any great corporation. Of course any violence, brutality, or corruption should not for one moment be condoned. Wage-workers have an entire right to organize and by all peaceable and honorable means to endeavor to persuade their fellows to join with them in organizations. They have a legal right, which, according to circumstances, may or may not be a moral duty, to refuse to work in company with men who decline to join their organizations. They have under no circumstances the right to commit violence upon those, whether capitalists or wage-workers, who refuse to support their organizations, or who side with those with whom they are at odds; for mob rule is intolerable in any form.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY LAW.

The wage-workers are peculiarly entitled to the protection and the encouragement of the law. From the very nature of their occupation railroad men, for instance, are liable to be maimed in doing the legitimate work of their profession, unless the railroad companies are required by law to make ample provision for their safety. The Administration has been zealous in enforcing the existing law for this purpose. That law should be amended and strengthened. Wherever the National Government has power there should be a stringent employer's liability law, which should apply to the Government itself where the Government is an employer of labor.

PREVENTION OF RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.

The ever-increasing casualty list upon our railroads is a matter of grave public concern, and urgently calls for action by the Congress. In the matter of speed and comfort of railway travel our railroads give at least as good service as those of any other nation, and there is no reason why this service should not also be as safe as human ingenuity can make it. Many of our leading roads have been foremost in the adoption of the most approved safeguards for the protection of travelers and employees, yet the list of clearly avoidable accidents continues unduly large. The passage of a law requiring the adoption of a blocksignal system has been proposed to the Congress. I earnestly concur in that recommendation, and would also point out to the Congress the urgent need of legislation in the interest of the public safety limiting the hours of labor for railroad employees in train service upon railroads engaged in interstate commerce, and providing that only trained and experienced persons be employed in positions of responsibility connected with the operation of trains. Of course nothing can ever prevent accidents caused by human weakness or misconduct; and there should be drastic punishment for any railroad employee, whether officer or man, who by issuance of wrong orders or by disobedience of orders causes disaster. The law of 1901, requiring interstate railroads to make monthly reports of all accidents to pasengers and employees on duty, should also be amended so as to empower the Government to make a personal investigation, through proper officers, of all accidents involving loss of life which seem to require investigation, with a requirement that the result of such investigation be made public.

UNIONS OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES.

There is no objection to employees of the Government forming or belonging to unions; but the Government can neither discriminate for nor discriminate against nonunion men who are in its employment, or who seek to be employed under it. Moreover, it is a very grave impropriety for Government employees to band themselves together for the purpose of extorting empropriety high salaries from the Government. Especially is this true of those within the classified service. The letter carriers, both municipal and rural, are as a whole an excellent body of public servants. They should be amply paid. But their payment must be obtained by arguing their claims fairly and honorably before the Congress, and not by banding together for the defeat of those Congressmen who refuse to give promises which they can not in conscience give. The Administration has already taken steps to prevent and punish abuses of this nature; but it will be wise for the Congress to supplement this action by legislation.

BUREAU OF LABOR.

Much can be done by the Government in labor matters merely by giving publicity to certain conditions. The Bureau of Labor has done excellent work of this kind in many different directions. I shall shortly lay before you in a special mesage the full report of the investigation of the Bureau of Labor into the Colorado mining strike, as this is a a strike in which certain very evil forces, which are more or less at work everywhere under the conditions of modern industrialism, became startlingly prominent. It is greatly to be wished that the Department of Commerce and Labor, through the Labor Bureau, should compile and arrange for the Congress a list of the labor laws of the various States, and should be given the means to investigate and report to the Congress upon the labor conditions in the manufacturing and mining regions throughout the country, both as to wages, as to hours of labor, as to the labor of women and children, and as to the effect in the various labor centers of immigration from abroad. In this investigation especial attention should be paid to the conditions of child labor and child-labor legislation in the several States.

CORPORATIONS.

When we come to deal with great corporations the need for the Government to act directly is far greater than in the case of labor, because great corporations can become such only by engaging in interstate commerce, and interstete commerce is peculiarly the field of the General Government. It is an absurdity to expect to eliminate the abuses in great corporations by State action. It is difficult to be patient with an argument that such matters should be left to the States, because more than one State pursues the policy of creating on easy terms corporations which are never operated within that State at all, but in other States whose laws they ignore. The National Government alone can deal adequately with these great corporations. To try to deal with them in an intemperate, destructive, or demagogic spirit would, in all probability, mean that nothing whatever would be accomplished, and, with absolute certainty, that if anything were accomplished it would be of a harmful nature. The American people need to continue to show the very qualities that they have shown—that is, moderation, good sense, the earnest desire to avoid doing any damage, and yet the quiet determination to proceed, step by step, without halt and without hurry, in eliminating or at least in minimizing whatever of mischief or of evil there is to interstate commerce in the conduct of great corporations. They are acting in no spirit of hostility to wealth, either individual or corporate. They are not against the rich man any more than against the poor man. On the contrary, they are friendly alike toward rich man and toward poor man, provided only that each acts in a spirit of justice and decency toward his fellows. Great corporations are necessary, and only men of great and singular mental power can manage such corporations successfully, and such men must have great rewards. But these corporations should be managed with due regard to the interest of the public as a whole. Where this can be done under the present laws it must be done. Where these laws come short others should be enacted to supplement them.

Yet we must never forget the determining factor in every kind of work, of head or hand, must be the man's own good sense, courage, and kindliness. More important than any legislation is the gradual growth of a feeling of responsibility and forbearance among capitalists and wage-workers alike; a feeling of respect on the part of each man for the rights of others; a feeling of broad community of interest, not merely of capitalists among themselves, and of wage-workers among themselves, but of capitalists and wage-workers in their relations to each other, and of both in their relations to their fellows who with them make up the body politic. There are many captains of industry, many labor leaders, who realize this.

BUREAU OF CORPORATIONS.

The policy of the Bureau is to accomplish the purposes of its creation by cooperation, not antagonism; by making constructive legislation, not destructive prosecution, the immediate object of its inquiries; by conservative investigation of law and fact, and by refusal to issue incomplete and hence necessarily inaccurate reports. Its policy being thus one of open inquiry into, and not attack upon, business, the Bureau has been able to gain not only the confidence, but, better still, the cooperation of men engaged in legitimate business.

The Bureau offers to the Congress the means of getting at the cost of production of our various great staples of commerce.

Of necessity the careful investigation of special corporations will afford the Commissioner knowledge of certain business facts, the publication of which might be an improper infringement of private rights. The method of making public the results of these investigations affords, under the law, a means for the protection of private rights. The Congress will have all facts except such as would give to another corporation information which would injure the legitimate business of a competitor and destroy the incentive for individual superiority and thrift.

The Bureau has also made exhaustive examinations into the legal condition under which corporate business is carried on in the various States; into all judicial decisions on the subject; and into the various systems of corporate taxation in use. I call special attention to the report of the chief of the Bureau; and I earnestly ask that Congress carefully consider the report and recommendations of the Commissioner on this subject.

AGRICULTURE.

The Department of Agriculture has grown into an educational institution with a faculty of two thousand specialists making research into all the sciences of production. The Congress appropriates, directly and indirectly, six millions of dollars annually to carry on this work. It reaches every State and Territory in the Union and the islands o fthe sea lately come under our flag. Cooperation is had with the State experiment stations, and with many other institutions and individuals. The world is carefully searched for new varieties of grains, fruits, grasses, vegetables, trees, and shrubs, suitable to various localities in our country; and marked benefit to our producers has resulted.

The activities of our age in lines of research have reached the tillers of the soil and inspired them with ambition to know more of the principles that govern the forces of nature with which they have to deal. Nearly half of the people of this country devote their energies to growing things from the soil. Until a recent date little has been done to prepare these millions for their life work. In most lines of human activity college-trained men are the leaders. The farmer had no opportunity for special training until the Congress made provision for it forty years ago. During these years progress has been made and teachers have been prepared. Over five thousand students are in attendance at our State agricultural colleges. The Federal Government expends ten millions of dollars annually toward this education and for research in Washington and in the several States and Territories. The Department of Agriculture has given facilities for postgraduate work to five hundred young men during the last seven years, preparing them for advanced lines of work in the Department and in the State institutions.

PENSIONS.

The veterans of the Civil War have a claim upon the nation such as no other body of our citizens possess. The Pension Bureau has never in its history been managed in a more satisfactory manner than is now the case.

JAMESTOWN TRICENTENNIAL.

In 1907 there will be held at Hampton Roads the tricentennial celebration of the settlement at Jamestown, Virginia, with which the history of what has now become the United States really begins. I commend this to your favorable consideration. It is an event of prime historic significance in which all the people of the United States should feel, and should show, great and general interest.

POSTAL SERVICE.

In the Postoffice Department the service has increased in efficiency, and conditions as to revenue and expenditure continue satisfactory. The increase of revenue during the year was $9,358,181.10, or 6.9 per cent, the total receipts amounting to $143,384,624.24. The expenditures were $152,362,116.70, an increase of about 9 per cent over the previous year, being thus $8,979,492.36 in excess of the current revenue. Included in these expenditures was a total appropriation of $12,956,637.35 for the continuation and extension of the rural free-delivery service, which was an increase of $4,902,237.35 over the amount expended for this purpose in the preceding fiscal year. Large as this expenditure has been the beneficent results attained in extending the free distribution of mails to the residents of rural districts have justified the wisdom of the outlay. Statistics brought down to the 1st of October, 1904, show that on that date there were 27,138 rural routes established, serving approximately 12,000,000 of people in rural districts remote from postoffices, and that there were pending at that time 3,859 petitions for the establishment of new rural routes. Unquestionably some part of the general increase in receipts is due to the increased postal facilities which the rural service has afforded. The revenues have also been aided greatly by amendments in the classification of mail matter, and the curtailment of abuses of the second-class mailing privilege. The average increase in the volume of mail matter for the period beginning with 1902 and ending June, 1905 (that portion for 1905 being estimated), is 40.47 per cent, as compared with 25.46 per cent for the period immediately preceding, and 15.92 for the four-year period immediately preceding that.

EXTRAVAGANCE IN PRINTING.

I call your attention to the great extravagance in printing and binding Government publications, and especially to the fact that altogether too many of these publications are printed. There is a constant tendency to increase their number and their volume. It is an understatement to say that no appreciable harm would be caused by, and substantial benefit would accure from, decreasing the amount of printing now done by at least one-half. Probably the great majority of the Government reports and the like now printed are never read at all, and furthermore the printing of much of the material contained in many of the remaining ones serves no useful purpose whatever.

CURRENCY.

The attention of Congress should be especially given to the currency question, and that the standing committees on the matter in the two Houses charged with the duty, take up the matter of our currency and see whether it is not possible to secure an agreement in the business world for bettering the system; the committees should consider the question of the retirement of the greenbacks and the problem of securing in our currency such elasticity as is consistent with safety. Every silver dollar should be made by law redeemable in gold at the option of the holder.

MERCHANT MARINE.

I especially commend to your attention the encouragement of our merchant marine by appropriate legislation.

TARIFF.

On the tariff I shall communicate with you later.

ORIENTAL MARKETS.

The growing importance of the Orient as a field for American exports drew from my predecessor, President McKinley, an urgent request for its special consideration by the Congress. In his message of 1898 he stated:

"In this relation, as showing the peculiar volume and value of our trade with China and the peculiarly favorable conditions which exist for their expansion in the normal course of trade, I refe rto the communication addressed to the Speaker of the House of Representatives by the Secretary of the Treasury on the 14th of last Juue, with its accompanying letter of the Secretary of State, recommending an appropriation for a commission to study the industrial and commercial conditions in the Chinese Empire and to report as to the opportunities for and the obstacles to the enlargement of markets in China for the raw products and manufactures of the United States. Action was not taken thereon during the last session. I cordially urge that the recommendation receive at your hands the consideration which its importance and timeliness merit."

PROTECTION OF ELECTIONS.

The power of the government to protect the integrity of the elections of its own officials is inherent and has been recognized and affirmed by repeated declarations of the Supreme Court. There is no enemy of free government more dangerous and none so insidious as the corruption of the electorate. No one defends or excuses corruption, and it would seem to follow that none would oppose vigorous measures to eradicate it. I recommend the enactment of a law directed against bribery and corruption in Federal elections. The details of such a law may be safely left to the wise discretion of the Congress, but it should go as far as under the Constitution it is possible to go, and should include severe penalties against him who gives or receives a bribe intended to influence his act or opinion as an elector; and provisions for the publication not only of the expenditures for nominations and elections of all candidates, but also of all contributions received and expenditures made by political committees.

ALASKA.

The message makes a number of suggestions on Alaska, the treatment of the natives and other matters affecting the welfare of the territory. It is also recommended that Alaska be given a delegate in Congress.

THE INDIANS.

It is recommended that better treatment be accorded these wards of the nation, and that every encouragement possible be extended them, to oecome more industrious and self-supporting.

CONSULAR SERVICE.

It is recommended that the consular service be raised to the highest degree of efficiency by selecting men who are familiar with trade conditions and who know something of the language of the country to which they are accredited.

CITY OF WASHINGTON.

The President recommends that the city be thoroughly cleaned up, so that it be made in fact a perfect American city, free from contagious and evil influences.

THE ARMY.

Within the last three years the United States has set an example in disarmament where disarmament was proper. By law our Army is fixed at a maximum of one hundred thousand and a minimum of sixty thousand men. When there was insurrection in the Philippines we kept the army at the maximum. Peace came in the Philippines, and now our Army has been reduced to the minimum at which it is possible to keep it with due regard to its efficiency. The guns now mounted require twenty-eight thousand men, if the coast fortifications are to be adequately manned. Relatively to the Nation, it is not now so large as the police force of New York or Chicago relatively to the population of either city. We need more officers; there are not enough to perform the regular army work. It is very important that the officers of the Army should be accustomed to handle their men in masses, as it is also important that the National Guard of the several States should be accustomed to actual field maneuvering, especially in connection with the regulars. For this reason we are to be congratulated upon the success of the field maneuvers at Manassas last fall, maneuvers in which a larger number of Regulars and National Guard took part than was ever before assembled together in time of peace. No other civilized nation has, relatively to its population, such a diminutive Army as ours; and while the army is so small we are not to be excused if we fail to keep it at a very high grade of proficiency. It must be incessantly practiced; the standard for the enlisted men should be kept very high, while at the same time the service should be made as attractive as possible; and the standard for the officers should be kept even higher—which, as regards the upper ranks, can best be done by introducing some system of selection and rejection into the promotions. We shall be able, in the event of some sudden emergency, to put into the field one first-class army corps, which should be, as a whole, at least the equal of any body of troops of like number belonging to any other nation.

Great progress has been made in protecting our coasts by adequate fortifications with sufficient guns. We should, however, pay much more heed than at present to the development of an extensive system of floating mines for use in all our more important harbors. These mines have been proved to be a most formidable safeguard against hostile fleets.

THE NAVY.

The strong arm of the Government in enforcing respect for its just rights in international matters is the Navy of the United States. I most earnestly recommend that there be no halt in the work of upbuilding the American Navy. There is no more patriotic duty before us as a people than to keep the Navy adequate to the needs of this country's position. We have undertaken to build the Isthmian Canal. We have undertaken to secure for ourselves our just share in the trade of the Orient. We have undertaken to protect our citizens from improper treatment in foreign lands. We continue steadily to insist on the application of the Monroe Doctrine to the Western Hemisphere. Unless our attitude in these and all similar matters is to be a mere bonstful sham we can not afford to abandon our naval programme. Our voice is now potent for peace, and it is so potent because we are not afraid of war. But our protestations upon behalf of peace would neither receive nor deserve the slightest attention if we were impotent to make them good.

HOWAII AND PORTO RICO.

The Alaskan natives should be given the right to acquire, hold, and dispose of property upon the same conditions as given other inhabitants; and the privilege of citizenship should be given to such as may be able to meet certain definite requirements. In Hawaii Congress should give the governor power to remove all the officials appointed under him. The harbor of Honolulu should be dredged. The Marine Hospital Service should be empowered to study leprosy in the islands. I ask special consideration for the report and recommendations of the governor of Porto Rico.

THE PHILIPPINES.

In the Philippine Islands there has been during the past year a continuation of the steady progress which has obtained ever since our troope definitely got the upper hand of the insurgents. The Philippine people, or, to speak more accurately, the many tribes, and even races, sundered from one another more or less sharply, who go to make up people of the Philippine Islands, contain many elements of good, and some elements which we have a right to hope stand for progress. At present they are utterly incapable of existing in independence at all or of building up a civilization of their own. I firmly believe that we can help them to rise higher and higher in the scale of civilization and of capacity for self-government, and I most earnestly hope that in the end they will be able to stand, if not entirely alone, yet in some such relation to the United States as Cuba now stands. This end is not yet in sight, and it may be indefinitely postponed if our people are foolish enough to turn the attention of the Filipinos away from the problem of achieving moral and material prosperity, or working for a stable, orderly, and just government, and toward foolish and dangerous intrigues for a complete independence for which they are as yet

Every measure taken concerning the islands should be taken primarily with a view to their advantage. We should cretainly give them lower tariff rates on their exports to the United States; if this is not done it will be a wrong to extend our shipping laws to them. I earnestly hope for the immediate enactment into law of the legislation now pending to encourage American capital to seek investment in the islands in railroads, in factories, in plantations, and in lumbering and mining.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The White House, Dec. 5, 1904.

A NEW-STYLE CASKET.

An Innovation Which Does Away With the Uncomfortable-Appearing Coffin.

It is not so much what you pay for, nor what you pay, but what you get that needs your attention in the selection of a casket, for the genius of the twentieth century has been just as busy in the way of funeral furnishings as in other line, until today the styles of caskets are quite different from what they were fifty years ago and changing every day.

This is especially true in Metallic Caskets, the old style heavy cast iron goods having given away to the more up-to-date copper linings which are neatly fitted into the best grades of varnished or cloth covered work.

One of the latest designs as recently brought out by the National Casket Co., is what is designated as a Couch Casket, which has the appearance of a comfortable couch when open, yet retains all the requisite outlines of the best styles in regular casket work when closed.

The especial advantage of the Couch Casket is found in its relief from that stiffness usually noted in all other designs, and impressing the minds of the friends as well as that of the family with a feeling of peace and restfulness not known before.

If it is desired to retain all of the preservation qualities as found in the copper linings, the Couch Casket can be enclosed in a metal lined outside box, which will then answer the double purpose of preserving both the casket as well as the remains.

All undertakers in the south should be in a position to furnish these latest improved goods, as the National Casket Co's. large plant at Nashville, Tenn., has been especially fitted up for furnishing them on short notice, and large sales already proves that their efforts are being appreciated by the best class of people everywhere.

Write Quick FOR A Big Bargain

To better advertise the South's Leading Business College, four scholarships are offered young persons of this county at less than cost. WRITE TODAY.

GA-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

Wise Paul.

Paul Revere had just made his famous ride.

"I'm so glad I didn't use an automobile," he helated.

"Why not?" asked the friend.

"I would have been arrested for fast riding."—Chicago News.

Thieving has become so prevalent in Standford University that President Jordan has issued an appeal to the whole student body to assist him in running down the criminals.

Kindness is catching.
One sin bears many seeds.

The Recently Enlarged Edition of WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY CONTAINS
25,000 NEW WORDS, Etc.
New Gazetteer of the World
New Biographical Dictionary
2380 Quarto Pages.
New Plates. 6000 Illustrations.
Should be in Every Home, School, and Office
Rev. Lyman Abbott, D.D., Editor of The Outlook, says: Webster has always been the favorite in our household, and I have seen no reason to transfer my allegiance to any of his competitors.
FREE, "A Test in Pronunciation," instructive and entertaining. Also illustrated pamphlets.
G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

Best on Earth
Gantt's Planters and Distributors
WE GUARANTEE THEM.
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.
Write for Prices and Catalogue.
GANTT MFG. CO., Macon, Ga.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 5 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

No More Blind Horses
FOR MEN only; everybody wan's one; costs coin money. Send name. C. M. MALLORY 709 Walnside Street, Chattanooga, Tenn.

ESPAN-TASULE are the best dyspepsia medicine ever made. A hundred millions of them have been sold in a single year. Constipation, heartburn, sick headache, dizziness, bad breath, sore throat and every illness arising from a disordered stomach are relieved or cured by Espan-Tasules. One will generally give relief within twenty minutes. The five cent package is economical for an ordinary common. All druggists sell them.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, $1.25

The UNION and Weekly Atlanta Constitution. $1.50

The UNION and Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and Saturday News $1.25

Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it. tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

POLL TAX.

Now, every one of our people be sure to call on the tax collector and pay their back poll taxes, pay up and get into shape so that you can vote on stock law or school tax when they come up, as they surely will the coming year. In paying your poll tax it is only taking it out of one pocket and putting it into the other. The money stays right in your own community and goes to the school. tf

THE COUNTY TREASURER.

Mr. W. M. Wilson having been appointed special examiner to check up the county treasurer, has rendered his report to Judge L. H. Reynolds. Mr. Wilson finds everything all right to include November 30, 1904, and the different funds as follows:

Credit to general fund	$3,604 05
Special bridge fund indebted to general fund	244 01
Total general fund on hand	$3,360 04
Credit to E. and F. fund on hand	28 88
Credit redemption land fund on hand	47 21
Total on hand	$3,436 13

Shown as follows:

Statement of First National bank of Birmingham, dated Nov. 25, 1904, as the treasurer	$3,231 09
State warrants	204 00
Paid vouchers, not entered	1 04
Total amount as stated above	$3,436 13

A HOME NURSERY.

Mr. P. C. Smith, the nurseryman of Thorsby, was in our city Thursday and bought a pair of mules. Mr. Smith says he is selling fruit trees all over the state, his popular prices appeal to all who own homes, peach and apple trees at $1 per dozen, plum and pears at $1.50. Everything in the line of plants, vines, etc., just as reasonable and will give you a fruit growing manual free if you will write or send for it. Try him and you will get an article that you know will grow in this climate.

COTTON.

The slump in the price of cotton is very bad for all interests. The government estimate of a crop of over 12,000,000 bales is the cause. This estimate may be correct, but it seems incredible that the commissioners of agriculture in the various cotton states should have been so badly misinformed about a matter coming directly in their province, that it caused them to estimate the crop at a little over 10,000,000 bales. In plain words, the government claims to have found over six bales where the commissioners said there was only five. It is a matter that time alone can decide which is right, and farmers are perfectly justified in holding what cotton they have until January it can't go any lower in reason, but will probably be higher. W. P. Brown, of New Orleans (called the cotton king), has issued a statement in which he says that even with a 12,000,000-bale crop (which he does not believe), cotton is worth 10 cents.

OUR NEW BANK.

The Clanton Bank opened for business Monday in the building next door to the People's Savings Bank. The officers are W. I. Mullins, president; W. H Sartor, vice-president; E. A. Matthews, cashier; E. B. Deason, assistant cashier. The bank interior is very tastefully fitted up, and looks thoroughly business like, and there isn't any visible reason why the enterprise should not prove a success. "Competition is the life of trade," even in the banking business.

REMARKABLE FORESIGHT.

The outgoing county officers calculated very closely on their office supplies, for when Judge Reynolds and Clerk Collins took charge of their respective offices the stationery supplies were exhausted. Judge Reynolds had to send out for a tablet of writing paper so as to get off a few necessary letters. Even the lead pencils and pen-holders were out.

STATE EXAMINER GORMAN FILES A REPORT.

State Examiner J. T. Gorman yesterday reported to Acting Governor Cunningham on the condition of the books of the Chilton county officials. The report includes the accounts of the following: Hon. S. M. Adams, ex-probate judge; J. M. Morgan, sheriff; T. J. Hubbard, tax collector; E. B. Deason, ex-circuit court clerk; A. C. Mims, tax assessor, and J. W. Moore, superintendent of education.

The books of all these officials were found to have been correctly kept, except those of T. J. Hubbard, tax collector, and E. B. Deason, ex-clerk of the circuit court. The former owed the state $398.80 for taxes collected on assessments. These taxes were collected after Collector Hubbard had made out his abstract to the state auditor and the amount was remitted at once to the latter.

E. B. Deason had by error failed to put $100.40 of his solicitor's fees on his books, but remitted to the state immediately, having collected them.—Montgomery Advertiser.

This shows up rather different to the banner's garbled account a couple of weeks since. By the way, as this is the first publication of the examiner's report, the question arises, where did the banner get its figure?

COUNTY COURT.

Was in session Monday, Judge Reynold's first court, and the following cases were disposed of:

Ed Mickey (colored), charge, violating contract; discharged. Wm. Smith (colored), charge, vagrancy, plea of guilty, fined $15 and costs. Harry Tracey (colored), plea of guilty, fined $20 and costs. Clay Isaacs, charge, unlawful riding on train, plea guilty, $15 and costs. Joseph Littlejohn, charge, vagrancy, plea not guilty, fined $15 and costs. This last man, who claimed to be from Michigan and has been laying out in the swamp near town for several days, insisted on getting on his knees and praying before he took the stand in his own behalf. He seems to be demented and is better off in confinement than laying out such weather as this.

After court adjourned Judge Reynolds married his first couple, Mr. E. L. McKinney, and Miss Lilla Headley, and though he admits he was a little flustrated, he tied the knot hard and fast, and the young couple went off happy. Best wishes to them.

ESCAPED FROM JAIL.

Wm. West, (colored), who was confined on a charge of grand larceny, escaped from the jail Sunday. It seems the prisoners had cut the heads off of the bolts in a big iron patch and had crawled through the hole into the corridor, and when Mrs. Smitherman sent her young son Joe in after the dinner dishes they caught hold of him and threatened to kill him if he uttered a sound, and this man West walked right past Mrs. Smitherman, and she cried out to her husband, who was getting some coal for the prisoners' fire, and who reached the spot in time to hold the others back, and then Deputy Sheriff Smitherman went in and at the point of a pistol rescured his son. West has not been heard from since.

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH.

Regular first Sunday services were held and the pastor, Rev. A. C. Swindall, of East Lake, preached an excellent sermon in the morning. There wasn't any service in the evening on account of the stormy weather. Pastor Swindall announced that on the third Sunday the roll of the church would be called, and those not responding to their names or sending a valid reason for not being there would be dropped from the roll of membership, their absence being taken to mean that they do not care to be considered as members any longer. It looks like the church is about to prune away the dead limbs which have impeded its growth for some years now. This is a much more merciful and easy method of letting those members out who have lost their interest in the church from various causes than to try them in conference. May success attend the pastor's efforts, and thereby cause a lively, healthy growth in religious interest in this community which sorely needs it.

IN MEMORIAM.

Hall of Clanton Lodge,
No. 423, A. F. & A. M.,
December 3, 1904.

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren of Clanton Lodge, No. 423, A. F. & A. M.:

We, your committee appointed to draft and present resolutions upon the death of our late brother and past master, William D. Sartor, beg leave to submit the following:

Brother Sartor was born in Butler county, Alabama, on the 11th of July, 1836, and died at his home with his son, Willie H. Sartor, in Clanton, Ala., on the 13th of November, 1904, from injuries sustained by a fall—age sixty-eight years, four months and two days.

When quite a young man he attached himself to the Baptist church, and ever afterwards adhered to that faith and order. He became a member of the Clanton Baptist church at the time of its organization, and remained an active and consistent member thereof until his death.

Brother Sartor was made a master Mason while in the confederate army, and upon returning to his home in Autauga county, Alabama, affiliated with Autauga lodge, No. 31, at Autaugaville, which lodge he afterwards served as worshipful master.

He was one of the charter members of our lodge, and its first worshipful master, to which position he was several times afterwards chosen. He was a zealous and enthusiastic Mason—with him his lodge was next to his church. With but few exceptions since the organization of our lodge on the first Saturday night in September, 1877, he has been present at every communication, and rendered valuable service in making each Mason raised in this lodge. He was accepted as authority on all Masonic questions and, in fact, regarded by the members as the "Father of the Lodge."

In recognition of the valuable services by him and of the love and esteem for him, this lodge, on the 2nd of September, 1899, presented him with a beautiful past master's apron. And on the 2d of December, 1899, conferred upon him the title of "honorary life member." And,

Whereas, The Grand Master of the Universe in His unerring wisdom and providence, has seen fit to call our esteemed friend and brother from earthly labor and toil to rest and refreshment above, theefore be it resolved:

First—That we, as a lodge, recognized in our deceased brother those elements which characterized him as a loyal and devoted Mason.

Second—That our town and community have lost an upright, noble and trustworthy citizen, our lodge one of its most honored members, the family a kind and affectionate father.

Third—That we submit to the solemn mandate which has cast a gloom over our lodge and the community, and extend to the family our sincere sympathy in this, their sad bereavement.

Fourth—That a page in the records of this lodge be set apart and these resolutions and preamble written thereon; that a copy be furnished to the family of our deceased brother, and one to the Alabama Baptist and each of the county papers, with request to publish same.

Respectfully submitted
E. A. MATTHEWS
J. R. MULLINS,
A. C. SMITH.
Committee.

PROGRAM OF TEACHERS' INSTITUTE,

To Be Held at Concord January 20-21, 1905.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Music by teachers of institute.

Devotional Exercises—Rev. T. F. Davis.

Welcome Address—E. H. Parrish.

Opening Address—Robert Session.

Enrolment. Short talks by teachers.

Noon, Centralizing County Schools—G. L. Speer.

Give Your Daily Program in Teaching and Your Opinion as to Its Necessity—J. B. Ruffin, H. A. Harris.

The Ideal Teacher—P. G. Maness.

The Ideal Parent—A. E. Davis.

SATURDAY.

9:30Opening query box.

Improvement in and Around School Buildings—J. H. Anderson, Robert Jones.

School Discipline—S. B. Powell, B. R. Richardson.

Discussion of rules by institute.

Educational address.

Conveyance will be furnished teachers coming by rail to Clanton.

J. W. MOORE,
Chairman.
W. O. PERRY,
R. A. RASCO,
H. L. DAVIS,
G. L. SPEER, Sec'y.
Board of Education.

The prettiest farmer in the world is said to be a young woman who lives in Michigan. How would you like to be the hired man?

A woman burglar is operating in this city. Don't kill the mice, is the consequent advice of the Ladiangton News.

Coming Events

A National Paper.

The News company of Joliet, Ill., proprietors of one of the largest and best printing plants in the state outside of Chicago, are publishing the Saturday News as a third edition of their paper. The Saturday News is devoted exclusively to the interests of the people's party and is national in scope. Each week it contains matters of interest regarding the progress of the party from all parts of the nation.

Being published at the headquarters of the party and the chairman of the national committee being president of the News company and one of the editors, it is peculiarly favorably located to give general news of the movement.

The People's party has long felt the need of a national paper and it is cause for congratulation that one has been started and by a concern that is so strong that its success is assured from the start while the names of such well known workers and writers as Hon. James H. Ferriss, Charles Q. De France, Jo A. Parker and R. E. Bray is a guarantee of its character and loyalty.

The regular subscription price of the Saturday News is 50 cents per year, but we have arranged with the publishers to furnish it and the Union, both papers one year for $1.25.

Call at our office and see a sample copy and take advantage of this offer. tf.

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's Second Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton county for the year 1904, and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Jemison, beat 2, Dec. 1-2, 1904.
Clanton, last 10 days in the year commencing December 20, 1904.

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

Notice No. 25120.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., November 4, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., Dec. 17, 1904, viz: Ansom M. Hudgens, Homestead entry No. 34625, for the Sw 1-4 of Nw 1-4, W 1-2 of Sw 1-4, Section 30, Tp. 21 n R 17 east.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Redding J. Holloway, of Verbena, Ala.; George E. Skinner, of Lightwood, Ala.; William Gaylor, of Lightwood, Ala.; James Glenn, of Mountain Creek, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
6t Register.

PUBLIC SALE

On December 15th 1904 at 10 A. M. I will sell to the highest bidder the following viz:

Household and Kitchen Furniture,
Farming Tools all new,
Mule 7 years old, weighs 1,000 lbs.
A 1 Horse Wagon and Harness,
Two good Milch Cows,
One brood Sow (Berkshire)
A Fine meat Hog,
100 bushels Corn,
1000 bundles Fodder,
150 bushels Cotton Seed,
One Yearling Calf,

At my place 2½ miles north of Cooper.

C. C. Mitchell.

Freak election bettors who vowed to eat their shoes if the other candidate should win may find some comfort in Ernest Thompson Seton's suggestion in a recent magazine article on the subject of living without food in the wilderness, that boiled leather contains a large amount of nutriment and is not unpalatable if one is very hungry.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.

You will find a full line of

SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS. PAINTS OILS and GLASS.

We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.

CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

DRINK

CREAM of KENTUCKY Whisky.

Sold only by

COLLINS BROS., Calera, Alabama.

Mail orders promptly filled.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,

COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,

Clanton. Alabama

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.

Catalogue for the asking.

1011 First Ave BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.
County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association

of Alabama.

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

By the People and for the People.

Chilton County Branch

Organized February 3rd, 1900.

W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.

Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

Full particulars furnished upon application to

WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

PAUL CALAME,

205 21st Street

Birmingham, Ala.

Practical Watchmaker and Optician

Eyes Correctly Fitted

Mail orders promptly filled

P. D. WILSON'S

Going out of Business

Big Reduction in Prices of Everything for CASH ONLY

Now is the Time to get GENUINE BARGAINS

Attacked Football.

Dr. Andrew S. Draper, before a meeting of the Massachusetts Teachers' Association, at Boston, Mass., attacked football as the game is played at present, and suggested reforms for saving the game.

Saved Fellow Passenger.

Cabin passengers on the Baltic contributed $325 to Mrs. King, an immigrant who had lost her money, and saved her and her nine children from deportation.

Home Capital in Canada.

Mr. E. S. Christon, general manager of the Bank of Montreal, who has just been re-elected president of the Canadian Bankers' Association at the annual meeting in Toronto, in an interview stated that money was never better than at present.

Denies Yellow Fever Report.

The chief of the Cuban Department of Health and Sanitation denied that there were any cases of yellow fever in Cuba.

CITY OFFICIALS

Mayor—Judson Strock.
Council—W. M. Wilson, E. G. Ra[illegible], W. I. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
Clerk—J. Watts Moore.
Marshal—Ed Smitherman.

COURTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.

Spring Term—1st Monday in April.
Summer Term—3rd Monday in July.
Fall Term—1st Monday in Novem[illegible]

Judge—T. Scott Sayre.
Solicitor—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
Clerk—Sam W. Collins.

CHANCERY COURT.

Spring Term—2nd Monday in March.
Fall Term—2nd Monday in Septem[illegible]

Chancellor—[illegible] W. W. [illegible]
Register—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan[illegible]

COUNTY COURT.

First Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

2nd Monday February, 1st Monday [illegible], 1st Monday June, 2nd Monday [illegible], 2nd Monday August, 1st Monday [illegible]ember.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Judge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
Treasurer—W. T. Cullen.
Sheriff—J. M. Morgan.
Solicitor—J. O. Middleton.
Tax Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

1st District—W. H. Conway.
2nd District—Alex Glasscock.
3rd District—R. P. Kendrick.
4th District—Moses Robinson.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.

Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.

Hon. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

CHURCHES

Pastors and clerks are cordially asked to send the editor any news regarding their churches which they would like published. Also if there are any changes in these notices please send corrections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Clanton—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor. [illegible] Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
Shiloh-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; C. C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
Jackson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; [illegible]. Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
Mt. Pleasant—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday. [illegible] Huett, clerk, Verbena.
Union—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.
Little Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th Sunday. V. J. Gragg, clerk.
Center Hill—Rev J. M. Gothard, pastor; J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
Concord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd Sunday. T. N. Parrish, clerk.
Union Chapel—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.
Chestnut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
Mt. Zion—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday. W. B. Jones, clerk.
Bethel Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 1st Sunday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
Mt. Olivet—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st Sunday. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
Shiloh—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pastor; W. J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
Mt. Nebozer—Rev. P. G. Maness, pastor; J. H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
Mt. Olivet—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; [illegible] Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
Liberty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd Sunday; W. M. Wood, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
Pine Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pastor; [illegible]. Barnes, clerk, British.
Mt. Cherry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; [illegible] Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
Mt. Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rudd, pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk.
Mt. Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, [illegible]. D. H. Muffins, clerk, Jumbo.
Cane Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, [illegible]. W. H. Wilson, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday; George Trawick, clerk.
Mt. Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; [illegible] W. Billingsley, clerk.
New Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd Sunday; G. W. Hill, clerk.
Mt. Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd Sunday; Henry Smith, clerk.
Pilgrims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, 1st Sunday. J. McTidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
Mt. Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thompson, 3rd Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
Mt. Pleasant Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, 4th Sunday. W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
Mt. Pleasant Grove—Rev. G. W. Freeman, pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk.
Cane Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, 4th Sunday. J. J. McDowell clerk.
Providence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt. 4th Sunday. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemison.
Providence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong. [illegible] Riley Robinson, clerk, Clanton.
[illegible]—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor; [illegible] Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
[illegible]—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd Sunday. W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
[illegible]—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sunday.

tf

DRINK
REAM of KENTUCKY
Whisky.
Sold only by
NS BROS., Calera, Alabama.
Mail orders promptly filled.

THE BIG STORE, Cor. ... Ave ... 7th St.
—Is at The Head of The Procession.—
oods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes
FURNITURE,
NE AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.
W. I. MULLINS,
n. Alabama

M. Jacobs & Bros.,
Furniture and Rugs.
SOLE AGENTS—
rnicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.
n for the asking.
BIRMINGHAM, ALA

TCH PRINTING CO.
Book Makers and Lithographers. and Office Supplies a Specialty.
... Ave., BIRMINGHAM, AL

Mutual Insurance Associatio
of Alabama.
RED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
By the People and for the People.
hilton County Branch
Organized February 3rd, 1900.
...SON. WALLACE C. EDLER,
...al. Sec'y.-Treas.
...rmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Co
...l Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind a
...g. The Cheapest, Safest and Most
...od of Insurance Known to Man.
...y Cost ... 56-100 of 1 percent.
...rs furnished upon application to
WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

AME,
... Street
...ham, Ala.
Practical Watchmak
and Optician
Eyes Correctly
Fitted
Mail orders promptly fill

WILSON'S
Going out of Busines for CASH ON
...w is the Time to get
ENUINE BARGAINS

Football ...
...aper before a meet... Massachusetts Teachers' ...ston, Mass., at... the game is played ...gested reforms for ...

Home Capital in Canada.

Mr. E. S. Christon, general ma... of the Bank of Montreal, who ... just been re-elected president of ... Canadian Bankers' Association at ... annual meeting in Toronto, in an interview stated that money was ... better than at present.

Denies Yellow Fever Report.

The chief of ...e Cuban Departm... of Health and Sanitation denied ... there were any cases of yellow ... in Cuba.

CITY OFFICIALS

...ce—Judson Street.
...ell—W. M. Wilson, R. G. Rot...
W. L. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
...k—J. Watts Moore.
...shal—Ed Shutherman.

COURTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.

...ing Term—1st Monday in April.
...mer Term—3rd Monday in July.
...l Term—1st Monday in Novem...

...ge—T. Scott Sayre.
...ecitor—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
...k—Sam W. Collins.

CHANCERY COURT.

...ring Term—2nd Monday in March.
...l Term—2nd Monday in Septem...

...ancellor—Hon. W. W. White...

...gister—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan...

COUNTY COURT.

...st Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

...d Monday February, 1st Monday ..., 1st Monday June, 2nd Monday ...2nd Monday August, 1st Monday ...mber.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

...ge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
...asurer—W. T. Callen
...eriff—J. M. Morgan.
...licitor—J. O. Middleton.
...Assessor—A. C. Mims.
...Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

...st District—W. H. Conway.
...cond District—Alex Glasscock.
...rd District—R. P. Kendrick.
...rth District—Moses Robinson.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.

...f. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.

...n. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES

...tors and clerks are cordially ask... send the editor any news regard... their churches which they would ... published. Also if there are any ... in these notices please send cor...

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

...ine—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
... Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
...h-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas...
...C. C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
...okson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor;
...V. Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
...hany—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday.
... Huett, clerk, Verbena.
...nton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st ... 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins,

...e Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th ...y. V. J. Gragg, clerk.
...ter Hill—Rev J. M. Gothard, ...; J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
...cord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd ...y. T. N. Parrish, clerk.
...lan Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm... 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, ...

...tnut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, ... J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
...mith—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd ...y. W. B. Jones, clerk.
...s Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, ...nday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
...mith—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st ...Y. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
...an—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas... J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
...zer—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas... H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
...son—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ... Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
...ty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd ...; W. M. Wood, clerk.
...donia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd ... H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
...Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas... Z. Barnes, clerk, British.
...erry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ...Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
...t Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud... pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk,

...t Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, ... D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
...e Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, ... W. H. Wilson, clerk.
...donia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd ... George Trawick, clerk.
...Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas... W. Billingsley, clerk.
...Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, ...day; G. W. Hill, clerk.
...Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd ... Henry Smith, clerk.
...ks' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, ... I. Maxwell, clerk, Pletcher.
...nt Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom... Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
...nt Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, ... R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
...nt Grove—Rev. J. W. Free... pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk,

...e Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, ...day. J. J. McDowell clerk.
...ence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt ...ay. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi...

...ence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong. ... Riley Robinson, clerk, Clan...

...—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor; ...binson, clerk, Rushton.
...—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd ... W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
...—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun... in Cuba.

...day. J. Benson, clerk, Adams.
Thorsby—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Robert Jones, clerk, Thorsby.
Union Grove—Rev. J. M. Thomas, pastor; R. S. Chandler, clerk, Jemison.
Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2d Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.
Verbena—Rev. J. W. Partridge, 1st Sunday. T. J. Bland, clerk.
Valley Creek—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. W. Mitchell, clerk, Plantersville.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

Clanton Circuit, Rev. T. F. Davis, Pastor.
Thorsby—1st Sunday.
Walnut Grove—2nd Sunday, morning.
Unity—2nd Sunday, evening.
Shady Grove—3rd Sunday.
Mount Pisgah—4th Sunday, morning.
Enterprise—4th Sunday, evening.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Highland School House—Rev. M. F. Lett, 3rd Sunday and Saturday before. T. L. Adams, clerk.
Enterprise—Rev. M. F. Lett, 4th Sunday. T. F. Patterson, clerk.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN.

St. Olafs, Thorsby—Rev. H. Engh, pastor. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

Concordia, Thorsby—Rev. J. E. Hedberg. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2d Sunday. Song service every 2d and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

MASONIC.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday, Clanton.
Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 250—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.
Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 423—First Saturday, Clanton.
Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 567—First Saturday Billingsley.
Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.
Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 411—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.
Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 473—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.
Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

of the

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE CO.

Of Toronto, Canada.

1st January, 1904.

UNITED STATES BRANCH.

Assets.

Government bonds	$223,650.00
State and municipal bonds	511,473.19
Cash on hand and deposit	169,720.71
Stocks and bonds	305,793.00
Premiums in course of col.	204,834.79
Interest due and accrued.	11,833.20
	$1,427,304.89

Liabilities.

Reserve premium fund (N. Y. Standard)	$849,771.77
Reserve for unpaid losses	100,786.14
	$950,557.91
Surplus in United States	$476,746.98
Total income in United States for 1903	$1,547,736.84
Total losses paid in U. S. from 1874 to 1903, inclusive	$14,674,843.26

WALLACE C. EDLER, Agent, Clanton, Alabama.

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 acres within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is timbered, 1 set mill-rocks, 48 inch, 1 Horse, weight 1100 lbs.

Alfred Popwell, Clanton, Ala.

NOTICE.

All persons owing me are hereby notified to call and settle their accounts at once, as I am going out of business and must close up all accounts, notes etc. without delay.

Respectfully
P D Wilson.

tf

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to Dec. 7, '04, 57,776.
Price on same date, 7c.
Total receipts same week, '03, 5,967.
Price same date, 11 1-2c.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

J. A. Logan and A. D. Massey were in Clanton Thursday.

Attorney A. C. Smith went to Mountain Creek Thursday on business.

A. L. Robinson and son, Oscar, were pleasant visitors Thursday.

J. F. Hayes and J. B. Littlejohn were welcome callers Thursday.

J. T. Littleton paid us a welcome visit Thursday.

C. R. Childress was a pleasant caller Thursday.

L. C. Robinson was in Clanton Friday.

W. P. Headley was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

J. M. Smith, Lum Smith and F. C. Collins were in town Saturday.

J. W. Littlejohn was in Clanton Saturday and told us he had a box, R. F. D. No. 4.

J. N. Dennis was a pleasant visitor Monday.

Lee Hayes was in town Monday.

Bob Miller was in town Monday, having just returned from a visit to his mother in Coosa county. He says he had a good time and saw some big hogs.

G. D. Mims was a pleasant caller Monday.

Mrs. Judge Reynolds was in Clanton Monday looking over her new house. The judge has bought 'Ben Teel's house, about the best one in Clanton, and is having it repainted and papered, and will move in about the first of January.

Mrs. H. I. Honeycutt was in Clanton a couple of days last week getting ready to move into the old Stanfield house.

Judge Reynolds went to Montgomery Monday night to attend the Masonic grand lodge, to which he is a delegate. The judge will also attend to leasing the county convicts while he is in Montgomery. He has an offer now of double the price paid to the last administration, but hopes to do still better for the county.

County Commissioners Conway, Glasscock and Riggins were in Clanton Monday winding up a little business of the old commissioners' court, and they also appointed Judge Reynolds county convict agent.

W. A. Riggins was a pleasant visitor Tuesday.

J. P. Rushing was a welcome caller Tuesday with Mr. O. M. Cole, of Elmore county, who is visiting him.

W. J. Headley was in Clanton Tuesday.

Rev. R. M. Honeycutt performed the marriage ceremony that united Miss Fannie Nix and Mr. German H. Crosby. The bride is the daughter of Young Nix, Esq., and the groom was formerly of Strasburg. The happy couple have gone to Mobile on a trip, and that their future life may be happy and prosperous is the wish of all, including THE UNION.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

W. C. Martin and Miss Lelia Billingsley. Stephen Pate and Miss Lily Dawson. German H. Crosby and Miss Fanny Nix. Walter B. Hubbard and Miss Mary Christian. J. K. Langston and Miss M. C. Robinson. E. L. McKinney and Miss Lily Headley. Herman W. Schmidt and Miss Sudie Lowery.

BETH-SALEM.

Since the election is over and as THE UNION quotes it, "the voice of the people is the voice of God," I can not see why all sane minds are not satisfied with the results, especially in the county where we are so directly concerned. However, I must say that all rules have exceptions, though I'm proud to say that none of these exceptions exist in our community, but on the other hand all are rejoicing over the result of their vote, and while they are rejoicing, they've cut out all things pertaining to politics and have taken up these important issues. First a goodly number met at the church on last Sunday, and with Rev. Joe Moore as moderator, organized a Sabbath school, which has been badly needed for quite a while. I hope that the people, since they have been permitted to enjoy so many blessings awarded them by their Maker, could well afford to spend a few moments each Sabbath in the thanking of Him (their only dependence) and elevating and expanding the minds of their children to higher planes in moral life. I'll say that not only the people of our community are welcomed, but the surrounding schools are cordially invited to help us in this work. Second, they've made arrangements to build another church house, of a more roomy and convenient nature. Hope to see our community in a few years above the average. How? By all pulling together as we are now. I'm sorry to note that Mrs. Jane Popwell is quite sick, but wish her a speedy recovery. Fred Johnson has just returned from the Coosa river. He reports a nice time and got many fish. The neighborhood health is generally good. Good wishes to THE UNION and its many readers.

FRIEND TO THE THREE GIRLS.

DIXIE.

Editor Union:

Our community is doing well; crops all gathered, and many have made money. Mr. Blount has bought machinery. Mr. Weaver has bought a wagon and mare and colt. Mr. Thompson is going to put up a turpentine still.

Mrs. Cherry is on a visit to her mother (Mrs. Barrett, near Clanton), and we hope she will enjoy herself.

From what I hear there is a prospect of numerous weddings in the near future around here.

Mr. Mims, of Shiloh, spent a couple of days visiting Lee Barrett last week, and Mrs. Johnson, of Ridersville, was also a visitor last Thursday.

John Barrett and family made a visit of several days to Mr. Bates, near Selma, last week.

The school at Stanton is doing well, though we are all sorry that Mr. Bone has left us.

Jesse Barrett has been down with "chills," but is better now and going to school.

I think the "Ploy-Boy," of Thorsby, sent in a good piece, so I will sign mine—

"MATCH BOX."

ROCKY-MOUNT.

Editor Union:

Please allow me space in your paper to thank my friends who supported me on Nov. 8th, and to those friends who have shown me so much kindness as to my bond, etc. I will remember you all and stand ready to do anything I can for you at any time. I see that some parties put a coffin on The Union door. Let me tell you one thing: The people of Chilton county have quit playing with children's toys. When we were children we thought as children and spoke as children, but now since we have grown to be men we have put away childish things. So don't notice such things, for they don't know what they are doing. The Good Book says "Bless them that mourn, for they shall be comforted." So if you want to mourn with them all right, and if you need others to mourn with, you can get them. With thanks to all and The Union.

Respectfully,
B. E. COLLINS.

BEAT NINE.

Three days' rain and prospect for more. Such weather is not favorable for newsgathering.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hayes and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Collins are visiting relatives in Blocton.

R. W. Scott is away on a visit to his mother in Baldwin county.

Jack Parker and Ben Price went to Montgomery Monday.

Rev. F. A. Gibson and son, Rev. J. W. Gibson, were here last week seeing about a home for the latter, who is to serve the Chilton circuit as pastor the coming year.

A. F. and Johnnie Mims have bought a new boiler and engine for their new saw mill.

Mrs. J. R. Collins has bought brick and lumber to remodel her dwelling.

Our school is flourishing—115 scholars enrolled and more expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Hermie Childress received a fine girl baby last week, and now Aif Childress is not only 'squire, school trustee, etc., but grand-pa as well.

"Au revoir."

NIM ROD.

UNION.

Editor Union:

Everything is going on nicely in this community. The people have gathered good crops and are well pleased with the results of the election. With wheat-sowing and land-clearing it seems as if they are to do something, even if the price of cotton is down. Our country has always prospered under republican rule. Still our success depends on personal effort, individually and collectively. "No man liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself." We should remember that temporal prosperity has a tendency to cloud our spiritual and moral vision, and thus hinder our growth and development as true and genuine citizens and fellowbeings. Let's not be vain over our success, but make good use of the opportunity afforded to inform ourselves as to our duties as citizens of a republican government. Now is the time for serious thought, among the many obligations that confront us today is that of being good citizens; to live selfishly is not Christian, our dear homeland demands our devotion, our love, our prayers and work. For a man to apparently devote his time to the interest of his country to accomplish a selfish end, or for us to pray "Thy kingdom come" and then beat our neighbor out of his rights, is not a characteristic of good citizenship. A man should have a higher object in view than the accumulation of worldly goods or honors. We are glad to know that we have so many good citizens, but we need more still, and as our country becomes more enlightened to go higher and higher, until we reach the ideal of good citizenship, mentally, morally and practically.

E. W. HUNNICUTT.

PROPERTY FOR SALE.

The prettiest house in Clanton, 8 rooms with two acres of ground enclosed by fancy wire fence.

One brick store house.

Two frame houses, three rooms each, new, near depot.

All pay a handsome income.

Bargains, see me at once.

tf. J. B. DOWNS.

To Sign Peace Treaty.

Italy announced her willingness to sign an arbitration treaty with this country.

Time Table
In effect August 1, 1904.
Louisville & Nashville R. R.
Read Down — CENTRAL TIME — DAILY — Read Up

AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3		AM No 8	AM No 2	PM No 10
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7 45
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6 22
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58	....	5 59
7 19	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....	5 53
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42	....	5 40
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5 32
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17	....	5 17
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 (1)	....	5 11
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5 04
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4 00

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
For rates and further information address
A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

A Great Combination Offer
We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the
St. Louis Globe-Democrat
WITH
The Union
FOR
$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50
The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival as a
Great Modern Newspaper.
If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth, you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.
NOW IS THE TIME.
Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, both for a full year. Address
The Union, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..
SHOES made of Leather.
SHOES that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.
Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.
Every Department Full and Complete.
J. W. SMITH.
Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Alabama

Gelder's Restaurant,
Good Meals at Reasonable Prices.
110 North 20th Street,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Pure Water Prevents Fevers.
DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER
We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address
I. E. SARBER CO.,
Thorsby, Alabama.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND FERTILIZERS
FOR SALE.
Troy Special & Mule Brand
"Are the Best on Earth"
J. C. JONES,
Clanton, - - - Alabama.

We want your advertising

FARM AND GARDEN

FERTILITY FROM DECAYING LEAVES.

A great deal of fertilizer is lost every year by destroying decaying vegetation, instead of incorporating it with the soil, where it will furnish humus and valuable mineral elements, thus greatly increasing the fertility of the soil.

The greater part of this decaying vegetation is composed of leaves, and we often see great piles of them being burned during fall and spring, which should be spread over the garden. Some people use the leaves as a mulch during winter, but burn them in the spring. Instead of this they should be either forked into the soil around trees and plants where they will rapidly decay and be of use to the plants, or be piled in a heap, adding all kinds of refuse from the garden, wood ashes and a little soil, slops from the house, etc., and let them rot in readiness for use as potting soil or for gardening purposes. It is best not to make the piles too large, as during some seasons there is a tendency to excessive heating which burns up much of the most valuable plant food. The mass should be forked over occasionally, so that all parts will be equally affected by sun, air and rain.

It is natural to suppose that valuable elements are contained in these leaves, as the food of plants and trees taken in through the roots passes through the cells with the sap, and when the leaves fall they become dry, and all the water being thrown off it leaves only the solid matter which is almost purely fertilizing matter that has been taken from the soil.

This then, after serving its purpose, should be returned to mother earth exactly as it is when the tree is through with it. When burned and applied to the soil, only ash remains. This is valuable in itself, but so much of the plant food has been destroyed that its value is greatly diminished.

Nature has made a grand provision in planning to have the leaves fall under trees and shrubs, not only to protect the roots during cold winter and hot dry summers, but so the plant food will be in just the place where it will be needed again.

In the economy of nature, nothing is lost, and these elements are used over and over again. On this account the soil of groves and wooded tracts does not become worn out as other land does, requiring to be heavily fertilized often to keep the growing crop in good condition, though great growth of timber is being made all the time. When all leaves are removed from around the trees on the lawn in fall, it often causes great harm, providing a tidy looking lawn at the expense of the well being of the trees.

The leaves lying as they fall form a blanket during winter which will keep the moisture in the soil around the roots. If the weather is very severe, trees and plants are often killed on account of the dryness of the roots, the soil freezing dry, thus all the moisture is drawn from the roots and they are in no condition to withstand extreme cold.

The evaporation through the cells of the tree is, of course, very much less during the dormant season, yet it goes on in a small way all winter, so if there is not enough moisture in the soil to keep up the supply needed, the trees will often be killed.

SOWING SEED POTATOES.

Just now when the farmers are in the midst of potato digging, says Michigan Farmer, is the best time for them to think of preparing for a good crop next year by paying a little attention to the saving of some good seed.

It is an all too common practice for the farmer to let the matter of selecting his seed potatoes go until spring, and then to plant such seed as he happens to have or is able to get, regardless of whether it is suitable for the growing of a good crop or not. Of all the crops which are grown upon the farm, it is safe to say that the least attention is given to the selection of seed for the potato crop, yet experiment and observation both lead to the conclusion that just as much importance should be attached to the matter of the proper selection of seed for this crop as for the grain or wheat crops, and what farmer would think of planting his refuse wheat or corn? For this is just the method which is commonly followed with the potato crop. The farmer generally pays no attention to the selection of seed in the fall, but just lets the matter go, sells all the potatoes he can and plants what he has left, almost regardless of quality.

Since the theory of pure bred seed for the improvement of corn and other grain crops has been developed, wonderful advancement has been made in the production of these crops, both in an experimental and in a practical way. There is just as much reason to believe that like results could be gotten by the application of similar methods to the potato crop. For the best results with corn or wheat it is not only necessary to know that the seed selected is of perfect quality, but it is important as well to know that it is from a prolific plant which has produced many other perfect seeds. If this is true of these important grain crops, it is in a like manner true of the sugar beet, which is an illustration of what the same methods will do when applied to the root crop. Seedsmen and beet growers have for many years been experimenting in the breeding of pure and valuable varieties or strains of sugar beet seed, and the results which they have attained are wonderful in the fact that they have not only increased the yield thereby, but that they have as well materially increased the contents of sugar in the beet by this same means. Why can not this same improvement be brought about in the way of producing more and better potatoes by a little care in the saving of the seed? We believe that it can, and that it can be done very rapidly and with a little expense of time and labor on the part of the farmer.

CURING SHYING HORSES.

A horse book, widely advertised, has a picture of three men curing (?) a horse of shying. Securely tied, the animal has an umbrella tied on its head; one man is beating a bass drum behind it and jiggling a long string of tins strung on a string, while the second man is firing a pistol, and the third waving two flags before him and swaying another string of rattling tins. Such a racket would scare a nervous horse into spasms, and whenever he heard any of these sounds thereafter, he would try frantically to escape from his tormentors. Such a book is misleading and false.

Now I bought a mare that was a bad shyer, starting at every rustling leaf, and springing sideways at a bird starting up, or a piece of paper blown by the wind. I never whipped her for this, but soothed her with quiet words, if she ran. Soon she found that I would not let anything hurt her, and she would only turn her head to look toward the suspicious sound. She has never become reconciled to the sound of a bass drum, hating the jar; but a country horse has no business where one is to pass. On circus day, put your horses in a livery stable, or tie them on a quiet street. Kindness will break a horse of shying every time; whereas, if he thinks he will be punished for it by a savage jerk on the bit, or a cut with the whip, he will be confirmed in the habit.—Will Dash, in Farm Journal.

FEEDING NEW CORN TO HOGS.

It has many times been noted that when new corn is fed too heavily to fattening hogs, trouble will arise much like cholera. The prevailing good prices for fat hogs is likely to cause rush feeding, and the Drovers' Journal, in referring to the matter, warns against it, saying:

"We are now entering the period when feeders begin to start their hogs on new corn, but the situation this year is somewhat different than heretofore. In other recent years farmers and country elevators and cribs have contained considerable stock of old corn. This year it is generally conceded that the supply of old corn has been more nearly swept clean than any time in years.

Farmers having practically no old corn to mix in start this year start their hogs on the unseasoned new crop, and old-time feeders well know that it takes more time and grain to make fat hogs from new corn than from a mixture of new and old.

If hogs are crowded with new corn too fast at the beginning troubles akin to cholera show up, the young hogs get out of condition and often so badly out that it is necessary to start them off to market before they are in even fair condition for market. With hogs as high as they now are farmers will use caution not to endanger their crop of pigs by overfeeding with new corn.

POULTRY WISDOM.

One of the worst things the neat poultry keeper can do with the eggs, is to wash them. The warm water opens the pores of the protecting shell, and the egg decays in a very short time. Better dirty eggs than spoiled ones.

Best of all, have a neat well kept. The ideal nest is made by turning a keg or barrel on its side, partially filling the bottom with hay, and leaving it where the biddies can discover its convenience.

A contented hen is always a good egg producer, and anything that worries or frightens the inhabitants of the poultry yard robs the egg basket. For this reason there should be shade trees in the yard where fowls are kept.

The roosts in the poultry house should be low, so that the fowls need not jump from any great height, which often causes bumblefoot—a swelling of the bottom and side of the foot.

When bumblefoot appears we lance the bottom of the foot, and poultice it with bread crumbs soaked in milk, or a scraped, raw potato.—L. Mitchell, in Farm Journal.

Similia Similibus Curantur.

"Jigson has just paid two doctors seven hundred dollars to cure his wife of some disease that resulted from wearing fashionable shoes."

"Hugh! High heels, weren't they?"

12,162,000 BALES

Government Reports Show a Total Production of 12,162,000 Square Bales.

ESTIMATE A BIG SURPRISE.

Cotton Dropped $2.50 a Bale in Two Minutes.—Panic Followed the Publishing of Report.

New York.—Cotton dropped $2.50 a bale in less than two minutes Saturday. Brokers in the pit acted like maniacs in their efforts to avert ruin. The whole market was panic stricken.

The United States government had estimated the crop at 12,162,000 bales.

Such an enormous harvest had never been dreamed of before by the most pessimistic. The wildest scenes were enacted and but for the fact that the ginners' reports had sounded a warning to the bulls ruin would have been widespread. The close was very weak and at the lowest figure.

Theodore Price, the leader of the bears, who lost a fortune fighting Sully during the latter's triumphant campaign, recovered it in a few minutes and added to it largely before the gong stopped the pandemonium. Sully, who has been trying to engineer another bull campaign, was obliterated as a factor in the market.

The government's report was received at the exchange at 11:15 a. m. it was read from the rostrum immediately afterward.

Being Saturday only three-quarters of an hour remained until closing time. Everybody wanted to sell at once. Prices fell from 48 to 62 points almost in a flash. It was the greatest and swiftest collapse since the memorable announcement of Sully's failure in the midst of the bull campaign he had started.

Inquiry among cotton houses after the close of the exchange did not develop any apprehension of trouble as a result of the quick slump.

Every Care Was Taken to Guard Crop Report.

Washington.—In the preparation and issuance of the cotton report, Secretary Wilson gave a demonstration of the precautions taken to avoid advance information leaking out.

Representatives Burgess, of Texas, and Ransdal, of Louisiana, were invited by the secretary to witness the preparation of the estimate. The party was locked in the private office of the statistician and the reports from all the cotton districts were taken into the room. The doors were locked from the outside, and the secretary then gave orders for the opening of the report. The estimate of the crop for the year 1904-1905 was then prepared and sent out before any person in the room was permitted to leave or communicate with any person from the outside.

"In this manner the cotton estimates are invariably made," said Secretary Wilson, "and all human ingenuity is used to prevent leaking of information."

Is Panama Independent.

Outside of the canal zone and entirely independent of the United States is the republic of Panama, which has just been welcomed into the fellowship of nations on our initiative. Since the relations between Panama and Colombia are still unsettled, why did the former find it advisable to reduce her army to a peace footing of twenty-five men with two cities to keep in order? If a standing army is necessary to the preservation of law and order even in a state of profound peace, why should a threatened country open herself to attack from a declared enemy at the threshold? If Colombia marched to the attack or declared war, must we defend this baby nation "outside of the canal zone" as well as within it? In that case, where is the pretense that Panama is independent? Where is the showing that she is able to maintain a government? The lack of money cannot be the plea advanced, for we have furnished that.

One Hundred Hurt in Wreck.

Kansas City.—Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 1, due here at 5:15 Saturday evening from St. Louis, was wrecked two miles east of Holden, Mo., Saturday afternoon.

It is reported that nearly a hundred persons were injured.

It is believed that no one was killed.

A relief train has started from Kansas City for the scene.

The list of killed and wounded in football games during the season just closed, as compiled by the Chicago Record-Herald, amounts to 13 killed and 206 wounded.

State Sues for Taxes.

Montgomery, Ala.—A suit for $112,500, with damages amounting to $150,000 and fees amounting to $2,000, making a total of $264,000, has been filed by the state of Alabama and the county of Russell against the Continental Trust Company, of Baltimore, because of the failure of the trust company to pay the mortgage tax on $75,000,000, which the trust company received from the Seaboard Air Line railway.

COTTON CONVENTION.

The cotton convention at New Orleans should be a useful and profitable gathering of men who know how to raise cotton, how to market cotton, how to spin cotton, how to weave cotton, and how to utilize the staple. One difficulty about such conventions is that nearly all the talking is done by men who are theorists and not by the practical men.

An effort will be made to correct this evil at New Orleans. There will be talks on the cotton weevil, and while these talks will not amount to anything, they will be interesting. Texas has an offer of $50,000 reward for any remedy that will stamp out the weevil, and theories are rather ridiculous when there is good money for one that will work.

English cotton spinners will be at the convention and they will learn things to their advantage and to ours. We have an idea that this convention and others to come and the personal acquaintance made will tend to eliminate New York as the cotton market and make New Orleans and Galveston the cotton markets of the world. If the English buyers make their connections with New Orleans and Galveston, and there is direct shipment to Liverpool, it will leave New York only a part of the rich trade that has been worth so many millions to that city.

If New Orleans becomes the cotton market, it will mean a constant pressure for higher prices, instead of a constant pressure for low prices. It will mean that New England will, like old England, have to pay the price asked by the south, instead of fixing the price and announcing it to us. That is what is hoped in part from the coming convention at New Orleans.

Things Have Changed.

Not until February of 1812 did the people of Kentucky know that Madison was elected president in the previous November.

In 1834 one of the leading railroads of the United States printed on its time table: "The locomotive will leave the depot every day at 10 o'clock if the weather is fair."

When Benjamin Franklin first thought of starting a newspaper in Philadelphia, many of his friends advised against it, because there was a paper published in Boston. Some of them doubted that the country would be able to support two newspapers.

One hundred years ago the fastest land travel in the world was on the Great North road, in England, after it had been put into its best condition. There the York mail coach tore along at the rate of 90 miles a day, and many persons confidently predicted Divine vengeance on such unseemingly haste.

Anniston Booming.

Anniston, Ala.—The plant of the Illinois Car and Equipment Company, which has been idle since the failure of the Southern Car and Foundry Company, is probably sold to the Illinois Car Company and the Standard Press Steel Company, who will soon put it in full operation. These companies claim that they must have full use of their tracks on Tenth street and be allowed to enclose its grounds to Eleventh street. This will necessitate the building of a viaduct on Tenth street, immediately in front of the plant, a little over a block. The money for this bridge is now being raised among the business men of Anniston by popular subscription. Already a goodly sum has been raised.

The building of the viaduct will result in the extension of the street railway, via this bridge into Glenn Addie, giving the people better street car facilities. The viaduct will have passageways for street cars, wagons and pedestrians. The resumption of work at the big car plant, the building of the viaduct and the extension of the street car line means much to Anniston.

Steel Plant Breaks Record.

Ensley, Ala.—As predicted, the steel plant for the month of November broke all previous records in the output of steel. Heretofore the month of October held the record with 70,000 tons. November completely smashed that record by turning out 81,000 tons. This was the largest tonnage that this important industry has ever turned out in one month.

Jamaica To Raise Cotton.

Kingston, Jamaica.—There was a conference here of men prominent in the cotton industry. Experts sent out by the British cotton growing association advised Jamaica planters to cultivate cotton, as there is a good opportunity offering.

As a result of experiments made in some of the hospitals in Paris, it is stated that vaccination performed under a red light leaves no scar and causes less pain. The patient is vaccinated in a room where the only light is an incandescent lamp with a red globe.

Washington.—The first annual report of Secretary Paul Morton, of the navy department, makes more ships, stronger ships and more men its keynote, saying:

"We want such a navy in size, style ever desire an engagement with us. It is our greatest exhibit in favor of peace."

The report quotes freely from letters and reports written by President Roosevelt while he was assistant secretary of the navy, especially on the value of battleships and torpedo boats.

HOLD YOUR COTTON

Cotton King Brown Urges Planters, Merchants, and Bankers Not to Sell

PRESENT FIGURES UNNATURAL.

Statement to Cotton Men of South Telling Them Why They Should Wait for Higher Prices.

New Orleans.—W. P. Brown, the great cotton king, has issued an address over his signature as follows:

"To the Planters, Merchants and Brokers of the South: Cotton has declined to a point below the cost of production. Are you going to sell at present prices, or hold until you can get the market value for the balance of your holdings? The decline is unwarranted. To be conservative, I will say that the balance of this crop should bring at least ten cents at the ports, and according to my judgment, the only way to obtain an advance is for the planter to keep his cotton on his plantation until the actual demand is sufficient to enable buyers to pay the proper value for the stuff. The merchants who are carrying cotton should not force what they have on the market, but stand firm and demand higher prices, or not sell. The banks all over the south should stand by the merchants and planters, and not force them to sell their cotton at present prices, which they all know is below the cost of production. The prices mean ruin to the south. It affects every branch of trade, and the only thing to do is for every man that is interested in any manner, shape or form to stand together. For the sake of argument, admit that the crop is 12,000,000 bales (though I do not believe it is); the consumption at these prices will be at least 11,500,000 bales and the other half million bales will be a small quantity to go into mill reserves. The spinners of American cotton throughout the world should at least add this year to their depleted stocks half a million to a million bales, and the visible supply at the end of the season, in order to prevent squeezes and 'corners,' should be at least 1,250,000 bales.

No Reason to Get Scared.

"Any well posted cotton man knows that this is practically correct, hence I see no reason for the holders of cotton to get scared and sell at anything like present prices.

"Since the bureau report was issued on Saturday we have seen a great many telegrams from some of the very best cotton merchants scattered over the south to the effect that they believed the estimate was too large. I mention this to show you that I am not the only one who thinks the estimate too large. However, it has had the effect of putting middling cotton down to 7 1-2 cents in the New Orleans market.

"The south went broke raising cotton at 5 1-2 cents and 6 cents per pound in 1897-98, and during that period everything was cheap, as well as cotton, and the cost of raising cotton was small as compared to the present crop, which is the most expensive one ever grown. It would pay the farmers to sit still and not market another bale of this crop until they can get above 10 cents, and reduce the acreage another season at least 15 per cent, and instead of raising another bumper crop raise only enough to supply the world.

"The last crop was only ten million bales, and it brought more money than any crop ever raised—much more than this crop will bring unless the balance left brings much higher prices than those ruling today. With cotton at 7 1-2 cents, at the ports, cotton plantations are worth today just about half what they were at this time last year. Now, every man that is interested in the south, regardless of the character of his business, should be interested in keeping up the price of cotton.

World Must Have Cotton.

"Cotton is one of the few things that the world must have, and the south has a monopoly on the territory where it can be grown, yet they won't take advantage of the situation. There are so many things that can be raised in the south profitably, why not turn your attention to other things and raise less cotton? We have been told that we needed a twelve million bale crop this year, and now that you have raised one close to that figure, they say you must sell it at a give-away price. Stand together, both merchants, farmers and bankers, and you will come out all right, but if you throw your holdings on the market you may rest assured that the spinner will buy it just as low as he possibly can, and I don't blame him for doing so.

"It is not the spinners of the world at this time who are forcing the market down; it is the bear speculators."

Alabama Fourth in Production.

Washington, D. C.—The estimated cotton production in bales by states is as follows: Virginia, 19,300; North Carolina, 609,000; South Carolina, 1,099,700; Georgia, 1,764,900; Florida, 77,200; Alabama, 1,278,900; Mississippi, 1,539,800; Louisiana, 917,900; Texas, 2,992,300; Arkansas, 832,800; Tennessee, 343,000; Missouri, 43,900; Oklahoma, 246,000; Indian Territory, 398,100.

spinners in every country of the world with a few exceptions are doing the best business in the history of the trade. They can afford to pay from 9 to 10 cents per pound, and make a good profit at the present prices goods are bringing.

Can Pay Higher Prices.

"The consuming world are in a position financially to pay higher prices today than they have been for a great many years. Low priced cotton really ought to be a thing of the past. Look at the prices of wheat and corn. We have raised big crops all over the world with the exception of this year's wheat crop, yet prices are double what they were a few years ago. A twelve million bales crop is worth 10 cents and that ought to be the low price for a great many years to come, and it rests with the producer to say whether or not he will make more for the requirements of the world, and become a pauper, or whether he will raise a moderate crop an get 10 cents and grow rich.

"But the present moment is the most important one. Hold firm, stand together and don't give your cotton away at present prices."

ONE THOUSAND MADE A MILLION

Mr. Vanderbilt Tells an Interesting Story of Fabulous Profits.

New York.—A novel booklet is creating a sensation in financial circles here, and Wall street is deeply interested in it, particularly as it is being circulated by W. G. Vanderbilt. He tells how he made a million dollars by investing a thousand, and the story is intensely interesting.

Mr. Vanderbilt was interviewed at his offices in No. 100 William street, New York, and stated he was pleased that his booklet had been so well received. He said: "I met so many people who were groping in the dark about financial matters I decided to publish some of the things I have learned about business, and send out as a tribute to my personal friends. But, dear me, my friends told everybody about it, and my mail was flooded with requests for the booklet. Therefore, I have decided that I can do nothing better for my fellowmen than to send a copy of it to any one who will write to me at No. 100 William street."

"Do you intend to distribute the book free?"

"Certainly," he responded, "because I know no one will be interested in the matter except those who have saved enough money and want to know how to make their savings earn more than simple interest, hence I will be doing the best service for those who need it most, and that is the real essence of true philanthropy. I would like to have applicants for this book write me fully, and I will be pleased to send any one a copy."

At least a score of bankers and financial men, who were interviewed subsequently, all agreed that Mr. Vanderbilt's book should be in everybody's hands who desired to improve their condition financially.

Germany Favors Russia.

Berlin.—The conviction prevails in the highest government quarters that Russia is fighting for all Europe in the present war is increasing in strength, and is affecting German attitude towards the belligerants. So far that her friendliness toward Russia and her coolness towards Japan grows with every Russian reverse. The government, the Associated Press is informed, has correspondence from China showing that hundreds of Japanese agents are penetrating into every part of the Chinese empire distributing tracts and disseminating the idea that Asia should be for the Asiatics, that no European power has rights in its territories or in the waters of the East and that Japan is fighting for all Asia in forcing Russia back.

An opinion amounting to a certainty holds the minds of those directing Germany's policy that the next Boxer uprising or similar movement against the foreigners in China will be led by the Japanese, who are laying the foundations for a vast Oriental empire that might reach to the Urals.

GOVERNMENT ESTIMATES LARGE

Estimates Call for Five Million More Than Required Last Year.

Washington.—The estimates of appropriations required for the support of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, were transmitted to congress Monday by the secretary of the treasury. These estimates aggregate $619,669,852, as against $614,548,937, the amount of the appropriations for the current fiscal year.

The estimates for 1906, which are nearly $5,000,000 more than the estimates for 1905, include $144,834,854 permanent annual appropriations already provided for by law.

Stock Growers Meet.

Jacksonville, Fla.—The first annual convention of the Southeastern Stock Growers' Association will meet in this city January 11, 1905.

Selma, Ala.—The International Cotton Seed Oil Company's plant was partially destroyed by fire this afternoon. Seed, hull and meal warehouses are a total loss and between three and four thousand tons of seed were burned. The total loss is estimated at $100,000, partially covered by insurance. The ice plant and machinery of the plant, also $10,000 worth of oil, were saved. Spontaneous combustion in the seed warehouse is the supposed origin of the fire.

YOUR COTTON

Brown Urges Plan-chants, and Ban- Not to Sell

GURES UNNATURAL.

Cotton Men of South n Why They Should
r Higher Prices.

W. P. Brown, the ..., has issued an ad... signatures as follows: ...nters, Merchants and ...s South: Cotton has ...nat below the cost of ... you going to sell at ... or hold until you can ...value for the balance ... The decline is un... be conservative, I will ...balance of this cron ...least ten cents at the ...ding to my judgment. ...obtain an advance is ...to keep his cotton on ...until the actual demand ...cribly buyers to pay ...e for the stuff. The ...ns carrying cotton ...what they have on ...stand firm and de... it, or not sell. The ...the south should stand ...ers and planters, and ...to hold their cotton at ...which they all know ...of production. The ...n to the south. It af... ...ch of trade, and the ...n for every man that ...any manner, shape or ...gether. For the sake ...hint that the crop is ...(though I do not be... consumption at these ...forget 11,500,000 bales ...half million bales will ...ely to go into mill ...ptiness of American ...but the world should ...r year to their deplet... a million to a million ...visible supply at the ...son, in order to pre... ...d corners, should be ...o half.

to Get Scared.

...ol cotton man knows ...ctically correct, hence ...n for the holders of ...ared and sell at any... ...t prices.

...ensus report was issued ...have seen a great ...from some of the very ...chants scattered over ... effect that they be... ...ade was too large. I ...how you that I am not ...o thinks the estimate ...over. It has had the ...muddling cotton down ...the New Orleans mar...

...nt broke raising cot... ...nts and 6 cents per ...and during that pe... ...was cheap, as well as ...cost of raising cotton ...mpared to the pres... ...s the most expensive ... It would pay the ...dill and fast market ...this crop until they ...cents, and reduce his ...acreage at least 15 ...stead of raising an ...op that will not enough ...rld ... ...was only ten million ...ales more than that ...much more than ...s, or the balance ...higher prices than ... With cotton at ..., cotton planted ...ce just about half ...ame the last year ...is interested in ...s of the character ...ld be interested in ...ence of cotton.

t Have Cotton.

...of the few things ...have, and the ...many on the territory ...rown. Yes they won't ... of the situation. ...ng cases that can be ...h mortgages, why no... ...on to other things ...ton? We have been ...ded a twelve million ...ar, and now that you ...closer to that figure, ...ast sell it at a give... ...and together, both ...rs and bankers, and ...out all right, but if ...holdings on the mar... ...t assured that the ... it just as low as he ...d I don't blame him ...

...pinners of the world ...are forcing the mar... ...he bear speculators ...

th in Production.

...C.—The estimated ...in bales by states is ...ginia, 19,300; North ...South Carolina, 1,... 1,764,900; Florida, ...1,278,900; Mississip... ...Louisiana, 917,900; ...Arkansas, 832,500; ...0; Missouri, 43,900; ...0; Indian Territory,

ONE THOUSAND MADE A MILLIO

Mr. Vanderbilt Tells an Interesti... Story of Fabulous Profits.

New York.—A novel booklet ... creating a sensation in financial c... ...ere, here, and Wall street is deep... ...interested in it, particularly as it ... being circulated by W. G. Vanderbil... He tells how he made a million d... ...lars by investing a thousand, and t... ...story is intensely interesting.

Mr. Vanderbilt was interviewed ... his offices in No. 100 William stre... New York, and stated he was pleas... that his booklet had been so well ... ceived. He said: "I met so ma... people who were groping in the da... about financial matters I decided ... publish some of the things I ha... learned about business, and send ... out as a tribute to my person... friends. But, dear me, my friends t... everybody about it, and my mail ... flooded with requests for the book... Therefore, I have decided that I c... do nothing better for my fellows ... than to send a copy of it to any o... who will write to me at No. 100 W... liam street."

"Do you intend to distribute the ... free?"

"Certainly," he responded, "... cause I know no one will be interest... in the matter except those who ha... saved enough money and want to kn... how to make their savings earn mo... than simple interest, hence I will ... doing the best service for those w... need it most, and that is the ... essence of true philanthropy. I wo... like to have applicants for this b... write me fully, and I will be plea... to send any one a copy."

At least a score of bankers ... financial men, who were interview... subsequently, all agreed that Mr. V... derbilt's book should be in eve... body's hands who desired to impro... their condition financially.

Germany Favors Russia.

Berlin.—The conviction prevail... in the highest government quart... that Russia is fighting for all ... rope in the present war is increas... in strength, and is affecting German... attitude towards the belligerants ... far that her friendliness toward R... sia and her coolness towards Jap... grows with every Russian rever... The government, the Associated Pr... is informed, has corrospondence fr... China showing that hundreds of J... anese agents are penetrating i... every part of the Chinese empire ... tributing tracts and disseminating ... idea that Asia should be for ... Asiatics, that no European power ... rights in the territories or in the tr... ...t the East and that Japan is fight... for all Asia in forcing Russia back...

An opinion amounting to a certai... holds the minds of those direct... Germany's policy that the next Bo... uprising or similar movement agai... the foreigners in China will be led ... the Japanese, who are laying ... foundations for a vast Oriental emp... that might reach to the Urals.

GOVERNMENT ESTIMATES LAR...

Estimates Call for Five Million M... Than Required Last Year.

Washington.—The estimates of ... propriations required for the supp... of the government for the fiscal ... ending June 30, 1906, were transm... ted to congress Monday by the se... tary of the treasury. These estim... aggregated $619,669,852, as aga... $614,548,957, the amount of the ... propriations for the current fi... year.

The estimates for 1906, which ... nearly $5,000,000 more than the ... mates for 1905, include $146,83... permanent annual appropriations ... ready provided for by law.

Stock Growers Meet.

Jacksonville, Fla.—The first an... convention of the Southeastern St... Growers' Association will meet in ... city January 11, 1905.

Selma, Ala.—The International ... ton Seed Oil Company's plant ... partially destroyed by fire this a... noon. Seed, hull and meal warehou... are a total loss and between three ... four thousand tons of seed were ... The total loss is estimated at $... 000, partially covered by insura... The ice plant and machinery of th... plant, also $10,000 worth of oil, ... saved. Spontaneous combustion ... the seed warehouse is the supp... origin of the fire.

EVERY WALK IN LIFE.

...Boyce, a farmer, living three ... a half miles from Trenton, Mo., ...y: "A ...w cold ...ed in ...kidneys ...devel... ...ed so ...ly that ...as oblig... ...lay off ...t on ac... ...t of the ...ng in ...back ...sides. ...time I was unable to walk at ...nd every make-shift I tried and ...he medicine I took had not the ...test effect. My back continued to ...r weaker until I began taking ...'s Kidney Pills, and I must say ...as more than surprised and grati... ...to notice the back ache disappear... ...gradually until it finally stopped." ...an's Kidney Pills sold by all ...lers or mailed on receipt of price, ...cents per box. Foster-Milburn Co., ...falo, N. Y.

In a Japanese Prison.

...hat which is especially striking at ...ght in a Japanese prison is that ...re is no difference between the pri... ...and the hut of the free peasant, ...Japanese declaring that if the pri... ...were elevated to the level of a ...dern penitentiary it would be too ...active and would increase crime. ...pon approaching the prison, in ...ce of high and forbidding walls you ...a large country house with a se... ...of outbuildings, the prison itself ...ng completely open, while the ...den bars at the windows have ...ing of the forbidding aspect of ...iron gratings. The interior of the ...ding is completely open, although ...erly at Itchigoi there was a corri... ...separated from the building by a ...r wall, where the guards slept. ...he food given the prisoners is in ...portion to their conduct and indus... ...the prisoners who do not conduct ...selves as they should receiving a ...of rice which must last for seven ..., while in the case of the orderly ...ners the same cake lasts for only ...days. The prisoners who conduct ...selves properly receive also a lit... ...orse ment with potsto or pea ...e with their meals.—Public Opin...

Not a "Dead-game Sportes."

...notable sporting event came off ...York 100 years ago. The wife of ...nel Thornton, a well-known cit... ...had backed herself to race ...nst Mr. Flint for 500 guineas a ... The crowd was estimated at ...00, ten times as many as had ...present even to see Eclipse first ...the rest nowhere. For three ...s Mrs. Thornton led, but her horse ..."much the shorter stake of the ... and Mr. Flint then forged ...d, and Mrs. Thornton gave up in ...y to her horse. She was much ...leader to Mr. Flint. A few days ... the York Herald contained a let... ...from her accusing him of lack of ...stry in refusing to allow a ...man to ride round with her, so ...be handy for the rescue if her ...e slipped round, as it had done ...y days before; in saying, "Keep ...side, ma'am," gruffly to her at ...starting point, and beating her as ...y as he could. She defiantly ...enged him again for the next ...—London Chronicle.

...d blood is always better than ...vision.

...e are so poor as those who do ...ove people.

HAPPY CHILDHOOD.

Food Makes Happy Children Because They Are Healthy.

...metimes milk does not agree with ...en or adults." The same thing is ...of other articles of food. What ...with one sometimes does not ...with others.

...food can be so prepared that it ...gree with the weakest stomach. ...illustration—anyone, no matter ...weak the stomach, can eat, relish ...digest a nice hot cup of Postum ...with a spoonful or two of Grape-...poured in, and such a combinat... ...ontains nourishment to carry one ...ber of hours, for almost every ...le of it will be digested and ...up by the system and be made ...

...dy writes from the land of the ...sun and the mocking bird way ... in Alabama and says: "I was ...drink Postum because coffee ...the sour stomach and made me ... Again Postum was recom... ...ed by two well known physicians ...y children, and I feel especially ...ful for the benefit derived. ...does not agree with either ...so to the eldest, aged four and ...lf years, I give Postum with ...of sweet cream. It agrees with ...endidly, regulating her bowels ...ly, although she is of a consti... ...habit. ...the youngest, aged two and one-...ars, I use one-half Postum and ...f skimmed milk. I have not ...any medicine since the children ...using Postum, and they enjoy ...drop of it. ...ighbor of mine is giving Pos... ...her baby lately weaned, with ...d results. The little fellow is ...famously." Name given by ... Co., Battle Creek, Mich. ...m agrees perfectly with chil... ...d supplies adults with the hot, ...ting beverage in place of ... Literally thousands of Amer... ...ave been helped out of stom... ...d nervous diseases by leaving ...ee and using Postum Food Cof... ...ook in package for the little ... The Road to Wellville."

TALKS WITH OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

CUCKOO.

A little boy went out to hunt one day,
And carried his arrow and bow.
For guns are dangerous things for plays
In the hands of little children, you know.
A little bird sat in a cherry tree
And whistled and sang, "You can't shot me,
Cuckoo, cuckoo, cuckoo, cuckoo, cuckoo."

"Just wait," said the boy, "till I get close enough.
And see if I don't shoot you through"
"Do you think," said the bird, "I'm not up to snuff,
To sit and be shot at by you?
I thank you, you're rather too kind, sir;
An arrow is not to be mine, sir,
Cuckoo, cuckoo, cuckoo, cuckoo, cuckoo."

The little boy drew his arrow to his eye,
And aimed it quite straight for a while.
The little bird laughed as away it did fly;
"A miss is as good as a mile."
The little boy threw down his arrow and cried:
The little bird laughed 'till it almost died;
"Cuckoo, cuckoo, cuckoo, cuckoo, cuckoo."

Take a warning, kind sirs, before you set out
To court a fair maiden so shy
Be sure you don't let her know what you're about.
Or she will most certainly fly.
But lay your snares with a lover's art,
And then you may laugh when you gain her heart:
"Cuckoo, cuckoo, cuckoo, cuckoo, cuckoo." —Home and Farm.

A TRIP TO THE MOON.

How would you like to take a trip to the moon? It would be a long journey, taking more than six months if you went with the speed of an express train; or if you traveled with the swiftness of a ball from a modern cannon it would take about as long as a trip across the Atlantic in a fast steamer. Under average atmospheric conditions a large telescope gives us a view of the moon as it would be without the telescope at a distance of eight hundred miles from us.

The necessary outfit for the journey must be much more extensive than for any trip on the earth, even the trip to the North Pole. There will be no chance "to live off the country." In addition to warm clothing and food, you must carry with you all you need to drink, and the problem of keeping it from freezing or thawing it out if frozen will not be an easy one to solve. There is practically no air on the moon, and you must take along a supply for breathing. If you expect to make a fire and cook your dinner you must take, in addition to fuel, an additional supply of air to keep your fire going.

But suppose that in some way you are landed on the moon with a supply of things necessary for sustaining life. If you are on a part of the moon on which the sun is shining you will marvel, perhaps, first of all, at the dazzling brilliance of the sunlight and the intense blackness of the shadows. Everything in the shade will be in almost total darkness, as there is no air filled with little dust particles to scatter the sunlight so that it may illuminate the places out of the direct path of its rays.

And what a sense of desolation will present itself to your view! The Desert of Sahara would look like a luxuriant park in comparison with the lunar landscape. Not a blade of grass, not a tree or brook or lake—nothing but a vast, stony, silent desert. There are plains, not quite as level as our Western prairies, and great numbers of mountains, most of them much steeper than those on the earth; they are not grouped in long ranges, as our terrestrial mountains generally are, but are scattered all over the surface, singly and in irregular groups. Most of them are shaped more or less like our terrestrial volcanoes, and they probably were volcanoes ages ago, before the moon cooled off.

If you happen to land on a part of the moon where it is early morning you will have plenty of time for exploration before night comes on. The sun rises and sets as it does on the earth, but the time between sunrise and sunset is nearly fifteen of our days. Then during the long lunar night our earth will set like the moon, and will light up that part of the moon's surface which is turned toward it. Only there will be this curious difference—it will not rise and set, but will remain nearly stationary in the same region of the sky. From the side of the moon which is always turned away from us the earth, of course, can never be seen at all.—St. Nicholas.

ONE BOY'S CHANCE.

A gentleman stopped suddenly before a sign which told him that messenger boys were to be had inside. He hesitated, and then went in.

"How many boys have you in now?" he asked.

"Six," was the reply; "it's dull today."

"Boys," said the gentleman, eyeing them scrutinizingly, "I suppose you know there is to be an exhibition of trained dogs tonight?"

The faces of the boys showed that they were perfectly aware of that fact, and that they might even give him some points in regard to it.

"Well, I'm looking for a boy to take a blind man to see it."

A titter was the first response; then followed a variety of expressions, as: "What could a blind man see?" and, "You can't guy us that way."

"I'm not jesting; I'm in earnest," said Mr. Davis; and then, looking at one of the boys who had said nothing, he asked: "Well, what do you think of it?"

"I think I could do it," was the reply.

"How do you propose to make him see it?"

"Through my eyes, sir. That's the only way he could see it."

"You're the boy I'm after," said Mr. Davis, and he arranged for him to meet the blind man.

The exhibition was in a large theatre, and the blind man and his guide had a box to themselves, where they would disturb no one; but Mr. Davis from his seat in the audience knew that the boy was telling what went on so that the blind man could understand. Indeed, no one applauded more heartily than the blind man himself.

The following day Mr. Davis again appeared among the messenger boys, and after a few words with the manager, said:

"Boys, there was offered every one of you yesterday a chance for lifting yourselves up in the world, but only one of you grasped it. My friend, the blind man, has felt for some time that he might get much pleasure out of life if he could find some young eyes to do his seeing for him, with an owner who could report intelligently. My friend is delighted with the experiment. He says he is sure I hit upon the one boy in town who will suit him, and has offered him a good position with a fine salary. Messenger boys are easy to get; but a boy who can make a blind man see is at a premium. You see, that boy, though he did not know it, was on the watch for a good opportunity, and when it came, he knew how to manage it."—Selected.

HALLOWE'EN GAMES.

When the company finally assembled the usual Hallowe'en games were played. Lighted candles set in a row we all essayed to blow out; the number left burning showed the number of years one must wait for the husband or wife desired. With hands held closely behind us we tried to bite off the bags of candy or bright apples hung by slender threads from chandeliers or doorways. These futile attempts created much amusement. Some of the bravest bobbed for apples; others, blind-folded, struck frantically with slender rods at paper bags of chestnuts hung at a safe distance from other objects, the blindfolded striker being turned about several times to make his ideas of location extremely vague. A very large pumpkin had letters carved all over its surface, and each guest with a sharp-pointed dart tried to spear a letter. The pumpkin, suspended by a cord, spun merrily and few succeeded in fastening a dart in the letter, which, if speared, we were assured would form the initial of the name of the person we should wed.

These, and many other seasonable tricks made the time pass quickly. A great sawdust pie, evidently baked in a dish-pan, had many long strings, one for each guest; a horn was blown, and at the sound all pulled the strings and many tangles were the result. Disentangled, a whistle, horn, or speaker was found attached to each string, and when all were blown together the noise was astonishing. Some whistles had paper figures fastened to them which were inflated by the blowing, showing gayly colored figures of Dewey and other heroes.—

A dam is being built in Oregon in connection with the plans for irrigating 20,000 acres of land, which will require 2,000,000 feet of lumber.

The cost of living has doubled in Spain in the last few years and emigration is increasing rapidly.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

Korean girls over seven are all taught at home.

Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of throat and lungs.—WM. O. ENDSLEY, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900.

The man who first made steel pens got $1 each for them.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never fails. Sold by all druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

Of the 467 savings banks in Japan only one is foreign.

On the occasion of the hundredth anniversary of the death of Schiller (May 9, 1905,) the Swiss Government intends to give every pupil in the public schools a copy of that poet's play, "William Tell." The sum of $20,000 has been set aside for this purpose.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A man brought up at St. Albans as an incorrigible rogue was proved to have married his aunt. His children are, therefore, his first cousins and he is his own uncle. His grandmother and her mother-in-law are the same person. Apparently the judge sympathized with him, for he was discharged.

Street Car Company Party to Divorce Suit.

Myron E. Ross and the Metropolitan Street Railway company are made joint defendants in a divorce suit filed in the circuit court yesterday by Pearl L. Ross. This odd case arose out of a judgment that was obtained by Myron Ross of $2000 against the street railway company, and which it is the wish of the wife to share. The divorce was filed pending the result of the damage suit, and it was refiled in order to embody the judgment feature for alimony.—Kansas City Times.

When the transformation of cities by electric power and light is completed we may expect the air to be practically as pure as that of the country.

Mrs. Elizabeth H. Thompson, of Lillydale, N.Y., Grand Worthy Wise Templar, and Member of W.C.T.U., tells how she recovered by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am one of the many of your grateful friends who have been cured through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and who can to-day thank you for the fine health I enjoy. When I was thirty-five years old, I suffered severe backache and frequent bearing-down pains; in fact, I had womb trouble. I was very anxious to get well, and reading of the cures your Compound had made, I decided to try it. I took only six bottles, but it built me up and cured me entirely of my troubles.

"My family and relatives were naturally as gratified as I was. My niece had heart trouble and nervous prostration, and was considered incurable. She took your Vegetable Compound and it cured her in a short time, and she became well and strong, and her home to her great joy and her husband's delight was blessed with a baby. I know of a number of others who have been cured of different kinds of female trouble, and am satisfied that your Compound is the best medicine for sick women."—MRS. ELIZABETH H. THOMPSON, Box 105, Lillydale, N.Y.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

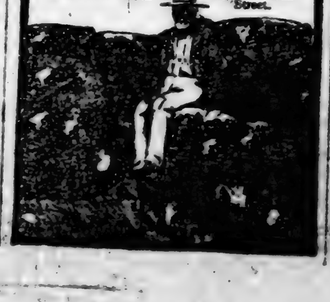
Am. 50, 1904.

Potash

is necessary for cotton to produce high yields and good fibre.

Write for our valuable books on fertilization; they contain information that means dollars to the farmers. Sent free on request. Write now while you think of it to the

GERMAN KALI WORKS
New York—93 Nassau St., or Atlanta, Ga.—25½ So. Broad Street.



WINCHESTER

'NEW RIVAL" BLACK POWDER SHELLS.

It's the thoroughly modern and scientific system of loading and the use of only the best materials which make Winchester Factory Loaded "New Rival" Shells give better pattern, penetration and more uniform results generally than any other shells. The special paper and the Winchester patent corrugated head used in making "New Rival" shells give them strength to withstand reloading.

BE SURE TO GET WINCHESTER MAKE OF SHELLS.

FARMERS! ATTENTION!

NO LINIMENT WAS EVER MADE THAT EQUALS

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

FOR HORSES AND OTHER STOCK AND ALL FAMILY USES

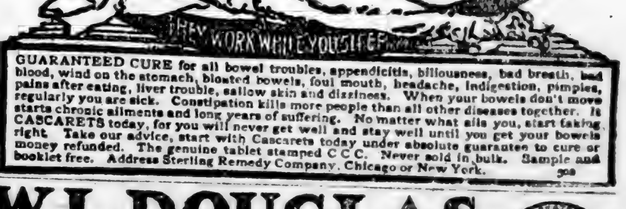
It Kills Pain and Kills Germs

DR. EARL S. SLOAN, 615 ALBANY ST., BOSTON, MASS.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

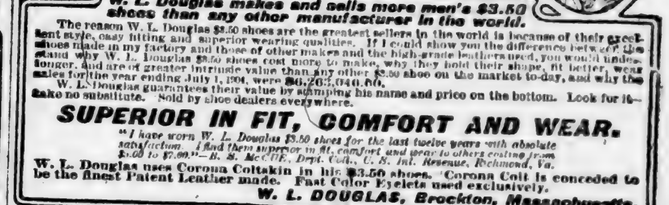
Cascarets

CANDY CATHARTIC



GUARANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, pains after eating, liver trouble, sallow skin and dizziness. When your bowels don't move regularly you are sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It starts chronic ailments and long years of suffering. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS today, for you will never get well and stay well until you get your bowels right. Take our advice, start with Cascarets today under absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Never sold in bulk. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York. 908

W. L. DOUGLAS $3.50 SHOES



W. L. Douglas makes and sells more men's $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world.

The reason W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the world is because of their great merit, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. If I could show you the difference between the shoes made in my factory and those of other makes and the high-grade leathers used, you would understand why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater intrinsic value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day, and why the sales for the year ending July 1, 1904, were $6,263,040.50.

W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom. Look for it—take no substitute. Sold by shoe dealers everywhere.

SUPERIOR IN FIT, COMFORT AND WEAR.

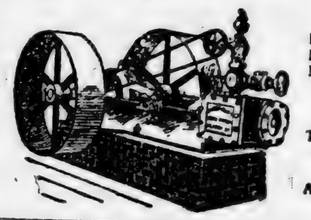
"I have worn W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes for the last twelve years with absolute satisfaction. I find their superior in fit, comfort and wearto others costing from $5.00 to $7.00."—R. S. McCOY, Dept. Clerk, U. S. Int. Revenue, Richmond, Va.

W. L. Douglas uses Corona Coltskin in his $3.50 shoes. Corona Colt is conceded to be the finest Patent Leather made. Fast Color Eyelets used exclusively.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Massachusetts.

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS COMPANY

MANUFACTURERS



High Pressure Return Tubular Boilers
Morison Internally Fired Boilers
High Grade Slide Valve Engines
Transmission Machinery
Heavy Castings
Wrought Iron and Steel Work
Tanks, Stacks and Stand Pipes

Heavy Pipe Work a Specialty

Address Machinery Department

MACON, GEORGIA.

FIRMS OF SOLIDITY AND REPUTATION

The capacity and reliability of these firms is of such superiority that their goods sell anywhere by mail or personal order—alike they get the most careful attention. Kindly keep this ad. as a reference—it may assist you some time in the future.

SOUTHERN SHORTHAND & BUSINESS UNIVERSITY.
Positions open daily for Bookkeepers and Stenographers. Over 11,000 graduates placed. Learn now. Send for catalogue. A present to all answering this. Address A. C. BRISCOE, Pres., or L. W. ARNOLD, Vice Pres., Department B, Atlanta, Ga.

THE LIGHT RUNNING NO. 9 WHEELER & WILSON
DEALERS AND AGENTS WANTED.
Address WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO., Atlanta, Ga.

The Watkins "Boy" Hay Press. Cheap, Simple, Durable. Two boys can operate it (no other power needed) and bale the crop right in the field at less than cost of hauling to big press. Is doing lots of other things and costs only $25. Write for circulars. We buy and sell Lumber. E. F. LOWE CO., Atlanta, Ga.

The Voice of the Negro. The recognized authority of the Negroes of the Southern States. A magazine of, for, and by the Negro. Subscription price $1.00 per year. Agents wanted. Send 10c for sample copy.
THE VOICE OF THE NEGRO CO., - - - - Atlanta, Georgia.

EXCELSIOR LAUNDRY.
LARGEST LAUNDRY IN THE SOUTH.
AGENTS WANTED IN EVERY TOWN. ATLANTA, GA.

ONLY $1.00 for one of the famous Ingersol Watches—sent by mail, prepaid, to anybody for a one dollar bill. These watches are guaranteed for 12 months, and in America today has been for years. Remember that when in need of anything known to Hardware, Silverware, Stoves, Ranges or Cutlery, we are the largest in the south. Write for anything you want.

King Hardware Co.,
ATLANTA, GA.

LANKFORD COTTON FILLED HORSE COLLARS
PREVENT GALLS AND SORE SHOULDERS.
That's very important to farmers. $1.00 each prepaid if your dealer doesn't handle. Write for free illus. book.
COUCH BROS. & J. J. EAGAN CO., Atlanta, Ga.
"Young mule's shoulder scalled all over, healed in one week and plowed daily with Lankford Collar. WM. BOYD, Cornersville, Ark."

"Abide With Us"

Abide with us; the day is spent,
The dark, still night draws near;
The radiant setting sun has lent
A transient brightness here;
It fades, it dies, the skies grow gray;
Good Master, hasten not away.

If we have tried Thy love to-day,
Or striven 'gainst Thy will,
Remember not our sins, we pray,
Be patient with us still.
Forsake us not, O Lord, when we Turn, with repentant hearts, to Thee.

Our lives are weary at the best,
And full of care, our strivings fail;
We labor and we have no rest,
Though joys be many, fears prevail.
Abide Thou in our hearts, that we May bear our ills more patiently.

THE KISS OF DECEIT

"May I come in?"

A smile lit up the face of the invalid man.

"Of course you may, Babs! Oh, it's you, Harriet! How marvelously your voice resembles Barbara's!"

The smile had faded when he saw his mistake, and his pale, subdued sister-in-law busied herself with the medicines.

"Yes, we're all alike in that," she said, "if in nothing else. But I've noticed that brothers and sisters more often resemble each other in voice than in anything else—haven't you?"

"At any rate it is so in your case," said Philip Chesney, wearily. "Why doesn't Barbara come up?"

The solemn Harriet turned away. How could she tell the stricken man that Barbara—beautiful, winsome, selfish Barbara, who had looked upon life as a summer garden, and herself the fairest flower therein—how could she tell him that his wife had taken his illness in the light of a personal affront? Her plans were ruined for the season; the parties and balls and festive gatherings, where she would have been envied and worshipped as queen indisputable, had to be exchanged for a depressing bedroom. It was unendurable!

But how could Harriet tell the doting, helpless man, knowing as she did that he had worshiped her with all the strength of his nature, that she had left Barbara in her room, crying out in the bitterness of selfishness against her hard and cruel fate?

"Barbara is tired. She has a headache and is lying down," said Harriet, glibly; and he was satisfied.

He swallowed the medicine she poured out for him with a wry face.

"Raise yourself for a moment," she said, "while I smooth your pillow."

"Very well," he said, irritably. "But be quick; I cannot sit up long."

He was scowling when he laid back again on the smoothed pillow, for it is hard indeed to be ill when a beautiful wife and a prosperous business dangle tantalizingly, and call mockingly to him who was so mighty yesterday to come to-day and reap the harvest for which he had worked so hard.

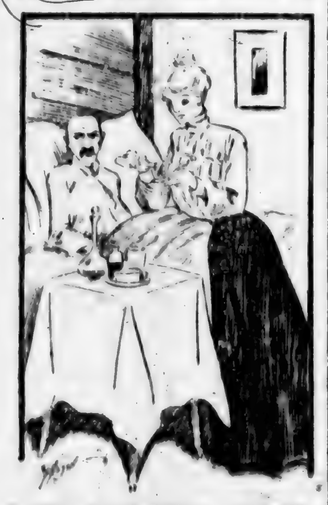
Harriet turned away, cut to the quick by the note of irritation. She knew it was foolish, and that Philip Chesney had enough to try him, if any man had; but she felt it never-theless.

He caught her look as she turned, and a touch of remorse swept over him.

"Little sister," he said, clasping her hand, "take no notice of me. I am ill and peevish; but, believe me, I am grateful."

And Harriet left the room with a wild tumult beating in her usually quiet breast.

That was in the early days of Philip Chesney's illness; but the hope which ugly, gentle little Harriet fra-



"Why doesn't Barbara come up?"

ter had cherished—that time would win Barbara to a sense of her duty—was not realized. The gay little butterfly soul pined and wearied for its rose garden, and grew more and more to loathe the nauseous, unhealthy vessels within which it had to flutter.

Who shall say she was to blame? Have you, reader, ever attempted to analyze the charm of the most fascinating woman of your acquaintance—to find out the secret by the magic of which she makes men her slaves? Do so, and, if the gift of seeing be yours, you shall find that on the reverse side of this beautiful charm there lurks the sinister demon—Selfishness.

All the time Philip grew worse. He would either die, or become a life-long invalid—that was the verdict of the doctors; and the beautiful girl-wife shuddered, and bit her rosebud lips till the blood came as she contemplated the prospect.

And one day a male butterfly, also without a heart, fluttered into that gloomy bower, and flaunted his gorgeous, tempting coloring before the dazzled eyes of the brilliant feminine insect of his species; and, lo! they flew away from that gloomy house—which was assuredly no place for butterflies—together.

Harriet was the first to learn of the flight. She had feared for so long that her lovely sister would, in revolt against the fate which was so distasteful, take some such step as this, that the discovery scarcely came as a surprise. She had done her best to drive the male butterfly from the house; but he had found entrance again and again.

The kiss was a lie.

Her thin, pale face grew more drawn as she contemplated the position; but, like the drab, unselfish creature she was, she soon fell to blaming herself.

Babs had been their mother's darling, and on her deathbed she had bestowed her upon Harriet as a precious trust. How, she reflected, had she kept that trust? It is ever thus with the drab and unselfish.

That night the doctors came from the invalid's room looking graver than ever. Philip, they said, was sinking, and ugly, gentle Harriet grew to think that surely Fate must hate him bitterly indeed.

To lose life is bitter, in spite of the pessimists; but to have the knowledge that while life was slowly ebbing honor itself had taken wings and flown, is to taste the uttermost dregs of human degradation.

She had not told him of the flight of the butterflies. She had tried, for she conceived it to be her duty to do so; but the words had stuck in her throat. And now, as she was about to enter his room, she determined that he should never know if she could help it.

"Who is it?" moaned Philip, as she entered. "I'm blind. I can't see."

"It is I, Philip," said ugly Harriet's beautiful voice.

A glory of satisfied longing leaped into the sick man's face.

"At last," he said, "my wife, my darling! I—forgive me!—I thought you had tired of your helpless, useless husband. But—oh, you have come to me—you have come!"

The voice had deceived him again, and austere, truth-loving Harriet, who had never lied before, did not enlighten him.

He clasped her hand and they talked as lovers do, lightly ignoring death, who watched them sardonically.

But Harriet saw that the shock of the joy had been too much for the sick and blind man. A gray shadow slowly spread over the sunken cheek.

"Kiss me, and say that you love me!" he gasped.

"I love you!" she said, as she kissed him tenderly.

The kiss was a lie, and a lie is a foul thing; but the Recording Angel has surely written the sin in the faintest of characters in his book, for the words that gentle, ugly Harriet obediently spoke were, and had always been, true.

And, with the kiss of deceit on his brow, a happy man passed into the great unknown, where, if there is mercy, he never learned the truth.—New York Telegraph.

THE POWER OF GRIT.

Make Up Your Mind to a Task, and You Will Do It.

To carry on the back a pack weighing a hundred pounds or more means not only strong muscles but a mastery of balance. In the Forest, Mr. Stewart Edward White says that the first time he did any packing he had a hard time stumbling a few hundred feet with just fifty pounds on his back. At the end of that same trip he could carry a hundred pounds and a lot of canoe poles and guns over a long portage without serious inconvenience. Mr. White says:

At first packing is as near infernal punishment as merely mundane conditions can compass. Sixteen brand-new muscles ache, at first dully, then sharply, then intolerably, until it seems you cannot bear it another second. At first you rest every time you feel tired. Then you begin to feel very tired every fifty feet. Then you have to do the best you can, and prove the pluck that is in you.

Mr. Tom Friant, an old woodsman of wide experience, has often told me with relish of his first try at carrying. He had about sixty pounds, and his companion double that amount. Mr. Friant stood it for what seemed like a few centuries, and then sat down. He could not have moved another step if a gun had been at his ear.

"What's the matter?" asked his companion.

"Del," said Friant, "I'm all in. I can't navigate. Here's where I quit."

"Can't you carry her any farther?"

"Not an inch."

"Well, pile her on. I'll carry her for you."

Friant looked at him a moment in silent amazement.

"Do you mean to say that you are going to carry your pack and mine, too?"

"That's what I mean to say. I'll do it if I have to."

Friant drew a long breath. "Well," said he, at last, "if a little, sawed-off chap like you can wiggle under a hundred and eighty, I guess I can make it under sixty."

"That's right," said Del, imperturbably. "If you think you can, you can."

"And I did," ends Friant, with a chuckle.

Therein lies the whole secret. The work is irksome, painful, but if you think you can do it, you can; for although great is the protest of the human frame against what it considers abuse, greater still is the power of a man's grit.

The Better Land.

"I hear thee speak of the better land.
Thou callest its children a happy band;
Mother! Oh, where is that radiant shore?
Is it where the flowers of the orange blows,
And the fireflies glance through the myrtle boughs?"
"Not there, not there, my child!"

"Is it where the feathery palm trees rise,
And the date grows ripe under sunny skies?
Or 'midst the green islands of glittering seas,
Where fragrant forests perfume the breeze
And strange, bright birds, on their starry wings,
Bear the rich hues of all glorious things?"
"Not there, not there, my child!"

"Is it far away, in some region old,
Where the rivers wander o'er sands of gold?
Where the burning rays of the ruby shine,
And the diamond lights up the secret mine,
And the pearl gleams forth from the coral strand?
Is it there, sweet mother, that better land?"

"Not there, not there, my child!"

"Eye hath not seen it, my gentle boy!
Ear hath not heard its deep songs of joy;
Dreams cannot picture a world so fair—
Sorrow and death may not enter there;
Time doth not breathe on its fadeless bloom,
It is there, it is there, my child!"
—Felicia Hemans.

She Paid Well for Permission.

Mme. Seveillez, a 50-year-old widow of Paris, France, found a chance to marry again last week, but, fearing that the ghost of her husband might disturb her sleep, she consulted a spiritualist, and obtained permission for a second marriage.

After several seances, in which Mme. Seveillez paid large sums to the medium, the latter persuaded her to keep locked up for three days and nights in a dark room, placing all her valuables on a plate covered by a cloth, on the table near by.

At the appointed time Mme. Seveillez, tired of waiting for her husband's spirit, removed the covering of the plate, and found all her valuables gone and in their place a note granting her permission to marry. She has denounced the medium to the police.

Tong Haks of Korea.

The Tong Haks present the only virile patriotic faction in Korea. But it is a faction now threatening, now dispersed, now on the war path, now dissolved among the body of the people, now robbing and looting, now fighting, and now busied with theological arguments in a manner so impossible to western thought, motives and methods that it is almost impossible to characterize it.

It is the more difficult because the Tong Hak belief partakes of the nature of a religion and of piracy, of metaphysical discussion and of massacre, and also of patriotic resistance to official extortion.

Something Wrong.

"What's the matter?" demanded the slightly fuddled man as he got aboard the car, "ain't this the car I want?"

"What!" snapped the conductor. "How do I know?"

"Oh, you must 'a' knowed it or you wouldn't 'a's stopped an' let me ketch yer."—Philadelphia Press.

FACTS ABOUT THE COINAGE.

Director of the Mint Gives Information as to Old and New Issues.

The director of the mint is called on to answer such a wide range of questions concerning the values of old and new coins and medals that he has found it necessary to issue circulars covering matters of this sort. It tells some interesting facts. It appears that the mint does not buy old coins or paper money except some rare colonial coins in fine condition, which are desired for the mint cabinet.

Mutilated or uncurrent United States gold and silver coin is purchased as bullion. The mint has no pattern pieces for sale. The government pays no premium for the return of any of its coins or paper money. New coins cannot be struck until authorized by an act of congress. The mint supplies United States coins only and not of any past date. The $50 gold piece and the half-dollar and quarter-dollar pieces in gold were struck by private parties on the California coast during the 1849 period and not by the United States government.

The coinage of the following coins ceased in the years named: Half and 1-cent, copper, in 1857; 1-cent, nickel, 1864; half-dime and 3 cents, silver, and 2 cents bronze, in 1873; 20 cents, silver, 1878; trade dollars, 1883; $1 and $3, gold, and 3 cents, nickel, 1889. The Columbian half-dollar was coined in 1893. The Lafayette dollar was struck in 1899, the date on the coin (1900) being that of the unveiling of the memorial.

There are certain markings on every United States coin that enable the place of its coinage to be located. Those struck at the Philadelphia mint have no mint mark, but those struck at all other mints are distinguished by a small letter on the reverse, near the bottom. These letters are: C for Charlotte, N. C., discontinued in 1861; CC for Carson City, Nev., discontinued in 1893; D for Dahlonega, Ga., discontinued in 1861; O for New Orleans and S for San Francisco.

The coins of the United States now authorized by law are: In gold, double eagle, eagle, half eagle and quarter eagle; in silver, half-dollar, quarter-dollar and dime; minor, 5-cent nickel and 1 cent bronze. A person may buy a proof set of gold coins from the mint for $38.50 and a proof set of silver and minor coins for $1.50. When the business of the mints is slack medals may be struck from dies furnished by individuals, public institutions and incorporated societies, at a charge sufficient to cover the cost of the operation and the value of the metal.

A Sure Thing.

A crowd standing around one of the bookmakers at Overland park, Denver, one day during the races was given an opportunity to have a little joke on that self-important person, who was interrupted in his talk to the men by a well-dressed man who forced his way to him and said something excitedly.

The bookmaker beat on the railing before him and called for attention. "Gentlemen," he shouted, "I have been asked to say that a pocketbook containing $500 has been lost or stolen from a gentleman here who says he will give a reward of $50 for it.

"Seventy-five dollars!" yelled some wag on the outskirts of the crowd.

"Ninety dollars!" came from someone else instantly.

"One hundred dollars!" "One hundred and twenty-five dollars!" "One hundred and fifty dollars!"

In a moment the enthusiastic bids for the lost purse caused its owned to retreat to the grand stand and the bookmaker to say things which were drowned in the laughter of his audience.

"Ladies' Lace Overalls."

Devotees of the masculine mode in femininity may or may not be disappointed upon learning that the much vaunted English vogue of "ladies' lace overalls as holiday specialties" sounds severer than it looks. Reduced to final analysis, a drop skirt is the result, and such being the innocent case, the chances are that the garment in due course will be popularly adopted by milady's American cousins.

At first consternation prevailed lest something else might be intended. The initial intelligence relative to this interesting subject was conveyed to a Manhattan gentler sex fashion periodical by "our own correspondent," the cablegram reading:

"A leading West End draper is devoting his lace department to a display of special numbers in ladies' lace overalls."—New York Press.

The Brave Old Way.

I say risk all for one warm kiss,
I say 'twere better risk the fall,
Like Romeo, to venture all,
And boldly climb to deadly bliss
I like that savage. Shine way;
What mighty minstrels came of it!
Their songs are ringing to this day.
The bravest ever sung or writ.
Their loves the love of Juliet,
Of Portia, Desdemona, yea,
The old true lovers are living yet:
And we, we love, we weep, we sigh
In love with loves that will not die

Then take her, lover, sword in hand,
Hot-blooded and red-handed; clasp
Her sudden, stormy tall and grand,
And lift her in your iron grasp
And kiss her, kiss her till she cries
From keen, sweet, happy, killing pain
Aye, kiss her till she seeming dies;
Aye, kiss her till she dies, and then,
Why, kiss her back to life again!
—Joaquin Miller in Smart Set.

The Tailor's Waterloo.

"No, sir," said the tailor, breathing hard. "No new suit till you pay for the one you have got on."

"Very well," said we coldly. "We shall sleep in this one, pull up one suspender higher than the other, wrinkle our shoulders, and then beg all our friends to go to you, and show them what a fine fit you gave us."

We had him there.

Was the Final Insul

"He is furious with you," said the girl with the red pompadour.

The girl with the retrousse nose only smiled as she turned to the mirror and caught up a stray lock of hair with a gilt hairpin.

"He said," went on the girl with the red pompadour, "that you were utterly devoid of principle and intensely vain and horribly selfish."

"Did he?" giggled the girl with the retrousse nose, craning her neck to see if her collar was quite straight at the back.

"Yes, and he is telling it about that your father is not half as rich as people fancy, and that your family came originally from Kansas, where your grandfather ran a—a—I forget what they call it, where they sell beer and things—and that there is a discrepancy in your coat-of-arms; and that he taught you all you know about art, and that you never read anything but paper-covered novels and didn't know an ism from an ology until he met you, and—"

"Oh, well," interrupted the girl with the retrousse nose, taking a bundle of pins out of her mouth and serenely pulling in the lacings of her girdle, "he feels terribly cut up, poor boy, since I—since we—ceased to—well, since it has been all off. You can't blame him for saying some spiteful things, and everybody knows they are not true."

"Of course," agreed the girl with the red pompadour, "and that is what I told Edwin. There isn't a single word of truth in what he has said, even that you wear number seven boots and have your frocks cut low to hide them, and—"

"Did he say that?" gasped the girl with the retrousse nose, applying a powder puff in the midst of it to her nose, and turning wrathfully upon her companion.

"Why, yes," replied the red pompadour hastily, "but you surely don't blame me for that, since you did treat him rather shabbily, Madeline, and—"

"I said," cried the girl with the retrousse nose, bringing the brush emphatically down on the corner of the dressing table, "that I didn't blame him, or anything, but forgive him, for attacking my character and my veracity and my reputation, and my commonness and my ancestry and my father and my grandfather! But when he impugns my feet—my feet—Stella Carlton's no more than any woman could stand, trying to punish him!"—New York Press.

Not What He Appeared

He was certainly not the sort of character you would expect to meet at the track. Had I by any marvelous mishap wandered into the Salvation Army headquarters? Or some Gospel tent. No, I was where I had headed for—the race track—but what in the name of all that was unheard of was HE doing there?

His plain, black garb of ministerial cut, the narrow tie, the straw hat with its somber band, spoke much, but his countenance told even more. Smooth shaven, a grave and serious cast to his long, thin face. He stood near me, and if he felt emotions of any kind he gave no outward sign.

If his thoughts were on the horses—surely, it was not possible that he had any money on them—no, I could not bring myself to imagine anything so improbable. He interested me so greatly that I found myself turning every now and then in his direction, but I never saw any change in his mode of attitude.

It was over. The horses had passed the judges' stand. The names of the winners had been called. He still my solemn friend preserved the same unmoved demeanor.

It was only when the last number was run up that he gave any sign of interest. Even then he had the same calm, grave look, as he solemnly removed his hat, placed it on the ground, and then, still serious and sedate, jumped upon that hat until it was a crushed and ruined mass.

Having done this, he turned and walked with the same deliberate movement to the betting ring.

"I must see the end of this," I said, following him.

He had won $1,200—and could buy a new hat.—New York Telegraph.

Belle Proved Her Braver

Miss Mary Doherty of Margaretta street, Pittsburg, after killing with a revolver two large catamounts which had attacked her, was found unconscious some days ago on a lonely road near Clay Run, twelve miles east of Connellsville, Pa. Philip Coxe, a young farmer, nearly drove over the prostrate body of the young woman, which lay in the middle of the road. Close by were the carcasses of the fierce beasts she had slain.

When she regained consciousness Miss Doherty described the terrifying experience which had befallen her on her return from a visit to a friend who lived a short distance from Clay Run.

As the neighborhood has been troubled considerably by catamounts, the young woman, who is an expert shot, carried a pistol as she ventured forth unattended.

When within a half mile of Clay Run she was startled by the appearance of two formidable beasts, which sprang from behind a rock on the hillside. Before the young woman could recover from her first fright the catamounts were upon her, clutching at her throat. Drawing the pistol Miss Doherty fired, killing one animal and wounding the other.

The young woman fell to the ground bleeding from numerous cuts on the neck, face and body, whereupon the wounded catamount renewed its attack. Miss Doherty fired again; her aim was true, and the wounded beast fell dead by her side. Then Miss Doherty fainted.

Miss Doherty is a prepossessing brunette, and before her removal to Pittsburg was considered the belle of the village near which she had her encounter.

Canada's Output of Gol

According to the report of the geological survey of Canada for the last year, recently issued, since 1896 upward of $97,000,000 worth of gold has been shipped out of the Canadian Yukon. The production of the precious metal in this district amounted to only a few hundred thousand dollars' worth eight years ago. In 1899 it had leaped to $22,000,000, but since that record year it has steadily declined several millions each year until last year the production amounted to $12,250,000.

It is reported that practically all this gold has been taken out of the wonderfully rich claims contained in about half a dozen creeks in the Klondike district, and the decreasing production of this wealth is largely attributed to the exhaustion of the best deposits. Although production is apparently decreasing, it is shown, on the other hand, that mining activity in the Yukon is increasing. Machinery is being extensively introduced for mining operations, with the result that many abandoned claims and low-grade gravels are being profitably worked with a good degree of profit.

It would seem from the present condition of things in the Yukon that the day when the placer miner, with his pan, could in a brief space of time secure a vast fortune is now a thing of the past. The Yukon is experiencing the conditions that have resulted to all other mining countries, and capitalists are now coming forward and are acquiring the properties and securing the wealth of gold which only requires scientific development of the mines successfully to produce. The cost of mining in the Yukon is consequently being greatly reduced as well as the output of gold.

Victims of Human Gree

Another wild animal has been almost exterminated by the hunters. It is the beautiful satan ape of New Guinea, which once was so plentiful in the forests there that travelers told how almost every tree bore its load of handsome monkeys.

The beauty of the satan ape was its doom. Its wonderful shining fur, composed of immensely long silken hair, became popular for its furs about twelve years ago, and at once fur hunters penetrated the wild home of the monkeys to supply the markets of Europe.

In 1898 the government figures showed that 175,000 skins had been shipped in that one year. Within years so many monkeys had been killed that only 67,000 skins were reported in 1896. In many places the forests are absolutely lifeless now, and it is calculated that there will be no satan apes left at all in a few years.

The white heron, although it also exists in great numbers in certain parts of South America, is doomed like the monkey, for $100,000 worth of skins are exported annually from Argentina alone, while Venezuela sends out about $90,000 each year. It has been estimated that in the seven years of plume hunting in Florida the annual slaughter of these grand birds amounted to $1,500,000.—Omaha Distress at Cape Town.

The distress at Cape Town owing to the prolonged commercial depression has become very acute. The government has announced its intention to cease payment of wages to men employed on railway relief works and to substitute rations and a small clothing allowance to guard against the rapid exhaustion of the funds voted by Parliament for the relief of distress. The funds at the disposal of the relief committee also are exhausted.

Explode Heaps of Dynamite.

In boring the Simplon tunnel, almost completed, 1,530,000 dynamite blasts have been made. Dynamite to the amount of 165,900 pounds was used.

Wisdom of Experience.

Parker—"Did the climate in Florida agree with your wife?"

Rapack—"Yes; but it did. Otherwise she would have made it hot for the climate."

VOL. II.

COTTON SITUA

President Jordan issues peal. All sections stir action

FARMERS URGED TO H TON.

All Producers Urged to A tional Cotton Convention Meetings Being Held

Montgomery, Ala.—That be concerted action on the leading cotton growers in looking toward the restor prices for the staple is per agitation now in progress section of the south.

Commissioner of Agricul Poole received a telegram fr ville, Tex., signed by E. S. N. C. Murray, telling of a ing of cotton representati Texas, Oklahoma Territory Territory to be held on Dec in Greenville. At this big ing important resolutions drawn urging planters in oth to hold their cotton, assuring ple that Texas would hold residue crop.

Commissioner Poole has ceived a communication fro Burt, of Talladega, who sugg earnestly that he urge the co ers of Alabama to hold the ing crop until the price goes ten cents. Mr. Burt said:

"The bears are determine the people of their labor an so if we only permit it."

Jordan's Appeal.

A lengthy appeal to the ginning merchants, bankers a ers, sent out by Harvie Jor Monticello, Ga., president of Georgia Cotton Growers' Associa gained wide circulation.

"The bearish bureau repo from the department of agric December 3d, indicating a cr 12,000 bales, gave the specul opportunity they had been ing," says President Jordan in final, "and in less than thirty nearly $30,000,000 in value was taken from the pockets of southern farmers.

"Every dollar's loss on cot at present prices will go into the pockets of these speculators, and the gains for the present owners will be of at least 5,000,000 bales. It is too soon to say whether this unjust and high-handed robbery will be quietly submitted to."

President Jordan declares the bureau report just issued is in this year's cotton yield and has no confidence in the ginners.

"I now call upon every farmer who is holding cotton, and can possibly do so, to attend the cotton convention to be held in Shreveport, La., December 12 and 13." Continuing, the president of the association says: "There must be definite action looking to the holding of the balance of the crop until prices advance."

At this convention it will be the sense of the leaders that next year's cotton acreage should be reduced 25 per cent and the crop be cut down to about 10,000,000 bales.

Suggestion to Burn All the Cotton.

Courtland, Ala.—The people of Lawrence county, and particularly the cotton adjacent to Courtland, are as patriotic as any on earth and are willing to contribute their full share to the general prosperity of the country. The government report on the cotton crop found a great many of the farmers hundreds of bales of cotton on hand and not all of their debts paid. The report came out, as is now the history, the price of the staple which the south relied for a crop, dropped below the cost of production.

With the view of discussing some means of reducing the crop one of the representative men of the community met and promulgated ideas and resolutions set out that the originators of these suggestions did not know that they will accomplish the desired end, but they are willing to sacrifice their holdings to some extent to alleviate the condition of misfortune. The address is as follows:

"To Newspapers, Cotton Exchanges, Merchants and Cotton Growers:

"We believe that the government report of the cotton crop is too high by 750,000 bales, but should we be right what plan is best to dispose of the surplus? With the co-operation of cotton growers, merchants and the bankers of the cotton belt, we suggest a plan by all interested be voluntarily contribute from their growing crop a sufficient number of bales of cotton, based

the Final Insu

ous with you," said the red pompadour.
ith the retrousse nose s she turned to the mir up a stray lock of hair airpin.
went on the girl with padour, "that you were of principle and in- and horribly selfish."
iggled the girl with the s, craning her neck to r was quite straight at ll telling it about that not half as rich as peo- that your family came n Kansas, where your n a sod I forget what there they sell beer and did there is a discrep- coat of arms; and that all you know about art, never read anything but novels and didn't know an ology until he met interrupted the girl with ass, taking a bundle of t mouth and serenely bottom of her girdle, ldy cut up, poor boy, we ceased to well, en all off. You can't ainly not the sort of would expect to meet ad by any marvelous ed into the Salvation ers? Or some Gospel s where I had headed rack, but what in the t was unheard of was ?

What He Appeared

ck garb of ministerial w tie, the straw hat band, spoke much, but o told, even more, n grave and serious , thin face. He stood f he felt emotions of ve no outward sign. s were on the horses not possible that he on them—no, I could f to imagine anything He interested me so found myself turning every now and then in his directio but I never saw any change in h of attitude.
It was over. The horses had pa ed the judges' stand. The names the winners had been called. A still my solemn friend preserved same unmoved demeanor.
It was only when the last numb was run up that he gave any sign interest. Even then he had the ca calm, grave look, as he solemnly moved his hat, placed it on t ground, and then, still serious and date, jumped upon that hat until was a crushed and ruined mass.
Having done this, he turned a walked with the same deliber movement to the betting ring.
"I must see the end of this," I sa following him.
He had won $1,700—and could a new hat.—New York Telegraph.

Proved Her Braver

oherty of Margaretta , after killing with a ge catamounts which er, was found uncon- ago on a lonely road twelve miles east of a Philip Coxe, a early drove over the of the young woman, e middle of the road. he carcasses of the had slain.
ained consciousness scribed the terrifying had befallen her on m a visit to a d a short distance rhood has been trou- by catamounts, the ho is an expert shot, s she ventured forth
When within a half mile of C Run she was startled by the appe ance of two formidable beasts, wh sprang from behind a rock on t hillside. Before the young wom could recover from her first fright catamounts were upon her, clutch at her throat. Drawing the pi Miss Doherty fired, killing one mal and wounding the other.
The young woman fell to the gro bleeding from numerous cuts on neck, face and body, whereupon wounded catamount renewed its tack. Miss Doherty fired again; aim was true, and the wounded b fell dead by her side. Then Doherty fainted.
Miss Doherty is a preposses brunette, and before her removal Pittsburg was considered the belle the village near which she had encounter.

ia's Output of Gol

e report of the geo- Canada for the last ased, since 1896 up- 00 worth of gold has of the Canadian Yu ion of the precious istrict amounted to ed thousand dollars' ase. In 1890 it had ne, but since that e steadily declined n a year until last amounted to that practically all n taken out of the ims contained in en creeks in the and the decreasing wealth is largely exhaustion of the although production easing, it is shown, on the other hand, that mining act ity in the Yukon is increasing. chinery is being extensively in duced for mining operations, with result that many abandoned clai and low-grade gravels are being worked with a good degree of profit.
It would seem from the present c dition of things in the Yukon t the day when the placer miner, w his pan, could in a brief space time secure a vast fortune is now thing of the past. The Yukon is periencing the conditions that h resulted to all other mining countri and capitalists are now coming ward and are acquiring the proper and securing the wealth of gold wh only requires scientific developme of the mines successfully to produ The cost of mining in the Yukon consequently being greatly reduced well as the output of gold.

ns of Human Gree

mirse has been al- by fox hunters. It satan ape of New e was so plentiful that travelers told tree bore its load e satan ape was its fine shining fur, com long silken hair, for its furs about and at once fur the wild home of pply the markets of government figures 00 skins had been shipped in that one year. Within t years so many monkeys had b killed that only 67,000 skins were reported in 1896. In many places forests are absolutely lifeless now, it is calculated that there will be satan apes left at all in a few years.
The white heron, although it al exists in great numbers in cer parts of South America, is doom like the monkey, for $100,000 worth skins are exported annually from gentina alone, while Venezuela out about $90,000 each year. It been estimated that in the years of plume hunting in Florida annual slaughter of these grand amounted to $1,500,000.—Omaha

Cape Town.

Cape Town owing commercial depres- ry acute. The gov- unced its intention of wages to men y relief works and s and a small cloth- guard against the the funds voted by relief of distress. isposal of the relief exhausted.

Explode Heaps of Dynamite.

In boring the Simpton tunnel almost completed, 1,530,000 dy blasts have been made. Dynam the amount of 165,900 pounds used.

Wisdom of Experience.

Parker—"Did the climate In Ida agree with your wife?"
Enpeck—"You bet it did. wise she would have made it the climate."

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. II. CLANTON, ALA., DECEMBER 15, 1904. NO. 38

COTTON SITUATION

President Jordan issues an appeal. All sections stirred to action

FARMERS URGED TO HOLD COTTON.

All Producers Urged to Attend National Cotton Convention—Mass Meetings Being Held.

Montgomery, Ala.—That there is to be concerted action on the part of leading cotton growers in the south looking toward the restoration of prices for the staple is proved by the agitation now in progress in every section of the south.

Commissioner of Agriculture R. R. Poole received a telegram from Greenville, Tex., signed by E. S. Pettus and N. C. Murray, telling of a mass meeting of cotton representatives from Texas, Oklahoma Territory and Indian Territory to be held on December 17th in Greenville. At this big mass meeting important resolutions will be drawn urging planters in other states to hold their cotton, assuring the people that Texas would hold on to its residue crop.

Commissioner Poole has also received a communication from H. M. Burt, of Talladega, who suggests most earnestly that he urge the cotton planters of Alabama to hold their remaining crop until the price goes back to ten cents. Mr. Burt said:

The bears are determined to rob the people of their labor and will do so if we only permit it."

Jordan's Appeal.

A lengthy appeal to the south, including merchants, bankers and planters, sent out by Harvie Jordan, of Monticello, Ga., president of the Southern Cotton Growers' Association, has gained wide circulation.

"The bearish bureau report issued by the department of agriculture on December 3d, indicating a crop of 12,232,000 bales, gave the speculators the opportunity they had been praying for," says President Jordan in his appeal, "and in less than thirty minutes nearly $30,000,000 in value was struck from the pockets of southern farmers.

"Every dollar's loss on cotton sold at present prices will go into the pockets of these speculators, and it remains for the present owners and holders of at least 5,000,000 bales of this crop to say whether this unrighteous hold-up and high-handed robbery shall be quietly submitted to."

President Jordan declares that the bureau report just issued is in excess of this year's cotton yield and attaches no confidence in the ginners report.

"I now call upon every producer who is holding cotton, and who can possibly do so, to attend the National Cotton convention to be held in Shreveport, La., December 12, 13, 14 and 15." Continuing, the president of the association says: "there to take definite action looking to the holding of the balance of the crop until prices advance."

At this convention it will be the sense of the leaders that next year's cotton acreage should be reduced 25 per cent and the crop be cut down to about 10,000,000 bales.

Suggestion to Burn All the Surplus Cotton.

Courtland, Ala.—The people of Lawrence county, and particularly that section adjacent to Courtland, are as patriotic as any on earth and are willing to contribute their full share to the general prosperity of the south. The government report on the cotton crop found a great many of them with hundreds of bales of cotton on hand and not all of their debts paid. When the report came out, as is now a matter of history, the price of the staple, which the south relied for a livelihood, dropped below the cost of production.

With the view of discussing ways and means of reducing the ruin, a few of the representative men of this community met and promulgated the plans and resolutions set out below. The originators of these suggestions do not know that they will accomplish the desired end, but they are all willing to sacrifice their holdings to a large extent to alleviate the common misfortune. The address is as follows:

"To Newspapers, Cotton Exchanges, Merchants and Cotton Growers:

"We believe that the government estimate of the cotton crop is too large at 11,750,000 bales, but should we be mistaken what plan is best to dispose of the surplus? With the co-operation of cotton growers, merchants and cotton exchanges of the cotton belt, why can not a plan by all interested be formed and voluntarily contribute from each cotton growing state a sufficient number of bales of cotton, based on the production of each state, to make 1,000,000 bales, this to be burned or otherwise destroyed under the supervision of the Cotton Exchange, Board of Trade or corporate authorities of the town or community in which it is grown? If this plan is feasible we, the undersigned citizens of Courtland, Lawrence county, Alabama, obligate ourselves to contribute our pro rata share of cotton, be it fifty bales or more, as a starter to reduce this surplus and obtain a fair price for the balance of the crop."

The gentlemen who have signed the above are representative business men of this community.

Texas Growers Will Hold.

New Orleans.—Some strength was given to the cotton market today by a telegram to W. P. Brown, from President Peters, of the Texas Cotton Growers' Association, and other prominent Texas cotton men. The telegram said that a mass meeting of cotton planters had been called in every county in Texas, Indian Territory and Oklahoma to take place December 17th to devise ways and means to hold cotton. It was added that Texas would hold hers.

It was considered not improbable that a meeting of the planters and country bankers in all the southern states growing cotton would be held here about the date of the Texas meeting to consider means to meet the conditions imposed by the report of the bureau of agriculture.

North Carolina Loyal.

Raleigh, N. C.—Some of the best informed cotton men in North Carolina say positively that the growers here will hold all of their crop they can. They are now preparing to store cotton, and can, of course, secure advances upon it. A proposition is made in one of the leading papers in the state that the cotton growers shall unite, put only 20 per cent of their crops on the market, making a solemn pledge to this effect and also pledge themselves to reduce acreage next season 20 per cent. It is urged that these pledges be filed with the state commissioner of agriculture. Some persons have contended that the farmers will not work together and can not be all gotton in line, but that some will try to overreach each other. In reply it is pointed out that they did all unite in refusing to use cotton bagging made by the trusts and so put the latter out of business. It is further shown that the North Carolina tobacco growers united this year and reduced their acreage from 20 to 50 per cent in accordance with agreement. The farmers think 10 cents per pound is the fair and correct price for their cotton and the action suggested is in the line obtaining that figure.

A Georgia Man's Opinion.

Macon, Ga.—A new theory has been advanced for the recent slumps in the market price of cotton. William McEwen Johnston, the cotton mill operator of this city, attributes the decline in part to the predictions of a large crop made by certain cotton men of the north, enforced by misrepresentative statements of the condition of affairs down south.

Mr. Johnston says such men as Theodore H. Price, of New York, are influenced by selfish motives in circulating certain reports in the shape of letters and statements through the press with regard to such an enormous cotton crop for this year. Quoting from T. H. Price's cotton letter of Wednesday, where he predicts that this year's cotton crop will be 13,000,000 bales, Mr. Johnston suggests that the men who make such estimates are themselves interested in the market price of cotton from a financial standpoint; that they wish to produce a bearish effect on the market so as to be able to buy low and sell high.

To substantiate his view Mr. Johnston permits the newspapers to publish a letter received from a friend in Texas, whom he knows to be undoubtedly reliable. The lettor contains the following:

"T. H. Price sent down here a week or more ago to have some one to have some photographs taken of cotton being picked, if it did not cost over $25, and sent to him at once. They found one field (only a corner of it) and they put some negroes in it and then went to picking, and I suppose Price exhibited this and beared the market—a clear misrepresentation of the condition of things here."

To further show that this was in truth the intention of Price when he sent to Texas for the photographs, Mr. Johnston cites Price's cotton letter of Wednesday, in which he says:

"I am supplied with photographs of a number of fields in the south which I shall shortly publish, and which gives indisputable evidence of the fact that a large amount of cotton is still unpicked." Backed by the letter of his friend in Texas, Mr. Johnston declares that if these photographs are exhibited they will grossly misrepresent the actual conditions down south, giving color, as they will, to cotton predictions continually made by Price—thereby producing more decided slumps in the market price of cotton than have heretofore been the order of the day.

State Treasurer Reports.

Montgomery, Ala.—State Treasurer J. Craig Smith gave out his annual report to the governor, which is for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1904. The report comprises all receipts and disbursements by this department during the fiscal year, also a condensed statement of the bonded debt of the state, with a numerical list of coupon bonds, exchanged and superseded by registered bonds.

According to his report there was a balance on hand at the close of business, September 30, 1904, $1,191,624.43. There was a balance on hand on September 30, 1903, of $994,056.56. Receipts from October 1, 1903, to September 30, 1894, were $3,201,339.71. The disbursements for the fiscal year were $3,003,771.84. The general fund amounted to $1,858,143.80. In the general fund is included the money received from the convict bureau for hire of convicts, which amounted to $495,109.54, insurance department $85,854.30, department of agriculture $72,143.66, licenses, general, $308,000.37, from state taxes of 1903, $709,051.66, tax on record of mortgages, $59,321.99, and several other smaller items.

For the education fund there was received $1,017,797.49. Poll taxes paid $125,932.29 of this. The total bonded indebtedness of the state is $9,357,600. There are $185,400 worth of bonds that have been barred by the statute of limitation. The annual interest on the standing bonds amount to $448,680.

Alabama Officials Clash.

Washington—Two Alabama officials came to blows in the office of the assistant secretary of the treasury. William F. Tebbetts, collector of customs at Mobile, was the slightly injured party, and J. O. Thompson collector of internal revenue, administered the blow. Mr. Thompson, Postmaster Hughes and Mr. J. B. Cobbs, president of the Alabama National bank, dropped into the office of Secretary Armstrong to pay their respects. Mr. Tebbetts was at the time engaged in conversation with the secretary, and in response to a salutation Thompson gave to the secretary and Mr. Tebbetts the latter failed to respond, but left the desk and took a seat on a nearby sofa. It is claimed by friends of Thompson that he paid no attention to Tebbetts' action, believing that it had not been noticed by the secretary. Tebbetts, however, is reported to have risen from his place and walked deliberately between the secretary and Thompson over to Cobbs and Hughes, whom he greeted ver ycordially, ignoring Thompson. The slight offered Thompson then became apparent to all present, and the Birmingham collector at once resented it.

"I can not be insulted in this manner," Mr. Thompson is reported as saying to Tebbetts, "and you are an infamous scoundrel, sir."

Tebbetts walked over to where Secretary Armstrong was standing and is said to have replied, "You are an infamous scoundrel."

The words had hardly left Tebbetts' mouth before Thompson's fist landed on his face and the secretary's office was in an uproar. The blow struck by Thompson was not a very severe one, and Tebbetts managed to stand up under it.

Oil in Alabama.

Decatur, Ala.—The reports printed in the daily press all over the country to the effect that Major John W. Otley had made a rich find of oil at Humble, Tex., has awakened much interest throughout north Alabama from the fact that in 1901 the United States government sent Major Otley to north Alabama to make a geological survey of this section.

In his report of the oil fields of north Alabama, Major Otley has this to say:

"The points recently examined were the most pronounced I have ever met with, and I unhesitatingly pronounce these fields in Morgan, Lawrence, Franklin and Colbert counties equal to any fields east of the Mississippi basin."

Major Otley's opinion of oil fields has proven to be correct in every particular in these sections where a thorough test has been made. It was Major Otley who located the great oil fields at Beaumont, Tex., a few years ago for Captain A. F. Lucas. It is the belief of the people here that oil in paying quanties for this region can be found here.

Speaking further of this locality as an oil field, Major Otley said: "The north Alabama oil fields are located in the Hartselle, Decatur, Russellville and Moulton valley sections of north Alabama. This field is an extension of the great Appalachian oil belt which extends from Canada to the gulf of Mexico. The development of this section of north Alabama will undoubtedly prove a very rich field in both illuminating and lubricating oil.

Wells are now being drilled near Huntsville, Ala., in Madison county, near Athens, Ala., in Limestone county, and at several points in southern Tennessee near the Alabama line.

$80,000,000 LOSS

Boll Weevil Cost Cotton Growers Eighty Million Dollars in Past Five Years.

INTERESTING PAPERS READ.

Over Five Hundred Delegates Attending Convention.—Mass Meetings Held.

Shreveport, La.—Important papers by government experts were read at the National Cotton Convention. Dr. L. O. Howard, chief of the bureau of entomology, United States department of agriculture, is scheduled for an address. Dr. Howard personally represents Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, and what he will have to say will be listened to with profound interest. Others on the programme are Dr. D. W. Hunter, of the Sale Bureau, and Dr. William Stubbs, director of Louisiana experiment stations.

Many delegates arrived over night, swelling the total now here to more than 500.

There was much discussion among delegates upon the mass meeting held immediately after the close of last night's session. At least two-thirds of the delegates present participated in the proceedings for the purpose of taking some sort of action to check the present decline of cotton. Speeches were made by Harvey Jordan, of Georgia; D. Smith, of South Carolina, and others, advocating immediate remedial action. A resolution will be offered at another meeting urging the farmers to hold their cotton for higher prices and reduce their acreage next year.

Col. E. S. Peters, of Texas, president of the Texas Cotton Growers' Association, who was elected permanent chairman, called the convention to order.

Dr. Howard Speaks.

Dr. L. O. Howard, of the bureau of entomology, department of agriculture, was the first speaker. He said he was here to personally represent Secretary Wilson, who was taking a great interest in the deliberations of the body. The secretary would have been present, but he thought the best interest of the cotton farmers were better subserved by his remaining in Washington to make an effort to secure a large appropriation to be used in fighting the boll weevil. Dr. Howard reviewed the history of the boll weevil since its first appearance in the southern cotton fields up to the present time, and said the paper to be read by Dr. W. D. Hunter, of th egovernment bureau, would explain fully the work done by the department.

Dr. Hunter followed Dr. Howard, and his paper was listened to with marked attention.

Hunter's Address.

Dr. W. D. Hunter, who has charge of the boll weevil investigations of the United States department of agriculture, spoke upon "The Boll Weevil Situation." He said in part:

"The ravages of the boll weevil have affected not only the cotton producers of Texas, as well as of the United States, but have also disturbed the general economic conditions throughout the south, and have caused disturbances in every quarter of the globe where American cotton is used in the factories. It has caused every person in the world, who uses cotton in any from, to pay more for it than formerly. The pest was first known to occur in Texas in the vicinity of Brownsville about 1892. Since that date it has advanced annually forty or fifty miles, and there seems no probability that it will not eventually reach all parts of the south where cotton is produced, if it does not indeed reach other cotton producing countries. At present the infested territory covers practically all of the cotton producing counties in Texas and the larger portion of six parishes in Louisiana. Numerous reports regarding the occurrence of the pest outside of the states that have been mentioned have been investigated and found to be erroneous.

"Careful investigations of the life history of the pest reveal few factors that seem to indicate that it will die out as has been the case with some of the injurious insects, although it is not beyond the range of possibilities that some such an occurrence may eventually take place. The only suggestion that has been offered towards checking the invasion of the pest is in the establishment of a wide zone of land in which the cultivation of cotton should be prohibited. On account of the reasonable degree of success that has attended efforts toward controlling the pest in Texas, it seemed doubtful if such means would be justified.

Disastrous Effects.

"The effects of the ravages of the boll weevil in Texas may be summarized as follows:

"First—It has during the past five years caused a loss of at least eighty millions of dollars.

"Second—It has increased decidedly the area required to produce a bale of cotton.

"Third—It has practically destroyed the credit of the small farmer, who has been in the habit of depending upon cotton, although farmers who have diversified their crops are still able to obtain necessary credit.

"Fourth—It has had the effect of driving large numbers of negroes from the cotton lands of the state. Negroes lend themselves poorly to the modifications in the system of producing the staple, which are necessary on account of the ravages of the pest. Intensive cultivation, to which negroes can be brought only with great difficulty is one of the great essentials in producing a crop.

"Fifth—It has forced a diversification of crops, and in this way is considered by many parties as a beneficient influence. While this may be the ultimate result of the work of the boll weevil, the depression that comes from the changes necessary before a complete system of diversification may be followed is apparent to all parties who have investigated the matter in Texas.

"It will be noted that cotton production in Texas has decreased annually (with the exception of one year, 1900), since the invasion of the pest; although the reduction has not, on the whole, been very decided. This absence of a great falling off in production is due to two principal factors; (1) that there has been a considerable increase in acreage, and (2) following the suggestion of the bureau of entomology of the United States department of agriculture and their own experience, the planters of Texas are becoming familiar with the proper system that must be followed to mitigate the damage by the pest. The system recommended by the department of agriculture, as the result of several years' study of the habits of the pest, and experiments upon a large scale in various parts of Texas is now generally known as the 'Cultural System.' The greatest danger to be feared from a further invasion of the cotton belt is that this system, which has been found to work well in Texas, may be less applicable elsewhere. Many conditions of climate and plantation practice show that there will be increased difficulty when the pest reaches the alluvial lands, which produce the bulk of the crop in the eastern portion of the belt. This emphasizes the continuation of the experimental work of the department in regions that are about to become invaded."

Dr. William C. Stubbs, director of the Louisiana experiment stations, next addressed the convention. He said he had been misquoted in saying the infected area in Texas should cease planting cotton. He reviewed the work of the state staff in attempting to destroy the weevil in Louisiana and efforts to prevent further spread.

"What the Weevil Has Done, What the Weevil May Do, and What the Weevil Must Not be Allowed to Do," was the subject of a paper read by Prof. K. H. Connell, editor of Field and Farm, of Dallas, Tex.

San Francisco.—L. F. Ayson, commissioner and chief inspector of fisheries of New Zealand, has arrived here for the purpose of taking home with him one million eggs of the eastern white fish and 300,000 salmon eggs from this state to stock the streams and lakes of New Zealand.

One Legged Club.

Atlanta, Ga.—The one-legged men of Atlanta will complete its organization with about 300 of the best known one-legged men of the city in the organization. A street parade will be arranged for an early date. The plan of the club is that each member pays $1 50 a month into the club for five years, and he then receives a new artificial leg with the guarantee that it will be kept in repair.

A young girl has been charged with wrecking a train. Her mother must have been asleep at the switch, the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle declares.

To Raise Salaries.

Washington.—Senator Stewart introduced a bill to fix presidential and congressional salaries. It proposes to raise the salary of the president to $100,000 a year, the vice-president and speaker of the house of representatives to $20,000 each, and each senator, representative and delegate to $10,000. It is provided that the bill shall take effect March 4, 1909.

That Joaquin Miller is in a fair way to be a millionaire is no proof that poetry is any more remunerative than it was some months ago. For making millionaires oil is still far ahead of poems.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 4th St., Opposite Court House,
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins,
Physician and Surgeon,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Office with Hopkins Drug Co.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 9 to 4 p. m.
10 to 1 p. m.
CLANTON

Notice! Notice!

If you want good Bargains and good articles in Dry Goods, Groceries & Hamilton-Brown, Shoes, we have them for you

Jackson & Robinson
Lomax, Ala.

Going to Plant

Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a postal for my new manual "How to Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.
P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

PURE GOODS

The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	L. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon, Calera, Ala.

THE LAUGHING PHILOSOPHER.

There was a great philosopher
Lived years and years ago;
And such a merry soul was he
They called him laughing Joe.

For laugh he would throughout the year,
Let things go wrong or right;
Let fortune smile or fortune frown,
His heart was ever light.

And little children every day
Would gather round his place,
To listen to his hearty laugh
Or see his smiling face.

But gloomy-minded people said
They thought it was a shame
A man should be disposed to laugh
At good and bad the same.

At last they gathered in a crowd
And pulled his dwelling down;
They hustled him around the streets
And drove him from the town.

To find a home beyond the sea
Upon a foreign strand,
And never dare to set a foot
Upon his native land.

But when they chased him from the realm
Those people little knew
What even one good-natured
And smiling face can do.

Now children seeking after Joe
Would round the ruins stray,
And grieve because the people drove
Their laughing friend away.

And long before a year went by Those bad-behaving men
Sent messengers across the sea
To coax him back again.

And out they ran with princely gifts
To meet him at the shore,
And begged him there to live and laugh
In peace forevermore.

—Palmer Cox, in St. Nicholas.

MY BURGLAR

By LEWIS HOPKINS

I CAN remember when I wore dresses, and long yellow curls like a little girl, but cannot remember when I did not love a gun. Toy guns satisfied my early childhood, but with my first pair of pants came the longing for a real gun, which rapidly increased as I grew older. My brother Will, two years my senior, was possessed with the same longing, and by the time I was nine and he eleven years of age, we had come to seriously consider ways and means of acquiring a gun. Our father was a very positive in his refusal to assist us in any material manner, and even went so far as to forbid our attempting it ourselves, considering us too young to be trusted with a gun.

Inclined to obedience, we gave the matter up for a season, but could not bring ourselves wholly to abandon it.

One day brother Will came to me in great excitement, saying he had found a gun that could be bought for $1.50, and that we must set about raising the money at once, before some one else secured the prize. It was a large sum of money for us to get together, and it cost much thought and labor to do it, but the possibility of owning a gun stimulated us so that we speedily accomplished the task, and one fine morning purchased and proudly bore home our first real gun. It was an antiquated army musket, rusty and battered, but to our eyes all that a gun ought to be.

We found it a heavy load to carry, but no burden was ever borne more cheerfully. A careful and critical examination of our treasure, after we had gotten it safely home, developed the fact that it was so heavy neither of us had the strength to hold it out in firing position. But Will solved this problem by suggesting that we could shoot from a rest on some convenient stump or fence.

Then on further investigation we discovered that neither of us was tall enough to reach up to the muzzle of the gun to pour in the powder and shot with which to load it. This was more serious, and not so easily remedied as the first difficulty. I suggested that we might carry a box to stand on when loading, but this plan did not seem quite practical, and was not very well received by my brother. "It is all we can do to carry the gun, without lugging a big box, too," said he. "And who ever heard of anybody going hunting with a gun and a box to stand on when loading it?" he rather indignantly inquired.

I think the fact of its being so unorthodox, rather than its novelty, caused us to dismiss it as wholly impractical; for we could not consider any method not approved by sportsmen, now that we had a real gun.

We finally consulted an old gunsmith, telling him our troubles, and he advised that we have the barrel of the gun cut off, thereby reducing the weight and the length, and agreed to do the job himself for the modest sum of forty-five cents.

We promptly resolved ourselves, for the second time, into a ways and means committee, and after a few days of as earnest financiering as ever fell to the lot of men engaged in an enterprise of importance, we sallied forth to the gunsmith's with our gun and the price of the desired improvements.

With something like two feet cut off the barrel, and the same from the iron ramrod, we had an arm that either of us could hold—very briefly—in firing position, and readily reach the muzzle of from the ground.

Cocking our gun gave us much trouble at first, but this we finally learned to do by resting the muzzle on the ground, bracing the stock against our chest, and pulling on the ponderous lock with both hands. The sound of the two "clicks," announcing the stages which we knew as "half" and "whole cocked," was thrilling in the extreme, bearing a strong resemblance to the noise made by a heavy fire-set falling on a stone hearth. It was simply sweet music to our ears, and we knew that no gun ever had a stronger, or more business-like click.

It was some time before we could persuade our father to allow us to test its shooting qualities; and when we did, our further knowledge of the gun, and its strong characteristic might be thus summed up: It had wonderful capacity for ammunition, taking a handful each of powder and shot, at a load, with a handful of paper on each. A very loud and booming report, when fired. A recoil which led us seriously to consider, at times, whether or not the propelling power had not—in some manner—become reversed; and the knack of scattering shot in a way beyond the power of belief.

We also discovered a little later on, that the threads of the tube seat were worn, and that occasionally the tube was blown out, whistling by our heads with terrific force, and not killing us—although occurring several times—simply and solely because of the kind and all-wise Providence that especially regards the reckless boy.

But what a grand, good, beautiful gun that old iron wreck was to us, and how we loved it. The boy of to-day with his double hammerless, that has never cost him an effort beyond the request for it, knows nothing of real love for a gun.

I think we never killed bigger game than a robin—and few of those, I am thankful to say—but we believed our gun fully up to the mark on any kind of game, big or small; and as for burglars, we only wanted a chance to show that it was—above all things—a man gun. Many hours which should have been devoted to sleep did we devote to planning our campaigns against the burglar we were always expecting, often slipping out of bed and stumbling around in the dark to change the location of the gun to meet conditions changed in our discussions.

Our room was on the second floor of an L, and opened out on a back porch. This porch was inclosed below, but open and surrounded by a railing above. Steps led up from the lower to the upper floor and about midway the lower floor opened out on to the yard.

The other members of the family were absent from home attending an entertainment one evening, but my older sister was ill, and I was left at home with her for company. Her room was also up stairs, and next to the one we boys occupied. Left to ourselves, my sister was lying down, and I sat looking at pictures before the open grate fire.

A suspicious noise finally attracted my attention, and after listening a moment I slipped quietly out into my room to investigate. Seeing nothing there, and the noise continuing, I secured the gun and went out on to the back porch. I had opened the door very carefully, without making a sound, and when out on the porch could distinctly hear the noise which sounded as though it was on the lower porch.

Holding my breath, in mingled fear and excitement, I tiptoed to the edge of the porch and looked over the railing. The moon was shining brightly, making objects nearby plainly visible.

Immediately under where I stood was a man, and a very large one, I thought. Calmly, yet vigorously, he was working on the fastening of the door that opened on to the steps leading up to where I stood, and I at once realized that our long looked for burglar had come.

Together with my brother, I had planned, longed, hoped and looked for his appearance for days and weeks past, and now that he had come, and was so close—I could all but touch the top of his hat with the muzzle of my gun—I discovered that my feelings had suddenly undergone a radical change.

Instead of being delighted, I was truly sorry. Instead of being calm and self-possessed, as I had always felt sure I should be, I was shaking from head to foot with abject terror; so great was my fright it positively made me sick. I made a desperate effort to cry out, but only choked and gasped, making no sound. I tried to retreat into the house, but my legs refused to carry me.

With the now forgotten gun in one hand, and clinging to the banister with the other, I stood looking down on the man as he calmly proceeded to work at the door fastening, which I knew to be none too secure. Expecting every minute that he would effect an entrance, I now began earnestly to wish that I had left the gun in the house where it would not have been so convenient to his hand when he attacked me.

I could not say how long I stood thus, but know it seemed a very long time. The man was using some sort of instrument with which he worked at the fastening of the door, twisting and turning it in the lock, stopping every little while to push and gently shake the door to see if his efforts to force the lock had been successful.

Utterly unconscious of my near presence he worked away, while I watched him in fascinated silence. Each time he shook and pushed the door I expected it to open and let him in, but the fastenings held.

I finally began to recover from the first effects of my dreadful fright, and to wonder if it was not possible for me to shoot the man as he worked at the door. He was evidently a real burglar, and deserving of the most severe punishment.

As I seriously considered this matter my courage increased, and I finally concluded to attempt it. Stepping up on the lower rail of the banister, I leaned over and, carefully lifting the gun over, lowered the muzzle until it pointed fairly down on the man, and was only a few feet from the top of his unconscious head. Trembling with excitement, I pressed the stock to my shoulder as I hung over the railing immediately over him and, with two fingers on the heavy trigger, began to pull with all my strength. Until fairly out of breath I tugged on the trigger, expecting every instant to hear the loud report and see the man fall dead, suddenly cut short in his awful career of crime. Ceasing my strenuous efforts finally, and pausing to get a better hold on the trigger, it suddenly occurred to me that the reason the gun had not gone off was the fact that in my excitement I had forgotten to cock it. My fears were now, for the time, forgotten, and I was all excitement for fear the man would discover me, and make his escape before I could kill him.

My youthful mind in no wise realized the awful deed I was contemplating, in deliberately attempting to kill the man. It but seemed a brave and heroic act. One for which all good people would praise me, and best of all, one which would make me the envy of all the other boys of the town.

Entirely forgetting the fearful racket made by the cocking of my weapon, I let go the trigger, laid hold on the ponderous lock, and tugged away with might and main. The excitement under which I was laboring lent strength to my arm, and the first desperate pull my arm, and the first desperate pull brought the gun to half-cock, although I was using only one hand, instead of both as I usually found it necessary to do.

If the gun had actually fired it could not have produced a more startling sound than the loud click which announced it at half-cock.

As it rung out on the still night air, the burglar's head snapped back as though moved by an electric current, and I shall never forget the look of terror in the white face of the man as he suddenly looked up right into the muzzle of the gun pointing full down on him, and so fearfully near.

I was again overcome with terror at being suddenly so discovered by the man whose life I was attempting, and hung over him speechless and motionless, wondering what he would do to me.

For an instant he gazed fixedly, as though fascinated, into the muzzle of the gun, and then I noticed that he seemed to be settling down as if his legs were slowly sinking into the ground.

Then suddenly, with a shriek of terror that fairly split the air, and nearly caused me to fall over the railing, he sprang back with a mighty leap, which carried him fully twenty feet, and, turning, fled to the rear of the yard at top speed, leaping and dodging from side to side as he ran.

The yard was high in the rear, and protected by a retaining wall of stone, and above the wall, and a little further back, was a high board fence. Neither of these obstacles seemed to present the least difficulty to the fleeing man. He ran up the wall like a scared cat and fairly flung himself over the fence.

The street was steep and rocky in the rear, but I plainly saw and heard him continue his retreat with undiminished speed until he turned the next corner.

It then took me a very short time to get back into the house where I was glad to find my sister undisturbed and quietly sleeping.

When the family returned and heard the story of my adventure, they all, with the exception of brother Will, sympathized with me. Will insisted that I was "a chicken-hearted chump," and said I did not deserve ever to have another good chance at a burglar as long as I lived, and I very frankly told him that I hoped I never would.—Forest and Stream.

An Excusable Pun.

It was tacitly agreed among the humorists, at their convention, that any one who stooped to perpetrate a pun should be ostracized, and the inhibition was observed until the day of a reception at the Kentucky Building.

There a group of fun makers was being photographed, and there was some difficulty in keeping the constituents still. The photographer of one of the papers had taken a picture, and it was, he feared, unsatisfactory. "Do be still a minute!" he pleaded.

"Yes, do," chimed in Strickland Gillilan, the new President of the association. "Be still a minute, for he wants to get a second!"

Bue the "second" looked like the picture of a riot.—Sunday Magazine.

The Automobile in Turkey.

Certain newfangled inventions have not yet found favor in the eyes of the Sultan of Turkey. Long ago he issued an edict that no machine operated by gasolene should be used in his domain; consequently no automobile has yet made its appearance in Turkey. It seems, however, that a wealthy citizen of Constantinople, who has succumbed to the fascination of the horseless machine and wants to bring one into the country, petitioned the Sultan to modify the order, but no sign of relenting has come from him.—Washington Post.

Do It Now.

This life's a garden full o' weeds—
We've got to pull 'em all
Before they fill the field with seeds
When they are dry an' tall.
While we complain the field gets full—
Don't sit with frownin' brow
An' fret because you've got to pull—
It's best to "Do it now."

The job a fellow soldiers on
Is one that's never through;
Each day's another chance that's gone
An' left us more to do.
Nobody else can do your work
Like you can, anyhow;
The task grows bigger while you shirk—
It's best to "Do it now."

There's always lots o' time to spare
To tell your woes, my son;
The hardest work of all to bear
Is that that's never done.
The "put off" man, he does things twice
In spite of all his row.
Don't wait to ask or give advice—
Get out and "Do it now."

—W. D. Nesbitt.

Paper Parachute.

This is not quite as exciting sport as shooting the chutes, but it is good fun. Of course you know what a parachute is—a thing like an umbrella, with or without the stick, which, when properly weighted and dropped from a balloon or a high tower, will fall to the ground very slowly and gently because its broad surface offers a great deal of resistance to the air.

Parachutes used by balloonists are generally very large and have no stick, but some daring persons have jumped from housetops with common umbrellas and escaped without serious injury.

It would be rather interesting to drop a small parachute from the roof or a window and watch it sail gracefully to earth, but the fun would hardly pay for the work, as you would have to carry it upstairs for each flight, unless it was destroyed or captured by some other boy on its first descent, which would probably be the case. What you want, clearly, is some means by which you can shoot the parachute up into the air from the ground.

Such a parachute gun is easy to make. You need only a tube large enough to contain the parachute easily and a stout rubber band.

The parachute may be made of tissue paper or other thin, tough paper, or of thin muslin or silk. It needs neither the stiff ribs of an umbrella nor any mechanism for opening and shutting; its weight and the resistance of the air attend to that.

It does need a stick, however, and this should be very thin and light, and at least twice as long as the closed parachute—that is, as long as the diameter of the open parachute. The stick is simply poked through the parachute, and a thread tied around the top of the paper and the stick will make all secure.

The ribs, if they may be called such, are merely six or eight threads or fine cords pasted to the outside of the parachute from the top or center to the edge. The upper ends of the cords may be tied round the stick; the lower ends should project far beyond the edge of the parachute, and be fastened to a metal ring, through which the stick passes. The lower end of the stick has a knob too big to go through the ring, and on the bottom of the knob is a groove for the rubber band. The shooting tube, which may be of paper, should be as long as the stick and large enough to let the closed parachute slip through easily. The rubber band is attached across the bottom of the tube, one end being tacked to each side.

Put the folded parachute into the tube, see that the rubber band lies in the groove, hold the tube firmly with the left hand, and, with the right, pull down the knob and the ring together several inches and let go.

About to Be Discharged.

The stretched band contracts and shoots the parachute up into the air like a pea from a pea shooter. When the parachute has reached its highest point it begins to fall, but immediately opens out, fills with air, and descends very slowly. If there is much wind it will sail quite a distance before it reaches the ground, especially if you stand with your back to the wind and incline the gun forward.

Clay Pipe Water Mill.

This water mill belongs to the class of "reaction" mills which are turned one way in the effort to throw a stream of water in the opposite direction, and it is made of a clay pipe.

Cut away one side of the mouth end of the stem with a knife (not your best one), or rub it away with a file or on a grindstone until it is like Fig. A—that is to say, until you have laid bare, so to speak, the bore of the stem for half an inch or so. Then stop the hole, both at the end and at the side, with sealing wax, leaving only a small round hole at the point farthest from the end, as shown in Fig. B.

Now all you have to do is to fasten a fine cord with sealing wax to the edge of the bowl, at the precise point that comes nearest to the smoker's mouth. Tie the other end of the cord to the chandelier or other convenient object, and pour water gently into the bowl.

A fine jet of water will shoot out sidewise from the little hole in the stem and the pipe will begin turning in the direction indicated by the arrow. I twill keep on turning as long as there is any water in the bowl, and, indeed, a good deal longer, by the effect of the momentum.

What makes it turn is this: At any point of the pipe except near the little hole the water presses with equal force in every direction on the pipe. At the point of the stem opposite the little hole there is a certain pressure on the pipe from the inside, and this pressure is not balanced, because on the opposite side—that is, the hole—there is nothing for the water to press against except itself. Hence the water is driven out in one direction and the pipe is spun around in the other.

Water Mill in Action.

Simple Experiment.

Cut two slips of paper long enough for each to encircle the outside of a bottle, leaving an uncovered space between the slips. Fasten them in place by a thread and then wrap a piece of twine around the uncovered glass between the strips.

Tie one end of the twine to a nail or some convenient hook. Hold the other end with one hand, and with the other move the bottle quickly backward and forward. This is done in order that the twine may rub upon the exposed glass between the paper bands. This action will shortly cause the surface of the glass to heat. After it is well heated drop some cold water on it. Now, by a sharp stop, you may break the bottle in half so evenly that there will not be one jagged place in the entire circle of the break.

But of what use is this bit of apparently superfluous knowledge? Well, suppose, for instance, the glass stopper in your cologne bottle (if you are a girl) got stuck and refused to budge. All you have to do to dislodge the stopper is to wind a heavy cord around the neck, get some one to pull one end taut, take hold of the other end yourself and work the neck mildly to and fro in the string, just as you did in the first experiment. This continued friction will cause the neck of the bottle to become so hot that it will expand and the glass stopper will be loosened enough to allow it to be pulled out without further trouble.

Some Games for the Season.

A good game, just suitable for this season, is the game of the "Whalers of New Bedford." Some particular spot of the playground is selected to represent the harbor of New Bedford. All the players, except two, scatter and pretend to be whales. The two who remain must join hands and "put to sea" from New Bedford to go a-whaling. They must select a particular "whale" and go after him, but under no circumstances must they let go of each other in doing it.

The "whale" must be carried successfully into port, and he may resist his captors all he pleases, with the exception, of course, of punching or otherwise making a rough fight. Naturally the whalers try to catch the smallest "whale" first.

Arrived in port, the "whale" becomes a whaler, and takes his turn at going out, hand-in-hand, with one of the first whalers, to catch another "whale," and so on till the sea is fished out.

Best for Soap Bubbles.

The best solution yet made for blowing soap bubbles is prepared as follows: Fill a quart bottle half full of distilled or soft water, and sift into it four-fifths of an ounce of Castile soap powder. Allow the powder to thoroughly dissolve, then add one-third of a pint of pure glycerin. In making the solution be sure to keep the bottle in a temperature of 70 degrees or more; also, when blowing bubbles, carefully see to it that the room is at a temperature of 65 degrees or a few degrees above. Having the right temperature is one of the greatest factors of success in making bubbles. After the solution is a day or two old, or at any time when it fails to make good bubbles, freshen it up by adding more glycerin. With this solution bubbles can be made which will last from one to ten minutes. Some have been made which floated in the air from twelve to thirteen minutes.

THE LITTLE COUNTRY PAPER

It's no sixteen-page edition that exp... big men's views,
And it's not filled up with pictures... with telegraphic news.
It isn't printed daily, with an... every hour,
And the editor's not bragging of... fluence and power
It may have faults and errors... these I will forgive,
For it's printed in the county... where I used to live.

It is only issued weekly... up for style
But when it arrives I gla... by for awhile
I don't read in its pages a... and great men
But I see that "Silas... some wood to town...
And that "Grandma Parl... that "Old Bill Jones...
And it tells just what the... Sunday sermon was.

I see again the faces... used to know
In one dam... Happy Long Ago
And I feel I'm once more... Just wander now
And that "Uncle N... or that "you dear...
At which our fo... Declaration's sway.

There are never any... questions of the d...
But it says that "Tom... other rise in hay
I can see no glaring he... election light,
But it says that "Tom S... Elgerton to-night
And my thoughts some... when the bell...
Telling that "Reverend T... ited there to...

It may be crude and home... little country sheet,
And the make-up of its... rather obsolete
It is damp when I unfold... is sometimes blurr...
Yet it's always more than... read its every word
And no trading to a city ma... boy can give,
Than the little country w... where he used to liv...

—Rochester Democrat and...

FLASHES OF FUN

"Russia must have a... fund." "Why?" "I see she is... ing three or four new..." Chicago Record-Herald.

"Though poems may her... The chap who toils and... Ne'er moves a girl's affe... The fellow who recites them... Was..."

Denham: "It's a good... some people that this coun... restricted immigration." "Why?" Denham: "There's rather short of ancest... Tonics.

Mr. Lingering—"What is... little dog howl so?" Mr. Garr—"He always howls when he thinks it is time to... the house for the night." Tribune.

How kind it is of all the... To stay awake at night... And watch us when... And see that all is... This is their work—it is... To do—the stars so bright.

M. J. H., in Life.

"My daughter has developed... feet passion for music." "... woman next door." "Yes?" replied Snappe. "I'll bet it isn't a stance to the passion your... music arouses in my bo... Philadelphia Ledger.

"Now, my child," said the mother to her youngest, "... want you to be on your good be... and not make a pig of your... "What for?" demanded the... savage. "Because we're going to... that new minister for dinner." ... delphia Press.

Servant—"Mrs. Grace... boy up in the pear tree, eating... at a great rate." Mrs. G... you know who the boy is?" S... "It's the Carter boy who lives... door." Mrs. Grace—"Oh, ... case, let the dear little fe... e wants. Those pears are... brickbats."

Homing Pigeons.

Before the days of the telegraph... telephone the homing pigeon was... quickest carrier of news and... fortunes were acquired by those... made daily use of the... ing commercial messages. In... Franco-Prussian War the part... by homing pigeons was so impo... that the attention of the w... was drawn to these... tures, and the great European po... spent large sums in establishing... maintaining pigeon posts for... times of war. Nowadays we do... tends that the homing pigeon... much use, but for dwellers in the... try, who are not in close touch... telephone or telegraph offices, ... may arise many occasions... pigeons can be employed to advan... Any country doctor with an exte... practice can readily appreciate... practical value of a few well-... birds as a means of communi... with his home when the saving... lives is at issue.—Country Life... America.

When the Dean Took Heart.

Dean Hole, the noted English cl... man who died recently, was on o... casion crossing the Channel aft... visit to the Continent, the voyag... ing very stormy.

The Dean was a bad sailor and... suffered a great deal on the trip... Dover he was looking over the rai... company's rules on the station w... a passenger came up. Said the d...

"After that stormy voyage we... at least one advantage in making... subsequent trip to London. I s... company carries returning empti... reduced rates."—London World.

THE LITTLE COUNTRY PAPER

It's no sixteen-page edition that comes big men's views,
And it's not filled up with pictures with telegraphic news.
It isn't printed daily, with an every hour,
And the editor's not bragging of his finance and power.
It may have faults and errors, but these I will forgive,
For it's printed in the country, way
where I used to live.

It is only issued weekly, and it's not up for style,
But when it arrives I gladly put the
by for awhile
I don't read in its pages what the and great men say,
But I see that "Silas Jaggers has some wood to town to-day,"
And that "Grandma Parks is better than 'Old Bill Jones is dead.'"
And it tells just what the parson
Sunday sermon said.

I see again the faces of the used to know
In the dim-and distant fancies of happy Long Ago;
And I read up in one corner that ice winds howl and blow,
And that "Uncle Nathan Smith an early fall of snow;"
Or that "our debating club will see able next week,
At which our fellow-townsman,
Brotherton, will speak."

There are never learned essays on questions of the day,
But it says that "folks are looking other rise in hay;"
I can see no glaring headlines of the election light;
But it says that "Tom Shaw marries Edgerton to-night,"
And my thoughts somehow grow
when the old folks' names I see, Telling that "Reverend Tompkins
vited there to tea."

It may be crude and homely—that little country sheet,
And the make up of its pages
rather obsolete,
It is damp when I unfold it, and the sometimes blurred;
Yet it's always more than welcome,
I read its every word,
And no reading to a city man a joy can give,
Than the little country weekly
"where he used to live."
—Rochester Democrat and Chron

FLASHES OF FUN

"Russia must have a big fund." "Why?" "I see she's been ing three or four new warsh
Chicago Record-Herald.

Though poems may her fancy
The chap who toils and writes
Ne'er moves a girl's affections like
The fellow who carries them.
—Washington

Denham "It's a good thing some people that this country restricted immigration." Benn
"Why?" Denham "They'd have rather short of ancestors."— Tonics.

Mr. Longerong—"What makes little dog howl so?" Miss Carr "He always howls like when he thinks it is time to the house for the night."—C Tribune.

How kind it is of all the stars
To stay awake at night
And watch us when we go to
And see that all is right!
This is their work—it's all they
To do the stars so bright!
M. J. H., in Little

"My daughter has developed a feet passion for music," said woman next door. "Yes?" replied Stumpy. "I'll bet it isn't a stumer to the passion your daughter music arouses in my husband
Philadelphia Ledger.

"Now, my child," said the mother to her youngest hopeful want you to be on your good beha and not make a pig of your
"What for?" demanded the savage. "Because we're going to that new minister for dinner."—
delphia Press.

Servant "Mrs. Grace, there boy up in the pear tree eating at a great rate." Mrs. Grace you know who the boy is?" Serv
"It's the Carter boy who lives door." Mrs. Grace "Oh well, i case let the dear little fellow as wants. Those pears are ha bricksbats."

Homing Pigeons.

Before the days of the telegra telephone the homing pigeon wa quickest carrier of news, and fortunes were acquired by those especially used these birds for ing commercial messages. In Franco-Prussian War the part p by homing pigeons was so impo that the attention of the whole was drawn to these wonderful tures, and the great European p spent large sums in establishing maintaining pigeon posts for u times of war. Nowadays no ot tends that the homing pigeon much use, but for dwellers in the try, who are not in close touch telephone or telegraph offices, may arise many occasions
pigeons can be employed to adva
Any country doctor with an exte practice can readily appreciate practical value of a few well-tr birds as a means of communi with his home when the lives is at issue.—Country L America.

When the Dean Took Heart.

Dean Hole, the noted English man who died recently, was on casion crossing the Channel a visit to the Continent, the voya ing very stormy.

The Dean was a bad sailor an suffered a great deal on the tri Dover he was looking over the r company's rules on the station a passenger came up. Said the "After that stormy voyage at least one advantage in maki subsequent trip to London. I company carries returning exc reduced rates."—London World.

The American Child and the Dentist.

By MARY ANNABLE FANTON.

MOST long suffering little American children seem to regard the dentist as an essential part of growing up. They know they must clothes and medicine, and lessons occasional punishment, and precSaturday play-time snatched away small hours at the dentist.

y expect as much to have their filled just as often as they do to new hats and new shoes or mas presents at midwinter. And occasional sophisticated small perll even boast of her gold fillings, old-fashioned country baby of her gold curls.

pparently children are trained to the—dentist a necessity, and people are much the same. We to have forgotten that people right to sound teeth, that teeth ing to healthy people should be and strong and perfect, such as North American Indians and Sea Islanders have.

ourse there is a reason in the place for teeth of over civilized losing strength and working The gums, like muscles, need on to keep up a good circulation. uscle that isn't used gets flabby mpable, and teeth that are not sed, as it were, get lifeless and loosen or decay.

reason teeth do not get enough nowadays is because they were ally intended to gnaw bones and gristle; and now that these primiods are regarded as inelegant that the teeth are used mainly for ereals and tender meats, there tically no friction and hence but circulation in the gums. And so comes all sorts of troubles of a paralytic condition.

t fortunately there is a remedy for condition and a very simple and ensive one. It is nothing more or than the right use of a stiff tooth-

And this does not mean tearing the gums as though one were ing in a spring meadow, or ng such pressure on them at the of the teeth they are picked and doesn't mean doing any sort of thing and hoping to get good re-. What it does mean is to get a ately stiff brush and to use it intelligent vigor twice a day on upper part of the gums, both inside outside; get a good brush and one a knob at the end so that the s can reach the utmost parts of gums, and a large brush; a very ow brush is much more apt to cut gums. Use the brush two or three s, at least long enough to start g the gums.

times, even if the brush is most ly used, the gums will bleed at but this only means that they are inflamed and anemic condition particularly need this treatment. thy gums will not bleed when are brushed unless the brush is ssly used so that they are cut the bristles.

is not nearly so necessary to use powder as it is to make sure that soft and pure. A sure way to mphasis this is to add to a mug of a tiny pinch of borax. This ens the water so that it becomes tly cleansing, hardens the gums, es the tendency to bleeding, and is highly" antiseptic, freeing the th from all possible impurities, and ing the breath wholesome and t.

ore, in addition to this method of ing the mouth sweet and clean, a der is desired, it is a good idea to are the mixture one's self, making in this way that the ingredients ll fresh and pure.

following is an inexpensive but dent tooth powder: prepared chalk, ounces; powdered orris root, one ; powdered white castile soap, half ounce; pulverized sugar, one ounce; boric acid, one-half ounce; of wintergreen, one-half fluid m. Grind all together to a fine er and sift. Add a little olive oil ift again. This amount of pow should last a family of four people ast six months, and if put in l jars will keep nicely.

some made wash is also a wise ution in these days of fake patent erations. An excellent wash conists of myrrh and borax, the formaiding and the latter strengthening gums. It is combined in the following way: Quillaja (soap-bark), powder, one ounce,; orris, coarse der, one-fourth ounce; saccharine, grains; oil of peppermint, one-half rachm; oil of wintergreen, one-fourth rachm; water, nine ounces; glycerine, ounce; alcohol, six ounces; solu- of carmine, one drachm. Mix, mate for seven days, agitating occaally, and filter.

en when all possible care and pre- on has been taken in the nursery the first appearance of the baby it is still wise to have a child a dentist once a year just to see no possible cavity has come gh carelessness or inherited bad If the soft brush and the borax e has been used for baby days, chances are that these visits to the ist will mean nothing more unsant than a few minutes' examin- of the teeth through a micro- and a slight cleaning with a ice brush.

e money to be saved by these few precautions and the torture to be taken out of boy and girl life is simply incalculable. Where there is a family of, say, four children whose teeth are in the usual brittle or crumbling condition, and where gold is used for a filling, a dentist bill is often quite as big in a year's time as a doctor's bill.

Mothers frequently say, "I neglected my children's teeth because I have not the courage to make them go to a dentist and suffer so terribly."

Any sensitive person can understand this point of view, but the real point is that the children should not be made to go and suffer, but that their teeth should be so cared for in the nursery days that they do not have to be tortured later in order to save enough teeth to get through life becomingly and healthfully.

Billy's Joke.

"See that," said Billy W——.

"That" was nothing less than a stylishly but simply dressed young lady, just entering a Third street office building.

"Yes."

"Well, that's old man B.'s daughter. She's going up to the old man's office to pin one of those roses in the buttonhole of young Sprigg, the old man's clerk. They're sweet on each other, but they fear the stern parent, you know. The old man always goes home or to his club about 3.30, and, after telephoning, the young lady goes up for a little chat with Spriggs, tete-a-tete, you know."

"So? Good for them! Love will find a way, won't it?"

"Sure; but think of the possibilities the situation offers for a little joke now—a 'phoney joke.'"

"But——"

"Oh, come! I'll show you."

Billy led the way upstairs to his own office in the building opposite to the other. Taking down the 'phone, he called up old man B.'s office. After an interval we heard an impatient:

"Hello! Who is it?"

"Mr. B—— in?"

"No. He's never in this time o' day. Call up green—double-pink-o."

Then we waited a few minutes at Billy's window, glancing now and then at the charming little scene across the street in B.'s office. Billy went back to the 'phone and called up B——.

Again the interval, followed by the impatient:

"No! I tell you he's never in after 3.30."

"Strange," returned Bill; "they told me at his house that he left for the office a quarter of an hour ago."

"Bang!" went the other 'phone, and Billy and I hastened to the window. Such a scurrying! She couldn't find her hatpin; then her handbag was shy; but she was out of that office in forty seconds by Billy's watch. One minute later we saw a stylishly dressed and very rosy young lady hurrying north on Third street, while a somewhat agitated appearing young man hurried south on the same pavement.

Billy seemed to enjoy it; but, really, it was rather heartless.—Portland Oregonian.

Comrades.

Bobby was ten years old, and an alarmingly light hearted and careless young person. It was supposed, however that he would be capable of escorting his grandmother to the family Christmas dinner, one block away from her home, without mishap.

He was tall for his age, and he offered his arm to his grandmother in a gallant and satisfactory manner as they started off together.

"I hope he will remember that she is almost ninety, and not try to hurry her. I'm sure I've cautioned him enough," said Bobby's mother as she began to dress her younger children. But when she arrived at the family party it appeared that grandmother had turned her ankle and was lying on the lounge.

"Bobby," said the mother reproachfully, "where were you when grandma slipped."

"Now, I won't have that boy blamed," said grandmother briskly, smiling up into Bobby's remorseful face. "We came to a fine ice slide, and he asked me if I thought we could do it, and I told him I did. And I want you children to remember one thing: when you get to be most ninety you'll count a turned ankle a small thing compared with having somebody forget that you're outlived everything but rheumatism and sitting still. Anybody that likes can rub this ankle a minute or two with some liniment, but I want Bobby next me at dinner, mind!"

Curious Ice.

Dr. Wells, a London physician, in 1818, in his published essay on dew, was the first to draw attention to the curious artificial production of ice in India. Shallow pits were dug, which were partially filled with perfectly dry straw; on the straw board flat pans containing water are exposed to the clear sky. The water, being a powerful radiant, sends off its heat abundantly into space.

Royal Company Islands.

Among the red dots on the map denoting the British Empire is a group of islands south of Australia bearing the name of the Royal Company Islands. Now the Admiralty has issued a "notice to mariners," headed "Royal Company Islands—non-existence of." The original report of their discovery cannot be traced, nor have they apparently been seen by passing vessels.

Inquest Over a Mummy.

A short time ago a Coroner's inquest over a mummy was held in England. The object had been imported from Egypt, and the authorities deemed it legally necessary to ascertain the fact of death in the usual way. The mummy was spoiled during the inquest and a lawsuit followed.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE.

HON. THOMAS E. WATSON, of Georgia.

HOW TO MAKE A BOX KITE.

Boys and girls, and even grown-ups, have learned that there is fun at kite flying from early spring until late fall. One thing that has helped them to learn this is the flying qualities of the box kite. Everybody who cares for outdoor fun should know how this is made. Here are directions that any one can easily follow:

The four corner posts should be about two and one-half feet long, and as light and slender as you can whittle them. Four inches from each end of each piece is cut a little notch for the braces to rest in. The four braces are whittled down the same size as the posts, and are about twenty inches long. Each end of each brace is notched to fit over the post. The notch in the end of a brace and the notch in a post come together. Now take two strips of thin, strong paper, five feet long and nine inches wide. Fold over each edge as if for a half-inch hem, to guard against tearing. Now while some one holds up the four posts, set the braces in place and tie light cords around the whole frame right at the ends. There; the frame is up. Now draw the paper snug around it, just inside the cords and paste the ends together. When the paste is dry, take off the cords. The bridle should be three feet long, and tied tightly at each end to two posts, eight inches from their ends. In the middle of the bridle tie the kite line.

After you learn how to make a kite of this size, you will enjoy making a much larger one. These kites fly even in a light wind.—Globe.

EGYPT'S NEXT KHEDIVE.

Prince Mohamed Abdul Mouneim, elder son of the Khedive and heir-apparent of the Khedival throne, was born on the 20th of February, 1899, and is consequently a little over five years old. His mother, the Princess Ikbal Hanem, is famed for her beauty, inherited from a long line of Caucasian ancestors, and she is very gifted, exhibiting the happiest influence over her son.

THE EGYPTIAN HEIR APPARENT.

Her Opinion of Boys.

A little girl wrote the following essay on boys: "Boys are men that have not got as big as their papas, and girls are women that will be ladies by and by. When God looked at Adam, He said to himself, 'Well, I think I can do better if I try again,' and He made Eve. Boys are a trouble. They wear out everything but soap. If I had my way the world would be girls and the rest dolls. My papa is so nice that I think he must have been a little girl when he was a little boy. Man was made, and on the seventh day he rested."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

MODEL SCHOOLHOUSE WHICH WON THE PRIZE AT THE ST. LOUIS WORLD'S FAIR.

FARM AND GARDEN

THE BEST FOOD FOR EGG PRODUCTION.

It is generally agreed when among poultrymen that a proportion of the food of fowls in nitrogenous form helps in the production of winter eggs. This has also been my personal experience. When by the reddening of their combs and the peculiar cry indicating the approach of the laying season is in evidence, I then begin the feeding of meat in some form, in pretty liberal quantity, as often as every other day. The fine beef scraps, so commonly sold for this purpose, I have always had on hand, and have fed occasionally when out of sweeter material, but have never liked them because of their disagreeable smell, and the half belief that they flavored the eggs, a matter I need be particular about, as new-laid eggs make part of my breakfast the year round.

I read, however, in a bulletin of the West Virginia Experiment Station that a careful test has proved that the beef scraps obtained from Chicago are better for egg production than were ground fresh meat and bones. I have generally fed my meat in the form of hogs' harslets, cooked and chopped up. I have seen them hung up in the coop raw, to be picked at as wanted by the fowls, but mine will not eat them that way. The liver they don't care much about.

A few winters ago a young fellow drove through the town, once or twice a week, selling fine chopped meat at quite a reasonable figure. My harslet formerly cost me fifty cents a dozen, but now $1. As the fertilizer manufacturers sell the meat constituent in them at less than 1½ cents per pound after the cost of manufacturing it into that form, where it must weigh much less than in its raw state, I infer that they would make as much on it if sold at a cent a pound as it comes from the animal. If so, why is there not a good chance for quite a business for any enterprising young fellow in any of the towns adjoining such factories to buy, grind up and sell such meat in the cold season to those who keep hens in his vicinity? I should suppose he might easily double his money and still further increase his income by carrying in his cart at the same time other poultry supplies, adding also a few well-established medicinal remedies, and, if he be ambitious to make the most of his business, let him make himself a necessity to the community by knowing more than they do of poultry ailments and how to treat them.

When a younger man I gave a bag of meal for the carcass of a large horse, killed by accident. This I cut up, packed in snow, and fed, with such good result that my little flock averaged through the cold season three-fourths as many eggs as there were fowls, one day laying one more egg than there were fowls, the extra egg, as is always the case in such rare instances, being a soft-shelled one, the shell not having time to form upon it.

The best results that I have ever known in egg production were obtained by two poultrymen residing in my vicinity who kept poultry on a large scale, one of them between two and three thousand hens. Each of these for nitrogenous food fed fresh fish waste, the trimmings and waste fish from city markets. They cooked before feeding feeding one of them with waste onions. I was told by a clerk in the store that bought the eggs, that purchasers sometimes complained of their unpleasant flavor, but whether this was caused by the onions or fish I never learned. I took occasion awhile ago while in Boston to inquire about the waste. I learned that a few of the larger establishments made as much as two barrels a day, and that it is removed by city teamsters like other waste material. As it can be conveyed by barrels having screw air-tight heads, which will prevent the escape of any odor, I should suppose that for small cost beyond that of transportation it might be purchased by the poultry raisers of the surrounding towns.—J. J. H. Gregory, in The Massachusetts Ploughman.

SHOEING YOUNG HORSES.

A horseman says that trouble comes in this work when there is improper handling the first time the colt is shod, and that before the colt is taken to the blacksmith for the first time he should be prepared for shoeing by handling his legs in such a careful manner that he will understand that he is not to be harmed. The rule invariably is to take the colt to the blacksmith first. This is a poor plan. We have found the following method to be an excellent one in preparing the most vicious colts for shoeing.

Tie a long strap around the colt's neck, passing it along the near side and between the hind legs, bringing it to fit close to the body; then pass it under the strap which is around the neck; then tighten up the strap gradually, holding the colt by the bridle. The colt will probably pull a little, but speak to him kindly. When he has become accustomed to the strap lower it to a point just above the hock and gradually pull upon the strap until you have lifted the leg, at the same time pull back or to the side on the bridle to keep him from stepping ahead; then take the leg in your hand. The same thing can be done with the other leg, and after the process has been gone through several times you will be surprised to find how easy it is to lift any of the colt's legs.—Indiana Farmer.

NOT GOOD FOR HOGS

The Arkansas Experiment Station prints a bulletin detailing the results of feeding cotton-seed meal to pigs, and the conclusions arrived at are thus stated: "The economy of feeding cotton seed meal to pigs is a question which our experiments were not especially designed to solve, except in so far as this is influenced by the mortality of the feeding animals. Unless the percentage of deaths can be reduced to insignificant proportions, it is obvious that cotton seed meal never can be an economical food. The maximum amount in which cotton seed meal can be fed to hogs is about one-half pound per day to (young) pigs, and for larger animals probably about one pound. It can, therefore, only form a small proportion—one-sixth or so—of any purely grain ration fed. The characteristic post-mortem feature of cotton seed meal poisoning in all our cases was an acute dropsy of the pleural and heart sacs, with intense congestion (probably secondary) of the liver and kidneys, the immediate cause of death being suffocation from compression of the lungs."—Indiana Farmer.

DWARF FRUIT TREES.

Dwarfing is accomplished by budding or grafting robust growers on slow-growing stocks,—an easy process with most fruit trees. While the dwarf pear is the most familiar example of a dwarf tree in the United States, there are stocks upon which apples, cherries, plums and peaches can be grown with the same general result. Besides this form of modification, there are other methods quite as important to the owners of small areas. Standard sizes may be grown as "bushes" or as "pyramids," thus making it possible to know them much closer together. Pruning and training, used in combination, have shown the possibilities of restricting plants to the "espalier," "cordon," and other styles of training employed in growing fruits against walls. These methods not only allow plants to be grown more closely than is common in orchard practice, but they allow the grower to take advantage of locations under which trees could not develop normally. The side of a building may be utilized as a support to an apricot, nectarine, pear or grape, although the grape is the only one normally adapted to such a position.—Indiana Farmer.

POULTRY NOTES.

It is a good idea to whitewash your poultry house during this month as the lice will be gathering for winter in every hole or crevice.

To get good eggs in cold weather you must remember it takes warm houses. If not in a position to build at present, you can remodel your old building, so it will be fairly comfortable.

It is a very good plan to begin calling your flock at present, when prices for market fowls are high.

Don't neglect to store away some vegetables for feeding. They will be a good feed for fowls if cooked before feeding.

It pays farmers as well as poultry fanciers to change their breeding cockerels each year. It improves the flock and also helps to strengthen the health and growth of the young stock. —J. A. R., in Indiana Farmer.

FROM A SHEPHERD'S NOTEBOOK.

In fattening sheep, especially, punctuality in feeding should be strictly observed.

Feeding in sheep husbandry is like any other problem in live stock. However good the breed, without good care and feeding, they must necessarily degenerate.

Sheep increase so rapidly and mature at so early an age, and their flesh is so wholesome for food, that every farm should have its flock.

In mixed farming there is enough going to waste on every farm to almost maintain a flock of sheep, which would be lost without them.

Sheep, independent of wool, are worth more than their cost in what they do for the farm and in the meat they furnish.

Kill Insects by Electricity.

Recently in a paper read before a technical society at Odessa, Mr. Lokuzejowski described a way of killing the young insects in fields by electricity. A dynamo is carried on a wagon (horse or automobile), and the current excites an induction coil, giving a high tension discharge. One pole of the coil is to the metal tires and the other to metal brushes passing over the ground. The discharge kills the grubs, etc., in the soil.

A Cleveland woman is of the opinion that a wife has a right to discharge her husband just as she would a refractory cook, but fortunately we have not yet gotten so far advanced.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, $1.25

The UNION and Weekly Atlanta Constitution. $1.50

The UNION and Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and Saturday News $1.25

Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it. tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

POLL TAX.

Now, every one of our people be sure to call on the tax collector and pay their back poll taxes, pay up and get into shape so that you can vote on stock law or school tax when they come up, as they surely will the coming year. In paying your poll tax it is only taking it out of one pocket and putting it into the other. The money stays right in your own community and goes to the school. tf

The expedition of the American Museum of Natural History returned from Mexico with a story about finding an animal 2,000,000 years old. Presumably they counted the rings on the critter's teeth, for it certainly wouldn't have owned up to any such age, or if it had done such a thing, the statement would have been taken as an empty boast.

The propriety of receiving for educational or religious use money tainted by contact with questionable hands has been passed upon by the Yale authorities in a judgment more novel than that involved in acting upon the acceptance of a Rockefeller donation or a Carnegie library. Yale felt itself justified in accepting a sum amounting in American money to about $40,000, which British missionary societies had declined. The money was an indemnity paid by the Chinese Boxers for the murder of two English missionaries. The societies to which the martyrs belonged refused to accept the gift from the Chinese Government, spurning it as "blood money," and the Chinese Government proudly declined to take it back, handing it over to the British Government to hold in trust for some missionary object. The Yale Foreign Missionary Society declared that it felt no qualms about accepting and devoting it to the erection of a couple of buildings for its new mission college in Changsh, China, the first to be founded in a foreign land by an American university. This decision by Yale may serve as a precedent, concludes Collier's Weekly

Sugar-coat your words before turning them loose upon your unoffending fellow-men.

HURT BY GUN CONCUSSION

Artillery Soldiers at Fort Wetherell Hurled to the Ground.

Ten-Inch Rifle Exploded Prematurely and Twenty-four Soldiers and Officers Were Stunned by the Concussion.

Newport, R. I.—Lifting a ten-inch gun from its carriage and hurling it back on its trunnions, a 570-pound shell exploded prematurely in the chamber of a gun in Fort Wetherell, at Narragansett Bay, threw the entire gun crew, which included Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Willard of the engineers and Lieutenant Frank W. Rawlston of the coast artillery, to the ground and sent the metal shell hurtling through the top of the parapet and out to sea.

Fears were had at first that both the officers had been blinded and perhaps made deaf by the explosion, but sight and hearing returned to them and they are suffering only from bruises and cuts about their faces. Both were taken to the post hospital, however. The soldiers who were with them were more fortunate and suffered only from the falls they had. The accident, it is said, is the first in Fort Wetherell.

A detachment of the Ninety-seventh Coast Artillery was at rifle practice under command of Colonel Willard and Lieutenant Rawlston. Several shots had been fired before this last shell was placed in the gun. The breech had been closed, locking in the great weight of metal and its explosive charge, and the men were about to place in position the gear which takes up the recoil when for some reason not yet explained the charge was fired. The officers were standing nearly directly in rear of the gun and the men were working beside it, when with a terrifying roar the shell was ejected from the steel barrel and the massive tubular piece vaulted backward as if alive, springing clear of its carriage, which it tossed from it like a pebble. The muzzle of the weapon was deflected downward and the shell tore its way through the wall of masonry, wrecking it, and passed out into the ocean.

Every man near the gun was thrown from his feet, but the soldiers were the first to recover themselves. They found their officers stunned beside the gun carriage and picked them, bleeding from head and face, from the ground. The concussion had been overwhelming, and that together with the fall had left the officers unconscious. It was some time before they recovered their senses, and then they were taken to the hospital. Colonel Willard was able to walk to his quarters after his injuries had been treated.

When the men examined the damage which had been done, they found the top of the parapet had been torn away for twelve feet or more, that the gun carriage had been wrecked, and the platform on which it had stood had been destroyed. The gun itself was badly battered, and it may be that the mechanism of the breech has been damaged irreparably.

HUGH McLAUGHLIN DEAD.

Veteran Politician, of Kings County, N. Y., Passes Away at His Home.

New York City.—Hugh McLaughlin, long the leader of the Kings County Democracy, died suddenly of heart disease at 11:15 o'clock at night while disrobing in his bedroom at his residence, 163 Remsen street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. McLaughlin dined with his family earlier in the evening, and said at the time that he was "feeling bully." Leaving his home soon after 7 o'clock he went as was his nightly custom to the rooms of the Exempt Firemen's Association in Borough Hall, and had a setto with dominoes with some of his old cronies.

While retiring that night Mr. McLaughlin complained of feeling ill. His wife, seeing his face was very pale, despatched a servant to summon Dr. Joseph A. Kene, the family physician. Dr. Kene on arriving at the house found Mr. McLaughlin stretched out on the bed half conscious. He died shortly after.

Mr. McLaughlin was without question the most powerful county leader in the nation in the early days of his control, before age began to make inroads on his mental and physical vigor. He suffered keenly the loss of the leadership a year ago, and those who knew him best observed that he had been failing steadily.

Mr. McLaughlin was probably one of the wealthiest men in the State, and his fortune is estimated at from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000. It consisted of large blocks of telephone, elevated railroad and gas and electric light stocks and securities. His real estate holdings are said to be worth several millions.

A GERMAN SUBMARINE.

Remarkable Feats Performed by Boat Built at Kiel

Berlin.—The Germania Works at Kiel have built a submergible torpedo boat, which has met a number of tests successfully, maneuvring readily above and below the surface, and diving and rising very quickly. She descended off the bow of a battleship, and rose up on her opposite quarter, maneuvred for two hours submerged, and won a game of hide-and-seek with a swift steamer detailed to follow her. The Admiralty, nevertheless, is continuing experiments with other types of submarine boats.

To Compel Statements.

Congress met at Washington, D. C., and Bourke Cockran introduced bills to compel publicity of sources and disposition of campaign funds.

Express Messenger Shot.

A Wells-Fargo Express messenger was shot by a train robber on the Santa Fe road in California.

Charges Against Fair Judges.

Charges of corruption were made in connection with the awarding of certain premiums by the World's Fair.

Coming Events

A National Paper.

The News company of Joliet, Ill., proprietors of one of the largest and best printing plants in the state outside of Chicago, are publishing the Saturday News as a third edition of their paper. The Saturday News is devoted exclusively to the interests of the people's party and is national in scope. Each week it contains matters of interest regarding the progress of the party from all parts of the nation.

Being published at the headquarters of the party and the chairman of the national committee being president of the News company and one of the editors, it is peculiarly favorably located to give general news of the movement.

The People's party has long felt the need of a national paper and it is cause for congratulation that one has been started and by a concern that is so strong that its success is assured from the start while the names of such well known workers and writers as Hon. James H. Ferriss, Charles Q. De France, Jo A. Parker and R. E. Bray is a guarantee of its character and loyalty.

The regular subscription price of the Saturday News is 50 cents per year, but we have arranged with the publishers to furnish it and the Union, both papers one year for $1.25.

Call at our office and see a sample copy and take advantage of this offer. tf.

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's Second Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton county for the year 1904, and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Jemison, beat 2, Dec. 1-2, 1904.

Clanton, last 10 days in the year commencing December 20, 1904.

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.

T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

Notice No. 25720.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., November 4, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., Dec. 17, 1904, viz: Ansom M. Hudgens, Homestead entry No. 34625, for the Sw 1-4 of Nw 1-4, W 1-2 of Sw 1-4, Section 30, Tp. 21 n R 17 east.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Redding J. Holloway, of Verbena, Ala.; George E. Skinner, of Lightwood, Ala.; William Gaylor, of Lightwood, Ala.; James Glenn, of Mountain Creek, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER, Register.

6t

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Under and by virtue of an order and decree of the Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Judge of the Probate Court of Chilton county, rendered on Monday, the 12th day of December, 1904, I, Lee Hayes, was appointed and directed to sell at public outcry to the highest bidder for cash, in front of the Court house door of Chilton county, Alabama, on

SATURDAY, THE 7TH DAY OF JANUARY, 1905

during the hours of legal sale, the following described land, to-wit: S. W. 1-4 of N. W. 1-4; N. W. 1-4 of S. W. 1-4, section 32; S. E. 1-4 of N. E. 1-4, N. E. 1-4 of S. E. 1-4, section 33; W. 1-2 of N. W. 1-4, section 34; S. W. 1-4 of S. E. 1-4, S. E. 1-4 of S. W. 1-4, section 27,—all in township 21, range 13, Chilton county, Alabama, for the purpose of an equitable division among the following named joint owners thereof: Mary A. Robuck, Daniel Dunivan, R. N. Robuck, Bluford Dunivan, James Dunivan, Victoria Sims, Dennis Dunivan, Beula Matthews, John O. Dunnivan, Claud B. Dunivan, and Robert Dunivan.

LEE HAYES, Commissioner.

tf

NEW CUBAN BOND PLAN.

Loan of $12,000,000 and Use of Surplus to Pay Veterans.

Havana, Cuba.—Leading members of the Cuban Congress are now advocating the winding up of veterans' claims by the payment of seventy-five per cent. thereof. It is estimated that the money required for such a settlement could be provided by an additional loan of $12,000,000, together with the accumulation of the Government surplus. President Palma favors the plan.

PROPERTY FOR SALE.

The prettiest house in Clanton, 8 rooms with two acres of ground enclosed by fancy wire fence.

One brick store house.

Two frame houses, three rooms each, new, near depot.

All pay a handsome income.

Bargains, see me at once. tf. J. B. DOWNS.

PROGRAM OF TEACHERS' INSTITUTE,

To Be Held at Concord January 20-21, 1905.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Music by teachers of institute.

Devotional Exercises—Rev. T. F. Davis.

Welcome Address—E. H. Parrish.

Opening Address—Robert Session.

Enrollment. Short talks by teachers.

Noon, Centralizing County Schools—G. L. Speer.

Give Your Daily Program in Teaching and Your Opinion as to Its Necessity—J. B. Ruffin, H. A. Harris.

The Ideal Teacher—P. G. Manese.

The Ideal Parent—A. E. Davis.

SATURDAY.

9:30Opening query box.

Improvement in and Around School Buildings—J. H. Anderson, Robert Jones.

School Discipline—S. B. Powell, B. R. Richardson.

Discussion of rules by institute.

Educational address.

Conveyance will be furnished teachers coming by rail to Clanton.

J. W. MOORE, Chairman.

W. O. PERRY,
R. A. RASCO,
H. L. DAVIS,
G. L. SPEER, Sec'y.
Board of Education.

NOTICE!

Teachers' examination will be held in Clanton at the court house on the 1st Monday in January, 1905, at 10 a. m. sharp. No applicants admitted after that hour.

J. W. MOORE, County Superintendent.

MARS HILL.

Editor Union:

People in this community are feeling a little blue over the drop in cotton, especially those that are holding, but we hope the price will be better again. Monroe Scott and Miss Alice Watson were married last week, and have moved into our settlement, and we all wish them much prosperity and happiness together. E. G. Cofer has got in his new stock of goods, and we all are going to buy from him. Some of our boys went down on Six Mile hunting and report a nice time, killing 16 squirrels, 2 rabbits, 1 opossum and a duck. Columbus Scott gave a pound supper in honor of his birthday on December 8th. Mr. W. F. Langston has gone to north Alabama. We all miss him very much. With best wishes to the Union and its subscribers.

MARS HILLIAN.

Notice No. 25707.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., December 9, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of the Circuit Court, at Clanton, Ala., on January 28, 1905, viz: William M. Johnson, Homestead entry, No. 33513, for the Se 1-4 of Section 12, Tp. 22 n of R 15 e.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William S. Cox, of Clanton, Ala.; Lonzo L. Bates, of Verbena, Ala.; Moses Bates, of Verbena, Ala.; William H. Parish, of Clanton, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER, Register.

tf

Appeal for Funds.

London.—Lord Mayor Pound has issued an appeal for funds for the relief of the unemployed of London. King Edward has contributed $1,250; Queen Alexandra, $1,00; the Prince of Wales, $500; the Princess of Wales, $250; Lord Iveagh, $2,500; the Rothschilds, $15,000; the Duke of Westminster, $10,000, and the Peabody trustees, $25,000.

Mr. E. S. Lyman, of Montevallo, is writing a history of the old town, Montevallo. It is one of the historic towns of the state. It was the center of life for all that part of the state in the years gone by, and it has sent out many good people to bless other parts of the state. Mr. Lyman is specially fitted to write the story of the old town.

China Wants Money.

St. Petersburg.—The Pekin correspondent of the Novosti wires that China is seeking to raise a foreign loan of 10,000,000 taels, with which to pay the arrears of her indemnity. According to the correspondent, the plan is to make the loan for fifteen years at 6 per cent. and issue it at 95.

Sugar-coat your words before turning them loose upon your unoffending fellow-men.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.

You will find a full line of

SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS. | PAINTS OILS and GLASS.

We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.

CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

Louisville & Nashville R. R.

CENTRAL TIME.

Read Down			DAILY	Read Up
AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3		AM No 8	AM No 2	PM No 10
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7 45
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6 22
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58	....	5 59
7 19	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....	5 53
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42	....	5 40
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5 32
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17	....	5 17
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 11	....	5 11
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5 04
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4 00

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.

For rates and further information address

A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

A Great Combination Offer

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival as a

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth, you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, both for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.

SHOES that are Reliable.

SHOES made to Wear.

NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Alabama

P. D. WILSON'S

Going out of Business

Big Reduction in Prices of Everything for CASH ONLY

Now is the Time to get GENUINE BARGAINS

Gelder's Restaurant,

Good Meals at Reasonable Prices

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Brand "Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alabama

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

ville & Nashville R. R.

CENTRAL TIME.

PM	DAILY	AM	AM	PM	Read Up
No 3		No 8	No 2	No 10
10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7 45
18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6 22
....	Jemison	8 58	....	5 59
....	Thorsby	8 51	....	5 53
....	Lomax	8 42	....	5 40
03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5 32
....	Cooper	8 17	....	5 17
....	Verbena	8 11	....	5 11
....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5 04
25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4 00

Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
ther information address

TINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

t Combination Offer

will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

uis Globe-Democrat

WITH

The Union

FOR

Papers One Year Only $1.50

is Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Week- or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Politics and has no equal or rival as a t Modern Newspaper.

ll the news of the World's Fair, all the news campaign, and all the news of all the earth, he Globe-Democrat during the coming year.

OW IS THE TIME.

To-Day and get your best home paper and ewspaper of the World's Fair City. Both Address

nion, Clanton, Ala.

My Specialty..

of Leather.
that are Reliable.
JOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

, Groceries, Flour and Fee

ffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

ce Building Clanton, Alabam

WILSON'S

Going out of Business

for CASH ONL

v is the Time to get NUINE BARGAINS

er's Restaurant,

als at Reasonable Price

110 North 20th Street,
MINGHAM, ALABAMA.

L MERCHANDISE AN FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

pecial & Mule Bran

the Best on Earth'

C. JONES,

Alabam

CITY OFFICIALS

Mayor—Judson Strock.
Council—W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rob[illegible], W. I. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
Clerk—J. Watts Moore.
Marshal—Ed Smitherman.

COURTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.

Spring Term—1st Monday in April.
Summer Term—3rd Monday in July.
Fall Term—1st Monday in November.

Judge—T. Scott Sayre.
Solicitor—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
Clerk—Sam W. Collins.

CHANCERY COURT.

Spring Term—2nd Monday in March.
Fall Term—2nd Monday in September.

Chancellor—Hon. W. W. Whiteside.

Register—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clanton.

COUNTY COURT.

First Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

2nd Monday February, 1st Monday April, 1st Monday June, 2nd Monday July, 2nd Monday August, 1st Monday November.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Judge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
Treasurer—W. T. Callen.
Sheriff—J. M. Morgan.
Solicitor—J. O. Middleton.
Tax Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

First District—W. [illegible] Conway.
Second District—Alex Glasscock.
Third District—R. P. Kendrick.
Fourth District—Moses Robinson.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.

Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.

Hon. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES

Pastors and clerks are cordially asked to send the editor any news regarding their churches which they would like published. Also if there are any errors in these notices please send corrections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Alpine—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor. T. Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
Beth-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; C. C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
Brookson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; W. Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
Bethany—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday. B. Huett, clerk, Verbena.
Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.
Cane Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th Sunday. V. J. Gragg, clerk.
Center Hill—Rev J. M. Gothard, pastor; J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
Concord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd Sunday. T. N. Parrish, clerk.
Collins Chapel—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.
Chestnut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
Corinth—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday. W. B. Jones, clerk.
Cross Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 1st Sunday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
Corinth—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st Sunday. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
Canaan—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pastor; W. J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
Ebenezer—Rev. P. G. Maness, pastor; R. H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
Jemison—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; N. Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
Liberty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd Sunday; W. M. Wood, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
Mars Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pastor; H. Z. Barnes, clerk, British.
Mulberry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; C. Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
Mount Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rudd, pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk, Jemison.
Mount Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, pastor; D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
Maple Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand, pastor; W. H. Wilson, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd Sunday; George Trawick, clerk.
New Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; J. W. Billingsley, clerk.
New Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd Sunday; G. W. Hill, clerk.
New Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. Henry Smith, clerk.
Pilgrims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, pastor; I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas 1st Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
Pleasant Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, pastor; W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. C. W. Free, pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk, Mills.
Poplar Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, 2nd Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.
Providence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt. 3rd Sunday. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemison.
Providence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, pastor; Riley Robinson, clerk, Clanton.
Salem—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor; J. Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
Shiloh—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd Sunday; W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
Thorsby—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sunday. J. Deason, clerk, Adams.
Thorsby—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Robert Jones, clerk, Thorsby.
Union Grove—Rev. J. M. Thomas, pastor; R. S. Chandler, clerk, Jemison.
Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2d Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.
Verbena—Rev. J. W. Partridge, 1st Sunday. T. J. Bland, clerk.
Valley Creek—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. W. Mitchell, clerk, Plantersville.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

Clanton Circuit, Rev. T. F. Davis, Pastor.
Thorsby—1st Sunday.
Walnut Grove—2nd Sunday, morning.
Unity—2nd Sunday, evening.
Shady Grove—3rd Sunday.
Mount Pisgah—4th Sunday, morning.
Enterprise—4th Sunday, evening.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Highland School House—Rev. M. F. Lett, 3rd Sunday and Saturday before. T. L. Adams, clerk.
Enterprise—Rev. M. F. Lett, 4th Sunday. T. F. Patterson, clerk.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN.

St. Olafs, Thorsby—Rev. H. Engh, pastor. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

Concordia, Thorsby—Rev. J. E. Hedberg. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2d Sunday. Song service every 2d and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

MASONIC.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday, Clanton.
Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 250—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.
Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 423—First Saturday, Clanton.
Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 567—First Saturday Billingsley.
Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.
Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 411—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.
Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 473—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.
Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

of the

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE CO.

Of Toronto, Canada.

1st January, 1904.

UNITED STATES BRANCH.

Assets.

Government bonds	$223,650.00
State and municipal bonds	511,473.19
Cash on hand and deposit	169,720.71
Stocks and bonds	305,793.00
Premiums in course of col.	204,834.79
Interest due and accrued	11,833.20
	$1,427,304.89

Liabilities.

Reserve premium fund (N. Y. Standard)	$849,771.77
Reserve for unpaid losses	100,786.14
	$950,557.91
Surplus in United States	$476,746.98
Total income in United States for 1903.	$1,547,736.84
Total losses paid in U. S. from 1874 to 1903, inclusive	$14,674,843.26

WALLACE C. EDLER, Agent,
Clanton, Alabama.

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 acres within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is timbered, 1 set mill-rocks, 48 inch, 1 Horse, weight 1100 lbs.

Alfred Popwell,
Clanton, Ala.

NOTICE.

All persons owing me are hereby notified to call and settle their accounts at once, as I am going out of business and must close up all accounts, notes etc. without delay.

Respectfully
P D Wilson.

tf

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to Dec. 14, '04, 5,921.
Price on same date, 7 1-16.
Total receipts same date, '03, 6,192.
Price same date, 11 1-2c.

PERSONAL AND LOCAL.

J. A. Poole was a pleasant visitor Thursday.

A. M. Whitworth and J. N. Downs were in Clanton Thursday. Mr. Downs lost several hundred dollars by fire a few weeks since, and made wise by experience he is going to protect the balance of his property by insuring it in the Farmers' Mutual.

R. L. Barrett and J. W. Culp were pleasant visitors Thursday. Mr. Barrett had come to town with a number of others to witness the marriage of his nephew and Miss Weaver, but the would-be groom being under 17, no license could be given, much to the sorrow of the young couple.

Rev. J. T. Eckford has been assigned to the Methodist church in Clanton for the coming year. Our old friend, Rev. D. B. H. Jeffcoat, has been placed on the superannuated list on account of his continued bad health. He has our sympthy.

Old Bro. Caldwell is putting down a saw mill near G. W. Bowles'.

Albert Gore was a pleasant visitor Friday.

J. T. Bowles and wife have a fine young daughter at their house.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gore last Thursday night. The new comer weighed 12 pounds, and mother and child are doing well.

C. C. Bowles was in Clanton Thursday.

B. F. Robinson was in town Saturday, accompanied by the Misses Lillie and Clara Robinson.

Ed Ward was in town Saturday.

W. R. Bean, of Bexley, Miss., was a pleasant visitor Monday. Mr. Bean is visiting relatives and friends here. He lived near Union 25 years, but says Mississippi is a good country.

G. W. Edwards was in Clanton Monday.

Jim Collins was taken to Pickens county Tuesday evening by the sheriff of that county on a charge of forfeiting his bail-bond. Collins claims that the lawyer he hired there, and whom he gave a $50 fee, too, promised to let him know when to come up for trial. It is very bad for his wife and children, as he had come back and was doing his duty by them, having repented and made amends.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

J. C. Wilson and Miss Lilly B. Townsend. J. A. Bookholdt and Miss Emma Middlebrooks.

COLORED.

Wiley Garner and Lulu Smiley. Pat Smith and Emma Allen.

JEMISON INSTITUTE HONOR ROLLS.

FIRST HONOR ROLLS.

Oscar McNeill, Ida Patton, Lois Rawlinson, Crumba Honeycutt, Genie Thomas, Clarence Bice, Fred Mooney, Robert Hunt, Evie Scott, Pearl Windsor, Winnie Reynolds, Beatrice Crysel, Olney Nix, Lessie Reynolds, Mattie Patton, Gertie Jackson, Jessie Honeycutt, Earl Jackson, Grady Reynolds, Stanley McNeill, Claude Reynolds, Bonnie Jenkins, Jewel Thomas, Birdie Scott, Willie Reynolds, Ora Durham, Harry Honeycutt, William Love, Elbert Jackson, Walter McNeill, McMay McNeill, Reuben Reynolds, Silsbee McNeill, Donovan Lowe, Claude Shaw, Beulah Honeycutt, Gladys Sims, Beulah Pinson, A. J. Morton.

SECOND HONOR ROLL.

Curry Jackson, Festus Scott, Linwood Mooney, Earle Ray, Myrian Rawlinson, Jewel Honeycutt, Annie Reynolds, John Davis, Lessie Davis, Clyde Simms, Alden Marler, Jeff Hand, Tom Ray, Earl Shaw, Myrtle Honeycutt, Willie May Jackson, Gordon Howard, Myrtle Reynolds, Elbert Scott, Alice Simmons, Nellie Durbin, Carrie Simmers.

ROBT. E. SESSIONS.
Principal.

THE DIXIE KILLING.

Henry Johnson and J. E. McCullouh, who are in Clanton jail, charged with the murder of Ace Rawlinson on Monday afternoon, the 5th inst., were arraigned for their preliminary trial before Judge Reynolds on Thursday last. The trial was continued to Monday, the 12th, but the state not being ready on account of the absence of two witnesses, the trial was continued to the 15th inst. The missing witnesses were Doss Chandler and wife. Mrs. Chandler is very ill and her physician sent in a certificate to that effect, but an attachment was issued against Doss Chandler and Sheriff Morgan was ordered to have him on hand at the appointed time. Smith & Middleton and W. M. Adams are the attorneys for the defendants, and Colonel W. A. Collier represents the state.

S. E. BARROW PAROLED.

On the strength of a letter from Judge N. D. Denson, the board of pardon recommended that S. E. Barrow, a white man, be paroled. Barrow was tried by Judge Denson in the circuit court of Chilton county in the spring of 1903 on a charge of burglary, and was sent up for five years. Judge Denson wrote the board that he thought there was extreme doubt about the guilt of the man, and he strongly recommended that Barrow be released from the penitentiary. At the time Barrow was convicted it seems that he was tried jointly with another man who was convicted on a charge of being implicated in the same burglary. After the conviction of the other man, he stated that Barrow was entirely innocent.

LIBERTY HILL.

Health of our community is good at present. Weddings are all the go nowadays. Walter Hubbard and Miss Mary Christian were happily married on the first Sunday. Rev. A. L. Foshee performed the ceremony. There were a host of friends and relatives present. Our Sunday school is progressing nicely and we hope to continue improving. I think there is no grander work for our young people to engage in. Rev. S. Smitherman will fill his appointment here next Sunday and Saturday before. J. C. Maddox and wife visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Culp, Sunday. People seem to be hacked on the price of cotton, but hold to it, boys; it will come up again.

J. W. C.

NEW CEDRON.

Farmers all happy over a large crop, and are making preparations for 1905. Our school is progressing nicely under Professor M. D. Mims. Alvin is building a new house; looks like a wedding. B. G. Foshee visited our community last week. All glad to see him. Mrs. Cherry has returned to her home near Stanton, after quite a visit to her mother, Mrs. Barrett. S. E. Neeley and family made a visit to Prattville last week. Match Box, from Dixie, says there are going to be a lot of weddings soon, so I hope he will invite me. Goodby till then.

S. O. S.

Clanton, Dec. 12, 1904.

Dear Editor:

Well, I've recovered after the close election. I tell you when the returns began to come in I near fainted, and this ought to be a lesson to the populists and republicans. Some folks think when there is a populist ticket nominated that it is as good as elected, but it isn't; we must work. Brethren, pay your POLL TAX; remember the door closes the 1st of February, and then you can't get in till another year. I'm so glad we got our ticket in, but I was awful sorry to see Bice left out, but what did I tell you was going to happen at Clanton? Didn't I warn you in due season? Mr. Bice has got the postoffice at Thorsby and that is as good as the treasurer's office. Now, look here boys, don't sit down on the "stool of do-nothing," but start right now like there was a campaign on. Don't let us forget THE UNION and what it did in this last canvass, but we must all work and make it stronger every day. We all ought to take it, and for the life of me I can't see how any pop or republican can take the Banner and leave the Union off. If you want to take both all right, but if you take only one, for the Lord's sake take THE UNION. Oh, say, Franky, did we all bust together in November, or did you all bust together. If I remember correctly there was busting in it. I wish you'd put that balloon crowd in the Banner, that did bust; wouldn't it be a show? I'd walk 15 miles after supper any night to see the sight, so come on, Frank, be nice for once and put in the "busted crowd." You can let Mr. C. hold the strings to keep the fragments together Well, our men had no trouble getting in, and by the way, a sturdy good old farmer walked in the court house the other day and asked where the clerk was, said he saw a nice boy in the office, but wanted to see the clerk, and a friend close by spoke up and said it was Sam the clerk that he saw, so he went back and got his business arranged, came out and said: "That clerk is the proper stuff. Why," says he, "Sam must have been practicing the duties of the office all the year." And again a lawyer stepped into Sam's office and said Hello, Sam; you must have been at work. I see the office has been straightened up." Well, Judge Reynolds stepped right into a pile of business in his office, five criminal cases the first Monday and now a murder case on hand. Say, I heard a fellow say that he was sorry that Reynolds was Judge, and one of the crowd asked him why, didn't he think Reynolds would make a good Judge. The fellow said yes, that was what he was afraid of, that Reynolds would give, too, good satisfaction, and we never will be able to get these populists out. Now, boys, about me. This is no joke. I've got to have an office next time, sure. I just can't get along without one. I want an office, and I put you on notice now in time. I'm not so awful particular so long as it is good pay and little work, and if I don't get it I might turn democrat, and they'll nominate me whether I'm elected or not. Well, I'll close for the present, but I'm liable to break out again at any time, so keep your eyes skinned. Let me tell you, new officers, if one of you ever start the democratic way, I'll jump on you with both feet. Of course, after you are defeated you're at liberty to go to the democrats, where most of the defeated candidates are. Didn't you hear something drop the other day in the county court? I heard the sound, but can't tell exactly yet who it hit.

JUST A VOTER.

Columbia, Tenn.—The feed mill and elevator of the City Grain and Feed Company, was burned with 70,000 bushels of contents. The loss is $75,000, with $42,000 of insurance.

DRINK

CREAM of KENTUCKY Whisky.

Sold only by

COLLINS BROS., Calera, Alabama.

Mail orders promptly filled.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.

THE BIG STORE,

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,

COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,

Clanton. Alabama

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.

Catalogue for the asking.

1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.

County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association

of Alabama.

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

By the People and for the People.

Chilton County Branch

Organized February 3rd, 1900.

W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.

Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

Full particulars furnished upon application to

WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

Pure Water Prevents Fevers.

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER

We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address

I. E. SARBER CO.

Thorsby, Alabama.

PAUL CALAME,

205 21st Street

Birmingham, Ala.

Practical Watchmaker and Optician

Eyes Correctly Fitted

Mail orders promptly filled

The Country Girls in the City

By Ella Morris Kretschmar.

IS THERE absolutely no encouragement for the country girl who would come to the city?

None whatever!

It is not necessary to here discuss the higher employments open to city women, for women fitted for such positions already know:

That for every teacher's position there is a "waiting list" of applicants.

That gifted women artists are eating their hearts out while waiting for success in cheerless, north lighted rooms in every city the world over.

That the successful women lawyers in any large city may be counted upon one's fingers.

That while women physicians are looked upon with moderate favor, the steps to success are many and difficult, not to be lightly undertaken.

That women who successfully head business enterprises are born with a talent not to be acquired by ambition or effort.

That while there is always "room at the top," genius and even talent are a law unto themselves, a law not discoverable to the uninitiated.

To the country woman with no particular gift, no particular training and no particular purpose the way is clear—to remaining at home, and for this same such home-staying may be made profitable, if she be but awake to the home industries which under the name of "arts and crafts" find a market in the world.—Good Housekeeping.

FAIR WOMAN'S LATEST TOY.

Powder Knife Takes the Place of Old-Fashioned Puff.

The powder puff is to go. Beauty has discovered that it is too unhygienic to be safe—and in addition a new fashion was wanted.

So an old toilet adjunct has been resuscitated from the past in Paris by a great beauty, who, searching through the archives of the time of Louis XV., lighted upon a curious little knife, with a supple golden blade as thin and pliant as a painter's palette knife, set in an exquisite enameled handle, of that bright, yet mellow, character that proclaims beautiful old age. Discovering its use, the modern woman, professing abhorrence of the microbe-laden puff, has adapted it to her own needs and has thereby set a new vogue in exotic Paris.

Two of the new designs for powder-knives in beauty's boudoir

Marie Leczinska, to whom King Louis XV. presented this lovely little weapon, one of a whole battery of toilet adjuncts, used it to spread upon her face the cosmetic that enhanced her beauty, and this is what the knife with the golden blade is doing for the belles of to-day, who find it far preferable to as well as much more romantic than the puffs, chamois pads and medicated cotton wool with which they have up to now applied powder and paste to their complexions. The knife smooths whatever cosmetic is employed with exquisite evenness, producing a surface like enamel upon the skin. Here we have quite the latest toy that is found in beauty's boudoir.—London Express.

Largest Motor in the World.

The largest motors in the world are in use in the huge forests of Canada, where they are used to drag logs over the snow and rough roads. They were specially designed for the purpose by a Chicago man. One of these machines is capable of dragging a train of 200 tons weight of logs at a speed of twelve miles an hour. It is the only machine in existence which will draw a heavy load through three feet of snow and over stumps and logs a foot in height. It is twenty-five tons weight and 200 horse power. It travels on four runners, with a traction wheel in the center weighing seven tons. The machinery is enclosed in a box-like affair, giving the motor a somewhat strange appearance as it makes its way along forest roads.

Silent Japanese Women.

Japan has its communities of silent female recluses. There is a convent at a place called Yunakawa, about seven miles from Hakodate. A matron of some fifty years presides, and her instructions are implicitly obeyed. The women are all young, ranging from sixteen to twenty-seven, and some of them are described as very beautiful. The building stands in a farm of some 250 acres, but the women do not engage in any agricultural work. They spend most of their time indoors, and they observe a strict rule of silence.

Fire Steels of Our Grandfathers.

The housewife who presses a button and lights the house with electricity or furnishes the heat for cooking on an electric range will look with interest upon this picture of fire steels of the fifteenth century, wherewith the folk of that time secured the necessary heat and light. To the first crude pieces of metal of years and years before the art of this period was added taste in design and ornamentation. Some of the steels showed a high degree of art, and today are valued highly by antiquarians. The best collection at present is in England, and comprises the make of several countries.

An Ancient Tree.

At Versailles is a pomegranate tree which is said to be the oldest in France. It is in an old orangery and was planted in 1685. In exceptionally warm seasons the tree still puts forth a few flowers, but it has borne no fruit for many years.

HORSE IS DYING OF GRIEF.

Has Lost all Interest in Life Since His Master's Death.

"Old Monk," the patrol horse of the Twentieth and Federal streets station, at Philadelphia, is dying with grief over the loss of his master, James Thornton. If ever a horse mourned the loss of a friend, that horse is Monk. The men around the stable have noticed the actions of the old horse since Thornton's death, about one month ago, and claim that he has absolutely lost all signs of interest in life. He will hardly eat and cannot be persuaded or driven into doing any kind of work.

"We are careful of the old fellow," said one of the patrol crew this morning. "We gave him hardly any work at all to do, for we like the old horse. I tell you, nobody could ill treat such a good horse as he is, but he certainly did love old Jimmie.

"Monk raps on the floor of his stall every morning at the exact hour Thornton died. He never was a lazy horse, but now he is so languid like he doesn't want to work or sleep or eat."

Many believe the old horse is dying of a broken heart.

HATS COST MUCH MONEY.

Expensive Headgear Made Up for the Sterner Sex.

Since the advent of the Panama hat which sold for such fabulous sums there is less to be heard of women's extravagance in the matter of bonnets. Certainly a man who pays $250 for a hat, as many a one has done during the last two seasons, can say nothing if his wife gets a Parisian creation at the same price. His chapeau, however, has the advantage of wearing indefinitely. It takes a workman all his time to plait for six months the straw for such a hat; the straw is split as fine as the most delicate gut for fishing. Such a hat would fold up like a handkerchief and could be shut up in an ordinary cigar case. It will also wash like fine linen. But 250 is not the record price for a man's hat. Mexican cowboys wear combreros made of special felt which is absolutely waterproof and practically everlasting. These hats are heavily ornamented with delicately chased silver. One which is now in the National museum at Washington, once worn by Gen. Grant, cost $1,500 when it was new.

West Indian Beauty.

This demure little maiden is one of the picturesque types to be found in the rural districts of Jamaica. Her costume, it may be guessed, is a native product. It is of the brightest hues, which harmonize well, however, with her swarthy complexion. In common with most of the women of the island she wears natural flowers of brilliant colors in her hair.—New York Herald.

Shower Proof Hats.

An Austrian genius has made the discovery that celluloid, prepared in a special way, provides a material out of which hats and the most delicate flowers can be made. These hats are not only beautiful in themselves and cannot be told from those made of the usual material, but will stand the most severe shower and look even better after than before. They are used to some extent in Germany, especially in Vienna. They would be exceedingly popular in London during the rainy seasons, for many a charming bonnet is ruined there by the persistent drizzle, from which no umbrella can protect a woman.

Shooting With Horseshoe Nails.

Horseshoe nails kicked about the roads of the world by horses innumerable are far from the useless fragments we might think them. Gunmakers tell us there is no iron so well fitted for their purpose as that derived from horseshoe nails and similar worn fragments.

The nails, made originally of the best stuff obtainable, receive from the constant pounding of the horses' feet on hard surfaces a peculiar annealing and toughening, making them a most perfect substance for the manufacture of the finest gun barrels.

Squirrels Have a Carnival.

Squirrels have literally taken possession of the attic of a Bowdoinham house. Entering the house by means of the water gutters, these lively guests remain over night in their cosy quarters, eating seed corn, and playing tag for amusement. Disappearing at daybreak, they return every evening, holding carnival throughout the long night.—Lewiston Journal.

Street Car "Tokens."

The city of Manchester (Eng.) which owns the street cars, sells celluloid "tokens" at the rate of a penny each. They are for the use of employers who want to give their employes car fare and do not want it spent otherwise.

MAKING THE CHURCH POPULAR.

Result of Eastern Pastor Encouraging Sunday Flirtations.

Oh, Polly, put your bonnet on and stick a flower in it;
And, Dolly, pin a ribbon bow wherever you can pin it.
'Tis Duty's call
To one and all
To look your most diverting,
For Church is now,
So pastors vow,
The very place for flirting.

Then hold your hymn-book corner-wise and give your thoughts to glancing
And, while you sing, make goo-goo eyes in fashion most entrancing.

For, thus, 'tis said,
Are sinners led
To Heaven. Do not falter.
And this way, too,
From aisle or pew,
Are husbands led to altar.

So, Polly, put your war-paint on. The palm has gone to Beauty!
And, Dolly, don your picture hat. 'Tis your religious duty.
The pastors say
This is the way
For sinning souls to search.
'Tis woman's face
That points to grace
And leads a man to church.
—New York Press.

Beds of Soldiers.

In Germany and Austria the soldier has a simple straw bed with one or two covers, neither sheet nor mattress. In Russia until recently he slept with his clothes on, on a camp bed, but now ordinary beds begin to be used—the result of association with more civilized countries. After this it cannot be doubted that the French soldier's bed is the best of all, with its wooden or iron bedstead, a straw bed, a wool mattress, sheets, a brown woolen coverlet, and an extra quilt for cold weather. Thus the bed of the French soldier is the softest of all soldiers' beds, as that of the French peasant is acknowledged also to be the best of all European countries.

Pact Fulfilled After 40 Years.

An agreement made between friends forty years ago was kept yesterday afternoon at the funeral of the Rev. George Heacock. The Rev. J. Richards Boyle, pastor of the Spring Garden Street Methodist Episcopal church, officiated, and the pact that whichever of the two should die first should have his funeral services conducted by the other was fulfilled.

Mr. Boyle converted Mr. Heacock to Methodism in Mauch Chunk four decades ago, at which time the agreement was made.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Snap Shots, 2,000 a Second.

An Italian named Luciano Butti has perfected a photographic apparatus capable of registering the incredible number of 2,000 photographic impressions per second, says the London Globe. The most minute and least rapid and casual movements of birds and insects on the wing, which have hitherto defied science, can, it is claimed, be registered with accuracy, thus opening a new world of natural observation to ornithologists. The films used cost £2 per second for the 2,000 impressions.

"A Rapped Expression."

Volapuk to Date.

The work of forming new and scientific languages for universal use goes merrily on, and the newest candidate for a position with Volapuk and Esperanto is "Latin without inflections," the result of the labors of Prof. Giuseppe Paeno, a mathematician of Turin. He has proposed to do away not only with genders, persons and cases, as was suggested by Leibnitz, but also with the moods and tenses.

New Brush with Every Shave.

In one Connecticut city, the barber shops have begun using a new brush with every shave. The brush is hemplike, and is much softer than the present hair brushes that are used. The hemp fits into a patent handle and is pulled out after each shave, and is thrown away with the lather paper.

Remedy for Mosquito Pest.

It is said that a plant has been found in Nigeria which will drive away mosquitoes. English army officers say that a branch or two placed in a tent will keep out all insects.

HAS FONDNESS FOR SNAKES.

Little Pennsylvania Darkey a Puzzle to Naturalists.

Prof. H. A. Surface, State Economic Zoologist, has found the "Boy Snake Charmer of Harrisburg," according to a dispatch from the Pennsylvania city.

The other day Prof. Surface was engaged in sorting snakes for his new volume, "On the Snakes of Pennsylvania," when a little black face appeared in the doorway and a squeaky little voice asked:

"Is heah wheah de snaik man lives?"

The professor thought a moment and then said that he was the man who was looking for snakes.

The little fellow beamed and asked the professor if he would let him see some of his snakes.

"Certainly," said the professor, and he went to his collection, where a lively rissing viper and a large black snake were coiled up. Both of these snakes are perfectly harmless, but the boy did not know it. He was delighted over the snakes and the squirming and twisting of their beautiful bodies seemed to charm him.

When Dr. Surface's attention was diverted to another part of the room the negro had reached into the box and took out the hissing viper, and followed this by lifting out the black snake, which coiled about him. He was fondling the snakes when Dr. Surface turned and the boy was apparently not a bit afraid.

The boy's name is James Dean and he is a familiar object on Harrisburg's streets, clad in a red sweater, short trousers and shoes that have seen better days. He wears neither hat nor stockings. At the meeting of the Harrisburg Naturalists' club, Dr. Surface took "Jimmy" Dean as an object lesson and the little fellow handled the snakes as if they had always been his playmates, much to the astonishment of the members of the club.

A Kicker.

Raising Trout for Market.

There ought to have been more than a suggestion to some farmers with an available water supply at hand in the tank containing trout six months, 1, 2, and 3 years old, shown by Lewis Johnson & Son of West Brattleboro, Vt., at the Valley fair. The three-year-olds weighed two pounds apiece, and at market value they are worth $1.50 each in season. Mr. Johnson claims that he is making more from the sale of his trout each year than many a farmer gets from his entire establishment. Some raisers insist that trout can be put on the market for "the price of pork."

Curious Fish.

The oldest inhabitants of the New York aquarium are the striped bass, which have been there for ten years, having been placed in one of the floor pools before the building was opened to the public. In May, 1894, fifty-five specimens, weighing from a quarter of a pound to four pounds, were secured, thirty-seven of which have survived. Most of those that were lost died in the first year, and in the last four years not one has died.

Imagination Too Strong.

A young man suffering from imaginary cancer has just committed suicide at Horsforth, near Leeds, England. His friends failed to convince him that he was not a victim of the terrible disease, and the best medical advice in the district was sought in the effort to cure him of his fears. All failed, however, and the young fellow was so tortured by the hallucination that he poisoned himself in his bed.

Crows Pounced on Wounded Enemy.

A young man in Brookville, Me., shot a large hawk a few days ago, but before the wounded bird had reached the ground a large flock of crows pounced on the unfortunate bird and carried him off to regions unknown.

French Baby Carriage.

The French youngster's first impressions of Paris are viewed from this style of baby carriage. It is compactly built to economize space in the many small apartments of the French capital.

NEW JERSEY FIRE ALARM.

Steel Rims of Old Locomotive Wheels Put to Good Use.

Most of the towns in New Jersey, even including so large a place as Long Branch, have steel wheel fire alarms, which arouse communities around them in a very wide radius. The wheels are merely the steel rims of big locomotive drive wheels. They are given to all towns desiring them by the Central railway of New Jersey from its disabled rolling stock. Sometimes the alarm is mounted in a wooden tower frame, and again is hung from the arm of a stout post. A big hammer hangs on a post, and any one discovering a fire clangs the alarm and calls citizens to action. The above photograph was made from one of the most gracefully mounted fire alarms in the State at Avon, the rival of Pleasure Bay, on Shark river, where ocean beach summer resorters drive for steamed clams and cooked crabs, taken from the salt water while you wait, observing the whole process from dining room verandas overlooking the water.

PAYS 42-YEAR DEBT.

Soldier Finds Widow of Man Who Lent Him $15.

Mrs. E. R. Bootey of Jamestown, N. Y., was at home the other day when a stranger came to the door and asked her name.

Finding she was Mrs. Bootey, he said he was lying in a southern hospital forty-two years ago, and wanted to get home, but had no money. A companion gave him $15, with which he made the journey. His companion was E. R. Bootey, a lad from Chautauqua county, and he never saw him again.

Mr. Bootey has been dead several years, and the stranger paid to his widow the $15, adding another $10 for interest.

Mrs. Bootey had never heard her husband speak of the incident, but accepted the payment and thanked the man who was willing to pay a claim that every one else had forgotten after forty-two years.—New York Herald.

Fifty Goats' Fatal Spree.

Fifty drunken goats caused a great deal of excitement in Old Forge. Some men dumped a quantity of fermented wheat in a vacant lot near where a number of goats were pasturing.

The odor arrested the attention of the goats as being very tempting. They swarmed down the mountain and had a glorious time eating the wheat. The effect on the "butters" proved fatal, as they had eaten so much that they were poisoned. The residents feel the loss severely, as they derived their milk supply from the goats.—Montrose (Pa.) Independent.

Reserved for Humans.

Cannibalism appears to be unknown among the lower animals in a state of nature. In India some instances of snakes devouring one another have been collected, but it has been pointed out that in every case cited the snakes were of different species. This, it is declared, is no more an act of cannibalism than the devouring of a field mouse by a rat. Unquestionable cannibalism was noted some years ago in a London menagerie, when a python ate another of its own kind, but this was under the unnatural conditions imposed by life in captivity.

From French Prayer Book.

French prayer books of 1525 contained these sporting scenes among others.

Freak of Pacific Fishing Season.

Fine, plump shad, with fully developed roe in them, such as come to market in May, are now being caught by fishermen on the lower Columbia in their traps, and are causing wonderment as to where they have been loafing all summer. The fishermen attribute this freak on the part of the shad to the universally dry season.—Portland Oregonian.

Dogs Yielded to Temptation.

A beer wagon collided with an ice cream cart at Providence, R. I., and the beer and ice cream became generally mixed in the gutter. Some dogs started in to eat the mess, and two became so drunk that they could not stand.

DESECRATED GRAVE OF MILTO

Diabolical Act of Drunken Men Committed a Century Ago.

There are probably many, ev
among the subscribers to Milto statue, who will be surprised to le that the body of the great poet w once on view at a charge of threepen a head within a few yards from t site chosen for this splendid tribute his memory.

It was in 1790, after a carousal, th two overseers and a carpenter ent ed the Church of St. Giles, Cripp gate, where Milton lay buried, an having discovered the leaden co which contained his body, cut open top with a mallet and chisel. "Wh they disturbed the shroud," Neve sa when telling the story of the ghoulis deed, "the ribs fell. Fountain co fessed that he pulled hard at teeth, which resisted until someone them with a stone. Fountain secur all the fine teeth in the upper jaw, a generously gave one to one of his complices. Altogether the scoundre stole a rib bone, ten teeth and sever handfuls of hair; and, to crown diabolical business, the female grav digger afterward exhibited the bo to any one willing to pay threepen for the spectacle. —Westminster G zette.

DOG HAD NOT FORGOTTEN.

Stung by Bee in Puppyhood, He Cherished Resentment.

"Something must have stung yo dog," said a resident of this city a suburbanite, whom he was visiti a few days ago, as he noticed the a tics of a large collie which, aft snapping frantically at a flying sect, lowered his head and caref licked his right forepaw.

"No," replied the owner of the d
"that is only a little delusion of h
When he was a puppy a bee sti him on that foot you see him atte ing to, and ever since he has ch ished a standing grudge against fly insects. Apparently the sight of not only arouses his anger, but calls most vividly his first experien with one, for each time after ning after one, whether he catc it or not, he stops and tenderly l
the place where he was stung years ago. As far as I know he never been stung since then."—Ph
delphia Press.

Love in Zululand Cottage.

Poverty being already present window is provided for his entra and if love goes out by the doo must go on all fours. The becom costumes of the handsome yo couple show traces of European i ence.

Gift for Texas University.

The museum of Baylor univer at Waco, Texas, has recently rece
as a gift from the Rev. Z. C. Ta Bahia, Brazil, the complete skull, blade bones, several vertebrae,
three ribs of an immense speci of the common fin whale or rorq captured in the South Atlantic.
length of the skull is 15½ feet, w across the top 8 feet, hight from ground 5 feet, length of lower bones 13½ feet, length of ribs 6 5 inches, length of bladebone 5 fe inches, width 4 feet. Weight of 2,884 pounds; of each of the l jawbones 545, of the bladebones pounds.

Statistics of Billiards.

Taxation enables many curious bles of statistics to be compiled would probably puzzle the best English statisticians to guess approximately at the number of liard tables in use in England. T is no such difficulty in France, w the billiard table is a taxed lu and its relative frequency in munes of all grades of population wealth is made the subject of c lations as elaborate as they ar genious. In all France there
89,676 billiard tables, divided a 18,601 communes, and realising than £40,000 in taxes.—London Bits.

Woman Shot Deer from Carria

The other day Mr. and Mrs. I lott of Houlton drove up to B p tion and while Mr. Iott was a distance in the woods after part
Mrs. Iott, who was sitting in th riage, spied a large buck deer a edge of the clearing and immed brought her rifle to bear upo Deer. He dropped after receivi cartridge.—Lewiston Journal.

Small Rental for Church.

When Goodyear Bros. of B bought the sawmill and houses a dix Run, Mass, there came into ownership a union church, whic belonged to the Dodge company.
Goodyears have now rented church to the Methodists for 10 for 10 cents, or one cent per y

THE OLD FO
Never Without P
Catarrh

and MRS.
O. ATKINSON,
Independence,
Mo.

date of January 10, 1897, M received the following letter:
wife has been a sufferer from ation of diseases for the ive years. Her case has baffl of some of the most noted ph
One of her worst troubles w constipation of several year
She was also passing throu st critical period in the life of change of life.
June, 1895, I wrote to you abo
You advised a course of Per Manalin, which we at once com and have to say it completel
er.
At the same time I wrote yo my own case of catarrh, whic en of twenty-five years' stan times I was almost past goin menced to use Peruna accord your instructions and contin to use for about a year, and f mpletely cured me. Your rem do all that you claim for them en more."—John O. Atkinson letter dated January 1, 1900, Mr on says, after five years' experi ith Peruna:

ill ever continue to speak a ord for Peruna. I am still of catarrh."—John O. Atkin Independence, Mo., Box 252.

Your Druggist for Fre

WINTER TOURIST RATES.
Southern Railway. Excursion tickets are sale by the Southern Railway to all lar winter resorts of Florida. For folde led "Winter Homes in the South," giv information regarding hotel rates, also rmation regarding passenger rates and es, apply to J. N. Harrison, District Pas Agent, Morris Hotel Building.

tter Fruits—Better Profits tter peaches, apples, pears and ries are produced when Potash liberally applied to the soil. To ure a full crop of choicest quality, a fertilizer containing not less n 10 per cent. actual

Potash
d for our practical books of information;
are not advertising pamphlets, looming special fertilizers, but are authoritative treatises. Sent free for the asking.
GERMAN KALI WORKS
New York—64 Nassau St., or
Atlanta, Ga.—
22½ South Broad Street.

INSOMNIA
been using Cascarets for Insomnia, with have been afflicted for over twenty years an say that Cascarets have given me more an any other remedy I have ever tried.
rtainly recommend them to my friends as they are represented."
Thos. Gillard, Elgin, Ill.

Best For
The Bowels
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC
THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP
nt, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good, Do Good, ken, Weaken or Gripe, 10c, 25c, 50c. Never ld in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C C C.
ood to cure or your money back.
ling Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y. 597
AL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

n Earth
's Planters and Distributors
GUARANTEE THEM.
WARE OF IMITATIONS.
ur Prices and Catalogue.
T MFG. CO., Macon, Ga.

Dropsy CURED
Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.
Am. 51, 1904.

Thompson's Eye Water

SEY FIRE ALARM.

Old Locomotive Wheels to Good Use.

towns in New Jersey, so large a place as have steel wheel fire arouse communities in a very wide radius. merely the steel rims ive drive wheels. They ll towns desiring them railway of New Jersey d rolling stock. Some- rm is mounted in a frame, and again is arm of a stout post, hanks on a post, and ring a fire clangs the citizens to action photograph was made the most gracefully arms in the State at of Pleasure Bay, on ere ocean beach sum- lve for steamed clams ubs, taken from the you wait, observing as from dining room oking the water.

-YEAR DEBT.

W: ow of Man Who Him $15.

otey of Jamestown, N. the other day when a o the door and asked was Mrs. Bootey, he g in a southern hos ears ago, and wanted had no money. A him $15, with which ney. His companion a lad from Chautau- he never saw him

s been dead several stranger paid to his ading another $10 had never heard her f the incident, but ac ent and thanked the illing to pay a claim e had forgotten after New York Herald.

Fatal Spree.

goats caused a great nt in Old Forge. ot a quantity of fer- a vacant lot near of goats were pasted the attention of ing very tempting. down the mountain us time eating the ct on the "butters" they had eaten so were poisoned. The e loss severely, as r milk supply from ose (Pa.) Independ-for Humans.

eems to be unknown animals in a state lar some instances of e another have t has been point- very case cited the different species. l is no more an act an the devouring of a rat. Unquestion was noted some London menagerie, e another of its s was under the un- imposed by life in Prayer Book.

ooks of 1525 con- ing scenes among Fishing Season.

d with fully devel- such as come to now being caught he lower Columbia are causing won ere they have been The fishermen at- on the part of the ally dry season.

to Temptation.

olluded with an ice vidence, R. I., and ream became gen- he gutter. Some eat the moss, and nk that they could

DESECRATED GRAVE OF MILTO

Diabolical Act of Drunken Man C mitted a Century Ago.

There are probably many, eve among the subscribers to Milton' statue, who will be surprised to lear that the body of the great poet wa once on view at a charge of threepence a head within a few yards from th site chosen for this splendid tribute to his memory.

It was in 1790, after a carousal, tha two overseers and a carpenter entered the Church of St. Giles, Cripplegate, where Milton lay buried, and having discovered the leaden coffin which contained his body, cut open the top with a mallet and chisel. "Wha they disturbed the shroud," Neve says when telling the story of the ghoulish deed, "the ribs fell. Fountain confessed that he pulled hard at the teeth, which resisted until someone hit them with a stone. Fountain secured all the fine teeth in the upper jaw, and generously gave one to one of his accomplices. Altogether the scoundrels stole a rib bone, ten teeth and several handfuls of hair; and, to crown the diabolical business, the female grave digger afterward exhibited the bodies to any one willing to pay threepence for the spectacle. —Westminster Gazette.

DOG HAD NOT FORGOTTEN.

Stung by Bee in Puppyhood, He Che ished Resentment.

"Something must have stung you dog," said a resident of this city to a suburbanite, whom he was visiting a few days ago, as he noticed the antics of a large collie which, after snapping frantically at a flying insect, lowered his head and carefully licked his right forepaw.

"No," replied the owner of the dog "that is only a little delusion of his. When he was a puppy a bee stung him on that foot you see him attempting to, and ever since he has cherished a standing grudge against flying insects. Apparently the sight of one not only arouses his anger, but recalls most vividly his first experience with one, for each time after running after one, whether he catches it or not, he stops and tenderly licks the place where he was stung two years ago. As far as I know he has never been stung since then."—Philadelphia Press.

Love in Zululand Cottage.

Poverty being already present window is provided for his entra and if love goes out by the door must go on all fours. The becom costumes of the handsome yo couple show traces of European in ence.

Gift for Texas University.

The museum of Baylor univers at Waco, Texas, has recently recei as a gift from the Rev. Z. C. Ta Bahia, Brazil, the complete skull, blade bones, several vertebrae, three ribs of an immense specim of the common fin whale or rorq captured in the South Atlantic. ength of the skull is 15¼ feet, w across the top 8 feet, hight from ground 5 feet, length of lower j bones 13½ feet, length of ribs 6 f 4 inches, length of bladebone 5 fe inches, width 4 feet. Weight of s 7884 pounds; of each of the lo rawbones 545, of the bladebones pounds.

Statistics of Billiards.

Taxation enables many curious ies of statistics to be compiled. would probably puzzle the best English statisticians to guess approximately at the number of liard tables in use in England. T is no such difficulty in France, w the billiard table is a taxed lux and its relative frequency in communes of all grades of population wealth is made the subject of c ations as elaborate as they are genious. In all France there 29,676 billiard tables, divided a 18,601 communes, and realising than £40,000 in taxes.—London Bits.

Woman Shot Deer From Carria

The other day Mr. and Mrs. D lott of Houlton drove up to B ion and while Mr. lott was a distance in the woods after partr Mrs. lott, who was sitting in the ciage, spied a large buck deer at edge of the clearing and immedi brought her rifle to bear upon Deer. He dropped after receivin cartridge.—Lewiston Journal.

Small Rental for Church.

When Goodyear Bros. of B bought the sawmill and houses dix Run, Mass, there came into ownership a union church, which belonged to the Dodge company. Goodyears have now rented church to the Methodists for 10 for 10 cents, or one cent per y

THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME

Never Without Pe-ru-na in the Home for Catarrhal Diseases.

MR and MRS. SCHWANDT, Sanborn, Minn.

and MRS. D. ATKINSON, Independence, Mo.

...der date of January 10, 1897, Dr. ...an received the following letter:

...y wife has been a sufferer from a ...ication of diseases for the past ...y-five years. Her case has baffled ...ill of some of the most noted phy- ... One of her worst troubles was ...e constipation of several years' ...ing. She was also passing through ...ost critical period in the life of a ...-change of life.

...June, 1895, I wrote to you about ...se. You advised a course of Peru- ...l Manalin, which we at once com- ...d, and have to say it completely ...ed her.

...bout the same time I wrote you ... my own case of catarrh, which ...been of twenty-five years' stand- ... At times I was almost past going. ...mmenced to use Peruna accord- ...to your instructions and contin- ...ed to use for about a year, and it ...completely cured me. Your rem- ...dy all that you claim for them, ...even more."—John O. Atkinson.

... letter dated January 1, 1900, Mr. ...on says, after five years' experi- ...with Peruna:

...will ever continue to speak a ...word for Peruna. I am still ...ll of catarrh."—John O. Atkin- ..., Independence, Mo., Box 272.

Mrs. Alla Schwandt, Sanborn, Minn., writes:

"I have been troubled with rheumatism and catarrh for twenty-five years. Could not sleep day or night. After having used Peruna I can sleep and nothing bothers me now. If I ever am affected with any kind of sickness Peruna will be the medicine I shall use. My son was cured of catarrh of the larynx by Peruna."—Mrs. Alla Schwandt.

Why Old People Are Especially Liable to Systemic Catarrh.

When old age comes on, catarrhal diseases come also. Systemic catarrh is almost universal in old people.

This explains why Peruna has become so indispensable to old people. Peruna is their safeguard. Peruna is the only remedy yet devised that entirely meets these cases. Nothing but an effective systemic remedy can cure them.

A reward of $10,000 has been deposited in the Market Exchange Bank, Columbus, Ohio, as a guarantee that the above testimonials are genuine; that we hold in our possession authentic letters certifying to the same. During many years' advertising we have never used, in part or in whole, a single spurious testimonial. Every one of our testimonials are genuine and in the words of the one whose name is appended.

Your Druggist for Free Peruna Almanac for 1905.

WINTER TOURIST RATES.

Southern Railway. Excursion tickets are ... sale by the Southern Railway to all ...ular winter resorts of Florida. For folded "Winter Homes in the South," giv- ... information regarding hotel rates, also ...rmation regarding passenger rates and ...es, apply to J. N. Harrison, District Pas- ... Agent, Morris Hotel Building.

...etter Fruits—Better Profits

...Better peaches, apples, pears and ...ries are produced when Potash ...liberally applied to the soil. To ...ure a full crop, of choicest quality, ... a fertilizer containing not less ...n 10 per cent. actual

Potash

...nd for our practical books of information; ...ey are not advertising pamphlets, booming ... special fertilizers, but are authoritative ... treatises. Sent free for the asking.

GERMAN KALI WORKS
New York—93 Nassau St., or Atlanta, Ga.—
22½ South Broad Street.

INSOMNIA

...ve been using Cascarets for Insomnia, with ...I have been afflicted for over twenty years. ...n say that Cascarets have given me more ...than any other remedy I have ever tried. I ...ersonally recommend them to my friends as ...all they are represented."
Thos. Gillard, Elgin, Ill.

Best For The Bowels
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC
"THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP"

...ent, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good, Do Good, ...Sicken, Weaken or Gripe, 10c, 25c, 50c. Never ... bulk. The genuine tablet stamped CCC. ...uaranteed to cure or your money back.
...erling Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y. 307
...AL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

...en Earth
...'s Planters and Distributors
...E GUARANTEE THEM.
...EWARE OF IMITATIONS.
...for Prices and Catalogue.
...TT MFG. CO., Macon, Ga.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 6 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

Am. 51, 1904.

...Thompson's Eye Water

Story on Senator Vest.

Stories about the late Senator Vest are now being published by nearly all Missouri papers. There is one I do not think has ever been presented. Vest was the attorney for the plaintiff in a case wherein the defendant was almost bankrupted by a verdict against him. Vest had severely criticised the defendant in his speech to the jury, and the latter was very bitter, even making threats against the attorney. Time passed on and Vest was a candidate for the legislature. He was driving along one day in a wild part of Cooper county, and just as he was passing a house by the roadside, a man stepped out and said: "Here, you, hold on, there; I have something to say to you."

"I recognized my old enemy of the lawsuit two years before," said Vest, "and I never came nearer cutting and running in my life than I did then, for I supposed the man intended to attack me. But I knew if I did run it would get out on me, and my chances of being elected would vanish. The man came ambling up to my buggy and said:

"'See here, you are the man that came near ruining me in that lawsuit two years ago, and now I am going to hire you to ruin another feller for me, so that I can get square with the world.'

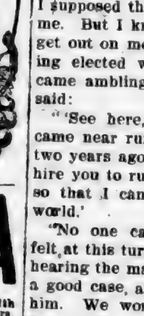
"No one can imagine the relief I felt at this turn of the affair, and after hearing the man's story I knew he had a good case, and agreed to take it for him. We won, and the man gained several thousand dollars, and I was elected to the legislature, and I am frank to admit that I never came nearer running like a scared dog than I did on that occasion. The man has been one of my strongest friends and supporters ever since."—Springfield (Mo.) Leader.

The first Japanese newspaper was published in 1863 and contained news translated from Dutch newspapers. Today Japan has over 1,500 papers, and several of them are in English.

A poor man does not need to be a poor sort of a man.

COMPLETELY RESTORED.

Mrs. P. Brunzel, wife of P. Brunzel, stock dealer, residence 3111 Grand avenue, Everett, Wash., says: "For fifteen years I suffered with terrible pain in my back. I did not know what it was to enjoy a night's rest and arose in the morning feeling tired and unrefreshed. My suffering sometimes was simply indescribable. When I finished the first box of Doan's Kidney Pills I felt like a different woman. I continued until I had taken five boxes. Doan's Kidney Pills act very effectively, very promptly, relieve the aching pains and all other annoying difficulties."



Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents per box.

INSECTS' SELF DEFENSE.

Peculiar Methods of Warfare Employed by Diminutives.

The ingenious means for protection found developed in various animals constitutes a subject of never ending study. Ernest Ingersoll cites several interesting cases in the Scientific American. He speaks of a small beetle found in Louisiana called by the French the bombardier. When an enemy attacks this insect "suddenly a popping explosion is heard, and a blue smoke, attended by a rancid smell, is seen to proceed from the hinder extremity of the body, which immediately stops the progress of his assailant." The bombardier can fire his artillery twenty times.

The scorpion fly is provided with a set of "Quaker guns" in the form of a pair of wicked looking but really harmless forceps; but its real instrument of defense is a sort of rifle. This is a slender tube which it thrusts out and from it ejects a drop of yellow, evil smelling fluid that will send almost any enemy to the right about.

The vile odor of the cockroach and other household pests is the natural means of defense provided for them by nature. But though this keeps them from being eaten by their logical enemies, it does not avail in all cases, for it makes mankind all the more anxious to destroy them.

An important reason why certain noxious worms (foliage eating larvae of moths) are so difficult to subdue is that most of them are covered with bristly hairs, and are not liked by most birds, apparently on that account. Plant lice, many of them, exude a fuzzy substance which makes them unpleasant eating for birds. Snails and slugs protect themselves by throwing off a mucous slime which tends to disgust its natural enemies, and the galley worm of the tropics is able to exude from its mouth a sticky fluid which no animal will care to take into its mouth a second time.

The American Hotel Clerk.

He stands at a desk upon the counter which fronts your entry. He is usually a man in the prime of youth; he wears diamonds, according to general rumor, and usually lives up to his reputation. He assigns your room. To the Londoner he appears as a magnificent personage, who combines mysteriously the duties of the man at the door of the Carlton and the privileges of the President of the United States. You require information as to a railway route, or a stamp, and the hotel clerk is ready with it. You propound to him all your difficulties, and he solves them with a snap of the lips and a shift of his cigar, for within his circle he is omniscient. He is not subservient; there is no reason why he should be. Indeed, it was a little startling when the hotel clerk at Chicago overtook me as I was going in to dinner, linked his friendly arm in mine and said: "Well, sonny, how are you making out? Bully?" We have nothing like the hotel clerk in England; for the hotel manager is more aloof and the hall porter is more subservient. Whence the hotel clerk gets his diamonds I cannot imagine. Not from tips. I would as soon think of dropping a "quarter" into the palm of Mr. Roosevelt after an interview as of offering a tip to an American hotel clerk. —From "T. P.'s Travel Talk," in T. P.'s Weekly.

How Waltzing Mice Fight.

Waltzing mice are curious and interesting little animals. They are not quite so long as the common gray mouse and much more slender. They are spotted black and white at each end of their bodies and are clear white in the middle. They whirl around on their four feet as if on a pivot, sometimes stopping and reversing the direction. Frequently I see two or three of them going around together in a large circle. Although they waltz sometimes as long as five minutes without rest, they appear never to get dizzy. They can, if they choose, run in a straight line, but they seldom do. Instead of running away when disturbed or frightened they begin to waltz. They come out of their nests about sundown and waltz until nearly midnight. Then they go back to their nests to sleep.

One of the curious things about them is their fighting. They waltz until they run into each other, when they bite, squeal, jump into the air—and then start waltzing again. They keep this up until they are seriously injured, sometimes having their tails and legs bitten off and their skins torn.

There are several theories as to the reason they can whirl around in this way and yet do not get dizzy. One is that it is because of a disease of the brain that they inherit.—Country Life in America.

Speed Madness.

Speed madness is the newest nerve disease. It is the child of invention and fashion, and likely to prove a dangerous decadent for pathological treatment. Find its regenerator if you can. There is no germ; therefore inoculation will not permit increase of this speed madness, and nothing can allay the symptoms but complete disaster and breakdown of the means of gratifying the mania. When a victim is physically shattered, speed madness passes. Not until then.

He Got the Bees.

Elias Buckler, a farmer living near Delphos, has a remarkably luxuriant growth of whiskers.

Recently, while working in the fields a swarm of bees came along and settled in this growth. Mr. Buckler sat down and remained quiet. When all the bees had settled in his beard he slowly arose, walked home, and with the assistance of others hived the buzzers.—Delphos Correspondence Cincinnati Enquirer.

WAR WILL FOLLOW.

England and Russia keep nagging at each other in Central Asia, and there will be a war unless they can agree upon spheres of influence. England's conquest of Thibet does not please Russia. Russia's constant pushing of her railroads toward the British frontier does not please England. With two displeased antagonists it ought not to take long to get up a fight.

Russia seems to be expecting it. She is building a navy that will force England to keep more ships at home to guard her own ports. Lewis Nixon with 8,000 men is to put Russia on a water footing that England cannot match, and then we shall see things. There will be war that is war, or a peace that will put on end to wars. We will not need to build ships any faster than at present. The European nations will destory each other and their debt ridden people will decay as Asia decayed after the days of her great wars that destroyed her great commerce.

There is no need for the United States to exhaust herself to build and maintain an armament that will lead us down the road over which all nations before us have gone and on which we now see the rapid decline of England as she follows Spain.

In captivity elephants always stand up when they sleep, but when in the jungle, in their own land and home they lie down. The reason given for the difference between the elephant in captivity and in freedom is that the animal never acquires complete confidence in his keepers and always longs for liberty.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free. Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

Automobile trains are to be run on wagon roads in German East Africa as feeders to the railway lines.

The Peruna Almanac in 8,000,000 Homes.

The Peruna Lucky Day Almanac has become a fixture in over eight million homes. It can be obtained from all druggists free. Be sure to inquire early. The 1905 Almanac is already published, and the supply will soon be exhausted. Do not put it off. Get one to-day.

In the museum at Turin are some war cartoons 3000 years old.

Piso's Cure cannot be too highly spoken of as a cough cure.—J. W. O'BRIEN, 322 Third Avenue, N., Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6, 1900.

Almost seven per cent. of the cost of operating a railway is for coal.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never fails. Sold by all druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

For an orchid $3260 was recently paid.

LOW RATES TO TEXAS, A. G. S. R. R.

$13.50 one way from Birmingham, to all points in Texas east of and including Dalhart, Amarillo, Fort Worth, Dallas, Brownwood, Brady, San Angelo, Waco, San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Corpus Christi, Rockport, Alice and Kerrville. Dates of sale: Dec. 13 and 27. Twelve hours quickest time. Trains leave 10:20 a. m., and 10:25 p. m. For further information call on or write, A. E. Freeman, Traveling Passenger Agent. H. F. Latimer, City Passenger Agent, 1925 First Ave. Birmingham, Ala.

In Bohemia.

New Yorker—"Oh, yes, I'm a thoroughbred Bohemian! My artistic nature requires atmosphere. There is so much in that, you know."

Cousin-from-out-of-town — "Yes, I suppose so. I never was in but one Bohemian place, and I thought there was a good deal in that atmosphere—it was principally tobacco smoke!"—Detroit Free Press.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY make oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of CATARRH that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE. FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D., 1886. A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co. Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A Chronic Case.

"Oh, he's never satisfied with a job. He's kicking about the one he's got now."

"Why, I understood it was a cinch. He told me he had absolutely nothing to do."

"Yes, but he's kicking because he has to do it."—Philadelphia Press.

Mrs. Anderson, a prominent society woman of Jacksonville, Fla., daughter of Recorder of Deeds, West, who witnessed her signature to the following letter, praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—There are but few wives and mothers who have not at times endured agonies and such pain as only women know. I wish such women knew the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a remarkable medicine, different in action from any I ever knew and thoroughly reliable.

"I have seen cases where women doctored for years without permanent benefit, who were cured in less than three months after taking your Vegetable Compound, while others who were chronic and incurable came out cured, happy, and in perfect health after a thorough treatment with this medicine. I have never used it myself without gaining great benefit. A few doses restores my strength and appetite, and tones up the entire system. Your medicine has been tried and found true, hence I fully endorse it."—MRS. R. A. ANDERSON, 225 Washington St., Jacksonville, Fla.

Mrs. Reed, 2425 E. Cumberland St., Philadelphia, Pa., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to write and tell you the good I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I have been a great sufferer with female trouble, trying different doctors and medicines with no benefit. Two years ago I went under an operation, and it left me in a very weak condition. I had stomach trouble, backache, headache, palpitation of the heart, and was very nervous; in fact, I ached all over. I find yours is the only medicine that reaches such troubles, and would cheerfully recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all suffering women."

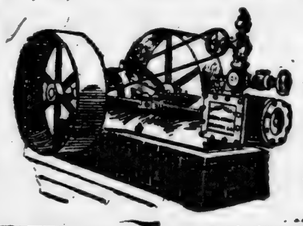
When women are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America go to prove, beyond a question, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble at once by removing the cause and restoring the organs to a healthy and normal condition. If in doubt, write Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass, as thousands do. Her advice is free and helpful.

No other medicine for women in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any substitute.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.
Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS COMPANY



MANUFACTURERS

High Pressure Return Tubular Boilers
Morison Internally Fired Boilers
High Grade Slide Valve Engines
Transmission Machinery
Heavy Castings
Wrought Iron and Steel Work
Tanks, Stacks and Stand Pipes

Heavy Pipe Work a Specialty

Address Machinery Department
MACON, GEORGIA.

Bryant & Stratton Business, Shorthand and Type writing College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

GOOD LUCK

Baking Powder PREMIUMS

The next time you need Baking Powder be sure to ask your grocer for the Good Luck brand. You will get the greatest satisfaction from Good Luck Baking Powder because of its positive purity, great leavening force and the reasonable price at which it is sold. Furthermore, by using Good Luck you can get beautiful free premiums. The gilt clock shown above is one of the presents you can get by saving Good Luck coupons. There is a coupon on the label of each can. Cut them out, save them and get the numerous useful gifts. A little book inside of each can illustrates and explains all about the premiums, and tells how to get them free. So great is the demand for that we are shipping it in carload and trainload lots to all parts of the country. Don't forget in buying "Good Luck" you get the most of the best at the lowest cost. Start to-day with a pound can (16c.), enjoy your baking and get the beautiful premiums.

GOOD LUCK Baking Powder

This is the Coupon found on every can.

If your grocer doesn't sell "Good Luck" send us his name and we will see that you are supplied.

THE SOUTHERN MFG. CO., Richmond, Virginia.

BOLL WEEVIL MUST GO

National Secretary of Agriculture Asks Immediate Appropriation

SECTIONAL CONVENTION MEETS.

Many Methods of Extermination Will Be Presented.—Prominent Cotton Men on Hand.

Washington.—The secretary of agriculture sent a letter to congress asking for an immediate appropriation of $225,000 to be used in efforts to exterminate the boll weevil. The appropriation last session was $250,000. The department expresses great alarm at the rapid spread of the pest.

Shreveport Convention Ready for Business.

Shreveport, La.—The National Boll Weevil and Cotton Convention has assembled. Delegates continue to arrive in large numbers and over 300 are registered with the secretary of the progressive league, the local organization which has the convention in charge.

Many prominent people identified with the cotton growers interests are present. Among them are Governor Blanchard, of Louisiana; Governor Vardaman, of Mississippi; Professor J. H. Connell, of Dallas; Colonel Charles Schuler, president of the Louisiana Boll Weevil convention; W. E. Proctor, special agent of the United States department of agriculture, with headquarters at Houston; B. C. White, another government agent; Drs. Howard, Hunter, Knapp and Spillman, government experts. There are also many representatives of the cotton oil industry present.

Chairmanship Undecided.

Judge Pugh said that no name had been decided upon for the honor and the convention itself would be asked to make a choice.

Professor Connell, the editor of Farm and Ranch, of Dallas, who is a recognized authority on the boll weevil, said: "I have heard some talk that Texas is not taking any interest in this convention. I desire to say Texas is taking a great interest in the proceedings and I am confident the state will have the best organized delegation in attendance. We want to kill the weevil and we come here with the avowed purpose of lending every assistance we can to stop the flight of the pest eastward."

Various Plans.

Delegates have many plans for the eradication of the insect. Dr. S. A. Knapp, in charge of the government work in the boll weevil districts in Texas and Louisiana, is reported as saying that the question has been practically solved and that cultured methods are the only hope of the planters. He advocates burning every stalk of cotton while it is yet green. This, he claims, will exterminate the hibernation of the weevils. He says it is extremely important that all fallen squares be picked up and burned. Dr. Knapp claims that the advent of the weevil will encourage the diversification of crops and he says there are many who believe the pest will prove a blessing in disguise. The first session of the convention was devoted wholly to organization, and the real business of the meeting will follow immediately.

Mississippi Carnival.

Jackson, Miss.—The Mississippi Cotton and Corn Carnival was inaugurated here Monday under the most favorable auspices and will continue throughout the week. The Capital City wears a holiday garb, all the business houses are gaily decorated, and the streets are thronged with visitors from all parts of the state.

The inaugural ceremony was held in representatives hall at the historic old state house. Shortly before 11 o'clock an imposing procession moved from the city hall to the old capitol building, and after the assembly was called to order addresses of welcome were delivered by Governor James K. Vardaman and Mayor William Hemingway on behalf of state and city. The carnival was then declared officially opened by President A. C. Jones.

Numerous amusements and side attractions entertained the visitors during the afternoon, among other features being an Indian ball game at the park, participated in by fifty Choctaw braves.

The old state house has been thronged since the early morning hours, and the exhibits showing the industrial and agricultural resources of the state have elicited great admiration, the visitors being profoundly surprised at the comprehensive manner in which the displays have been arranged, and the completeness of detail in every quarter.

Confederate Claims.

Washington, D. C.—The secretary of war, though the quartermaster general, has recommended the appropriation of an additional $100,000 for payment of claims of Confederate soldiers' whose horses were taken from them in violation of terms of surrender. Two hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars already has been appropriated and 1,300 claims have been paid. There remains on file unpaid and unsettled claims to the number of 800.

The War Situation.

Japanese pluck and luck still hold good. The taking of 203-Metre hill has resulted in the sinking of the Russian fleet at Port Arthur, only one ship of fighting force, the Sevastopol, remaining afloat. The marksmanship of the Japanese all along has been remarkable, and the handling of heavy guns on 203-Metre hill but confirms their reputation in that respect.

The Russian ships, too, have been sunk in comparatively shallow water, and when the Japanese capture Port Arthur they will proceed to raise them and add them to their navy. But there will be no hurry, and consequent waste of life, in the capture of Port Arthur, for it is now comparatively valueless. The garrison will doubtless be starved out, and its fall may not take place until next spring.

In the meanwhile the Japanese fleet will get ready to meet the Baltic fleet, or more probable still it will assist in the capture of Vladivostock. It is no longer needed at Port Arthur beyond a few light-swift vessels to prevent blockade running.

The capture of 203-Metre hill proves to have been the greatest and best success of the Japanese on land, outranking in importance even the crossing of the Yalu. At no point have the Japanese encountered defeat of a material nature, and it is not reasonable to expect they will meet more hard fighting hereafter than has already come to them. They are, however, as strong after a temporary check as after victory, and the Russian anticipation that defeat can stay them will not hold good. True, they have not got a good slice of it as yet, but the chances are that the slow and stupid Russians will not be able to inflict upon them more than something of a temporary and unimportant nature. Even General Grippenburg, who is hovering about Harbin, far from the front, will scarcely be able to inspire the Russians far enough to pull victory out of persistent defeat.

New Plan for Convicts.

Montgomery.—Acting Governor R. Cunningham returned to Montgomery Saturday from Ensley. He is in good health and fine spirits.

When asked as to matters of state interest, the governor said that everything was moving along smoothly. The hiring out of convicts was now being attended to, and the new plan of making contracts for the labor of the convicts instead of hiring them out as before is going to prove more profitable to the state as well as bettering conditions for the convicts. A number of lumber companies are now contracting for the labor of convicts. While these industries are not being supplied with convicts on the same plan that they are worked in the mines, that is so much per ton for the coal mined, they are to be under guard, clothed and fed by the state, while their labor is to be paid for at so much per day. This plan, says the governor, will prove better all around. The abolishment of the former contract system for convicts is a great step forward, whether the convicts go to the mines or to the lumber mills.

State Fair Assured.

Montgomery.—The movement for a state agricultural fair for Montgomery next fall is now assuming the shape of a reality rather than a fantasie. At a meeting of the Montgomery agricultural association last Saturday a large committee was appointed to perfect the plans for the fair.

An advisory committee, composed of the majority of this county's most enterprising citizens, was also appointed to act in conjunction with the regular committee.

The capital stock of the State Fair Association has been finally decided to be $50,000, divided into shares of $25 each.

Evergreens for North.

Heavy orders are now being filled in Mississippi for evergreens to be used in decorating northern homes during the Christmas holidays. At points on the Illinois Central south of Jackson car load shipments of holly, mistletoe, magnolia boughs, pendent moss, etc., are being shipped. Chicago seems to be the most particular market, although St. Louis is making a heavy demand for choice varieties.

The evergreen market is being made a source of handsome revenue by enterprising persons.

NEW INDUSTRIES.

The Following Companies Have Recently Been Organized.

Mobile—$25,000 boiler works; $25,000 ship chandlery and hardware company.

Bay Minette—$6,000 naval stores company.

Talladega—$30,000 brick company.

Montgomery—$10,000 candy factory; $5,000 investment company.

Abbeville—Oil mill

Birmingham—$5,000 construction company; $10,000 supply company; coal mines (near); $5,000 investment company.

Negro School Burned.

Montgomery, Ala.—The main building of the State Normal School for Negroes was completely destroyed by fire, which was discovered at 12:45 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The property is owned by the state. Prof. W. B. Paterson, the white principal of the school, during the progress of the fire, said that the property was valued at $20,000, and that it was fully covered by insurance.

NEW CAPITOL NEEDED

Alabama's Famous Old State House is now inadequate for present requirements.

BOND ISSUE PROPOSED.

Last Legislature Appropriated $150,000 for Repairs—This Amount Not Sufficient.

Montgomery, Ala.—Alabama's need of a modern building for the transaction of the business of the commonwealth is so apparent that he who even walks along the street may read and appreciate it. It was so plain to the last session of the legislature that $150,000 was appropriated with which to repair the old building now used as a capitol. Not an officer of the state but is brought face to face with the necessity a dozen painful times a day. Quarters are cramped and crowded, books and records are, from the lack of filing space, left exposed to the dirt and atmosphere, and much of the furniture in use was bought many decades ago. One thing or another has delayed the commencement of work on repairs authorized in the already mentioned appropriation until it is beginning to be believed that the problem of making the present old structure at all comfortable with the money available is too great for the capitol improvement commission to solve. With this comes the query: "Why improve at all?" and the consequent interrogation, "Why not build a capitol in keeping with the importance of the state, and adequate to all the present and constantly growing demands of the many and varied business interests?" This question was put to a member of the commission this week. "That may yet be the outcome," he replied. Why should Mississippi, with nothing but its farming and lumber interests, be more able to own and enjoy a million dollar capitol built on modern and convenient plans than Alabama, the iron price maker of the world, owner of scores of furnaces and the only practical steel and steel rail-making industries of the south?

Why Not Build?

Why not build a modern capitol? The question is asked often enough to be noticeable, but the idea is by no means generally discussed, or for that matter, popular, so far as can be ascertained. But why not? Birmingham could furnish the iron and steel for the frame work, Montgomery the timber and high-grade lumbers, Talladega county the marble, Franklin the stone, Mobile the fine imported goods for its furnishings, and the whole state join in many other things needed to complete the needs of such a structure. The old building could be utilized and so put to service as to preserve its sacred memories and retain its beloved surroundings. Nowhere in the whole world is there a prettier site for a beautiful architectural pile than Capitol Hill, and no street in Washington even is capable of being made more beautiful than historic Dexter avenue, by which the capitol is reached from the city proper. With the land now being sued for by the state on condemnatory proceedings, the very highest conception of architectural beauty and lawn and garden symmetry could be exemplified. With the old building in use in memory of its having sheltered the infant confederacy at its birth, the splendid monument to keep ever green the glorious deeds of Alabama's sons in the struggle to maintain the new nation, and a magnificent temple to emphasize the modern spirit and push and enterprise, Alabama could stand squarely up in the front line with the great states of Uncle Sam's united family. This may not be done, and likely will not soon, but every person who loves the grand old commonwealth and wishes it to be seen and known of the whole world for what it surely is in the modern thought and industry of the nation, would rejoice in such a consummation.

Some idea of the expansion of our Pacific commerce is shown in the statement that on one day during the past week there were shipped from Tacoma, Wash., 30,000 tons of cargo, chiefly army supplies for Japan, of the value of $1,500,000. The freight included locomotives, cars, structural steel, tobacco, electrical supplies, 3,500 bales of cotton, 10,000 barrels of salmon and 50,000 barrels of flour, besides a large amount of miscellaneous articles. Large quantities of steel rails are also being shipped to Japan, four cargoes of them having been forwarded within a few weeks. The shipment of cotton from a point so remote from the field of its production illustrates what a saving of freight will be effected by the Panama canal.

Confederate Claims.

Washington, D. C.—The secretary of war, though the quartermaster general, has recommended the appropriation of an additional $100,000 for payment of claims of Confederate soldiers' whose horses were taken from them in violation of terms of surrender. Two hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars already has been appropriated and 1,300 claims have been paid. There remains on file unpaid and unsettled claims to the number of 800.

Negro School Burned.

Montgomery, Ala.—The main building of the State Normal School for Negroes was completely destroyed by fire, which was discovered at 12:45 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The property is owned by the state. Prof. W. B. Paterson, the white principal of the school, during the progress of the fire, said that the property was valued at $20,000, and that it was fully covered by insurance.

Must Pay Up.

The present state administration is conducted on the principle of "pay what thou owest." If peaceably, all right, but, after a contest in the Governor Cunningham and Attorney courts, if necessary. Just now, Acting General Wilson are suing for two big sums, one against the Continental Trust Company, of Baltimore, for $75,000 mortgage tax record fees, and the other against the Fidelity Deposit Company, of Baltimore, for $12,000 alleged shortage in the accounts of John Case, former tax collector of Mobile county. It is confidently believed that both amounts are justly due, and will be secured. The idea of following out business methods is not altogether a new one in Alabama, however. Governor Jelks and his predecessors having set good example along this line. It is interesting to note that if these two sums are collected they should net the state about $85,000, which would pay salaries to even two governors for eight and one-half years, and be quite a feather in the official headgear of the officials now conducting the litigations.

New Bond Issue.

Another question just now under consideration is the refunding of the state debt, which may or may not be taken up by the acting governor, who is making a study of the situation in all its features.

Of the $9,537,600 of the debt, $9,903,600 will be due in 1906, part in January and part in June. Governor Jelks, who is ill in New Mexico, wishes this matter put off until he can get back to his desk if possible, and as it is said now that he is improving so rapidly as to promise return by the early part of the new year, he may be able to take the duty in hand. It is regarded as certain that whoever negotiates the refunding, a good contract can be made, as the state is rich in not only its industries and lands, but income as well. Many have suggested that the people of the state be allowed to subscribe to a new issue on a popular plan. The impression is, however, that the new issue will be exchanged for the old in the regular way, and a low rate will be secured.

Confederate S. and S. Monument.

Birmingham—The sub bases for the Confederate soldiers and sailors' monument in Capitol park are being hewn by Archer & Clapp, of Birmingham. The chiseling of the shaft is in progress. The contracts were let some weeks ago, and the work is being rushed as rapidly as possible in order that the monument may be ready for unveiling on April 26th, Memorial day.

The base for the monument has been built for years, and a cannon captured during the Spanish-American war has occupied it since 1898. Now the stone cutters are building two sub bases which are to go on the old base.

The old base cost Pelham chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, about $1,000, and the two sub bases and the shaft are to cost about $2,000, all of the money for which is subject to the check of the chapter and is drawing interest at one of the banks.

The monument is to be forty-two feet and is to be of Alabama marble, a beautiful grade of which is being used. The two sub bases will be about six feet each and the shaft will be thirty feet. It is to be in three sections, joined together by wreaths of laurel.

The shaft will be very imposing. The lower base is about fourteen feet square and the shaft tapers to sometning over one foot at the top.

New Steamship Company.

Mobile—There is great interest here in the inauguration of the boats of the American Fruit and Steamship Company, which will begin shipments to Mobile from Puerto Cortez on January 1st. The company has a capital of $5,000,000 with a great deal of Alabama money interested. At the present time the company owns plantations with capacity of 5,000 bunches of bananas a week, which will be increased to 7,000 by the first of the year. The headquarters of the company will be in Mobile. The president of the company is William E. Mason, former United States senator from Illinois.

Alabamians in Washington.

Washington, D. C.—The committee appointed by the Alabama River Convention, recently held at Montgomery, is here to present arguments to the rivers and harbors committee for the improvement of the Alabama river to give a six foot channel from Wetumpka to Mobile.

The Alabamians here today on this mission are: W. F. Vandiver, of Montgomery; John Quill, of Mobile; Winthorne Woolsey, W. R. Peacock and E. C. Melvin, of Selma; Dr. F. B. McCoskey, of Wetumpka, and W. F. Black, of Montgomery, secretary. Those expected are C. F. Moritz and W. M. Teague, of Montgomery, and F. L. Tate, of Wetumpka.

Negro School Burned.

Montgomery, Ala.—The main building of the State Normal School for Negroes was completely destroyed by fire, which was discovered at 12:45 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The property is owned by the state. Prof. W. B. Paterson, the white principal of the school, during the progress of the fire, said that the property was valued at $20,000, and that it was fully covered by insurance.

New Railroad to Selma.

Birmingham—The question of the building of an air line railroad from Birmingham to Selma is being revived, and Col. F. M. Abbott, of Selma, has been in the city during the week to promote the interests of the proposed road.

The distance from Birmingham to Selma is only sixty-seven miles, and with the construction of the line the Birmingham district would be in immediate touch with water transportation. The Alabama river at Selma is practically navigable the year round, coal could be handled by the system and if an air line road were constructed from this city to Selma export traffic men assert that iron and coal could be handled, by the system of having the cars dump their freight upon the docks at something like the mere cost of drayage on the present system.

Rumors are to the effect that both the Southern and Louisville and Nashville are backing the scheme to construct the new road.

Investigating Alabama Land.

Washington—The United States geological survey is extending its topographic work to embrace the region adjacent to the Tombigee river, both in Alabama and Mississippi, and is giving special attention to the cement rock and other mineral resources of that district. As the water supply is of interest in connection with navigation, M. R. Hall, who is in charge of the hydrographic work in that area, has been directed to investigate the conditions at Epes Landing, Ala., and to establish a gauging station at that point, if conditions are favorable. A gauging station is now maintained by the survey at Columbus, Miss., while two stations are located on the Black Warrior river, above Demopolis.

Fatal Hunting Accident.

Dalton, Ga.—John Cash shot and accidentally killed his 14-year-old son, Alex, near Dalton. They were out rabbit hunting, and in attempting to shoot at a rabbit the gun was accidentally discharged by the father, the contents taking effect in his son's back. Death was almost instantaneous.

Turkey Again in Trouble.

Vienna—The Austrian government, it is understood, intends to send a fleet to Turkish waters to support the demands presented to the Porte by the Austrian ambassador for the dismissal and punishment within three days of the officials who forcibly detained the Austrian mails at Scutari recently. This ultimatum was presented to the Porte Monday.

Kuroki Loses Another Son.

Tokio—In the fighting of November 30th the second son of General Kuroki was killed at 203 Meter Hill. His eldest son was killed in the battle of Panshan Hill.

Big Money Running Blockade.

San Francisco—H. Frankel, of Shanghai, who arrived on the steamship Siberia, says that the blockade runners are making fortunes carrying supplies of food and money from Shanghai to the Russians at Port Arthur. One steamer ran in 300,000 rifles and 8,500 head of cattle in October last and cleared $280,000.

Another National Cemetery.

Washington—Representative Brownlow, of Tennessee, introduced a bill in the house Monday authorizing the secretary of war to accept the tract of land near Greenville, Tenn., where lies the remains of Andrew Johnson, late president of the United States, which was donated under the will of Martha J. Patterson and from the heirs of W. B. Bachman, all descendants of the former president. This tract contains not over ten acres.

Upon the presentation of a good and perfect title to the land the secretary of war is authorized to accept the same and establish thereon a national cemetery of the fourth class.

First Campaign Emblem.

So far as known, the first campaign emblem was a finger ring of copper. It was worn by the adherents of John Quincy Adams in 1825, when he ran for president, and was inscribed "John Quincy Adams, 1825." Tintypes and medallions were among the insignia of the 1860 campaign.

World's Fair Figures.

St. Louis, Mo.—A statement of the total admissions to the world's fair from April 1 to December 1, inclusive, gives the attendance at 18,740,073. The figures for the closing day are 202,101.

Dr. Barbee Dead.

Nashville, Tenn.—Dr. James D. Barbee, one of the most distinguished Methodist divines in the south, and a leader in Southern Methodism, is dead at his home in this city, aged 72. Dr. Barbee was a native of Alabama, and was for a number of years one of the agents of the Southern Methodist Publishing House.

$24,000,000 for Good Roads.

Washington—Senator Latimer, from the committee on agriculture and forestry, has reported favorably his bill for national aid to good roads. The bill provides an appropriation of $24,000,000 to be divided among the states according to population. The states are to do the work of constructing and improving the roads and pay one-half of the cost, the government paying the other half.

JOKERS BUDGET

HIS HARVEST.

"Hurrah!" cried a jubilant plumber,
We've bidden farewell to the summer.
A pipe I shall spend,
And then I shall send
A bill that is truly a number."
—P

'NOUGH SAID.

McFlub—Now, what sort of a man is this fellow? I want to know about him.

Spinks—Well, he wears a celluloid collar and his—

McFlub—Hold on! That's enough.—Houston Chronicle

AT THE NIGHT SCHOOL.

Teacher—What do you understand by the phrase, "The fortunes of war"?

Shaggy-haired Pupil—That's what the officers of the army gits when they capchor a lot of other feller's ships.—Chicago Tribune.

OTHER SIDE OF IT.

Him—I think a man should marry a girl he has known from his childhood.

Her—Yes, but if a girl knew a man from childhood she would probably know better than to marry him.—Chicago News.

HARD WORK.

"Back from your vacation, eh? I suppose you'll find your work harder than ever now."

"That's what;" replied the clerk. "I've got ten fiances to look after with."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

HOWL FROM A VICTIM.

Fido—What's the matter with you?

Towser—I've got to go to one of these confounded dog suppers tonight.

Fido—Are you getting too proud to associate with other dogs?

Towser—No; it isn't that. It throws me into the company of all sorts of human beings.

HIS LITTLE JOKE.

Subbubs—I thought you were going to have a baseball game today.

Backlots—Oh, the creek backed up in some way and flooded the diamond. It's the first time it ever happened and—Subbubs—Ah! You might call it a diamond of the first water, then.

CORRECTED.

Mrs. Housekeep—Don't boil up the baked beans, Bridget. They only want to be warmed.

Little Tommy—Ma, beans can't talk, can they?

Mrs. Housekeep—Of course not. Why?

Little Tommy—Then how do you know what they want?—Philadelphia Press.

CERTAIN OF THAT.

Constituent—Senator, I am thinking of settling in Negosaa County. Do you suppose an industrious man could do well there?

Senator Lotsmun—He ought to. I know there's a good deal more money in circulation in that county than there was before I began my last campaign.—Chicago Tribune.

POST MORTEM.

Manager (of great exposition)—What alarms me is our mortality list.

Assistant—Mortality list? Why, it's next to nothing at all!

Manager—I know better than that. More than one-third of the people that come through the turnstiles are dead heads.—Chicago Tribune.

TOO GENERAL.

"But why did you let your stenographer go?"

"She was too attentive to business."

"But that's a creditable trait, isn't it?"

"It wasn't in her case. She was attentive to everybody's business except her own."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

QUITE A SCHEME.

Mrs. Subbubs—I do wish we could get rid of that cat.

Mr. Subbubs—Great scheme! I see if I can't get our postmaster to keep it in his office for a few days.

Mrs. Subbubs—What good will that do?

Mr. Subbubs—Why, robbers will about die at the postoffice again, and when they blow open the safe maybe the explosion will kill the cat.—Philadelphia Press.

NAME THE TOWN.

Stranger—You seem to have a good deal of crime in your city. Have you no police force at all?

Native—Yes; we have a good one, but it's pretty busy superintending wrestling matches and boxing contests and the like, you know, and seeing that the law governing such things is not evaded in any way.—Pittsburg Post.

WOULD NEVER DO.

Stranger—I want to buy a good watchdog.

Dog Fancier—Here's the one you want, sir. Trained by an expert. He can tell an insurance agent a mile off.

"And what will he do then?"

"Do? He'll chew him into small bones."

"Well, he won't suit me."

"Why? Most people want a dog like that."

"Yes, I know; but I'm an insurance agent, you see."—Chicago Journal.

VOL II.

OLE ISSUES C

ts Mass Meeting He Every Town In the Sta of Alabama.

TO GET BETTER PRICES

t is to Bring About Con tion Among Farmers to G Better Prices.

ntgomery.—Hon. R. R. missioner of agriculture, ha a call for the farmers of to hold mass meetings in al counties on Tuesday, Ja 1905, to determine what is done to secure better price and plan for the new crop holding all cotton now in of the farmers until that east, smaller acreage next more abundant food crops. is as follows, addressed to growers of Alabama:

he present conditions make mely anxious and solicitou interests, and I have determ ke prompt and decided actio remises. The extremely mild fall has upset all calculation on to the output of the co and brought the fact more vi d forcibly to mind than ever and further demonstrates to plete satisfaction that we ka ous little about what the y ing to be or what the mar ing to do.

Controlled by Shylocks.

he cotton market is control ntely by the 'Shylocks' of W t, and as a matter of course, th ys manipulate it so as to y in their own pockets, and those who raise the staple s e it first hand. I have advis olding of cotton and have firmly believed that the pri go up shortly after the holida of the same opinion still. B ust do our part in forcing a fa quitable price for what of t we may still have on hand. ware of the fact that the produc arketed three-fourths of his cr m happy to know that he got rice for it, but that still on han d not be sacrificed, and alon the 25 per cent. yet in the hand rchants or middlemen, makes fifty per cent of the crop yet i nds.

Wise Action Needed.

se and judicious and prompt ac worth many thousands of do o the people of Alabama. I hav urged by farmers and merchant er the state to make some sug ns to guide them in bringin the much desired results, an tion and consultation with other determined to call and do hereby ass meetings in cities and coun wns of the state on Tuesday ry 10, 1905, for the discussion o estion from every standpoint possible to decide upon the best ost effectual mode and manner disposition of the crop in hand, or concert of action in making xt crop.

highly essential for our future ion that we stand steadfastly to against the speculator, and sell ton voluntarily, and permit none sold by coercion or intimidation. et free, full and open discussion matter of so vital importance to l, and would recommend:

t—That the remainder of the hand be held for fair and just ond—That smaller acreage be next year and that the wisest t of action be had in bringing bout;

rd—That more and abundant ops be planted and that our become self-sustaining so far ible.

all take pleasure in offering tions and give my cordial and co-operation in making the ent a success."

Huger Has a Plan.

. Huger, president of the Ala Chemical Company, of Mont , has given, in a letter to the arvie Jordan, president of the rn Cotton Growers' Protective ation, some practical thoughts cotton raising and marketing . He advises that the market spread out over nine months, nks that with this plan in force ce will be kept up to what is the sale of the staple.

first place, he thinks that the should post themselves about al crop yield; that they should ply agree to hold their cotton, re a thorough understanding the marketing, saying just how ales will be put up for sale many will be raised.

ere possible," he thinks, "it be best if they would all agree t their crops as follows: One-

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. II. CLANTON, ALA., DECEMBER 22, 1904. NO. 39

...OLE ISSUES CALL

...ts Mass Meeting Held in Every Town in the State of Alabama.

TO GET BETTER PRICES.

...ct is to Bring About Concerted ...ction Among Farmers to Get Better Prices.

...tgomery.—Hon. R. R. Poole, ...missioner of agriculture, has is... a call for the farmers of Ala... to hold mass meetings in their ...al counties on Tuesday, January ...905, to determine what is best ... done to secure better prices for ... and plan for the new crop. He ... holding all cotton now in the ... of the farmers until that time ...ast, smaller acreage next year ...more abundant food crops. The ...is as follows, addressed to the ...n growers of Alabama:

...e present conditions make me ...mely anxious and solicitous of ...interests, and I have determined ...e prompt and decided action in ...remises. The extremely mild and ...fall has upset all calculations in ...on to the output of the cotton ... and brought the fact more vivid... forcibly to mind than ever be... and further demonstrates to my ...lete satisfaction that we know ...us little about what the yield ...ng to be or what the market ...ng to do.

Controlled by Shylocks.

...e cotton market is controlled ...tely by the 'Shylocks' of Wall ..., and as a matter of course, they ...s manipulate it so as to put ... in their own pockets, and de... those who raise the staple and ...e it first hand. I have advised ...olding of cotton and have all ... firmly believed that the price ... go up shortly after the holidays. ... of the same opinion still. But ...ust do our part in forcing a fair ...quitable price for what of the ... we may still have on hand. I ...ware of the fact that the producer ...arketed three-fourths of his crop ...m happy to know that he got a ...rice for it, but that still on hand ...d not be sacrificed, and along ...he 25 per cent. yet in the hands ...rchants or middlemen, makes at ...ifty per cent of the crop yet in ...ands.

Wise Action Needed.

...se and judicious and prompt ac... worth many thousands of dol... to the people of Alabama. I have ...urged by farmers and merchants ...er the state to make some sug...ns to guide them in bringing ... the much desired results, and ...ion and consultation with others ...determined to call and do hereby ...ass meetings in cities and coun...wns of the state on Tuesday, ...y 10, 1905, for the discussion of ...estion from every standpoint, ...possible to decide upon the best ...ost effectual mode and manner ... disposition of the crop in hand, ...r concert of action in making ...xt crop.

...s highly essential for our future ...on that we stand steadfastly to... against the speculator, and sell ...on voluntarily, and permit none ...old by coercion or intimidation. ...st free, full and open discussion ... matter of so vital importance to ... and would recommend:

...t—That the remainder of the ... hand be held for fair and just ...

...nd—That smaller acreage be ... next year and that the wisest ... of action be had in bringing ...out;

...d—That more and abundant ...ops be planted and that our ... become self-sustaining so far ...ible.

...ll take pleasure in offering ...ons and give my cordial and ...co-operation in making the ...at a success."

Huger Has a Plan.

... Huger, president of the Ala... Chemical Company, of Mont... has given, in a letter to the ...rvie Jordan, president of the ... Cotton Growers' Protective ...tion, some practical thoughts ... cotton raising and marketing ... He advises that the market... spread out over nine months, ...ks that with this plan in force ... will be kept up to what is ... the sale of the staple.

... first place, he thinks that the ... should post themselves about ...al crop yield; that they should ...ly agree to hold their cotton, ...e a thorough understanding ... marketing, saying just how ...les will be put up for sale ... many will be raised.

... were possible," he thinks, "it ... best if they would all agree ...t their crops as follows: One-third of what each man raises by November 1; one-third in November, December and January, and the other in February, March and April. This would give nine months to market the whole. This would put the producer in the position to feed the spinner and mill men when they need the cotton, and not force them to take it when they do not require it for present use. Any commodity forced on the buyer will be sold at a sacrifice, or the price fixed by the buyer. If a mule dealer sells a man mules, he buys as many as he needs and pays a just price for them, but if forced to take five more mules he will give for the mwhat he chooses.

State Statistics.

Mr. Huger thinks the plan of the government giving out the statistics is a bad one. He believes that a statistical department should be established in every state; that gins should be licensed and forced to make report every week of every bale coming into their hands. In this way every state could keep right up with what is being raised, and give the farmers the inside track on the matter of statistical information.

"Let the southern people be more self-reliant," says Mr. Huger, "and work together and not look to Washington or the large cotton exchanges of the country for information regarding their own product, as naturally it is to the interest of the buyer and user of cotton who live at these exchange centers to see the cotton market at the lowest possible figure it can be produced at."

Panic Started.

New York.—It is no exaggeration to say that Wall street began the day with more anxiety than it has shown since the May panic of 1901. The reasons for this feeling were plenty, chief among them being the absolute collapse of the market Monday, revealing weak spots in unlooked for places. A great majority of the brokerage houses had their clerical force at work till late last evening, and some of them worked long after midnight examining accounts and issuing imperative calls to customers for more margins. Many stock exchange members arrived at their offices much earlier than usual to prepare for the day and to get a line on the London market. That center offered but slight encouragement. No American showed general recovery from the opening demoralization there.

THE WHITE HOUSE STEWARD

Delicacy Required in Making Purchases For President's Household.

The steward's position is a responsible one in many other ways, and requires much discretion. President Roosevelt is fortunate in his steward, who is a small light-colored mulatto. He is very quiet and unassuming in manner, but thoroughly trustworthy. Every morning he goes to the markets, and the way in which he conducts these expeditions would do credit to a diplomatist. It is one of the unwritten laws of the White House that no capital must be made by any one from the fact of the patronage of the President of the United States. Every one who has been in London is familiar with the notices that appear in many of the shops over there, announcing that the King or some member of his family patronizes the place. Nothing of the kind can be found in Washington. The steward of the White House goes each morning to certain markets or stores, and does the required purchasing, but in so quiet a manner that the man buying next to him would never guess his errand unless he chanced to know him. The majority of the purchases are even sent to the White House in an unlettered wagon. This wagon comes in at the south entrance and drives through the west colonnade to the kitchen door. Any passer by looking over the railing could see it, but he would never be able to guess from anything about its appearance what grocery house or market the food which it contained came from.—Harper's Bazar.

WISE WORDS.

There are no losses in loans of love.

Life is the only school for character.

There is no better way of emptying the mind of evil than by doing good.

Let your religion be what it may, if it teaches you to do right, it is born of God.—selected.

Ever notice how quickly time flies when you are trying to make up your mind to begin a particularly hard job?

The greatest test of character is to be found in the way we meet the common duties of life. He who is faithful to the harder tasks will not be unfaithful in the easier great things.—Selected.

I look for the hour when that Supreme beauty which ravished the souls of those Eastern men, and through their lips spoke oracles to all time, shall speak in the West also.—Emerson.

The highest joy is an edelweiss; it grows only bosomed in the snow and nursed by tempests. There is no joy like divinely joyful sorrow, as there is no strength like divinely strengthened weakness. This is the paradox of Christian experience.—Lyman Abbott.

NORTH FORT CAPTURED

Position on East KeeKwau Mountain Taken After Explosion by Japs.

AMERICAN REQUEST REFUSED.

Russia Declines to Grant Permission for Japanese Prisoners to Receive Communications.

Tokio.—Confirmation has been received here of the report that the Japanese army besieging Port Arthur has stormed and captured North Fort on East Keekwan mountain after exploding a mine under the fortifications.

War Office Refuses Request of Americans.

St. Petersburg.—The war office has informed the American embassy that no one will be allowed to communicate in person with the Japanese prisoners at the village of Medvid, province of Novgorod, without imperial authorization. The Japanese minister at Berlin has therefore been notified of all the facts and the American embassy has decided to be governed by his wishes in the matter. If he requests imperial permission it will be extended.

The American embassy at St. Petersburg received a letter signed by eighty-six officers who are prisoners at Medvid asking the embassy to send a representative there. No reason for the request was assigned.

Says Japanese Are Making False Reports.

Tien-Tsin.—A junk which arrived here from Port Arthur reports that four Japanese torpedo boats were sunk during the attack on the Russian battleship Sevastopol. The Japanese, the Chinese added, are spreading false reports of their success in order to facilitate the negotiations of fresh loans abroad.

Warships Pass Capetown.

Capetown.—Some warships of the Russian second Pacific squadron passed Capetown this afternoon, eastward bound.

May Courtmartial Citizens.

Kiefe, Russia.—The governor has issued a proclamation announcing that Emperor Nicholas has conferred on the heads of military districts in which martial law is not declared the power of trying by courtmartial all officers in charge of troops in the event of the latter committing excesses punishable for the conduct of their men.

CALL FOR FARMERS' MEETING.

Steps Will Be Taken To Hold Balance of Crop.

Carrollton, Ga.—Hon. M. R. Russell, of this place, member of the Georgia Agricultural Society, has issued a call to the farmers of this section to assemble at the court house here to take steps looking to the marketing of the remainder of the present cotton crop.

There is considerable cotton in the hands of the farmers here now, but generally it is farmers who are not compelled to sell, those most in need having marketed their crop early in the fall at a fair price. There is a general determination to hold for better prices.

Battleships Abandoned.

Tokio.—Official reports state that the Russians at Port Arthur have abandoned the battleships Perezviet, Poltava, Pobieda and Retzvian, and the cruisers Pallada and Bayan.

Dr. S. J. Gay Injured.

Selma.—Dr. S. J. Gay was painfully injured in a runaway accident and narrowly escaped being kicked to death by his horse. Fortunately the single-tree gave way just as Dr. Gay fell forward under the horse, releasing the animal.

Ginners' Association.

Dallas, Tex.—More than 100 ginners from Texas and adjoining states are here to attend a meeting called for the purpose of forming a National Ginners' Association. One of the principal subjects to be brought before the convention is a plan for gathering gin statistics and preparing reports in advance of those issued by the national census bureau.

Tuscumbia, Ala.—The Sheffield Coal and Iron Company has executed a mortgage to the Bankers' Trust Company, of New York, covering certain properties in Colbert, Lauderdale, Franklin, Lawrence, Cherokee and Wayne counties to secure $400,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds.

Will Back the Farmers.

Montgomery, Ala.—The bankers of Montgomery say they are not only prepared, but willing to help the farmers carry their cotton to such time as it will be worth more money in the market. It has also been shown that the farmers' accounts as a general proposition are desirable and sought after by the banks. They have been paid in the past with remarkable regularity. One well known banker said:

"We have made more money and lost less on accounts of farmers than of any other class of borrowers." It is the practice of the banks to put up say 6 cents a pound when the price is above 7 cents. The ware house receipt and insurance contract will always be good collateral for money needed. The farmers and the small merchants of Alabama have at least 25 per cent of the crop of this year in their hands yet and are prepared to hold it. A strong point in the situation is the fact that many hundreds of raisers are able to hold all the cotton they have without borrowing money. The cotton merchants assert the belief that the price is about as high now as it will go, and even think it will go below the present level, but will not stay. It is figured that the consuming capacity of the world is not above eleven million bales, which is cut down this year by the large number of mills idle in the Fall River territory.

Year's Railroad Accidents.

Washington.—The annual report of the Interstate Commerce Commission was made public. It shows that the past fiscal year was unusually prolific in fatal railroad accidents. There were 43,266 employes injured and 3,367 employes killed during the year. There were 8,077 passengers injured and 321 killed. There were ten unusually disastrous accidents. The commission urges with emphasis the uniform adoption of the block system.

The report contains an exhaustive discussion of the rate question, the burden of which is that the laws making effective the acts of the commission be imperative.

Statistics compiled by the commission show that the gross earnings of the railroads for the year were $1,966,633,821.

$600 Stolen.

Birmingham.—A telegram was received from Bangor stating that the safe of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company at that place had been robbed by a white man. The message stated that after robbing the safe the thief boarded a freight train for Atlanta, and that he would pass through Birmingham. Officers met the trains, but did not find the thief, the presumption being that he dropped off before the train arrived in Birmingham.

The robbery was committed Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and Chief Weir received the message at 8 o'clock. In all $600 was the amount stolen. Of this $300 was in coin and another $300 in vouchers.

Asks for Time.

Richmond, Va.—The president's attitude toward the south was discussed in an interview here with Thomas Nelson Page, who quotes the president as saying:

"If the south will wait two more years before passing judgment on me, I believe she will be satisfied as to my good intentions."

Dr. Page has always been a member of the democratic party, but he admires the president greatly and is a close friend of the executive. The well-known author says that the intentions of Mr. Roosevelt toward the south have always been the best, and that he was much taken back by the hostility which some of his actions aroused in this section. He is fully persuaded that the south will be treated as well as any other part of the country despite the fact that its vote was against the president.

Four Killed in Row.

St. Petersburg.—Dispatches received from Moscow state that the casualties in the anti-war demonstrations in which three thousand students participated yesterday four persons were killed and sixty injured. Three students have been arrested.

Snow-Bound.

Boston.—Communication with Cape Cod by telephone and telegraph, broken off by Sunday's storm, is still interrupted. Such additional information as has been received indicate that the early report of storm damage had not been exaggerated. The snow is from two to four feet deep and in many places blocks highways and street car lines.

Will See Port Arthur Fall.

Tokio.—Major Kuhn, United States army, who was military attache with the Japanese army, has been re-assigned to witness the fall of Port Arthur. Major Kuhn departed for Shinbashi.

MONTGOMERY NEWS.

To Work on Roads.

Montgomery county may not lease out its convicts next year. It is proposed to work them on the county roads or on farms near the city. There is an impression among the members of the board of revenue of this county that convicts are not well treated at mines and lumber plants, and it is believed that owing to this these concerns will get no more convicts from this county.

Raid Gambling Den.

The talk of Montgomery is the raid made by the police Sunday night on the gambling den operated at the Merchants' hotel by Robert L. Alexander, who came here from Birmingham last October and leased the hotel. Nine arrests were made, but Alexander was not caught. It is doubtful if the men arrested can be convicted under the present gambling ordinance of the city.

A Bad Fire.

A fire at the Highland Home school, in Montgomery, early Sunday morning, destroyed one barn and burned five horses, nine cows, 100 bushels of corn, a lot of hay, and the home of the president, Samuel Jordan. The loss will run up into the thousands.

R. R. Poole Reports.

Montgomery, Ala.—"As far as I can see," said State Commissioner of Agriculture R. R. Poole, "the boll weevil convention at Shreveport did no good. We are just as far from a solution of the problem of stamping out the pest as we were before we had the convention. Government experts admitted that they knew of no feasible method of stamping out the weevil."

Captain Poole has just returned from the convention. He thinks one of the most plausible plans is for the infected districts to stop raising cotton long enough to starve out the weevil. This project, he says, was proposed at the gathering, but the representatives from Texas objected strenuously.

The commissioner is laying great stress on his call to the cotton growers of Alabama to hold mass meetings in the different cities and towns of Alabama on January 10 for the purpose of making arrangements to hold their cotton for better prices. He issued the call on the request of a number of prominent farmers of the state, and he now urges every cotton grower to take an active hand in the movement.

To Test Cotton Law.

Columbus, Ga.—There is to be carried from Muscogee superior court to the supreme court of Georgia a case in which the farmers of this section of Georgia and Alabama are much interested.

The case is that of the State vs. Charles Bazemore, a merchant of this city, who is charged with violating the state law making it unlawful to buy during the fall months cotton in the seed when offered for sale by other than the owner of the land on which the cotton was grown, or his owner.

The object of the law was to put an end to the stealing of cotton from the fields and gin houses and carrying it to the city and selling it to dealers.

Bazemore decided to have the law tested. A test case was made out against him and at the recent term of Muscogee superior court he was convicted and fined $1. A motion for a new trial was made and has just been refused. The case now goes to the superior court.

Columbus being on the border, considerable stolen cotton is brought here from adjoining Alabama counties. It is bought by various dealers in open violation of the law, it is stated.

Former Governor Dies.

Little Rock, Ark.—Former Governor James P. Eagle died here after an illness of three weeks. He was governor of Arkansas from 1889 to 1893. He was also president of the Southern Baptist convention.

Minneapolis.—A strong wind caused the walls of the ruined Peck building, burned last Tuesday, to fall early this morning, crushing the Crocker hotel adjoining. Fifty persons are known to have been in the hotel at the time the ruined hotel caught fire and the entire fire department started to rescue the people. Seven are known to be dead and nine are known to be injured, some seriously. The hotel was a frame building and crushed as though built of card board.

The Southern railroad will soon begin work on an extension of two and a half miles on the Mobile Junction, south of Bessemer, to a point west of that city. The object, so states Superintendent Rickey, is that the Southern may have a track of its own and make the Alabama Great Southern track unnecessary. The extension will give the Southern a line from Birmingham to its own going to Mobile, and one that will touch Thomas, Ensley and Bessemer. Bids will be advertised for within the next two weeks.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St., Opposite Court House
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins,
Physician and Surgeon,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Office with Hopkins Drug Co.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 9 to 12 a. m.
1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

Home Grown Fruit Trees

I have for sale a fine assortment of fruit trees, particularly adapted to this climate. Peaches, Plums and Apples, of the best varieties for this section, and all guaranteed true to name. Prices Reasonable. J. L. Winslow, Pine Hill Nursery, Thorsby, Ala.

WORSE THAN THE DOG.

She—"You'd better sit by this open window, dearest, in case papa should come into the room suddenly."

He—"But there's a fierce bulldog outside, darling."

"I know it, but of two evils always choose the lesser."—Chicago Journal.

PURE GOODS

The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

Orchard and Garden

The Children's Garden.

Every farmer should yearly set aside a generous plat of ground for the children to cultivate, and should instruct and interest them in the care of it, for they will not take up its cultivation of themselves, because—well, that is not human nature! But once reveal to them the pleasure and satisfaction and fascination of propagating plants, and they will be very quick to follow it up thereafter.

A garden is, in reality, an endless source of amusement and entertainment for young and old alike, as soon as they come to be interested in it. It is art and nature striving together to outdo each other in the attempt to please the onlooker. It affords something new daily to wonder at and admire, and so draws us closer to nature and the world of wonders out of doors.

Repairing the Buildings.

On the well-ordered farm there will be nearly every year some necessary work of repairs on the outside of the buildings. If such work is always attended to in season there will be a saving in the durability as well as the good appearance of the buildings. One the most important of these repairs in keeping a good roof. If these are shingles, these will wear or rot out time and need replacing. Attention to keeping in repair will add considerably to the duration of a roof, and this is something that should not be neglected.

A well-covered building is worth keeping painted. If well done and as often as needed painting will add to the durability and good looks of the building. A farmer should himself be able to paint a barn or other outbuildings. Autumn is a good time for this kind of work.

Raise Pure Breds.

If a farmer will only try pure bred pigs once he will never want to go back to the mongrels again. The pure breds will take less feed to fatten them and he can sell the choice ones to others at better than stockyard prices and send the culls to the butcher and get the very top market prices for them and generally a premium.

A strong argument in favor of the pure bred animal is their uniformity of color, which counts for a great deal at the stockyards. Recently while at the Union stockyards, at Indianapolis, I met the hog buyer for Kingan's packing house, and he pointed to a pen of hogs that he had just bought and said they were the best in the yards. I asked him why, as there was a big market of hogs that morning, and he said because they were uniform in size and color and pure breds.

There are always buyers ready to buy pure breds at a premium and a great many farmers are falling into line and will soon be raising pure breds. When the average farmer learns how much pleasure as well as profit there is in handling pure breds, there will be many less scrubs throughout the country. The farmer who wants to get the most out of the feed raised on the average farm must have pure breds to eat it as that is the most profitable way to sell your crops.—Farmers' Guide.

Thorough Milking.

Every man knows that the man behind the cow has a lot to do with her yield and her well being—as much so as the man in front. The milker can ruin a cow just as well as the feeder can. It is not only the decreased milk yield that makes the poor milker an expensive piece of furniture, but the leaving of milk in the udder encourages udder troubles, and in time will make the small yield a chronic habit in the cow. But everybody is surprised when it is learned how much more milk can be gotten from a herd when it is milked thoroughly. Even such an experienced dairyman as E. R. Towle of Vermont expresses surprise at the statement of a Georgia dairyman that he found a gain of nine gallons a day from 16 cows at the result of change of milkers. Mr. Towle like the rest of us has noticed that much better results are procured by the owner who personally oversees the work of his milkers—who often is one of them himself. Generally, financial interest in a herd of dairy cows stimulates efforts in a comprehensive way, whether it is in the direction of clean milking or something else; and, generally, absence of financial interest other than wages, inspire a desire to get done. But there are exceptions to both statements. And the owner who is an exception wants an exception to do his work. The subject is as broad as the "social question."—Jersey Bulletin.

Better System of Agriculture.

Agriculture is alert everywhere for better methods. The best farmers of this country have long practiced the rotation system of crops, and in the last few years have come to understand that this rotation should include frequently the growth of leguminous plants, in order to obtain nitrogen and humus, essential in good agriculture. Some of our neighbors over the other side of the ocean seem lately to have come to understand this, and have named it the "Solari" system, which is explained in the following from the "Journal d'Agriculture Pratique:"

"1. To alternate the cultivation of leguminous and other plants in such a manner that the ntirates accumulated in the soil by the former are consumed by the latter. This accumulation of nitrates is the work of bacteria storing the nitrates in the nodules on the roots of leguminous plants. 2. To add to the soil, not only all the mineral elements necessary for their development, but also those required by the cereals that are to follow. 3. To reserve the farmyard manure for the cultivation of the plants that consume the nitrate. 4. The result of this system is to increase the quantity of humus in the soil, in mineral elements and in nitrates. This system renders it necessary that a large proportion of the crops should consist of leguminous plants. What these plants should be must be decided by the farmer, who must take into careful consideration the environment, and select only such crops as will thrive in the locality. Certainly one of the best is lucerne, but, as experience has shown in America, there are some soils which are admirably adapted to the growth of lucerne but are deficient in the bacteria to store the nitrate nodules on the roots. This may be remedied by obtaining a small quantity of earth frof an old lucerne field and sowing it lightly over the new field. For the greater portion of Australia the clovers are not available for this purpose, but there are many other leguminous crops to be chosen from. This system of agriculture is said to have effected very great improvement in the cultivation of the land in Italy, and it has been warmly recommended by the best authorities in France and Spain."—Indiana Farmer.

Blackhead in Turkeys.

For a number of years it has been more or less impossible to raise turkeys in Rhode Island on account of the ravages of what is commonly called the blackhead disease.

While the earlier efforts of the Rhode Island Experiment station, in co-operation with the agricultural department at Washington, discovered the cause of the disease a number of years ago, its method of spreading, as well as how to prevent or cure it, has baffled all attempts at solution.

An animal husbandry department of the experiment station has continued the study of the disease and has been carrying on experiments to learn more about its nature, and through this knowledge to discern some method of combating or avoiding the trouble. The results of last summer's work, while not conclusive in any way, are still very interesting in themselves, and also because they may give some clew as to future methods of study and experiment.

Old methods of raising by letting the poults, or young turkeys, run with the mother turkey have mostly been failures, although new land has been used for the pen. This shows that the disease was present and easily infected the birds. In one yard six out of seven, and in another four out of seven, have died.

Out of turkeys raised by hand for three weeks and then placed in pens, three out of eight have been lost in one pen and five out of 12 in another. The average loss in these and similar experiments has been, up to the present time, about 40 percent.

Much better results have been obtained from poults raised in the house, although some of these also have died when placed in the field at an early age, as noted above. Of those kept in the house until 11 weeks and then placed in the field, there has so far been no loss. This seems to indicate that, contrary to general opinion, poults can be reared in confinement in a house. The experiments also seem to show that the blackhead disease of turkeys is not inherited from the egg nor contracted from that portion of the food fed to them. It seems rather to come from outside contamination in soil or air or in the food which they peck up.

On the whole, the experiments for the summer advanced quite satisfactorily. To have them without some drawbacks that vitiate portions of the results and compel repetition or retard the final results would be more than could be expected. The chief difficulties met with have been lack of funds for building and fences and the fact that the experimental grounds have been reclaimed from swamp lands within two years, and are therefore hardly as dry as could be desired.—Tribune Farmer.

Shifting the Blame.

"Listen," says the author, his face wreathed with smiles of delight. "Here is a letter from a gentleman who says: 'It may interest you to know that I began reading your latest story yesterday evening on the train going home. Before I realized where I was I had been carried 50 miles beyond my destination.'"

The candid friend raises his eyebrows thoughtfully.

"But," he suggests, "possibly it was the motion of the train that put the person to sleep."—Valley Weekly.

JAPAN'S WOMEN IN WAR

THEIR DEEDS LIKE THOSE OF THE NATIONS OF SPARTA.

The Loss of Son or Husband in the Service of the Mikado Accounted an Honor—Once Even the Women Fought—Now They Are Eager to Serve as Nurses.

No nation has a better right to be proud of what its women have done in wartime than Japan. Even the mothers and wives of ancient Sparta have been rivalled in deeds of patriotism and self-sacrifice by the women of Japan.

In the feudal times, which came to an end in Japan only 30 years ago, all gentlewomen were trained in the use of the sword and lance. The women of the samurai class received a regular military education and if the castle of a daimio was besieged, they were capable of assisting in the defence if necessary.

A noted instance of the martial prowess of the Japanese women occurred during the siege of the castle of Wakamatsu in 1869, where the Sho-Gun made his final stand against the forces of the Mikado. Nearly one thousand women and girls belonging to the families of samurai attached to the Sho-Gun fought behind the barricades and on the castle walls. Many of them were killed in battle, while not a few committed suicide rather than undergo the humiliation of defeat.

Yet the Amazonian qualities of the women of old Japan did not detract from their womanliness. They were tender mothers and loving wives. The nursing of the wounded and sick was part of the education of every samurai woman.

With the passing away of the age of chivalry in Japan, upon the downfall of the Shogunate, the Japanese woman was called upon to face new conditions, and how she met these conditions is shown in the history of the Chinese war of 1895.

It is a matter of record that some 10,000 Japanese women volunteered to go to the front as nurses in the field hospitals at the outbreak of the Chinese war, and advices from Japan state that the number of women volunteering to go to the front as nurses today is greater than in 1895. But the women who stay at home are not lacking in patriotic devotion.

There is an anecdote concerning the mother of the heroic Commander Sakamoto, who was killed on the bridge of his ship, the Akagi, at the battle of Yalu, which shows how the spirit of patriotism flames in the hearts of Japanese women.

An official of the navy department called on the family of the naval officer to convey, as delicately as possible, the news of his death. Having communicated his tidings to a member of the family, he was about to depart, when the shoji slid open softly and the aged mother of the dead commander staggered into the room.

She had been an accidental eavesdropper and had heard all. Trembling with emotion she bowed low to the visiting officer and said:

"Tell the Emperor I rejoice that a son of mine has been able to be of some service to him."

Some Japanese women refused to weep over their dead, because it was considered disloyal to the Mikado to weep for those who had had the honor to die fighting for him. When a wife or a mother heard that a husband or a son had been killed in battle, the first expression uttered, was an acknowledgement of the honor conferred upon her by the gods in being bereaved for the cause of the Emperor.

To the western mind such patriotism appears to be fantastic and hard to understand. In the light of Japanese history it does not seem so strange.

The spirit of patriotism in the Japanese women of the present generation is the outgrowth of ages of feudalism. The loyalty and devotion which the women of past generations gave to their feudal family head are in the present generation given to the Mikado.

In time of war the Empress of Japan sets an example for all the women of the country by her activities in behalf of all those who are suffering or in distress. She may be seen frequently visiting the great military hospitals, accompanied by a party of court ladies and noblemen's wives.

Following the example of the Empress, all the great ladies of Tokio society do what they can to relieve the distress and suffering that inevitably follow war. There is no class of women that does not contribute something to this cause; even those butterflies, the geishas, and the unhappy creatures in the Yoshiwaras give their share.

It is not only the women of the samurai class who show passionate patriotism in wartime. All classes of society are represented in the modern Japanese army, and the peasant woman has given proof that she is quite as devoted to the Mikado as the samurai lady.

A story is told of an old peasant woman who sent her only son to fight for the Emperor in the Chinese war. By depriving herself of everything but the barest necessaries of life, and toiling early and late in the fields, she had been able to give her son a superior education, and she had the satisfaction of seeing him fairly started on a business career, which promised to be successful, when the call to arms sounded.

The little peasant mother bade her son give up his business and enter the ranks of the army. The boy did as his mother wished, and his regiment was one of the first to set foot on Chinese soil.

Every morning just before daybreak the little peasant woman rose and, after making a careful toilet, as an orthodox Buddhist she went to a little shrine nearby and prayed to Ojin, the god of war. She did not pray for her son to come home safe and sound, but she prayed that he might prove worthy of the honor of wearing the Mikado's uniform.

One day, when the old woman was returning to her home from the temple, she met a messenger who told her that her son had been killed in the attack on Port Arthur. The mother's eyes grew dim with tears, and she swayed unsteadily for a moment. Then she turned and started to go back to the temple.

"Where are you going?" cried the messenger. "Don't you understand what I say? Your son has been killed."

"Yes, I understand," said the old woman, calmly, "and I am going to thank Ojin for the honor he has conferred upon me."

The Japanese woman who above all others distinguished herself in wartime was the Empress Jingu Kogo, who led a Japanese army in person to Corea, in 203 A. D. and conquered that country. She was equally renowned for her beauty, her piety, her energy and her martial valor.

She assumed the supreme power on the death of her husband, the Mikado Chiunai, in 200 A. D., and immediately demonstrated her military genius by suppressing a formidable rebellion. A few years later she invaded Corea, and quickly subjugated that country.

She dressed in male attire and fought at the head of her soldiers.

After her return from Corea she gave birth to a son, who became the Mikado Ojin and like his mother a great warrior. Jingu Kogo is worshipped as the goddess of war in Japan today, and her son Ojin as the god of war.—New York Sun.

WOOD ALCOHOL.

Is Dangerous as a Drink and in Medicinal Preparations.

Up to within a comparatively recent period cases of poisoning by wood alcohol were among the rarities of medical practice, for so long as the substance was manufactured by the old processes its offensive smell and taste were sufficient to deter even the most hardened drinker from using it to satisfy his craving for alcoholic stimulants. Since the time, however, that "deodorized" wood alcohol has been placed on the market, under various names, the fatalities from its use have gone up by leaps and bounds.

Not only may it be used in place of grain alcohol in the manufacture and adulteration of spirituous liquors, but it is also largely and widely used as a menstruum in many toilet preparations and remedies for internal and external use. The reasons for this practice are two-fold. First, and that which appeals most forcibly to human nature, is the comparative cheapness of wood alcohol, it being untaxed and costing but 50 cents a gallon, while grain alcohol, taxed, costs at retail $2.60 per gallon. The second reason is the ignorance of many manufacturers as to the deadly nature of methyl alcohol. Indeed, even among members of the medical profession views with regard to the poisonous nature of meehyl alcohol are widely divergent, and some who have had no experience in cases of wood alcohol poisoning are openly sceptical concerning its reputed toxic properties. In order, therefore, to decide the question, Dr. Frank Buller of Montreal and Dr. Casey Wood of Chicago undertook in the beginning of 1904 an investigation of the subject, under the auspices of the section on ophthalmology of the American Medical association. The investgiators found that about 175 cases of blindness and about 100 deaths during the past seven or eight years could be directly imputed to wood alcohol in the various forms in which it is manufactured. This estimate is a conservative one and only treats of published instances of death and blindness.

Drs. Buller and Wood consider that the investigations undertaken by them confirm the suspicions entertained by many physicians that the fumes of wood alcohol, under certain favorable conditions, are a dangerous menace to eyesight, and they moreover believe that the consensus of opinion is opposed to the statement of the makers of the various forms of "deodorized" wood alcohol "rubs," in baths, in cosmetics, hair tonics, perfumes, etc., is always devoid of danger to the eyesight.

The practice of substituting wood for grain alcohol in the manufacture of medicinal preparations would appear to be a most insidious and pernicious means of poisoning, and the sale not only of methyl whiskey but also of internal remedies and toilet preparations manufactured or adulterated with wood alcohol should be restricted by law. In fact, there is every reason why the proposition of Drs. Buller and Wood should be adopted that methyl alcohol in any of its forms should be treated as a poison and subject to the laws of the various states restricting and regulating the sale of poisons.—Medical Record.

Young Lawyer's Bull That Paid.

A young lawyer making his first address to a jury created a lot of merriment down in Henry country the other day. "Gentlemen," he said nervously, "it has been clearly shown that this wagon struck and killed the man and ten minutes later he died." There were two Irishmen on the jury and they were so tickled that they assisted in getting a big verdict for the young lawyer.—Kansas City Journal.

Bangle as a Pledge.

A new idea is to substitute an engagement bangle for the conventional ring. These bangles, which sometimes are slight circlets, and sometimes broad gold bands, give the lover the satisfaction of feeling that he has indeed safely fettered his fair fiancee, for once fastened the clasp can only be opened by being forced apart with a chisel, says the Chicago News. On the continent, where it is customary for lovers to exchange rings, engagement bangles are sometimes worn by men, but they are rarely seen on men of English-speaking races.

Streamers of Tulle.

What is hard to believe that the popular draped veil will ever be held entirely in disfavor by the woman who well knows its acknowledged charm, Paris fashion authorities now assert that there the draped veil is superseded by streamers of tulle or ribbon velvet tacked beneath the brim of the high crowned picture hat and tied in a large bow under the chin, says the Kansas City Journal. Such strings undoubtedly have their good points, and are distinctly becoming to long or thin faces. They have a tendency to soften the contour, and make almost any face look younger. On some few hats handsome lace scarfs are also taking the place of the veil. These are not so wide, and are tied around the hat and hang down the back streamers.

Dressing the Baby.

Though common sense is still the leading idea in dressing the baby, yet the baby of today illustrates the fact that his mother is in touch with the newest fashions, says The Woman's Home Companion.

He also makes it clear to all who have the honor of his acquaintance that his mother is a very wonderful person; for does she not do for him what often times she cannot do for herself—dress him comfortably, and at the same time fashionably?

She discards entirely all tight bands and clothing for her growing child, and yet she believes in here and there a frill or two to soften the effect of an otherwise too simple and too severe dress. The result is that baby's clothes have an air of style, as well as of ease and comfort.

Making Home Attractive.

Any accomplishment is worth cultivating that may help to make the home attractive to husband and sons; but the best acquirements for this purpose are no doubt moral rather than intellectual, says an exchange. They are a good temper and a habit of looking of the bright side of things. A cheerful temper, not occasionally, but habitually cheerful, is a quality which no wise man would be willing to dispense with in choosing a wife. A good wife is courteous, sweet, and gentle in all her dealings. She may be a plain woman, but she takes pains to be always fascinating. Her first thought is never to disarrange, even for an instant, that drapery of pleasantness which a woman should always wear. She knows that if it is the duty of a husband to make the money, it is hers to make life ornamental and charming for him. Her perpetual aim is to give pleasure, to be agreeable and to be amiable, and she succeeds in making "a happy fireside clime," which "is the true pathos and sublimity of human life."

Taking an Air Bath.

It must be remembered that we rarely, if ever, give our skin the opportunity to breath properly, says the New York Mail. Our prevented condition in regard to heavy, unventilated and often restricted clothing has given us a skin that is constantly moist, clammy and cold to the touch. Or else it is dry and dead and can be rubbed off by the hand with little effort. Restricting clothing not only damages the lungs and internal organs of the body, but causes the circulation to the skin to become stagnant and poor. A great many ills that we do not understand are caused by the unhygeinic practice of smothering the skin.

Give your body an air bath! Reanimate your skin! Exposures and draughts against the body are a superstition more or less. The writer has often taken an air bath in winter, and the practice has yielded a day's tonic to the body that cannot be explained, but must be tried upon one's own person to be understood and appreciated.

Open your window wide and exercise until the pores have become awakened. Then let the cool, fresh morning air play upon your body, lying down if you desire. It will be a treat that you will never want to miss again. It acts as a delightful tonic to the nerves. There is no better medicine for weak, nervous people than the air-bath. The very blood tingles with the unaccustomed freedom of the body and its contact with the energizing air.

Novelists and Color in Dress.

When a few months ago I read a graceful tale, the moral of which turned upon whether a blue ribbon or a white ribbon best became an ochre-yellow cat with turquoise eyes, it seemed to me an omen of promise, a pale forecast of greater attention on the part of novelists and storytellers to the question of color in dress. The modern heroine of fiction suffers from a limitation of wardrobe hardly less extreme than her sister of Thackeray's day and Trollope's, when a simple white muslin, with now and then a touch of heavenly blue to emphasize its symbolism, did service upon all sentimental occasions. Who can forget the satiric vision of Rebecca appearing for the first time in the Sedley dining room in a pure white gown. With this and her white shoulders, Thackeray sadly comments, she was "the picture of youth, unprotected innocence, and humble virgin simplicity." And it was in white muslin that Amelia won the unsophisticated heart of Dobbin, and even the tall and slender figure enshrining Ethel Newcome's sapient individuality is constantly enveloped in clouds of filmy white azure ribbons floating over them.

Henry James, among Thackeray's worthy successors, has followed somewhat slavishly in Thackeray's steps through this one corner of his extended field of observation, and his lack of originality is the more marked that in rooms and gardens and environments determined by the taste of man his color schemes are the most distinguished to be found in modern literature. His effects have the delicately tinted, dim, and tremulous tone of Corot's pictures, save in his less vital works, where they deaden into the flat blues and pinks and creamy whites of the old pastellists. But his first favorite in color for woman's dress is that of the conventional masculine author. He riots in the debutante's snowy draperies, and he signalizes the return to the world of his beautiful Madame de Cintre by clothing her in white with a blue cloak hanging to her feet, in silver clasp combining with its hue to suggest vaguely and entrancingly the heavens adorned by the crescent moon. He has, however, his moments of illumination.—From "The Point of View," in Scribner's.

Fashion Hints.

The latest novelty is a hand-painted belt.

The woman can have too many stocks.

The front panel is quite the newest thing in skirts.

Egyptian buckles and lares are extremely popular.

Japanese silk kimonas are fascinating and expensive.

Ostrich plumes in all colors are seen on hats this season.

The "auto" hat is the greatest triumph of the milliner.

It's a shame to cover some of the beautiful silk petticoats.

The pointed, boat-shaped toques are seen again in the millinery parlors.

Some women would like to know what the fashionable color really is.

Odd stocks are for odd waists, although not necessarily for odd women.

For your seasonable coat choose a glossy, lustrous cloth with the sheen of satin.

Isn't it funny to see mild women in the cloths of that bloody period, the Directoire?

If you have revers, a waistcoat and deep, upturned cuffs, the rest will not matter much.

Evening slippers are made to order from the same material as the gown is made of.

The Directoire is the most striking model in headgear and the best suited to the modish gown.

Generally speaking, bodices are made round for daytime wear and pointed for evening dresses.

The smartest model of a tailored coat is a tight-fitting affair, 36 to 50 inches long, perfect in adjustment and finish.

One can get neck and hair ornaments to match in shell or amber, though just why they should match is not clear.

This is a day of revivals, and the stomacher, as the very long, deep boned bodice point is called, is much in evidence.

Why will stout women insist on wearing high heeled shoes? Recently such a woman fell on the street and seriously injured herself.

One can hardly believe that a paradise plume of red and yellow could be worn on a hat. Such feather was seen on a headgear recently.

A hat seen recently, which attracted much attention, was a green felt, bordered with pink roses, blue ribbon and great bunches of black elderberries.

a Pledge.

o substitute an enor the conventional e, which sometimes
, and sometimes give the lover the ng that he has ind his fair fiancee,
the clasp can only forced apart with
'hicago News. On re it is customary ge rings, engageome-times worn by arely seen on men races.

of Tulle.

believe that the will ever be held by the woman who nowledged charm,
ities now assert ed veil is super of tulle or ribbon
th the brim of the e hat and tied in the chin, says the
Such strings un
r good points, and ming to long or ave a tendency to and make almost
er. On some few scarfs are also the veil. These l are tied around down the back

he Baby.

ense is still the sing the baby, yet
lustrates the fact in touch with the ys 'The Woman's clear to all who his acquaintance

a very wondering not do for him cannot do for comfortably, and ionably?
ly all right hands
growing child,
in here and there on the effect of
ple and too sev
. But baby's style, as well
rt.

Attractive.

t is worth coin
p to make the bland and sens-ments for this s moral rather s an exchange per and a habit
n side of things,
and emotionally,
ful, is a quality
would be willing heering a wife
ous, sweet, and gs. She may be she takes pains ting. Her first discourage, even rajority of plans
n should always f it is the duty
the money, it is damental and r-perpetual aim to be agreeable nd she succeeds
fireside clime," nathies and sub

r Bath.

erted that we
ur skin the op perly, says the prevented conavy, unventilat
nothing has giv
onstantly moist,
he touch. Or ad and can be l with little ef-ring, not only nd internal or-causes the ciro become stag-many ills that are caused by of smothering air bath! Re-Exposures and

ody are a sup-
The writer has in winter, and d a day's tonic
t be explained.
one's own per-
nd appreciated.
wide and exer-
become awak
ol, fresh morn-ir body, lying will be a treat want to miss delightful tonic
no better
vous people very blood ustomed free-contact with

Novelists and Color in Dress.

When a few months ago I read a graceful tale, the moral of which turned upon whether a blue ribbon or a white ribbon best became an ochre-yellow cat with turquoise eyes, it seemed to me an omen of promise, a pale forecast of greater attention on the part of novelists and storytellers to the question of color in dress. The modern heroine of fiction suffers from a limitation of wardrobe hardly less extreme than her sister of Thackeray's day and Trollope's, when a simple white muslin, with now and then a touch of heavenly blue to emphasize its symbolism, did service upon all sentimental occasions. Who can forget the satiric vision of Rebecca appearing for the first time in the Sedley dining room in a pure white gown. With this and her white shoulders, Thackeray sadly comments, she was "the picture of youth, unprotected innocence, and humble virgin simplicity." And it was in white muslin that Amelia won the unsophisticated heart of Dobbin, and even the tall and slender figure enshrining Ethel Newcome's sapient individuality is constantly enveloped in clouds of filmy white azure ribbons floating over them.

Henry James, among Thackeray's worthy successors, has followed somewhat slavishly in Thackeray's steps through this one corner of his extended field of observation, and his lack of originality is the more marked that in rooms and gardens and environments determined by the taste of man his color schemes are the most distinguished to be found in modern literature. His effects have the delicately tinted, dim, and tremulous tone of Corot's pictures, save in his less vital works, where they deaden into the flat blues and pinks and creamy whites of the old pastellists. But his first favorite in color for woman's dress is that of the conventional masculine author. He riots in the archdeacon's snowy draperies, and he symbolizes the return to the world of his beautiful Madame de Cintre by clothing her in white with a blue cloak hanging to her feet, in silver clasp combining with its hue to suggest vaguely and extraneously the heavens adorned by the crescent moon. He has, however, his moments of illumination.—From "The Point of View," in Scribner's.

Fashion Hints.

The latest novelty is a hand-painted belt.

The woman who loves too many stocks.

The front panel is quite the newest thing in skirts.

Egyptian effects and lures are extremely popular.

Japanese silk kimonas are fascinating and expensive.

Ostrich plumes in all colors are seen on hats this season.

The "auto" hat is the greatest triumph of the milliner.

It is a shame to cover some of the beautiful silk petticoats.

The pointed dome-shaped toques are seen again in the millinery parlors.

Some women would like to know what the fashionable color really is.

Odd stockings are for odd waists, although not necessarily for odd women.

For your reasonable coat choose a glossy, lustrous cloth with the sheen of satin.

Isn't it funny to see mild women in the cloths of the bloody period, the Directoire?

If you have revers, a waistcoat and deep, upturned cuffs the rest will not matter much.

Evening slippers are made to order from the same material as the gown is made of.

The Directoire is the most striking model in headgear and the best suited to the modish gown.

Generally speaking, bodices are made round for daytime wear and pointed for evening dresses.

The smartest model of a tailored coat is a tight-fitting affair, 36 to 38 inches long, perfect in adjustment and finish.

One can get neck and hair ornaments to match in shell or amber though just why they should match is not clear.

This is a day of revivals, and the stomacher, as the very long, decorated bodice point is called, is much in evidence.

Why will stout women insist on wearing high heeled shoes? Recently such a woman fell on the street and seriously injured herself.

One can hardly believe that a paradise plume of red and yellow could be worn on a hat. Such feather was seen on a headdress recently.

A hat seen recently, which attracted much attention, was a green felt, bordered with pink roses, blue ribbon and great bunches of black elderberries.

Desert Sunset.

Over the dark and desert plain,
Where fierce things roam in hunger pain,
Beneath the lamplike evening star,
Behind the pointed peaks, afar;

I see the desert day expire,
In one long bath of rosy fire.

A mist of flame, so still and sweet
It holds the eye and fixes feet;

And one looks long, as if aware
A god may rise and beckon there;

It is so holy, hushed and calm,
And soothes with such a restful balm,

And seems so waiting for that Thing
Of which the stars forever sing.

—J. William Lloyd.

The MARCH into DEATH

By F. V. Plaksin

The czar's army was advancing. The burning sun made the dust-laden air feel like fire. The grass on the ground was trampled down by thousands of feet and the only protection and cover were the cornfields, whose tall withered stalks concealed friend and enemy alike.

A company of Russian infantry came rushing back and threw themselves down among the cornstalks, which trembled in the air for a few seconds, then all was quiet.

In disorder, without leaders, they had fled like a herd of scared sheep, inspired only by the instinct of self-preservation, and desire to live. And now they were lying there in groups, silent and downcast, hardly able to breathe, listening and trembling at every sound, insane from fright, panic stricken. From the direction from which they had come, and, as it seemed, directly from the yellowish green wall of cornstalks which stood between them and the enemy, came the sound of rifle shots, with a noise as of peas thrown by the handful on a drum. Sometimes stronger, sometimes weaker, sometimes in volleys came the sound, accompanied on and off by the roar of the field artillery.

Hardly had they thrown themselves down when the bullets began to strike the ground all around them, but they remained motionless, every man clutching his rifle in his hands, careful not to look at his neighbor, every man ashamed of his own cowardice. Thus passed a whole minute—an eternity of death and destruction it seemed.

A man in the uniform of a captain came running toward the cornfield which had swallowed up the company. He had lost his sword and his uniform was torn and dusty. He was furious, his face distorted with rage. He had been in command of these people, lived with them, loved them as children. He knew every one of them by name, his character, he had led them into death, the death which threatened them from behind those hastily constructed trenches which were visible in the horizon, and they had betrayed his faith in them and fled. How he hated them in this moment!

He rushed into the cornfield breathless, unable to raise his voice to call them back, broken down with despair.

They were all there—he knew it, he felt it, only a few steps from him, stricken with fear of death, and he did not have the strength to call them back to inspire them with new courage.

The old, scarred veteran officer, stern and grim though he looked, suddenly began to sob, and sank exhausted to the ground, never once thinking of the bullets which struck everywhere around him, almost wishing that one of them would kill him.

The cornstalks parted slowly, and among them appeared the grimy face of the old sergeant.

Quick as lightning the captain jumped to his feet.

"Thou also—thou, also, Stephen Antanovitch!" he shouted and rushed toward the old sergeant, who stood there pale and trembling, afraid to meet the eye of his superior officer.

"Oh, captain, captain," he groaned, "I do not understand how it happened."

"Thou dost not know?"

The sergeant stood at attention, his hand raised in respectful salute.

The fist of the officer struck the pale face of the old sergeant, but he never stirred, though tears ran down his cheeks. He was broken-hearted at the thought of his disgrace.

Bullets whizzed through the air all around them; it was like a hailstorm, but they stood there, heedless of the danger of the death which filled the atmosphere.

"We might call the roll, captain."

"Call the roll of cowards—contemptible scoundrels! What good would that do?"

"Call them by name, captain. They will respond."

It was an idea after all.

And with a voice as if he had been standing on the parade ground the captain began calling the names of his men.

"Dead! Wounded! Missing!" replied the sergeant.

But one at a time the men came forward and took their accustomed places in the ranks, saluting their captain with downcast eyes, crushed by the feeling of their shame.

Time and again a peculiar sound was heard and a man fell to the ground dead or wounded, groaning with pain, but no one noticed or cared. The ranks closed, the holes filled.

And he stood before them as if he never noticed the wounded, stern and forbidding. He was no longer their beloved captain, but a merciless judge.

"What have you done?"

The pale faces turned still paler, but no answer came, the groaning of the wounded was the only sound which broke the awful silence.

Silently they marched on.

"What have you done? You have forgotten your oath, disgraced your uniform. You cowards, you miserable contemptible cowards!"

Shots sang and whistled around them, but this handful of men stood there motionless, at attention.

"We have forgotten the czar, forgotten our oath!"—it came with a moan from the ranks. "We are guilty; thou must pronounce our sentence, captain!"

The captain heard it and his heart filled with joy. He did not notice the "thou." His eyes shone, his chest labored heavily. "Children," he said, "also am I guilty that I let this happen. Let us march into death!"

He put on his old dusty cap, pierced by bullets, made the sign of the cross and said:

"Forgive your old captain, brethren!"

"Forgive us, captain!"

"The Little Father forgive us all!"

"Forward, march!" came the command. The Russian column had been beaten and were in full retreat before the enemy, who came rushing on.

Then out of the cornfield came a handful of soldiers. Silently they marched on in close formation, keeping perfect time as if on parade, though their faces were stern and set. An old captain in a uniform torn with bullets, marched in front, and not a man fell back, even the wounded rising again when they had fallen. The trumpets sounded the retreat, but the company did not hear. They had sentenced themselves to death and they kept on advancing.

When they came near the Japanese lines they charged bayonets and cheered, a weak cheer, it is true, which was soon drowned by the "Banzai" of the enemy. But a mighty response came, the Russian reserves came to the aid of their heroic comrades, who were being mowed down by the enemy—a hundred to one.

Toward evening, when the sun went down behind the Yental mines and the blood-bespattered fields, the Japanese had been driven back and Kuroki's flanking movement had failed.

And in the morning, when the order of the day was read, a company was mentioned which had marched alone against the attacking enemy, and though it had been almost wiped out had made it possible to take those little furrows which in military language are called trenches and breastworks and had changed the whole outcome of the battle.—Chicago American.

The grimy face of the old sergeant.

WOES OF POLITICAL LEADER.

To Be Successful He Must Be All Things to All Men.

"To become a political 'leader' and to retain the post successfully requires eternal vigilance," said a well known politician. "In the thickly settled sections of Philadelphia the leader becomes a sort of unofficial mayor, guardian and father of his constituents. He can never ignore a request; to do so is to offend not only the individual who makes it, but all his relatives.

"One woman asked the leader recently to take her baby into his family while the mother went out of the city for a week's visit. Again, he was called up at 2 o'clock in the morning by two men who had a dispute and wanted him to arbitrate. He was expected to see that the poor had coal; to bail out those who were arrested; to secure work for those out of employment; to have police fines remitted, and to attend marriages, picnics and funerals.

"One family of voters renounced him permanently because he did not call when the 7-year-old son Thomas broke a leg.

"'But I didn't know he had broken his leg,' the leader protested.

"'Sure, and you should have known it,' was the reply.

"'But I didn't even know you had a son Thomas.'

"'That settles it,' exclaimed the father, who, taking up his hat to leave, remarked: 'Charlie Donnelly would have known it. Niver a meal have you ate in me house.'"

WOMEN WON'T MARRY MUTES.

Fact for Which Seeker After Knowledge Wants Explanation.

Men gifted with the power of speech look with much more favor on the idea of marrying deaf-mutes than do women," said the man who always goes about with his eyes open. "I have known several men whose wives were mute as the proverbial oyster who lived in perfect happiness in the inevitable silence, but I have never yet seen a woman who was content to tie herself to a man who had been denied the blessed privilege of making things hum.

"His affliction seems to debar her of the divine right to 'sass' back, and the deprivation is too much for her. Of course there are, according to statistics, many of the latter class of one-sided unions, but they are by no means as common as marriages between a speaking man and a mute woman, else we would run across them more frequently.

"I have asked a number of people interested in the education of deaf-mutes for their opinion as to the cause of this dissimilarity of taste in the sexes, but the replies received were mostly facetious and unsatisfactory. Having been unable to form any conclusive deductions, I am still seeking information as to the causes of a condition which is so very obvious, and I hope somebody will be able to set me right."—Exchange.

"Golden Rule" Jones's Plans.

The fact that Mrs. Helen Beach Jones, wife of the late Golden Rule Mayor of Toledo, will go on with the plans inaugurated by him for the welfare of his work people is one, it appears, that is received with considerable interest by residents of all classes in Toledo. She is the second wife of the Mayor, having joined forces with him at the outset of his public career about twelve years ago. Mrs. Jones, it is said by those who know her best, brought to the union sterling qualities of heart and mind, a dignified and winsome personality, and a broad culture. She has been a close participant and active assistant in all the late Socialist's enterprises, supplying the element of conservative thought and ripe judgment. Her intimate knowledge of his real purpose and aims will be applied, it is said, in the continuance of the operations which he had begun for the social uplift of the people and in the management of the industry which he was gradually putting upon a complete co-operative basis.—Boston Transcript.

Heavenly Treasure.

What I spent I had;
What I kept I lost;
What I gave I have!

—Old Epitaph.

Every coin of earthly treasure
We have lavished upon the earth,
For our simple worldly pleasure,
May be reckoned something worth;
For the spending was not losing
Though the purchase were but small;
It has perished with the using;
We have had it—that is all!

All the gold we leave behind us
When we turn to dust again,
Though our avarice may blind us,
We have gathered quite in vain;
Since we neither can direct it,
By the winds of fortune tossed,
Nor in other worlds expect it,
What we hoarded we have lost!

But each merciful oblation,
Deed of pity wisely sown—
What we give in self-negation,
We may safely call our own;
For the treasure freely given
Is the treasure that we hoard,
Since the angels keep, in heaven,
What is lent until the Lord!

—J. G. Saxe.

AS HE UNDERSTOOD IT.

Salesman Had Broad Definition of the Word "Voluntary."

"Some men don't always understand what another means by the language he uses," said William F. King of the Merchants' association the other day, in talking of the difficulties that salesmen sometimes have to contend with. "Now there is one of our salesmen whom I overheard the other day boasting that a Western buyer, who is celebrated wherever salesmen congregate as a hard man to do business with, had come into the store voluntarily and bought a large bill of goods. As soon as the other man had gone I asked our man if he really meant that the buyer had come in voluntarily.

"'Sure he did,' was the reply I got.

"'How do you account for it?' I asked.

"'Oh, well,' said the salesman, 'it's simple enough. The day he arrived in town I sent him a special delivery letter at his hotel, and followed it up in the afternoon with a call at which I showed him a couple of samples. The next day I met him as he was going to lunch, and blew him off to the best meal he ever ate. That night I took him to the theater, and the next morning met him at his hotel before breakfast. Of course I never let a chance slip to talk up our goods, and this morning he just walked into the store and bought the biggest bill we ever got out of him.'

"Well," said Mr. King, "that was what the man called coming in voluntarily, and he meant it. Of course he didn't have to hit him over the head with a club and drag him in. Every man is entitled to his own definitions."—New York Times.

CAT'S GREAT WALKING FEAT.

It Tramped Eighty-Five Miles to Regain Its Home.

What is probably another record has been created, this time by a cat, which has walked from London to Overslade, near Rugby, a distance of eighty-five miles, says the London Mail.

"Jummy," as the "tramp" is called, belongs to Mrs. Mark Robinson of 9 Belsize grove, Hempstead, and is just an ordinary medium-sized black cat. Although 7 years old, "Jummy" had never before displayed any marked nomadic tendency, its previous ramblings having always been confined to the neighborhood of its home.

About the beginning of June Mr. Robinson brought the cat to Hampstead from Overslade, and it was at once apparent that "Jummy," like the Rev. Mr. Spalding, didn't like London. The climax came when some furniture was moved into the house. This was too much, and "Jummy" took his departure.

Nothing more was heard of it until about a fortnight ago, when news came from Overslade that "Jummy" had returned, its coat a trifle rough, its limbs a trifle thinner, but "Jummy" nevertheless.

As the cat was brought to London in a closed basket its achievement in walking back is really remarkable.

"Jummy" has a rival in the walking craze for a cat belonging to a friend of Mr. Robinson walked from Rugby to Leamington and was seen wandering about the empty house there which its owner had left. It has since returned to Rugby, having taken three months for the double journey.

WILL COME BACK FOR CUP.

French Rider Determined to Win Automobile Trophy.

Albert Clement, the French rider, who participated in the Vanderbilt automobile cup race, has sailed for Paris. A few days after his arrival there he will enter upon three years of military duty. While in the French army he will act as special automobile driver to the general in chief, driving him on all military inspections, army maneuvers, etc. During these three years he is in the army young Clement will be allowed to indulge in automobile racing to his heart's content. He will be allowed time to prepare his machine for any race he may enter—in short, his army service will in no way interfere with his racing. He has definitely announced that he will come over and drive in next year's Vanderbilt cup race, and in his broken English added: "Next time I get it."

The Garden.

Under the gloom of the shivering pines,
That whisper when it blows,
Behind the creeper-covered wall,
Is a garden that always grows.

In summer and in springtime,
And when the winter snows
Bend the dark branches to the ground,
The garden always grows.

The hand of man has made it,
The white stones stand in rows;
The tears of the world have watered it,
And the garden always grows.

There are many gardens like it,
Their number no man knows,
Each day, till the world is ended,
This garden always grows.

—Lorimer Stoddard.

Preference for Bullfighting.

The Boston Record notes that once in a while one of the Sunday exhorters on the common startles the crowd with his hits. A well-known old spellbinder was comparing the vices and amusements of various countries and the relation between the two. In particular he described bullfighting in Spain and pugilism in this country. "And I don't know but what bullfighting is the better," he roared. "God Almighty made the bulls for beef. But when you kill a pugilist, what use is he to anybody?"

Real Thing.

Little Willie—Say, pa, what is an instrument of torture?

Pa—The piano in the flat upstairs, my son.

Farmer Had to Sprint

Herman Ditweiler performed a heroic act recently at the imminent risk of his life. He was coming to town with a heavy load of rock when he overtook a little girl carrying a basket of eggs to market, and invited her to ride the rest of the way with him.

When he reached the top of the long, steep hill leading down into town, he locked one of the wagon wheels in order to make the descent safely, but had only gone a very few feet when one of the horses stepped on a rolling stone and was taken suddenly very lame.

He got off the load, unhitched the team and requested another farmer who was just behind him to put in his team and take the load down the hill. The other farmer was about to comply and Mr. Dwitweiler had lifted up the tongue of the wagon to prepare for hitching in the other team, when the lock chain suddenly broke and the loaded wagon started down the hill, with the little girl still riding in the seat.

Ditweiler braced back on the tongue, but was unable to stop the wagon, which, gathering headway every moment, was soon flying down the steep hill like a runaway engine.

Ditweiler knew that if he dropped the tongue the wagon would be tipped over in a second and the little girl probably killed, so he held on with a death grip, kept the wagon in the road and ran as a man never ran before.

The heavy wagon, with its ton and a half of rock for a load, crashed and roared behind him, and, gathering speed with every second, flew like an express train down the incline, bounding over the inequalities of the road and fiercely striking fire from the stones.

Ditweiler ran till his legs fairly fluttered beneath him. A man who was crossing the street with a wheelbarrow gave one frightened glance at the coming avalanche, dropped his barrow and ran. Ditweiler jumped the obstruction, which was crushed to pieces beneath the wheels of the wagon.

The hill is 800 feet long, and, after the bottom was reached, the wagon ran 500 feet further before its speed was slackened and Ditweiler, by digging the tongue into the earth, could bring it to a stop.

The plucky farmer was gasping for breath and dripping with perspiration when his trial was over, but the little girl was laughing gleefully at the "splendid ride" she had enjoyed.

Not a single egg was broken.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Real Wealth of Nations

It is estimated, says the Army and Navy Journal, that Japan has put forth 25 per cent of her strength thus far in the contest with Russia, while the drain on the resources of Russia is less than 2 per cent. This is only a single factor, however, in the complex problem of military success, which does not always respond to the conclusions of the multiplication table. The politico-economists and the pseudo-philanthropists may manipulate the figures as they please, the fact cannot be made to accord with their theory that war is necessarily exhausting to national strength. Precisely the contrary was shown in the case of our great war. Material resources may assume new forms of distribution in time of war, but this is not necessarily waste. It is the industries created by industry which are the foundation of the business of a community through which its individual members procure their means of living. If all those who have the power of purchasing should cease for a single year to buy to make good their wastage, universal poverty and distress would follow. As a matter of fact, the assets of the American continent are less than they were when Columbus discovered it. Millions mineral wealth that were then sto away in the bowels of the earth there no longer; our soil has partially exhausted of its fertile erties, and our hills and valleys been largely denuded of their for Yet 75,000,000 people exist in com, ative comfort where a few hundr thousand Indians gained a precari living before. The industries of w draw upon the surplus energies of people, and, by stimulating them larger effort, increase their power production. What would be the ef fect upon the fortunes of the indus trial classes of the European states if their armies were suddenly disbanded and the millions now employed by the state were to come into competition with the laboring classes? It is the industries created by the artificial wants of a complex civilization that produce what we call wealth, and not the simplicity of living which the philosophers of the Poor Richard type are always extolling and never practicing.

How She Managed Hubby

"Tom Gray is a very clever man," remarked one of his friends. "He has managed to effect by diplomacy what most of us have tried and generally failed to bring about by self-assertion, i. e., a satisfactory freedom of marital action while remaining on perfectly affectionate terms with his wife.

"The first year of his marriage he and his Maud were a typical pair of turtle doves, and were never happy out of each other's sight. Then the man, as is generally the case, without loving his dear Maud any the less, began to be interested in outside things. She noticed this change, and, womanlike, resented it. They had one row after the other. Then Tom considered the situation and developed Machiavellic talents. He did not relax his devotion to his Maud. On the contrary he became more and more of an ardent lover. He gave her no peace. He would come up for afternoon tea when she would be in the midst of a delightful gossip with her especial intimates and sit and look at her fatuously, so that her friends would one by one make an excuse for a short stay.

"He was so affectionate that it became rather tiresome and one day Maud requested quite sharply that he 'wouldn't paw so much.' In the way of companionship it is undeniable that each sex prefers its own, and Maud began to long for the comfortable chat about subjects dear to her soul with other women, but Tom gave her no chance. Finally she talked to him seriously about the duties they both owed to society. Tom took it in very good part. He recognized the necessity of sometimes speaking to other women and of "keeping up his men friends and he promised to take an interest in other people.

"I should call them now a model couple. They are fond of each other, but they are also fond of their friends. She attends her dinners and bridge parties and he goes unrestrictedly to his club, and the amusing part of it all is that Maud thinks it is her clever management that has brought this eminently satisfactory state of affairs about."—New York Tribune.

Honesty of the Sexes

The increasing tendency toward the employment of women in positions of trust by financial institutions is thus explained by the president of one of the largest banks in the country: "The feeling is gaining ground that women are now rendering satisfactory service as cashiers and tellers, handling large sums daily without loss or error.

"One of the most conspicuous traits in the feminine nature is fidelity to trust. Speculation, the chief pitfall of defaulting employes, does not attract women as it does men. Cards and drink also drag down many a male employe, and these, again, are more particularly masculine vices. Some of the largest banks in New York are employing women in positions of heavy responsibility. Banking is an occupation in which men no longer have a monopoly."

As to the question whether women are by nature more honest than men, certain masculine critics aver that women have gained that reputation only because they are subject to fewer temptations to steal than are men. But is this the case? What occupation offers a more severe test of honesty than domestic service. It is impossible for a mistress to lock up her belongings from her servants, and opportunities for pilfering are numerous. Yet stealing is comparatively rare.

The majority of business men are convinced of woman's fidelity in responsible positions and her ability to discharge important duties. Never were there such opportunities for capable energetic women as at present await them in the business world.—Housekeeper.

New Style of Locomotive

An oil-burning engine with the cab on the front end has been in operation on the Pacific coast for some time, and locomotives of this construction have also been in use for several years on Italian railways. According to the Engineering News the Southern railway (of Italy) has recently added to its equipment some four-cylinder compounds of this type. They are of the ten-wheel class, with the cab in front of the firebox and the cylinders at the rear end. The coal is carried in bunkers at the side of the firebox (four tons capacity), and the tender has a cylindrical tank.

The firebox is of the Belpaire type and extends over the frames. The cylinders are all in a row behind the smokebox (at the trailing end of the frames) and all of them drive the middle driving axle. The arrangement of the cylinders and valves is peculiar. The two high-pressure cylinders are on one side and the steam distributor is controlled by a single piston valve and Walschaert valve gear. The two low-pressure cylinders are on the opposite side and are also served by a single piston valve and valve gear. The engine has six driving wheels. In front of the cab is a small platform with side steps.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and
Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and
Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and
Weekly Montgomery Advertiser. $1.25

The UNION and
Weekly Atlanta Constitution. $1.50

The UNION and
Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and
Saturday News $1.25

Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it. tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

POLL TAX.

Now, every one of our people be sure to call on the tax collector and pay their back poll taxes, pay up and get into shape so that you can vote on stock law or school tax when they come up, as they surely will the coming year. In paying your poll tax it is only taking it out of one pocket and putting it into the other. The money stays right in your own community and goes to the school. tf

A MODEST HINT.

There is a little matter that some of our subscribers have seemingly forgotten. To us it is an important matter; it is necessary in our business. We are very modest and don't wish to speak about it.—Ex.

We hope the gentle hint conveyed in the above clipping will move some of our subscribers. We have sent bills to some, and trust we won't have to send a collector.

CLANTON ELECTION.

This city has got to elect its municipal officers the second Monday in January. Don't wait till the last horn blows to pick out the men for the offices. The town sure needs the best men it has, and should have them.

The theory is advanced that the Huntsville hen that laid an egg on which were initials and a date may have swallowed a fountain pen, says the Birmingham News.

According to the latest dictum of the London fashionables, men's coats must be creased, declares the Cleveland Plain-Dealer. If this sort of thing keeps on even the most circumspect citizen will scarcely be blamed for envying the freedom from sartorial restrictions that made Eden so much more of a paradise.

Some old stories become new by change of venue, time or person. A writer in the New York Press attributes "O. K." to John Jacob Astor, who, the writer says, made it the abbreviation of his method of spelling "Orl Korrect." As the archives of the United States Government contain Revolutionary papers, indorsed "O. K." by Major General Israel Putnam, in his reports to his military superiors, we may believe that the Press writer has been trying an old shirt on a new man.

British Steamer Nigretia Seized by Japanese.

Tokio.—The Japanese protected cruiser Tsushima seized the British steamer Nigretia, bound for Vladivostok, off Ulean, Korea. An examination of the Nigretia's cargo shows she had a large quantity of contraband of war on board. She was sent to Sasebo for trial before the prize court. It is reported that the Nigretia had on board officers and men of Russian torpedo boat destroyers which had escaped from internment at Shanghai and were attempting to regain the Russian lines.

The Negretia belongs to Allan & Company, of Leith, Scotland.

Oklahoma Buffalo Ranch.

Some three or four years ago Pawnee Bill bought up all the loose buffalo obtainable, and declared that he would raise buffalo meat for the market. The buffalo ranch has been a success, as there is now a large bunch of as fine young buffalo as was ever seen, being corn fed, and they will be slaughtered and shipped East for the holiday trade.

An experiment of crossing the buffalo with Galloway cattle will be made, which should bring an animal far surpassing the genuine buffalo, as the Galloway animal is of itself very handsome, with a long, silky coat and a kindly disposition, which should temper the fiery disposition of the genuine buffalo as well as improve the color of the robe. The average price per pound of buffalo meat is about $1.25—the loin and short ribs bringing $1.50 per pound—while the plate and stew bring $1. The robe brings $75; the heads, when mounted, readily bring $75 to $150 each, according to size and quality. Both the heads and robes are very handsome when taken at this season of the year, as they then have their heavy winter coat.

Oklahoma in years past was the paradise of the buffalo. Here is where the heaviest growths of buffalo grass are found, which to the buffalo is equal to the richest timothy to our domestic animals. Pawnee Bill's ranch lies in the heart of this excellent range, and he has proved beyond a doubt that the buffalo can be raised for slaughter at a profit.

$1,500 REWARD.

A reward of $1,500 is offered by Andrew W. Burgin, sheriff of Jefferson county, for the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who shot Deputy Sheriff R. S. Dorough Saturday night last, near Blossburg, in the western part of the county. As was stated, Dorough was riding a mule between Blossburg and Pinckney City, an adjoining mining camp, when some one fired on him from ambush, using squirrel shot. Dorough was painfully though not fatally injured. The deputy shot ten times in the direction from whence the attack on him came, but without effect.

It is believed that the reward offered will have some effect in discovering a clue to the guilty parties. Deputy Sheriff Dorough states that he could not tell, on account of the darkness, whether his assailants were white or colored men.

Good Thing for Gen. Miles.

Washington.—Secretary Taft has written Governor-elect Douglas, of Massachusetts, that, by permission of the president, he will detail Gen. Nelson A. Miles to be adjutant general of the Massachusetts state militia. Under this detail Gen. Miles will be the highest salaried soldier in the country. His pay now as a retired officer is $8,250 a year. When he assumes his new duties his compensation from the government will be 11,000, the full pay of an active lieutenant general, and allowances, which include $100 a month for house rent, four horses, forage and fuel, amounting in all to about $2,000. Besides all this, which is equivalent to Gen. Chaffee's salary, Gen. Miles will get $3,600 from the state of Massachusetts.

Big Pipe Order from Montgomery.

Bessemer, Ala.—The United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company has secured the contract to furnish to the city of Montgomery forty-two miles of water pipe of various sizes, running from two inches up to the average water pipe. The contract will necessitate the manufacture of 20,000 pices of pipe twelve feet long, the aggregate number of tons making one of the largest and best orders received by the plant here in a long time. The plant, on account of its many orders for spring delivery, will give but one day for Christmas, that of the day after Christmas, the whole force returning to work next Tuesday morning.

Tokio.—The British steamer King Arthur was captured while attempting to leave Port Arthur yesterday by the Japanese guardship Asagiri. It is understood the King Arthur took supplies to Port Arthur. She had on board Russian naval officers, who were attempting to join the Russian second quadron. The King Arthur was taken to Sasebo for trial.

Vessel Driven Ashore Near Mouth of the Spey and Ten Men Perish.

Glasgow.—A small steamer was driven ashore in a gale near the mouth of the Spey.

The whole crew, numbering ten, were drowned.

British Collier Searched.

A British collier, supposed to have on board coal for the Baltic fleet, was brought to Perim by a British cruiser, but was released after inquiry.

A FARMER'S PLAN

For Reducing Present Crop to Ten Million Bales.

Marion Junction, Ala., Dec. 15, '04.
Editor The Advertiser:

I have a plan for reducing the present year's cotton crop to ten million bales without cost to the farmer or cotton holder one cent. Nor do I propose to burn the surplus, and you can see from the following example that it is a feasible plan, and if it meets your approval I solicit our aid, and in helping me in this matter you will be worth your weight in diamonds to the cotton farmers of the south.

I have on hand and unsold 240 bales of cotton worth at present prices $8,409. I propose to entail or make over to N. Walker & Co., of Selma, Ala., forty bales of this cotton by a "gilt-edge" deed, to be sold for my account not earlier than September 15, 1905. This ratio of all cotton now on hand would practically make this crop ten million bales, and we would have on hand two million bales to start on next year's crop. This would enable us to curtail our next year's cotton crop four acres to the plow and add four acres of corn, which would insure us enough corn and meat to make the crop of 1906, which is the bull: of the expense of raising a cotton crop when these have to be bought.

Each county should appoint a commissioner like N. Walker, of Selma, Ala., or D. R. Burgess, of Mobile, Ala., or any man of like integrity, to take charge of the surplus cotton and keep it stored and insured. His commissions that he usually charges would be all the compensation that he would ask or expect. I will make it my business to see every farmer in Marion Junction beat and solicit his aid and co-operation in this all-important matter. Let other men interested in other beats of the county and state and southern states do likewise and my 200 bales left on hand will bring me $12,000 and I will have forty bales of cotton to start on next fall.

It seems they are basing the price on ten million bales crop at 12 cents! Twelve million bales crop, 7 cents! Let us have a ten million bales crop! Come on, boys! Let us not "hoe and plow and dig" so much and work our "thinking machines" more.

Yours truly,
M. F. SMITH.

The above from the Montgomery Advertiser is well worth the study of our people. In this connection we wish to call attention to Commissioner Poole's letter (in this issue) addressed to the farmers of Alabama. What is being done about the meeting on January 10th in this county? Why don't our Farmers' Alliance take up the question and issue a call for our farmers to meet in Clanton on that day? If the farmers stick together, they can control the situation and knock the "stuffing" out of the "cotton bears."

If the lover attempted to reciprocate by loving all the world, his best girl would strenuously object, thinks the Chicago News.

PROGRAM OF TEACHERS' INSTITUTE,

To Be Held at Concord January 20-21, 1905.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Music by teachers of institute.

Devotional Exercises—Rev. T. F. Davis.

Welcome Address—E. H. Parrish.

Opening Address—Robert Session.

Enrollment. Short talks by teachers.

Noon, Centralizing County Schools—G. L. Speer.

Give Your Daily Program in Teaching and Your Opinion as to Its Necessity—J. B. Ruffin, H. A. Harris.

The Ideal Teacher—P. G. Maness.

The Ideal Parent—A. E. Davis.

SATURDAY.

9:30Opening query box.

Improvement in and Around School Buildings—J. H. Anderson, Robert Jones.

School Discipline—S. B. Powell, B. R. Richardson.

Educational Address—Prof. W. D. M. Simmons, of Montgomery.

Discussion of rules by institute.

Educational address.

Conveyance will be furnished teachers coming by rail to Clanton.

J. W. MOORE,
Chairman.
W. O. PERRY,
R. A. RASCO,
H. L. DAVIS,
G. L. SPEER, Sec'y.
Board of Education.

Notice No. 25707.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., December 9, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of the Circuit Court, at Clanton, Ala., on January 28, 1905, viz: William M. Johnson, Homestead entry, No. 33513, for the Se 1-4 of Section 12, Tp. 22 n of R 15 e

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William S. Cox, of Clanton, Ala.; Lonzo I. Bates, of Verbena, Ala.; Moses Bates, of Verbena, Ala.; William H. Parish, of Clanton, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
Register.
tf

Coming Events

A National Paper.

The News company of Joliet, Ill., proprietors of one of the largest and best printing plants in the state outside of Chicago, are publishing the Saturday News as a third edition of their paper. The Saturday News is devoted exclusively to the interests of the people's party and is national in scope. Each week it contains matters of interest regarding the progress of the party from all parts of the nation.

Being published at the headquarters of the party and the chairman of the national committee being president of the News company and one of the editors, it is peculiarly favorably located to give general news of the movement.

The People's party has long felt the need of a national paper and it is cause for congratulation that one has been started and by a concern that is so strong that its success is assured from the start while the names of such well known workers and writers as Hon. James H. Ferriss, Charles Q. De France, Jo A. Parker and R. E. Bray is a guarantee of its character and loyalty.

The regular subscription price of the Saturday News is 50 cents per year, but we have arranged with the publishers to furnish it and the Union, both papers one year for $1.25.

Call at our office and see a sample copy and take advantage of this offer. tf.

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's Second Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton county for the year 1904, and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Jemison, beat 2, Dec. 1-2, 1904.
Clanton, last 10 days in the year commencing December 20, 1904.

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Under and by virtue of an order and decree of the Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Judge of the Probate Court of Chilton county, rendered on Monday, the 12th day of December, 1904, I, Lee Hayes, was appointed and directed to sell at public outcry to the highest bidder for cash, in front of the Court house door of Chilton county, Alabama, on SATURDAY, THE 7TH DAY OF JANUARY, 1905.

during the hours of legal sale, the following described land, to-wit: S. W. 1-4 of N. W. 1-4; N. W. 1-4 of S. W. 1-4, section 32; S. E. 1-4 of N. E. 1-4, N. E. 1-4 of S. E. 1-4, section 33; W. 1-2 of N. W. 1-4, section 34; S. W. 1-4 of S. E. 1-4, S. E. 1-4 of S. W. 1-4, section 27,—all in township 21, range 13, Chilton county, Alabama, for the purpose of an equitable division among the following named joint owners thereof: Mary A. Robuck, Daniel Dunivan, R. N. Robuck, Bluford Dunivan, James Dunivan, Victoria Sims, Dennis Dunivan, Beula Matthews, John O. Dunnivan, Claud B. Dunivan, and Robert Dunivan.

LEE HAYES,
Commissioner.
tf

NOTICE!

Teachers' examination will be held in Clanton at the court house on the 1st Monday in January, 1905, at 10 a. m. sharp. No applicants admitted after that hour.

J. W. MOORE,
County Superintendent.

PROPERTY FOR SALE.

The prettiest house in Clanton, 8 rooms with two acres of ground enclosed by fancy wire fence.

One brick store house.

Two frame houses, three rooms each, new, near depot.

All pay a handsome income.

Bargains, see me at once.
tf. I. B. DOWNS.

Going to Plant

Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a postal for my new manual "How to Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.
P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of
SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS. PAINTS OILS and GLASS.
We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.
CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

DRINK
CREAM of KENTUCKY Whisky.
Sold only by
COLLINS BROS., Calera, Alabama.
Mail orders promptly filled.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.
—Is at The Head of The Procession.—
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,
COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.
W. I. MULLINS,
Clanton. Alabama

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,
Furniture and Rugs.
—SOLE AGENTS—
Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.
Catalogue for the asking.
1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

PAUL CALAME,
205 21st Street
Birmingham, Ala.
Practical Watchmaker and Optician
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly filled

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association
of Alabama.
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
By the People and for the People.
Chilton County Branch
Organized February 3rd, 1900.
W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.
INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.
Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.
Full particulars furnished upon application to
WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

Pure Water Prevents Fevers.
DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER
We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address
I. E. SARBER CO.
Thorsby, Alabama.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,
Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.
County and Office Supplies a Specialty.
Ask for Estimates.
2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

It Pays, An Ad In This Paper

The Man We Love.

We love the man with the roses on his tongue, the man who sees the boy's dirty face, but mentions his bright eye—who notices your shabby coat but praises your studious habits; the man who sees all the faults but is quick to praise and slow to blame. We like to meet a man whose smile will light up dreariness, whose voice is full of music of the birds, whose hand-shake is an inspiration.—Opelika Post.

Montgomery is about to change the name of a great many of her streets.

Be cheerful when surrounded by the home circle.

He Awoke.

In a church at Birmingham, Eng., the singing was postponed while the organist went to punch up the organ blower, who had fallen asleep. Then choir and congregation went on with that well-known hymn, "Art thou weary, art thou languid?"

Plenty Enough.

She—In your bachelor clubs what is the penalty for marrying?
He—Marriage.

The practice of oiling the roads has been introduced in India, at Bombay. It is found that if the oil is allowed to soak in slowly no obnoxious mud is produced, and the result is a success.

DRINK
CREAM of KENTUCKY
Whisky.
Sold only by
INS BROS., Calera, Alabama.
Mail orders promptly filled.

THE BIG STORE,
Cor. 9th Ave and 7th St.
—Is at The Head of The Procession.—
oods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes,
FURNITURE,
NE AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.
W. I. MULLINS,
n, - - - Alabama

M. Jacobs & Bros.,
Furniture and Rugs.
—SOLE AGENTS—
rnicks' Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.
e for the asking.
e., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

AME,
Street
nam, Ala.
Practical Watchmaker and Optician
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly fille

Mutual Insurance Association
of Alabama.
ED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
by the People and for the People.
ilton County Branch
rganized February 3rd, 1900.
LSON. WALLACE C. EDLER,
ent. Sec'y.-Treas.
rmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Con
Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind an
The Cheapest, Safest and Most d of Insurance Known to Man.
Cost 56-100 of 1 percent.
furnished upon application to VALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

nter Prevents Fevers.
ELLS FURNISH PURE WATER
antee water or no charge made.
ven. Address
I. E. SARBER CO,
Alabama.

CH PRINTING CO.,
k Makers and Lithographers.
d Office Supplies a Specialty.
BIRMINGHAM, ALA

An Ad In This Paper

love.
the roses on ho sees the mentions his your shabby
dding's habits.
faults but ow to blame.
whose smile whose voice birds, whose ion—Opelika

p change the her streets

nded by the

He Awoke.

In a church at Birmingham, Eng., the singing was postponed while the organist went to punch up the organ blower, who had fallen asleep. Then choir and congregation went on with that well-known hymn, "Art thou weary, art thou languid?"

Plenty Enough.

She—In your bachelor clubs what is the penalty for marrying?

He—Marriage.

The practice of oiling the roads has been introduced in India, at Bombay. It is found that if the oil is allowed to soak in slowly no obnoxious mud is produced, and the result is a success.

Y OFFICIALS

...Judson Strock.
...W. M. Wilson, R. G. Mc...
...J. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
...J. Watts Moore.
...—Ed Smitherman.

TS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.
...Term—1st Monday in April.
...Term—3rd Monday in July.
...Term—1st Monday in Novem...
...—Scott Sayre.
...Solicitor—T. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
...—W. W. Collins.

CHANCERY COURT.
...Singerm—2nd Monday in March.
...Term—2nd Monday in Septem...
...for Hon. W. W. White.
...—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan...

COUNTY COURT.
...Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.
...Monday February, 1st Monday
...st Monday June, 2nd Monday
...2d Monday August, 1st Monday
...per.

COUNTY OFFICERS.
...se of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
...Cashier—W. T. Callen.
...Sheriff—J. M. Morgan.
...Editor—J. O. Middleton.
...Assessor—A. C. Mims.
...Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.
...First District—W. H. Conway.
...Second District—Alex Glasscock.
...Third District—R. P. Kendrick.
...Fourth District—Moses Robinson.

SUPT. OF EDUCATION.
...Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.
...Hon. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

OUNTY CHURCHES

...astors and clerks are cordially ask... to send the editor any news regard... their churches which they would ...published. Also if there are any ...s in these notices please send cor...ons.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.
...line—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
...Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
...h-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas...
...C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
...kson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor;
...Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
...any—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday.
...Huett, clerk, Verbena.
...ton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st
...rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins,

...Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th
...V. J. Gragg, clerk.
...er Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard,
...J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
...ard—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd
...T. N. Parrish, clerk.
...ns Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm...
...1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton,

...utnut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand,
...J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
...mith—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd
...W. B. Jones, clerk.
...e Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish,
...nday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
...mith—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st
...M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
...an—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas...
...J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
...ezer—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas...
...H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
...son—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor;
...Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
...ty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd
...W. M. Wood, clerk.
...donia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd
...H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
...Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas...
...Z. Barnes, clerk, British.
...ery—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor;
...Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
...t Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud...
...astor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk.

...t Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong.
...D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
...r Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand,
...W. H. Wilson, clerk.
...donia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd
...George Trawick, clerk.
...Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas...
...W. Billingsley, clerk.
...Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong,
...day; G. W. Hill, clerk.
...Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd
...Henry Smith, clerk.
...ms) Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason,
...M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
...nt Grove—Rev. J. H. Thom...
...Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
...nt Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard,
...W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
...nt Grove—Rev. G. W. Free...
...astor; H. C. Latham, clerk.

...Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone,
...day. J. J. McDowell clerk.
...dence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt.
...day. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemi...

...dence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong.
...Riley Robinson, clerk, Clan...

...—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor;
...obinson, clerk, Rushton.
...—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd
...W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
...—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sun...

...day; J. Deason, clerk, Adams.
Thorsby—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Robert Jones, clerk, Thorsby.
Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, pastor; R. S. Chandler, clerk, Jemison.
Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2d Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.
Verbena—Rev. J. W. Partridge, 1st Sunday. T. J. Bland, clerk.
Valley Creek—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. W. Mitchell, clerk, Plantersville.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.
Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.
Clanton Circuit, Rev. T. F. Davis, Pastor.
Thorsby—1st Sunday.
Walnut Grove—2nd Sunday, morning.
Unity—2nd Sunday, evening.
Shady Grove—3rd Sunday.
Mount Pisgah—4th Sunday, morning.
Enterprise—4th Sunday, evening.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.
Highland School House—Rev. M. F. Lett, 3rd Sunday and Saturday before. T. L. Adams, clerk.
Enterprise—Rev. M. F. Lett, 4th Sunday. T. F. Patterson, clerk.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN.
St. Olafs, Thorsby—Rev. H. Engh, pastor. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.
Concordia, Thorsby—Rev. J. E. Hedberg. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2d Sunday. Song service every 2d and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.
MASONIC.
Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday, Clanton.
Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 250—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.
Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 423—First Saturday, Clanton.
Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 567—First Saturday Billingsley.
Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.
Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 411—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.
Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 473—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.
Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.
Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.
Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT
of the
BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE CO.
Of Toronto, Canada.
1st January, 1904.

UNITED STATES BRANCH.

Assets.

Government bonds	$223,650.00
State and municipal bonds	511,473.19
Cash on hand and deposit	169,720.71
Stocks and bonds	305,793.00
Premiums in course of col.	204,884.79
Interest due and accrued.	11,833.20
	$1,427,304.89

Liabilities.

Reserve premium fund (N. Y. Standard)	$849,771.77
Reserve for unpaid losses	100,786.14
	$950,557.91
Surplus in United States	$476,746.98
Total income in United States for 1903	$1,547,736.84
Total losses paid in U. S. from 1874 to 1903, inclusive	$14,674,843.26

WALLACE C. EDLER, Agent,
Clanton, Alabama.

FOR SALE.
660 Acres Land—320 acres within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is timbered, 1 set-mill-rocks, 48 inch, 1 Horse, weight 1100 lbs.
Alfred Popwell,
Clanton, Ala.

NOTICE.

All persons owing me are hereby notified to call and settle their accounts at once, as I am going out of business and must close up all accounts, notes etc. without delay.

Respectfully
P D Wilson.
tf

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.
Total receipts to Dec. 21, '04, 6,050.
Price on same date, 6 7-8.
Total receipts same week, '03, 6,394.
Price same date, 12 1-4.

PERSONAL AND LOCAL.

D. C. Honeycutt, of Thorsby, returned last week from an extended trip through Arkansas and Tennessee. He saw some good farms, but says Chilton county is good enough for him.

C. B. Huett was a pleasant visitor Thursday.

B. Easterling was in Clanton Saturday.

W. J. Watson and little daughter, Velma, paid us a visit Saturday.

J. C. Culp and wife were in Clanton Saturday.

Tom Cost was in town Saturday.

Howard Foshee was in Clanton Saturday.

T. L. Adams was in town Monday.

Uncle Henry Benson was a pleasant visitor Monday. The old gentleman looks well for his age.

John A. Mims, a former merchant of Clanton, was a visitor here this week. Mr. Mims now lives in Bessemer, where he has charge of the Birmingham Southern railway yards. Come again, brother.

James Dormeny was in town Monday with his son, W. G. J. The old gentleman looks well. The years pass over him lightly. They leave no marks.

Hon. W. W. Wadsworth, of Wadsworth, was in Clanton Monday on business.

Samp Driver's daughter, Miss Ola, is very sick with typhoid fever. Dr. Goggans is attending her.

Uncle Jack Green was in Clanton Monday as spry as a two-year-old.

Judge Reynolds spent Tuesday at the capital.

"Mr. Lee Vickers, a former citizen of Tallapoosa county, is here from Clanton, Ala., visiting friends. He gave us a pleasant call and renewed his subscription to Spot Cash."—Dadeville Spot Cash.

A. D. Rawlinson was here several days last week attending the Johnson McCullough trial.

Rev. A. C. Swindall filled his third Sunday appointment at the Clanton Baptist church, preaching in the morning to a large congregation. He went to Verbena to preach Sunday night.

W. F. Littlejohn was in Clanton Tuesday.

Tax Collector Hubbard and Assessor A. C. Mims opened up in Clanton Tuesday for the last ten days in the month. Mr. Hubbard is in the court house and Mr. Mims at THE UNION office.

Don't forget to pay your poll tax and be a good citizen and help your schools.

Madison Bean and wife were in town Tuesday. Mr. Bean raised 2,509 lbs. of seed cotton on one acre planted March 25th without any special fertilizing. "Go thou and do likewise."

J. G. Wood was a pleasant visitor Tuesday.

Jim Gardner was in Clanton Tuesday.

J. R. Owens and wife were in Clanton Tuesday.

Joseph Burnett was in town Tuesday.

R. S. and J. T. M. Chandler were in Clanton Tuesday.

C. J. Cobern was in town Saturday.

The body of Ace Rawlinson is to be exhumed and an examination made by Drs. Matthews and Johnson as to the course of the balls that killed him and the angle at which the shots were fired.

J. L. Winslow, of the Pine Hill nursery, at Thorsby, was in Clanton Tuesday. Look at his ad in this week's paper. Home-grown trees are what our people ought to have.

J. Hance Allred, of Birmingham, was in town last week. He is enjoying a well earned vacation.

Wiley Smith's store was burglarized Monday night. One of the windows was smashed and the thieves took a lot of fire works, cigars and canned goods. It is supposed they will celebrate Christmas in the swamp. Why don't the city have a night watchman?

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

A. J. Ellison and Miss Ella Estes.
M. O. Strength and Mrs. Sallie Rushing.
J. C. Coburn and Miss I. M. Crawford.
L. E. Boockholdt and Miss Carrie Neeley.
Mack Robinson and Miss Dalce Gore.
J. L. Hand and Miss Mary Driver.
J. W. Blankenship and Miss Maggie Killingsworth.
Fulton K. Lewis and Miss Mary Ellen Sample.
F. D. Moore and Mrs. Rosa Belle Raspberry.
Alonzo R. Arledge and Miss Faxie Ellison.

COLORED.

R. B. Walker and Edna Ricketts.
Emmett Jackson and Verna Shelton.
Walter Abney and Elnora Oden.
Robert Cash and Shulie Moore.

WEDDINGS.

Judge Reynolds performed two marriages on the 15th, between sessions of his court. J. C. Coburn and Miss I. M. Crawford, and A. J. Ellison and Miss Ella Estes. The judge has got the hang of the marriage ceremony now, and seems to rather like the work.

OUR CHURCHES.

We wish to revise our church list, and would like to impress upon pastors, church clerks and members the fact that if they don't send us the changes made in the pastors and preaching days, we can't have a correct list. Let us hear from everyone by the 1st of January.

MARS HILL.

Editor Union.

The health of our community is good.

Our Sunday school is in good condition.

Mrs. C. L. Langston, who has been ill, is up again.

C. C. Langston has returned from a flying trip. He says the boys don't know how to hunt. He was out five hours Saturday and brought in two fine gobblers. Come, boys, and go with him on Christmas.

I hope you all will study your Sunday school lessons so as to get the full meaning of it.

A man told me the other day that he had been to Clanton, and that he saw Judge Reynolds there, and that he not only was a good judge, but that he looked like one.

Some time ago the Banner man said (about Gov. Johnston being at Clanton) that he had nothing to say against the populists, for they were the advance guard of the democrats. So boys, hold your ground. They always pick the best men for the advance guard, and the populists are the true and tried men. So, hold your ground, and, boys, take The Union. It is the paper for us. All success to it.

SAME OLD COON.

COURT NEWS.

On Thursday, the 15th, Henry Johnson and Ed McCullough were given a preliminary hearing before Judge L. H. Reynolds on the charge of killing Ace Rawlinson. The state was represented by W. A. Collier, and the defendants by A. C. Smith, W. M. Adams and Jess Stallings, of Birmingham. The evidence was all in by Saturday afternoon, when each side took forty minutes apiece in summing up the evidence. Judge Reynolds reserved his decision until Monday morning, and then held Johnson without bail and McCullough in $2,000. The evidence taken was very voluminous, covering many pages, and The Union not being able to give all of it, would not undertake to give part only, for fear of doing one side or the other an injustice. The witnesses for the state were Mrs. John Roberts, Thomas Roberts, John Roberts, R. P. Kendrick, J. A. Poole, Mrs. Mary Ray, Sheriff Morgan, Deputy Sheriff Lee Hayes, W. L. Chandler, R. L. Ousley and Sid Chandler. For the defendants, J. T. Anderson, Tom Lockheart, John Lockheart, E. G. Caldwell, A. L. Pattillo and Dr. E. A. Matthews. Johnson and McCullough also took the stand in their own behalf.

There was an extra session of the county court on Monday, Judge L. H. Reynolds presiding. A negro named Walker Smoot was charged with carrying a concealed pistol, two separate charges being brought against him. He pleaded guilty in both cases, and the judge fined him $50 and costs for the first, and $50 and costs with three months' hard labor for the second offense. This will keep him at work for the county till February, 1906.

ROCKY MOUNT.

Rev. C. E. Rowley and Mrs. Rowley are conducting a revival meeting at this place, and will continue through Christmas. Mr. Rowley is one of the best singers in the northern states, and is the author of "Victory Bells," a very popular revival song book, and quite a number of sacred songs in sheet form. Mrs. Rowley is second to none, both as a song-writer, revival singer and instrumental performer.

J. B. N.

Hall Room,
Amand Lodge, No. 250,
A. F. & A. M., Cooper, Ala.

Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren:

The scythe of time has again swept through our midst and removed from our ranks our beloved brother, Charles H. Dansby, one whom we learned to love and admire and whose example we should well emulate. He has gone to that home from whence none ever return and we find he is safely anchored with the Grand Architect of Heaven and Earth, the Giver of every perfect gift. Brethren, this is another reminder of the certainty of Death. Let us strive to live nearer and closer to our Heavenly Father. To his widow and children, let us beg of you to so live and act that when the summons of Death comes you can say in the language of one of old, I have fought a good fight, finished my race, and hence am ready to meet my God.

Respectfully submitted,
P. C. DENNIS.

Japan as Our Customer.

According to an article in the German Export Review, quoted in the Consular Reports, the materials needed for ship-building are bought in England. Even big ships built for Japan in Germany years ago were ordered to Armstrong's, in England, for their armament. Recently Krupp and the French firm of Schneider are preferred.

The fact that England and the United States are favored is shown by the purchase of material for the Yokohama water works. In calling for bids it was provided that the cocks come from England and the water meters from England or the United States, the names of the firms even being specified.

Locomotives for the railroads in Corea are bought exclusively in the United States, presumably because they are more quickly obtainable there. The friendship for the United States is increasing.—New York World.

Time Table
In effect August 1, 1904.
Louisville & Nashville R. R.
CENTRAL TIME.

Read Down AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3	DAILY	Read Up AM No 8	AM No 2	PM No 10
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7 45
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6 22
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58	....	5 59
7 19	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....	5 53
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42	....	5 40
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5 32
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17	....	5 17
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 11	....	5 11
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5 04
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4 00

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
For rates and further information address
A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

A Great Combination Offer
We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the
St. Louis Globe-Democrat
WITH
The Union
FOR
$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50
The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival as a
Great Modern Newspaper.
If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth, you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.
NOW IS THE TIME.
Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, both for a full year. Address
The Union, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..
SHOES made of Leather.
SHOES that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.
Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.
Every Department Full and Complete.
J. W. SMITH.
Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Alabama

P. D. WILSON'S
Going out of Business.
Big Reduction in Prices of Everything for CASH ONLY
Now is the Time to get GENUINE BARGAINS
Gelder's Restaurant,
Good Meals at Reasonable Prices.
110 North 20th Street,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND FERTILIZERS
FOR SALE.
Troy Special & Mule Brand
"Are the Best on Earth"
J. C. JONES,
Clanton, - - - Alabama.

With a Christmas Gift.

At Christmas time long years ago
"Good will to men" the angels sang,
"And peace on earth" their message rang
Across the sky's celestial glow,
At Christmas time
Long years ago.

At Christmas time that comes today
This message of good will I send—
The loving wishes of a friend
That comes today.

At Christmas time in future years—
And all the other days besides—
May life for you always provide
Its laughter all unmixed with tears
At Christmas time
In future years.
—W. R. Murphy, in Christmas St. Nicholas.

BRIGHT·EYES·AND·DOROTHY·JANE
A·CHRISTMAS·STORY·OF·TWO·DOLLS

Bright eyes and Dorothy Jane met for the first time on Christmas Eve. They were being hurried over the city streets in a delivery wagon, and their intimate association with each other in a big wicker basket naturally led to a conversation. They were dolls—Dorothy Jane a big rag baby, homely and poorly dressed; Bright Eyes a finely clothed young lady, whose bright tints of cheek and hair were the work of French artists. Dorothy Jane was going to meet a "little mother" in an East Side tenement house on the morrow, and Bright Eyes was on her way to the big brownstone house on the West Side, there to open and close her eyes and say "Mamma" to the only daughter of a rich merchant.

Bright Eyes did not deign to notice poor Dorothy when she remarked that the noisy animals in the Noah's ark, at the other end of the box, were worse than those in the Zoo, and rather rudely crowded the poor little rag baby in the corner as she turned away in disgust. At the next corner the driver removed the ark, with its noisy animals, and there was more room in the basket. Dorothy lifted her head and put her painted face close to the ear of Bright Eyes and whispered: "You are prettier than I am, I know; but can't we be friends, anyway? I never talked to a foreigner before. We had some dolls from China in our department several weeks ago, but I couldn't understand what they said. How do you shut your eyes that way when you lie down? How nice it is." Bright Eyes sat up and looked at the flat little painted face of Dorothy Jane with evident amusement.

"You don't pretend to call yourself a Christmas present, I hope?" she said. "You must have been put together in the dark. I don't see what pleasure you can find in existence."

"I believe that I am happier than you are tonight," said Dorothy Jane, but her lip quivered.

"Why?" asked Bright Eyes. "Don't you know that I am going to live in one of the finest houses in the city, and be shown to members of the '400?'"

"What do you mean by the '400?'" queried Dorothy Jane.

"You poor, neglected, uneducated little thing," said Bright Eyes. "Tell me, where are you going, any way?"

"I am going to little Jennie Reed, whose mother does washing for a living. I am so anxious to see her, because her mother, when she bought me, told the clerk that Jennie had not been very well since her papa died, and she hoped that I would cheer her up on Christmas Day. If Jennie is like her mother I am going to love her."

Bright Eyes was laughing by this time, and interrupted to say, "You must be a missionary rag baby then. How funny!"

"That's what I am," cried Dorothy, "and unless Jennie expects too much of a rag baby, I believe that I will make her happy. Do you think that the little girl where you are going will love you?"

Bright Eyes moved uneasily in the box and was slow to answer. Finally she said: "I don't know whether she will love me or not. I don't care. I am pretty and they will show me to everybody. I like the idea of moving in high society, and won't worry about their loving me."

Dorothy Jane knew nothing about society, and did not fully understand Bright Eyes' idea of life. All she could think about was Jennie Reed, and whether or not they would be happy together. "Get that big French doll out, Bill," said the driver to his assistant, as the wagon suddenly stopped. It startled Dorothy Jane, as she had about made up her mind to tell Bright Eyes that she had missed entirely the object of life when she made love secondary. All she had time to say, as she put an unshapely rag hand in one of Bright Eyes,' was, "Make that little girl love you." But Bright Eyes tossed her head scornfully as Bill ran with her up the brownstone steps. "If you ever get up into high society call on me," were her parting words.

Bill complained bitterly to the driver about being overworked after he had handed Dorothy Jane over to Mrs. Reed, on the fifth floor of the East Side tenement house. Mrs. Reed took the rag baby and quietly sat her in the fireplace, facing Jennie's little bed.

When Mrs. Reed had kissed the sleeping child and tiptoed out of the room, Dorothy looked around for other Christmas arrivals. At first she saw no one else, and began to feel the responsibility which had been thrust upon her of being little Jennie's whole Christmas. Finally, however, she spied a little pink candy dog, and he told her that he, too, was there for Jennie.

The next morning Mrs. Reed peeped into the room in time to see Jennie jump around in an ecstacy of joy, with Dorothy Jane clasped close to her breast and the pink candy dog in her hand.

The affection of the child for Dorothy Jane grew from day to day, until the neighbors talked about it. Wherever Jennie went, Dorothy Jane was with her.

Bright Eyes, on the other hand, had a hard time of it. When she arrived at the house she found that there were many other presents costlier than herself, and, moreover, a little old rubber doll was the favorite of her mistress.

All her visions of coming out into fashionable society faded away before a week had passed. She never went out of doors, but lay tucked away in a closet. One day, Jip, a little fox terrier, mistook her for something else. Before he was through the bloom was gone from her cheeks and her hair and one arm were chewed off. So the next day Bright Eyes was just looking over the top of the ash barrel, in the basement areaway, when Jennie Reed, with Dorothy Jane in her arms, rang the basement bell. She had come to get the washing. Bright Eyes recognized Dorothy at once and called out with all her former hautiness crushed and broken: "Oh, you dear old rag baby; you were right after all." Then Jennie went away, and the dolls never met again. —New York Mail and Express.

MADONNA IN CONTEMPLATION.

CARLO DOLCI, 1616-1686

Christmas Chimes.

By Arthur Stringer.

From town and tower, with tilt and tune,
A gust of chimes takes flight
Where that dim golden boat the moon
Drifts slowly down the night.

Like startled birds, it swings and climbs,
Alone, aloud, afar;
A thousand-pinioned flock of chimes
That float from star to star.

They tire, and fail, and turn, and cease,—
Joy's homing birds—and then
For one glad Christmas Day of peace
Nest in the hearts of men!

Mount Sporis, near Glenwood Springs, Colo., 14,300 feet above sea level, is to be made into a summer resort. Among the unique attractions will be the perfection of a natural toboggan slide.

Merry Christmas

Noel Clayton's Christmas
The Story of a Home-Coming

Noel Clayton was tall and gaunt, with clear, candid, blue eyes, and his white hands, small and nervous looking, were as well kept as those of a woman.

He was thirty, and a splash of gray on either temple, a strand of two of white in his moustache, made him look older.

He was broad-chested and muscular—by all rules—he should have been a soldier—he looked an "open air" man, but for five years he had been writing short stories, novelettes and serials for the weekly press.

It was good, nervous work. His name was becoming known, for he had the happy knack of blending pathos with humor. He had traveled widely, and an Australian bush idyl at the beginning of the week would be followed by a London society story, to be followed again by a story of rustic life in the dear West Country that he loved so well.

He lived quite alone, worked—and smoked—from morning to night, loved his profession, and had practically dropped all his friends—male and female—and when a fit of the not infrequent blues got him by the throat, threw his pen into the grate and ordered up his landlady's children, and pandemonium reigned for an hour.

Sometimes he gave them pennies, but not always—small coin of the realm is not always available to authors—but the romps were huge, and he enjoyed them.

Of course there was a woman at the bottom of the tangle of the man's life, and women complicate things sometimes—he would have said "always."

On one particular evening he was alone and writing, when Jim Courteney was shown in—and Jim was an old and tried friend—about the only friend the lonely, self-absorbed man had, and so the incomer sat down and lighted his pipe, and did not bother the author for quite a quarter of an hour, and then Noel rose and stretched himself.

"What is it this time, Noel?"

"Oh, the usual thing—love; and candidly, I am getting so sick of writing love stories."

"Ah, you feel like that?"

"Man alive, this is Christmas Eve, and somehow—somehow—my thoughts went back with a jump, and I remembered one Christmas Eve, when——"

"Your pipe's out, Noel!"

"Aye, so it is. Well there was one Christmas Eve when——"

"My dear boy, are you worrying about her still?"

"Yes," and then a long pause——

It is the privilege of chums to sit silent for a spell.

"And all this happened four or five years ago. I never heard the rights or wrongs of the story."

Noel crossed the room, and digging both hands into his pockets, looked at his chum.

"There is nothing to know. After the four happy years of married life, trouble came between us, lies came between us; and—and—here I am and it's Christmas Eve. Of course, our baby was only a mite—a wee, blue-eyed, golden-haired mite; couldn't walk, crawled, you know; but we were awful chums, and when she went and took our mite—well," and the man's laugh hurt his own ears. "Well, then I took to writing love stories—love, old chap, with a happy ending—bishops, bridesmaids, bouquets and blessings, and"—his temporary excitement had left him—he added drily:

"And it pays! Now go, old chap. I must get my stuff done for the early post," and Chum went out while Noel turned again to his interrupted work.

Between each line on every page quaint turn of expression, quaint thoughts haunted him, a dead past spoke to him.

The girl-wife had been very sweet, very lovable, very beautiful—and had marred two lives.

There should be a special place of torment for the person who deliberately comes between two people who love each other and smilingly warps two lives.

Pearl Clayton was as easily led as a child, a soft, emotional weak little woman, and when Noel returned from a few days' holiday he found the house closed and Pearl and Baby had departed.

Noel drifted a little bit, the shock unmanned him terribly, but his pen was his sole source of income, and it had to be plied if body and soul were to be kept together, and in a very few weeks he had, to some extent, regained his mental balance, and his work improved.

The eve of Christmas and the day itself appeals to most hearts, and on this particular eve Noel kept thinking back and thinking back while he wrote.

How well he remembered the extra-sized stocking he induced the nurse to knit, and how bulky it looked and felt on Christmas morning. And then came school, college, and then married life.

When the scribbling fit was on him Pearl used to draw her low wicker chair close to his writing table, knitting, or daintily fingering white material, soft and downy and fluffy, for the prospective wearer, and the few remarks she made seemed to chime in and identify themselves with what he was writing; but, of course, all this happened five years ago.

One odd little trick Pearl had, and Noel remembered it this evening—and missed it.

When his pen was working extra busily she used to lay the tips of her fingers upon his right hand—just where hand meets wrist. She did not incommode him in the least. He declared her touch inspired him; they were such pinked-tipped fingers, and so small, and he had often written with the tiny touch on his wrist almost unconsciously—only peeping up from time to time at a sweet oval face, into deep violet eyes love lit.

But, of course, this was five years ago.

So he wrote on, feeling a little bit sorry that Chum had not stayed, for after all, he only had another half-hour's work before him, and then they could sit and chat, and perhaps drown the sound of the bells that he knew would ring out in a few hours.

He was just in the frame of mind to summon his landlady's children, but except for himself, the house was empty. There was a Christmas Eve party going on, and Mrs. Marsh and her progeny were attending it.

He had been writing for half an hour since Chum had left him, and felt the old familiar touch on his wrist. It was imagination, of course, he did not even turn his head, and then he was looking into blue eyes in the round golden-curled framed face of a boy of four, who laughed at him and presented a rosebud to be kissed.

"Goodness, child—where on earth do you come from? and who—who brought you? What is your name?"

"Eric," and the child began make preparations for climbing a lor knee.

"Who brought you here, Bai Eric? How did you come?"

Noel felt like an Irish member of Parliament, for "no answer was given," but a wee form, full of hugs and kisses, got fast hold upon hi, and said gravely, and yet with a sweet air of command:

"Just come'd—and now if youre not too busy, mister Father——"

"Yes, my son."

"P'raps—I'd better go to bed."

"But my child—my little son—who brought you here? Where's mother?" and the tall man rose and down. Of course, Chum the child to walk straight in child had—straight in.

The author—his tiny son w the floor now, saying things to cat, and it deserved every word, g a cat that licks stamps off let and loves bacon and boiled egg. his hands deep into his poc looked down, sad eyed, a face.

"Yes, perhaps you had better to bed."

• • • • •

If Chum would only come, he said

Glad Tidings of Great Joy

BY PROCKHORST, 1925

thing would only happen to b the silence, a silence only cleft by the sigh of a child.

The church was only at the end of the street.

He could hear the bellringers shuffling along the frosty pavement, in a few minutes—and he bent to his work.

Half asleep, half awake, he was conscious of the old, almost forgotten touch upon his wrist—a dream doubtless—but he could not shake it off, and then he looked down.

Kneeling as of yore beside him, blue-eyed, tear-dimmed, was Pearl.

"I have returned, Noel," was a quavering little voice, but it thrilled him.

How like she was to their child.

And then the bells clashed forth their message, "Peace on Earth, Good-will Towards Men," and to the heart they carried a sweeter, deeper message still.

No word was spoken. A small figure, in a smoking jacket that reached to his heels, stood at the dividing door, an eager face turned to either.

And husband and wife kissed silently.—New York News.

As to Santa Claus.

With our modern fangled notions
Fairy tales no longer do;
'Stead of coming down the chimney
He has now gone up the flue.

HOPE FOR THE SICK.

MRS. HENRIETTA MARSH

A VICTIM OF LA GRIPPE.

Mrs. Henrietta A. S. Marsh, 760 W. 16th St., Los Angeles, Cal., President Woman's Benevolent Ass'n, writes:

"I suffered with la grippe for seven weeks, and nothing I could do or take relieved me until I tried Peruna.

"I felt at once that I had at last secured the right medicine and I kept steadily improving. Within three weeks I was entirely restored and I am glad that I gave Peruna a truly great remedy a trial. I will never be without it again."

In a letter dated August 31, 1904, Mrs. Marsh says: "I have never yet heard of the efficacy of Peruna questioned. We always use it. I traveled through Kentucky and Tennessee three years ago, where I found Peruna doing its good work. Much of it is being used here now."—Henrietta A. S. Marsh.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Your Druggist for Free Peruna Almanac for 1905.

Too Much for Him.

A bachelor one day set the table in his lonely abode with plates for himself and an imaginary wife and five children. He then sat down to dine, and as he helped himself to food he placed the same quantity on each of the other plates and surveyed the prospect, at the same time computing the cost. He is still a bachelor.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Props., Toledo, O.

Sold by druggists, price, 75c.

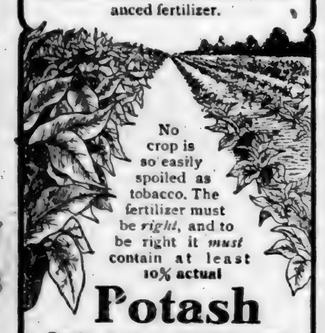
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Taught by Experience.

"My experience with signs," says Farmer Singletree, "is that in gen'ral they're either misleadin' er superfluous. When I was to the exposition I seen signs readin', 'Look out for pickpockets.' After a few days' truck with 'em I came to the conclusion that they was fully able to look out for themselves."—Cleveland Leader.

A Tobacco Grower's Profit

is dependent upon a properly balanced fertilizer.



No crop is so easily spoiled as tobacco. The fertilizer must be right, and to be right it must contain at least 10% actual

Potash

Test it: Supply one patch with fertilizer with plenty of Potash, another with little or no potash, and note the results. Every tobacco grower should have our little book, "Tobacco Culture"—it will be sent free—write to GERMAN KALI WORKS, 93 Nassau St., N. Y., or Atlanta, Ga.—2½ South Broad St.

FACTS

FOR SICK WOMEN TO CONSIDER.

FIRST.—The medicine that holds the record for the largest number of absolute cures of female ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It regulates and cures diseases of the female organism as nothing else can.

SECOND.—The great volume of unsolicited and grateful testimonials on file at the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time published by permission, give absolute evidence of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

THIRD.—Every ailing woman in the United States is asked to accept the following invitation. It is free, will bring you health, and may save your life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. From symptoms given, your trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of the vast volume of experience Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

Sons of the South.

The United States can not get along without the south and her splendid sons. It was a southerner that wrote the Declaration of Independence and framed the first measure abolishing slavery. It was a southerner who conducted the revolution to a successful issue. It was a South Carolinian who drew the frame work of our immortal constitution that was adopted and followed by the colonial convention. It was a Virginian that mulgated the Monroe doctrine. It was another Virginian, about 100 years ago, who announced the cardinal principles of civil service reform.

It was a Kentuckian who originated and fathered protection—the cardinal principle of the republican party—in this country. It was a southerner who added to the republic the great empire of the west embraced in the Louisiana purchase. It was a Tennesseean who smashed the British at New Orleans and crowned the war of 1812 with success. It was the military genius of the south that won the Mexican war. It was a southerner who marked out the gulf stream and brought about the establishment of the naval academy. It was a Kentuckian who guided the ship of state through the war of succession and freed the slaves.

It was a Tennesseean who commanded the federal fleets during the civil war and became one of the three admirals the country has had. It was a southerner who was in command of the fleet at Santiago that destroyed the naval power of Spain. Instances might be multiplied of the genius, the enterprise and the valor of the sons of the south but we have named enough to prove that the country can not do without the south.

The Moon and the Weather.

The moon is the most powerful agent in producing the tides of the earth; it also produces some slight variations in the earth's magnetism. So far as science has been able to investigate, there is absolutely no change in the weather which can be attributed to the moon, although half or more of mankind seem to believe that the moon does have some control over the weather. All such beliefs, including the time for planting gardens and for going fishing, are mere superstitions—the survivals of an age of ignorance.

Jews in London.

More serious, though less striking, is the pressure of the destitute alien who is not criminal. He continues to come in such force that he is rapidly turning whole districts into foreign and mainly Jewish quarters. The English disappear before the invaders as in the tropics all living things make way for the match of the irresistible foraging ants. In many parishes Christian places of worship have become synagogues, and the vicar finds himself transformed from a curate of Christians into a missionary among the Jews.

Rare Ceremony.

Rome.—Befgore an audience of 60,000 assembled in vast St. Peter's Monday Blessed Alessandro Cauli and Blessed Gerardo Maiella were canonized by Pope Pius X. On the entrance of the Pope, despite the efforts of the authorities, there were cries of "long live Pope Pius."

The ceremony was most interesting, descendants of the Blesseds assisting. This is the second canonization since 1870.

Judge Parker Growing Rich.

One day after hanging out his shingle as a lawyer in New York city, former Judge Alton B. Parker received two commissionership appointments in the supreme court. Justice O'Gorman named him, with others, to assess the value of property to be acquired by the city in connection with certain piers on the East river, two separate commissions being named and each paying from $5,000 to $7,000.

Strategy.

"Why is the Russian commander drilling his men to march backward?" asked the astonished war correspondent. "Has he lost his mind?"

"Oh, no," replied the spy. "That 's to keep the world from thinking they were running if they get shot while retreating."

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer, $2 trial bottle and treatise free. Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

The sardine famine off the coast of Brittany, which has extended over several years, promises to be relieved by unusual catches this year.

I do not believe Piso's Cure for Consumption has an equal for coughs and colds.—JOHN F. BOYER, Trinity Springs, Ind., Feb. 15, 1900.

A Swiss clockmaker has devised a watch which calls out the hours by means of a minute phonographic attachment.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never fails. Sold by all druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

Governor Ferguson, of Oklahoma, has been immortalized by an epigram.

A Guaranteed Cure For Piles.

Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. Druggists will refund money if Pazo Ointment fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

Niagara is worth $1,000,000,000 as a source of electrical power.

LOW RATES TO TEXAS. A. G. S. R. R.

$12.50 one way from Birmingham, to all points in Texas east of and including Dalharte, Amarillo, Fort Worth, Dallas, Brownwood, Brady, San Angelo, Waco, San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Corpus Christi, Rockport, Alice and Kerrville. Dates of sale: Dec. 13 and 27. Twelve hours quickest time. Trains leave 10:20 a. m., and 10:25 p. m. For further information call on or write A. B. Freeman, Traveling Passenger Agent, R. F. Latimer, City Passenger Agent, 1218 First Ave., Birmingham, Ala.

MAKING MONEY.

BY WILLIAM S. LAMPTON.

"Why don't you make money?" my friends say to me,
And I tell them I do not know how;
Then they give me the laugh and the gentle "Come off,"
And the slangy "What's eatin' you now?"

They say I could do it as easy as not,
If I worked like the fellows who do;
That I've got as much sense as many they know
Who have gathered a million or two.

They say it is easy enough to get rich,
If a fellow will only work hard,
No matter whatever the field of his toil,
In railways, finances, or lard.

They say I have brains and a good gift of gab,
And success in the making of friends;
That I ought to make money and fame, for a man
Is known by the money he spends.

They tell me these things with a confident air,
And I'm sure they believe what they say,
For they jeer when I tell them I can not, because
The Lord didn't build me that way.

But it's true, just the same, and these friends wouldn't laugh
If I said that I couldn't write verse,
Or do other stunts in the province of art
Where wealth isn't measured by purse.

The poet, the painter, the sculptor is born—
He can't make himself otherwise,
No matter how hard he may work, nor how long
He may struggle to win the fair prize.

And so with the genius who piles up his pile
Until he has millions to spare;
Unless he is born with the spoon in his mouth,
You can bet he will never get there.

—Collier's Weekly.

MISS PRISCILLA'S ....LOVE....

IF, therefore, you can make up your mind to trust your dear life to an old soldier who has given his best years to his queen and country, but can offer you an unfailing and respectful devotion"—

Miss Priscilla Bentley dropped a letter into her lap and covered two smooth, prettily pink cheeks with her thin hands. The man with whom she had played when her soft gray hair stuck straight out from her head in a stiff little brown plait had been back in the old home just a month now, and, they had met after a lapse of forty years, and he had remembered.

"Thank You!" she whispered—but very shyly, and as if even this tacit admission of a satisfied want was a thing unmaidenly and unblameworthy. "Oh, God, thank You!"

And then she crossed the room to an old-fashioned bureau and took up a pen-holder with a shaking hand.

* * * * * * * * *

You've been overtirin' yourself, I can see!" said one Betsy Briggs, as her mistress walked into her little hall an hour or so later.

"Not at all, Betsy," said Miss Priscilla, brightly. "I may be a trifle flushed with the heat, perhaps. I—I had an important letter to post, and I always feel more satisfied if a letter is posted at the general office than in a pillar box."

"Hump!" said the privileged old servant. "There has been a boy botherin' here for a letter he said he'd left for you this afternoon, instead of at No. 32. I said I could give no answer till you come in. I'm sure there's been more muddles since that there young Miss Bentley settled ten doors lower down than you could count in a month of Sundays! She ate your bit of fish last Thursday week, and never a—you'll go and sit down mum, and I'll take your boots off!"

Miss Priscilla, white suddenly to her very lips, was staring incredulously at the keen-eyed old woman before her.

"A note—delivered by hand, Betsy? But it wasn't a mistake. It—it can't be!"

Betsy sniffed.

'Well, the boy said he'd got orders to take it on to No. 32, immediate, and a scoldin' from his master into the bargain! I told 'em—bless me, I'll make you a cup of tea in two minutes, Miss Prissie!"

Miss Priscilla's groping hand had gripped a hard, horny one, as though to save herself from falling.

"I'm all right, Betsy"—there was a strange piteous expression in her blue eyes—"quite right. Yes, I'll go and sit down. But I don't want any tea, or—or to be disturbed for half an hour, please, Betsy."

She passed on into her small, sunbathed sitting room, and closed its door behind her.

Miss Bentley! Why of course! She had seen Major Duff walking with her after church on Sunday. Such a young, pretty woman, too—Miss Priscilla put out her hands with an odd, involuntary gesture, as though she were avoiding a blow. And then she remembered the letter she had posted an hour before, and they flew to her face, and she cowered in her chair with the shame and the hurt of it all—a little, shrunken old woman who had told a man who did not want her that she loved him.

That evening the somewhat unwilling Betsy set out to deliver a letter which had been penned three times over before its character was firm enough to satisfy the writer.

"Dear Major Duff," it ran—

"I have seen in your letter, which was left here by mistake, that you elope Bentley. I was afraid some mischievous one in the old friend, but by this time you be having a good laugh ove which a naughty old woman resist playing upon you in pret that she had applied its content herself! It really was too bad for her. Please forgive her, and accept very warm wishes for your happiness, from your sincere old friend.

"PRISCILLA BENTLEY."

Miss Priscilla peered between the laths of her blind with dim, scared eyes until Betsy's thickset figure passed out by the garden gate. And then she got down on to her knees. She had told her first lie.

* * * * * * * *

"But—bless my soul, Priscilla—I may say 'Priscilla' now. I suppose?" An excitable, white-haired man was tramping Miss Bentley's sitting room, blowing his nose violently the while. "I'm ashamed of you! And that girl's a jewel. I've a good mind"—he shot out a protesting arm which gave the lie to his words—"to—to marry her after all, except that she wouldn't look at me!"

"Are you—are you sure?" faltered Miss Priscilla. She was smiling, crying, apologizing, in one fluttering, embarrassed breath.

"Am I sure? When she's just told me that she's promised to a strapping young fellow in the guards! Look what you let me in for! I went this morning to apologize and explain like a man, though I've faced less unpleasant things on a battlefield, Priscilla, and somehow—well, out it came about your little joke, ma'am! And she held her tongue, and stood looking out of the window for a minute or two, and then round turned with her eyes all wet—though I'm flattering myself, mind you, that it was at the thought of losing me—and: 'Go and tell her you hold her to her joke!' says she."

"Oh, major—I—mean Alexander! She must be a—a very—" Miss Priscilla's gentle little voice broke suddenly before an adjective came.

"Not a word against her, Priscilla!" the old soldier wheeled around fiercely—"she's the sweetest woman, barring one"—his rugged face softened into sudden tenderness—"who might have known that a heart which she stole when its owner was in petticoats and—bless me what does the old lady want this time?"

Betsy was knocking persistently on a half-opened door.

"It's that stupid boy from the printer's at the end of the road again, mum," she said in answer to a timid inquiry. "He still holds to it that he left a bill here yesterday by mistake. It's in my mind now that maybe it's a note I took from the letter box and slipped at the back of the clock to wait for you."—The Woman at Home.

A Teasing Husband.

The inflection of the voice in remarking on the most commonplace happening can dignify it with wholly fictitious importance, just as the tone can belittle a subject of real importance. The former was demonstrated this last summer to the great amusement of the people at an inland lake.

A party of three—young Mr. and Mrs. and an odd man—were rowing. It might be remarked that the young husband is accused by his wife of being a "terrific tease." As they approached a boat in which an aged, lone fisherman sat patiently watching his line and smoking a short "cutty" pipe, the young husband whispered hoarsely in tones of horror: "Look! Look! He's smoking his pipe upside down! Great Heavens!"

His wife looked up in alarm at the implied horror in his voice, and gazing in the direction in which her husband was pointing saw the old fisherman, his pipe gripped in his teeth with the bowl inverted.

His danger was not apparent to the unsophisticated little woman; but surely, her husband knew, and his manner and voice betrayed some great impending danger.

"Oh, Bob! The poor man! Tell him quick! Please do!" she gasped, with the fear of some catastrophe tugging at her heart.

The gale of laughter that followed apprised her of the fact that once more that "terrific tease" of a husband had betrayed her confiding nature.—Sunday Magazine.

The Hygienic Value of Sunday.

Sunday is not only a religious, but a hygienic institution. It is beneficient in its uses, morally and physically. How workers should best spend the Sunday is still a moot question, but that it should be a time of soul refreshment and recreation, a moment, as Miss Corelli expresses it, "for standing and taking breath on the threshold of another week," a season for thought, for intellectual enjoyment, for the solace of nature and the admiration of its wonders and beauty, no sensible person will be likely to deny. Whether motoring or card playing is the best way to attain these ends must be left to each individual's judgment.—Lady Violet Greville, in the London Graphic.

Wonderful Cluster of Pearls.

The most extraordinary pearl, or, rather, cluster of pearls, known as "The Southern Cross," is owned by a syndicate of Australian gentlemen, who value it at $50,000. So far as is known it occupies an absolutely unique position: It consists of nine pearls naturally grown together in so regular a manner as to form a perfect Latin cross. The pearl was discovered by a pearl fisher at Roebourne, West Australia. The first owner regarded it with so much superstition that he buried it, but it was discovered in 1874 and five years later was placed on exhibition in Australia.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Mrs. Rosa Adams, niece of the late General Roger Hanson, C. S. A., wants every woman to know of the wonders accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot tell you with pen and ink what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me, suffering from the ills peculiar to the sex, extreme lassitude and that all gone feeling. I would rise from my bed in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed, but before I had used two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to feel the buoyancy of my younger days returning, became regular, could do more work and not feel tired than I had ever been able to do before, so I continued to use it until I was restored to perfect health. It is indeed a boon to sick women and I heartily recommend it. Yours very truly, MRS. ROSA ADAMS, 819 12th St., Louisville, Ky."

Any women who are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, general debility, and nervous prostration, should know there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. No other medicine for women has received such wide-spread and unqualified indorsement. No other medicine has such a record of female cures.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am very pleased to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for womb and ovarian difficulties from which I have been a sufferer for years. It was the only medicine which was at all beneficial, and within a week after I started to use it, there was a great change in my feelings and looks. I used it for a little over three months, and at the end of that time I suffered no pain at the menstrual period, nor was I troubled with those distressing pains which compelled me to go to bed, and I have not had a headache since. This is nearly a year ago. I always keep a bottle on hand, and take a few doses every week, for I find that it tones up the system and keeps me feeling strong, and I never have that tired out feeling any more.

"I certainly think that every woman ought to try this grand medicine, for it would prove its worth. Yours very truly, MISS ELSIE DANFORTH, 765 De Soto St., Memphis, Tenn."

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham. She will understand your case perfectly, and will treat you with kindness. Her advice is free, and the address is Lynn, Mass. No woman ever regretted having written her, and she has helped thousands.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.
Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

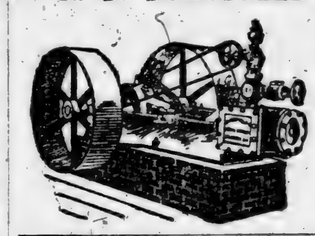
Cascarets

CANDY CATHARTIC

GUARANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, pains after eating, liver trouble, sallow skin and dizziness. When your bowels don't move regularly you are sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It starts chronic ailments and long years of suffering. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS today, for you will never get well and stay well until you get your bowels right. Take our advice, start with Cascarets today under absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Never sold in bulk. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York. 300

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS COMPANY

MANUFACTURERS



High Pressure Return Tubular Boilers
Morison Internally Fired Boilers
High Grade Slide Valve Engines
Transmission Machinery
Heavy Castings
Wrought Iron and Steel Work
Tanks, Stacks and Stand Pipes

Heavy Pipe Work a Specialty

Address Machinery Department
MACON, GEORGIA.

Conditions Unchanged.

London.—Conditions at Port Arthur remain unchanged. The Japs have the upper hand and are entrenching themselves in safe and comfortable quarters.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

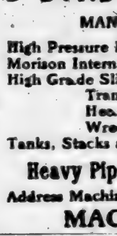
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on box. 25c.

Paris, like London, is deserting the theatres for the music halls.

HOLIDAY EXCURSION RATES

via the Southern Railway. For Christmas holidays the Southern Railway will sell tickets from all stations at the very low rate of one and one third fare for the round trip. Tickets will be sold on December 23rd, 24th, 25th and 31st, 1904, and January 1st, 1905, limited returning January 4th, 1905. Students rates. Tickets will also be sold to students of schools and colleges, upon presentation of certificates signed by Principals or Presidents thereof, December 17th to 23th, inclusive, with final limit January 9th, 1905. For full information and tickets, apply to any agent of the Southern Railway. J. M. Harrison, District Passenger Agent, or R. H. Creagh, Traveling Passenger Agent, Birmingham, Ala.

Just think of Solomon with all his wives trying to keep track of his various wedding anniversaries.



Dropsy CURED

Gives Quick Relief.

Removes all swelling in 5 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing more for sufferers. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

No More Blind Horses For Specific Opthalmia (Moon Blindness) it cures. Cures Eyes, Barry Co., Iowa City, Ia., have a sure cure.

Am. 52, 1904.

I PREVENT TEETH FROM DECAY!

Write for Information FREE.
DR. C. VAUGHAN, Washington, D. C.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

...OR GUN SWEPT

...Harbor Cleaned of Ship... by Metre Hill Fire.

BATTLESHIP SEVASTOPOL SUNK

Little Action in the North—General Kaulbars Joins General Kuropatkin in Council of War—Eight Russians Escape From Port Arthur to Chefoo Where They Arrived Nearly Frozen.

Tokio, Japan. The Third Army headquarters confirmed the report that the battleship Sevastopol was down both at the bow and the stern, and to all appearances was damaged beyond repair. The warship was on the westerly side of the Tiger's Tail cliffs, where the water is shallow. One of her funnels has been blown to pieces. The harbor ironclad Otyabui is sunk by the stern, and an army transport which was in the inner bay near the Sevastopol is no longer visible. There is now no warship afloat in Port Arthur Harbor except the torpedo boat destroyers, which are hidden in one of the necks of the Tiger's peninsula.

Additional naval guns have been landed at Pigeon Bay and drawn to the peaks of the chain of table lands called 203-Metre Hill. They have been bombarding the new town of Port Arthur, and the remaining Government buildings were in flames. When this work has been accomplished the guns will be turned on the Russian fortifications built on the crests south of Ruling and Kekwan mountains, the last remaining defenses north of Port Arthur proper. A supplementary report of the Japanese Third Army announces the total losses in the month of November at 14,202, of which the dead number 3711.

Mukden.—Before dawn the Japanese centre east of the railroad and south of the Sha River began a general artillery fire on the Russian defenses to the north. At 8 o'clock in the morning the engagement was general on a line three miles wide, but little damage was done. The Japanese centre has been quiet for thirty-six days and just the purpose of the artillery fire was unknown. No movement was made by the enemy's infantry and the Japanese left army did not leave its entrenchments west of the Great Mandarin road.

General Kaulbars, commander of the Third Army, arrived from Harbin and was received by Generals Sakharoff and Bildering with a guard of honor, headed by music. The General then continued his journey to Chansiatun, where he had a conference with General Kuropatkin. There was an unconfirmed report that a column of the Japanese left army with some guns has made the neighborhood of Simintin, about thirty miles west of Mukden. All the wells are frozen up, and it is necessary for the commanders of both armies to obtain their supply of water from the Hun and Sha rivers.

Chefoo.—Eight Russians arrived in a sailboat from Port Arthur. They were nearly frozen when they made this port. While they came in plain clothes, it is understood that they are officers of high rank from the warships, who are to make their way to some point and meet the Baltic fleet. They carried dispatches for the Czar. They declined to say anything beyond announcing that in the last two weeks three steamers, with ammunition and provisions, had run the blockade of Port Arthur.

MIRSKY FORBIDS A DEBATE.

St. Petersburg City Councillors Denounce the Interior Minister.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—An adjourned meeting of the St. Petersburg City Council was held for the purpose of discussing the advisability of indorsing the demand of the Moscow Municipality for constitutional reforms.

The President of the Council announced that, owing to unforeseen circumstances which he could not disclose, the debate could not proceed.

The announcement occasioned a noisy scene. Many councillors angrily protested and left the chamber.

Later they held a private meeting at which Minister of the Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky was denounced for prohibiting the debate.

GIVES $100,000 TO COLLEGE.

Donation by Ralph Voorhees of New Jersey to Tennessee Institution.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Maryville (Tenn.) College has received a donation of $100,000 from the blind philanthropist, Ralph Voorhees, of New Jersey.

Dr. Samuel T. Wilson, President of the college, received the check, but kept the donation a secret until chapel exercises.

Fifteen thousands dollars are to be spent in building a chapel and assembly hall, and $85,000 will go into the endowment fund.

TO RUSH WORK ON ST. MARK'S.

Italian Government Orders Immediate Repairs to Venice Church.

Rome, Italy.—The Government has ordered the immediate execution of those repairs to St. Mark's at Venice which are of an urgent character.

The Government directs that everything necessary be done to prevent any damage to the Basilica.

Postoffice Robbed.

Eutaw.—The safe in the postoffice was blown open Saturday night and stamps and money to the amount of $1,500 stolen.

Home for Xmas.

Washington.—So many members of congress have gone to their homes for the holidays that it seems that a quorum may have been broken.

KILLED ON BATTLESHIP

United States War Vessel Massachusetts Sustains Injuries.

Three Steamfitters Instantly Killed by Explosion and Four Others Were Severely Injured—Heroism of Officer.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A terrific explosion on the battleship Massachusetts at League Island Navy Yard caused the instant death of three men, whose bodies were fearfully mangled, fatal injuries to a fourth and severe scalds to three others. One of the injured men, the chief engineer of the vessel, was injured in an attempt to save the lives of the victims, who were imprisoned in the engine room, where the explosion took place. The explosion closed the automatic doors, making escape impossible.

The dead are Edward J. Bubb, No. 2634 Beech street; Andrew Hamilton, of No. 1331 East Hewson street; Chas. Ripzel, of No. 527 West Second street, Chester, all boilermakers. The clothing of all the men was torn from them and they were scalded by steam and hot water.

Lieutenant W. C. Cole, U. S. N., chief engineer of the battleship, scalded about the arms and body and severely cut and bruised, was sent to the naval hospital.

The men were employed by a steam fitter, who was installing a new boiler in the Massachusetts. The work was practically completed, and a force of five men were putting the finishing touches to the job. They were working on what is known as boiler C, on the starboard side of the big battleship, and had placed the cover on the manhole. They were screwing the lid into position, when the gasket, or washer, gave way. There was a terrific explosion, which resounded throughout the entire yard and caused the great ship to quiver.

In an instant the boiler room filled with steam, and the hot water from the boiler poured out in torrents. Those who were able dashed for the doors, but, to their dismay, found egress closed, as the force of the explosion had blown the automatic doors so tightly into their sockets that it was impossible to move them.

Lieutenant Cole, as chief engineer of the Massachusetts, had supervision of the work. He was standing near the boiler room when the accident occurred. He sprang for the doors, and found them securely wedged. Knowing the peril of those within, the lieutenant enlisted the aid of those nearest him, and forced an entrance. He found himself confronted by a scalding cloud of steam, and in the darkness struck his head against the iron walls of the compartment. He finally stumbled over the body of one of the victims, and it was dragged out.

Any further attempt at rescue was halted by the flood of water, so the order was given to turn a stream of cold water into the boiler room. When the temperature had been reduced to a safe degree a rescue party carried out the remaining dead and injured.

The ship itself sustained no damage beyond the broken gasket.

Commandant Dickens at once ordered an inquiry to be set on foot to determine the responsibility for the gasket's breaking.

HE TRADED OFF HIS WIFE.

She Wouldn't Go—Husband in Jail, Other Man in Peril.

Middlesborough, Ky.—Joseph Beasley, living not far from Roxbury, tired of his wife and traded her off to John Samuels, a neighbor, for an accordeon.

Mrs. Beasley refused to acquiesce and Samuels tied her hands and feet, put her into his wagon, and took her home. Mrs. Beasley escaped and swore out a warrant for both men. Beasley was found playing his musical instrument, but threw it aside to fight the officers.

Samuels says he will sue Beasley. Mrs. Beasley is now in charge of the Beasley home and Beasley is in jail as he cannot pay a fine for desertion. Samuels is charged with assault.

The accordeon was worth perhaps seventy-five cents.

GRIGGS' DAUGHTER ROBBED.

Returns From City to Find Wedding Gifts Worth $1000 Gone.

Paterson, N. J.—Mrs. Lelia Huntoon, daughter of former Attorney-General John W. Griggs, spent the day in New York City shopping.

When she returned home in the evening she found that burglars had broken into her home and carried off silverware worth about $1000. Most of the articles taken were wedding gifts.

Mr. Huntoon was absent from the city on business, thus leaving the house alone.

STEAMER BUCKINGHAM LOST.

Schooners Sent to Carry Crew and Passengers to Colon.

Colon.—The British steamer Buckingham, from Baltimore, having on board a cargo for the United Fruit Company at Bocas del Toro, Panama, struck on Roncador Bank at 3 a. m. and is a total wreck.

For Central's New Terminal.

The New York Central Railroad bought the Grand Central Palace and another block in New York City for its new terminal, paying $2,500,000. The amusement hall, second largest in the city, will be torn down.

Seven Houses Burned.

Jasper.—Seven houses belonging to Dr. J. M. Miller were burned at Cordova. The loss is about $3,000, with $1,500 insurance.

Huntsville Water O. K.

Huntsville.—The water in the Huntsville spring has been analyzed by Prof. Ross, of Auburn, and found to be absolutely without impurity.

ST. PETERSBURG WORKING CLASSES

Various Pursuits in Which They Are Employed ---Bad Conditions of Life From Which the Industrial Population Suffers --- A Typical Russian Factory --- Labor Enactments ... a Very Backward State. - - -

THE conditions of the working classes in Russia are the outcome of certain peculiar features of national economy which existed in no other country, at all events, in modern times. Russian industries were originally either the result of State action (the so-called "possession factories"), or that of the enterprise of landowners who used a part of their serfs to work their mills (the "proprietary factories"). In most cases the enormous majority of the workmen employed were occupied in industrial pursuits only during the winter, returning in the summer to their villages to attend to agricultural labors. This state of affairs was in part due to the serf system, which tied the peasant to the soil and only allowed him to leave it temporarily; but it has outlasted serfage, and obtains to some extent even to this day. Wages are 10 to 20 per cent. higher in summer than in winter, and there is usually a shifting of hands at Easter and in November, so that in many factories the majority of the men are changed every six months. But a permanent factory class has gradually been growing up in Russia, and now there are few important factories where the number of men employed during the summer is appreciably less than in the winter. This is particularly the case in St. Petersburg, where the large factories are worked on modern industrial lines, and the working-class population is beginning to resemble that of other countries.

Labor legislation, however, is still in a very backward state, as the authorities are always extraordinarily nervous lest anything done in favor of the working classes might forment a desire for liberties of a political character.

Hours of labor, which were formerly unlimited have now been fixed at eleven and a half, but in some establishments they are voluntarily reduced to ten and a half or eleven, and in many cases no night work is done at all. But it is in the conditions of life that the Russian industrial population is particularly badly off.

The typical Russian factory was a vast establishment, usually in a rural district at some distance from a town, but forming a large village or small town in itself. Here the workmen were lodged, fed, clothed, educated, amused, and policed by the factory owners and formed a little world to themselves. But with the growth of the industrial movement in the towns these conditions have to a great extent ceased to be. At the same time, while agriculture no longer supports anything like the whole population, the industrial development is not yet sufficient to deal with the surplus, and the supply of labor is always far in excess of the demand. The conditions of life for working men are exceptionally hard in the large towns, especially in St. Petersburg, where the rents are very high. The squalor of working men's dwellings is such as would not be tolerated in other countries. The Government has done nothing to bring about an improvement in this connection. It regards ordinary artisans with suspicion, and actually places difficulties in the way of their settling down in large numbers in any particular quarter of the town most convenient to their work, as it fears that close contact may generate dangerous political movements and facilitate revolutionary propoganda. Everything that has been done to improve their lot is due to the philanthropic initiative of certain firms. The ordinary lodging houses of the Russian workmen are simply unspeakable. To find seventeen or eighteen persons of four or five different families is by no means uncommon, and, in fact, it is quite a common occurrence to find corners of rooms are let separately. Working men's wages range in St. Petersburg from sixty kopecks a day to three rubles for the foreman (57 cents to $1.60), but in many instances they are even lower. Rents, on the other hand, are proportionately very high. In one large factory in St. Petersburg, in which some 7000 hands are employed, a good deal has been done for the benefit of the workmen, somewhat on the lines the old Russian factories. Large tenements have been built, sheltering 1500 out of the 7000 persons employed; a certain number of the employes whose continual presence on the premises is desirable are lodged free, and in these cases there is no limit as to overcrowding. The rest are lodged at the rate of nine rubles a month ($4.75) for one room, and here the company has fixed a limit of six persons per room. The law has established no limitation. The management of this firm is trying to instil the necessity for cleanliness into the workmen, but as a rule their conditions are of the filthiest. There is a difference, however, in favor of the workmen of non-Russian extraction—Germans, Finns, etc.—who seem to be better in every way. The Russian workman works hard and steadily, and learns easily, but he has absolutely no ideas of his own or initiative. He will do what he is told, but does not care to know why he is doing it.

Another philanthropic work undertaken by the same firm is the establishment of schools for the children of the employes.

Another factory which I visited was a large cotton mill belonging to a Russian company, but worked largely under English management. It employs some 600 or 700 men and women (no children). The English overseers seemed to be satisfied with the Russian workmen as a whole, and were of opinion that if they were better paid, lived in better lodgings, and had better food they would be equal to the workmen of most other countries; but in the conditions in which they exist no real improvement is possible. The average wage being twenty to twenty-two rubles or $10.50 to $11.50 a month (in many cases it is even less), a large part of which goes in house rent, they cannot grow up healthy or with highly developed intelligence. In his ten or eleven hours a day he does less work and less good work than an English or American workman in eight or nine. Nor can education mend matters to any great extent, as the Government purposely discourages it, again for political reasons.

Another system which tends to depress the Russian working classes is the credit system which obtains in the provision shops and eating-houses. Each workman has a credit book at the eating house which he frequents, and his debt is allowed to mount up until pay day (which is usually once a fortnight or once a month). Then he pays if he can, and if not the credit is carried on, but one-quarter of his wages can be seized by the shopman. If the artisan loses his employment supplies are cut off until he gets another job. Thus the one possible advantage of the system—that of giving credit during bad times—is done away with. If he obtains another job the shopman is down on him at once, and again retains a quarter of his wages from his new employer. Owing to the passport system all escape is impossible. In some cases the shop belongs to the employer, and thus we have the truck system in its worst form. If, on the other hand, the debt is paid and anything remains over, it is all spent in vodka. The Russian is naturally inclined to drunkenness—even in the highest circles of society it is by no means uncommon for men to get drunk every night after dinner—and for the poor it is the only pleasure in life. Attempts have been made in St. Petersburg by the Temperance Society to instill a taste for rational amusements unaccompanied by alcohol among the lower classes, and the handsome and well-managed Narodny Dom (People's House) was started for this object. There one can enjoy music, light, warmth, and cheerful surroundings for ten copecks, while at the same time good refreshments are supplied at moderate prices. But the place has become chiefly the resort of the lower bourgeoisie. The working man does not go there, for he can seldom afford the ten copecks entrance, and even the cheap prices of the food are not cheap enough for him. If he has a little money to spare he prefers to spend on drink, and although the total quantity which he consumes in a year is not large, he takes enough each time to make himself thoroughly drunk. It may be said that the wretched conditions of the industrial classes are no worse than those in which their peasant fathers and mothers lived. But, apart from the fact that the food in the latter case was often really better than in the former and the overcrowding less great, the country air and the country life tended to make up for otherwise unsatisfactory conditions, whereas Russian workmen in the factories suffer all the disadvantages of industrial civilization without its compensations.—London Times Correspondence.

No Porter Needed to Guard.

"Some people," remarked an employe at Broad Street Station, "have their own ways of doing things. The other day a party of four persons arrived at this station from one of the summer resorts. They were laden with a miscellaneous assortment of luggage, and the head of the family had an immense white bulldog. The luggage was so heavy that they were compelled to call upon the porters for help.

"When they reached the cafe door they directed the porters to pile the luggage in a heap on the floor. Then, their request being complied with, they placed the bulldog on the top of the heap and went into the restaurant and dined, failing to appear for two hours.

"In the meanwhile the dog was 'monarch of all he surveyed,' for none dared go nearer than ten feet of him.

"The party finally took a train to one of the suburbs."—Philadelphia Press.

Natural Ignorance.

Miss Marie Manning, the author of "Judith of the Plains," tells this incident of her recent European trip. The novelist was seeing Rome for the first time, and in the course of her sight-seeing was anxious to include a visit to the tomb of Caesar. Meeting a citizen on the street she inquired, in her best Italian, the location of the tomb.

The man looked greatly embarrassed.

"I am desolated, Signorina," he apologized, speaking in excellent English, "I do not know. Caesar has been dead so long."—Harper's Weekly.

...the Pettigrew Scheme.

...offer, however, is recognized ...y by people familiar with the ...er as a part of the grand scheme ... Former Senator Pettigrew, of ...th Dakota, to collect about $20,000,000 on ancient obligations of southern states.

Those obligations were issued soon ...ter the war, when the southern ...ates were under carpetbag administrations and were in the main for the construction of new railroads. When Pettigrew was in the senate he learned that the state of North Carolina had a great amount of such bonds outstanding. They were in private hands and uncollectable, because a private individual could not sue a state. Pettigrew secured a contract under which he was guaranteed 40 per cent of all he could collect on bonds of North Carolina, at that time held in New York. He discovered that one state could sue another and make it hold. Accordingly he had the owners of the North Carolina bonds donate $1,000 of them to the state of South Dakota in trust for the state university at Vermillion. Pettigrew, as senator, was the state boss, and instructed his governor and legislature to accept the bonds and then begin suit against North Carolina for collection. The suit went to the United States supreme court, and there was argued three times by Robert W. Stewart, attorney general for South Dakota. After long consideration the federal supreme court, by a vote of 5 to 4, decided that the state of South Dakota was entitled to collect and gave judgment for the principal and interest of the bonds, amounting to nearly $30,000.

Contracts to Get Millions.

Meantime Pettigrew had retired from the senate. He did not appear in the litigation, but he had hunted up the holders of extensive issues on southern state bonds, and made contracts with them for the collection of their claims. He had contracted to collect between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. He was to receive from 15 to 40 per cent of all collections. This much is definitely known. When the North Carolina judgment was secured Senator Pettigrew confided to friends that it paved the way to the collection of his entire series of claims and that it would be worth about $2,000,000 to him. It was understood that the plan was, in each case, to have a few of the bonds of each state given to some other state. This would give standing in court and a judgment could be secured. This done, intervention in behalf of the other bondholders is to be the next step. It will be set up that one class of creditors can not be paid without consideration of another, and so the effort will be to bring in all private bondholders, under cover of the suits brought originally in the name of a state.

The Carolina Case.

One state may sue another and one state having done so, there is no reason why a private individual may not interfere. In the North Carolina case it has been ordered that there shall be judgment issued against the state early in 1905 for the principal and accrued interest. Meantime various disinterested states are to be asked to accept gifts of bonds in order that suit may be begun in their names. Iowa, so far as known, is the first to be offered a donation. It is generally believed, on account of the publicity of the matter, that the state will reject the offer. There is little disposi...

...many ...been re... ...ears; that ...sustain suit ...one state can ...of Iowa could ...ect the amount. ...accrued interest ...er cent of the prin...

...mmins was away from ...n the offer was received ...cial answer has been

Democrats Are With Roosevelt.

Washington—Under the leadership of Representative Williams, the house democrats are going to urge upon the republican majority the passage of interstate commerce commission legislation so forcibly set forth in the president's message. Representative Williams has introduced a bill along the same line as those introduced by Representative Cooper and Senator Quarles, only that it is a simpler bill and meets the issue directly.

"After the Christmas recess," said Mr. Williams, "I shall make a fight in the house for the enactment of this legislation. I am not wedded to my bill or to any other bill, but am convinced that the principal is right. In my last stand pat speech I asked the republicans whether they intended to stand pat on their partial opposition to the principle which the president has now so strongly urged upon the attention of congress.

"So far as the house is concerned the situation is simple. The democrats are in favor of it and the only thing needed is enough additional votes for the republicans to pass the measure in the house. The great obstacle is in the house committee, which has taken no action of any consequence."

Senator Cullom, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, said he had been interested in this question a long time, although most of his attention was necessarily devoted to the heavy work of the foreign relations committee. He said he favored the proposition of the president and believed the rate when fixed should become immediately effective. He was inclined to favor the proposition of Senator Elkins or that of Secretary Morton providing for the establishment of interstate commerce courts to relieve the interstate commission of the work.

Give Up the Fight.

Representative Crumpacker and the eastern republican papers announced today that they have given up the southern reduction fight "for this session."

Colonel Jones' Report.

Montgomery, Ala.—The total revenue collected or in process of collection for the state of Alabama and forty-nine counties under the tax commission law for the year ending September 30, 1904, is $200,699.71.

Under the same law the total increase in valuations by raises on undervaluations of property and detection of escaped taxes is $14,075,604.91 for the year ending September 30th, 1904.

These figures were disclosed in the annual report of State Tax Commissioner Harvey E. Jones to State Auditor T. L. Sowell.

Explosion on Battleship.

Philadelphia—Three men were killed and two others were so badly injured that they died an hour later by an explosion of a boiler on the battleship Massachusetts, which is lying at League Island navy yard.

There were half a dozen men at work in the boiler room when the explosion occurred.

The gasket on the boilers blew out and the force of the explosion closed the automatic door, thus preventing the escape of the men from the compartment.

Lieutenant Cole, chief engineer of the battleship, was scalded, but not fatally.

Blue and Gray Will Meet.

New Smyrna, Fla.—The St. Louis committee of five union and five confederate soldiers, appointed at the preliminary meeting of the blue and gray, which was held in the hall of congresses on the world's fair ground, St. Louis, has fixed May 10, 1905, as the opening date for meetings in Washington, D. C.

Camps and posts, north and south, will be represented. Prominent men who were leaders in the union and confederate armies will address the veterans, and the fortieth anniversary of the close of the civil war will be appropriately celebrated.

New Cutter for the Gulf.

Washington—The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce today authorized a favorable report on a bill providing for the construction of a revenue cutter for use in the gulf of Mexico, with headquarters at New Orleans. The cutter is to cost not exceeding $200,000.

THE UN

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NO

VOL. II. CLANTON, ALA., DECEMBER 29, 1904.

ALABAMA STATE NEWS

portant Cases Filed in Supreme Court. Men From All Over State Attend

COSSIP AT THE CAPITAL.

ung Man Receives Creck for $1,000 as Token of Gratitude for Saving Life.

Montgomery, Ala.—Many cases of portance were presented to the Ala na supreme court, among them be the one recently filed with the rk attacking the criminal court of fferson county, and seeking to have consolidated court of Jefferson nty declared uncon stitutional, reln ted. It is claimed in the petition rule nist filed, that the criminal rt is without authority of law in ch as it was repealed by the act ating the consolidated court. ough this letter has been outlawed the supreme court, the same ques s are up in the contentions incl to the Fourteenth and Fifteenth uits, and there is a hope that the er court will take a different view ffect reverse itself.

wo cases were presented wherein ntained the vexatious question of of succession in county office. se are Morrow vs. Miller, from ker county, and Hasty vs. Prowell, Marengo county. The whole list unty officers in Walker will hang he decision in this case, which is mitted on quo warranto proceed in order to get a ruling as quick as possible. Prowell is the old ate judge in Marengo, and re s to vacate for Hasty, the new . As in all these cases the point nade that while the constitution all officers must be elected No ber 8, the law stipulates that they to go into office on November 3, after election, which if taken ally, would carry it over to next . The attorney general has ruled, ever, that the intent of the con ution makers was to have the law nged to make the time of succes right, and that the new men are led to go in as soon as qualified. her cases presented were the as corpus proceedings of Scott tnutt, charged with gaming in nta, and out on bond pending ap from the decision of the lower to send him back to the Georgia Dan Stallings, habeas corpus, wherein he was allowed bail in the um of $3,000, and the state is appealing. Stallings having killed his brother-in-law, Radford Buckhalts, at Greenville, some weeks ago. Divorce roceedings of F. C. Randolph against his wife, and his wife against him, cross bills, turned down by the city court. Albert Russell and J. E. Driscoll, serving sentence of twenty years each for robbing E. E. Forbes' music store.

Clay County Court.

Two cases involving the county court of Clay county were handed down. In one it was held that the act passed in 1903 repealing this court was invalid because of lack of advertising, and the old court was re-established. In the other it was held that that part of the law creating the county court which undertook to take the criminal jurisdiction of the circuit court of the same county was without authority, as this jurisdiction is given by the constitution. Also that the effort to have the cases taken up in the county court on information was null because the constitution provides that the circuit court can only handle those cases which are presented on indictment save as it may be an appelate court for county tribunal to review its decisions.

The supreme court also refused to take up anew the appeal of John Gater from Parry county, sentenced to hang last September. A new day of execution was fixed for February 10. Gater killed another negro named Will Whitehead while shooting at Mr. John Hardie, a white man, with whom he had had some trouble.

New Convict Trade.

Twenty-two convicts were received from the county of Montgomery. A one-armed man and a very old man with two women were sent to the cordage works in Montgomery. The others are at Speigner, awaiting transfer to N. A. Thaggard, in Coffee county, where the state will have fifty men after the first of the year, and will work them direct as in the mines. J. Wilson, for some time at Speigner, has been appointed warden of the new Coffee county camp.

At a meeting of the trustees of the State Normal School for Negroes the executive committee, consisting of Jefferson Falkner, J. K. Jackson Neal Anderson and W. B. Jones, all of Montgomery, were instructed to proceed at once to rebuild the main structure burned some weks ago. The insuranceinsurance, $21,500, has been paid. This will not be enough to fully cover the loss, but Prof. W. H. Patterson, the president, will see to it that the balance needed will be secured.

J. E. Searcy has been appointed tax assessor and W. J. Whitehead, tax collector of Henry county, both having failed to qualify in the time prescribed by law. Both were elected.

Pleased With Trip.

Hon. J. Kirk Jackson, private secretary to the governer, returned from New York, where he went with Acting Governor R. M. Cunningham to look into a matter of refunding a little over $8,000,000 of the state debt, which will come due in 1906. Mr. Jackson stated that the standing of Alabama in the financial centers of the east is as good as that of any other state, and the matter of a loan is as quickly taken up as it would be from any other commonwealth. He did not care to say what had been done, however, preferring to allow the governor to tell of this part when he returns to his office. Mr. Jackson says they had a nice and very pleasant trip and spent the time in New York profitably to the state he feels sure.

Military in Good Shape.

Adjutant General William W. Brandon says that the military of the state is in the best condition in years, and that the Birmingham contingent was harmonious and working well and effectively. He attended a military smoker early in the week at Birmingham and enjoyed it, and was pleased with the reorganization and prospects of the Jasper company. He also received notice that First Lieutenant F. M. Long, of the Jasper company, had qualified and had his papers approved by Acting Colonel Hughes Kennedy, of the Third regiment.

Convicts on Roads.

The Montgomery county board of revenue will perfect an arrangement by which a number of the convicts will be worked on the roads of the county. It has been decided to lease the prisoners as before, but to reserve the right to keep back as many as are needed for the road work. It will be necessary under this plan to provide guards and sleeping wagons. Several counties have taken up the idea of thus utilizing the convicts and very likely other decisions of like character may be made. If the plan is a success in Montgomery county the number worked on the roads will be gradually increased until most of the quota will be at such service.

Check for Thousand.

W. H. Collins, of this city, has received a check for $1,000 as a token of gratitude from the parents of a young woman saved from drowning by him at Atlantic City last September. Mr. Collins was on the beach when he heard he young woman cry. He sprang in and rescued her just in time. The name of the donor is withheld.

Getting After Lawyers.

The central council of the Alabama Bar Association will hold a meeting in Birmingham to hear complaints against several lawyers of practices not in line with the ethics of the profession. If they are proven true there will likely be some disbarments. The members of the council are W. W. Callahan, Decatur, chairman; Alexander Troy, Montgomery, secretary; C. F. Jones, Montgomery; A. S. Van de Graaf, Tuscaloosa; John London and S. D. Weakley, Birmingham. The recommendations of this council are acted upon by the state authorities.

. . . . . D. D. Knight, sheriff of Coffee county, was in the office of the governor for a requisition for a man who had skipped out to Mississippi, and while it was being filled out he talked of his county. The only thing that he saw in the way of trouble was the fact that the people had bought so many big and expensive mules some of them would not be able to pay for them. He said the sales of mules in his section this fall has been enormous, the price being anywhere from $150 to $225. Mr. Knight says Elba and Enterprise, the leading towns of the county, are having a big and profitable trade and that eastern capital will very probably take hold of the work of developing the immense water power at Elba, begun some time ago.

Cost of Waterworks.

According to an exhaustive report submitted to the council by the waterworks committee, it will cost the city of Montgomery, $194,802 for the proposed improvements in the waterworks system. Bonds in the sum of $200,000 were issued for the improvements.

One Thousand and One Saloons in Alabama.

One thousand and one retail liquor dealers' licenses have been issued by the government in Alabama for the year 1904-05. The fiscal year of the government begins July 1, and no half year licenses are issued.

A SOUND LETTER

First National Bank Makes A Timely Suggestion to The Planters.

TOLD TO PLANT LESS COTTON.

This Would Stimulate Prices for the Present Crop and Would Insure Higher Values Next Year.

The First National bank of Birmingham, has taken the initiative in a movement for an advance in the price of the present crop of cotton with the assurance that next year's crop will yield the farmer an adequate return.

The Letter.

"Cotton as yet shows no signs of recovery from the blow it received from the government estimate of a total production of approximately 12,200,000 bales. During the past three weeks much advice has been given farmers at meetings and conventions held at various points in the south, and there is an unmistakable disposition on the part of owners of cotton to hold it for higher prices. The producer of cotton is no doubt better able to hold it this year than ever before, but the law of supply and demand is inexorable, and if the problem resolves itself into a test of the farmers' ability to hold on the one hand, and the spinners' power to postpone full purchases on the other, it would seem that the farmers are in danger of being worsted in the end, particularly if the government estimate should be verified by later developments. The knowledge that a large mass of cotton is stored away to be sold a few months later on cannot but have a depressing effect upon the market, unless other influences are brought to bear to create confidence in the staple and to stimulate the demand.

Reduce the Acreage.

"Cotton is produced by hundreds of thousands of individuals acting independently, and any proposition relating to its marketing to be effective must be taken up with the individual as a unit. Bankers and merchants come in close contact with the producers of cotton, and they should make it a point to impress upon all within their sphere of influence the fact that a crop of eleven million bales will sell for more money than one of twelve or thirteen million bales. They should insist upon all farmers under obligations to them, or who expect to become obligated, reducing their cotton acreage for 1905. If a farmer expresses his intention of planting forty acres in cotton, see to it that he plants only thirty acres. Let him fertilize it well and cultivate it as carefully as he chooses, but be sure that he puts his other ten acres in some other crop than cotton. Put in corn, grain, cowpeas, peanuts, watermelons, or whatever can be sold or used to advantage at home. This policy if generally adhered to would result in such a price for cotton next fall as to make the product of thirty acres more valuable than that of the entire forty acres would have been, and will leave as an additional profit whatever is produced on the ten acres diverted from cotton.

A Moderate Crop.

"The presumption is that even the most persistent holders of cotton will begin to tire in the next ninety days or four months, and it is therefore a perfectly plain proposition that an estimate of acreage in April next year equal to that of 1904 (32,000,000 acres) will, by presaging another bumper crop, still further depress the price of the large amount of cotton in the warehouses at that time. On the other hand, if bankers and merchants generally should be sufficiently persistent and insistent in their demand upon the individual farmer that he reduce his acreage regardless of what his neighbor is doing, the result would be a marked reduction in cotton acreage. If this reduction should be as much as 15 per cent. the announcement of an acreage of less than 28,000,000 acres would carry at once to the minds of the spinners and consumers of cotton goods the conviction that the crop of 1905 would not be more than a moderate one. An immediate demand for cotton would naturally spring up, and the stock on hand would be absorbed at better prices.

"The First National Bank of Birmingham, while in a general way advocating the principle of selling cotton as soon as it is ready for market, has never sought to advise its customers as to selling it or holding it. It has the disposition and ability to assist at this juncture any of its friends on reasonable security, but it is firmly convinced that reduced acreage for 1905 is the correct doctrine.

"THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF BIRMINGHAM."

STORM KING REIGNS

Reports From All Over the Country Tell of Severe Weather.

COLD FROM OHIO TO GULF.

Sleet, Hail and Rain Mark Progress of the Blizzard.—Telegraph Wires Wires Down.— Traffic Seriously Hampered.

Washington:—Reports to the weather bureau say the storm that reached the Oregon coast Saturday morning moved southeastward to the Texas coast, where it was central Monday morning, and thence northeastward into the middle Mississippi valley. In the last twenty-four hours it has increased greatly in intensity, and now forms the most severe wind and rain storm of the season throughout the middle and lower Mississippi valley, Tennessee and the east gulf states. Heavy downpours of rain, accompanied by thunder storms and high shifting winds, have occurred in the lower Mississippi valley, Tennessee and the lower Ohio valley, and rain, sleet and snow in the upper and middle portions of the Mississippi valley and the west portion of the lake region.

Rain, snow or sleet has fallen at practically every station west of the Mississippi, while a cold wave prevails between the Mississippi and the Rocky mountains. The Mississippi valley disturbance will move northeastward during the next thirty-six hours.

Louisville, Ky.—The south has received the first soaking rain in many months. In the territory from the Ohio river to the gulf and from Texas over into Georgia, the spring-like weather of the past few days has been broken by heavy rains, which were preceded by lightning and followed by high winds. In several places a could wave has sent the mercury scurrying to the bulb, a fall of nine degrees in one hour being recorded at Nashville.

In Kentucky the rain was general, the local weather bureau recording the precipitation of 2 inches in Louisville. A fall of temperature of 40 degrees is forecasted. Mountain streams are filling up, and crops will be greatly benefited. A boating stage in the Ohio seems assured, and many places suffering from a shortage of coal will soon have their wants supplied.

There was a miniature cloudburst at Hill City, a suburb of Chattanooga, but no serious damage was done.

A steady, hard rain fell all night at New Orleans, and reports of heavy precipitation have been received from Montgomery, Knoxville, Nashville and Memphis. The telegraph companies are moving business under difficulties, wires being down in many localities.

Damaging Wires.

Madison, Wis.—A heavy sleet and snow storm is prevailing here, and accumulated ice is breaking down trees and telephone wires. The local telephone company places its probable losses at $10,000.

First Severe Storm.

Bloomington, Ill.—The first severe storm of the winter visited central Illinois. Snow is falling fast and the temperature is dropping.

Blinding Storm.

Omaha, Neb.—A forty-mile wind drove before it a blinding snow in eastern Nebraska and Iowa. It is four degrees below zero. Wires are down and traffic delayed.

Blizzard Raging.

Marshaltown, Iowa.—A blizzard is raging here, drifts of snow are five and six feet high.

Heavy Fall.

LaCrosse, Wis.—It is storming heavily here. A foot of snow fell during the night. Trains are delayed.

Four Inches of Snow.

Superior, Wis.—Trains are delayed from one to four hours by a blizzard which has prevailed since Monday night. Four inches of snow has fallen.

Dresden.—The former Crown Princess Louise arrived here unexpectedly. Accompanied by a lawyer she proceeded to the Taschenberg palace and asked to be permitted to see her children. Permission, however, was peremptorily refused and the princess announced her intention of leaving Dresden in the afternoon. King Frederick Augustus, who is on a shooting expedition, has been informed of the arrival of his former wife. The princess voluntarily left the city later for Leipsic. An immense cheering crowd escorted her to the railroad station.

A Truly Favored S[illegible]

In an interesting little sket[illegible] cotton which recently appear[illegible] "The Children's Visitor," Mr. W[illegible] Melton says: "Cotton has been and the vegetable history maker, especially in our southern country." Quite so. And Mr. Melton adds that cotton has made and is making the south as truly as the south has made and is making cotton. That the south depends largely upon cotton for its source of wealth and prosperity is still true. During the last two years that staple has done wonders for the improvement of conditions in the south, and there is no doubt that it will continue to do so. But the south is reaching out and waking up to the importance more than ever before of developing its variety of resources. A comparatively few years ago little was being done in the south in the industrial line. Now the industrial activity in this section is little short of marvelous. As Mr. Melton says: "Was any section ever so blessed? Iron and coal under the ground, cotton on top of the ground, cotton gins and iron furnaces side by side, cotton factories and steel mills in sight of each other, the finished product exported instead of the raw material, and used at home instead of being imported."

The material is all here, the labor conditions are favorable, the transportation facilities are adequate and indeed the south offers every inducement to the capitalist and the industrious workman to contribute of their means and energies to the development of the vast resources of this section. And they will find it profitable. "The old advice to go west, young man, is no longer given by those who know the conditions of the south. The outside world is gradually waking up to the advantages which this section offers. It remains for the business men of the south, the railroad interests, the commercial bodies and the agricultural departments of the several states to give their hearty co-operation in the work of distributing broadcast information about the south which will set forth to, desirable home-seekers and immigrants the true conditions and the many inducements offered those who are willing to work.

Big Gain on Poll Tax.

Montgomery, Ala.—The poll tax collections for the state of Alabama for the year 1903 were $132,663, paid by 79,151 persons.

Of this amount $11,347.50 were back taxes for 1902, and $2,589 back taxes for 1901. Thus the total for 1903 proper was $118,726. The collections in 1902 were $101,814, and in 1901, $141,868.

Some interesting figures are shown in the payments of the 1903 tax by counties. Jefferson led with $12,213, Mobile following with $5,073, Montgomery with $3,816, and Walker, $3,925.50. Tuskaloosa paid $3,205.50; Madison, $3,096; Cullman $2,968.50, Calhoun, $2,443; DeKalb $2,790. Etowah $2,485, Jackson $2,425.50, Marshall $2,403, Morgan, $2,665.50, Randolph, $2,283, Shelby $2,821,50, Tallapoosa $2,275.50, Winston, $1,504.50. Blount $2,214. Chilton $1,912; Clay $2,215, Coffee $2,058, Covington $2,191.50; Lauderdale $2,013, Marengo $1,974, Marion $1,995, Pike $1,995.50, St. Clair $1,774.50, Talladega $1,809.

Etowah, DeKalb, Cullman, St. Clair, Clay and Winston counties made big showings because of the hard congressional fight. No one could vote who had not paid his poll tax for the years 1901, 1902 and 1903. County contests caused heavy payments in many other cases.

Governor at Work.

Acting Governor Cunningham arrived in Montgomery, after spending the holiday at his home in Ensley. He appeared to be in his usual good spirits and remarked that he had spent a very good Christmas. "It was quiet and very pleasant," he said.

Referring to his recent trip to the north, he declined to make any statement other than that his principal object was to investigate ways and means to liquidate the state debt. He declared himself thoroughly satisfied with his trip, but was unable to say at the present moment just what his course of action would be.

In reference to the pardoning of the three convicts recently, he stated that he felt fully justified in doing so, as he knew the men personally, and that it was but an act of mercy to pardon them. He declared that it was his policy to pardon very few, as that was the only way in which to teach them that law is and must be respected and the penalty of the law must be suffered by all violaters. He remarked that during his one year's service as chief executive he had pardoned twelve and paroled thirty-five people, several of the pardons being those he had first paroled.

The governor says he will settle down to hard work on his return to the capital city, and in all probability will at once begin to put his plans with regard to the state's debt into execution.

Office,
Courts.
Improved F[illegible]

A. C. Smith.

Smith &
Attorney
Practice in Office 6th St., Opposi[illegible]
CLANTO

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbell
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins,
Physician and Surgeon,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.
Office with Hopkins Drug Co.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 12 a. m.
1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

Home Grown Fruit Trees

I have for sale a fine assortment of fruit trees, particularly adapted to this climate. Peaches, Plums and Apples, of the best varieties for this section, and all guaranteed true to name. Prices Reasonable. J. L. Winslow, Pine Hill Nursery, Thorsby, Ala.

PURE GOODS
The following
SPECIAL BRANDS
always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.

Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

WORSE THAN THE DOG.

She—"You'd better sit by t[illegible] window, dearest, in case [illegible] come into the room and [illegible]

He—"But there's a [illegible] outside, darling."

"I know it, but [illegible] choose the lo[illegible]

tue antedates by centuries the rest works in the world's greatest luseums, and place its value far above that of the best Greek masterpiecea, worth many times their weight in gold. Prof. Harper regards it as one of the most important scientific finds of the age, ranking with the discovery by his expedition of Adab, mentioned in the Code of Hammurabi. Dr. Banks, the famous Assyriologist and Egyptologist, who is in charge of Dr. Harper's party of excavators, in informing the head of the expedition of the existence of the statue, says it was discovered by superatitious Arab workmen, who, noting a white projection in the bank of the trench, fled from the spot in terror. Dr. Banks later dug the statue from the ground with his hands, only to find the head missing. After three weeks the head was found in another part of the ditch. An inscription on the right arm of the statue was translated as follows:

TEMPLE ESHAR
KING DADDU,
KING OF UDNUNKI (ADAB).

Information gathered later by Dr. Banks revealed the fact that King Daddu lived centuries before the City of Naram-Sin, which flourished in 3750 B. C. He places its dates at 4000 B. C. "The statue is 78 centimeters around the bottom of the skirt," writes Dr. Banks. "The upper part of the body is entirely naked and the lower part is clothed in an embroidered skirt of six folds, held up by a band and fastened behind. The back and shoulders are gracefully formed. The arms at the elbows are free from the body and the hands are clasped at the waist; the eyes and eyebrows are now hollows, in which ivory or precious stones were set. This is by far the most perfect and graceful statue yet found in Babylonia."—New York Times.

Dove Committed Suicide.

A Bath, Me., motorman was driving his car to the South End and a flock of doves was on the track. All the birds but one arose as the car approached and took places of safety. That one refused to move even though the motorman struck the gong several times. When the car was almost on the dove the bird walked to the rail, laid flat upon one side and laid its head on the rail and the car passed over it.

Save Their Money Orders.

The postal authorities have discovered that the money order system is now being extensively used by people who like to hoard their money. Those who formerly used their stockings now purchase money orders and lay them away. The order is payable within seven years, and unless destroyed or defaced is as good as a government bond without the interest within the period named.

On Tick.

Births and Deaths Decrease.

Fewer persons died and a smaller number were born throughout England and Wales last year than in 1902 while in London itself both birth and deaths were the fewest recorded for years.

ice Long Asleep.

han 70 years was ar- Vt., a few years ago thirty-eight years with stealing a

NEW CREATIONS.

nges Simply Revolutions of the Wheel.

ion makers have seen fit the leg o' mutton sleeve This is the third time it has en worn in the past seventy-five years. Add the evidence of the too frequent leg o' mution to the fact that the fashion makers have for some time past been digging distractedly among the buried modes of bygone ages and resurrecting many of the most picturesque and striking, such as the Louise, the Directoire and the 1830 styles, and there is reason to believe that really new creations in fashion are extremely few and far between, in spite of the apparently unceasing transformations of woman's attire.

Three Leg o' Muttons in Seventy-Five Years.

The history of fashion confirms this view. In excavating the most ancient of buried cities the original inhabitants are caught, over and over again, wearing ridiculously modern clothes. There is the recent instance of the statue of the goddess, presumably Venus, found in an ancient city in Crete, who wears a gathered skirt, a polonaise and a jacket bodice.

Fox Killed by a Rooster.

When once an animal's temper has become thoroughly aroused, it is strange how utterly regardless it becomes of the strength and ability of the object of its anger.

At Compton Pauncefote, in Somersetshire, England, a fox was killed in a poultry yard by an infuriated cock. It appears that the fox made a raid on the young chicks, and after killing several belonging to certain hens, turned its attention to the brood of another. This conduct, however, the plucky cock would not permit without a struggle, and, rushing at the fox, it was fortunate enough to pierce it in the eye with its spur with such force that the spur penetrated right into the fox's brain, becoming so securely fixed that the victor could not remove it without the assistance of a farm laborer, who had been an interested spectator of the contest between the ill-assorted pair.

Dog Captures a Burglar.

Observing a light in an unoccupied house in Geneva, Switzerland, one night recently, a policeman entered the window and left a trained police dog on guard outside.

Almost immediately a man pushed past him and dashed out of the house, but was promptly seized by the dog, which sprang at his throat.

A terrible struggle ensued, but the animal, although half stunned by blows from a "jimmy," succeeded in bringing the burglar, a notorious criminal, to the ground, where it held him till its master came and secured the captive.

A Roman Relic.

Wonder who got the missing column from the round Temple of Hercules at Rome? It originally was a beautiful piece of granite, as one may judge from the nineteen remaining ones, each of them thirty-two feet high. This structure was probably erected by Pompey, and is remarkable for adroit handling of stone. The walls within the portico are of white marble, much of which still stands. The pieces of it were so deftly put together as to have the appearance of one mass. Builders of to-day may do work as well, but it is doubtful whether the modern arrangement would wear through the ages like that of this Roman ruin. The circumference of the temple is 156 feet and the inner circumference 26 feet. There were other temples of Hercules more pretentious, but none so modestly beautiful as this.—New York Herald.

Found Old Saber.

Nelson Ingalls, Jr., of East Machias, Me., while tearing down what for many years has been known as the old gun shop place, found between the rafters and ceiling an old saber. It was of ancient design and had apparently been concealed there for many years. The building in which it was found was built during the war of 1812 and was used for storing arms and ammunition.

Gave Away Property Too Soon.

Miss Bessie Messing of New Haven, Conn., who gave away all of her property two years ago and went to a hospital, believing herself to be dying, has recovered and leaves the institution a poor person.

Women Blacksmith

In the district about Cridley, England, twenty women work as blacksmiths to every man following the trade. For many generations this work has been almost entirely in feminine hands.

Bull Terrier as Golf Caddie.

A Lowell golf enthusiast has hit upon a novel plan for saving himself much time and exertion in finding the spheres that he loses. He was seized with the idea a few days ago while he was watching his children play with a small bull terrier that he owns. It struck him that he could train the dog to chase golf balls, and show where they were. He had a great deal of trouble teaching the dog to stand near the ball and not pick it up, but finally succeeded.

Sharks Worry Fishermen.

Sharks cause no end of trouble for the fishermen along the New England coast. Several of the fishing boats have had their trawl lines chewed off by rapacious fish as they made for the bait. Hundreds of feet of good lines have been lost this summer. Not only do they lose their lines and hooks, but there is the loss of the bait and the many fish which would have been taken had the lines not been chewed off.

Deer Sought Human Protection.

One day recently a full grown doe chased by a dog sought protection by running up to the flagman's shanty at the Main street railroad crossing at Sherborn, Mass., and stopped to rest within ten feet of Flagman J. E. Holden. Mr. Holden frightened the dog away, thus giving the deer a chance to escape.

Carried Swarming Bees Three Miles.

Leander Cordi, a boy aged 14, of Redding, Cal., walked three miles with a swarm of bees clustered on his right arm from elbow down. He hived the bees at home, was stung only once on the wrist, where he accidentally crushed one of the insects, and is now the hero of the hour.

GOOD HELMET FOR FIREMAN.

Contains Within Itself Sufficient Air to Last an Hour.

An experiment has recently been made in Paris with an ingenious apparatus, inventeyd by Mr. Guglielminetti and M. Draeger, by means of which it is possible to remain without fear of asphyxia in places where it would otherwise be impossible to breathe. The apparatus is automatic; that is, it has no connection with the air outside.

It is composed of a tube containing a provision of oxygen sufficient to last a man for breathing purposes for more than an hour, and a helmet of aluminum fitting the head exactly by means of a pneumatic pad. The oxygen is supplied automatically to the man's mouth and the air exhaled is received in a compressible bag.

It passes through a regenerator with granulated caustic potash, which absorbs all the carbonic acid. A fireman provided with this apparatus went down into a cellar in which piles of damp straw had been lighted, and although there was suffocating smoke from this he remained in it for nearly three-quarters of an hour without being at all inconvenienced by it.—English World's Work.

FEARED FOR HER BABY.

Mother Willing to Sacrifice Herself for Infant.

Mrs. Frank Deida of New Douglas, Ind., through a misstep fell into a well at her home. She plunged down thirty feet, and on coming to the surface of the water she clung to the chain and screamed for help.

To her horror her cries brought her baby to the well curb and it peered down the hole to see what was the matter, creeping perilously over the edge. Fearful that the child might slip and fall into the well, the mother was compelled to cease her cries for assistance. She hung on to the chain for an hour and a quarter before her husband discovered her predicament. —Chicago American.

How Mrs. Deida's baby went to see where its mother was screaming.

Faithful Dog's Death Watch.

It was a dog's bark which drew the attention of a gentleman to the dead body of Duncan Davie, farmer, Woodhall, Dumfriesshire, yesterday, says a Scotch paper.

Mr. Davie had gone out with the animal to look after his stock, and while doing so he was taken ill and died, with only the faithful dog as witness.

The dog guarded the body of his dead master for hours.

Wouldn't Stand for Tattling.

A little boy in Deering, Me., was brought before his father recently and accused of killing a chicken. "Who told you about it?" asked the boy. "The hen did," said the father. Nothing more was said that day, but the next morning the hen was found dead, and the boy being accused of killing it, admitted it, saying in defense, "Yes, I did kill the hen, and I'll kill every hen that tells on me."

Young Woman's Hard Luck.

A young woman got a claim in the valley of the South Canadian river in the new country, for which she was offered $3,000, and which she believed was worth $4,500. A flood covered her farm with from six inches to two feet of sand, and the farm now is worthless.

Bee Works in Darkness.

A bee that works only at night is found in the jungles of India. It is an unusually large insect, the combs being often six feet long, four feet wide, and from four inches to six inches thick.

Sheriff's Natural Longing.

Sheriff Dunham of New Haven county, Conn., would like very much to meet the thief who chloroformed his dog, rifled his buttery and took what money he could find about the house.

THE GRAVE OF HAMLET.

Railway Line To Be Laid to Spot Claimed as Such.

A railway line is to run across the so-called grave of Hamlet, near Marienlyst, a watering place on the northeastern point of the Island of Zealand, close to Helsingor (or, as Shakespeare hath it, Elsinore) and the great castle of Kronborg. Here, looking across the narrow strait to the coast of Sweden, the scene of the greatest masterpiece of English literature is laid, unless Murray can destroy our pleasing illusions with the statement of Hamlet, that "in reality he lived in quite a different part of the country, and a thousand years before Kronborg was built." On the grave is a cairn of stones surmounted by an upright, Runic-looking monolith. Upon the monolith are the words (in modern engraving) "Hamlet's Grave." At any rate, it is a memorial to Hamlet. As a French writer says, "Shakespeare gave immortal life to the beings created by his genius—Ophelia, and Laertes, and Hamlet, and the rest; they are graven in the soul of the people, and the people must render respectful homage to their imaginary names."

"Hamlet's Grave."

Fight With a Big Wildcat.

Farmer John Hillegas this morning discovered that a dozen of his chickens had ben killed during the night, and set out with a hound to seek the marauder. The hound soon ran down a wildcat, and after a furious battle went home with his tail between his legs.

Hillegas returned to the scene of the dog's defeat and found the cat perched in a tree. He fired at it and the cat leaped on his shoulders, sinking its teeth and claws into his flesh. He shook it off and tried to strike it with the gun, but only succeeded in breaking the rifle in two, and the cat promptly made a spring for his throat. Warding it off with his arm, he finally succeeded in striking it with the barrel of the rifle and breaking its back. A second blow beat out the animal's brains. The cat weighed twelve pounds. — Sigmund correspondence Philadelphia Record.

Throne of England.

Some authorities hold that the coronation chair in Westminster abbey is entitled to be called the throne of England, being the one occupied by the sovereign at coronation. Others maintain that the throne in the house of lords is really the official throne as it is occupied by the sovereign for state purposes at the opening of parliament. Others, again, say that there is no real throne in the strictest acceptation of the word, and that all the thrones or chairs of state, in the various palaces throughout the kingdom are equally entitled to be called the throne.

Black Chipmunk Rare.

I have lived in a chipmunk region all my life and have never seen a black one, yet black ones do occur. I have just received a photograph of one seen in the Catskills, and a correspondent at Bath, N. Y., writes me of one she has seen there for two seasons.

I have not yet heard of a black red squirrel, though black gray ones are occasionally seen. Black woodchucks and black foxes are probably the result of the same law of variation.—John Burroughs in Outing.

Embroidery.

The rooster here shown is an easy one for the amateur embroiderer to essay.

Maine Man Caught White Hedgehog.

The white hedgehog captured by Henry Beal of Parkman a few weeks ago has succeeded in making his escape, gnawing through his cage, which was composed of wood covered with fence wire. While in Mr. Beal's possession hundreds came to see him, several coming many miles. Mr. Beal refused several quite large offers for him.—Guilford Citizen.

Power From Artesian Well.

At St. Augustine, Fla., is the only mill in the world that gets its power direct from an artesian well.

SEA PIGEONS IN MILLIONS.

Birds Shut Out Light of Sun on Pacific Coast.

Traveling in immense hordes whi resemble huge black clouds sweepi over the water, millions of sea pigeo came in from the sea last week, clo in the wake of mammoth schools sardines, which they were intent pursuing. Flying three or four de and a score or more abreast, million upon millions of the small birds wer seen floating over Baker's Bay an the lower Columbia, forming a soli but ever changing mass almost in penetrable to the human gaze.

The speed at which they flew wa largely a matter of conjecture, bu probably was not less than fifty mile an hour. One flock of pigeons wa more than two hours passing ov the bar.

Thousands of the birds became en tangled in the mesh of the fish tra nets at high tide, and the weight o their bodies is a serious menace to the gearing.

At sea the pigeons can generally be found where the sardines exist, bu they come to the river every summe Their regular custom is to follo schools of whale, which also feed upo the sardines. Waiting till the sardine are surrounded and the whales ar about to rush upon their victims, th pigeons slip in and gorge themselve upon the fish.—Ilwaco Journal.

NEW FEATURES AT WEDDING.

Costumes and Music Both Out of th Ordinary.

Sandals were worn instead of shoe by the bridesmaids at the wedding o Lady Hermione Grimston, daughter o the Earl and Countess of Verulam, t Lieut. Bernard Buxton, which was on of the most fashionable events of t season in London, and which to place a short time ago. The bride maids, who numbered four, made quaint and pretty picture in their World frocks of white silk muslin with floating yellow sashes an bunches of Allan Richardson's rare Their hats, of poke bonnet shap were tied with black velvet ribb and they wore long black lace ten. The hymns chosen for service were quite a new depa in wedding music, being "Fight Good Fight with all Thy Might" "God Be with You Till We Again," while during the signing the register the choir sang Mer John's anthem, "He, Watching Israel, Slumbers Not Nor Sleeps."

Ancient Tinder Boxes.

Tinder boxes now have no pra use, and, indeed, a statistician rec ly declared that matches will soon a thing of the past. This is an ele tric age, just in its infancy, and t future is big with promise. Tin boxes were used two or three hu dred years ago, and much ingenu and taste were displayed in their m ing. Even the wood was elaborat carved by some of the most skil artisans, and the one here sho which is a fair specimen of that period, is now in a celebrated collection in England.

Snowball Pays the Rent.

One of the queer rents paid to the English crown is by the well-known Foulis family. This family holds a forest, and the rental of the forest is the delivery of a snowball any day it is asked for. Always the Foulis family must have a snowball ready. It is no trouble to them, either, for Ben Wyvis, a mountain of great height, is in the forest, and the top is always covered with snow.

Savings of Various Peoples.

In a table covering different countries France ranks seventh among saving nations, following Denmark, Switzerland, Belgium, Sweden, Norway and Germany. Another table, dealing with the average per capita of population, puts France tenth, or behind Denmark, Switzerland, Germany, Norway, Australia, Belgium, the United States, Austria and Sweden.

A Soap Tree.

An excellent soap, possessing no alkaline properties, is extracted in Algeria from the fruit of a tree known to botanists as Sapindus utilis. The fruit is about the size of a horse-chestnut, and the saponaceous substance is cheaply extracted with the aid of water or alcohol. This natural soap tree grows also in India, China, and Japan.

Millionaire's Humble Beginning.

A New Bedford man has an old pay roll of the Fairhaven Branch Railroad company which carries the name of Henry H. Rogers, the Standard Oil magnate, who worked as baggage master in June, 1861, for twenty-one days, and received $24.23 therefor, an average of about $1.16 per day.

Inventor of Barbed Wire.

Henry Fuchs, who died recently at San Francisco, was the inventor of barbed wire. It is said that he made a fortune from his invention, but lost it all in Alaska when he went in search of gold.

The Rose.

Go, lovely Rose!
Tell her that wastes her time and me,
That now she knows,
When I resemble her to thee,
How sweet and fair she seems to be.

Tell her that's young
And shuns to have her graces spied,
That hadst thou sprung
In deserts where no men abide,
Thou hadst not lost one uncommended died.

Small is the worth
Of beauty from the light retired;
Bid her come forth
Suffer herself to be desired,
And not blush so to be admired.

Then die, that she
The common fate of all things rare
May read in thee
How small a part of time they share
That are so wondrous sweet and fair.
(Edmund Waller (1607-1687.)

THE REFORMATION OF DICK CARSTAIRS

BY ALEXANDER MORGAN

"What's the matter with Frances?" asked, looking across the room to where my little friend sat, pale and de jected, holding languid converse with one of her mother's guests.

"Frances is a headstrong, undutiful child," replied Mrs. Lacy, with sudden energy. "She looks the picture of misery, doesn't she? It's all because I won't sanction her marriage with Dick Carstairs."

"They are very fond of each other, I know, but of course Dick is—well, rather fast. Yet the influence of a good, sweet girl might reform him."

"Well, I'm not going to sacrifice my daughter on the offchance of her ability to reform Dick Carstairs," replied Mrs. Lacy, with just indignation. Frances has no father or brother to defend her, and as I am responsible for her I don't intend that he shall be a fast man. Surely, Lady Mary, you don't think a girl ought to marry with the object of reforming her husband?"

I agreed entirely with you, Mrs. Lacy," I hastened to assure her, "but I am very much afraid—you know how fond I am of girls and—that my sympathies are with the young couple."

I think Frances had a good idea, for my sympathies were likely to be on next day she came to lunch and very soon started the subject of conversation. Dick adored her, she informed me, and he had said that when she was his wife he would break off all his wild companions, never touch cards and never go near a race course.

"But her mother is so hard," she complained, with tears in her eyes. "She won't believe in Dick. She doesn't believe he would reform if he were married, and says a girl ought to marry a man who doesn't need reforming. Dearest Lady Mary, I know you feel for me. Isn't it the holiest mission a girl can undertake?"

"To reform Dick Carstairs? Well, I don't quite know, but talk of angels and you hear the rustling of their wings. What news you have here, Mr. Carstairs, from your guilty look at each of us young people I am of the opinion there has been collusion here. That won't do. I can't allow you to act in defiance of my wishes. Frances, I'm afraid of you."

Dick Carstairs was by no means of good qualities, but he had been his own master from a very early age, and his easy, good nature had placed him under the influence of many fast men, whose bad example had led Dick into a most undesirable part of life.

He was devotedly in love with Frances, protested that she would be his salvation. He pointed out that he was of age, and therefore need pay no attention to her mother's opinion, but I was glad to hear that Frances declare that she would not marry without her mother's consent.

"I think she will never get it," added Dick dismally.

"I do not know that," I put in. "Still, Dick, you must admit that there are reasons why an affectionate mother should hesitate about intrusting her one pretty little daughter to your care."

Dick.

"But with Frances as my wife I would become as steady a fellow as could be wished for."

"Why not become steady before marriage? I could never advise a girl to marry in the hope of reforming her husband, but if you will pledge yourself to try to throw off every bad habit and every undesirable associate, I will exert all my influence with Mrs. Lacy to get her consent to your engagement."

Frances looked radiant and Dick brightened up. He was ready to promise anything if only the hope of gaining his little sweetheart were not taken from him.

I had a hard task to win over Mrs. Lacy.

"All very well," she said, "and I dare say Mr. Carstairs has all the good qualities you say he has, but I know what kind of a life he leads, and never will I allow my darling little girl to marry a man in hopes of reforming him."

"I quite agree with you, but suppose he reforms before marriage. For Frances.

give my persistency, but I am truly interested in Frances and I know to part her from Dick will break her heart."

"And to be the wife of a gambler, and an idle, aimless, wild fellow would break her heart also. He will promise anything now, but when he has attained his end he will be just as wild and reckless as ever."

"But if you were to put him on a year's probation," I urged; "you would see how far he may be trusted. If you refuse all hope, he will go utterly to the dogs, and poor little Frances will break her heart. Let them become engaged, on the understanding that if Dick reforms, breaks off all his bad habits and becomes steady, the marriage shall take place just as soon as you are convinced you can safely sanction it."

Mrs. Lacy sat for some moments deep in thought.

"My one idea is to do what is best for my child," she began at last, "and candidly, I do not think Dick Carstairs will make her a good husband. Yet, on the other hand, a longer acquaintance with him may open her eyes as to his true character, also he may tire of being always on his good behavior, and may withdraw from the affair."

"On the whole, I think I can't do better than to yield to your suggestion. We will see how things are in a year."

The immediate results of Mrs. Lacy's consent to the engagement were most encouraging. Frances beamed with joy and her sweet little face grew rosy and plump again. Dick grew steady and became as manly and straightforward a young fellow as the most rigid of mothers-in-law could desire.

At the end of a year Mrs. Lacy was obliged to own that the reformation of Dick Carstairs was complete, and that she no longer feared to intrust her treasure—her treasured daughter—to him.

The other day, five years after the marriage of Frances and Dick, Mrs. Lacy said to me:

"I owe my happiness and that of my dear children to you. Had I not taken your advice my daughter would have been a soured, disappointed old maid, and Dick would have gone entirely to the bad. Instead of being as they are now, the happiest couple and the best children that ever lived.

"It is safer to get a man to reform before marriage than to marry him first and try to reform him afterward."—Chicago American.

Point of View.

Harkins—So you really imagine that smoking benefits you, eh?

Larkins—I know it does. My mother-in-law leaves the room the minute I light my pipe.

RARE PRESENCE OF MIND.

Deacon's Prayer Was Quickly and Satisfactorily Answered.

At a recent dinner Dr. Rainsford of New York amused the guests, all members of "the cloth," with this story as illustrative of answers to prayer, as told him by a non-clerical friend:

"A southern darkey minister had as a deacon a man who had a wife and seven children. The crops had been a failure and the deacon and his family had come down to their last meal. 'If I only had one sack of corn,' said he to his wife, 'I could do my planting in the spring and give you and the children a square meal once more.' Then he went foraging.

"It was dusk when he espied the parson's corn crib on the other side of the fence, filled with tempting ears of yellow corn. By chance the deacon had an empty sack slung across one shoulder. Peering around behind and before him, he cautiously climbed the fence and crept into the corn crib.

"In less than a second he was down on his knees holding the sack open with one hand and poking in the big ears with the other as fast as he could. The deacon had his sack half filled when the click of a gun near by made him throw up his hand as if his time had come. But he did not lose his presence of mind, for he began to pray in a loud voice, as he rolled his eyes heavenward:

"'Good Lord—dear Lord—I cayn't do it! I cayn't do it! I cayn't steal the parson's corn! No, sir. I cayn't steal the parson's corn, no matter if my wife an' child'ns am starvin' to death this minit! They'll just have to starve. I cayn't do it—I cayn't do it!'

"'Hey, there, brother,' called a voice which the deacon recognized as the parson's, 'fill your sack, deacon; fill it to the brim.'"

Going and Coming.

Just a few steps from the Union depot is a small store owned by a dealer in live frogs and game fish. From this depot a large number of trains depart each day for the Wisconsin fishing grounds. The frog seller catches the Ike Waltons as they leave the city and again when they return empty-handed. At his store are two signs. One of them, most easily seen by departing fishermen, reads:

Live Frogs for Bait.

The other is best seen when returning to the city and reads:

Fine Game Fish for Unlucky Anglers.

This man has sold thousands of frogs during the season to people going fishing, but he has made the greater part of his money from the sale of fish to those who have returned empty-handed from the lakes and streams.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Richest American Soil.

Something frequently happens that goes to prove the fertility of the soil in the Salt River valley. It is nothing unusual to hear of cutting several crops off one field in one season—grapes frequently bear two crops and so do figs. The latest, however, is reported by James Goodwin. He has in his yard a tree that to the casual observer is only an ordinary pear tree, it was nothing more than this to Mr. Goodwin until this year. He had always noticed that it was of an early variety, and this season along in May a crop of pears was picked. A little later his interest was aroused by noticing the tree in full bloom again. What is still more interesting is that at the present time the tree has another fully matured crop of pears on it which are now ripening as well as did the first crop.

Small Salary for High Office.

It may be some comfort to laboring men to know that the salary of the poet laureate of England is $3000 a year and a hogshead of wine thrown in. Of course, this represents only a fractional part of what Alfred Austin really earns; still it is all that he gets for being poet laureate to the English speaking race. This salary is without any prospect of a raise, although it was increased to its present munificent proportions when Lord Tennyson died. Some time before his death it was decided to increase his salary to that amount, but the government did not decide till after his death. Thus the present poet laureate came in for the raise intended for Lord Tennyson.

Necessity for Learning.

"Now, you ought to be ashamed, James," said the teacher after the children had been assigned to their classes, "to have your little sister to go into a class ahead of you, and you so much older than she is?"

"No'm. Pa says girls has to be smarter 'n boys."

"Well, they usually are. But way does your papa say so?"

"Pa says like as not a girl 'll be a old maid an' then she'll have t' know enough to teach school."

The Frost Herald.

Oh, Miss Katydid, I wish you'd come along.
I's weary of de locus' an' I's hungry foh yoh song.
I wants to hear you talkin' 'bout de sister dat got lost
A-goin' no'th one Augus' day a-lookin' foh de frost.
I wants to hear you plain an a-callin' of her name
'Cause I's panting an' I's plain foh de good news jes' de same.
I's weary of de mockin' birds an' whippoorwills foh sho',
I want to hear about dat frost in jes' a few weeks mo'.
—Washington Star.

FOR HAPP

Effie Shannon Lays ... Considera...

Miss Effie Shannon ... thirteen rules for the ... quired how he could be ... married, or, in other word... was to do to gain and hold ... of his wife. Miss Shannon's ... rience with unhappy marriages ... the stage—is wide, and likely she could formulate twenty-six rules quite as well as thirteen, but she stopped at the odd number. Here they are:

1. Be considerate of her in small things. Small things make up a woman's life.

2. Remember always that everywhere in the animal kingdom kind and not sex makes difference in brain.

3. Need her and let her know it. Women understand best that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

4. Let her feel before, and particularly after, marriage, that she is more important than your business. You wouldn't care to be supplanted in her thoughts by constant musing over that $8.17 that slipped through her hands yesterday.

5. Before marriage kiss her as though she were your wife—afterward kiss her as though she were your sweetheart.

6. Never abuse her confidence. Her faith in you is capital, which you will have to invest many times.

7. Compel her respect. Respect is the mother and admiration the father of love.

8. Take an interest in her affairs. You would be hurt if she took no interest in yours.

9. Devote at least a quarter of the thought to entertaining her during a lifetime that you would devote to entertaining her pretty sister half an hour.

10. Don't "nag." Men nag as much as women, and vaccination, the slow scraping away of the skin, pains more than the quick incision of the surgeon's knife.

11. Remember that she is the better half of yourself, and "to thine own self be true."

12. Be generous, not lavish. When she is your wife she is your partner. Never compel her to ask for money. A woman feels dependence as much as a man would.

13. I have devoted as much attention to the subject of winning the woman you have won as to winning the woman you haven't. It is more important to keep the love of your wife than to create love in the object of your attentions. Eternal vigilance is the price of eternal affection. Never say to yourself, "I've caught the car." You may fall off.

FADS OF MEN OF GENIUS.

Queer Tricks Resorted To to Make the Brain Active.

"Fenimore Cooper couldn't write unless he had gum drops to chew," said a librarian. "He bought gum drops in ten-pound and twenty-pound lots. As some men are the slaves of tobacco, wine or opium, so poor Cooper was the gum drop's slave. Without it he couldn't write a line.

"Chateaubriand dictated his works in his bare feet. Elegantly attired down to the ankles, he padded softly up and down the floor, his thin white extremities very conspicuous on the dark rugs.

"Gluck could only compose in the open air. When the spirit of composition took hold of him he dragged his piano out upon the lawn, and then, in rain or shine, in snow or hail, in August or December, the master evolved his beautiful harmonies.

"Bossuet worked with a hot cloth bound round his head. Balzac in a monk's hood, Gautier in a scarlet cloak and Milton in a brown robe. Lord Derby when he wrote ate brandied cherries. Byron, writing, ate truffles.

"This collection of facts," concluded the librarian, "goes to prove that men of genius, like the rest of us, are silly in some things."

Jack's Advice to His Friend.

Why, Tom, thou'rt a seaman, and pray
That thy wishes can prosper and favor every wind
Still sit in thy soul, that each port
Thou mayst find.
While honor shall guide thy behavior;
While good, true and hearty, the stays
Of thy mind
Are steadily braced by thy duty;
While to king, wife and friend, thou art constant and kind.
And thou driest up the sorrows of beauty.
But may all the tackles, grown rotten, give way;
Thy vessel, may leaks fairly fill her;
Thy timbers all splintered, no rope to belay,
Broke thy compass, and shattered thy tiller.
When shook to the winds are the sails of thy heart,
And thou'rt false to thine honor and duty;
When from king, wife and friend thou wouldst basely depart,
And then mock'st at the sorrows of beauty.
—Charles Dibdin.

One Difference.

"I'd like to know what's the difference between a guesser and a forecaster," said Mrs. Wonder, puzzling her mind over the ante-election figures in one of the papers.

"A guesser," explained Mr. Wonder, "simply lumps his figures, and is either right or wrong at once; while a forecaster arranges his figures in a table of statistics and makes you wonder how on earth he could be anything except right."

Leap Year Episode.

Fred—Miss Elderleigh has proposed three times within the past six weeks, but I can't make up my mind to accept her.

Joe—Has she got money.

Fred—About $50,000, I understand.

Joe—Well, you are taking desperate chances, old man. Suppose she should stop proposing?

Small Land of

What one might call an "after-dinner-coffee-size" country is the principality of Liechtenstein, a tiny land between the Austrian province of Tyrol and the Rhine, recently described by a writer in Harper's Magazine. Its area is about sixty-one square miles of territory, and its population less than ten thousand. Although practically a part of Austria, it has been more or less independent for nearly three centuries, and was, according to a local peasantry, forgotten by Bismarck when he reorganized Europe after the Prussian wars with France and Austria.

Once Liechtenstein had a standing army. In full force, armed and equipped, it marched away to join the Austrian forces in the war with Prussia, and had it arrived in time might have turned the scale, for although it consisted of but eighty men with a captain and a trumpeter, it was a whole army in itself, and very brave. Fortunately, the country was mountainous, and the roads bad, and when the army arrived at the camp of the Austrians the war was over.

That was its last ... The Liechtenst... weary of supporting ... tary burden imposed ... pality by these eighty ... sent a weighty and res... to the prince, who dis... army. So there is no ... service, no national de... taxes. The prince is very ... pays much of the expense of ... country instead of taxing it ... port him. He issues coins w... head on them, and stamps of the ... design. That is a pleasure in ... worth supporting a small country ... and he is the only member of ... Austrian nobility who enjoys such ... tinction.

His little capital Vaduz, is but ... modest city, and the prince visits ... but seldom. He wears an Austrian u... tle as well as that of Liechtenstein, and sits in the Austrian House of Lords. But from Vienna he can call up his own country by long distance telephone, and it serves him all the purposes of a suburban village to which to retire for rest from his duties as an Austrian nobleman.

Coming Time of Joy

The world is growing better, so the seers and prophets say.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
And sin and immorality will soon be swept away.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
The scouts of the millennium are drawing near our lines,
The earth is full of tokens and the heavens full of signs,
The sting are getting bunched into millennial designs.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
The trusts and corporations will be sternly brought to bay.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
The millionaires be busted and be working by the day.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
The crooked politicians will be banished from the earth
And colonized together 'round the fiery furnace hearth
In the kingdom where of brazzos there is perpetual dearth.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
There'll be no maidens practicing piano things next door.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
No bargain counters will be seen in any city store.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
Our women, dress their precious hearts, will to themselves be true.
Will to fit fashion mothers they can go to Hallejhes.
And all will dress for comfort as their grandmas used to do.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
The rules of matrimony will be based on honest love.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
The marriages be only of the breed That's made Above.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
From our vocabulary will the word "Divorce" be left
And youths and maids who durdle up will solemnly be swore
To never break the coupling till old Gabriel tests his horn.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
How sweet the contemplation of the things our sages view.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
They sort o' chest a fellow when he's feeling glum and blue.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
And let us strive, dear brethren, from our minds to banish doubt,
Accept as truth unquestioned all the things they tell about,
And pray that they may never let their dopey pipes go out.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
—James Barton Adams in Denver Post.

Plea in Hindoo-English

Since the death of Max Muller, Prof. Francis A. March of Lafayette college is universally admitted to be the world's foremost linguist. Prof. March has an admirable sense of humor, and this humor is permitted to reveal itself often in his conversation, and occasionally in his clear and graceful prose.

One of the distinguished scholar's students, now living in India, sent to Prof. March last week an amusing specimen of Hindoo-English. It was an excerpt from a speech delivered in an Indian court by an attorney whose client, a widow, has been assaulted. It ran:

"My learned friend, with mere wind from a teapot, thinks to browbeat me from my legs. But this is mere gorilla warfare. I stand under the shoes of my client, and only seek to place my bone of contention plainly in your honor's eye. My learned friend vainly runs amuck upon the sheet irons of my case. Your honor will be pleased to observe that my client is a widow, a poor chap with one post-mortem son. A widow of this country, your honor will be pleased to observe, is not like a widow of your honor's country. A widow of this country is not able to eat more than one meal a day, or to wear clean clothes, or to look after a man. So my poor client had not such physic or mind as to be able to assault the lusty complainant. Yet she has been deprived of some of her most valuable leather—the leather of her nose. I am sorry to say, though the witness is a man of my own feathers, that there are in my profession black sheep of every complexion. Until witness explains what has been my client's nose leather he cannot be believed."

John Morley Well Like

Everyone remembers how Mill, just before polling day, and at a meeting mainly composed of workingmen, was asked whether he had ever said that the working classes were given to lying; how he answered straight out, "I did," and how the meeting rose to his courageous frankness with thundering cheers, writes Sydney Brooks in Harper's Weekly. Mr. Morley has more than once been similarly tested. He was for some years one of the members for Newcastle, and Newcastle is a laboring and not a mining constituency. Local feeling among the miners was hotly in favor of an eight-hour day. Mr. Morley with equal firmness was opposed to it. The Labor party accordingly withdrew its support and ran a candidate against him. Mr. Morley remained unshakable; his convictions had been honestly formed after an immensity of first-hand investigation, and to them he would stand or fall. He won: it was a victory; when a few weeks later Mr. M... accepted office and by the ... custom had to face his con... again he fought the election ... more on the same principle ... nothing, compromising ... and was rewarded this ... cisive triumph. "Ho... the nickname with ... the workingmen ... constancy ... austere, ... of the a... men ask... being ... philo... suffi... h...

QUEEN HELENA OF ITALY AND HER TWO DAUGHTERS.
(The little Italian princesses are Yolanda, born June 1, 1901, and Mafalda, born November 19, 1902. A son, who is to be christened Humbert, Prince of Piedmont, was born September 15.)

NEW SHOE-FASTENER.

Designed to Replace Laces and Buttons on Footwear.

Farewell to shoe laces, farewell to shoe buttons if the shoemakers of this goodly land decide to adopt the new style fastener that has ben invented by a resident of Chicago.

The little things that worry a man at the opening of the day are frequently responsible for much that goes wrong during the remainder of the waking hours—a lost collar button, for instance, or a missing button from his shoe, or a broken shoestring.

The new shoe is equipped with an arrangement which is very similar to that with which many of us are familiar as applied to gloves. Strong springs at the lower end are fastened to the open edges of the shoe, and when the shoe has been drawn upon the foot

THE NEW SHOE-FASTENER.

it is only necessary to spring these together to complete the apparelling of the foot. It is the work of an instant, and the removal of the shoe is just as simple and just as speedy.

The springs are so shaped as to adapt themselves to the curvatures of the foot.

The Oldest Fortress.

The oldest fortress in the United States is Fort Marion, on the Matanzas, in Florida. It has seen many bloody frays in the opening up of what is now the paradise of the South. The land around this ancient place has been watered by the blood of men who have fallen in conflict, but to-day it is a peaceful, picturesque spot, full of charm and serenity.

CURTAINS ON SWINGING ROD.

Because the casement window is so decorative it is coming every day into more general use. The old-time objection to it, that it is loose and draughty, has been overcome by effective weather strips.

Another objection, the difficulty of arranging convenient drapery, has also been removed by the metal rod here shown.

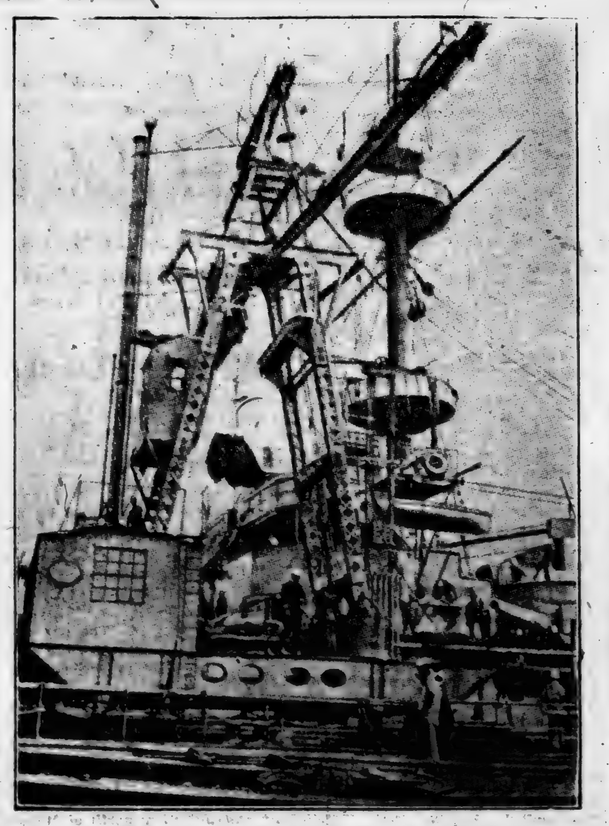
This ingenious device, bent at a right angle, is first fastened by metal bands at some distance down the upright part of the window frame, its upper termination being fitted into a rubber wheel of much greater diameter than itself. When the casement is closed and the curtains drawn the wheel resting against the wood holds the rod with its weight of drapery in place. When it is desired to open the window a single movement of the band draws rod and curtain in retreat, parallel to the movement of the casement, which opens inward.

Consumption's Roll of Honor.

Dr. John B. Huber, writing on the history of consumption in the Medical Record, mentions the following more or less great persons who have died as its victims: Marie Bashkirtseff, Xavier Bichat, H. C. Bunner, Friedrich Chopin, Stephen Crane, John Godman, John Paul Jones, John Keats, Dr. Rene T. H. Laennae, Sidney Lanier, Jules Bastien Lapage, Ethelbert Nevin, Henry Purcell, Elizabeth Felix Rachel, Friedrich Schiller, John Sterling, Laurence Sterne, Robert Louis Stevenson, Henry Timrod, Carl Maria von Weber, Artemus Ward, Henry Kirk White, Baruth Spinoza.



COALING A BRITISH WARSHIP.

Coming Events

A National Paper.

The News company of Joliet, Ill., proprietors of one of the largest and best printing plants in the state outside of Chicago, are publishing the Saturday News as a third edition of their paper. The Saturday News is devoted exclusively to the interests of the people's party and is national in scope. Each week it contains matters of interest regarding the progress of the party from all parts of the nation.

Being published at the headquarters of the party and the chairman of the national committee being president of the News company and one of the editors, it is peculiarly favorably located to give general news of the movement.

The People's party has long felt the need of a national paper and it is cause for congratulation that one has been started and by a concern that is so strong that its success is assured from the start while the names of such well known workers and writers as Hon. James H. Ferriss, Charles Q. De France, Jo A. Parker and R. E. Bray is a guarantee of its character and loyalty.

The regular subscription price of the Saturday News is 50 cents per year, but we have arranged with the publishers to furnish it and the Union, both papers one year for $1.25.

Call at our office and see a sample copy and take advantage of this offer.
tf.

TAX NOTICE.

Assessor's and Collector's Second Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of COLLECTING the STATE and COUNTY TAXES of Chilton county for the year 1904, and ASSESSING the TAXES for the year 1905:

Jemison, beat 2, Dec. 1-2, 1904.
Clanton, last 10 days in the year, commencing December 20, 1904.

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Under and by virtue of an order and decree of the Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Judge of the Probate Court of Chilton county, rendered on Monday, the 12th day of December, 1904, I, Lee Hayes, was appointed and directed to sell at public outcry to the highest bidder for cash, in front of the Court house door of Chilton county, Alabama, on

SATURDAY, THE 7TH DAY OF JANUARY, 1905,

during the hours of legal sale, the following described land, to-wit: S. W. 1-4 of N. W. 1-4; N. W. 1-4 of S. W. 1-4, section 32; S. E. 1-4 of N. E. 1-4, N. E. 1-4 of S. E. 1-4, section 33; W. 1-2 of N. W. 1-4, section 34; S. W. 1-4 of S. E. 1-4, S. E. 1-4 of S. W. 1-4, section 27,—all in township 21, range 13, Chilton county, Alabama, for the purpose of an equitable division among the following named joint owners thereof: Mary A. Robuck, Daniel Dunivan, R. N. Robuck, Bluford Dunivan, James Dunivan, Victoria Sims, Dennis Dunivan, Beula Matthews, John O. Dunnivan, Claud B. Dunivan, and Robert Dunivan.

LEE HAYES,
tf Commissioner.

Notice No. 25707.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., December 9, 1904.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of the Circuit Court, at Clanton, Ala., on January 28, 1905, viz: William M. Johnson, Homestead entry, No. 33513, for the Se 1-4 of Section 12, Tp. 22 n of R 15e.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William S. Cox, of Clanton, Ala.; Lonzo F. Bates, of Verbena, Ala.; Moses Bates, of Verbena, Ala.; William H. Parish, of Clanton, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
tf Register.

Going to Plant

Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a postal for my new manual "How to Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.
P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of
SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS.
PAINTS OILS and GLASS.
We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.
CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

Time Table

In effect August 1, 1904.

Louisville & Nashville R. R

Read Down AM No 9	PM No 7	PM No 3	CENTRAL TIME. DAILY	AM No 8	AM No 2	No
5 25	3 15	4 10	BIRMINGHAM	10 40	11 45	7 45
6 48	4 35	5 18	Calera	9 25	10 33	6 22
7 12	5 04	....	Jemison	8 58	....	5 56
7 19	5 11	....	Thorsby	8 51	....	5 53
7 27	5 24	....	Lomax	8 42	....	5 40
7 35	5 32	6 03	CLANTON	8 35	9 48	5 32
7 48	5 45	....	Cooper	8 17	....	5 17
7 53	5 50	....	Verbena	8 11	....	5 11
8 00	5 57	....	Mt. Creek	8 00	....	5 04
9 05	7 00	7 25	MONTGOM'Y.	7 00	8 25	4 00

Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars Dining Cars.
For rates and further information address

A. F. STINSON, Agent, Clanton, Ala

A Great Combination Offe

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democra

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.5

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. Republican in Politics and has no equal or riva

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the of the national campaign, and all the news of all the you must have the Globe-Democrat during the comin

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home pap the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.
SHOES that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Fee
Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.
Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, A

P. D. WILSON'S

Going out of Busin

Big Reduction in Prices of Everything for CASH

Now is the Time to get GENUINE BARGAINS

Gelder's Restaurant,

Good Meals at Reasonable Prices.
110 North 20th Street,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Brand
"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,
Clanton, - - - Alabama.

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

POLL TAX.

Now, every one of our people be sure to call on the tax collector and pay their back poll taxes, pay up and get into shape so that you can vote on stock law or school tax when they come up, as they surely will the coming year. In paying your poll tax it is only taking it out of one pocket and putting it into the other. The money stays right in your own community and goes to the school.
tf

GET TOGETHER.

There are two republican committees in this county, one elected by the Clanton convention, and one by the Thorsby convention. The question that divided the republicans last spring is settled, and now is the time for both committees to resign and let us have a mass meeting of the county republicans and elect a new committee, one that will represent the majority of republican sentiment; taking those out and putting them in the ranks (to serve if they will) who have not deserved the confidence of the party as to their profession of republicanism. Let us get together as soon as possible. Now is the time to do this work. It is up to the committees.

An Indianapolis woman died and ... her fortune to her coachman. That ... better than marrying him, avows Birmingham Age-Herald.

... Chile cabinet has broken up for ... fifth time this year. A good cabinet maker should find employment by ... year in Chile at a nice salary.

How many women who are demanding the abolition of ... ta Claus ever ... rd his name lisped by children of ... own? asks the Boston Record.

... it may be that athletes do not ... holarship, is it quite certain— ... is more important—that ... es not injure athletics?

... that physicians ... thod of causing ... 's fine, and ... way of ... ?

... says ... rea-

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

Companionship can only afford happiness by mutual soul adaptation.

It is not success, but obedience, that is the measure and conditions of a man's joy.—Rev. James Millar.

It is possible to find in the world true-hearted and faithful dealing between man and man. To doubt this is to doubt the divine in life. Faith in man is essential to faith in God.

Without thought, grave, deliberate, self-conscious thought, life will run shallow in every channel. Every active duty needs to build foundations downward through habits of quiet thought.—Selected.

I believe in the sacredness of the human body, this transient dwelling-place of a living soul, and so I deem it the duty of every man and woman to keep his or her body beautiful through right thinking and right living.—P. Gerhardt.

Never give way to melancholy. Nothing encroaches more. I fight against it volgorously. One great remedy is to take short views of life; for every substantial grief has 20 shadows, and most of them shadows of your own making.—Sidney Smith.

Most lives are thronged with anxieties. But there is a spirit that is not overcome of these things, but bears with them in the high thought of being in fellowship with God; for, if we have to endure evils, God bears with their existence too.—William Mountford.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free. Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

King Alfonso is the best of the royal rid- of Europe.

To Cure a Cold in One Day
Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on box. 25c.

The Russian population represents 110 nationalities.

I am sure Piso's Cure for Consumption saved my life three years ago.—Mrs. THOMAS ROBINS, Maple St., Norwich, N. Y., Feb. 17, 1900

Denmark exports 2,500,000 pounds of honey a year.

Florida is shipping strawberries north.

Names From Kansas.

Here is a bunch of names picked at random from one issue of the Lawrence Gazette: Dolph Blampied, W. W. Culpitts, Jessie Mohundro, Marsneles Bledseaux, Mrs. Dent Theseldine Vander Vries and John Hunt.—Topeka Capital.

How's This?
We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.
F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.
We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.
WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price, 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Pity For Animals.

A French lawyer, Leon Clery, left in his will the sum of 80,000 francs, the interest on which is to be given every year to whatever schoolteacher may be adjudged to have done the most in inculcating pity for animals among the pupils.

CHEAP RATES TO TEXAS
VIA QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE
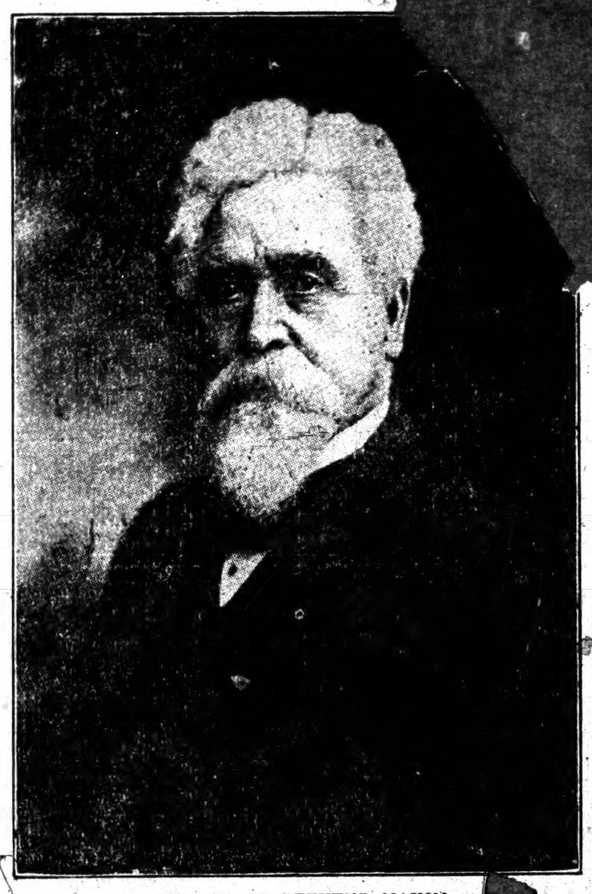
A. G. S...
$3.50
...20.03 P...

IN THE PUBL...



SIR HIRAM STEVENS MAXIM.

The American explosive expert who won an English knigh...

Sir Hiram Maxim is a product of the land of steady habits. He ...s born at Tangersville, in the State of Maine, on February 5, 1840. He co... of an early Puritan stock.

BUTTONS ON BED CLOTHES.

One is very careful to button up overcoat and jacket when facing Boreas at this season of the year, and so double-lock the door, as it were, but why all this caution should be abandoned on the going to bed is a marvel. Warm clothing is taken off, the window thrown up in the interest of fresh air, and then some bedclothing is loosely thrown over the body. Why if it is necessary to button up so ti... ly during the day, when ade... clad, should not the su... taken at night? The ... liable to work loos... unprotected bod... posure is ... Canada ... is ro...

CLAMPS ON THE BED CLOTHES.

...HTING

...ros may ...ich Eng... ...onted in ...eros are ... putting ...usands. ...hey are ...o some ...s Chaka ... Loben...

...noticing ...worried ...ct. ...your ...s me." ...f the ...to ...

GERMANY IN S...HWEST AFRICA

For many years the "l... wars" of England have been p... ...bial an... have been made by the ...s a ca... of reproach. Now G... ...y ha... "little war" on her ha... South... Africa.

It began with an ... ...g of ...spised African ni... ...l i... being crushed by ... War Lord has ... and the powers ... pect it to last ... It is by no mea...

...e with ... cases in ... five years.

...trength of steel at va... ...eratures has been tested ...ch, who has found an increase ...o 300 degrees C., and a decrease at greater heat. One specimen, for example, showed a tensile strength of twenty-seven tons per square inch at ordinary temperature, 30.7 tons at 300 degrees, and 13.1 tons at 550 degrees. The effects of compression were less at 200 degrees than at ordinary temperature or at 300 degrees or higher. Prolonged action of the load had no ...en the tensile strength at ordi... temperature, but caused a slight decrease at 300 degrees and a still greater decrease between 400 degrees and 500 degrees. It is made evident that steel for steam boilers, piping, etc., should be tested at higher as well as ordinary temperature.

The Hunter's Luck.

You may go duck shooting, and the sun may shine and the sea be calm, and the ducks refuse to fly, and your gun be useless from dawn to dark. Or it may blow great guns and the sea may surge and the old boat tug at the anchor and the rains drive and the ducks go to Jericho. And so with one untoward condition or the other, or both, your leave of absence may be frittered away and your baggage checked for home and your train boarded with never a duck to show for it all. And yet shall the outing not have been fruitless nor without its substantial good. You come home refreshed in body and soul, to eat with an appetite you have not known for months, an elasticity of step, a fuller expansion of the chest, a clearer head, a keener mind, a stouter grip on the day's work, and a more genial feeling toward your fellowmen ...s to go duck shooting ... ducks; it pays some... ...get none.—Forest and

...haw's Eccentricity.

...rd Shaw is that curious ...rary man of independent ...t which makes the play... ...lf rather aggressively in...

...e once confessed to Mr. ...ve taken the liberty of ... out of the third act of ...rell." "That was a lib... ...ow." ...ou must under... ...lines, it would... ...piece." ...claimed the dramat... ...y so. My good fellow, ..."—Harper's Weekly.

...on the Judge

...is related of an old-time ...llivan County, this State: ...session of court there was ...alking and laughter going on ... Judge, becoming angry and ..., shouted in great wrath: ...nce, there! We have decided ... dozen cases this morning, and I not heard a word of one of them." ...iladelphia Ledger

...by ...alum... ...metallic... ...centrated ...needle-crysta... ...are obtained. ...hard, scarcely a... ...affected by water o... ...degrees, and promises ...for molybdenum steels.

Although the proble... ...tography is still far fro... ...gress is being occasionall... ...new German discovery—th... ...Koenig—relates to printing f... ...color negatives, and depends u... ...use of paper coated with coll... ...lutions of colorless compo... ...greenish blue, cherry red a... ...dyes that develop the orig... ...on exposure to light. The ...negatives is first made u... ...light filters.

A new vegetable fo... ...Crambe tataria, ...plant resembling s... ...roots, raw and c... ...Tartars and Cos... ...and the sprouts ...ed for culti... ...member of t... ...of Paris, wh... ...in flavor ...flower, w... ...are boil... ...in butt... ...slices ...ur...

...ledge... ...e about sta... ...and which are e...

...nnah E. Mershon, Co... ...wood, N. J., says:

"I thought I would write and t... that, by following your kind advice, I fe... a new person. I was always thin and de... and so weak that I could hardly do anyt... Menstruation was irregular.

"I tried a bottle of your Vegetable Co... pound and began to feel better right away. I co... tinued its use, and am now well and strong, a... menstruate regularly. I cannot say enough fo... what your medicine did for me."

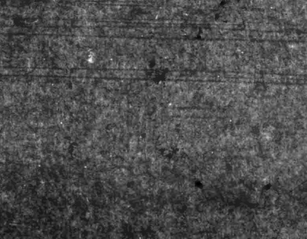
How Mrs. Pinkham Helped Fannie Kumpe

"DEAR MRS. P... write and tell you of the benefit I h... the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's ... in my back and womb have all le... corrected. I am very thankful for th... shall recommend your medicine to all w...
—MISS FANNIE KUMPE, 1922 Chester St., Litt...

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compo... will cur... woman in the land who suffers from womb tr...bles, infla... tion of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, n... prostration, and all forms of woman's special ills.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and sig... above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.
Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Ly...

J. S. SCHOFIELD'S SONS C...
MANUF...
High Pressure R...
Morison Intern...
High Grade Sl...
Tran...
Hea...
Wrou...
Tanks, Stacks ...
He...



The club is assured of an excellen position for Vulcan, and also that the fair association will do anything in its power to get the statue sent to the great exposition.

Canada has forests which, at the present rate of consumption of timber for paper, would supply the world with paper pulp for 840 years.

A Guaranteed Cure For Piles.
Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. Druggists will refund money if Pazo Ointment fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

Great Britain owns half the ships that are afloat.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never fails. Sold by all druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

There are 200,000 Finns in the United States.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

Bryant & Stratton
Business, Shorthand and Typewriting College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

FOR SALE—...-ton daily capacity absorption system ice plant for removal. Now located at Scranton, Miss. Has been operated three seasons, is in first class condition, can be bought at bargain, to be moved from present location. For particulars address E. S. BUSH, General Manager, Louisville, Ky.

If afflicted with weak eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

...BACHE

"My father had been a sufferer from sick headach... for the last twenty-five years and never found an... relief until he began taking your Cascarets. Sin... he has begun taking Cascarets he has never h... the headache. They have entirely cured hi... Cascarets do what you recommend them to do... will give you the privilege of using his nam...
E. M. Dickson, 1129 Resiner St., W. Indianapolis.

Best For The Bowels
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC
THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped CCC. Guaranteed to cure or your money back.
Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y. ...
ANNUAL SALE, TEN MILLION BO...

Best on Earth
Gantt's Planters and Distribute...
WE GUARANTEE THEM.
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.
Write for Prices and Catalogue.
GANTT MFG. CO., Macon, G...

DIFFERENT PAGES

...WALL

...o Minn...

...ARKABLE ESCAPE

...Premonition Saves Him—...Burned Building Had Only ...spected the Day Before—Five ...s Hurt, But None Badly—In...gation to Be Made.

...eapolis, Minn.—Eight persons ...st their lives in the Crocker Hotel through the falling of the high east wall of the O. H. Peck building, which was recently damaged by fire.

The high wind of the night loosened the bricks in the wall, and tons of bricks and stones crashed down upon the roof of the three-story hotel next door. The roof was carried through to the basement, carrying death and injury before it.

The dead are Hans Anderson and James Hamilton, livery stable employes; C. M. Kenyon, foreman in an oil mill; William Lillyblade, a workman; Mrs. Jennie Murray, cook; William Emmermon, laborer; William Bray, contractor, and Joseph Violet, coachman. Five persons were hurt, but none fatally.

There was no warning of the disaster, and the fourteen persons who were sleeping in the various apartments were caught in the crushed structure. Some of those injured were in the Belmont Hotel, adjoining the Crocker, and were hurt by the debris that was forced through the wall separating the two buildings.

A passer-by who heard the crash promptly turned in a fire alarm, and the department arrived in time to check an incipient blaze in the wreck. The firemen and policemen at once turned their attention to rescuing those still alive and removing the dead.

This work was carried on under great difficulty, because of the darkness and fear that more of the wall might fall. Miss Anna McNevins had a remarkable escape. She was on the second floor when the crash came, and the firemen took her out of her bed in the basement. The debris had arched over her in such a way as to preserve her entirely from injury. W. J. Crocker, the hotel proprietor, was found pinioned beneath a radiator, and was taken out in a fainting condition. ...sponsible for the accident will be subject to a thorough investigation. The City Building Inspector had ...ins... of the standing ...day but had given no ...cern... He had ex... ...on of the other ...ed likely to ...

...on of trouble ...in the Crock... ...ns and could ...dressed and ...he wind was ...e told a po... ...valls unsafe. ...idea, but his ...before the ...

BY PHONE

...ington Listened ...emony.

...ting cozily in ...H. L. Van ...vedding ...Van ...

Cuba Improving.

Washington.—Senor Quesada, the Cuban minister, in view of reports that yellow fever was beginning again to obtain a foothold in Cuba, and that the Cuban government was not vigorously enforcing sanitary precaution, has given out the following official statement:

"The rate of mortality in the island of Cuba has steadily decreased since the establishment of the republic. From official data the annual death rate in the four last months has been in the district of Havana, as follows:

"August, 19.42; September, 18.24; October, 17.31, and November, 26.60 per thousand; for the whole island, 15.15; 15.45; 13.40 and 14 respectively. This compares most favorably with the best showings of the states of the Union, and of the countries of Europe, and is due not only to our splendid climate, but to the conscientious efforts of the central sanitary department.

"There has been no epidemic of quarantinable diseases. Yellow fever, smallpox, cholera and plague have not developed in Cuba since the proclamation of the republic. Neither of the cases of yellow fever at Punta de Sal, in October and November, have propagated beyond the original cases."

Big Fire in Montgomery.

Montgomery, Ala.—The four-story brick building at 125 Commerce street was gutted by fire at on early hour Tuesday, and the stock of goods of J. C. Booth, who occupied the entire building, was destroyed completely.

The loss is roughly ...mated at $30,000, and is partially ...

The building was ow... Gay and was located ... known as "The Who... built in 1882 by Figh & ...

Mr. Booth conducted ... and retail merchandise b... cluding whiskies, dry good... cigars, wines and liquors.

In the cellar, barrels o... were stored. The second ... floor, was used as the re... ment, including the saloo... was located a barber ...

The third floor co... wines and cigars in... top floor was file... dry goods.

Importance of Go...

It has been estim... specially schooled in go... the cost of transportatio... ton is: Horse power, five ... electric power, twenty-fi... $1.25; steam car, 250 mile... steamship on the lakes, 1,00... $1.25. If it costs $1.25 to ha... ton five miles over our highwa... they now exist we can fully re... now important the work of be... roads.

TRIED TO KILL ACTRESS

Man Pursues Woman With Pistol in Pittsburg, Pa., Hotel.

Tells Police the Woman Has Deserted Him—She Feared Violence at His Hands and Called For Police.

Pittsburg, Pa.—In the parlor of one fashionable Bachelor Hotel and in the presence of a score of women, T. Edward King, of No. 412 Hanover street, Baltimore, attempted to murder Miss Norma Clarke, an actress with the Alvin Stock Company here. King fought desperately to shoot the woman even after he had been knocked down twice with "billies" in the hands of detectives. While the fight was going on Miss Clarke lay on the floor behind a screen. After King had been led away handcuffed she was picked up unconscious from fright.

Intense excitement was created among the hotel patrons. News of the affair spread in the streets, and a crowd of 3000 persons congregated outside the hotel. It was two hours before the public excitement over the incident subsided, as report having gained credence that a murder had been committed.

King says he came here especially to see the woman. He had been following her for months around this country. He says she is his wife, but she asserts she is the wife of Frederick Stickney, of New York City. Miss Clarke and King first met in Baltimore in April, 1903. King was treasurer of the Monumental Theatre, of Baltimore, and through his [illegible] sought almost all his [illegible] attention to the woman. He [illegible] after his arrest that she deserted him in Paterson, N. J., six weeks ago, and went on the stage against his wishes. She says in reply she was regularly employed on the stage when she met him and that she has been annoyed almost to the point of distraction by his persistent attentions.

Miss Clark thought King intended violence when his card was handed to her in her room, and immediately she telephoned to Police Headquarters for detectives to be sent to the hotel to go with her to meet him. Detectives Egan and Cole, who were sent, walked into the parlor with Miss Clarke. The parlor was almost filled with persons conversing after dinner. King sprang to his feet the instant he saw Miss Clarke. He whipped out a revolver and with an oath aimed it at her. She dropped behind the screen and Egan knocked King down with his "billy." A terrific fight followed. When prostrate on the floor King tried to aim at Miss Clarke behind the screen. He saw her feet, but when he was leveling the pistol Cole knocked it from his hand with a quick blow of his club. Even when disarmed King tried to reach the woman. He shouted that he would choke her. A panic started among the women in the parlor, and in the rush from the room a jam took place in the doorway. Several of the women made their way into the lobby with their gowns torn in shreds.

Miss Clarke says that she will press a charge against King, and that she must be protected from him. King asserts he is deeply in love with the woman, and that he will not rest until she consents to live with him as his wife. He says he will produce evidence of his marriage, but Miss Clarke ridicules this statement.

FERRYBOAT PAUNPECK BURNS.

Boat That Was Recently in Collision Destroyed at Pier.

New York City.—The Lackawanna ...boat Paunpeck was practically ...d by fire at a slip adjoining the ... Street Ferry in Hoboken ...een in collision with a ...mboat, when several ... After the col... ...ied up at the ... was fig... ...ervice SOLDIER...

Secretary ... Make ...

Washin... issued an ... master-Ge... of some ... Schuylkill ... for the ... seamstre... ows and ... tling the ... so far as ...

It is ... future t... of cloth... whol...

News of the Week

WASHINGTON.

Changes in gun positions on the next battle ships authorized by Congress are contemplated by the General Board.

A bill reincarnorating the Red Cross was passed by Congress.

Testimony in the Reed Smoot hearing showed that Mormonism is taught in Utah's public schools.

The United States Supreme Court decided that all railroad cars and locomotives must be equipped with uniform automatic safety couplers.

The report of the Interstate Commerce Commission defined the authority desired by the commission for enforcing its rulings on reducing railroad rates.

The President has nominated these principals and alternates for examination to fill the two places for midshipman-at-large which will be vacant in 1905: Webster Allyn Capron, son of Captain Allyn Capron, U. S. A., and Ridgely Hunt, Jr., son of Lieutenant Ridgely Hunt, U. S. N., retired.

OUR ADOPTED ISLANDS.

The luxuries of American civilization extended to him through the solicitude of the American Government have not tended to increase the usefulness of the Filipino as a soldier, according to the annual report of General Wood commanding the Department of Mindanao, just made public by the War Department.

Affairs in Porto Rico, the Philippines and Hawaii have settled down since the election, and business affairs are running along in the usual trend.

DOMESTIC.

Charles Summerfield, a rivetter, fell from the Williamsburg Bridge (New York City) into the river and lives.

After eight days' incessant labor at the pumps to keep afloat the rescued crew of the schooner Clara Goodwin reached New York Harbor.

In collision with the floating derrick Hercules, in the New York Navy Yard, a section of plate of the battle ship Texas was ripped up.

George Laird Shoup, first Governor of Idaho and for many years United States Senator, died in Boise.

The Edith L. Allen, disabled by a sunken wreck off Hatteras, was towed into New York Harbor by the Sabine, of the Mallory Line.

Without opposition the New York City Rapid Transit Commission approved the franchise for a subway under Sixth avenue and also Ninth street.

Dr. Chadwick was indicted jointly with his wife, Cassie L. Chadwick, by a Cleveland (Ohio) court, on a charge of forging and uttering the $5,000,000 Carnegie notes.

With several city blocks, each worth, in buildings and contents, $25,000,000, New York was declared by the Insurance Press to lead American cities in concentration of wealth.

Ten thousand unmarried men employed by the Pittsburg Coal Company have been laid off on account of the closing of mines by the severe drought.

Lucius P. Hawley, a well to do New Yorker, killed himself with gas.

Railroad presidents expressed the opinion that there was no need of further legislation to govern freight rates.

The New York Throat, Nose and Lung Hospital, for the treatment consumptive poor, was opened.

Frank Savarino was killed and Philip Scilabbro mortally wounded in a pistol duel in East Thirty-ninth street, New York City.

Several severe fines were imposed on persons convicted of selling adulterated milk in New York City.

Four men were burned to death on a Standard Oil Company barge at sea off Long Branch, N. J.

The Legal Aid Society has taken up the case of Mary McGill, a young Scotch girl, who was deported after her appeal had been granted.

It was learned that the reinspection ...ing the General Slocum disaster ...oped when 500 of the 1400 ...y York had been examined. ... Cook, of Georgetown, ... up, half frozen, in ... crew of the fire... ...could not ex... ...the water.

HAIR ORNAMENTS.

Lady Beatrice Pole-Carew is a pioneer of a new fashion. She wears a bandeau of brilliants which is very becoming and reminds one of the gold bandeau of the Duchess of Devonshire six years ago. The fashion of wearing a pair of diamond wings in the hair was introduced last season by the Duchess of Roxburghe, but even more artistic were the diamond leaves worn by Mrs. Ivor Guest, the tips of which met in front. Instead of a tiara Mrs. George Keppel often wears a high hair ornament, from the center of which hangs a huge pear-shape brilliant, while Lady Granby's diamond-studded hair-net has found as many followers as did the diamond ribbon twisted in and out of the coiffure worn by Lady Lytton.

FASHION HINTS.

...eau de cygnes are among the silks ... come in all the new shades.

...lain straight lace scarfs of guipure ... chantilly about one-half of a yard ...ide are popular and are to be had in the lace departments.

The shops are showing fine linen handkerchiefs in colors, with lines of white forming squares.

It is to be a season of colored leathers from the showings in the shops. Bags, card cases, belts, pocketbooks and all other sorts of leather things come in both bright and delicate colors.

Heavy weight mohairs in checks and plaids make excellent fall school frocks, and the lighter weights in plain colors remain unrivaled for all-round service in frocks for small girls.

Braids, soutaches, woven embroidery of all kinds will be used for the trimming of children's garments. Ruchings of shot or chameleon taffeta, pinked or snipped with the scissors, will trim frocks of plain challie or other woolen materials.

Flannel is used more than ever for children's and misses' wear. Waists and school frocks will be made of the dark shades and clan plaids, and there are heavier weights for costumes and separate skirts.

A catalogue of autograph letters, published by a London dealer, has surprised a good many people by showing the fact that Charles Dickens' full name was Charles John Huffman Dickens.

The Chinese government is to receive £300 a thousand for all the Chinese coolies shipped to South African mines.

...long.
...his XV jack...
...rn of large but...
...trimming than for real ...
...s. On the sleeves, on ...
... in back, and, in fact, ...
...ey can be placed, these ...
...e to the smartest costume ...
...air of pussiness and lack ...
...ut a few, handsome and in ...
...s, make an effective finish ...
...ple or an elaborate jacket. ...
...n corduroy or velveteen, ...
...buttons brighten the suit and ...
... to advantage, while on white ...
...white metal, rhinestone or even ...
...buttons are all attractive. ...
...less the material be of the light... waist of chiffon, chiffon cloth or ...is better than cloth, which under ...at is inclined to be too warm. ...
...cloth finished in ... way

...yoke is ...
...t is often ...
...hout. ...
...ashed velvet is another ma... ...h is to be made up into ...rate reception costume. ...nly be worn at the most ...rtainment, but is exceed... ...h this the coat ...the skirt, which ...trimming, is ...the ordinary ...rests on the ...in back and ...t the sides. ...s is a be... ...the soft ...re a pretty ..., and the ...imed at ...any

...any young wo... ...ving a good compl... ...er think of taking the ... ...ecure one. No woman can be posi... ...ly ugly if she has a good complex... ...and, no matter how irregular the ...ures, a fine, clear-grained skin out... ...s them all and is suggestive of ... and cleanliness of mind and ...

...order to possess this attraction, ...must eat good, nourishing food, ...est it well and have a good circu... ...on. Take plenty of fresh air exer... ... Be not economical in the use ...fresh water. If this would be ob... ...ved by womankind, regulated, of ...rse, by individual temperament, ...re would be little call for cos... ...tics.

...The ignorant woman with the dark, ...ddy complexion often disguises ... with liquid compound, which ... cover her defects. The con... ...of the entire body must be at... ...ded to before the blemish will be ...any degree removed. For those ...o have vitality enough, the cold ...age bath in the morning is a de... ...tful tonic. The delicate woman ...find by beginning them in sum... ...that she will be able to continue ...during the entire year without ...shock to the nervous system ...h must be avoided. The hot ...at night quiets the nerves, re... ...es the body and induces sleep. ...soften and whiten the skin ...is nothing more beneficial than ...meal taken internally and exter... ...After a warm bath it may be ...dry, or pour boiling water over a ...cools of it and let it stand

DIFFERENT PAGES

COURTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

CIRCUIT COURT.

Spring Term—1st Monday in April.
Summer Term—3rd Monday in July.
Fall Term—1st Monday in November.

Judge—T. Scott Sayre.
Solicitor—F. Loyd Tate, Wetumpka.
Clerk—Sam W. Collins.

CHANCERY COURT.

Spring Term—2nd Monday in March.
Fall Term—2nd Monday in September.
Chancellor—Hon. W. W. Whiteside.
Register—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clanton.

COUNTY COURT.

First Monday in each month.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

2nd Monday February, 1st Monday April, 1st Monday June, 2nd Monday July, 2nd Monday August, 1st Monday November.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Judge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
Treasurer—W. T. Caller.
Sheriff—J. M. Morgan.
Solicitor—J. O. Middl...
Tax Assessor—A. C. M...
Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

First District—W. H. Conway.
Second District—Alex Glasscock.
Third District—R. P. Kendrick.
Fourth District—Moses Robinson.

SUPT OF EDUCATION.

Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

STATE SENATOR.

Hon. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES

Pastors and clerks are cordially asked to send the editor any news regarding their churches which they would like published. Also if there are any errors in these notices please send corrections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

...line—Rev. W. H. Connell, pastor.
... Jones, Jr., clerk, Plantersville.
...th-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor; C. C. Vinson, clerk, Billingsley.
...ookson—Rev. W. J. Bone, pastor; W. Wilkins, clerk, Pletcher.
...thany—Rev. I. Bice, 1st Sunday. ... Huett, clerk, Verbena.
...nton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, ...
...e Creek—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th ...y. V. J. Gragg, clerk.
...er Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, ...r; J. Samons, clerk, Jemison.
...ncord—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 3rd ...y. T. N. Parrish, clerk.
...lins Chapel—Rev. W. J. Arm..., 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, ...
...stnut Creek—Rev. J. L. Hand, ...r; J. W. Dennis, clerk, Coopers.
...inth—Rev. M. J. Parrish, 2nd ...y. W. B. Jones, clerk.
...ss Roads—Rev. M. J. Parrish, ...unday. J. M. Huckabee, clerk.
...rinth—Rev. C. H. Lowery, 1st ...ay. M. F. Wagoner, clerk.
...naan—Rev. S. B. Culpepper, pas... W. J. Roy, clerk, Mt. Creek.
...enezer—Rev. P. G. Maness, pas... R. H. Nelson, clerk, Stanton.
...mison—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; N. Rodgers, clerk, Jemison.
...berty Hill—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 3rd ...day; W. M. Wood, clerk.
...acedonia—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd ...day. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.
...ars Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, pas... H. Z. Barnes, clerk, British.
...lberry—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; ... Veazey, clerk, Randolph.
...nt Carmel—Rev. W. J. Rud... pastor; W. M. Roebuck, clerk.
...nt Zion—Rev. W. J. Armstrong ...; D. H. Mullins, clerk, Jumbo.
...le Springs—Rev. J. L. Hand ...or; W. H. Wilson, clerk.
Macedonia—Rev. W. J. Parrish, 2nd ...nday; George Trawick, clerk.
New Cedron—Rev. J. E. Moore, pas...or; J. W. Billingsley, clerk.
New Salem—Rev. W. J. Armstrong, 4th Sunday; G. W. Hill, clerk.
New Hope—Rev. A. M. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. Henry Smith, clerk.
Pilgrims' Rest—Rev. T. J. Deason, pastor; I. M. Tidwell, clerk, Pletcher.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday; D. H. Hodgins, clerk.
Pleasant Hill—Rev. J. M. Gothard, pastor; W. R. Scott, clerk, Jemison.
Pleasant Grove—Rev. G. W. Freeman, pastor; H. C. Latham, clerk, Shoults.
Poplar Springs—Rev. W. J. Bone, 2nd Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.
Providence—Rev. R. M. Honeycutt. 1st Sunday. W. H. Shaw, clerk, Jemison.
Providence—Rev. W. J. Armstrong. ...tor; Riley Robinson, clerk, Clan...
Salem—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor; S. Robinson, clerk, Rushton.
Shiloh—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd ...nday; W. J. Billingsley, clerk.
Sardis—Rev. T. J. Deason, 4th Sunday. J. Deason, clerk, Adams.
Thorsby—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; Robert Jones, clerk, Thorsby.
Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, pastor; R. S. Chandler, clerk, Jemison.
Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2d Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.
Verbena—Rev. J. W. Partridge, 1st Sunday. T. J. Bland, clerk.
Valley Creek—Rev. I. Windsor, pastor; J. W. Mitchell, clerk, Plantersville.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

Clanton Circuit, Rev. T. F. Davis, Pastor.
Thorsby—1st Sunday.
Walnut Grove—2nd Sunday, morning.
Unity—2nd Sunday, evening.
Shady Grove—3rd Sunday.
Mount Pisgah—4th Sunday, morning.
Enterprise—4th Sunday, evening.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Highland School House—Rev. M. F. Lett, 3rd Sunday and Saturday before. T. L. Adams, clerk.
Enterprise—Rev. M. F. Lett, 4th Sunday. T. F. Patterson, clerk.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN.

St. Olafs, Thorsby—Rev. H. Engh, pastor. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

Concordia, Thorsby—Rev. J. E. Hedberg. Every Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2d Sunday. Song service every 2d and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

MASONIC.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday. Clanton.
Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 250—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.
Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 423—First Saturday, Clanton.
Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 567—First Saturday Billingsley.
Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.
Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 411—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.
Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 473—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.
Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

of the

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE CO.

Of Toronto, Canada.

1st January, 1904.

UNITED STATES BRANCH.

Assets.

Government bonds	$223,650.00
State and municipal bonds	511,473.19
Cash on hand and deposit	169,720.71
Stocks and bonds	305,793.00
Premiums in course of col.	204,834.79
Interest due and accrued.	11,833.20
	$1,427,304.89

Liabilities.

Reserve premium fund (N. Y. Standard)	$849,771.77
Reserve for unpaid losses	100,786.14
	$950,557.91
Surplus in United States . .	$476,746.98
Total income in United States for 1903	$1,547,736.84
Total losses paid in U. S. from 1874 to 1903, inclusive	$14,674,843.26

WALLACE C. EDLER, Agent, Clanton, Alabama.

FOR SALE.

660 Acres Land—320 acres within 2½ miles of Clanton, 75 per cent of which is timbered, 1 set mill-rocks, 48 inch, 1 Horse, weight 1100 lbs. Alfred Popwell, Clanton, Ala.

NOTICE.

I retire from the mercantile business December 31, 1904. All persons owing me who do not settle their account by January 10, 1905, will find their matter in a lawyer's hands for collection. Respectfully,

P. D. WILSON.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Tom Allen has moved his saw mill to 3 miles west of Cooper.

W. J. Patterson was in Clanton Thursday and says he is moving to Cooper.

A. Stein, of Calera, has issued a very pretty calendar for 1905. Mr. Stein wishes to thank the people of Chilton for their patronage in the past year and hopes to serve them all again in 1905.

J. W., J. A. and S. E. Neeley were in Clanton Thursday.

Rev. A. L. Foshee was a pleasant visitor Thursday. He also gave THE UNION a list of his churches and preaching days. We wish all the pastors would do likewise.

J. A. Miller was in Clanton Thursday.

P. K. Villadsen, of Thorsby, was in Clanton Friday. He talks very interestingly about his furniture factory at that town. Our people should patronize a home industry when they can.

Squire Al. Childress was in Clanton Friday, assessing property, as executor of the Childress estate he had a parchment deed dated 1858, signed by James Buchanan.

George W. Phalin, of Thorsby, was in town Friday.

W. D. Cherry and wife were in Clanton Saturday.

Charles Barrett and Miss Sadie Weaver went to Columbus, Ga., a few days since and got married. They could not get a license in Alabama, as Mr. Barrett is not 17 years old yet. We wish the young couple prosperity and happiness.

J. M. Maddox was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

T. W. Atchley has moved to Kellerman. We are sorry to lose Mr. Atchley, but wish him the best of luck in his new home.

Rev. B. H. Vickers was in Clanton Friday and says his daughter, Miss Esther, is convalescing slowly.

E. J. Melton, of Dublin, Tex., is in Chilton county on a visit and called at THE UNION on Saturday. Mr. Melton is a prominent member and officer of the Farmers' Union at his place. This organization is accomplishing great things for the farmers of Texas and THE UNION hopes to give our people some more news of its workings later on. Mr. Melton is very well posted on all things concerning the farmer, both what he buys and what he sells. It would do our Farmers' Alliance good to have a talk from him while he is here.

W. D. Driver was in Clanton Monday.

P. W. Peterson was a pleasant visitor Monday.

Mad Bean, George and W. A. Gore were in Clanton Monday

J. J. Galiman was in town Monday.

H. M. Mahan was in Clanton Monday.

This Saturday is your last chance to get your merchandise from P. D. Wilson at less than cost.

Downs has 1,000 pair of shoes at your own price. Come and get them. tf

Mrs. Ed Smitherman son Joe and Charlie Wilson are spending the holidays at Maplesville.

Hosea Downs has a vacation from his college at Nashville and is spending it with his parents.

John L. Howard was in town Tuesday.

G. E. Malinquist and J. R. Williams, of Thorsby, were in Clanton Tuesday.

J. L. Bates was in town Tuesday.

J. N. Scott spent Tuesday in Clanton.

Judge L. H. Reynolds spent Tuesday in Montgomery.

H. I. Honeycutt and family returned Monday evening from a visit to Judge Honeycutt's.

Probate Clerk Honeycutt married Willie Flowers and Miss Dusie Teel Tuesday. This is the first marriage for "Henry" this term.

G. N. Foshee was in town Tuesday.

C. L. Langston and M. P. Johnson went to Parkwood Wednesday to see W. P. Johnson, who is seriously ill and not expected to live.

Street fair in Clanton this week.

If you need corn, oats or hay, go to Downs'. tf

NOTICE.

All parties indebted to me by past due notes, are requested to settle same by January 20, 1905.

E. A. MATTHEWS.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

E. C. Martin and Miss Lucinda Smith. Marion L. Scott and Miss May E. Edwards. D. M. Foshee and Miss Pouthy Durbin. H. L. Mims and Miss Maggie Pope. Willie Flowers and Miss Dusie Teel. A. H. Armstrong and Miss F. M. Burkhalter. A. J. L. Dennis and Miss Nora E. Claughton. Arthur McGee and Miss Alice Hayes.

COLORED.

Tom Jordan and Sallie Doss. Wylie Howard and Mary Lamar. Hubbard Raspberry and Ida Gardner. Dennis Laster and Belle Wilson.

BEAT NINE.

We've had a considerable storm, which blew down ye writer's fence. Messrs. Alford Collins, Bob Hardy and J. W. Riggins went to Clanton Monday. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Collins visited Clanton Friday. Jesse Price went to Jemison Monday. Mr. A. J. Reeve, of Ensley, visited W. H. Wilson Sunday and Monday. G. D. Collins was in Clanton Friday. ... panied by his sons, ... visited Clanton Monda... dull Christmas. Everyt... with one or two exce... bad boys tore down the ... side of the public road. Th... principle in any one who a... way, and we hope ere another ... mas that they will know bette... not stoop to such rowdy conduct...

Yours with best wishes,

NIM ROD.

MOORE-RASPBERRY.

Mr. F. D. Moore and Mrs. Rosa Belle Raspberry were married at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. R. L. Barrett, near Stanton, on Thursday evening, Dec. 22d. Rev. W. J. Ruddick performed the ceremony before a large assemblage of relatives and friends, nearly 100 being at the wedding supper, and the happy couple start with the best wishes of all. THE UNION congratulates them and hopes that they will be happy and prosperous.

COURT NOTES.

At a special term of the county court on Dec. 22d Joe Fulmer was convicted on a charge of selling liquor, and fined $50 and costs.

Special Term Dec. 23d—Green Williams convicted of train riding, 10 days and costs.

Special Term Dec. 26th—Bill Jones was convicted of stealing lumber; sentence 30 days and costs.

The county convicts are now leased to Freeman, Hall & Co. for $9.25 per month, without distinction as to age or sex. The last administration only got $4. This firm runs a turpentine camp in Bibb county and the convicts will have healthy employment. The first batch of eight prisoners was taken to the camp by wagon Tuesday morning.

A CARD OF THANKS.

Clanton, Ala., Dec. 26, 1904.

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to the authorities, to local friends, and more especially and particularly to the Sunday school and their teacher, for remembrances and refreshments sent us on Christmas day. The recollection of these kindnesses will ever be a bright thought in our lives, and we feel sure that in more ways than by human agency the givers will in future be rewarded for their thoughtfulness.

J. E. McCULLOUGH,
J. H. JOHNSON.

PROGRAM OF TEACHERS' INSTITUTE,

To Be Held at Concord January 20-21, 1905.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Music by teachers of institute.
Devotional Exercises—Rev. T. F. Davis.
Welcome Address—E. H. Parrish.
Opening Address—Robert Session.
Enrollment. Short talks by teachers.
Noon. Centralizing County Schools—G. L. Speer.
Give Your Daily Program in Teaching and Your Opinion as to Its Necessity—J. B. Ruffin, H. A. Harris.
The Ideal Teacher—P. G. Maness.
The Ideal Parent—A. E. Davis.

SATURDAY.

9:30 Opening query box
Improvement in and Around School Buildings—J. H. Anderson, Robert Jones.
School Discipline—S. B. Powell, B. R. Richardson.
Educational Address—Prof. W. D. M. Simmons, of Montgomery.
Discussion of rules by institute.
Educational address.
Conveyance will be furnished teachers coming by rail to Clanton.

J. W. MOORE, Chairman.
W. O. PERRY,
R. A. RASCO,
H. L. DAVIS,
G. L. SPEER, Sec'y.
Board of Education.

Jemison, Dec. 21, 1904.

Editor Union:

I see that Commissioner of Agriculture R. R. Poole has called a meeting of the farmers on January 10th at the different county seats to discuss the cotton question. I want all professions to meet the farmers on that day—merchants, bankers, lawyers, doctors, school teachers and preachers—all classes, for we all live from the farm. Let's meet at Clanton at 10 o'clock in the morning.

EVERYBODY COME!

W. H. CONWAY.

UNION.

Christmas is past and we are all well and in fine spirits, though not intoxicated. I haven't heard of any disturbance in our community yet, though a few have passed with jugs that seemed to be a little top heavy; I'd rather see men celebrate Christmas some other way. Some people have a very faint idea as to what December 25th is celebrated for. These are people of means and intellectual ability, but they are pursuing the wrong course. What did Solomon say? "Wine is a mocker; strong drink is raging, and whoever is deceived thereby is not wise."

"OBSERVER."

NOTICE!

Teachers' examination will be held in Clanton at the court house on the 1st Monday in January, 1905, at 10 a. m. sharp. No applicants admitted after that hour.

J. W. MOORE,
County Superintendent.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. TH... —Is at Th...

Dry Goods, Cl...
FURNI...
COFFINS AND BURIA...
W. I. MULL...
Clanton.

Ben M. Ja...
Furnit...
Globe-Wernicke...
Filin...
Catalogue for the ask...
1011 First Ave., BIRMI...

PAUL CALAME,
205 21st Street
Birmingham, Ala.
Practica... and Optician...
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly filled

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association
of Alabama.
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
By the People and for the People.
Chilton County Branch
Organized February 3rd, 1900.
W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.
INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and tents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind & Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.
Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.
Full particulars furnished upon application to WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

Pure Water Prevents Fevers.
DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER
We guarantee water or no charge made.
Estimates given. Address
I. E. SARBER CO.
Thorsby, Alabama.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,
Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.
County and Office Supplies a Specialty.
Ask for Estimates.
2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Married After Week's Courtship.

Clarksville, Tenn.—One of the most remarkable marriages that ever occurred in this section took place today.

The principals were Miss Grace Morris, of Dorsey, Ky., and Richard Parker. The bride is only 13 years old, and the groom 14. The boy met the girl only one week before the marriage and had been to see her but three times.

Japanese Indignant.

London—Japanese national indignation, according to a Tokio dispatch to the Times, is becoming aroused by rumors that Holland is about to place Sabang (twenty miles north of Malacca) at the disposal of the Russian Baltic squadron.

President's Reception.

Washington—The programme ... the president's New Year reception ... the white house on January 2... been made public. It follows the ... prescribed by long-established ... At 11 a. m. the cabinet and ... matic corps will be receiv... followed by the judiciary ... senators and repres... gress at 11:30. O... navy and marin... at 11:45.

The he... bureau... men... mia... ceiv... at...

...is voice twice be-
...ed, "what do you call
...ow. I mean they're roses,
...doctor? Did you want
...urse they're roses; I knew
...r what kind of roses are they?"
...dn't you want me for something,
...er?"
No, Fern, no; I didn't want you for
...rything. Joe's gone to sleep. What ...kind of roses did you say these were?"
"Why, they're old-fashioned roses."
Then the cutting of the flowers was continued and by and by the doctor said to her:
"You've had a good deal of trouble these eight years of married life, haven't you, my girl?"
"I would have had trouble," she answered, "if it hadn't been for you." And he knew she was referring to the time when death had threatened the little one. "And now," she added, "if it wasn't for you—"
"No, no, Fern, not this time, I'm afraid. As I have told you before, it may be in a month, or it may be—"
The tears began to come now, and her big friend laid his hand gently upon her shoulder.
They were standing at the great rosebush near the cottage and the doctor slowly reached up to the window and plucked the white morning glory. As he offered it to her she looked up once more into his face.
But she did not cry. She took that rough, dark hand of his in both her own.
"Yes, I know what you mean. He's asleep in there. He's gone from me and I can't ever see him any more. But you were with him and you made him forget, and he wasn't troubled about me or about the children, or about anything at all. You've been a good friend to us—a good friend to him and to me."

THROW RICE AT BRIDES.

Custom Persists Despite Attempts at Reforms and Substitutes.

The rice storm still rattles gayly about the shoulders of the newly married, in spite of the fact that rigorous efforts have been made to suppress it. Statisticians have counted up the thousands of bushels vainly wasted in the ceremony, and have urged that all this nutritious grain should be put into the mouths of the poor rather than down the backs of the opulent. Physicians speak of the eyes that have been injured or made permanently blind by the flying particles. Half the people present secretly recent the stinging hail, and the departing couple are compelled to amuse the public at large for the next few days by shedding rice with every movement.

One must be young and excited to thoroughly enjoy the rice scrimmage, yet it goes on year after year, a rowdy but a permanent adjunct to Lohengrin. Boston tried to substitute inoffensive white flakes made of gelatine, but the public was not to be moved from its rice orgie. Then rose leaves were tried, but they, too, had only a temporary acceptance.

And now the simple flinging of a handful is being changed for an elaborate mechanical distribution. At a recent eastern wedding breakfast a bomb was arranged under the flower in the center of the table, and at the pressing of an electric button this blew up, scattering rice in every direction. The next device will probably be a rice shower, arranged on the principles of stage rain, and falling alike on the bridal couple and every body else.

O, Jesus, Master.

O Master, at thy feet
I bow in rapture sweet!
Before me, as in darkening glass,
Some glorious outlines pass,
Of love and truth and holiness and power;
I own them thine, O Christ, and bless thee for this hour.

O full of truth and grace,
Smile of Jehovah's face,
O tenderest heart of love untold!
Who may thy praise unfold?
Thee, Savior, Lord of lords and King of kings,
Well may adoring seraphs hymn with veiling wings.

I have no words to bring,
Worthy of thee my king;
And yet one anthem in thy praise
I long, I long to raise;
The heart is full, the eye entranced above,
But words all melt away in silent awe and love.

How can the lip be dumb,
The hand all still and numb,
When thee the heart doth see and own
Her Lord and God alone?
Tune for thyself the music of my days,
And open thou my lips that I may show thy praise.

Yea let my whole life be
One anthem unto thee,
And let the praise of lip and life
Outring all sin and strife!
O Jesus, Master! be thy name supreme
For heaven and earth, the one, the grand, the eternal theme!
—Frances Ridley Havergal.

Durability of Wood.

Some interesting experiments have been made to ascertain which wood lasts the longest. It was found that birch and aspen decayed in three years, willow and chestnut in four years, maple and red beech in five years and elm and ash in seven years. Oak, Scottish fir and Weymouth pine decayed to the depth of half an inch in seven years; larch and juniper were uninjured at the end of the seven years. In situations so free from moisture that they may be practically called dry the durability of timber is unlimited. The roof of Westminster hall, London, is more than 450 years old.

Hard Work.

"Back from your vacation, eh? I suppose you'll find your work harder than ever now."
"That's what!" replied the clerk. "I've got ten fiancees to correspond with."

GIVES LESSONS IN CARVING.

Young Woman Who Teaches Men an Invaluable Art.

"There goes a woman," said the tall girl, according to the New York Press, "who is preparing to confer a blessed boon upon suffering mankind. If she succeeds in her present plans every man and also every woman who is interested in household matters will be ready within a year to canonize her as a saint."
"What is she going to do?" asked the nice young man.
"She is going to establish a carving class for prospective bridegrooms. I saw one of her circulars yesterday. She has 500 of them ready for the market, so evidently she means business. I also saw the list of possible patrons to whom she is going to send them. It is made up chiefly of young men who recently have entered or are about to enter the married state. She has a dozen pupils pledged already.
"The instruction will be thorough. Each man will be required to wrestle individually with all kinds of meats, from the Sunday morning ham to the Thanksgiving turkey, and not until he has learned to serve joints and slice cuts gracefully will he be granted a degree. Fifty cents a lesson is the price to be charged for this invaluable information. The ultimate cost will be regulated, of course, by the ingenuity of the pupil. A man with a natural aptitude for carving will probably get through in six lessons. At that rate the education is dirt cheap, and I intend to urge every man of my acquaintance to avail himself of the opportunity to master a difficult art."
The nice young man took a note book from his waistcoat pocket. "Who do you say the lady is?" he asked, shyly.
The tall girl laughed. "Well, for goodness sake," she said, "is that what ails you? I have noticed that you were acting queerly, but I didn't know that that was the cause. Who is she? When is it to be?"

GREAT LIVE STOCK INDUSTRY.

Value of Animals in the United States Is in the Billions.

Very few people have any idea of the magnitude of the live stock industry of the United States. If shown, by official government count, that the horses, mules, cattle, hogs, sheep and goats in the United States number more than 220,000,000 head, and that their value is, according to the same authority, more than $3,200,000,000 (see twelfth census of the United States), the figures alone would have very little attraction or meaning to the majority of readers. But when told, in addition thereto, that these animals would make a solid column of more than eighty-nine abreast reaching from San Francisco to Boston, or, if placed in single file, a solid procession that would reach nearly ten times around the earth; and, further, that their value exceeds the total combined value of all the corn, wheat and other cereals, potatoes, hay, cotton, sugar, molasses, tobacco, lumber, wool, coal, petroleum, silver, gold and precious stones, iron, copper, lead, zinc and other metals produced annually in the whole country, then perhaps some adequate conception may be formed concerning the magnitude and importance of the live stock industry of the United States.—Chicago Tribune.

Science of Onychomancy.

The latest science is, undoubtedly, onychomancy, or the science of reading the fortune from the finger nails. According to the onychomancist, the tiny white specks which come and go on the nails are not the result of chance, but from them can be read "the past, present and future." These innocent looking specks are almost as difficult to decipher as the lines on the palm from which the palmist tells us so much. Their size, shape and position are all taken into account. The specks nearest the tip of the finger relate to the past, those in the center to the present and those on the half moon to the future. As in palmistry, the right hand has to be read in conjunction with the left. But a feature which gives this science an advantage over all its rivals is that these fateful specks are constantly coming and going. Consequently a number of readings at different times must be given to reach an accurate one. The revival of the science, for it is really not a recent one, is traced to a foreign source. The consort of a Continental sovereign came across an onychomancist at a well known watering place and was so delighted at his aptitude in expounding the unknown that she insisted that he initiate a member of her suite in all its mysteries. He did so, for a large consideration, and the pastime has been continued at the Continental court.

"For My Sake."

Three little words, but full of tenderest meaning;
Three little words the heart can scarcely hold;
Three little words, but on their import dwelling
What wealth of love their syllables unfold!

"'For my sake' cheer the suffering, help the needy;
On earth this was my work; I give it thee,
If thou wouldst follow in thy Master's footsteps,
Take up my cross and come and learn of me.

"'For my sake' press with steadfast patience onward,
Although the race be hard, the battle long,
Within my Father's house are many mansions;
There thou shalt rest and join the victor's song.

"And if in coming days the world revile thee,
If 'for my sake' thou suffer pain and loss,
Bear on, faint heart, thy Master went before thee;
They only wear His crown who share His cross."

Song for the ...

A MEMORY OF BOY...

...Success by reading that prince of ...polished prose, Lafcadio Hearn's master
...piece "The A Memory of Last Teleng
...A story well told, even though a ...fantastic imagination
...When the hunter, sun is burning
...Waiting through this arid noon
...And the thirsty throats are turning
...To the cooling, tempting spoon
...Splitting all the nothing day
...Is some soothing, tempted murmur
...Threading with a fierce desire

...When the copper sky gleams cruel
...Like some big hot griddle shield
...Scorching the dumb treeborne jewel
...Parching all the shimmering field
...When the blistering breeze is lifting
...And some heart breaks heart defying
...And you look your self panted

...Swift in seek the cool dusking
...And dive into the subduing stream
...Letting go for ease and going
...Where dark and green dreams gleam
...Sweet to feel the water steeping your
...Tingling all your fevered brain
...Soothing all your fevered being
...Bathing limbs, as glad it found you
...Cool and cleared as the rain

...Plunge into the water brimming
...Stretch your body to the stream
...Bathe your soul with swimming

...And life's hot ... the bubbling ... stream
...Where the ... trees are leaning
...Where the ... breeze is creeping
...Where the ... grasses grow
...Where the ... sun is peeping
...Where the ... waters flow

...Speak to those ... that labor,
...Set us to ... to those that toil,
...Speak the ... prayer of girl or neighbor
...In the ... cheerless days of soil
...Let the ... things are in the ... grass
...Even as ... or singing rain
...Be your ... in doing

...Describe with ... charges ... A.
...JAMES E. ...

Telegraph a "Bug Line"

"Did you ever hear of the Bug Line Telegraph Company of Maine?" asked an old operator in one of the big companies in Broadway, the other night, when the operators were eating all along the line, says the New York Commercial.
"It is only ten miles long, and is up in the Kennebec region," he continued. "It was started just for conversation purposes by a couple of young men in the valley. It was about twelve years ago that a line was strung over the housetops and through the branches of the trees. The two young men began to talk to each other by signals, and then another young man wanted to be put on and a circuit was made to his place. Gradually others came in until there were about fifteen in the company.
"Then they learned the alphabet and got instruments, and had daily and nightly conversations over the wires just for the fun of the thing. Then the girls in the neighborhood were let in on the scheme. Every one was green in the business at the start, but gradually they picked up enough to talk, and in a year all had become tolerable fair opera... Some of them got to be experts and scatter..., and now they are regularly employed in good positions. I believe there are only a half dozen of the originators of the Bug Line who are still on the circuit."
"Why did they call it the Bug Line?" asked an operator who had been li...
"Well, at night the line ... working pretty badly, as the ... of lines will now and then, and ... expert operator was put to work ... tangle the kinks. You know, ... line begins to wobble the boys ... 'buggy.' So this expert ... turned to one of the original ... ers and said to him: 'You ought ... this the Bug Line,' and so the ... was adopted, and it has been ... that ever since.
"Every now and then the re... ing members have a row about ... thing and the line quits working ... they soon agree and open up, ... goes well until the next row. I ... more joshing has gone over the ... Line than any telegraph line in ... country. It has always been a ... service."

Explodes an Old Beli...

The bloodhound is a much-advertised and greatly overrated dog, according to the Washington Star. If he had a press agent and should lose his diamonds he could not get more notoriety than comes to him in the daily papers. An item of news something like this is printed almost daily: "Robbers came to Squeedunk last night. They broke into the blacksmith shop and took tools, with which they broke open the postoffice safe. They then escaped on a handcar. A posse with bloodhounds is in pursuit."
After every railroad "hold-up" the report comes that a sheriff's posse with bloodhounds has started on the trail.
There are few bloodhounds in the United States outside the kennels of some dog fanciers and "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The "bloodhound" of the south and southwest, the "bloodhound" that does all this trailing in the newspapers and trots along with every sheriff's posse is not a bloodhound at all. He is usually a hound and has blood in him, but that is as near to being a bloodhound as this dog gets. Often he is a foxhound. Some of these hounds are tr... from puppyhood to follow the ... of a man, just as some are trai... follow the scent of a deer, rab... other four-footed game. Every ... has a scent peculiar to himself, t... most men do not like to admit i... dog completely recognizes his n... without a few sniffs by way of ... tigation.
Sometimes these "bloodhounds ... clever in trailing a man if the ... which hangs close to the groun... not been dissipated or confused ... other scents. In most cases, t... these dogs are vastly overesti... The owner of a pack naturally ... his dogs the greatest ever ... on the marvels and mysteries th... smell out. A great chance is ... when a man is convicted on the ... mony of a hound's nose.
In the matter of ferocity, "bloodhounds" are about as ha... as kittens after their claws hav... manicured. These dogs would ... bite a defenseless tramp. They ... rather run two days than figh... a minute. A bulldog could w... yardful of these "bloodhounds" ... could catch them.

Old Coinage of Engla...

The occupants of the ancient sees of Canterbury and York, during the Anglo-Saxon period, enjoyed the privilege of issuing their own coinage—a coinage rich in archaeological, artistic and historical interest, says the Brooklyn Eagle. No record exists of the conditions and circumstances under which the right of coinage was granted to the archbishops of Canterbury, beyond the intrinsic evidence of the coins themselves. Only one type of coin appears to have been issued—the silver penny. It is presumed, from the appearance of the earliest coins, the appearance on the earliest coins of the name of Offa, King of Mercia—one of the three chief kingdoms of early England—that that king first granted the privilege of an independent ecclesiastical coinage.
The first archbishop to issue this money was Jaenberht, who occupied the see from A. D. 766 to 790. All his coins bear Offa's name, while some bear his own. This prelate is noted in English history for his vig... though unsuccessful, attempt to ... King Offa's plan for destroying ... power of the primatial see of Ca... bury and transferring the primac... a Mercian metropolitan. A synod ... held in 787 at Chelsea, now a pa... London, and the archbishop ... forced to give up a large portio... his province to Higbert, bisho... Lichfield, who was raised to the ... of an archbishop. Jaenberht's s... sor, Aethelheard (A. D. 79... though elected in 791, did not ... the pallium till 793. During t... terval he appears to have struc... with the title of Pontifex inst... Archiepiscopus. His early coin... the name of Offa, while those s... after 706 bear that of Coenwulf, w... succeeded Offa as King of Mercia.
Aethelheard's earlier pennies hav... in addition to the name of Offa, ... star, a cross, the Christian monogram, ... etc. This prelate was also bishop of ... Winchester—the ancient capital of ... England.

Wolfhound a Noble Dog

Beyond any question, the aristocrat of the canine family is the Russian wolfhound, otherwise the borzoi or barzoi, which is the Russian name for coursing dog. There is a refined elegance coupled with the indication of speed and strength about the Russian wolfhound which no other breed possesses.
In western Europe he is merely the ornamental companion that he is in eastern America. In the coyote section of our continent he can be made as useful as he is in Russia, and to assist in clearing off that scourge of the cattle ranches. When the borzoi was first brought to this country he was hailed as a natural-born wolf destroyer, and we started business under the impression that all one had to do was to let a borzoi see a coyote and the latter's death warrant was as good as executed. The result was a natural failure, because, like a bird dog, the wolfhound must be trained to the work. American purchasers have no occasion to worry about that, however, for as the dog's high courage is the result of education and ... couragement, without it they are ... cile and obedient and fit companio... for the ladies of the house, a po... which they are pre-eminently fitted ... fill by reason of their handsome ... unique appearance.—Country Lif...

Old Friend

Laid his hand gently on her shoulder.

"What you got there?"

...ren's little beds and her faded ... was heard swishing softly ... her step seemed much ... sprightlier than it ... woman came ...nounce in a ...ined:
... visit ...uster- ... the ...ch

...ow the bell-like tinkle of the ... a pitcher was heard in the ...om. Before Mrs. Dale had time ...o enter the room he was calmly reading a newspaper.
"Well, girl," he asked as the State Journal sank with a crinkling sound to his knees, "what you got there?"
For answer she gave him a quiet look through the glass, and a few drops went spattering down upon the carpet.
"This is just right; no sugar—not an iota—just exactly right. And you're one of those women, Fern Dale, who never have too much care and trouble to think of this sort of thing," he said.
"Of course there are plenty of families that are glad to see me—families, too, that pay their bills. But—well, not the money that really pays a peddler; an old peddler, anyhow. You know that. Now, don't you, ?"
...e young woman nodded.
"Well, then," he added, still more ...iberately, "you mustn't ever put off ...nding for me, my girl, when you ...ink I'm needed here."
"But he wouldn't let me send when I wanted to," the wife answered, and he saw that there were tears in her eyes. "So I didn't dare send till he was took down in bed. S'pose he wasn't sick at all—just wasn't feelin' right good."
"By thunder, that husband of yours is a brick! That's what he is; he's a brick!" Then he went on to inform her how long ago his first trifling account with that husband had been settled in full and how that husband of hers had played her a trick and how she was never to trust that husband of hers any more.
After the doctor's reassurance there was an interval of pensive thought, which concluded with the remark:
"I suppose you know, my girl, that Joe's a pretty sick man?"
Oh, yes; she did know that. Nevertheless, when she went off to make ...ay, had been a ...faulty during the ...h; they hurt. Well, ...e want to sell 'em to

"What you got there?"

...ren's little beds and her faded ... was heard swishing softly ... her step seemed much ... sprightlier than it ... woman came ...nounce in a ...ined:
... visit ...uster- ... the ...ch

...ow the bell-like tinkle of the ... a pitcher was heard in the ...om. Before Mrs. Dale had time ...o enter the room he was calmly reading a newspaper.
"Well, girl," he asked as the State Journal sank with a crinkling sound to his knees, "what you got there?"
For answer she gave him a quiet look through the glass, and a few drops went spattering down upon the carpet.
"This is just right; no sugar—not an iota—just exactly right. And you're one of those women, Fern Dale, who never have too much care and trouble to think of this sort of thing," he said.
"Of course there are plenty of families that are glad to see me—families, too, that pay their bills. But—well, not the money that really pays a peddler; an old peddler, anyhow. You know that. Now, don't you, ?"
...e young woman nodded.
"Well, then," he added, still more ...iberately, "you mustn't ever put off ...nding for me, my girl, when you ...ink I'm needed here."
"But he wouldn't let me send when I wanted to," the wife answered, and he saw that there were tears in her eyes. "So I didn't dare send till he was took down in bed. S'pose he wasn't sick at all—just wasn't feelin' right good."
"By thunder, that husband of yours is a brick! That's what he is; he's a brick!" Then he went on to inform her how long ago his first trifling account with that husband had been settled in full and how that husband of hers had played her a trick and how she was never to trust that husband of hers any more.
After the doctor's reassurance there was an interval of pensive thought, which concluded with the remark:
"I suppose you know, my girl, that Joe's a pretty sick man?"
Oh, yes; she did know that. Nevertheless, when she went off to make ...ay, had been a ...faulty during the ...h; they hurt. Well, ...e want to sell 'em to

"What you got there?"

...ren's little beds and her faded ... was heard swishing softly ... her step seemed much ... sprightlier than it ... woman came ...nounce in a ...ined:
... visit ...uster- ... the ...ch

...ow the bell-like tinkle of the ... a pitcher was heard in the ...om. Before Mrs. Dale had time ...o enter the room he was calmly reading a newspaper.
"Well, girl," he asked as the State Journal sank with a crinkling sound to his knees, "what you got there?"
For answer she gave him a quiet look through the glass, and a few drops went spattering down upon the carpet.
"This is just right; no sugar—not an iota—just exactly right. And you're one of those women, Fern Dale, who never have too much care and trouble to think of this sort of thing," he said.
"Of course there are plenty of families that are glad to see me—families, too, that pay their bills. But—well, not the money that really pays a peddler; an old peddler, anyhow. You know that. Now, don't you, ?"
...e young woman nodded.
"Well, then," he added, still more ...iberately, "you mustn't ever put off ...nding for me, my girl, when you ...ink I'm needed here."
"But he wouldn't let me send when I wanted to," the wife answered, and he saw that there were tears in her eyes. "So I didn't dare send till he was took down in bed. S'pose he wasn't sick at all—just wasn't feelin' right good."
"By thunder, that husband of yours is a brick! That's what he is; he's a brick!" Then he went on to inform her how long ago his first trifling account with that husband had been settled in full and how that husband of hers had played her a trick and how she was never to trust that husband of hers any more.
After the doctor's reassurance there was an interval of pensive thought, which concluded with the remark:
"I suppose you know, my girl, that Joe's a pretty sick man?"
Oh, yes; she did know that. Nevertheless, when she went off to make ...ay, had been a ...faulty during the ...h; they hurt. Well, ...e want to sell 'em to

"What you got there?"

...ren's little beds and her faded ... was heard swishing softly ... her step seemed much ... sprightlier than it ... woman came ...nounce in a ...ined:
... visit ...uster- ... the ...ch

...ow the bell-like tinkle of the ... a pitcher was heard in the ...om. Before Mrs. Dale had time ...o enter the room he was calmly reading a newspaper.
"Well, girl," he asked as the State Journal sank with a crinkling sound to his knees, "what you got there?"
For answer she gave him a quiet look through the glass, and a few drops went spattering down upon the carpet.
"This is just right; no sugar—not an iota—just exactly right. And you're one of those women, Fern Dale, who never have too much care and trouble to think of this sort of thing," he said.
"Of course there are plenty of families that are glad to see me—families, too, that pay their bills. But—well, not the money that really pays a peddler; an old peddler, anyhow. You know that. Now, don't you, ?"
...e young woman nodded.
"Well, then," he added, still more ...iberately, "you mustn't ever put off ...nding for me, my girl, when you ...ink I'm needed here."
"But he wouldn't let me send when I wanted to," the wife answered, and he saw that there were tears in her eyes. "So I didn't dare send till he was took down in bed. S'pose he wasn't sick at all—just wasn't feelin' right good."
"By thunder, that husband of yours is a brick! That's what he is; he's a brick!" Then he went on to inform her how long ago his first trifling account with that husband had been settled in full and how that husband of hers had played her a trick and how she was never to trust that husband of hers any more.
After the doctor's reassurance there was an interval of pensive thought, which concluded with the remark:
"I suppose you know, my girl, that Joe's a pretty sick man?"
Oh, yes; she did know that. Nevertheless, when she went off to make

"What you got there?"

...ren's little beds and her faded ... was heard swishing softly ... her step seemed much ... sprightlier than it ... woman came ...nounce in a ...ined:
... visit ...uster- ... the ...ch

...ow the bell-like tinkle of the ... a pitcher was heard in the ...om. Before Mrs. Dale had time ...o enter the room he was calmly reading a newspaper.
"Well, girl," he asked as the State Journal sank with a crinkling sound to his knees, "what you got there?"
For answer she gave him a quiet look through the glass, and a few drops went spattering down upon the carpet.
"This is just right; no sugar—not an iota—just exactly right. And you're one of those women, Fern Dale, who never have too much care and trouble to think of this sort of thing," he said.
"Of course there are plenty of families that are glad to see me—families, too, that pay their bills. But—well, not the money that really pays a peddler; an old peddler, anyhow. You know that. Now, don't you, ?"
...e young woman nodded.
"Well, then," he added, still more ...iberately, "you mustn't ever put off ...nding for me, my girl, when you ...ink I'm needed here."
"But he wouldn't let me send when I wanted to," the wife answered, and he saw that there were tears in her eyes. "So I didn't dare send till he was took down in bed. S'pose he wasn't sick at all—just wasn't feelin' right good."
"By thunder, that husband of yours is a brick! That's what he is; he's a brick!" Then he went on to inform her how long ago his first trifling account with that husband had been settled in full and how that husband of hers had played her a trick and how she was never to trust that husband of hers any more.
After the doctor's reassurance there was an interval of pensive thought, which concluded with the remark:
"I suppose you know, my girl, that Joe's a pretty sick man?"
Oh, yes; she did know that. Nevertheless, when she went off to make

"What you got there?"

...ren's little beds and her faded ... was heard swishing softly ... her step seemed much ... sprightlier than it ... woman came ...nounce in a ...ined:
... visit ...uster- ... the ...ch

...ow the bell-like tinkle of the ... a pitcher was heard in the ...om. Before Mrs. Dale had time ...o enter the room he was calmly reading a newspaper.
"Well, girl," he asked as the State Journal sank with a crinkling sound to his knees, "what you got there?"
For answer she gave him a quiet look through the glass, and a few drops went spattering down upon the carpet.
"This is just right; no sugar—not an iota—just exactly right. And you're one of those women, Fern Dale, who never have too much care and trouble to think of this sort of thing," he said.
"Of course there are plenty of families that are glad to see me—families, too, that pay their bills. But—well, not the money that really pays a peddler; an old peddler, anyhow. You know that. Now, don't you, ?"
...e young woman nodded.
"Well, then," he added, still more ...iberately, "you mustn't ever put off ...nding for me, my girl, when you ...ink I'm needed here."
"But he wouldn't let me send when I wanted to," the wife answered, and he saw that there were tears in her eyes. "So I didn't dare send till he was took down in bed. S'pose he wasn't sick at all—just wasn't feelin' right good."
"By thunder, that husband of yours is a brick! That's what he is; he's a brick!" Then he went on to inform her how long ago his first trifling account with that husband had been settled in full and how that husband of hers had played her a trick and how she was never to trust that husband of hers any more.
After the doctor's reassurance there was an interval of pensive thought, which concluded with the remark:
"I suppose you know, my girl, that Joe's a pretty sick man?"
Oh, yes; she did know that. Nevertheless, when she went off to make